The problem with all revisionists is that while they CLAIM to be scientific, they fail to ACT in a scientific manner. A scientific approach always involves experimental verification of the theory, idea, notion, etc. As an example, take the case where "documents" and "eye-witnesses" claim that a batch of people were executed in a chamber where diesel exhaust was pumped in. Where is the revisionist who is so confident, that his "paper proof" represents reality, that he will volunteer his person to duplicate the procedure? Don't hold your breath! Besides, stuffing a few mice up the exhaust pipe of your Mercedes proves nothing other than an observation about mice and exhaust pipes. I would like to see a dozen or so revisionists (Leuchter and his disciples from Grubach on) place themselves in a chamber, together with opened cans of Zyklon B, and demonstrate to the world that it is impossible to die in that fashion. Until this happens, the music will play and play and play. The world is getting tired of the tune. I am opposed to using animals in any such demonstration. Dying goats act like dying goats. We need human volunteers and not extrapolations of mice to men. The only incident I know of, where someone actually tried to verify a Holocaust tale by experimentation, was the case of Charles Provan. Charlie wondered if 700 people could indeed be stuffed into a two-car garage. He couldn't find 700 agreeable people, but he managed to cram his family into a box about the size of a phone-booth and, by using a proportionality, concluded that it was possible. At least, this is a start. Charlie is more scientific than his revisionist antagonists. Instead of peering at a calculator and some dusty books, he went to work in the real world. He also suggested that Fritz (diesel exhaust gas is harmless) Berg volunteer for a non-hazardous diesel gassing.

Who cares if it is technically impossible for Jesus to walk upon water? Who cares if it is technically impossible to exterminate millions of God's images with insecticide? To most human fodder, they "know" these things happened. All mothers "know" that their children are intelligent and beautiful. Isn't everyone above average?

Truth is a mirror scattered in a myriad of bits — and each believes his piece to be the whole. (Check me out. Did I quote Gibran correctly? Probably not. I don't read much.) In the meantime, keep the revisionists in room and board. Send them your spare dimes.

Comment: Confusion has always existed in regard to the phenomena we call evaporation and boiling; condensation and liquefying; and even crystallizing and freezing; with sublimation thrown in for good measure. Most of the problem is resolved once we understand that God, in His infinite wisdom, created molecules unequal in their kinetic energies — the energy associated with motion. Thus, some molecules have more "potential" than do their brothers. Ain't that true, Dr. King? The state of matter we call "gas" is where all of the molecules (of water, for example) in a particular region are completely separated. They occasionally bump into one another, and other things also, but they generally don't hold hands and waltz about. For all of these molecules to exist in the gaseous state means that all of them have a certain minimal kinetic energy. Some of the molecules in a pan of liquid water have this energy at 80 degrees, for example. They are the ones who "evaporate" (become gaseous) leaving the slugs behind. The boys who left the pan are "hotter" and leave the "cooler" ones behind. This is the reason that "evaporation cools". Those that don't evaporate require outside assistance (affirmative action) in order to make it in the world as a gas. This assistance comes from the surrounding environment and allows more of the boys to leave home until all have evaporated. When enough energy (heat) is supplied to a given amount of liquid, over a shorter period of time, to insure that every molecule has the required energy to exist as a gas, we call this process "boiling". "Boiling" also implies visible evidence of convection and gravity forces. Boiling is where ALL of the molecules will eventually have this minimal energy. Evaporation is where SOME of the molecules have the required minimum, if not today, then tomorrow. A thermometer measures the AVERAGE energies of the molecules. Smaller molecules are affected to a greater extent than are large molecules by slight changes in energy. This is why viscous liquids, such as cooking oil (long molecules about 200 times more massive than a water molecule) do not evaporate to a noticeable degree. (Large electrostatic forces are also involved.) A Leuchter's gas (HCN) molecule is approximately the same size and mass as a water molecule. That is why, at 70 degrees, we could expect to find large quantities of HCN molecules dashing about, as a gas, ready to do their death dance. There are other things to this evaporation business (electrostatic bonding forces is one) but I am only trying to give a little insight to the misconceptions. When all else fails, would you be interested in holding an open bottle of liquid hydrogen cyanide (at 70 degrees Fahrenheit, which is below its boiling point) in your hands and taking a deep breath near its surface? If you have an undying (appropriate term!) faith in Mr. Leuchter's 78 degree message, then you shouldn't have any problem at all.

I have purposely left out the effects of pressure since the extermination argument does not require its inclusion. I used to do an interesting demonstration in class where a student held, in his bare hands, a flask of "boiling" water while the thermometer read 90 degrees Fahrenheit. But that's another gassing tale.

I'll close by mentioning that the vapor pressure (pressure due to the moving gas molecules) of hydrogen cyanide is 10.4 inches of mercury at 60 degrees Fahrenheit. (Normal atmospheric pressure is about 29.9 inches.) This is nearly the same pressure exerted by water at 165 degrees Fahrenheit. Now, for those not interested in dying as a result of some revisionist's guess, you must remember that 165 degrees is very hot water. Most home water heaters use this as a maximum. Anyway, place a pan of water on the stove and heat it to 165 degrees. Shove your face into the readily noticeable vapors. Get the feel? Now this is analogous to what you'd feel, "moisture-wise" (not temperature-wise), to having your kisser near a pan of liquid HCN at 60 degrees. Not a lot of "condensing" going on, is there? The amount of HCN vapor, at this temperature, is deadly, lethal, killing, exterminating and down-right uncomfortable. It would make your eyes burn, as in pain, man! You'd scream, holler and die while all of that HCN became part of your body and not part of a "blue" wall. At 60 degrees, there would be 400 milligrams (the mass of an aspirin tablet) of gaseous hydrogen cyanide in each QUART of dry "air" BEFORE any condensation could occur. (Sorry, Fred, but that 78 degree argument is for the birds.) This is about 3 times the amount needed to terminate a person's life within a few minutes. I may appear to be engaged in "overkill" but revisionists remind me of the man who said "I've pruned it three times so far and it's still too damned short!"

From FAEM (First Amendment Exercise Machine)
Box 433, Buffalo NY 14223

PLEASE REMEMBER:
Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular monetary contributions are our lifeblood. Help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

Brave New World

by Manfred Roeder

Haus Richberg, W-3579 Schwarzenborn
Federal Republic of Germany

The white Western governments have started the last battle to destroy their own people. They are determined to liquidate the White race. There is no longer any doubt that this is their ultimate aim. It is the same in America as in Germany or South Africa whence I just got an alarming call for help. White police are shooting at peaceful White demonstrators who are demanding to be heard before the government is turned over to black thugs.

Any shred of White nationalism is demonized as racism, fascism. In Germany it is already illegal to demand "Germany for the Germans."

Hysteria is running wild across the country since a Turkish woman and two girls in November died in a burning house in Mölln. All the media screamed about "Nazi barbarism" without the tiniest bit of evidence. Now two Skinheads are accused but they have retracted their confessions. One national group after another is now being outlawed. The largest newspaper, Bild, with a circulation of 1.3 million, carried an article mentioning my name and demanding that three more organizations, among them Deutsche Bürgerinitiative, be declared illegal.

Immediately I called the Minister of the Interior and told him that this is nothing but an instigation to murder. Gangs of foreigners are encouraged to kill 'Nazis.' And sure enough, a week later Rabbi Ben-Jonson in Israel announced that 100 Jewish 'fighters' would come to Germany to hunt Nazis. Three of them are already here. This is the result, or should I say, the intention, of our government.

The Imperial Battle Flag of WWI is shown in a photo reproduced in the above mentioned Bild article; the photo carries the subtitle "symbol of the lunatics" because this flag is often shown at national demonstrations. Hysteria has gone so far that recently even the present German "black-red-gold" flag could not be shown in a class room as being too nationalistic.

When I was recently invited to speak at a meeting in Bonn, the police commissioner declared it illegal because anti-Semitic or unfriendly remarks about foreigners might be made. We are not far from a new law where nobody who might be of a different opinion than the government is allowed to speak. Every day now there are mass demonstrations against xenophobia, bigger ones than under Stalin or Honecker. Brave new world, indeed!

Every day I am attacked in the media, sometimes my name is mentioned with a false picture on TV. They are trying very hard to eliminate everybody who might be a potential adversary. I think it is a sure sign of panic: they know that their time is up and our time is coming. Let us cheer up and wait for coming events. ❑

GERMANY AWAKENS

by
Maj. D.V. Clerkin

Reprinted from The Talon, published by the Euro-American Alliance,
P.O. Box 21776, Milwaukee WI 53221

Jewish Angst (fear, anxiety) over the growing National Socialist movement in Germany is expressed in the near-hysterical reports on TV in the United States. Even the MOSSAD is threatening to take some action. Nothing can stop the movement from growing because National Socialism was not a mere political phenomenon; Adolf Hitler was an organic outgrowth of the German nation.

There was a Germany before Hitler, a Germany of Goethe, Bach, Mozart and Beethoven; of Bismarck and Kaiser Wilhelm II. The Hitlerian revolution saved that very Germany from Jewish-Communist distortion and ruin. Today's Bonn regime is the Weimar Republic all over again, crawling with alien influences and a treasonous cosmopolitanism that permits the overrunning of Deutschland by millions of the Third World's unwashed. Since their military defeat in 1945, Germans have been forced to beg forgiveness of the very Jew Marxists who tried to enslave Germany in 1918, paying 'reparations' to Jews, taxing the German people dry to hand money over to the Zionist bandit colony in occupied Palestine. Is it any wonder that Young Germany has had enough?

The German Jungen were made to view the old films of the days of German glory as a form of punishment, instilling, it was supposed, a deep sense of guilt for having been great and manly. But these old films told another story of a Germany that had found itself—a Germany that Adolf Hitler had saved for posterity. Watch the old films, then look at today's TV reports of life in the Bonn interregnum. Which would you prefer as an Aryan to be part of?

Now the tables are turning; the tide rises. And with this National Socialist tide, the utter joy of being an Aryan in a nation dedicated to Aryanism looms on the German horizon. Bonn may threaten and posture, but Kohl, Weizsaecker and Kinkle are impotent marionettes whose strings the Jews pull out of disdain for their pathetic cowardice. The Jews may rail, they will whine; however, they cannot prevent the resurgence of race and nation in Germany. Something as fundamental as this cannot be legislated against. Such a movement is too inherent in the German people to be frightened out of existence by a few MOSSAD sneaks. Should MOSSAD dare to kill anyone on German soil, the rise of the NS movement will gain momentum.

Look for the appearance of NS-leaning members of the German Bundestag, which will be slowly transformed into a Reichstag. The asylum law will be repealed, and the foul aliens will be thrown out of Germany. Germany's birthrate will slowly increase as National Socialist policies build morale amongst the people. The new Germany will stop the extortionist 'reparations' to the Jews and Israel. Expect the Jews and their sycophants to foam at the mouth over this because money is at the heart of the guilt propaganda leveled at Germany and the other Aryan nations.

Eventually the second German revolution will begin to influence the thinking of Aryans everywhere, which is why the Jews fear it so much. The idea that an NS Germany will cause Whites to question why they are being dispossessed fills them with such apprehension that they hysterically seek ways to thwart the reawakening of the Germans. Hitler's Germany was the last curtain for world Jewry and their plan for world dominance through the destruction of the Aryan race. The second coming, as it were, of the Hitlerian idea to Germany will carry on the work first entered upon in 1933.

When you see the young Germans marching in opposition to the Third World aliens who are sucking the blood of the German people, realize that these brave kids fight for us here in North America as well by setting a worldwide example. There will come a time soon when conditions here will mirror what is going on in Germany. Hundreds of thousands of Haitians are preparing to get aboard homemade boats to sail for Florida. Clinton will let them in to "plead their cases" for asylum in the United States. Does anyone suppose that they will be welcomed in south Florida? Violence and mayhem are coming to Florida over this invasion by a diseased, criminal black race from Haiti that is noted for but one thing: the slaughter of their French masters in an 1803 uprising on the island of Hispaniola.

Black uprisings are becoming more frequent. The time is coming in America when multiculturalism will stick in the throats of its supporters. Blacks are attacking Jews in Brooklyn. New York talk radio is ablaze with Jews vowing revenge against blacks who insult them on the streets. Multiculturalism is just a euphemism for destroying Aryan civilization in North America. Even the huge buffoon, Lush Limburgher, is beginning to criticize multiculturalism, though the big turd hasn't the courage to attack the immigration policies of the government. In California, La Raza and other Hispanic racist groups are replacing white city council members by bringing illegal aliens to the polls to vote. Colorado is under a faggot call for a boycott because the voters dared to oppose special rights for queers. And in Boulder the mayor has sent out a call for welfare niggers to move into town, a town the mayor says is too lily-white!

The next time you hear someone claim that the Germans are an awful lot because they don't want to live with the unwashed baggage from the Third World, who come to Germany to live off the welfare rolls, tell that 'enlightened' person to wait just a little longer until we here in North America are up to our ears in wogs. When the reaction happens here, it may even schock the Germans! ❑

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Mr. Dietz,

I was intrigued by W.J.C. of Connecticut's letter in which he gave his opinion on different kinds of music. I find it strange that one could like rock music and not jazz both of which I find offensive and both of which come from the same source.

Sir Thomas Beecham said there are only two kinds of music, good and bad and most of it is bad.

W.J.C. said that rock-n-roll was at first nigger music until Elvis came along and made it popular with white people. Elvis was the catalyst that induced white people to accept negro music. He was reportedly paid to do this by a recording company in the South that had hitherto been unable to get young Whites to listen to black bands. They needed a White to play negro music. Elvis created a whole new following of what some Southerners refer to as white niggers.

Culturally, we in America are an offshoot of Western Europe. In music, our cultural heritage is the classical and romance music of Western Europe and its related forms. Our culture period ended in 1900. We are living in a time of advanced cultural decline. Our culture has been largely supplanted by a giant entertainment industry.

I believe the greatest music that will ever be written has probably already been written. Music is the ideal form of abstract art and Western Man is essentially abstract in his way of thinking. That is why music is for us the greatest of the arts.

The people of the culture that will follow ours, to produce any great music, would have to think in the abstract which is far from assured. The Greeks who preceded us were not abstract in their thinking and left no meaningful music. They excelled in sculptoring which for them was the greatest of the arts.

Yours truly,
J.C.M., Washington

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George,

Greetings from ZOG's health spa in beautiful Southern Illinois. I hope this finds all going well with you.

I would like to thank you for the gratis issues of Liberty Bell. Being kept locked in a cage for 22 hours a day and not being allowed to earn even the few pennies an hour they pay other prisoners, makes me dependent on the generosity of those in the movement for whatever funds I receive. That is how I was able to make the recent book purchases from you. At present I simply can not afford to renew that gratis subscription you gave me. I understand the economic crunch out there and why gratis can go only so far; therefor, I want you to know that I am very appreciative of the support you gave me. It has been much more than that of some who actually partook in the largeness of the Order's gifts.

Since the beginning of time our people have celebrated at this time of the year. Some celebrate the birth of the Sun, others the birth of the Son, while still others celebrate just to be celebrating. Whatever the reason you celebrate, in the spirit of White unity I wish you and yours the very best for the holiday season, May the new year see the genetic memory of our warrior ancestors come to the surface.

I salute for your efforts on behalf of our people. Take care and stay strong.-88!

Richard Scutari, #34840-080
Box 1000, Marion IL 62959

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Greetings to you. This is to thank you for the catalog you sent me, and for your generosity in sending me the copies of Liberty Bell and The International Jew, Vol. I. I was both pleased and surprised to receive them, again I thank you.

It amazes me that so many people are unaware of that amazing series published by the great Henry Ford, and that the Jewish Question is far older than just the last 50 years. I read in the Liberty Bell you sent me something particularly poignant to me, a stark example of the effect of Jew-manipulation of the media and, most disgusting of all, our Public schools. That is the fact that no student picked at random today, or anyone else for that matter, can tell one how many U.S. servicemen died in WWII but can, almost without hesitation, tell one of the 6 million killed in the "Holocaust." When I mused upon that fact, it sickened me.

Also, the fact that there was a Pacific Theatre in WWII, that it wasn't a fight solely against the "evil Nazi Fascists." In fact, and I say this as a fair student of military history, I know of no worse battles ever being fought by U.S. troops than those that bear the name of Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima, the Solomons, or Bougainville unless it be the battles of our Civil War that bear the blood-drenched names of Antretam, Cold Harbor, Gettysburg, and Bloody Spotsylvania. I'm sure you're familiar with all this too—it makes one righteously angry, doesn't it? All the so-called "documentaries" dwell on the campaign in Europe and always languish long and mournfully on the "death camps." I am so sick and tired of Jews crying "anti-Semitism" and complaining of persecution that I have wished 6 million were killed, that the world be just that much lighter.

I have filled in my family and some friends on these things, seeking not to "convert" them but trying to show them how to sift for themselves fact from fiction and, most importantly, to think for themselves. I have been pretty successful thus far. The problem, at least one of the bigger ones in my opinion, is just that—people have developed this curious aversion to thinking for themselves. Certainly, this trend coincided with the introduction of mass media, especially television, yet I cannot conceive what would turn a once strong, powerful nation into such weak and watery sheep, turning over the power of thought to the media and the government. These days, people don't even want to think, they don't want to see or be told truth. They would rather pretend things aren't so bad while everything their ancestors fought and died for crumbles and is stamped into impotence by their "leaders." It is sad beyond belief to me, as I am one who is willing to sacrifice self for my country and my people, though they'd appreciate it not the least bit. I only hope there are some true men left, that when the time comes we may claim what is ours. It's either that or be relegated to our place in history books. What are our chances, Sir?

Thank you for your time, and again for your generosity in sending me the books. Take care, I shall keep in touch.

Sincerely,
T.M.R., Bellefonte PA

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Sir:

Any plan to again try Ernst Zündel under so-called "hate laws" in itself is abominable.

In observing the world scene for nearly 70 years, it is quite obvious to any intelligent, careful observer that hypocrisy of the first order exists in North America in the treatment of Germans, and the dissemination of the truth concerning the combatants of 1914 to 1945 era.

First of all I would say that the wars between the British and German people were colossally criminal acts and have probably retarded humanity's progress for a thousand years. And I feel it in my bones for which I speak, for I am racially composed of both English and German and I have objectively reviewed the issues of our times. Germany, for instance, had more of an excuse for locking up Jews than the Americans had for incarcerating Japanese. Germany had more of a right to Danzig than Britain had to Bombay or the Jews to expel the Palestinians in such a ruthlessly cruel manner from their ancient homeland.

The hate against the Jews is mild in comparison to what I have seen and felt of the hate against Germans in my lifetime.

Sadly for the Aryan race, civilized Englishmen have relegated themselves into a corner after losing two World Wars as much or more so than Germany did. Their self-righteous attitudes are tremendously unfair. The bias and prejudices by the North American Anglos has been a disaster—the Jews invented the "Holocaust" and the Anglos have taken the bait. Anything under the sun should be open to debate or discussion, even the false tales of the brutally false tales that have come out of the bloodiest wars in history.

In conclusion I would say that this media/movie inspired anti-German nation is sick and dying.

J.V.B., Texas

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear friend:

I am a former literature purchaser from Palo Alto, California. At present, I'm teaching English for the school year in Eastern Europe.

Please change my address on your records and, for the enclosed check, please send me a sample copy of Liberty Bell and also a current book catalog—I feel the need for some inspiration. Thanks very much!

Sincerely
S.U., Poland

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz:

This is to notify you of a change in my living quarters...

I've been re-reading Dr. Oliver's "Postscripts" for the last few years. He grows ever more lucid, ever more splendidly assured in his commentary. His comments on Oliver Stone's film and on the Kennedy assassination are the most probing (and wittiest) writing anywhere on this troubling matter.

Best Yuletide wishes to you and yours—88!

J.D.P., New York State

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George and the rest of the LB team:

My best wishes for you and yours, now and in the future. The magazine continues to be extremely informative and enjoyable, especially Dr. Oliver's writings. Thanks for your sacrificial efforts through the years to keep the Liberty Bell coming.

Take good care of yourselves, we need you around for a good long time. Please use the enclosed gift as you think best, for personal or LB use.

Sincerely,
E.A.S., Missouri

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Friend and Patriot (I hope!):

Enclosed is the story of the murder of 2 of the Weaver family by the U.S. Government under the command of George Bush.

This is a recurrent pattern for the U.S. Government, murdering U.S. citizens with whom they have some disagreement—large or small—real or trumped up. They are doing it regularly.

I was so outraged by this event that I sent a contribution for Randy Weaver's defense and support of his family, and Kevin Harris' defense. Please join me and send a contribution to: UNITED CITIZENS FOR JUSTICE, P.O. Box 147, Naples ID 83847. Please specify if you want the money to go to Randy Weaver, Kevin Harris, or the Weaver children, or all of them.

Please make similar appeals for the Weaver family and Kevin Harris in your periodical. You know it will cost a lot of money to defend them, with the U.S. government and unlimited funds against them. Besides dollars, they need prayers.

Sincerely,
Jack Jones, Michigan

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Landsmann,

Liberty Bell is really the only puiblications that I truly look forward reading every month. I hope you can continue for a long time.

Reading the Letters to the Editor, I realized how much need there is to educate, in particular the young men. So I would like to sponsor a one-year subscription to LB for a young man in a military prison of your choice. Please don't give that person may name etc.

because I know that mail is monitored in military prisons and right wing publications are truly scrutinized by our MOSSAD-directed Federal policing agencies.

I would like to ask all LB readers please sponsor books or a subscription for a young person! They need to be educated; we all know that a change can not come without education first and an armed struggle later!

Viele Grüß
C.S., Arizoma

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Editor,

The liberal media has brought the nation to the point of tears with two recent stories. The first is the death by AIDS of that faggot Rudolf Nureyev. It seems to me, he just took one bow to many. Maybe he should have learned to curtsy? The wags have it that he is buried face down, so his old buddies can drop in for a cool one.

The next is the story of the rape of 20,000 Muslim women by those nasty Christians in Sarajevo. They deplore this act of "ethnic cleansing." What they don't mention is that the problem right here is even worse.

The Justice Department book Report to the Nation on Crime and Justice spells out a clear story on forcible rape in the USA. White female victims of rape totaled 116,000, and black victims 24,000. Of the offenders of the rape of white women, black men totaled 27,840. Of black women victims of rape, the number of white male offenders was listed as less than 10, or "statistically insignificant."

"Ethnic cleansing," anyone?

Happy New Year!
E.T., New Jersey

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Editor,

I believe that the various organizations which comprise the "White nationalist movement" should make an effort to emphasize other aspects of their program besides that of race. We must make our position known on every issue to every potential follower and supporter in the country. Most people know nothing of our beliefs except the lies of the media. They must be made to realize that this is POLITICAL PERSECUTION, pure and simple, that what the press terms "hate groups" are really opposition political movements which our glorious government is attempting to exterminate by all means necessary. Besides, the "racist hate group" bullet is the only shot the enemy has. Most people have no idea what we stand for. They only see the media smear image. They do not know about our opposition to loan capitalism and speculation, to international trade and the exploitation of the American workers, and the fact that the government and the legal system must be totally replaced. Many people can identify with these isssues. At least 1/3 of the population must concur with the ideas of a group in order for it to assume power. The NSDAP was much more than a racial organization. They had positions on everything, as must we. We must be seen as an all-encompassing political movement, active on all issues. People joined the NSDAP for many reasons: for the solution of unemployment, to fight Communists, to oppose the Versailles Treaty, to end class conflict, and to restore national pride. We must give millions of people reason to support our movement or we are doomed. As Codreanu said, "Where are your slogans? Listen to the people in the streets. The slogans (issues) are on the lips of the people."

Respectfully,
"Schlageter", Lancaster, PA.

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 including postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

FOR MY LEGIONARIES. The Legionary Movement in Romania, commonly known as the Iron Guard, —perhaps the oldest anti-Communist movement in the world, still alive—was founded by Corneliu Z. Codreanu in 1927. For My Legionaries (353 pp., pb., $8.00 + $1.50 for postage & handling), Codreanu's stirring work, is a complete and authoritative account of the ideals and principles of the Legionary Movement which shaped the character of young Romanians before WWII. Control over the communications media and the normal channels of book distribution by our international enemies makes it impossible to reach the broad market this unique book deserves. We are certain that For My Legionaries will soon become a collector's item. This book also provides the 'missing pieces' of the drastically censored The Suicide of Europe by Prince M. Sturdza; the identity of those who masterminded Romania's take-over and who are now engaged in carrying out the same program in the U.S. will no longer be unknown to you. ("Solzhenitsyn would appear to have not the slightest inkling of who conquered HIS country!"—B.C.) FOR MY LEGIONARIES, Order #06003, single copy $10.00, 3 copies $25.00, 5 copies $35.00

THE ANTI-HUMANS, by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb. $7.00 + $1.50 for postage & handling) describes what was done to the young men whom Corneliu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented 'Pavlovian experiment' on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti-Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" —R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J. App). THE ANTI-HUMANS, Order #01013. Single copy $7.00, 3 for $15.00, 5 for $20.00.

For postage and handling add: On domestic orders, $1.50 for orders under $10.00, 15% of order total for orders over $10.00. On orders from abroad, $2.00 or 20% respectively. Sample copy of our monthly magazine Liberty Bell and copy of our huge book list containing hundreds of "Eye-Openers," $5.00. Subscription for 12 hard-hitting, fact-packed issues $35.00 (U.S. only). Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

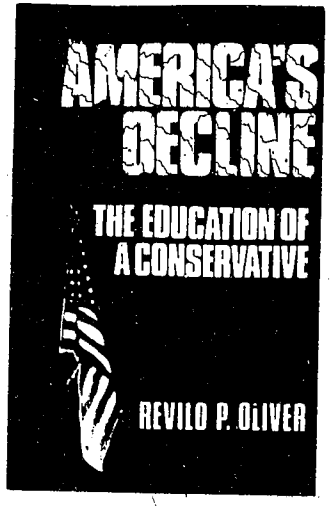
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

The Ethnic and Racial Aspects of Clinton's Appointments

by

Charles E. Weber, Ph.D.

page 42

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

POSTSCRIPTS
by Professor R.P. Oliver
THE QUADRENNIAL SHINDIG:
Gritz, page 1; Perot, page 6;
The War Lord, page 7;
Slick (and Sick) Willie, page 8;
Prolonged Uncertainty, page 10;
Prospects, page 14; Appendix, page 15.
NAZIS EVERYWHERE, page 17;
A TRAITOR IS WORTH MORE THAN AN ARMY;
page 20; SPICED CRAMBE, page 22;
THE ROT AND THE STENCH, page 35;
PERSECUTION OF THE RIGHTEOUS, page 40.

THEIR CAPITALISM AND OURS,
by Hector Rodgers, Ph.D., page 46.

VOL. 20 - NO. 7 MARCH 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Harold F. Oliver

THE QUADRENNIAL SHINDIG

Early in November a great many Americans enjoyed a walk in the crisp cool weather that prevailed in most regions of the country, met and gossiped with friends and neighbors as they waited in line at the polls, and amused themselves by pressing keys on a voting machine or punching holes in strips of thick paper or marking with pencils on ballots. Most of them, furthermore, enjoyed an illusion that they were doing something significant—something that might affect their future in some way. It would be impolite to disabuse the innocents, but probably none of them are among the readers of this periodical.

The Jews had long before decided whom they would employ in the White House, but goyim were not privy to their decision and consequently curious about what straw boss would be given them. The election accordingly held the attention of many Americans, and it had some mildly interesting aspects.

Gritz

There was an American candidate, Colonel Gritz, who received 95,000 votes, less than one percent of the total, since he was almost totally ignored by the jewspapers and boob-tubes, and had to rely entirely on what support could be given him by the minuscule Populist Party, which had been further diminished by fission. No one knows how many votes for him were stolen or disregarded, but however many, they could not have altered the outcome of the election.

I have remarked at some length on the deficiencies of Colonel Gritz in Liberty Bell, May 1992, pp. 17-31 (cf. October, pp. 21 f.), but it remains true that Colonel Gritz was the only serious candidate who espoused policies that would benefit Americans, and we must judge candidates by what they profess, when there is no clear indication that they are like the Demopublican candidates, whose promises, as everyone knows, are mere persiflage. The few Americans who wanted to recover the country that once was theirs were therefore justified in taking Gritz seriously.

J. B. Campbell, in Liberty Bell, January 1993, pp. 25-38, launched a drastic attack on Gritz, making allegations I can neither verify nor disprove, but utterly damning, if correct. It is odd that he overlooked a cogent charge against the Colonel, which could be made by drawing an obvious inference from his name, but which I have hesitated to put in print because friends who have met the colonel and whose ethnological discernment far exceeds my own could perceive no confirmation of it.

The Colonel's name, 'Gritz,' is pronounced with the i as in 'white' or the ei in German 'weiß,' not as the i in 'grit.' Now I cannot think of a source for that name other than the Yiddish colloquialism, greitzer, which means 'money,' like the American colloquialism, 'buck,' which was widely used to designate a dollar when the serfs were permitted to have money, and which is still occasionally used to designate the counterfeit currency now in use. The Yiddish term was adopted by some Jews as a family (gentile!) name when European governments forced them to adopt names that would indicate family relationships and differentiate persons having the same personal name. The Jewish name is pronounced as in German, and, with apocopation of the last syllable, would be the Colonel's name. His pronunciation of it could be a tacit avowal of his race, despite lineaments that seem Germanic.[1] That would explain, of course, some of the colonel's attitudes of which I particularly disapproved, e.g., his endorsement of the Holohoax and his obstinate denial of biological facts.

1. The name could, of course, come from a male ancestor generations ago, whose line could have been continued by marriages only with White women. That would have reduced the Jewish genetic factors to a very small fraction, and would raise the question whether even a drop of Yiddish ichor suffices to pollute Aryan minds, as Dr. Alfred Nossig and some other Yids believe. On the other hand, the Colonel's Germanic features could come from a mother and perhaps hybrid father.

There is, however, an addition to the dossier which deserves your earnest consideration.

As I remarked in America's Decline, Jewish dominance of the John Birch Society became unmistakable when Robert the Welcher produced a disgusting booklet called "The Neutralizers," which advanced the absurd claim that only the nasty, wicked Communists and their agents would try to make Americans desist from loving the magnanimous and lovable Sheenies.[2] As I anticipated, the rump of the Birch Society survived its founder,[3] and soon retreated to Appleton, Wisconsin, where it strove to maintain itself with a steadily declining membership, which, however, greatly increased after Lord Bushy's treacherous attack on Iraq, thus giving the Society a new lease on life.

So far as I noticed, the Birchers in Appleton eschewed the Welcher's more absurd propaganda while continuing to attribute the world's woes to carefully unidentified "Insiders," and seemed to have become relatively sober in order to retain what membership they had left. But they reverted to the foolish old hoop-la in the issue of their magazine, The New American, dated 14 December 1992.

The public had come to learn something of the small army of five hundred goons, terrorists, and professional killers, complete with airplanes, helicopters, and other advanced military equipment, that the Federal government had sent into Idaho to murder a man named Randy Weaver and his family, but which had succeeded only in murdering his wife and one of his children, and seriously wounding two

2. Cf. America's Decline, pp. 308 f. I am still uncertain whether Welch was a Jewish hireling when he organized the Society or was later captured by the World Destroyers. When I have time, I may give a fuller account of its foundation than I thought it worthwhile to include in my book.

3. Cf. Liberty Bell, May 1985, pp. 19-23.

others.[4] Americans who are not unconscious do not yet recognize the Federal government's right summarily to kill Americans who displease it, and as the news from Idaho leaked out, despite the efforts of the jewspapers to suppress it, they felt dissatisfied. The Birch Society acted promptly to neutralize that dissatisfaction with an article that "proved" that Weaver was an agent of the vile conspiracy of "Insiders," sent to Idaho for the purpose of misleading American conservatives, who, needless to say, must adore Sheenies ex officio. And Colonel Gritz, who had been so impudent as to be a candidate for the Presidency, was denounced as Weaver's colleague in deceiving pure-hearted Americans.

To this patently absurd bit of poisoned hokum, Colonel Gritz replied with an article in the January 1993 issue of Criminal Politics.[5] He refuted some of the lies in the Birch Society's attempt to impose on the credulity of its members, which even went so far as to claim that Weaver was engaged in a "plot to destroy Idaho"! He had found a witness to an admission by an officer in the army of five hundred doughty terrorists that their mission was to kill everyone in the cabin, Weaver, his wife, his four children, and a friend. (Since the dead cannot speak, the jewspapers could then have buried the "incident" in Yiddish slime.) He denounced the article as "a totally inaccurate and scurrilous tale with an obvious B'nai B'rith bias," serving the interests of the "pro-Zionist government." Enfin! The Colonel has now publicly admitted that he knows what the Sons of the Covenant with Yahweh are doing to the United States and the American people. He has broken the silence on this fundamental fact that he maintained in his book, Called to Serve.

4. The pretext for the murderous action was that Weaver had sold to a sneaking agent of the Treasury Department a shotgun that had a barrel one-quarter of an inch shorter than required by the bureaucracy's regulations. For a concise account of this event, see Campbell's article in Liberty Bell, January 1993, pp. 25 f., 33 f. For a fuller account, see the excellent newspaper, The Truth at Last (formerly the Thunderbolt), issue No. 359 (undated; c. September 1992); copies may be obtained from the publisher, P.O. Box 1211, Marietta, Georgia (30061); $1.25 postpaid.

5. P.O. Box 37812, Cincinnati, Ohio (45222); $187.50 per annum. Parts of the article were quoted (without mention of source) in The Spotlight, 22 February 1993, p.2.

Colonel Gritz quoted and endorsed the accurate and unimpeachable description of the Birch business that had been given him, years before, by an officer in the Counter-Intelligence Corps:

"The Birch Society is a diversionary front to devitalize Americans with strong nationalistic instincts." Bravo! The plain truth at last.

Colonel Gritz, furthermore, specifically identified the hoax as the work of B'nai B'rith, the vast network of Yahweh's Yids, who are herding their Aryan cattle to the precipice over which they will disappear from the world.

But do not become too enthusiastic and scorn Mr. Campbell. Gritz could be a Jew and still oppose the Zionists who now control his race: there are a few Jews who do. And, in any case, remember the sneaking subtlety of God's People, whose propaganda sheets, called newspapers, have for decades spat at the Birch business, precisely for the purpose of making it seem that they are afraid of their own diversionary front and thus making Americans believe that one tentacle of the octopus is fighting another. Colonel Gritz's correct identification of the Birch business could be—I do not affirm that it is—another subtlety in deception by the Masters of Deceit.

There are, furthermore, troubling aspects of the Colonel's activities. I have valid evidence to confirm Mr. Campbell's statement that when Gritz describes what he did or said in the past, some deficiency of memory or veracity adjusts his account to what he thinks his present auditors want to hear. What is much more serious, I am reliably informed that he did great harm to the Populist Party that was supporting him by demanding that "racists and bigots" be "extirpated" from it and by ostracizing chapters that did not obey him. His sons were imbued with his animosity and became so arrogantly offensive to a group of Southern gentlemen that they would have been thrown out of the room, if they had not been the candidate's scions, sent to represent him.

It is true that many simple-minded Americans have swallowed the Jewish poison about the joy of making their country a melting pot full of stinking mongrels, and that many more are told by their shamans that mammals, at least anthropoid species, can be transformed by being sloshed about in magic water and given sips of Jesus-juice, just as a frog can be transformed into a prince by a comparable rite. And it is also true that the Colonel professes belief in a god who watches over him (but not over lesser folk) and intervenes to preserve him whenever he is in peril. But the Colonel is not simple-minded and naïf; he is a man of wide experience of reality—of brutal reality,—and it cannot be that he is unaware of the innate, profound, and unalterable differences between races. His professed abhorrence of "racism" must serve some ulterior and hidden purpose of his own.

That is enough. When an experienced and intelligent man denounces "racism," beware! He may (or may not) be a useful and even reliable ally in some secondary matter at issue today, such as the Federal Reserve Swindle or the cuddling of perverts, but always remember that sometime in the days ahead of us, when our fight for survival has reached its most critical phase, he will be our enemy. You need know no more.

Perot

A man named Ross Perot, who had become very wealthy, obviously with the permission of our masters, and who was known for his efforts to procure the release of American prisoners in Vietnam, suddenly and dramatically appeared as an independent candidate for the Presidency and was not ignored by the media of disinformation. Perhaps to his surprise, he attracted a very substantial following and it seemed likely that he would obtain votes in the Electoral College and perhaps be in a position to decide between the two Demopublican candidates. He then demoralized all, and alienated half, of his supporters by withdrawing, with the transparently silly excuse that someone had threatened to cause a disturbance at the wedding of his daughter. A little later, when it seemed that Lord Bushy, who, when alarmed by the support given David Duke and Buchanan, had tried to conciliate Americans by deferring taxing them for a hundred billion to please his Jewish masters and by refusing to admit to Florida a horde of diseased and vicious niggers from Haiti, was favored by more voters than Clinton, Perot reappeared as a candidate, rallied the fraction of his early supporters who still thought him sincere, designedly alienated some of them by proclaiming that he did not want wicked "racists" to vote for him, and nevertheless obtained 19% of the votes, almost all of which would have otherwise gone to Lord Bushy, who was undoubtedly the lesser of the two evils. Perot, therefore, whether by intent or because he was skillfully manipulated by the World Destroyers, contrived the election of Clinton, who received 42% of the popular vote.

During his career of odd tergiversation, Perot certainly profited financially from deals with the Federal government, and the usually well-informed periodical, Criminal Politics, which at first supported him, charged him, on the basis of the recently disclosed sale of various properties to the Federal government at inflated prices, with having sold out. While he may have profited, it is likely that he had other reasons for his apparent vacillation—and for the political activity in which he is now engaged.

The War Lord

American voters, when compelled to choose between Scylla and Charybdis, would normally opt for the War Lord, largely because Bush maintains a superficial gentility, while Clinton is a vulgar oaf who comes from the very dregs of society, the class which niggers in the South used to call "poor white trash."

We may feel a twinge of pity for Bushy, who must have been disappointed and aggrieved when the masters whom he had served so faithfully replaced him with an unsavory pet, but he should have known better than to expect gratitude or even consideration from Kikes. How diligently he served them at the expense of his American subjects became obvious when General Schwarzkopf disclosed the fact that the Sheenies in Israel had indicated what targets their American janissaries should destroy while killing Semites in Iraq. If Bushy was given $80,000,000 by the King of Saudi Arabia, as alleged by The Spotlight, 1 February 1993, that was not a bribe to make war, but a mere pour boire in recognition of his services in keeping high the inflated price of petroleum to increase the Saudi's profits and work hardship on the American people.

The Jews, by discarding him, deprived Bushy of an opportunity to strut before the world as War Lord again and smash up some other nation that disobeys God's Race. Rather nostalgically, he gave himself a last taste of glory by ordering some additional slaughter and destruction in Iraq, and by sending American troops and supplies on a fool's errand into Somalia.[5]

It is even possible that the Masters of the World, who cynically discarded him after he had served their purposes, may throw poor Bushy to the wolves, if they deem it expedient to excite a national scandal that will distract attention from what their new fantoche is doing to their American livestock.

Slick (and Sick) Willie

The new President's husband was inaugurated on 20 January. That may seem paradoxical, but it is an accurate statement of what took place, as you will see if you reflect on your observation of the bizarre pair in action, and especially if you have profited from the analytical commentary by Hilaire du Berrier in the November-December issue of his newsletter.[6]

5. See Appendix below.

6. HduB Reports, P.O. Box 786, St. George, Utah (84771); $85. per annum.

Clinton, who took the name of one of his stepfathers, can speak fluently and knows how to simulate candor and even a friendly interest in his auditors as he exhibits a kind of boyish earnestness. He would have made a very successful salesman in a used-car lot. But, as M. du Berrier points out, he is still as juvenile as he was when he was in hiding in London and exciting anti-American riots: he is a perennial adolescent. The brains of the strange couple must be provided by its better half.

M. du Berrier quotes an article in the Sunday Telegraph [London], which points out that the pair somehow got Clinton elected governor of Arkansas, "but after two years his and Hillary's trendy smugness grated and they were booted out [in 1980]. This setback forced Bill and Hillary to reinvent themselves as moderate, church-going, pro-business, pro-death penalty, modernizing Southerners." The inventing was doubtless the work of the female part of the couple, who probably had leisure while her husband's thoughts were occupied by his depraved craving for nigger whores, of which she evidently approved, perhaps to free herself from annoyance. What she invented was a new self.

Hillary Rodham, as she called herself to show how liberated she was, had worn big spectacles to show how intellectual she was, and had slouched around with unkempt hair in bedraggled sweaters and slacks to show how feminist she was, but she realized that those attributes would not help her make something of the male to whom she was married. She began to call herself "Mrs. Clinton," had her face redesigned, had her hair trimmed, washed, and set, donned skirts and dresses, and probably took lessons in how to behave like a woman. How cleverly she played her new rôle is shown by the results. She got her spouse reëlected Governor and then made him President. During the campaign she made it clear that she intended to be half of the Presidency—only half, because women should be modest. If some Americans are displeased by the "monstrous regimen of women," they cannot complain: they were warned.

Little seems to be known of the antecedents of Hillary Rodham, her parents, her brothers and sisters (if any), her education, or her life before she popped into the gubernatorial mansion at Little Rock and scandalized the survivors of the obsolete and dying species called ladies and gentlemen. Whether the information is withheld from ignorance or discretion, that is unfortunate, for it would provide some means of estimating her real character.[7] She will, of course, obey our rulers in all matters of policy, but they will doubtless grant her liberty to indulge her whims in harassing and oppressing their American serfs.

Clinton comes from what will soon be the model American family. His mother is reported to have been a bar-fly and to have married quite a few men, including the one whose name Clinton assumed. Clinton's brother, Roger, a distributor of the cocaine to which he was addicteed, was convicted a few years ago of criminal activity and served a year in prison before his sentence was suddenly commuted. Clinton's sister was jailed for peddling drugs and then for armed robbery. Clinton himself seems to have escaped promotion to a cell, although his activities while he was in England (or elsewhere) may have deserved one. It is not known whether he is a citizen of the United States. There are reports that when he was hiding out in England, he renounced his American citizenship, and frantic efforts to seal the files of the passport division of the State Department indicate that there is something extremely malodorous to hide.

Americans can now congratulate themselves. They have scraped the frowsty bottom of a barrel of rotten apples to obtain the frowsy Chief Executives who will further disgrace them in the eyes of the sneering world.

Prolonged Uncertainty

As is now obvious, the Jewish Empire, probably represented by Rabbi Kissinger, decided a year or more ago

7. I hear that she has commissioned a biography, i.e., an encomium, which is to be published soon. How much fiction it will contain is uncertain.

to appoint Hillary Clinton (with appended husband) as their manager in the White House and to represent the couple's election as a "mandate" to afflict the American boobs with ever greater hardships in preparation for the national bankruptcy and outbreak of civil wars, which many observers believe scheduled for 1995. But that was not apparent to observers.

What made the election of some mild interest was the fact that while it seemed likely before the end of August that Clinton would be appointed, no one could be sure of that until five days before the election.

Clinton's degenerate predilection for nigger whores, whom he rewarded lavishly,[8] was fairly well known in Arkansas, but it was only at the time that he was nominated by the "Democratic" gang that I was privately informed that he had engendered at least one mulatto bastard, and that documentation identifying the bastard and its dam had been supplied to (a) the National Enquirer, on the supposition that that periodical would print anything sensational, (b) the Washington Times, on the supposition that the "conservative" newspaper would prefer anyone to so vulgar a creature as Clinton, (c) the headquarters of Bush's campaign, on the supposition that Bush wished to win the election, and (d) the weekly pro-American newspaper called The Truth at Last (formerly The Thunderbolt).[9]

8. An assortment of Clinton's favorite black whores is listed and identified in The Truth at Last (issue No. 359). The known total is said to be 35. Clinton seems to have preferred to pick up black prostitutes of the lowest grade whom he found soliciting business on the street, and to dazzle them with his generosity. The newspaper, on the basis of testimony verified by an expert with a sphigomanometer ("lie detector"), gives a brief account of a trio of such prostitutes, whom he picked up on the street and carried, in the gubernatorial limousine (driven by a trooper of the Arkansas State Police), to his mother's house, where he played games with them for a while, and then gave them $1400—about $1250 more than they would have hoped to receive from prosperous customers. The mother of his son was such a prostitute, but says she retired from her vocation before she became pregnant by the future (titular) President of the United States.

9. See Note 4 supra.

Although Americans seem theoretically to approve of Integration, even when they know what it means, many voters would have been unwilling to elevate a father of mulatto bastards to the White House. That item of news, however, was totally suppressed until a few weeks before the election, when the Truth at Last finally printed it, having probably waited in the hope that the damning fact would be disclosed by periodicals of wider circulation not so identified with the American cause; it had verified the fact by investigation and added the corroborating information that the black bastard and the maternal whore had gone into hiding. Now, as I have said, had this fact been made public generally in the last week before the election, it would probably have ensured the election of Bush. It seems unlikely that the information was kept from him by his staff, so we must assume that he, perhaps under duress, acquiesced in his defeat.

It now appears that Bush and Clinton were partners in a criminal racket of which many "unreconstructed" Americans still disapprove.

Observers have long been puzzled by the origin of the quarrel between the C.I.A. (and hence Bush) and the Panamanian gang, headed by Noriega, who had been efficient partners in the supply of cocaine to Americans, the country of Panamá serving as a base for transshipment of cocaine from South America to American wholesalers through Florida and Louisiana.[10] Lord Bushy, as you know, used the American Army for a treacherous invasion of Panamá in flagrant violation of all international law to abduct Noriega and incarcerate the captive for life in an American prison, where he is held in solitary confinement, with an even grosser contempt for international law and human decency. It now appears that the quarrel may have been occasioned by a decision of Bushy and his gang to by-pass Panamá and ship the cocaine directly from Colombia and Bolivia to the United States.

10. See Colonel Gritz' Called to Serve, pp. 181-187 and passim (especially the pages listed in the index s.v. 'Noriega').

In June of this year a correspondent, whom I did not know and whose bona fides I had no means of estimating, informed me that the C.I.A. had established a huge air base, capable of handling the very largest planes, at Mena, Arkansas, in the midst of a sparsely inhabited and largely forested region, to which Army aircraft were bringing huge shipments of cocaine directly from South America, and that this was obviously done with the complicity and coöperation of Clinton, the Governor of Arkansas.

There was nothing greatly astonishing in that report, since Leonard Martin, in his brochure, The Godfathers of North Dakota, published in 1987,[11] had quoted the confession of a man who had been employed by the state government of North Dakota to carry shipments of cocaine from Florida to the Attorney General of that state for distribution by the gang headed by the Governor of North Dakota. But I did not use the information about Clinton, since I could not be certain of the integrity of my source.

It now appears that he obtained his information from a newspaper,[12] which he should have cited in his letter to me.

11. This little booklet is now available from the Pro-American Educational Foundation, P.O. Box 628, Mandan, North Dakota (58554); $5.00.

12. The alien censorship of our press is not quite complete. Some well-established local newspapers with a faithful readership can disclose locally-based scandals (as in the case of the Building-and-Loan fraud) with comparative impunity, while even in the major newspapers 'flukes' in journalism do occur from time to time when a reporter who has come upon a sensational story submits it to an editor (or his deputy) who can plead ignorance of specific instructions about the subject of the article. The most noted example occurred years ago when the Los Angeles Times published the fact that the Jews in Mississippi had hired two agents of the F.B.I. to murder any two Americans who were prominent for failure to revere God's Race; the agents selected, trapped, and machine gunned a young man and young woman, but the man remained alive with sixteen bullets in his body to be sentenced to life imprisonment, so the thrifty Jews paid their employees only $35,000, half of the promised blood-money, and the disgruntled agents of the F.B.I. 'leaked' the story to the reporter. That publication of the story in the newspaper with the second largest circulation in this country was really extraordinary. Of course the million and more boobs who read it learned nothing.

On 21 May 1992 the Arkansas Times published an article describing the base at Mena and its use for massive shipments of cocaine from South America, as described by a man named Seal in a confession he made before he was murdered, and asking by implication how the governor of the state could possibly have been ignorant of the operation. Bush, who was head of the C.I.A. when the operation began, was also implicated. The story was given to the Associated Press but was carried by no "newspaper" in the United States, and was first disseminated to a larger public in the November issue of Criminal Politics.

The article in the Arkansas Times, although suppressed by the jewspapers throughout the country, cannot have escaped the vigilance of Bushy's staff. He could have disclosed Clinton's activity as a principal in the covert importation of cocaine, while denying his own complicity, and that, I am sure, would have sufficed to ensure his reëlection, whatever Perot might do. Here again the War Lord must have been forced to acquiesce in his defeat in the election.

Finally, according to the issue of Criminal Politics for December 1992, members of Bush's administration knew that Clinton had renounced his American citizenship when he was hiding out in England to avoid conscription. The accuracy of the report is sufficiently confirmed by the hasty appointment of a "special prosecutor" to "investigate the leaks in the Clinton family's passport file," which, by the way, may contain other stinking secrets. Here again Bush seems to have been compelled to refrain from making a disclosure that would have assured his reëlection, even if made in the last week before it. I need not tell you what that means.

Prospects

You may be sure that the new Administration has a mandate (from its masters, not from the voters) to embark on forceable education of Americans so ignorant that they imagine they have Connstitutional rights. You need no help in foreseeing the many ways in which the boobs will be taught the place in the world into which they put themselves, step by fatal step, in a progression that began with their aceptance of the White Slave Act in 1913 and will end only when the last Aryan has been merged into a mass of mindless mongrels that are raised as cattle by their divinely appointed owners. ("God is the Jewish People.")

I shall mention here only one item in the program.

The Rodham female will doubtless try to have enacted legislation, such as that now in force in Canada, Britain, Germany, and Austria, making it a capital crime to question anything the Master Race chooses to tell its livestock, and particularly enforcing faith in the preposterous Holohoax. That will not greatly matter, if, as I fear, the Boobus Americanus—and, indeed, the whole species of the Boobus Arianus—is no longer a viable species of mammalian life.

APPENDIX

The former ambassador to Kenya, Smith Hempstone, speaking with a clarity and common sense one does not expect from anyone connected with the rulers in Washington, pointed out the futility and absurdity of a costly attempt "to keep tens of thousands of Somali kids from starving to death in 1993, who in all probability, will starve to death in 1994." He could also have remarked on the folly of trying to prevent some Somali from killing in 1993 the Somali whom they will kill in 1994—unless, of course, the American boobs are willing to keep their armed forces in that Hell-hole to the end of time.

Somalia was a peaceful and well-governed country so long as the greater part of it was ruled by the Italians under Mussolini while the rest was a colony of the British Crown. For present conditions in Somalia, the Americans are indeed responsible, thanks to their "Liberal" nitwits, who howled about "colonialism," and to their own fatuity in listening to such pests instead of swatting them. Everyone who had a modicum of common sense knew that if Somalia was not ruled by Europeans, it would speedily revert to its condition at the time the civilized nations took an interest in it, and, if European rule were relaxed, there would appear numerous successors of the notorious mullâh, Mahommed bin Abdullah, whom the British suppressed in 1905 and the Italians in 1909 to protect the rest of the natives. The present rulers of the world also knew that, of course, but the end of civilized rule in Somalia, as elsewhere, was precisely what they wanted and which they used their "Liberal" dunces to obtain.

The native population of Somalia is Ethiopic, a species that is thought to have been originally Hamitic, i.e., belonging to the race that included the greater part of ancient Egyptians, but with a very considerable admixture of Nubians at some early time, of Semites from Arabia Felix when the latter conquered and colonized Ethiopia, and of native Congoids. The modern population, however, falls into three categories: (1) persons with a large admixture of Arab blood in relatively recent times, forming the most intelligent part of the population, (2) persons with a large admixture of Congoid blood (chiefly Bantu), forming the most ferocious part, and (3) a miscellaneous population, representing the early Hamitic-Semitic amalgam with sundry other admixtures and generally regarded as inferior by both of the other groups.

This mongrel population is certainly not worth preserving at any time and certainly not at a time when the whole planet is disastrously overpopulated with worthless anthropoids. The boob tubes have exhibited starving Somali children and adults to excite the glands of sentimental persons, but that is only to make them approve of the shocking waste of American resources (and some lives). A rational observer knows that we have no legimimate interest in how many of the mongrels starve to death or kill one another.

Some observers believe that the American Army was sent to Somalia to establish bases that can be used to mount an Iraq-style attack on the White population of South Africa, if they are not passive when the sweet niggers begin to subject and massacre them. That is problematic.

It is difficult to see what value a base in Somalia would have in an attack on South Africa, if the Jews' government in Washington sends the U.S. Army to carry out that phase of its long-standing strategy to exterminate the race that created our civilization with the weapons that we gave them to use against us. The United States is now building in Bechuanaland (now called Botswana), close to the border of South Africa, three of the largest and most formidably equipped air bases in the world. Along that border, American airborne troops, assisted by savages, have carried out manoeuvres that were ostentatious preparation for an invasion. And the nation is being undermined and subverted from within by the legion of spies and terrorists American taxpayers maintain in the fortress, called an Embassy, they built in the heart of Pretoria.

In the meantime, the foul traitors who rule South Africa, thanks to the bovine mentality of the Christianized majority of Aryans, are sabotaging and demoralizing the South African Army, and have liquidated the South African producers of jet aircraft, military helicopters, and other advanced weapons, to disarm the nation and to throw thousands of the world's most competent engineers and scientists out onto the streets in sudden poverty. Air and naval bases are being abandoned or turned over to the enemy. And some sixty thousand of the most vicious niggers, duly convicted of the most atrocious and nauseating crimes, have already been turned loose by De Klerk in the hope that they will go on a rampage of murdering White men.

For the facts about this treason to our race, see the October 1992 issue of the South African Observer, edited by the signally courageous son of the late S. E. D. Brown (P.O. Box 2401, Pretoria, Republic of South Africa; by airmail to the United States, $50.00 per annum).

NAZIS EVERYWHERE

As you must know—I say you must, because if you don't, the poor, innocent people who are persecuted for their righteousness may kick your teeth in. Well, then, as you must know, the wicked Germans made soap out of Jew fat. Although I cannot recall having seen testimonials to the superior quality of holy soap, it must have been highly charged with mana and very efficacious, so it probably removed not only the dirt from your hands but also the fingernails.

As you also know, the evil Germans flayed the sacred carcasses and made lampshades out of the skin. It is true that all of those lampshades that have been examined are made of pigskin, but that merely proves that God created his masterpieces with a very thick hide.

Then, of course, there are the six billion sweet Sheenies—or was it six million? Well, it doesn't matter—whom the Germans loaded into gas chambers and that is why so many of God's Own were killed before they turned up as "survivors" to extort money from the Germans, the Americans, and everybody foolish enough to yield to blackmail for something he didn't do.[1]

Some nasty people doubt these facts because there isn't a shred of evidence for them, so I will turn to indubitable

1. All this raises a knotty theological problem. The Germans must have exterminated six million of God's Darlings before they were resurrected and flocked into the United States, but old Yahweh remained passive and uninterested while his precious ones were being put to death, although he always vigilantly protected and watched over them in the old days, and he even stopped the sun over a town in Asia Minor so that his holy race could get in a little more butchering of the Semites from whom they were taking Palestine at that time. Yahweh's odd conduct troubled a learned rabbi, who tried to explain it in a book entitled The Heavens Did Not Darken. He concluded that the six million were exterminated because they were Jews like the recreants who were constantly threatened with dire things by most of the minor prophets whose diatribes are preserved in the Jew-Book; they failed to observe the regulations so minutely set forth in the third, fourth, and fifth Books of Moses. Some of them may have even eaten a slice of ham sometime. That, of course, is a plausible explanation—and the best that anyone has been able to think of. But if it is right, doesn't it follow that the Nazis were doing God's Work and admonishing recreant Jews as God ordained? And in that case, should we not honor them for their obedience to God and convert the "Holocaust Museum," recently built by the American taxpayers, into a memorial to show our gratitude to the Germans who helped Yahweh make his point and punished disobedient Jews in keeping with the will of their Creator? It's all very perplexing, isn't it?

facts that have been established and verified by all parties to the transaction.

From 1940 to about 1944 the American Army put between eight thousand and ten thousand American soldiers in gas chambers and exposed them to the deadly fumes of mustard gas and Lewisite to test the effectiveness of those gases and of types of protection against them. The soldiers were mostly youths of 17 or 18, who had volunteered to "try out new kinds of summer clothing." About fifty thousand more had their skins corroded with the liquid forms of the deadly gases.

Soldiers who had already developed conjunctivitis or laryngitis from one exposure were sent back into the gas chambers, sometimes for "man-break tests," which were "literally intended to bring the person to a state of collapse."

The participation of the victims was not entered on their military records, and they were told that the tests were a military secret, and that they would be court-marshalled for treason if they ever spoke of them. That effectively shut off all complaints for about forty years, and it is not yet known how many of the victims died during the experiments or from the after-effects of their injuries during the past half century.

Some of them, however, braving the threat of execution for treason, began to ask for compensation in the 1980s, and two years ago the Department of Veterans' Affairs agreed to compensate men whose eyes or lungs had been gravely impaired almost fifty years before. In addition to damaging eyes and lungs, "the tests probably caused skin cancer, some kinds of leukaemia [= leuchaemia], sexual dysfunction, and certain psychological disorders."

Having steadfastly denied for fifty years that such tests had been made and thus stigmatizing as frauds the victims who dared tell what had happened to them, the Army has at last admitted that the victims were telling the truth after all, but, according to the New Scientist, 16 January 1993, refused to disclose the names of the young soldiers whose lives were thus imperiled or sacrificed by their own commanders. The Naval Research Laboratory, however, has opened its records. The Department of Veterans' Affairs will thus be able to find many of the victims or their widows. The Army may eventually be forced to disclose the names of the victims who had been under its command.

A medical commission that investigated the American record of enlisting by deception volunteers who were then made "human subjects of medical experimentation," concluded that the victims "were mistreated twice—first in the secret testing and then by the official denials that lasted for decades."

Now, as you know, since you are told by God's People, who always speak their god's Truth, the awful Nazis were so evil they conducted medical experiments on members of the Master Race, but, so far as we are told, those Nazis never descended to the vileness of using their own men for such experiments. So the conclusion is inescapable. The American Army that destroyed Germany and inflicted catastrophe on the whole of the civilized world in 1945 must have been commanded, in part, at least, by Nazis more wicked than the other Nazis. It's all very confusing, isn't it?

A TRAITOR IS WORTH MORE THAN AN ARMY

Months, perhaps years, before our foul War Criminal succeeded in forcing the Japanese to attack Pearl Harbor in a desperate attempt to avert an incendiary attack on Tokyo by American bombers,[1] American Military Intelligence knew that German scientists were working on the production of an atomic bomb, and that their work was deliberately impeded and sabotaged by Heisenberg, the director of the German project. This induced a mild panic, moderated by the certainty that Hitler would not permit the use of such a weapon against European nations; whether he would permit its use against the Soviets was uncertain.

I do not know the date at which this information became available. A recently released intelligence report of April

1. See Liberty Bell, July 1989, pp. 1-8.

1941 is now assumed to have been the first, but I had the impression, based on what I was told, that the information earlier filtered up through the higher ranks of the Army and eventually, perhaps through the infamous traitor, General Marshall, reached the White House and had greater influence in initiating the "Manhattan Project" than the much-touted letter of Messiah Einstein to his fellow Communist.

The Scientific American, February 1993, contains an article by David C. Cassidy concerning the recently released summaries of conversations between German atomic scientists held prisoner in England after the Americans dropped their first bomb on Hiroshima in August 1945. The Germans did not know that their conversations were being overheard and recorded by electronic eavesdropping.

These summaries were examined by Manley Goldberg and Thomas Powers in an article in the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists to which Cassidy refers. Their conclusion, which is certainly supported by the weight of the evidence, is that "Heisenberg delayed the [Germans'] effort, hid their progress from the authorities [i.e., the government of Adolf Hitler], and leaked information to the Allies [i.e, the Jews' janissaries]." Heisenberg, in short, was a traitor, and we must regret that he was not exposed and shot. "Liberal" chatterboxes, with their innate perversity, naturally regard treason as high morality when it is detrimental to our race.

Mr. Cassidy would have us believe that the German failure to produce an atomic bomb in time was merely a matter of bureaucratic complacency and inertia. As proof that the Germans could not have done better, he quotes a statement made by Heisenberg to his German colleagues that he had never estimated how much of the fissionable isotope, uranium 235, would be needed for a practical atomic bomb, because he thought the isotope could not be obtained with sufficient purity. Mr. Cassidy does not allow for the fact that Heisenberg would naturally try to conceal his treason from his colleagues, but he does fairly report that Heisenberg certainly did know that a reactor could breed plutonium, and therefore knew that Germany could have easily produced an atomic bomb. He thinks that this "leaves the question of scruple unresolved." I regard it as proof of treason.

The more we learn about the great catastrophe that irreparably demoralized, and may have doomed, our race and civilization, the more it becomes apparent that the primary cause of Germany's defeat was treason by men who were or were assumed to be Germans and who had wormed their way into strategic positions in the entourage of the too-trusting Führer whom they betrayed.

SPICED CRAMBE

The Romans considered a kind of boiled cabbage, crambe, the most insipid and tasteless of all dishes, and crambe repetita became a metaphor for the constant repetition of statements or arguments so often heard that they bore you to death.[1] The two-thousandth book about the assassination of Kennedy in Dallas has just been published. It is crambe repetita, but with a spice that constrains me to take notice of it in these pages.

Retired Colonel L. Fletcher Prouty, who now reveals the open secret that he was the designer of the widely shown cinema, "JFK," has written an exposition of his marshalling of facts and theories in that film, JFK: the CIA, Vietnam, and the Plot to Assassinate John F. Kennedy (New York, Carol Publishing Group, 1993; stated price, $22.00). There is an appreciative introduction by Oliver Stone, who produced the 'sensational' motion picture at which so much obloquy was spat from the foaming mouths of the media of public disinformation.

1. Cf. Juvenal, 7.154: occidit miseros crambe repetita magistros. There is some uncertainty about which of the four cultivated varieties of cabbage was meant here, and also about whether it was so objectionable merely because it had been boiled or because it had also been warmed over. The metaphor comes from a corresponding Greek proverb.

Colonel Prouty is, of course, well known as the officer who participated in many of the most secret operations of the C.I.A.[2] and then exposed its perfidious treason to the American people in his book, The Secret Team.[3] The present book is devoted to the subject of Stone's cinema.

Naturally, Colonel Prouty demonstrates the absurdity of the ridiculous report concocted by Earl Warren's team of hoaxers, and reviews evidence that is tediously familiar to everyone who has read critically about that flagrant imposture on public gullibility.[4] Unfortunately, he does not discuss the one piece of the puzzle that has not yet fallen into place: what went wrong with the conspirators' carefully plotted plan and made necessary the improvisations that, in turn, made Warren's attempt to conceal the facts so fatally flawed?[5]

2. The initials are said to represent "Central Intelligence Agency," but 'Communists' International Agentur' might be a more accurate interpretation.

3. Moralists should perpend the fact that, so far as I know, Colonel Prouty's first opportunity to address a fairly large audience was given him by Gallery, a pornographic magazine published by a man named Stev Saunders. Gallery was one of the minor magazines that are generally called pornographic; its circulation was somewhat less than three-quarters of a million copies—a mere dwarf in comparison with the major periodicals, such as Penthouse, with circulations of between five and six million, but a giant in comparison with a "right-wing" periodical with a circulation of perhaps two thousand, read only by the tiny minority of "rightists." The pornographic journals, which had masses of assured and eager readers and so were not immediately subject to control, were the only means of disseminating to a wide audience articles that had not been passed by the stringent Jewish censorship. Colonel Prouty exposed Earl Warren's hoax in Gallery, May 1976.

4. New to me, who have long since ceased to interest myself in unessential details, were the techniques by which the Federal Bureau of Intimidation produced faked photographs to bolster up Warren's fraud.

5. My own conjecture, based on the speech that Warren had prepared in advance of the assassination, that the plan called for a demonstration that Kennedy had been assassinated by nasty "right-wingers" and "hate-mongers," is, of course, only a conjecture, plausible, but unconfirmed by ascertained facts. I believe, however, that it accounts for more of the known events than any other explanation of which I have heard.

The very intensity of the efforts to conceal the basic facts about the assassination are, in themselves, conclusive proof that it was carried out by a conspiracy that included the very highest levels of "our" government, and in which more than one President was, at the very least, an accomplice after the fact. And the continuing power of that conspiracy was further attested last year, when professional liars, amateur liars, and credulous dupes were marshalled to discredit the book by Dr. Charles E. Crenshaw and Stone's motion picture.

In Liberty Bell, July 1992, pp. 8-12, and October, pp. 1-31, I discussed the disgraceful attempt by the American Medical Association to support Warren's hoax with the testimony of performing physicians. Of this Colonel Prouty sees the essential point: "This powerful, wealthy association, one of the most influential in the country" was "forced by a higher power, under some form of duress, to play a distasteful role before the American public by repeating a story that is untenable."[6]

The power that could so easily make the American Medical Association jig to its tune must be, indeed, a mighty and pervasive power, one that is comparable to the power that is now maintaining the absurd Holohoax in spite of all the accumulating evidence that has conclusively exposed, for what it is, the Jews' greatest swindle.

I am willing to believe that Colonel Prouty is a brave man, although I have no information about his behavior under fire or in similarly perilous situations, but he dares not use the most horrendous of all four-letter words, 'Jews.' He invites his reader to believe that Israel is just another small nation, like Chile and Jordan, with which he classes it!

6. Op. cit., p. 336. He exposes from personal knowledge one lie in the report, the statement that "there were no generals" in the room at Bethesda where the perfunctory autopsy was performed. General Godfrey McHugh, a military aide of the President and an intimate personal friend of Jacqueline Kennedy, was there.

So far as you will learn from Colonel Prouty, Arthur Goldberg, the sinister Zionist who was always at Kennedy's side, was only "a wise old World War II OSS[7] veteran," while the real ruler of the United States at that time, Avraham ben Elazar, alias Dr. Henry KissInger, was a man of "high caliber" and tainted only by his association with Richard Nixon, who was so wicked as to oppose pure-hearted Kennedy.

Colonel Prouty has obviously been cowed into concealing the dominion of Yahweh's Yids over the United States, and I need not tell you that any attempt to appraise political realities today is so incomplete and flawed as to be necessarily misleading, if it does not take into account the obviously vast and obviously exerted power of Yahweh's ubiquitous race. It is like talking about military strategy without mentioning air power.

It is with distress that I am constrained to report to you that Colonel Prouty's book is itself a 'cover-up' of a different kind, comparable in its way to the infamous Warren Report.

That is not to say that it does not contain very valuable information. I shall list summarily for you the disclosures that make this book a work of reference that you will want to keep at hand.

1. From personal knowledge, the Colonel tells how a few agents of the C.I.A. created a "democratic" revolution in Bolivia by denying the forces of the government access to

7. I need not remind you that the O.S.S. was correctly known to our old-line Military Intelligence as the Office of Soviet Stooges. Of course, there were members who were not Jews or Communists, but they were dupes. You may remember the unfortunate major who was dispatched with two sergeants to deliver supplies to Italians who were revolting against the Italian government. The three men and the supplies were dropped from the air, whereupon the two sergeants murdered the evidently unsuspecting major and delivered the supplies to a gang of their fellow Communists. The two admitted murderers were never punished. The Supreme Court properly ruled that no one could be prosecuted in the civil courts for a crime committed outside the United States (that rule of law was, of course, later abrogated on orders from the Sheenies), while the Army, oddly enough, never thought of court-marshalling a discharged soldier for crimes committed while he was in the Army.

supplies of ammunition, while supplying the opposition with weapons and fire-power. He incidentally notes what should be obvious to everyone, that talk about "democracy" and the like in Bolivia, Iraq, or any one of the hundred similar nations that are now called independent, is just some of the ideological hogwash that is the relished pabulum of "Liberal intellectuals" and other nitwits.

2. Plans for the "war" in Vietnam were formulated in 1945, long before that artificial "nation" was created. About the time that the infamous traitor and accomplice of Franklin Roosevelt, General George Catlett Marshall, was preparing to betray our erstwhile ally, Chiang Kai-shek, to the Communists, and immediately after the surrender of Japan, half of the vast store of weapons and munitions that had been accumulated on Okinawa was rushed by cargo planes to the Communist agitator, Ho Chi Minh, in Tongking to enable him to raise and arm a horde of bandits (especially from the hybrid Muongs), eager to have fun with a gun, and to kill and loot, completely indifferent, of course, to the ideological drivel ("All men are created equal," etc.) with which their chief tried to confuse observers. At the same time, with our usual duplicity, we encouraged and aided the French to recover their colony of Indo-China. In the end, of course, when the French were besieged at Dienbenphu in 1954, we betrayed them with the treachery that the world now regards as an American characteristic.

The principal objective of the nine years of terrorism in Tongking and adjacent regions was to flood Annam (Cochin China) with a horde of more than one million refugees from Tongking, ethnically incompatible with the Annamese, whom they outnumbered in many places, destitute, and a certain source of perpetual disorder and violence; the result was the total destruction of the traditional culture of the Annamese and kindred peoples and the effacement of the civilization that the French had introduced in their colony.[8]

8. Colonel Prouty seems oddly hostile to the French, as though he took seriously jabber about "democracy" and "self-rule," and did not know that occupation and Thus was created the bottomless sink-hole into which were poured billions extorted from American taxpayers to help impoverish them, and to provide a pretext for killing thousands of young Americans and infecting many more with incurable tropical diseases, and for demoralizing the Army by forcing it to fight to sacrifice the lives of its own soldiers and to suffer an humiliating and shameful defeat by barbarians.

3. The C.I.A. trains terrorists from all over the world, regardless of their supposed political animus; the primary purpose is not to overthrow any given régime, but to excite terror, massacre, and chaos throughout the world, obviously—though the Colonel is afraid to say so—in preparation for the Jews' One World, which, as Ben-Gurion proclaimed a quarter of a century ago, is to be stringently ruled from its capital, Jerusalem.

4. Colonel Prouty does see that "the essence of covert operations directed and carried out by the government of the United States, from the top down, is a denial of the international concept of nation-state sovereignty, the principle upon which the family of nations exists." And, furthermore, "the destruction of sovereignty and [the concomitant] disregard for the rule of law" will necessarily result in the abolition of "property rights—as we have witnessed in Eastern rule by an Aryan nation is the only way our civilization—or even toleration of it—can be imposed on the peoples of the various little countries that were lumped together as Vietnam, or on the peoples of innumerable other "emergent nations" throughout the world. Either we occupy and rule those territories or, if it is not in our interest to do that, we leave them to their own devices, without meddling in their affairs. The unending rain of verbal slop about spreading the plague of "democracy" and "doing good" to natives stimulates canting moralists and muddle-headed women, but could serve as a perfect illustration of Robert Burn's famous apostrophe:

Morality, thou deadly bane!
Thy tens of thousands thou hast slain.

He should have written 'millions.'

Europe and the former Soviet Union—and the rights of man [i.e., the rights that are taken for granted by Aryans]."[9] That's "One World" again! I have sufficiently commented before on the repudiation of all the conventions of international law and all the ethics of civilized warfare by the hate-crazed British and Americans ever since they became vassals of the World Destroyers. An incidental purpose, of course, is gradually to degrade Americans to the status of abject poverty to which they are destined. In just one year, 1985, $137,600,000,000 was extorted from the American serfs for military operations in the "Third World," i.e., to impose terror and chaos on the luckless natives who were being helped to death.

5. He quotes a significant prediction, made in 1972, that "East and West will meet some place [Jerusalem?] toward the middle of about 1990 [i.e., c. 1995, the projected date of the total collapse of the United States]."

6. He believes in the substantial accuracy of Leonard Lewin's Report from Iron Mountain (New York, Dial, 1967), i.e., that it conveys, under a "John Doe" disguise, the substance of a study actually made and its conclusions. This is important because Colonel Prouty, given the positions he has held, should know the provenance and value of a report that he cites with confidence.

The book has some minor imperfections on which we need not expatiate,[10] and we must charitably allow for the fact that Colonel Prouty (like Dr. Crenshaw) seems to have been mesmerized by the rather boyish charm that Kennedy could exert, when he wished. And we may overlook such spurts of hysteria as a claim that "a war waged with hydrogen bombs would most certainly [!]...end

9. Op. cit., pp. 230 f.

10. E.g., there is a glib reference to "histories that go back fifteen thousand years and more." I should dearly love to see an historical document, even the crudest, that antedates the invention of writing by seven thousand years.

life on Earth."[11] The crucial point is that the book is dangerously misleading in its identification of the prime movers of the conspiracy and analysis of their motivation.

Colonel Prouty would have us believe that the assassination was devised by the government of the United States for the comfort of a "military-industrial complex" that was greedy for the profits to be made from the manufacture and consumption of weapons of war. That is a diversionary sophistry.

All business is conducted for profit, and corporations are organized for the simple purpose of making maximum profits with a minimum of risk. Since all large corporations are now run by professional managers, they are, almost without exception, normally unscrupulous about the ways in which profits are made. That is commonplace. Furthermore, ever since the subversion of our Constitution in 1861 and the vast corruption brought into government by the Abolitionists, corporations are often compelled to resort to bribery, as is normal in a "democracy."[12]

11. Op. cit., p. 43. Whether a war waged with hydrogen bombs would be more destructive of life and civilization than the Jews' War Against Europe in 1939-1945 is a moot question. 'One Worlders' like to yammer about an end of the world that is imminent unless we obey our alien masters. As a matter of fact, the damage to our nation, race, and civilization wrought by the National Education Association is, if properly appraised, greater than would probably have resulted from a war with the Soviet Union after we had provided it with hydrogen bombs. (The Russians have recently admitted that they made their first atomic weapons by following instructions from the United States, but oddly equivocated when they spoke of hydrogen bombs, perhaps to protect the source of the crucial information. They failed to mention that most of the materials were also supplied by the United States.)

12. In the latter half of the Nineteenth Century it became normal that when a state legislature met, the legislators vied with one another in rushing to put their boodle bills into the hopper, since the first man or consortium to spot a given opening for boodle was regarded as having preëmpted it for that session, and it was thought unethical for others to try to "horn in" on the bribes. One of the earliest and most popular kind of such bills was directed at the railroads. The introduction of a bill harassing railroads in some way (e.g., specifying speed limits, requiring flagmen at all road crossings, requiring cabooses on switching operations, etc., etc.) was, of course, a signal for the railroads to pay off the sponsors—as they always did, since that was less expensive than submitting to the harassment or trying to induce

Granting all the profits made from the manufacture and sale of military equipment and granting all the corruption that obligatorily goes with it in a "democracy," Prouty's explanation is grossly inadequate and sometimes inconsistent.[13]

Most of what Prouty thinks sensational is merely normal business. No one thinks it remarkable that General Motors, for example, seeks to increase its sales and profits by every device that does not entail penalties in excess of profits.[14] Almost all businesses spend freely to promote their wares and hire both unscrupulous experts in advertising and unscrupulous salesmen. Even the normal party for good customers, lavishly supplied with choice alcohol and selected young whores, is a kind of bribe, and "kick backs" are, as everyone knows, equally common.[15]

Munitions of war are very expensive and business is reckoned in the billions, not mere thousands or millions. Naturally, the promotion of sales is proportionally expensive. There is nothing remarkable about bribery of generals as part of promotional expense. Our Army was thoroughly demoralized when a notoriously incompetent major named Eisenhower was promoted to supreme command because he was a corrupt tool of the Roosevelt-Baruch government and eager to help betray the United States. And, anyway, business with government must now be done in terms of Roosevelt's famous "Four Freedoms," as they were realistically defined at the time by cynical bureaucrats in Washington: The Rake Off [now called 'rip off,' i.e., of the public], the Pay Off, the Shakedown, and the Fix.

We are told that the primary purpose of the assassination was to prevent the reëlection of Kennedy. No one need have bothered. What Colonel Prouty regards as "almost certain" was, at the time of the assassination, most unlikely.[16] the public to discipline its legislators. A favorite boodle bill until recently was one that placed on cigarettes a special tax to be used to subsidize instructions about the evils of cigarettes in the public schools. The tobacco companies regularly paid off until this source of legislative revenue was grabbed by the Federal government and the manufacturers of cigarettes wisely decided to defy it. I am encouraged by the fact that the obligatory printing of the Surgeon General's vaporings on packages of cigarettes has not reduced sales. — The kind of boodle obtained by what amounts to blackmail must be distinguished from the boodle obtained by sponsoring and passing legislation that enhances the profits of some industry or other group.

13. E.g., Prouty's explanation of the diversion of a contract for a radically new type of airplane from Boeing, which could have produced it, to the hastily improvised General Dynamics, which produced one of the most expensive fiascoes in our history, is that it was favored by Kennedy and his mentor, Arthur Goldberg (a self-proclaimed Zionist, as Prouty refrains from saying), as a means of using $6,500,000,000 to replace Republicans with Democrats in many Congressional districts. Yes, but who got the loot?

14. Some decades ago General Motors and its subsidiaries created a market by boycotting railroads that did not scrap their steam locomotives and buy diesels. Persons who have investigated the fate of electric interurban railways and street car lines believe that General Motors exerted, where necessary, surreptitious pressure, perhaps including covert bribes, to sell diesel busses by instigating or forcing abandonment of the electric cars, which were more efficient and did not pollute the atmosphere. That was good business, to which no believer in "democracy" should take exception.

15. About three decades ago, when I needed to purchase some office equipment, chiefly steel filing cabinets, I was amused by a firm whose computer, having been informed that R. P. Oliver was the purchasing agent for R. P. Oliver, offered the former a secret "kick back" of 20% if he would buy their products at the expense of the latter. Another firm offered the purchasing agent a "complimentary" woman's mink jacket, which would be sent with his compliments to "any address," thus tactfully permitting him to choose between his wife and his doxy. That would have been good business, had the computers been operated by someone with intelligence enough to notice the odd coincidence between the name of the purchasing agent and the name of the owner to be exploited.

16. Cf. Liberty Bell, October 1992, pp. 25-30. And consult magazines of the period, not "right-wing" publications, but journals that profess soberly to assess political prospects. I may exaggerate the effect of the Indignation Meetings that were being held in forty-two states, because I found in the audiences I addressed a response of anger and determination that I found in no other audiences, not even those that seemed most appreciative of what I told them. But it is certain that Kennedy had, for many reasons, become a liability to the Democratic Party, which doubtless had come to regret the massive electoral fraud by the Daley machine in Chicago which procured his election.

And why should anyone have wanted to prevent that reëlection? Prepare for a shock. It was because "the Kennedys...were going to prepare America for peace"![17] If such a purpose was entertained, it could be compared only to the zealots' almost annual efforts to prepare America for the imminent "second coming" of a mythical god called Jesus.

The Colonel does not explain how Kennedy was going to promote "peace" by giving Communist nations our latest military aircraft, the act that touched off the Indignation Meetings, but he assures us that Kennedy did intend to end American involvement in Vietnam. It is quite possible that Kennedy thought that a promise to recall American troops from Indo-China would help him win reëlection, much as Roosevelt's promise that American soldiers would never be sent abroad helped him dupe the credulous electorate. The meddling in South-East Asia was generally unpopular, although it seemed relatively unimportant before Johnson made it a second and more disastrous Korea. Since the pretext that we had a "duty" to "liberate" the various peoples in Vietnam from "Communism" (which we had cleverly forced on them) convinced no judicious observer, our enemies contrived the brilliant strategy of having "Liberal" (i.e., crypto-Communist) professors of "Social Science" etc. send hordes of their trained punks out to demonstrate violently against the "war" as supporters of the Communist régime—a masterly device that prevented intelligent Americans from expressing publicly a rational opposition to what was really a Communist operation carried on by the alien government in Washington.[18]

17. Op. cit., p. 151. This reminds one of the drivel about a "warless world" that is often used to stimulate the glands of thoughtless women and craven males. A world without wars would necessarily be a world without the species of mammals that are called human.

18. Only vast subsidies to the revolutionists in Cambodia were mentioned in the advertisement published on the morning of the day Kennedy was assassinated (see Liberty Bell, October 1992, pp. 5 f.). For what we eventually did to the Cambodians, see Liberty Bell, October 1988, pp. 1-10.

We are further told that the C.I.A. had to liquidate Kennedy, who intended to "break it into a thousand pieces." Kennedy doubtless made that threat in a moment of real or feigned anger when he was acutely embarrassed by having to assume responsibility for the betrayal of the Cuban exiles whom we landed at the Bay of Pigs and then abandoned (and also, as Prouty forgot to mention, the betrayal to Castro of the anti-Communist underground in Cuba, which had been instructed to rise when the landing at the Bay of Pigs occurred). Kennedy had to admit the responsibility, because the final order to betray the Cubans came from his staff.[19] It is uncertain that Kennedy, if he persisted in a purpose that occurred to him in a moment of anger, would have been permitted by Goldberg and Kissinger to carry out that threat, or, if they consented, that he could have done so.

Kennedy's threat to liquidate the C.I.A. is only a red herring dragged across our path at this point to distract us from Colonel Prouty's major thesis, the ultimate responsibility of the "military-industrial establishment." Granted that that establishment happily made profits out of the squandering of American lives and resources in Vietnam, and was glad, for example, to replace the five thousand helicopters that, according to Colonel Prouty, were shot down (because the American government was fighting for defeat, not victory), can we believe that the "military-industrial establishment" planned that war to create a market? And if so, why should it have devised an operation so disastrous to the United States, in which most of that establishment was based?

Colonel Prouty has put himself in the position of a man who would argue that the atrocious war of race-suicide called the Civil War was devised and promoted by the "military-industrial establishment" that profited so lavishly from manufacturing and supplying "Union" (i.e., Northern) troops with warships, cannons, ammunition, shoddy clothing, fragile shoes, decaying rations, and the like. Did that establishment hire the hate-crazed Abolitionists who really caused the insane attack on the South?

19. This is admitted by Colonel Prouty, op. cit., pp. 157 f. Can we believe that Kennedy's assistant, McGeorge Bundy, acted without his knowledge and approval?

Can anyone believe that it was the "military-industrial establishment" that ordered Bushy to serve the Jews by entrapping Saddam and attacking Iraq? And, for that matter, was it the "military-industrial establishment" that arranged the attack on Germany in 1939 and Roosevelt's projected attack on Japan in 1941 as a means of serving the Judaeo-Communists?

Is the business establishment also the author of all the subversion of the United States from which it can expect no significant profit? Is it that establishment that is carrying on the campaign to exterminate our race by flooding the still civilized countries of Europe and North America with hordes of racial enemies, and by inciting mongrelization as a preliminary to the final massacre of the remaining Aryans?

There is only one power on earth that could or would carry out such a scheme of world conquest, and that, of course, is the power that is now ramming its Holohoax into the minds of Aryan children to destroy their self-respect and racial will to live. And that is also the power that Colonel Prouty is afraid to mention—the power that he, whether willingly or under duress, is diligently serving by concealing its very existence from his readers.

In this book Colonel Prouty has torpedoed the incredible Warren Report. That was like torpedoing a sinking ship, but perhaps he gave the doomed hulk a coup de grace and hastened its end. That is commendable. I am indeed saddened that his book is also a monstrous cover-up, a vast and systematic deception comparable to that carried out by writers who ostentatiously blame the British, our fellow victims, or mysterious "insiders" for the deadly depredations of the race that has, for more than two thousand years, worked with infinite patience, subtle intelligence, and implacable hatred to annihilate our race, our civilization, and all that we created.

THE ROT AND THE STENCH

On the recommendation of one of my teachers, I became a member of the Modern Languages Association while I was still an undergraduate—around 1929, as I recall. It was composed largely of university professors of English, German, French, Italian, and Spanish, but, as a scholarly body, had no concern with the teaching of those languages, although some of its younger members, who had the rank of instructor, had to perform the disagreeable task of trying to impart the rudiments of a foreign language while hopefully awaiting promotion to better things. The teaching of languages was the concern of special associations that were largely composed of teachers in high schools, the American Association of Teachers of German, of Teachers of French, etc.

The province of the Modern Languages Association was study of the literatures of the modern European languages, the relevant political and cultural history, and the development of the languages themselves. The literatures were chiefly English (including Anglo-Saxon), French (including Old French and possibly Provençal), German (including Old German and possibly Dutch, Flemish, and Frisian), Italian (possibly including Venetian), Spanish (including Portuguese and possibly Catalán), and possibly the Scandinavian languages: Old Norse, Icelandic, Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian (including Landsmål).[1] Oddly enough, the international literature in Latin, which dominated all serious writing until near the end of the Eighteenth Century, was excluded.

The Modern Languages Association lacked the cohesion of the American Philological Association, all of whose members had necessarily read all important works of ancient literature in Latin and Greek, were familiar with the history of the ancient world from Homer to Romulus Augustulus, understood the syntactical and lexical development of the two languages (and thus knew something of the minor Greek and Italic dialects) and, in addition, read French and German, although usually confining themselves to scholarly publications in those languages. The Philological Association was thus solidly founded on a common body of knowledge. In contrast, the members of the Modern Languages Association were, almost without exception, specialists in the literature of just one language and often had only the haziest notions of the literatures of the other languages represented by the Association. Since they held doctorates from respectable universities, they could, of course, read Latin, French, and German, but I had the impression that few who were not Professors of French read French literature for its own sake, that German literature was largely ignored except by Professors of German, and that fewer yet were sufficiently curious to learn other modern languages in which they had not specialized. The Association was thus based on reciprocal toleration rather than on mutual understanding.

1. I use 'possibly' to designate subjects on which papers would, I assume, have been accepted, although I do not recall having seen or heard one.

The Modern Languages Association met annually for three days between Christmas and New Year's and published a journal, known as PMLA (Publications of the Modern Languages Association),[2] which appeared quarterly with biannual supplements, totaling from 1400 to 1600 pages each year plus many advertisements, chiefly by publishers of books. The periodical published only articles (there were almost no reviews) that were or seemed to be scholarly. Most of them were serious historical studies, although there was a good deal of chaff, particularly of the then fashionable kind that the late Professor Régis Michaud used to call "sourcery."[3] Occasionally, pedantry became risible. I remember an article that began, "As everyone knows, the β recension of the Townly plays ..."

2. Probably no one noticed that this was an early example in English of the Marxist fad of writing and pronouncing abbreviations as strings of capital letters.

3. That Shakespeare based a play on a novella by Bandello or a biography by Plutarch or a comedy by Plautus is obvious to anyone who had read the works in question, and mildly interesting, but attempts to show that novel A was a "source" of novel B, or that poem X was a "source" of poem Y, on the basis of some small similarities in plot or diction are usually misinterpretation of what was more probably derived from the cultural ambience, and is, in any case, of minimal importance.

I seldom attended meetings of the Modern Languages Association, but I occasionally looked in on them for a day when their schedule overlapped that of the Philological Association and the two meetings were in the same city or in cities between which it was easy to travel by overnight trains. The meetings that I attended were sedate, dominated by real or professed scholarly interests. Women were not unknown (after all, the select women's colleges had to have faculties), but were comparatively rare and were always treated with exemplary courtesy and the deference due their sex. (The species called "gentlemen" was not yet extinct, and its behavior was still emulated in academic circles.)

I saw only one meeting after 1940. Around 1956 I went to a conveniently located meeting to confer with the series editor of a project in which I was interested. I was astonished by the great increase in the number of members present and the patent fact that so many of them were engaged in feverish efforts to find jobs or to find suitable candidates for vacancies in their departments. That seemed ominous, but was probably a consequence of the absurd proliferation of colleges and "universities" ever since stupid taxpayers first acquiesced in the folly of planting one or more ostensibly academic institutions at every crossroads.

At a meeting of the Modern Languages Association in the early 1960s, if I remember correctly, the podium was seized by a gang of young misfits who began to rant about "social justice," "world peace," and similar nonsense. That was a turning point. The officers of the Association, instead of summoning a squad of police with big nightsticks to eject the rabble and revoking their membership, pled and whined and negotiated and compromised. I resigned from the Association in disgust, thus canceling what would have been a Life Membership with exemption from further payment of dues. (About the same time, there was a similar fracas at a meeting of the American Historical Association with the same result, including my resignation.)

Since my resignation I neither heard nor saw anything of the Modern Languages Association. I anticipated the worst, but the worst, foreseen from 1960, was not what it is today. For one thing, that bizarre biological anomaly, a species of females who are not women, had not yet become prevalent and its prodromes were regarded with justified contempt.

I was therefore much interested in an article by John Leo, "Temple of Modern Babble," that occupied a page in the Washington Times, 12 January 1993. Mr. Leo had attended the meeting of the Modern Languages Association in New York City and visited as many rings of the circus as he could, and he reported his observations. I shall try to summarize them.

In one room a female was ranting about "the alphabetical dyad," PC ("political correctness") and comparing it to "UFOs" ("flying saucers"), evidently because only people with "fatheadness" think there is a question about what is correct. Passing a female mumbling about "white male linear thinking," Mr. Leo heard a termagent who was "attacking Alex Trebek's TV game show [!], complaining testily about 'the white maleness of Jeopardy.'"

At the meeting in New York some eleven thousand of the thirty-two thousand members of the Modern Languages Association foregathered "to hear papers on such topics as 'Jane Austen and the Masturbating Three-Button Jacket,' 'Between Body and Soul: Performing Lesbian Sadomasochism,' 'The Poetics of Ouija,' and 'Transvestite Biography.'"

Mr. Leo continues:

> Once the preserve of tweedy and bookish professors, the MLA has long since been taken over by the race-and-gender crowd. Now it is a hard-edged, heavily politicized academic group that looks at Western literature (when it looks at it at all) solely as the ideological expression of white male dominance....

> The air is thick with the incantatory words "hegemonic," "privileged," and "dominant," plus lots of near-words like "liberatory," "interdiscursive" and "heterotextuality." In one room, a lecturer from San Francisco State rails against "white supremacist patriarchal capitalism," adding that "capitalism must be destroyed in our time."
>
> In another, Susan Suleri [!] of Yale mocks a donation to her university that would set up a chair in Western civilization. "Western civilization?" she asks, "Why not a chair for colonialism, slavery, empire, and poverty?" And Steven Wartofsky [!], of Loyola University in Chicago, talks of "a desire to forget history," which, he predicts, "will begin at next year's MLA....with the displacement of white male Eur-American texts."
>
> This is no place to talk about literature, and many of the panels set up to deal glancingly with the subject are quickly converted to higher purposes. A scheduled discussion of E. L. Doctorow's novel, The Book of Daniel, turns out to be a long rant about the "McCarthyite" 1950s by a young professor who seems to know very little about the period.
>
> The general tone here is angry and confrontational, with intellectual opponents (none of whom seems to be on the premises) denounced as "the enemy." The presidential address, given by Houston Baker, Jr., a black professor [!] from the University of Pennsylvania, is a vitriolic attack on white dominance, as allegedly represented by fraternities on the Pennsylvania campus.
>
> The vacationing ideologues here are suffering from a swarm of radical isms, but the central one, totally dead in the real world, is Marxism.... So literary studies are properly a branch of left politics and nothing more.
>
> It's hard to imagine that an entire profession is careening off the rails, but it is indeed happening.....

Mr. Leo saw one ray of hope:

> Feroza Jussawalla [!] of the University of Texas [in] El Paso. She passionately supports multiculturalism.... She says there's intimidation and censorship too for the politically incorrect. She calls for freedom from both the old "scholarly humanist elite" and the new "elitist hegemonic Marxists, who now ride herd on the MLA."

I am sorry, but Mr. Leo's ray of hope seems to me about as reassuring as the final nail in a coffin-head.

Women were not unknown at this meeting of the Modern Languages Association, but they were rare and prudently remained inconspicuous, lest the crazed maenads tear them limb from limb.

The Modern Languages Association is but one example of what has happened to American universities while Americans slept and dreamt about "world peace" or "salvation" or "democracy" or some other figment of disordered imaginations. I shall note other instances in later articles.

Now the thing to remember is that whatever the college to which you send your son or daughter, the chances are that your child will be exposed to, and may be infected by, some of this rotting academic garbage.

PERSECUTION OF THE RIGHTEOUS

Few university men, whether scholars, teachers, or "administators," are allocated two-thirds of a page in the Chicago Tribune, but on 29 January 1993 a presumably learned Sheeny appropriately named Tzvee Zahavy was given that measure of fame. He had attained distinction as a Doppelgänger.

In the first half of each week he was Distinguished Professor of Judaic Studies in the University of North Carolina at a salary of $85,000. In the last half of the week he was Professor of Classical [!!] and Near Eastern Studies in the University of Minnesota at a salary of $61,400. He was also giving speeches to synagogues of his fellow tribesmen in North Carolina for fees of one thousand dollars. Neither university knew that the other shared his Judaic luster. When they discovered they were being two-timed by the peripatetic Sheeny, they irately forced him to resign.

Zahavy is indignant. He feels that the nasty universities have cheated him of an annual income of $146,400 and perhaps made synagogues less eager to hear the Word of God as expounded in the Holy Talmud, the subject of his presumably vast scholarship. Zahavy insists that he did nothing wrong. And he is right. If you go through the Talmud, an exercise that makes an Aryan feel that he is picking through a garbage can that has stood two days under a hot sun, you will find that God repeatedly authorizes his Chosen Race to diddle and fleece the stupid goyim. That is only proper. What are goyim for, anyway?

So far as I have heard, neither the Defamation League nor the other Jewish agencies charged with supervising the goyim on their North American plantation have acted to protect the Talmudic scholar from "anti-Semitism." But we must remember that Zahavy is a very small and insignficant Jew. He is comparable to the pawnbrokers, old-clothes merchants, and itinerant peddlers who, in the Nineteenth Century, used to gain the confidence of the peasants or urban poor who had to deal with them by protesting they were "honest Sheenies."[1]

Noteworthy Kikes operate on a much wider scale. For example, according to the Wall Street Journal, an agent of the Rothschilds has recently confessed that he carried a suitcase stuffed with five million dollars to the assassins who murdered Roberto Calvi, an Italian banker who had sought refuge in England. That's doing things handsomely and with the amplitude that befits the Children of God.[2]

So, it would seem, his mighty kinsmen will permit poor Zahavy, for all his Talmudic wisdom, to flounder in his own little pool. Ain't it a shame?

1. The ethnic term 'Sheeny' is not related to the English adjective that is applied to what is shining or lustrous, and seems to have been originally a Yiddish term for a petty dealer in cheap merchandise. The etymology is uncertain. It is sometimes derived from the Yiddish form of German schön, on the assumption that that word was habitually used by such hawkers to commend their tawdry wares, but that seems most unlikely. A quotation in the Oxford English dictionary claims the word specifically designated a Portuguese Jew, but I cannot find in Portuguese literature or dictionaries a confirmation of that improbable derivation, and it is not likely that any White man would have wanted so specifically to distinguish Jews residing in Portugal from other members of the race. The book from which the dictionary cites the quotation is not readily available, so I have not tried to verify the context.

2. If Yahweh was telling the truth in Exodus, 4.22 ("Israël [obviously a collective designation] is my son, even my firstborn"), Jews have a divine ancestry and must be venerated by pious Christians as living gods or, at least, demi-gods.

The Ethnic and Racial Aspects of Clinton's Appointments

By

Dr. Charles E. Weber

The nature of President Clinton's appointments to non-elective offices is a likely indication of the nature of his future administration of what has been called the most powerful office in the world. In his cynically mendacious campaign for president, which yielded only 43% of the votes, Clinton promised to make appointments that would reflect the make-up of the American population as a whole, in other words, that his appointments were to be based largely on race and ethnic origins.

The grossly disproportionate number of Jews in his recent appointments reflects not the proportion of Jews in the American population (3 to 4%), but rather the fact that Clinton is well aware of the phenomenal power which Jews wield in the United States, including their extensive control of the American media. The news media are in a position virtually to control American politics. The vast majority of Jewish votes, perhaps 90%, went to Clinton.

The following list of Clinton's appointments is based on carefully compiled data furnished to me by an astute foreign observer of the American political scene whose identity I do not wish to reveal in view of his high profile and important functions. Listed are the conjectural racial identities or ethnic origins of appointees along with their positions of fields of activities.

Half-Jewess	Albright, Madeleine K.	Ambassador to the United Nations
Jew	Altman, Roger	Deputy of Secretary Bentson
Aryan	Aspin, Les	Secretary of Defense
Aryan	Babbitt, Bruce	Secretary of the Interior
Jewess	Baird, Zoë	Attorney General declined
Aryan	Bentson, Lloyd	Secretary of the Treasury
Jew	Berger, Samuel	Deputy head of National Security Council
Jew	Boorstin, Robert	Communications aide
Jew	Boikin, Keith	Communications aide
Afro-American	Brown, Jesse	Secretary of Veterans' Affairs
Afro-America	Brown, Ronald H.	Secretary of Commerce
Aryan woman	Browner, Carol	Administrator of Environmental Protection Agency
Aryan	Christopher, Warren	Secretary of State
Latino	Cisneros, Henry	Secretary of Housing
Aryan	Crower, William J.	Head of council for intelligence services
Armenian	Djerejian, Edward P.	Assistant Secretary of State for the Near East
Aryan	Donilon, Thomas E.	Assistant Secretary of State, Public Affairs
Jew	Dreyer, David	Communications aide
Jew	Eizenstat, Stuart E.	Assistant Secretary of for Security
Afro-America	Elders, Jocelyn	Surgeon-General
Jew	Eller, Jeff	Communications aide
Afro-America	Espy, Mike	Secretary of Agriculture
Jewess	Feder, Judith	Advisor to Secretary of Health
Aryan	Foster, Vince	Second White House counsel
Jew	Gober, Hershel	Assistant Secretary for Veterans Affairs
Jew	Herman, Alexis	Secretary to president for public works
Jew	Kantor, Mickey	U.S. trade representative
Jew	Klein, Ron	Third White House counsel
Jewess	Kunin, Madeleine	Assistant Secretary of Education
Jew	Kusnet, David	Communication's aide
Aryan	Lake, W. Anthony	Chief advisor for national security

Jew	Lewis, Samuel	Director of strategy
Aryan	Lord, Winston	Assistant Secretary of State for Asia
Jew	Ludwig, Eugene A.	Mint administration
Aryan	McLarty, Thomas F. III	White House Chief of Staff
Jew	Magaziner, Ira	Chief advisor for security questions
Afro-American	Moose, George E.	Assistant Secretary of State for Africa
Aryan woman	Myers, Dee Dee	Media handler
Jew	Newman, Frank N.	Assistant Secretary of State for Finance
Jew	Nussbaum, Bernard	White House Counsel
Negress	O'Leary, Hazel R.	Secretary of Energy
Jew	Oxman, Stephen A.	Assistant Secretary of State for Europe
Latino	Panetta, Leon E.	Office of Management and Budget
Jew	Paster, Howard	Presidential secretary for Congress
Latino	Peña, Frederico F.	Secretary of Transportation
Jew	Rahm, Emanuel	Presidential secretary for political affairs
Aryan woman	Rasco, Carol	White House Domestic Advisor
Jew	Reich, Robert	Secretary of Labor
Aryan woman	Reno, Janet	Attorney General
Jewess	Rivlin, Alice	Deputy Director, Office of Management and Budget
Jew	Rubin, Robert E.	Head, Council of Economic Advisors
Jew	Segal, Eli	Director of National Service
Jewess	Seidman, Ricki	Communications aide (research)
Lebanese	Shalala, Donna E.	Secretary of Health and Human Services
Jew	Schifter, Richard	U.S. Ambassador to Israel
Jewess	Spero, Joan Edelman	Asst. Secretary of State for Economic Affairs

Greek	Stephanopoulos, George	Media handler
Jew	Summers, Lawrence H.	Assistant Secretary of State for Policy
Jew	Tarnoff, Peter	Assistant Secretary of State for Political Affairs
Aryan woman	Tyson, Laura D'Andrea	Head, Council of Economic Advisors
Jew	Waldman, Michael	Communications aide
Negress	Walker, Anne	Communications aide
Afro-America	Wharton, Clifton R., Jr.	Assistant Secretary of State
Aryan	Woolsey, R. James	Director, CIA

Comments:

The rejected appointment of Zoë Baird to be Attorney General was naive or inappropriate because Talmudic traditions absolve Jews of a moral obligation to obey the laws of their host populations, a pattern of Jewish behavior of which Baird offered just one further example.

The appointment of Robert Reich to be Secretary of Labor is also an anomaly because few Jews earn their livings by manual labor. Note the paucity of Aryan appointees with German or Scandinavian names, although such persons constitute a sizable portion of the population.

Approximately half of the 64 persons listed above appear to be Jewish by ethnic background, a circumstance that has grave forebodings for Aryans in the United States and even abroad.

In view of the crimes committed by members of Clinton's family and of Clinton's sexual escapades (including the procreation of a mulatto son?), Clinton's appointments might even reflect the workings of a profoundly disturbed mind that bears subconscious hostility and resentment against the orderly, successful, law-abiding (but already dispossessed) Aryan majority of the population of the United States, a majority which is destined to become a wretched, exploited minority within a few decades unless its will to survive and unless policies and laws pertaining to taxation, immigration and welfare are radically changed. ❑

Their Capitalism and Ours

by

Hector Rodgers, Ph.D.

"How do you explain," I asked my knowledgeable friend, the mathematician, "the love-hate relation Jews bring to individualist, laissez-faire capitalism?"

"In what way is the relationship any different from that which other groups bring to it?" responded my friend.

"It seems to me," I answered, "there is the following difference. Except in the case of their priesthoods and intellectuals and other maladroits and sinecurists, Aryans anyway—and maybe other races or subraces—react to an individualist, laissez-faire, capitalist environment with the same sort of matter-of-factness they evince with respect, say, to their native language. As they talk their native tongue with a will, but with no particular manifestations of special love or hate, they naturally engage with a will, but no manifestation of either special love or hate, in the purely private contractual operations of individualistic laissez-faire capitalism. I refer in particular, let me add, to those who work with their hands. And let me underscore the fact that I said 'naturally engage.' Their own priesthoods and intellectuals and other maladroits and stinged drones can stir up simple souls, and have indeed often in fact stirred them up, to betray their own natural bents and proclivities and traditions and opt for some form of spiritual or economic collectivism—invariably to those simple souls' subsequent distress and deprivation. The point here, I suppose, is that those who work with their hands and common sense, rather than with their mouths and pure fancy, can succeed in possessing plentitudes of the humbler good things of life—the products of their own toil—only under the rubrics of individualistic laissez-faire capitalism, whereas our stinged drones—priests and intellectuals and other maladroits—instinctively know that they can possess plentitudes of those goods only by appropriation and exploitation or, in short, through State collectivizations operated by themselves. Thus, except in the rare case of a truly impartial mind, like Adam Smith, Aryan intellectuals and priests tend to feel hostile to the existence of individualistic, laissez-faire capitalism and friendly to State collectivization. On the other, both Jews who work with their hands and Jews who are priests and intellectuals react to an individualistic, laissez-faire environment in the peculiar way that pirates might to a galleon laden with Spanish gold: with manifestations of joy but also with manifestations of hostility. I will grant, however, that as there occur exceptions among Aryan intellectuals there occur exceptions among Jewish intellectuals. I think Ayn Rand, for instance, was one such exception and perhaps some of her close followers. It might be noted however, that Ayn Rand's most bitter critics were Jewish intellectuals and priests. These attacked her with a bitterness and vituperation usually reserved for traitors. Her non-Jewish critics were much more reserved in their attacks, and unlike her Jewish critics, usually leveled their attacks, not so much at her laissez-faire, individualistic capitalism as at her dogmatic and unrealistic imposition of that system's economic principles upon all human relations. It was thought, and I believe with some justice, that there results from this imposition a caricature of the most fundamental human relations, like that of marriage, the family, and so on. So far as I am aware, neither Jewish nor establishment non-Jewish critics of Rand ever touched upon the travesty that the same imposition makes of racial ethics, and that is to say, in the final analysis, all ethics. Indeed, Rand's predictable reference to racism as 'garbage' was, by both groups of critics I have mentioned, greeted with approval. Rand's Jewish critics, of course, understood perfectly well that Rand was not referring to Jewish racism, but only Aryan racism. They would not have tolerated her attacking Jewish racism. On the other hand, her Aryan critics, being imbued with the present-day death-wish of sick Aryans, not only were not offended at her obvious attack on Aryan racism, but applauded it. But I digress, I am afraid.

Let me return to my contention that on the whole, where not stirred up by stinged drones, Aryans naturally react to an individualistic, laissez-faire capitalist environment with a sort of matter-of-fact acceptance whereas Jews on the whole naturally react much like pirates boarding a Spanish galleon, with joy or avidity on the one hand and hostility on the other. I have noted some exceptions to this reaction—Rand's in particular. Nonetheless... I was proceeding, when my mathematical friend intervened.

"I think," said he, "you have hit upon some important observations; perhaps more far-reaching than you realize. I like your metaphor of pirates boarding a Spanish galleon. Even superficially viewed it is apt. For certainly Jews are notable for the way in which, as a class, they have pillaged Aryan economic systems, not only the generally individualistic laissez-faire system of the 19th and early 20th century England and America but the medieval system of Europe, with its religious ban upon loaning at interest and its non-integration of trade and traders in the social hierarchy. A cheater in cards, who is prospering thereby, will naturally engage with some gusto in his cheating and may even try to justify it. The same would hold for sly, parasitical aliens attacking and feeding upon their host's economic and spiritual systems. In self-defense they would have to hate their host and his economic system, for how else justify in their own minds the destruction they were wreaking upon their host? And at the same time, like termites at their natural work, they would have to enjoy the destruction they were wreaking. Thus, like Catullus in love, they would oscillate between 'amo' — I love — and 'odi', I hate. I believe too, however, that—aside from their parasitism—Jews are by nature, as reflected in their religion and culture, unsympathetic to and indeed even alienated by an economic system in which individuals are allowed to form and make contracts unsupervised and uncontrolled by higher authority—for example, priestly boards examining into such things as fairness. One can understand why this should be. If men of a certain species were reptilianly ruthless in their pursuit of gain or prey they would need and want the gain-oriented relations between themselves controlled and supervised by presumably detached observers. They would instinctively know that they could not be left 'on their own' and instinctively they would be alienated by an economic system that provided no supervising or controlling higher authorities and so left them, individually, on their own. At the same time, such a system would place Jews in an advantageous position with respect to a host population whose members were not reptilianly ruthless. So to speak, they could make a killing. Thus, again, they would evince a 'love-hate' relation to this laissez-faire economic system of ours, which, it might be added, with respect to a species of people—our own, for example—who were not by nature reptilianly ruthless in pursuit of gain or prey—who were, as individuals, motivated by such things as feelings of fair play and chivalry and so could be expected to need no higher supervising authorities controlling their individual transactions—would prove alone fully congenial, a perfect fit."

"If I understand you rightly," I said to my friend, "you are maintaining two different but not necessarily incompatible theses. On the one hand, you seem to be maintaining that the 'love-hate' relationship between most Jews and individualistic laissez-faire capitalism rests upon something like the Jews' natural rapacity and ruthlessness: instinctively aware of this aspect of their natures, Jews will feel the need for the intervention of higher authorities in their business affairs and hence be naturally hostile to a laissez-faire economy. On the other hand, where as in our own case the population is not so reptilianly rapacious and ruthless, the same economic system will allow the Jew to prosper mightily and out of all proportion to his just desserts and so recommend itself to him. Hence, the Jews hate and love. But you also refer to the Jews as natural parasites who feed on and destroy thye economic system of any host people; hence, from the relish with which they feed on our laissez-faire economic system, they acquire a look of love for it; but as an emotional defense justifying their destroying their host's economic system and thus their host they need to express a hatred of both system and host. I see what you are saying and find it very convincing. What, though, do you say to the more simply theorythat explains what you have been explaining by attributing to the Jews an inherent delight in lying, deceit, and hypocrisy and then claiming that the hate-side of their love-hate relationship to individualistic laissez-faire capitalism is mere hypocritical camouflage, designed to misdirect the non-Jewish viewer's eye from the actual depredations being engineered by Jews through license of the laissez-faire system?"

"I grant that the Jew typically and instinctively engages in camouflage," replied my mathematical friend. "One weapon of the parasite is camouflage, witness those parasitical birds whose progeny imitate the throat colorations of the host bird's progeny and so get fed. In their first intrusion into a culture Jews typically assume, or more accurately, try to assume, the plumage of their host. An English Jew, at the start of his intrusion into English society, tries at least for public consumption to be and sometimes even succeeds in being more English in dress, speech, and behavior than an Englishman, witness Disraeli; a German Jew than a German, and so on. Only when complete power is attained is the artificial plumage doffed. Then, instead of talk of tea and crumpets and amusing witticisms emanating from vulturine lips there emanate the coarsest profanities, talk of bagels, bar mitzvahs, and not infrequently the epithet, 'dumb goy.' Moreover, Jewish camouflage no doubt does play the role you assign it in the love-hate relationship that the Jew brings to individualistic, laissez-faire capitalism. I should also want to add that it is Jewish camouflage above all that explains how and why it is that it is so difficult to zero in on the actual character of the Jew. The difficulty does not lie so much in the fact that individual Jews differ in their deeper character as in their particular camouflages. Let me give you an example.

"No one, in appearance and profession, has been a more dedicated apostle of reason and impartiality in argumentation than Ayn Rand. But when, in the late sixties, the so-called Seven Days' War broke out between Israel and several Arab states, Ayn Rand—as fiercely as any Jew in a synagogue—exclaimed against the cruelty and barbarities of the Arabs. One now heard not a peep from Rand about 'checking the evidence'—that is, one's premises. On the contrary, I remember at a small dinner party at this time Rand asking a member of the company whether the cruelty and barbarities of the Arabs might not be accounted for because of their—I quote—'tribal religion.' By the latter allusion Rand meant their, the Arabs', 'Mohammedanism.' The person addressed might have but didn't point out to Rand what she must have known full well: that any one can become a Mohammedan simply by declaring himself a believer—hardly the mark of a tribal religion—but that one can be accepted into Judaism only if born a Jew or if, having been invited to appear before certain select Rabbis, one passes through and successfully completes a quite discriminatory process and examination that obviously stand proxy for one's initiation into a tribe. So here was Rand pretending that Jewish terrorism in Palestine was Arab terrorism and that a tribal religion was non-tribal and vice-versa. To put the matter metaphorically: it was as if, scratching through the surface of Ayn Rand, one found, not pure reason or impartial examination of evidence, but the very same thoughts and feelings that one would have found scratching through the surface of any other Jew at that time. Now if, underneath all camouflage, Ayn Rand turns out to be like any other Jew, then, it seems to me, it cannot be individual differences that account for the difficulty one has in characterizing the Jew but differences in camouflage, simply.

"For all the important role that camouflage plays in Jewish life, however, and in spite of the fact that we can find for it a role in the Jew's love-hate relationship to laissez-faire individualist capitalism, we are asking too much of it when we ask it to explain by itself that relationship. Camouflage, for instance, may be and often is the weapon of a parasite but it does not by itself explain the existence of parasitism. It would have to, though, if it were to explain, by itself, the existence of the Jew's love-hate relationship to laissez-faire individualist capitalism for, in some of its parts, that relationship can only be understood, it would seem, as aspects of parasitism. For example, one of the more noticeable features of the Jewish intrusion into our Aryan individualist laissez-faire capitalism is the Jew's conversion of it from a non-parasitical capitalism into a parasitical one. Let me elaborate.

"The sort of wealth we shall be speaking about consists in material possessions that can be consumed and exchanged. The existence of such possessions begins, in a very broad use of the term "production," with their production. Once existent these goods can be acquired in the following further three ways: a) through trade; b) through interest or foreclosures based upon loans; and c) through government coercion mandating the transfer of such possessions from one party to another party. Insofar as existence of the sort of wealth described results from production we shall speak of productive capitalism or, in its most advanced form, industrial capitalism; insofar as it exists through trade, mercantile capitalism; insofar as from banking practices—that is interest from loans and foreclosures—financial capitalism; and insofar as from government coercion or mandates, state capitalism.

"Now as it is clear that the existence of mercantile capitalism depends on the existence of productive capitalism one might say that the former is parasitic on the latter; and for the same reason, one might say that financial capitalism is parasitic upon the former two; and state capitalism upon the former three. In a proper or natural ordering of things, then, industrial capital should rule over mercantile capital, that and mercantile over financial capital, and those three over state capital—should the latter exist at all. It might be noted, incidentally, that this natural order of things gets reflected morally in the very persuasive argument that wealth gained through production is more honest than wealth gained through trade, these more honest than wealth gained through banking, and these more honest than wealth gained through the mandates of government. The persuasiveness of this judgment issues, it is important to note, not so much through our perception, if any, of natural orders but our understanding, gained through experience, that productive capitalism does not lend itself to deceit, connivance, and ruthlessness to the extent that mercantile capitalism does—it is harder, if not impossible, for instance, to pretend one is in the process of making a chair when one is simply sitting on one's hands than to pretend that the same chair is worth more in trade than it is really worth; nor these to the extent that financial capitalism does, nor none of these to the extent that state capitalism does. How easy, for example, it is for the banker to falsely make believe, without being detected, that the ten dollars I have deposited and which he has loaned out to five different people is safe; and even how much easier for the politician to falsely make believe, without being detected, that his "soak-the-rich" taxes are really improving the condition of the poor and the general welfare.

"On the same basis, we know that state capitalism can through ruthless and unscrupulous exercises of power subordinate to itself the other three capitalisms; financial capitalism can similarly subordinate to itself, mercantile and industrial capitalism; and mercantile capitalism, industrial capitalism.

"Simply in view of the Jew's character, as previously described, and the Aryan or Europid's character, as previously described, and in view of the properties and relationships outlined above, one might be theoretically tempted to project the following nutshell of history for this country: as the Jewish presence increases there is, concomitant with its increase, a growing domination of Jews first in state capitalism, then financial capitalism, then in mercantile capitalism, and finally in industrial capitalism. This concomitance would be predicated upon the Jew's well-developed and indeed natural ability to use deceit and camouflage, his instinctive but also religiously cultivated racial cohesion and orientation, and his reptilian ruthlessness (in contrast to the Aryan or Europid's lesser talents and proclivities in these lines and his natural and philosophically cultivated fascination with universalistic effusions of pure reason). Presumably, the government bureaucracy and state capitalism, possessing the most potential for exploitation by deceit, ruthlessness, and gang-action, would lend themselves first of all to the machinations of the Jew and be first captured; then the banking system and financial capitalism; then the mercantile system; and lastly, the industrial system. At the same time, the natural order of hegemonies, where industrial capitalism rules mercantile capitalism, and these financial capitalism, and these, finally, state capitalism, should, by the same concomitance, be gradually inverted, concluding in a condition where state capitalism dominates all the other three capitalisms, with financial capitalism next in paramountcy, then mercantile capitalism, and at the bottom of the power totem pole, industrial capitalism and industrial capitalists. But while the latter inversion has taken place in the last two hundred years of American economic history, Jewish domination of the various capitalisms has not in fact followed the simple route abstract deduction suggests. One's impression is that Jewish inroads into American power and wealth began with incursions into mercantile and financial capitalism, launched at first in large measure from bases in Europe; then with control of the news and entertainment media; then and only then with control of the government bureaucracy and state capitalism; and finally, but still underway, control of industry and industrial capitalism.

"These divagations from the theoretically straight and narrow assumption of Jewish power were due to a number of historical accidents: the pristine exclusiveness of Anglo-Saxon society; the toughness of Yankee traders; Andrew Jackson's successful campaign against a federal bank and his introduction of the spoils system; pristine Christian hostility to Jews, as the crucifiers of Jesus Christ; the earlier common-law illegalization of Jewish unionism—that is, adversary unionism (the adversary being the gentile industrial system); and the natural alliance of the frontier and its people with production and productive capitalism. These barricades in his path and, originally, his own few numbers in America, caused the Jew to engage in Fabian tactics. Instead of seizing or trying to seize the potential seat of greatest power—the government bureaucracy and treasure—he was forced initially to attack those lesser seats of potential power whose route led from pushcarts to mercantile empires and from pawnshops to banking systems. Having gained control of the mercantile and financial capitalisms Jews were able to gain control of the news and entertainment media; then, by a ruthless exploitation of the latter, control of government—its bureaucracies and its courts, in particular, but also its legislatures: witness the subservience of the U.S. Congress and Senate to Israel. Even more illustrative of the ruthless exploitation by Jews of government power, once acquired, is the not-so-long ago, successful attack by pint-sized Pennzoil and its Jewish ownership upon the giant, Texaco. Consider: a single Jewish judge, in violation of all common law and precedent, in effect handed over Texaco to Pennzoil and its Jewish ownership—several billions' worth, anyway—and this exercise in judicial tyranny and piracy was allowed by the higher courts to stick! To be sure, a largely Europid jury gave its imprimatur to the verdict. But, as anyone who knows anything knows, Europid juries are today, in Jewish hands, mere funny putty.

"It should be noted that as these capitalisms, including even industrial capitalism, have been Judaized, their complexions have entirely changed and have taken on the colorations of their new masters. Illustrative, as a case in point, would be the life-enhancing, virtue-oriented textile factories of New England of the 1820's, 30's, and 40's (see, "The Working Ladies of Lowell," Weisberger, American Heritage, ed. 1961, pp. 42 ff); these became, as the textile industry fell under Jewish hands, the grinding, life-sapping sweat-shops of New York. Or one might take in illustration the publishing industry's transition, concomitant with its coming under Jewish control, from an industry basically dedicated to good taste and morality and traditional American values to one dedicated to bad taste and immorality and the vilification of those same American values of its host.

"The message I want to emphasize in all this is that before a person attacks capitalism he needs to differentiate between industrial capitalism, mercantile capitalism, financial capitalism, and state capitalism, and he needs above all to consider in depth how each of these capitalisms differs when controlled and operated by Aryans or Europids versus Jews. When he does he will discover, I submit, that the conclusions he arrives at are in all cases discrete and different." Here my mathematical friend, after drawing a long breath, waved a self-depreciating hand and said, "I am afraid, when I get a full head of steam up, I monopolize the conversation. Surely, you may have wanted to stick an oar into the flow of my talking."

"No," I replied candidly. "I could think of nothing to add or subtract from what you were saying. Nor can I now." And this remains my feeling.

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

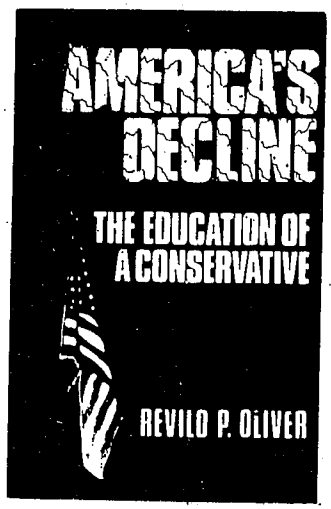
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

OPEN LETTER
by Col. "Bo" Gritz
TO
The American Christian
page 1

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Campbell Responds to Gritz
page 9

Gas Guessing
by Robert Frenz
page 22

Race-Mixing:
The Key to World Peace?
by Eric Thomson
page 26

Letters to the Editor
page 34

VOL. 20 - NO. 8 APRIL 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People; not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

OPEN LETTER

By Col. "Bo" Gritz

TO

The American Christian

Mr. Ben Williams, Editor

RE: Bigot & Coward J.B. Campbell debunked

"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.: Exodus 20:16.

J.B. Campbell, writing in "The American Christian" Sep-Oct '92 newsletter (a possible misnomer) [also published in Liberty Bell, January 1993, "Weaver and Gritz."] is a fallacious coward and you, the editor, Ben Williams are a irresponsible and thoughless deceiver. Published by American Christian Ministries, POB 8430, Medford, Oregon, 97504, the article is evil in both its content and intent. When first viewed, I summarily dismissed the issue as toilet tissue. Since then, however, numerous copies have been distributed by persons unknown throughout the true Christian-patriot movement. I intend to set the record straight and challenge J.B. Campbell, you, Ben Williams, and anyone representing the so-called "American Christian," or American Christian Ministries to make good on any of the fabrications you presented. As an incentive, I will deed to your Mr. Campbell all of my personal possessions real estate and property upon proof that even one statement of my rebuttal in this letter is not completely true and accurate.

Many of the non-Bo Gritz "facts" are extremely loose suppositions that are probably false in their entirety. For example, U.S. Marshal William Deagan was not on the Weaver property as a "sniper," but rather was there to conduct a tactical reconnaissance. I in no way support the federal government's action. They were wrong! But You and J.B. Campbell are also wrong! Campbell's comment about the government's intent to "destroy all White power movements" is reasonably correct I believe in as much as they possess illegal weapons and conduct themselves like terrorist. Campbell says on page one of the article, "THE RUBY CREEK SABOTAGE," that he was "asked to analyze the Randy Weaver incident." Ben Williams, you can answer whether or not it was at your instigation that this piece of yellow journalism made its way into the "Christian" newsletter you edit. I was at Ruby Creek. I daily briefed those at the vigil; talked extensively with Pete Weaver, his daughters, Kevin Harris and the authorities. I don't recall ever being in the company of a J.B. Campbell. Unless he was invisible, he wasn't with me and must be using the information I presented as a basis for his "analysis."

Campbell shows his absolute ignorance about Special Forces when he describes Weaver as a "veterans of the CIA's Special Forces." Pete was in Special Forces in 1973, but did not serve overseas and Special Forces is not part of the CIA—ask the Special Operations Command, Fort Bragg, NC. Ask Weaver if he at any time in his service ever "...was a witness to drug crimes allegedly committed by a well known Green Beret officer." Campbell and you seem devoid of any actual Christian ethic in printing such trash!

I was the one who called Gerry Spence and secured his services for Weaver. If I were trying to cover up for the feds, I certainly wouldn't have contacted the best possible defense attorney in America! Campbell says that Spence may have a witness who saw Degan killed by his own men. Spence says that is hogwash! Ask him—not Campbell noodle soup. Is it any wonder that the patriot movement has problems with credibility! I believe such reckless reporting through "Christian" publications as you allowed is one of patriot America's most treacherous enemies.

Campbell misquotes my book, Called To Serve. The fact is that I was "acquitted" by the jury. H. Ross Perot had agreed to testify not "that Perot and George Bush agreed, in the Vice President's office, to send Gritz to Burma in 1986." But as stated on page 428, "...he was present in the Vice President's office when it was decided to send me into Burma in 1986." Call my lawyer, Lamond Mills, in Las Vegas. Two women on the jury did say: "You have been in our prayers every day." Two men jurors did state: "Colonel, Go get 'em!" after the trial—my wife, Mom and several witnesses will verify this. Campbell lists these as "Gritz has been caught in a number of lies before and since his appearance at Ruby Creek." Very specifically it is Campbell who is the liar! Campbell tries to make it appear that my trial was a set up by the government—not to get Bo Gritz—but to fool patriots. Where was his sniveling face for two years while I was yo-yo'd up and down with court dates and continuances? Nevade U.S. Attorney Bill Maddox agreed to charge me when California refused. He followed up when a Grand Jury would not indict me in Oklahoma. The feds did everything they could to jail me when I refused to cooperate and keep quiet about their drug operations. If you think I'm one of Bush's favorite people, read my book and see the documented facts.

Campbell brings up George Brooks and POW money. Fact: Brooks came to the Florida training camp with Ann Mills Griffith, POW League Director. HeHe did not pay for our travel to the site. He was never told that we hoped to rescue his son. We were on a Top Secret mission to bring 30 confirmed Americans out from a POW camp in Laos known as Nohmarrath. I was told by Admiral Jerry O. Tuttle (DIA) to stand down because President Reagan intended to make the raid using official military forces. Our funds were cut off and Brooks inisted on giving $20,000 to the Special Forces Association that had accumalted in government pay while I south permission to continue the mission. I wrote a Top Secret memo to President Reagan which was delivered to his National Security Advisor the day Reagan was shot. I was told that Haig squelched my request. All the money Brooks gave was accounted for in writing to Brooks by the Executive Officer, Gordon Wilson. Colonel Earl Hooper and I confronted Brooks about his complaint at the Crystal City Stouffer Hotel in Washington, D.C. Brook said that everything was fine. Brooks is a close friend to Ann Griffith who has been a government POW parrot since 1981. Read my book for details why she and Brooks have tried to discredit our rescue efforts.

Campbell talks about Bob Keplinger and a 1992 POW mission. Read my 22 page statement before the Kerry Committee for correct details. Keplinger did none of the things Campbell says he did. The fact is: Keplinger was part of my team. Campbell is the treacherous one! My accounts have been consistent—even unto printing them in a book complete with documents and photos. Campbell calls me a counterfeit patriot. What are his qualifications to judge? What patriot credentials does he hold? What has he ever done to earn such a title? Campbell really gets onto thin ice trying to judge my Vietnam units (B-52 and B-36) seeing as he has no more time in a uniform than Bill Clinton. They were not CIA assassination units. READ MY BOOK! We loathed the Americans that engaged in Operation Phoenix—Read the book! B-36 was a most heroic group as was Project Delta (B-52). Campbell couldn't measure up to the bottoms of any of those brave men and women.

Campbell critizes me, my Dad, his dad, plus his own brother, for wearing the uniform of the United States. Campbell represents a kind of puke who bites at the ankles of real patriots and seeks status through shameful allies such as yourself, Ben Williams, and your The American Christian news. Like orifices. Campbell has used you to expressed a poorly qualified opinion—like many orifices, it stinks. What does Campbell, who obviouslt never served a day fo rhis country know about the CIA, Special Forces and men? My personnel files doesn't say a word about ny being a "highly trained saboteur and espionage agent." Campbell says "there is nothing in Gritz' career which indicated that he is honorable." How much must Campbell convey to prove how unChrist-like he really is. Campbell talks much about the White Race. He makes me ashamed to think that he is probably white. His skin color may be light, but his thoughts betray a profound darkness.

Campbell says I was brought up as a Mormon. Another falsehood. God hates a liar—so do I. My Grandparents raised in in Pentacostal churches. I attended a Virginia Baptist academy, belonged to the Central Christian Church and did not join the LDS Church until 1984. I have never said to anyone that I have joined the Identity Faith—even though I believe America is the new Zion and we are a gathering of Israel. I am first a Christian, second an American (which means God's Kingdom come to Earth). I do not work for th eCIA or any other government activity. I am the Godfather to a black child in Reno, Nevada. I do have two Amerasian children. I believe that Jesus Christ opened the doors to Salvation for any and all who would repent. confess and believe on His name through Baptism and continued faithfulness. I judge people individually, not generically. I believe Campbell to be a dishonest and disgusting bigot—plain and simple who apparently has little regard, or understanding for any one outside his own skin color. I'll wager he has never travelled overseas, doesn't speak a language other than his own and have never had to share a moment of peril, or distress with people of differing color, or religious beliefs.

Jack McLamb was with me at Ruby Creek at my invitation. Jack was wrong when he said that I had known Randall Weaver in the service. Randall Weaver had passed a message to my campaign staff some time before the siege. He didn't have a phone, I didn't know him and our travel plans didn't include Ruby Creek. Looking back, I wish that I would have some how have made contact with him before the shootings. It might have saved three lives. I was called in Phoenix by an FBI agent and asked to make an audio tape over the telephone. The agent said that I had been identified by family and friends as someone Randall might listen to. I made the tape and said that I would go to Idaho the next morning. The FBI told me not to come—I went anyway. We had to arrest those in charge before gaining access to Weaver and his family.

Campbell and The American Christian continues the prevarications by stating that I "...was wearing an FBI body wire the whole time." FACT: A transmitter was placed in my left shirt pocket when the FBI would not allow me to go into the cabin to get Kevin and Vicki's bodsy out unless they knew I was alright. I didn't tell Randall, but I did steer the conversation so that the FBI learned that Weaver and his girls weren't the bigots and hate mongers they had thought. As soon as I came out of the cabin, the transmitter came off. I was one who disclosed the requirement, otherwise Campbell wouldn't have know. I was told by an employee that the TV station from Spokane was monitoring over a scanner. I never left the hill with a transmitter and Campbell compounds his false testimony by saying that I did. Campbell says my "true role at Ruby Creek was to save face for the federal government." MORE CAMPBELL CRAP! Ask Jack McLamb. We prayed long and hard to be able to save what was left of the Weavers IN SPITE of the government—and we did!

Campbell, the caucasian critic, has the gall to chide my disclosure that Vicky had been killed days before. Yes, I wanted the crowd under control. There was nothing but trouble to be gained by inciting a riot. I was also complete and accurate in my briefings to those who stood vigil at the mountain's base. Was Campbell there? It wasn't easy breaking the news to Vicki's parents. It was hard to find the words to tell people at the police line. It has never been easy for me to inform loved ones of misfortune, but I've done it—even though the words may not be perfect. Campbell lies when he says I had a body wire during this and at any other time when not actually in the Weaver cabin. Ask Jack McLamb...or maybe Campbell in his rabid paranoia believes Jack also be a CIA agent and his Vampire Killer 2000, just a cover.

Campbell's anxiety attack continues on to accuse me of funding Tom Donahue's radio talk show with CIA money—ABSOLUTE SWILL! Please do investigate. I've know Donahue for years when he was leading a patriot movement in Texas, then Idaho, and Florida. He invited me on his radio show and I respected him enough to appear whenever possible. Campbell erroneously claims that my Florida campaign grew by $200,000 after stating that teammates Lancer Trimmer and Chuck Jones were touching American POWs. Another lie. I said that Bob Keplinger had reportedly seen US POWs and that two teammates were there to help. Lance Trimmer is a former LAZARUS Team communications chief. I have no knowledge of anyone named CHUCK JONES! We did get a contribution signed by a "Jeb Bush"—obviously a joke. Read what the real Job Bush had to say when queried. Charlie Brown caollected and accounted for a total of slightly more than $160,000 in campaign contributions. Per dollar spent, I believe we may have won the election!

Campbell says that I am about to be indicted for violation of the Logan Act. He could be right, but if he is, does that mean he is the real CIA mole since such information could only be obtained from th4 INSIDE??? Personally, I believe Campbell's BS about a forthcoming indictment is on par with the rest of his rhetori—don't you? Ben Williams, I don't know if any real Christians suppor your paper, but if there is even one, you owe that person a sincere apology for the ungodly story printed under your authorization as editor. One thing Campbell said that I'll agree with. He stated that I was woring against White Power groups. I haven't in the past, but if Campbell is a prime example of how they conduct themselves, I'm now a good candidate. From what I've seen of him, he meets the same criteria as those branded by our Savior as being liars from the beginning and children of the devil. How say you?

The final paragraphs of the Campbell perversions talk about my making such statements over the radio as, "...when I put my heels to the square..." I call Campbell a liar! Find a single time that I have ever referenced such a posture "...referring to his taking an oath to defend the Constitution against all enemies foreign and domestic." I call you, J.B. Campbell, and you, Ben Williams (if you support him) A LIAR! The article states: "admitted that he is a former Mason." EITHER ADMIT YOUR DEPRAVITY AND I'LL ACCEPT YOUR APOLOGY, SHUT UP, OR ACCEPT MY CHALLENGE!!! I am not, nor have I ever been a Mason at any degree. Concerning you "trojan horse," I believe you and your confederate to be the hind parts for the good reasons I've presented in these five pages. A UFO fruitcake named William Coper started the rumor about a trojan horse after I nailed him on a fabrication concerning the JFK killing. If he is your fountainhead of knowledge, I understand why you are so misguided. Concerning a government plan to insert me "into the leadership of the white racists in America." I wouldn't soil myself!

If any real Christians would like references as to my true nature and character please contact Reverend Greg Dixon, Baptist Temple, Indianapolis, Indiana who can furnish you with many authentic ministers of the Gospel that personally know me and are willing to share their feelings with you. You may also contact Rev John Weaver, Georgia; Rev Jim Lee, Arizona; Rev Allen Peacock, Georgia; Rev Campbell, California, or his son, Rev. Campbell, Oregon.

I am your brother in Christ
signed: Bo Gritz
FAX 1-702-723-5357
Phone: 1-702-723-5266

CAMPBELL RESPONDS TO GRITZ

It's hard to believe that a man with three master's degrees end fluencies in Mandarin Chinese and Swahili could produce such a document as his open Letter to American Christian. He should have spent less time on Swahili and more on English. There are probably more ways to express oneself in English than in any other language; it is therefore never necessary to resort to scatology to make a point. Gritz' open letter is proof that the law of diminishing returns also applies to higher education.

The main purpose of my article on Gritz was to ask three questions: Did Gritz know Weaver? Who asked Gritz to go to Idaho? and, Did Weaver know that Gritz was broadcasting to the FBI via his hidden radio transmitter?

Jack McLamb, the retired Phoenix policeman who has been turning cops around the country against the New World Order, reported on the Tom Valentine radio program immediately after the siege that Gritz told him that Gritz had known Weaver. In his open letter Gritz says that Jack was wrong to say that. Is he calling Jack a liar or does he suggest that Jack had heard him incorrectly? This issue unfortunately puts Jack McLamb in the middle and I am sorry for that. He is the only one besides Gritz who can straighten it out.

As to the second question, Gritz says freely that the FBI called him in Phoenix. Why would the FBI feel comfortable in calling him and how did the FBI know he was in Phoenix?

The answer to question number three is that Gritz neglected to warn Weaver that he was acting as a bug for the FBI. Everything that Harris, Weaver and the girls said could be used against them by the government. Even Jack McLamb has said that he wished the surviving Weavers and Harris hadn't been so open in discussing the matter. But why shouldn't they have been? They trusted them!

These main issues out of the way we may now examine the rest of the letter from beginning to end. In the heading and in paragraph 1, I am labeled a bigot and a lying coward. This sort of name-calling recurs throughout the open letter. To this I can only say, "Not Guilty." Well, okay—I am a bigot. But I'm not a lying coward. You'll he the judge. Anyway, Gritz rather brashly offers to give me everything he owns if anything in his open letter is not completely true and accurate. I'll bet Claudia's hair turned white when she read that. It was an impressive bit of grand-standing, you'll have to admit. I've heard of racing for pink slips but bluffing for everything you own!

In paragraph 2, Gritz suggests that I am probably wrong in many of my statements which don't concern him. For example, he says that the late W. F. Degan, USMS, was not on the Weaver property as a sniper but was rather just snooping, which the green bureaucrats call "tactical reconnaissance." Tactical recon, of course, is a preliminary step to destroying the enemy without getting destroyed in the process. But the real tactical recon had been conducted months and weeks before by feds posing as hunters, newsmen and real estate agents, in addition to the high altitude photography conducted by the U.S. Air Force. No, Degan was part of an imported hit team which was kitted out in camouflage and face paint and which carried pistols, a silenced submachine gun and M-16 assault rifles. If our guys were caught wearing that stuff and carrying that gear, what would we be called? Perhaps "sniper" is too mild a word; "hitmen" would be better. All Gritz can say about the marshals' murderous aggression is "They were wrong!" Big deal.

Gritz agrees that the government's intent is to destroy all White Power movements and he thinks that's fine inasmuch as we possess illegal weapons and conduct ourselves "like terrorists." Friends, this is why we must never allow a ward of the government such as this man to get anywhere near us, let alone to assume a position of leadership as he is trying to do. How must we view his term, "illegal weapons?" What, in the name of Patrick Henry, is an illegal weapon?" To me, a stolen weapon is an illegal weapon. To Gritz, an illegal weapon is one which only G-men can possess—after we buy it for them, of course. Does Gritz possess such illegal weapons? Hasn't he told us about training his boy scout troop with full-auto guns? G-men naturally don't want non-G-men to have guns, legal or otherwise. It makes them uncomfortable. His crack about "terrorists" is equally revealing. Our revolutionary founders were called similar names by the British Government.

Gritz correctly supposes that I did use the information he presented (at his 12 September '92 Tustin, California speech) as a basis for my analysis. If he had not exposed himself there as an FBI operative I would never have undertaken to write the article.

In paragraph 3 Gritz denies that Special Forces is part of CIA. I had written that CIA created Special Forces to perform illegal and destabilizing acts which were beyond the scope of the regular army and that is true. Special Forces is CIA's military muscle and it is foolish for him to deny it. He does say that Weaver was in Special Forces but it has since been reported that Weaver was a regular army combat engineer attached to a SF unit and technically not a Green Beret.

The Spotlight reported in October, '92 that Weaver was reportedly a witness to drug crimes allegedly committed by a well-know Green Beret officer while at Ft. Bragg. We don't know who that officer may have been and Gritz seems a bit sensitive or he thinks that he is the only well-known Green Beret officer.

The report about the witness who may have seen Degan shot by his own men was just that—a report from Ruby Ridge. "Noodle Soup" is typical Gritz-talk. "Chicken noodle soup" would have been better writing; it would have dovetailed with "lying coward." Still, it's better than, say, "Tomato Bisque." The last sentence suggests that I am one of patriot America's most treacherous enemies. Time will tell whose foot fits in that particular mouth. (Paragraph 4)

I must not denigrate Gritz' securing Jerry Spence for Weaver. He after all had to do something to keep his reputation as the champion of our side. He also had to secure the top defense lawyer in America to persuade Weaver to surrender.

Paragraph 5: How could Gritz have been acquitted by the jury when the judge dismissed the charge? Even Bill Maddox, the U.S. attorney whom I interviewed, admitted ruefully that this was the case. Call him at his law office in Reno. Ross Perot has not returned my call with regard to being present in the vice president's office when it was decided to send Gritz into Burma in 1986.. Wasn't George Bush the vice president from 1981 to 1989? You must admit that this is a fairly significant assertion by Gritz for it to be limited to one oddly-worded sentence in a 650 page book. Why is Gritz so coy about this alleged Bush-Perot-Gritz arrangement if his mission is to tell us what he knows about our rulers' secret dealings? It has always irritated me that Gritz has kept us on his secretive need-to-know leash with regard to his great store of knowledge. He has that inbred contempt for outsiders so common in élite military units and intelligence operations.

I have little doubt that Gritz suffered mentally for those two years while he was "yo-yo'd up and down with court dates and continuances," as he says. Many loyal government employees such as Gritz have indeed been set up, double-crossed and betrayed by their associates. When one joins up with the sharks he becomes expendable. We know that there are factions in government which kill other faction members for power and control. But they are all government factions. One faction was using Gritz and another was abusing him. Despite this he remains loyal to "USG" (U.S. Government).

Paragraph 6: I will give Mr. Brooks' number to any interested party, who may question him the way I did. Gritz misses the point of this accusation: Why didn't he give the $20,000 back to Mr. Brooks, once his DIA mission was called off? What happened to Mr. Brooks' money? It "was accounted for in writing," says Gritz. So what? Where's the money? Did Gritz and his pals in the "Special Forces Association" just keep it? What exactly is the "Special Forces Association?" Did they declare it as income? How about full disclosure, or has it all been "classified" as Top Secret? Mr. Brooks called Gritz a "scam artist" on a New York radio show. Gritz got angry and threatened to sue but never did. How could he? I've read his book for details as he suggests but can find no mention of George Brooks or the $20,000.

Notice that Gritz does not respond to my charge that he invited the Washington Post into the "training camp" and thereby sabotaged the mission. Mike Blair with the Spotlight remembers that ABC News was invited in as well.

Paragraph 7: How do we get a copy of Gritz' 22 page statement—call our congressmen? He denies everything, Bob Keplinger told me. Remember that Keplinger is a friend of Gritz and that their wives are best friends. Again, Keplinger says that Gritz revealed on television Keplinger's attempt to rescue Americans in Vietnam while Keplinger was there. Keplinger got home and accused Gritz, who denied everything until he was confronted with the video tape, at which point he apologized. This open letter appears to be a continuation of Gritz' pattern of denial of the truth. Keplinger is quite willing to discuss Gritz' treachery.

My qualifications to judge Gritz are the same as anyone's. My "Patriot credential's?" None, other than I hate our government which Gritz has served so assiduously and on behalf of which he brags that he "snuffed" over 400 people (p. 97..

Regarding the wearing of uniforms, I didn't say I'd never worn a uniform; I just didn't wear an American uniform. Gritz says that I couldn't measure up to the boot bottoms of his brave men and women. Ouch! That's putting me right down there in the mud with the worms.

Paragraph 8: Yes, I criticize everyone who has served our warlords starting with Lincoln. George Bush's Desert Stormzombies were just plain Murder, Inc. So were the ones who dropped bombs on Europe. Where is the patriotism or honor in obeying orders from degenerates to go overseas and kill people? Patriotism entails defending this country, not someone else's country. The uniform of the United States is the symbol of treachery and betrayal of White people and others around the world. It even stands for forced integration, at bayonet point, in our country. Honor? Please! The U.S. uniform represents an evil alliance with the Soviet Union against our eternal victim, Germany and her European allies. It stands for Jewish Power which was demonstrated in the U.S.-Soviet military kangaroo tribunal at Nürnberg. It stands for the mass graves in Panamá City and the kidnapping of a foreign leader who had been installed by CIA. It stands for a million German POWs slaughtered by starvation and exposure by the U.S. army in 1945. It stands for the Basra Road double-cross and massacre a couple of years ago and the burying alive of Iraqis in their trenches—Iraqis who were trying to surrender. Real patriots? The U.S. armed forces? Gritz should refer to Marine General Smedley D. Butler's book, War Is A Racket.. The general admitted he'd been nothing but an enforcer for a bunch of corporate and banking gangsters. Our armed forces have been used to suppress European nationalism. They have fought side-by-side with Soviet communists, Chinese communists, Vietnamese communists and French communists, among others. Gritz' precious Special Forces were first used by CIA to deliver surplus U.S. weapons to the forces of Ho Chi Minh in the early '60s, as described by Alan Davidson, a Green Beret who was part of that operation. He came home and toured the country to decry this subversive activity.

Gritz discredits himself in his book, his public appearances and in his open letter with his adolescent references to body parts. It has always irritated me the way that some pious Christians throw around the foul language but are so offended by a "hell" or "god-damn."

Still in paragraph 8, Gritz denies that his personnel file says he is a highly trained saboteur and espionage agent. But why? As a hardhat diver in the Gulf I worked with many ex-UDT men. The "UDT" in his file which he repeatedly reveals in his book stands for Underwater Demolition Team. UDT men are trained to blow things up. Green Berets are also trained to blow things up, as Gritz reminds us in his Bible-length book. He is not referring to knocking down old buildings in Philadelphia but rather to destroying bridges, derailing trains and making things unpleasant for the other side, whoever that may be. This is known as "sabotage."

Regarding espionage, Gritz' Officer Efficiency Report (OER) from 24 August '66 to 24 May '67 (p. 72) states that his missions in South Vietnam included "...area assessments and vast intelligence gathering activities." Look up espionage in Random House's College Dictionary and it says, "the systematic use of spies by a government to discover the military and political secrets of other nations." Good enough?

The fact sheet which Gritz puts out on himself includes the following (p. 15): "Intelligence Officer & Reconnaissance Chief, Delta Force; Principle Agent, NSC [National Security Council], Intelligence Support Activity." He explains on page 207 that this super-secret Intelligence Support Activity (ISA) was under the CIA—"The CIA would provide an umbrella to cover this newest member of the ever-growing American intelligence community." And he was its principle agent.

On the same page he says, "I met frequently with Jerry King and with liaison from the CIA, DIA and FBI." Jerry King headed ISA, which Gritz says "was destined to become a literal secret [sic] White House army. Even the initials were TOP SECRET/SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE because Congress did not know about it." This guy Gritz is really mobbed up. Do you wonder why I wrote that maybe we shouldn't trust this fellow?

Regarding his Operation Lazarus Gritz admits (p. 213) that this, too, was a CIA operation.

I must pass over for now the last four sentences of this complicated paragraph.

Paragraph 9: Gritz has the goods on me here. I knew from his 27 June 1990 appearance in Cedaredge, Colorado that he had converted to Identity from Mormon on that day. I was totally unaware that he had originally been a Pentecostal and then a Baptist and then a Central Christian and had switched to the Freemasonic Mormon cult only in 1984. Gritz says that God hates a liar, with regard to my unintentional misrepresentation of his religious upbringing. But what would Gritz' God think of his sentence, "I have never said to anyone that I joined the Identity faith..." Hmmm. This brings up the rest of the story...

Shortly after reading the original and longer version of my Gritz exposé, "Weaver & Gritz," my friend Louis Beam called. Louis had kept a very charitable but cautious view of Gritz since in this business we need all the friends we can get and we certainly shouldn't jump to conclusions just because some guy writes an article. But Louis was irritated. "Bruce, for what it's worth, I was with Pastor [Richard] Butler the other day when James K. Warner called from Louisiana. He said that Gritz had just made an appearance down there in Baton Rouge. Gritz had described his meeting with Pastor Butler at Ruby Creek during which Pastor Butler supposedly told Gritz that he hoped the feds would kill the whole Weaver family. Naturally James Warner was curious! When Pastor Butler heard this he said, 'I met with Gritz for about 15 minutes... I certainly didn't say that! The only thing I remember him asking me was, "Pastor Butler, what is Identity?""

"Now, Louis," I interrupted, "You and I were in the audience at that Colorado camp in 1990 when Gritz announced to several hundred Identity Christians that he was one of them."

"That's true," agreed Louis.

The Identity Christian pastor, Pete Peters, had Gritz as the featured speaker in 1989 (p. 489). Naturally Peters wanted to be able to claim this anti-Bush celebrity as a convert at that time but Gritz had resisted. By the following year, though, Gritz made the announcement after a suspenseful build-up in which he praised the radical concept of Identity (that White people are the true Israelites of the Old Testament), finishing with the Biblical phrase, "I am with you!" This was followed by great cheering from most of those assembled. He was heartily congratulated by the elders and welcomed into the denomination. He returned to the Identity camp in 1991, again as featured speaker.

On the last page of his book, 627, in the second to last paragraph, he has this to say: "The Identity Christian movement (Those who believe America is the new Zion and we are the gathering tribes of Israel) continues to build until its membership becomes self-sustaining." He doesn't mention the Mormons. He doesn't mention the Pentecostals or the Baptists. He finishes his book with this encouraging news about the growth of his religion, Christian Identity.

Moving on, Gritz says he does "not work for the CIA or any other government activity," except when he's working for the FBI, of course. His use of the word, "activity," shows how much of that ol' USG is still in his blood.

He is the godfather of a Negro child, which I didn't know, and the real father of two Amerasian [Eurasian] children, as I wrote.

Now I've already copped to being a "bigot" (the correct word is "racist"" but not the "dishonest and disgusting" part. What I always thought was kind of disgusting was his campaign promise to fight to the death for the rights of homosexuals. That crazy vow probably did him more damage than my article ever did. As far as his wager about my overseas travel, foreign languages and never having shared a moment of peril with people of differing color or religious belief, well—you better take that bet. Bet everything you own against everything he owns.

When I was putting my book together in 1988 I decided to put a picture of myself on the back, the way real writers do. Because I was somewhat critical of the other races and because I planned to be even more so in the future, I thought I might confound my detractors momentarily with that 1973 picture of me in uniform posing with two or three of my African askari. I'd been a member of the British South Africa Police. BSAP was the traditional and historic name of the Rhodesian police and we in Support Unit were occupying our time in the bush against the forces of Robert Mugabe's ZANLA terrorists, who were trained across the river by the Red Chinese. ZANLA stood for Zimbabwe African National liberation Army and its terrorist commanders were trained in Red China. I'd written in my book that I was the first American to volunteer for service in Rhodesia but I learned from reeding the late John Coey's book that he'd beaten me by several months. He'd been in the Rhodesia Light Infantry and we'd never heard of each other.

I only qualified for one little award, the Rhodesia General Service Medal, and I didn't even collect it when so ordered. You can imagine how much I wish I had it now, just as a memento.

Anyway, I put that picture on the back to make the liberals hesitate to hit me for my racist position. It sure didn't help me in this Gritz open letter, though. (He told a caller on a radio show once that he'd read my book and I have that on tape. He probably didn't look at the back of it.) Needless to say, the Africans under my command had extremely different colors and religious beliefs. Their religion was what we call "Witchcraft." I was there to demonstrate my deep humiliation stemming from the alliance between America, the Soviet Union and Red China against that wonderful little country which wanted only to be a friend of the United States. This sort of desire by any country is always the kiss of death. I was fighting for the White Minority to stay in power. For what it's worth, the great majority of the Africans wanted the Whites to stay in power, too, and that's why Africans outnumbered by many times the Whites in the security forces. Support Unit, for example, had forty Whites in charge of three hundred Africans.

Paragraph 10 was covered at the opening of this response.

Paragraph 11: This was also covered earlier but there's more to it... Gritz admits that he didn't warn Weaver that he was broadcasting to the Fanatical Bunch of Idiots who were preparing to liquidate Weaver, Harris and the remaining children. Do you think Weaver or the rest would have said one word if they'd known that, after what the horrible government gunmen had done to his son, to his wife, to Harris and to him. And let's not forget what the gunmen had originally done to the family pet to start this nightmare in motion (shooting the poor thing lengthwise up the rear end as it was running away from them). Those tactical recon boys were there to kill everything that moved. That's why they were so frightened when the thing went sour—and for what they were planning to do. Talk about "sniveling." Gritz doesn't ever say the marshals were sniveling, notice. He just says that they "were wrong." Pretty limp.

"I didn't tell Randall [that he was wired], but I did steer the conversation so that the FBI learned that Weaver and his girls weren't the bigots and hate mongers they had thought." Whew, lucky for them! Can you imagine how Gritz would have steered the conversation if I'd been in that house? He'd have just steered his way out the door, hit the dirt and yelled into his mike, "Okay, boys—let 'er rip!"

So the microphone came out of his pocket when he wasn't on duty. Maybe we need to hear that from Jack McLamb as well, since we have already caught Gritz in a few less-than-candid statements. Regarding Jack, it is now reported that he is credited with persuading the victims of ZOG to come out. It was Jack whom Weaver admired—not Gritz, who hogged the show. We must remember that he was running for president and he needed a national boost. He reported in Tustin that his Idaho performance got him a pledge of two million dollars.

Gritz says we wouldn't have known about the body wire if he hadn't told us. But then he says that he "was told by an employee that the TV station from Spokane was monitoring over a scanner." Oops! The FBI at the scene declined to comment on the subject of Gritz' body wire, so classified did the bureau want that fact to remain. Whatever was said in the cabin was being digested by the FBI-HRT snipers who had already wreaked such dreadful physical and psychological damage.

What has disturbed me and many others is the absence of moral outrage in any of Gritz' statements on the matter. He's been conducting a PR job for the government while playing the rôle of the Christian patriot. I think what we have got in the man is one cold son of a gun whose true sympathies lie on the federal side. The man is undoubtedly drawing his federal pay, either active duty pay or retirement, and that must by definition split a man's loyalties if he intends to criticize or resist the federal Government.

I guess the main difference between Gritz and me is that he is a life-long G-man and I am a revolutionary. He wants to improve the system and I want to destroy it.

Paragraph 12: My Christian friends chuckled at Gritz' calling me a Christian. It is ironic that my article would first appear in The American Christian. I am a simple heathen who rejects the God of the Bible as a Jewish myth. Ben Williams doesn't like but understands my views and we have agreed to disagree.

Yes, I maintain that Gritz' purpose was, besides politicking, to save face for his extended family, the federal government, and to keep the protestors under control. He doesn't deny the last part. Gritz was in Ruby Ridge, he was in Weaver's house, as a spokesman for the FBI. He didn't stand on his presidential platform and shout angrily that these federal punks were the blood thirstiest savages in the Western Hemisphere. He didn't tell the real truth to the supporters and the world that those sadistic jackals who named their bivouac "Camp Vicki" ought to be lynched or at least indicted for crimes against humanity. No. He just said that the marshals acted wrongly. That's what I hate.

On whom did he dump his real hatred?

> "Weaver himself is a punk," Gritz said. "Weaver is no hero. He doesn't deserve any medals. I don't think he was a very good Special Forces soldier. I wouldn't have wanted him in my command. He was very weak."

And, when asked to explain this disturbing, sickening glimpse of himself and his betrayal, he denied it. He lied. Again. Notice the absence of rebuttal on this subject in his open letter. Gritz is an habitual liar and typically gets very angry when he's caught at it.

Finishing this paragraph, I must say that I admire Jack's work among the cops and appreciate his V. K. 2000 with the exception of the racial material.

Paragraph 13: Donohue's former program director investigated Gritz' campaign funding and was familiar with Donohue's radio show funding. Gritz admits his account was greater than $160,000. His national campaign director, Jerry Gillespie, said in a letter to me that it was $170,000. Gritz does not deny that before he made the statement about live American POWs the amount was $1,600 and that after he made the statement it increased 100 times. Was he telling the truth or was it "a mere campaign promise?"

Paragraph 14: Gritz suggests that my assertion, which I obtained from a Florida investigator, could mean that I am the real CIA mole, since such information could only be obtained from the inside. Now this puts a new complexion on the matter. I propose that Gritz and I subject ourselves to polygraph examinations with regard to all matters in dispute.

Gritz isn't worried about an indictment and I don't wonder. He may not be completely bulletproof in this infighting between rival factions, but as his friend Gary Goldman points out (p. 431), he is highly bullet resistant.

The real substance of this paragraph is in these next three sentences:

> "One thing Campbell said that I'll agree with. He stated that I was working against White Power groups. I haven't in the past, but if Campbell is a prime example of how they conduct themselves, I'm now a good candidate."

That might be his way of saying that he's been doing it all along but we are all, now, officially on notice.

In paragraph 15 Gritz denies his habitual repetition of the phrase, "...when I put my heels to the square..." In my article I wrote that he uses that phrase and "...when I put my arm to the square..." He doesn't mention that one. I have audio tapes of Gritz saying both in his radio interviews by Anthony Hilder in Anchorage. On page 2 of the introduction to his book he uses the expression, "I raised my hand to the square." He doesn't address the matter of his Masonic handshake.

In his final paragraph he encourages "any real Christians" to get his true nature and character from a number of "authentic ministers of the Gospel" located around the country. The last refuge of a scoundrel is not patriotism but religion.

The material on Operation Trojan Horse was not in my original draft. I would not accept anything from William Cooper as I, too, consider him a UFO nut. A number of people who talked to me about Gritz mentioned Trojan Horse and I mentioned this to Ben Williams. We both decided it should be added as a logical warning based on Gritz' other inconsistencies. On this subject, Gritz did not address the matter of the cable traffic between the U.S. embassies in Guatemala City and Bangkok which identified "Jim Gritz" as an informant and operative of the U.S. government.

Really, what would be point? ❑

GAS GUESSING

by

Robert Frenz

If it weren't for the fact that Mr. George Dietz (editor of Liberty Bell) was "warned" (threatened) by a certain revisionist, this article would never have been written. Some revisionists, it seems, are no more interested in upholding a person's right to free expression of opinion than are the particular jews who launch law suits, bomb buildings and beat people nearly to death. I have said over and over that, relative to the Aryan cause, REVISIONISM IS IRRELEVANT. I do not attack revisionism because of its intrinsic nature, but because it is a waste of time and money as an effective tool for aiding the survival of Aryan people and Aryan ways. I have no quarrel with those who love endless historical debates but it remains a sad thought when one considers the massive amount of consumed money that has accomplished relatively little. Revisionists simply do not control the flow of information in this country and, as a consequence, their efforts will amount to little other than a parlor-game. They started off on the wrong foot and have danced on one leg ever since.

The whole holocaust nonsense started with a combination of war propaganda and the pipe dreams of a people who love searching for reasons to feel persecuted. As the story goes: The Nazis had an extermination program; they exterminated millions; these millions were sent to bagel heaven mainly by succumbing to the vapors of hydrogen cyanide via cans of Zyklon B, which was a common insecticide. There were absolutely no orders to this effect, or even close to it. Only a mental twit would believe that such a massive and inefficient operation (six million actually survived) would be carried out without written orders. At this point, people, who later became known as revisionists, fell into a possible jewish trap. Instead of demanding that the jews PROVE their ridiculous claims, they went on the defensive and became merely reactionaries. One of those claims was that people can be executed by using Zyklon. Instead of demanding that the jews prove this, donations from supporters of the ever-defensive revisionist crowd were used to finance the so-called Leuchter Report which attempted to prove that the Nazis didn't kill people with Zyklon. A fellow named Pressac bubbled forth with "refutations" of Leuchter statements. Jewish power axed Fred Leuchter and destroyed his livelihood. Revisionists, such as Paul Grubach, have "refuted" the Pressac refutation. And so it goes, ad infinitum, all because revisionists snapped at the shiny lure and went on the defensive.

It was stated in the article, which caused George Dietz all of those temporary problems, that the LR (Leuchter Report) was not very valuable, except as tranquilizer for people who have a deep psychological need to believe that jews are liars and simultaneously want to believe the Nazis never killed any of them. A true anti-Semite (jew-hater) would rather believe that jews never lie and the Nazis really did exterminate millions of them. I have earlier stated that the LR is useless as a propaganda device simply because those who promote it do not have access to the channels of mass communication. Internally, the LR has many serious flaws which tend to diminish its technical acceptability. I'll peck at a few of those in a moment but first there is another matter to consider.

The LR has been called a "forensic" report, that is, admissible in a debate or court of law which adheres to some set of pre-established rules. In courts of law, evidence obtained illegally (rule breaking) is not admitted. What then, preceded the issuing of the LR? Someone went to Poland (Auschwitz) and "removed" Polish property and brought it to the United States for laboratory examination. Since the "removal" was without the consent of the Polish authorities, this act can properly be labeled "theft". Pieces of the walls at Auschwitz were literally stolen. They weren't purchased; they weren't gifts " they were STOLEN. Thus, the LR was based upon stolen evidence and I am surprised that no one has yet been charged with theft. In any event, would an honorable court allow the LR to be presented as evidence knowing that its foundation was a criminal act? One must necessarily wonder.

The LR is full of mind-boggling roa poo. (Since there are different printings of this report, in which page numbers do not correlate, I can only reference items by using quotes.) Let's look at a few roa droppings.

(1) "The mixture required for fumigation is 3200 parts per million (ppm)..." (turn the page) "...for execution purposes a concentration of 3200 ppm is used to insure rapid death." Based upon these authoritative bits of information, we may now speak of executing clothing and fumigating criminals. Also, according to the LR, execution is rapid while fumigation is lengthy and with the same HCN (hydrogen cyanide) concentration! Wow.

(2) "This is a weight/volume of some 120 to 150 grams/2 cubic feet of gas..." This refers to the 3200 ppm of HCN in air. Now, 120 to 150 grams of HCN occupies a volume of 100 to 125 liters at standard temperature and pressure (STP). Two cubic feet is equivalent to 56.6 liters. What is this rubbish? If anyone knows, please enlighten me.

(3) "Some 100 ppm of HCN is fatal within half an hour." (on the other hand) "Rodents can be killed with 1.2 g/m^3 ...from 2 to 72 hours." A concentration of 1.2 grams per cubic meter is a concentration of 1000 ppm HCN. Notice that a rat needs 10 times as much HCN, for a period of 4 times longer, in order to be exterminated. Yikes. I'll bet there are six million surviving Auschwitz rats.

(4) An American gas execution chamber "...is operated at a negative pressure..." Since there is no such thing as "negative pressure" we must assume that Mr. Leuchter is referring to pressures less than atmospheric. In any event, the pressure is maintained "...at a partial vacuum of 10 pounds per square inch..." I never knew that since I have never been executed in California. At this pressure, water boils at 193 degrees Fahrenheit and HCN at about 63 degrees. This chamber pressure is the air pressure at the top of a 2 mile high mountain. Even if HCN wasn't introduced, the poor chap would be gasping for breath.

(5) The HCN pressure is "...2 pounds per square inch..." A volume containing 100 percent HCN has a concentration of 1,000,000 ppm by volume. A partial pressure of 2 psi means a concentration of 136,000 ppm. A concentration of 3200 ppm would have a HCN partial pressure of .05 psi. One paragraph it is this, another that. Make up your mind and check your calculator batteries!

(6) An American gas execution chamber has a volume of "600 cubic feet". An execution uses "325 grams of sodium cyanide". This amount of NaCN (about 3/4 pound) produces 148 liters (179 grams) of hydrogen cyanide (HCN). The NaCN is dropped into an "18 percent solution of sulfuric acid". The acid generator produces a concentration of "3200 ppm of HCN". Since the chamber has a volume of 16990 liters, this concentration is equivalent to 66 grams (54.3 liters) of HCN. I would estimate that twice the theoretical amount of sulfuric acid is used to produce the bisulfate (no figures are given). This calculates to about 1000 grams of water in the acid crock. This means that 113 grams of the HCN remained in the pot as 6 percent prussic acid.

(7) "After fumigation, the ventilation of an area must take a minimum of 10 hours..." (again, through the looking glass) "After fumigation, the gas may be easily cleared away..." Also, try this on for size: Fumigation, with Zyklon "...takes a minimum of 24 to 48 hours..." (another mirror trick) "Zyklon acts rapidly and drastically." Translation: If it takes 24 hours, it is rapid. I do believe that it is time for a drink.

(8) Using Zyklon, the "...area must be heated to an excess of 78.3 degrees Fahrenheit temperature..." (now you see it, now you don't) "Hydrocyanic acid absorbed in the carrying material develops without any auxiliaries, such as warmth..." Dumb, da, dumb dumb. My name is Joe Friday.

(9) One tin (can) of Zyklon contains 1500 grams of HCN. This mass of HCN gas occupies a volume of 1244 liters (STP) which is sufficient to provide (Mr. Leuchter's 3200 ppm criteria) a lethal atmosphere for 13,740 cubic feet of space. This is equivalent to 4 or 5 two-car garages (150 square meters floor area " see the Gerstein statement for a mention of a 25 square meter area).

The coefficient of diffusion for HCN into air is .488 square centimeters per second while the coefficient of diffusion into water is 3.54 square centimeters per day. Since I could find no information on the Zyklon absorbing material, there is no way to calculate how long it would take for diffusion to render a region lethal within 15 minutes. Someone slipped up on this one.

The LR report is full of foolish material which could be used as grist for a "refuter's" mill " which ain't me.

If we assume that an average "survivor" used about 4 liters of air in one minute and that an accumulation of 100 milligrams of HCN would do him in, then a concentration of 3200 ppm would suffice for an execution time of 6 minutes. This contradicts statements made in the LR itself. However, the LR contains so many internal contradictions that outside help isn't really necessary.

One thing can be learned. Arguments based upon papers, references, documents and dissertations are hollow arguments which have no place in the real world. Jews claimed that people can be killed with Zyklon B. They should demonstrate this before a live audience by using their favorite Arab. The revisionists should do the same, for their counter argument, by using anyone of their true believers. It could be a joint effort. Imagine: An Arab and a revisionist in the same glass box staring at Zyklon pellets scattered on the floor while the audience gapes in orgastic anticipation. If they both drop dead, the jews will have won. If they both stay alive, the revisionists will have carried the day. The matter might then be permanently settled but think of the interesting paradox if only one drops dead. Gawd! That's food for another open debate. ❑

RACE-MIXING: THE KEY TO WORLD PEACE?

By

Eric Thomson

The promoters of race-mixing would have us believe that racial differences are the root cause of mankind's troubles. The Marxists used to tell us that the root of all evil was "the class society", which produced 'awful' things like capitalism and fascism. Of course, the promoters of Marxism and race-mixing are pretty much the same kosher crowd, who are gifted with the ability to change their coats and their tunes at the drop of a yarmulke. Now that Judeo-Communism has proved itself a miserable failure in the territories once known as the Soviet Union, the kosher commissars have invented another bogeyman to frighten and inflame the Goyim: "racism". To avoid 'confusion', jew spokesmen emphasize that only Whites can be 'guilty' of "racism", no one else. It is a characteristic of those who wage war by deception that they camouflage their specific target under such general terms. No one has ever accused the jews of lacking agility. When one weapon fails, they quickly seize another and press onward. Only their target remains the same and that target is you, Whitey!

WORLD CONFLICT OVER THE AGES

The word "race" is applicable to one of the three generally accepted groups of humanoids: White, Black or Yellow. The "Brown" designation is not a race, but a composite, such as the mestizo (part Yellow and part White). The so-called "Red" man is really an Asian or Yellow offshoot. The true Indians of India show their racial mixture with their often Aryan features and exceedingly dark complexions. The so-called Semites of the Middle East are likewise mixed and are comprised of varying degrees of all three races. Jews are also of mixed race and, according to The Genetics of the Jews, a modern book authored by several jew hematologists, "even the blondest jews show from 5% to 10% Negro marker genes." Biological nations and tribes are subgroups of a race. It is thus incorrect to speak of a French, German or English "race". Americans are neither a race nor a nation in biological terms. An American can be any featherless biped resident on or issuing from either of the American continents. The reason for this rudimentary definition of terms is to distinguish "racial conflicts" from all other conflicts in human history. Are racial differences the primary source of human conflict?

When we examine world conflict over the ages, we see that race was rarely the issue or cause for war. In jewish mythology, the "first human conflict" was alleged to be that of Cain killing his brother, Abel. One may assume that the brothers were of the same race, although many tales of female behavior in the jew-book indicate a fair amount of promiscuity, so there might have been a racial difference after all! The only reason for mentioning jewish mythology in regard to racial conflict is that the so-called Old Testament is perhaps the oldest selection of race-war tales one may find. Race is the basis of conflict when the goal is the annihilation, rather than the subjugation of the other race. The caste system of the Hindu religion, which was based on the concept of "varna" or color, was an attempt on the part of India's Aryan conquerors to prevent miscegenation. But, as Earnest Sevier Cox points out, no law can prevent race-mixing when two or more races occupy the same living space. Because the ancient Aryans chose to subjugate and not annihilate the dark race in India, there are no pure Aryans left on the subcontinent, unless they are recent arrivals. India proves that there is no profit in winning a territory and losing one's race.

History records vicious intra-racial wars in which members of the same race engaged in fratricidal slaughter. The many centuries of warfare amongst the various kings and emperors of China; the Peloponnesian Wars which destroyed Aryan Greece; the Thirty Years' War which wiped out most of White Europe; the American Civil War and World Wars I and II; the endless tribal wars of Africa, the Middle East and pre-Columbian America; in none of these do we see racial differences as the cause. On the contrary, the viciousness of these conflicts seemed to be greater when the combatants were of the same race!

Inter-racial conflicts such as the conquests of Genghis Khan; the Turkish and Moorish conquest of parts of Europe; the European colonial conquests; the U.S. conquest of Japan, etc., were often vicious in terms of fighting, but these were wars of subjugation. Hence, the conquered continued to live after being defeated militarily. When, however, the goal of the conflict is annihilation of one or more races by another and not domination, we can say that race is the basis of the conflict. The Japanese were often quite efficient in clearing areas of non-Japanese and I suspect that America would appear quite different today, had the Japanese actually had the means and the desire to attack and invade the American mainland. The Japanese and all other non-Whites are being permitted to invade and conquer North America without the noisy formalities of military confrontation, so we may see what the Japanese would have had in store for Americans after all.

Most inter-racial conflicts have not resulted in the annihilation of the defeated race, so the indication is that racial differences were not the cause of the conflicts. Throughout history, the primary cause of war appears to be the desire for personal enrichment in the form of land, labor and natural resources. Religion plays an important part in bringing about many wars, but wars on behalf of one's race appear to be quite seldom, unless one sees world jewry as being the author of wars designed to destroy the races of mankind by getting them to fight among themselves. The jews always know that they are engaged in race war, but I am here attempting to analyze the non-jews' motives, and race would appear to be the lowest priority in terms of Gentile conflict.

The jews, who are all of mixed racial makeup, but who resemble their host peoples upon whom they prey, authored the two bloody upheavals known as the "French" and the "Russian" Revolutions. The slaughter of "the best of the Goyim" in each case was perpetrated by the worst of the Goyim at the urging of their jew 'dementors'. The Judeo-Bolshevik coup and civil war, followed by the bloody Judeo-Communist regime killed millions upon millions of non-jews, but aside from demonstrating the jews' omnipresent bloodlust, these so-called revolutions were really internal wars of subjugation, in accordance with the talmudic 'promise' that the "Messiah" would provide each jew with 2400 Goy slaves. The mistreatment of Palestinian Semites by the non-Semitic Ashkenazim also demonstrates the jews' penchant for enslavement of the host population. In this case, host and parasite are both race-mixed, but neither seems very peaceful!

The "Indian Wars" of North America were race wars whenever the objective of either Whites or Indians was to kill or to displace the racial enemy. The fact that so many Indians survive today and that their numbers are rapidly increasing disproves the frequent allegations that the Whites' intention was "always" to annihilate the Indians. So much the worse for the Whites!

The Spanish and Portuguese conquests of so-called Latin America were indeed race wars, in which both races, "conquerors and conquered", were destroyed by a consciously-adopted policy of race-mixing, similar to the later behavior of the French in North America. What sort of 'social harmony' did race-mixing produce in Latin America? Ever since the Spaniards and the Portuguese were driven out of these territories, mestizo has fought mestizo. The 'Conquistadores' will continue to fight the 'Indios' even when there is no discernible difference between one or the other!

The first openly-proclaimed racial annihilation program in recent times was in the form of the jews' Morgenthau Plan for the total extermination of the German people of Europe. Although this plan was only partially carried out by the jews' American and Soviet stooges, it was nevertheless a conflict based upon racial differences. The jews' clearly-stated goal was the total annihilation, rather than the subjugation, of the German people.

Subjugation and/or enslavement of members of one race by another are often used to 'prove' that racial differences are a source of conflict and injustice. What the promoters of race-mixing studiously overlook is the fact that any race which enslaves members of other races begins by enslaving its own. The White slaves of the New World were as much slaves as the Blacks who were brought to work beside them. Slavery has long existed in all parts of the world and it persists in many parts today, especially in Asia, Africa and the Middle East. No race has been exempt from enslaving or being enslaved, usually by members of the same race! Slavery is most certainly not the outcome of racial differences, therefore no amount of race-mixing will eradicate this practice.

Race war is defined as the displacement of one race by another from its living space and/or the annihilation of one race by another. The most recent example of race war is the annihilation of all races by miscegenation. Military confrontations are unnecessary for war to exist, as Sun Tzu and Clausewitz would warn us. Even if we refuse to fight, we are nonetheless in a state of war, a war directed toward one goal: our extinction as a race.

INTER-RACIAL MARRIAGE: A CONSTANT SOURCE OF FRICTION

The jewsmedia have recently proclaimed that the number of inter-racial marriages between Whites and non-Whites has increased appreciably in the U.S.A. Also mentioned is the noticeable increase in mixed-race offspring resulting from inter-racial promiscuity. Anyone can see the chaotic and darkening face of America by visiting the local shopping mall, preferably during hours when a White person is relatively safe from assault by the marauding non-Whites who lurk in such places. Remember, White Americans: your taxes pay for the spread of this racial plague, so don't point your finger at others. You are also responsible! The Zionist Occupation Government is your enemy, but you go right on feeding it. The Z.O.G. gives you taxation without representation, and it gives the non-Whites representation without taxation. How long will you play by Z.O.G. rules of "heads they win and tails we lose"?

Marriage and family life are difficult for most decent, honest, hard-working people in this declining century of the Pox Judaica. Even kosher sociologists warn that additional difficulties arise when man and wife are of different religions, especially when they take their religions seriously. Friction is compounded when the couple is of the same race, but of different cultural backgrounds, such as English and French. Add this friction and multiply with compound interest and you will have some idea of the discord facing a marriage when the difference is racial!

One ostensible "White" man complained to a fellow worker that his wife had become extremely difficult to get along with. When he came home, he would find her drunk and abusive, to the extent that she would throw bottles at him. "What do you expect when you marry an Indian?" commented the unsympathetic fellow-worker. "How did you know she was an Indian?" exclaimed the 'embottled' husband, "You've never even seen her picture!" "Simple," said the White man who related this to me, "it's typical Indian behavior." Because of racial differences, the Amerasiatics mis-named "Indians" have a disastrous affinity for 'firewater', which seems to bring out their suppressed aggression. Anyone nearby, including a fellow Indian, becomes a target for violence. Moreover, the American Indian is taught to carry a chip on his shoulder. According to kosher authority, the White man is 'guilty' for everything that ails the Indian, even the hangover on the morning after! Other Whites or almost Whites complain of the recurring "Indian War" syndrome, whenever their squaws feel thwarted. Even more pathetic are reports from White women who have fallen for the "noble savage" twaddle and who bear the scars of their ill-conceived marriages to Indian males. Unfortunately, the offspring of such marriages are double-damned to relive the "Indian Wars" within themselves until death releases them from the torment.

White females who 'marry' Black men are usually left holding the mulatto result of their encounter, with the Black 'husband' nowhere to be found. White women who marry Asians are also in for a rough ride. Asian men tend to be quite selfish and spoiled in their heterosexual relationships, as compared to White men. Asians are usually very race-conscious and it is unlikely that the white wife and her Eurasian offspring would be well received by the Asian male's family. Mixed-race persons are even attacked on the streets in Asian countries.

White males rarely marry Black females, although there are visibly more such couples than previously. Usually, White males prefer Asian females because of their smaller build, shorter stature and their traditionally submissive nature, which make the typical White male wimp feel 'macho'. This is a sad, but true commentary on the state of the White man in Judeo-America.

To a great extent, kosher-inculcated feelings of White guilt produce the hoped-for lack of White self-esteem and self-respect which foster this present plague of race-mixing. No one who respects himself or herself would lack respect for his or her own race. Why would we not wish to look, think and feel like our ancestors? Where self-respect exists, there should be no inter-racial marriage. Observe the poor posture of the White male or female when you see them with their non-White spouses and their gaggle of golliwogs. See how they slouch, slump and shuffle along, like tired and beaten pack animals who bear their "White Man's Burden"!

Mixed race parents are not really to be considered here, but in passing I note from frequent observation that mestizo and mulatto parents' offspring follow the Mendelian pattern: some look 'in between', while others resemble the original racial stock of Black, White or Yellow. Because all humanoids are members, not necessarily in good standing, of the animal kingdom, it is conceivable that geneticists may one day UNMIX these confused and sorry-looking critters, just as domestic livestock were CREATED by selective breeding and are maintained in the same way. Where there is life, there is hope. Human devolution can be reversed, once we finally grow disgusted with chaos, provided we are not destroyed by it first. In any case, if we don't do the job, Nature will, although She is quite indifferent toward the survival of civilization and humanoids on Her planet. Man's sentimentality makes him cruel because he suffers the nonviable to exist. Nature is kind because she kills degenerate lifeforms swiftly. In brief, Nature is Nazi. Jew religion and philosophy to the contrary, man can only learn to serve Nature. He never can nor should attempt to be Her 'master'. Our dams hold water and our cows give milk because we have learned something of Natural Law. The White man is one of Nature's best students, but he must learn to use his knowledge wisely.

Until the White man learns his 'Biology I' lesson, his civilizations will continue to self-destruct, leaving the Asians to maintain some of our inventions, like gunpowder, bronze, paper, compasses, etc., until some White explorer finds them again. In the 1940s the Chinese received two types of American steam locomotive which they have faithfully copied ever since. When 1000 years have passed and America is not even an expression on the maps, assuming maps will exist, it is likely that the Chinese will still be making such locomotives. Along will come an uncouth, uncivilized White man and he will return to his fellows with the amazing report that the Chinese have invented the steam engine! The White man creates and forgets; the Yellow man copies and remembers.

As I said to one American Indian of the 'Chip-on-the-Shoulder-Tribe', "Don't fret about the White man. He is doing himself in. All you have to do is avoid making the same mistakes yourself and this continent will again be yours." "But you are White," said the 'chief', "how can you say that?" "Just because it's true," I replied. As a White man, I say to you, my fellow Whites, that my prediction will come true if we persist in our self-destructive ways. How hard we work to dig our own graves! It boggles the minds of other races and mixtures thereof, just as it impresses me, for I am long past the point of being depressed by our racial folly. As Germans say: "Nicht ärgern, nur wundern!" ("Don't fret, just wonder!").

I wonder at the fact that my fellow Whites have so little love for their children and the race of which they are a part. By their actions and lack thereof, White people show their selfish indifference to the future, which is bound to respond in kind. An entire generation of aging Whites expects to be supported by an increasingly non-White population. Don't bank on that, Whitey!

All most Whites really seem to care about is "getting and spending", yet, the trinkets and toys which most of their earnings go to purchase do not seem to satisfy them either. What they are attempting to buy is happiness, it would appear, but the things which cost them their lives in work prove to be symbols without substance. Thus it is that most Whites live lives of "quiet desperation", which Thoreau noted even in early 19th century America. "America is the distilled essence of Judaism," wrote the German economist, Werner Sombart.

Fearing to jump off the Judeo-American treadmill to oblivion, in order to stop and think, these White fools strive to distract themselves from reality by entertainment fantasies and increasingly futile activities. What relief they must feel when the Grim Reaper lets them know that they can finally drop dead! Anything to avoid facing reality and the all-too-painful task of THINKING. The jews call us "goyim", i.e. cattle in human form, and all too many of us oblige by existing on the jews' terms. We consume, excrete and copulate when we are not being fleeced or slaughtered. Our minds are focused only on the present, with no past in our memories and no thoughts of the future. We are similar to the beautiful, thoughtless Eloi of H.G. Wells' Time Machine who were periodically 'harvested' and eaten by the jew-like Morlocks. Is this the existence my race has chosen for itself? It would appear so.

Our decline as a race cannot be stopped until we truly wish to live as White people. We must learn to desire a White Future for ourselves and our children even more than we presently desire that 'big-ticket' item in the display window of the jew-store. Otherwise, we shall continue to be punished for being derelict in our racial duties and for abandoning our great heritage. We will continue to see ourselves degenerate into a bunch of albino niggers. How much happier we would be in a society OF US, BY US AND FOR US! This is really what we are missing and the sooner we realize this, the sooner we can begin curing all of that which ails us.

EXAMPLES OF RACE-MIXED PEOPLE AND SOCIETIES DISPROVE THE PROPOSITION THAT RACE-MIXING PRODUCES PEACE

For those who claim that race-mixing will produce peace and harmony to accompany America's "Jew World Order", I say that we should look before we leap. Let us look at the jew, individually and collectively, for he is the example of race-mixing par excellence. Is any jew at peace with himself or with any other jew? Take a look at Israel! Then we can look at Latin America, the Middle East and the Balkans, all places where race-mixing predominates. Is this the 'peace' we would wish to see imposed on the whole world? Race-mixed India sends forth swamis who preach that they represent a people, a culture and a religion which are paragons of peace, even while the people of India are killing one another in riots over religious and ethnic differences. If you believe that race-mixing is 'the key to world peace', then there is a bridge in Brooklyn which I would like to sell you, at a price just 'right' for you! ❑

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear George:

After your publication of the exposé of Lt. Col "Bo" Gritz, I would have thought he might tone it down a bit, the obvious animus he holds for the Aryanist Movement. In Lawrence Patterson's Criminal Politics magazine for January, 1993, Gritz goes out of his way to mock Pastor Dick Butler, calling him among other pleasantries, a "moth-eaten radical." Now Gritz condemns white racism, suborns the Hoaxacost, gives his funny handshakes and is "on the square" as the craftsmen say. We must forgive his trespasses against us because we are told endlessly of all the sacrifices he made while in uniform, the uniform of the Zionist camarilla in Washington.

But in getting on Pastor Butler the way he did, he showed himself to be our opponent, not the opponent he claims to be of the ADL and the Zionist lobby. Gritz plays his games with the spooks in the CIA, which means that he dances with the Mossad as well. Saying that Dick Butler is just a useful idiot the ADL uses to raise money is the same lie the Rabbit Belch Society used against Lincoln Rockwell when they said that Rockwell was raising the ire of the Communists against Rabbit Belch and Company. Gritz and Belch, which Gritz pretends to criticize for its handling or his mishandling of the Ruby Ridge / Weaver slaughter, facts which Liberty Bell brought to us, lead the charge of those boobs who still think that Washington represents something fine and noble when in the "right hands."

Well, as I said in a letter today to Lawrence Patterson, I would trust Dick Butler before "Bo" Gritz. Gritz wanted Randy Weaver to pick up that motorized telephone at Ruby Ridge, the death machine the tricky Feds put up there to shoot the poor bastard, Old Paul Harvey wanted Weaver to get the surprise of his life as well. Pastor Butler does not work for the Feds. Lt. Col. "Bo" Gritz did and still does.

It is just as the late Pastor Bob Miles said to me so often: "Sinn Fein, Don; it's just us, no one but us."

Sincerely,
Maj. D.V. Clerkin, Euro-American Alliance
Box 21776, Milwaukee WI 53221

⌘ ⌘ ⌘

Dear Mr. Dietz:

I want to briefly comment on some remarks made by Mr. Robert Frenz in his FAEM and reproduced in the November and December issues of Liberty Bell.

Summarily put, 1) he told of having attended an ill-ordered meeting, 2) noticed with disgust that some were ecstatic at not being trod upon by a Jew for once, 3) saw that said Jew was quite obviously one, 4) stated that John Ball's book is no good, that he, Robert Frenz, is aware of better air photography interpretation techniques, 5) said that Jews are not to be trusted, as one ought to remember about the Kol Nidre, and that, 6) revisionism has not prevented the worsening of the Jewish domination, complete with the progressive instauration of its holohoax as a state religion for the goyim.

To which I answer that, 1) having attended the same meeting he did a few feet away from him, I share his judgment on it as enemy harassment is no justification for bungling what is under our own control through letting it degenerate into a very thinly veiled rivalry for the audience's attention between a "prima donna" who indeed talked only of his own self's enemy persecution and omitted the topic he was slated to treat while his "challenger" lost himself in details instead of offering an overview of his work with a few examples... 2) I concur with some indulgence for some kindly natures showing relief upon being proffered help from a putative enemy. Besides, having read Klein, Friedman, Kaufmann and Domergue as well as heard Burg, I know they stood their ground, on our side; 3) indeed, which has some propaganda value the same kind of public that Bradley Smith and David McCalden have excelled at reaching even though I dislike, to put it mildly, that part of that public be drawn to the horror called "rock" (among other four-letter words such as Left, Mass, Marx and Bush, and I was forgetting jazz) along side with jeans, miscegenation, the whole idea of seeking to go nigger for relaxation, that whole array of gifts from sheenydom: It is merely a matter of selecting what suits one and ignoring the rest when one reckons said rest is not too immediately dangerous. Perhaps in a spirit of mischief, I will even add that I met David Cole and liked him, putting resolutely between parentheses some of his obvious tastes, a response I also have regarding many of my Aryan comrades, as I do like some who are rock-loving, Lutheran, Lefebrist, "true Jews" or would-be such, Ludendorffer, while delighting in reading Dr. Oliver and always pleased to read Robert Frenz even when disagreeing; 4) I am not competent as to photo-interpretation but learned from Mr. Ball's book something convincing (in fact, several), of use against the holohoax, a book that exists. Has any alumnus of that Ft. Monmouth school Mr. Frenz writes about ever published anything on any of Mr. Ball's topics? Why the animus? A matter of Mr. Ball's inept performance during the meeting in question? But the book is something else. 5) Nothing and nobody are to be trusted unconditionally, with faith always pending further information, a wariness that not precludes affection even, at least for any like me who rejected certain beliefs (although I'm afraid I'd burst out laughing if I were labeled a "freethinker:" Stinks decidedly too much of Grand-Orient and all that). Of course, David Lane's asserted passionate atheism may be a Kol Nidre-covered lie, etc., although giving the scribes precedence over IHWH (yet another four-letter one) smacks to me of atheism just as well and makes me see talmudism as an atheism: He reminds me of one Paul Krassner, another passionate atheist, etc., who quickly, very quickly (in the late fifties) learned to cease laughing at rabbis, etc., however. Lane goes much further and would have rendered us significant services even were he now to change his mind. Just have a look at his video with the of course since dismissed Director of the Auschwitz Museum and see to what admissions the sight of a questioning zucchetto wearer can lead someone who owes his very living to the holohoax. This said, passionate debunking atheism is not the prerogative of Jews: See Dr. Faurisson... And I have been there myself as well and so have you, Robert Frenz, at least as far as the enjoyment of debunking is concerned, for which I thank you. 6) Quite apart form its intrinsic interest, revisionism's point for us is to free our people from the guilt superstition disarming them. I would not mind in the least seeing our peoples arming themselves anew in response to further invasion and debasement. But what if we are losing? I don't think we are but, were it so, challenging enemy big lies is surely part and parcel of the struggle it behooves us to wage to the very end, no matter what.

I conclude in begging for Mr. Dietz's forgiveness: such a long paragraph... And I am sending Mr. Frenz a copy of this letter's part pertaining to his remarks you reproduced.

In a spirit of amity for all concerned,

Miss J.D., Canada

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

PBS
1320 Braddock Place
Alexandria VA 22314

31 December 1992

Dear PBS:

"The Restless Conscience" is an hypocritical attempt to portray the German resistance against Hitler as heroes. While there was great risk in opposing National Socialism, the motives for doing so were sullied by the ideologies that drove them on. Bonhoeffer preferred Jesus Christ to Adolf Hitler, as if he could have had a government of God on earth. St. Augustine might have agreed with Dietrich Bonhoeffer, but in the real world we usually get either a dictatorship of the Right or the Left.

The German Army could not have been expected to rebel against even the Hitler Oath. That which Hitler replaced in the Weimar Republic was merely an interregnum between the Monarchy and Communism. Every officer knew that Versailles meant the destruction of Germany's ability to defend itself. "The Restless Conscience" seemed to expect the Army to act like Bolshevists, to oppose Hitler in the name of internationalism. Today the German Bundeswehr sits by whilst Kohl, Weizsaecker, and Genscher destroy Germany via asylum policies that Hitler would have died before permitting. And your piece asks why the Army supported Hitler?

Today in America there is a rightward opposition to the internationalist policies of Washington. This opposition is defined in FBI documents as being "terrorist." So it would seem that PBS sees the world with internationalist lenses, and nationalism and race, but good to support the mongrelization of peoples and the end of national sovereignties.

I would prefer Hitler to the cabal of sneaks in Washington. With Hitler one knew where the nation was headed. With Hitler the Volk came first.

Sincerely, Maj. D.V. Clerkin
Euro-American Alliance

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Enclosed my subscription renewal... Many thanks for providing a fine publication which outlines the perils of the fast diminishing Aryan race. If the White race does become extinct, no blame can be attached to you and the contributors to Liberty Bell.

Best wishes,
T.H., Australia

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz,

I have been reading with much pleasure and benefit your Liberty Bell during the past 10 or 12 years and have retained every copy. Am writing now because in the issue of January 1993 you have printed in the Letters to the Editor (pp. 50-52) the letter from S.R., New York State, part of which, on page 52, the writer states, "Beware the Flu vaccination campaign. Everyone who has been vaccinated now tests positive for AIDS."

What a lie that is! What a misleading and scary statement! How does S.R. know that "everyone who has been vaccinated..." His statement is patently false and is highly alarming. I myself immediately discounted that rubbish but a friend of mine—who is a devoted reader and admirer of Liberty Bell—phoned me from Richmond to say that she, having been recently vaccinated for flu [as I and the missus have been.—Ed], became greatly worried when she read the above-quoted sentence. I tried to allay her fears and I thought at the time that such a palpable misstatement could well bring consternation to any number of other readers.

For the sake of maintaining the reputation of Liberty Bell, please consider the following:

—Secure probative evidence from S.R. of the validity of his statement; [How about it, S.R., are you listening?! — Were you trying to scare all of us old fogies who received the flu shot into the doctor's office for an AIDS test, or were you thinking of the Swine Flu vaccination program of years back which produced a few fatalities? —Ed.]

—If this is not furnished, please print a retraction or correction.

You have, in Liberty Bell, achieved an extremely high credibility, but the inclusion of such a statement does great damage to you and to Liberty Bell.

S.R. seems to appear with great frequency and he writes as though he knows it all. What kind of a fellow is he? Why is he accorded so much space, and so frequently? Why does he butter you up by addressing you as "Dear Landsmann"? [Well, he is White, a Viet Nam veteran, a "Landsmann" of mine and a long-time subscriber to the Bell and does not "butter me up" when he addresses me as "Landsmann." He is also one of the very few readers who seems to "know it all," but obviously failed to jolt any other readers of the "Letters to the Editor" column, who do or should know better, into action and refute what Landsmann has been saying in the past. I do want to thank you, Mr. E., for taking the time to write! —Ed.].

I continue to admire your publication and especially the contributions of Mr. Oliver. The above is submitted in the kindliest vein [as, it is accepted here! —Ed].

P.S.: You do have the proprietary right to edit incoming letters.

Sincerely
E.H.E., Virginia

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Greetings, Landsmann,

A few comments about the last elections:

Bloody Bushey has delivered superbly for our rulers in New York City so that they would have every reason to want to re-elect him. However he is known to have serious and incurable health problems. Therefore it is likely that the reason that they had him lose was because they could not be confident that he would last out another term.

As for Perot, he has been hand in glove with the Jews all the way, the same as Bush and the rest. Evidently, it was perceived, and later demonstrated in the election returns, that a significant proportion of the electorate are getting wised up to the Republicrat political party monopoly, and might even elect a real patriotic American political party and presidential candidate if there were to be one. Therefore they are using their old henchman, Perot, to start a new, diversive, political party to head off a real patriotic American, Nationalist-Populist party should one actually be started. It was soon seen that far more people than they ever expected were joining the Perot ballot access effort with such great enthusiasm, and pushing it so fast and effectively, that he might actually win the election, contrary to their intention to elect Clinton. That may be why they had to have him drop out. Then they had him come back in again in order to keep their fake party scheme going, but too late for him to win the election. Now, he is continuing to create their diversionary "United We Stand" party according to the basic plan and purpose.

One of the tragedies of our time is that since the murder of "Hughie" Long about 1937, we haven't had a patriotic political party that got anywhere, no way to go. Willis Carto of The Spotlight started his first Populist Party in 1984, but let a man into it without checking up on him at all, and it was learned too late that he was a career subversive operative who brought about the demise of that effort by the end of 1985.

Then in 1987 Carto tried it all over again, but again hired a man named Don Wassall as office manager without investigating him either, and he turned out to be a party wrecker who succeeded in driving all the real patriots out of the party and making it entirely his own personal fiefdom. It is unclear whether his motivation has been personal opportunism and profit, or whether he too is some kind of subversive double agent. If the latter, that might explain the relationship between him and Col. Gritz who ran as the presidential candidate on Wassall's Populist Party ticket last year.

Ancient Patriot
New York State

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz,

These are not very "best of times" and I am certain shall soon become "worst of times." We do like your publications and await each issue. However, in the October or November issue one of your writers seemed to take delight in casting doubt on so many people or publications that usually write about truth or freedom of speech. There are so few of us and so many of "them" we should not tear apart our friends and allies.

We shall enclose a contribution to help.

Sincerely,
Mr. & Mrs. S.W.K., Oregon

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

I appreciate Liberty Bell very much. You are to be commended for your willingness to struggle on with its publication month after month. You will find a small gift enclosed to assist you.

Your February, 1993 edition had some space "filler" you could have left without. I am speaking of the article titled "PColet of the Gapes" by some chap who signs himself FAEM & lists his address as Box 433, Buffalo, NY. Since he makes a big deal out of warning us not to contribute to any of the TV evangelists, nor to the Institute for Historical Review either, I gather he is a man who doesn't believe in responding to any appeal for money from anyone. You'd better watch it, George, he'll include you with those mythical characters at the IHR who, he claims, are getting wealthy from all the donations rolling their way. I have been reading the Bulletin of the IHR for a couple of years now and am not aware of any appeal for money from them ala the televangelists. I know that you, George, seek and welcome financial help with LB. Are you different to FAEM?

That FAEM exercise, George, was the most disjointed, goofy, incoherent melange of poorly-written verbiage I have seen in any magazine...much less Liberty Bell. If you printed this article because, contrary to his advice, he sent you a sizeable contribution for Liberty Bell, then...please! put in a little editor's note under his name stating that you appreciate so much his generous donation. That way, we can all smile, wink and nod along with you. Certainly I have nothing in common with FAEM and no admiration whatsoever for his reasoning ability.

Dr. Oliver mentioned Dr. J. Harvey Saunders, late of Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri, in his article. D.. Saunders has the correct attitude.

Why not invite him to write an article for Liberty Bell? Professor William Shockley should be invited to write for LB also. These men could use pseudonyms to protect them from the yowls and scratches of the rabid felines of media and campus. We need to offer a safe forum for the inner voices of certain college faculty members. Do you have someone to explore that idea?

Your for Caucasian solidarity,
E.H.H., Arkansas

Following is a reply by that "chap who signs himself FAEM":

Dear Mr. H...

Thank you for your honest approach. I was taught that we shouldn't say anything behind anyone's back that we wouldn't say to their face. However, you have misled yourself concerning a few assumptions.

I don't sign myself "FAEM" or anything, or anyone else. FAEM is an acronym for the *F*irst *A*mendment *E*xercise *M*achine.

Mr. Dietz, in my opinion, prints nothing based upon any sort of "bribe." George is one of the few publishers who TRULY believes in, and exercises, his right to freedom of the press. This is not true of the bunch at the IHR. The "cop-out" during that Mermelstein fracas was a disaster for the entire cause of which you imagine you support. Anglo-Saxon law makes massive use of precedent and the "judicial notice" of the Holocaust, during Carto's run for cover, was used AGAINST Ernst Zündel during his legal persecution in Canada and will continue to be used in EVERY trial of this type from Canada to the UK—FROM NOW ON—thanks to this character who values HIS hide and HIS money above all else. Carto is not a "mythical" character and his residence supports the fact that he is not scraping together pennies, as does Mr. Dietz, Tom Metzger and others. Moreover, the grapevine has it that slick Willie (not the AR draft-dodger) loves to blow the whistle on any right-wing character who cuts in on his book-selling business.

Do you really believe that the erudite Bill Shockley would have guts enough to write for Liberty Bell? I'll wager a big bill that he'd run for cover at the suggestion. Is there something strange about the air in the Kansas of the Ark that leaves people in a stupor?

If you are interested in pleasant parlor talk, I would suggest the Wilmot Robertson (a phoney name) Association of Effete Snobs (Instauration) and Decadent Dilettantes, which, the boys in the back room call exercises in "pseudo-scholarship with pedantic pretensions."

Adolf Hitler and Lincoln Rockwell said it all in regard to the limp-wristed diploma crowd who have their heads so far up their rears they don't realize they are standing in manure. One thing remains to the credit of any Communist take-over—they shoot all of the lawyers and intellectuals during the first week. These people are an absolute hindrance to the establishment of anything and their mealy-mouthed orifice out-pourings have NEVER solved anything.

The jewvangelists have created themselves in the image of Zionist lackeys and propagandists. They are money-grubbers of the first order and deceivers of all orders. Buy a ticket to heaven, if you must, but remember that the train will never come in.

It is obvious that I don't like college types. This is from my personal experience with them since I have earned 3 degrees and several certificates of merit and proficiency in areas such as automotive technics and electronic instrument calibration. I was schooled at the University of Chicago, operated 2 successful businesses and won several trophies in drag-racing, photography and ice-skating (when I was much younger). The list goes on and on, but since your authoritative opinion leaves me on the short end, I must wonder where I went wrong. Was it because I took 6 regents math courses and 3 regents science courses, in high school, and won the Rensselaer Math-Science award for a 100 percent exam average? Or was it because I have 78 hours of under-graduate, and graduate, mathematics courses to my credit? Jesus knows.

My reasoning ability is horrid because I was subject to areas of knowledge and experience far beyond what was considered "normal", and I therefore became abnormal.

One learns about cows by yanking on teats and shoveling manure—not by attending Cornell.

And now for the finale—you are now privy to my real, real, honest-to-goodness, just as Grandpa spelled it, birth certificate, Nazi-sounding, social security name.

Keep the faith—
ROBERT FRENZ

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz,

The February 1993 issue of the Liberty Bell had a critique on Revisionism by FAEM which was very interesting and informative. The discussion on Chemistry was an education for me and I am sure that it will impact the Revisionists' position. I believe, however, that the Revisionists' argument remains essentially correct and Revisionism is an important exercise that is attracting loads of information that can only contribute to historical accuracy in regards to the Holocaust and World War II. It is clear that Revisionism has pried massive concessions out of the Holocaust Lobby so it is important to support the effort financially. The fact is, politics takes money and Revisionists have a right to make a living.

There are other errors in the Leuchter Reports that should be corrected. I have spent 30 years as Combustion Engineer for a leading industrial burner company so I am familiar with flammable gas handling equipment, explosive environments and furnace explosions. Natural gas (Methane) is the most common fuel and has some similar characteristics to HCN gas in that it is lighter than air and has the same autoignition temperature of 1000°F. The limits of flammability is larger for HCN which are, by % volume in air, from 5.6 to 40 percent. Methane ranges from 5 to 15 percent. The National Electric Code treats both gases nearly the same for Hazardous Locations. The code would rate a Homicidal Gas Chamber as a Class 1, Division 1 Location "in which ignitable concentrations of such gases or vapors may exist frequently because of repair or maintenance operations or because of leakage." All arc producing electrical devices such as a light switch or relays must be in an explosion proof housing.

The Leuchter Reports do over-emphasize the explosive dangers. In his second report he considered explosive mixtures in the area of steam pipes as dangerous. Steam piping in hazardous locations is common. Saturated steam temperature at, for example, 130 psig, is less than 400°F, far below the 1000°ignition temperature. Steam is often used to douse flames or fires.

The report is also concerned over gas migrating down the floor drain. Unless the drain for some reason pulls a suction, the HCN gases would rise and never enter the drain. It must be remembered that industrial engineers always design for the unforeseen or worst case. A prudent engineer would have provided a drain cover as well as a totally sealed chamber with explosion proof equipment.

The Dupont safety instructions for fumigating a building does not include any warning as to a possible explosion. At a minimum you would think that pilot lights must be turned off along with all power entering the building. The omission is puzzling.

The arrangement of the alleged gas chamber is such that an explosive mixture would be present directly below the roof vents where the Zyklon B pellets were introduced. There were no mechanisms to disperse the pellets horizontally so you can expect a plume of HCN gas rising slowly to the ceiling before spreading to the rest of the room. Certainly in the vicinity of the roof vents there would be sufficient concentrations of HCN to combine with any iron in the floor or ceiling.

There is also disagreement as to how much HCN was introduced into the chambers. Anything we say about this is pure conjecture. But it also is reasonable to assume that the chamber was overcharged considering it was probably some young grunt that was assigned the task. He isn't going to worry about lethal doses of lice versus humans or chamber volume less victim volume. They would pour in more than the required amount plus some for good measure.

In the boiler industry explosions are not uncommon. Many do not cause any damage and are referred to as "Puffs." If the folks start running out of the boiler room it is a large "Puff." When there is a permanent bulge in the furnace wall then you have had an explosion. The most you can expect in the alleged gas chambers with the correct HCN concentration is a "Puff." For a real explosion you need to introduce over twenty times the normal amount of Zyklon B, which is unlikely but not impossible.

FAEM takes issue with the Leuchter Report regarding the boiling point of HCN being 78°. What FAEM states makes sense. However, an engineer is not going to worry about ambient temperatures or the victims body heat. His design is going to work in freezing temperature to 100°F. To ensure the evaporation of the HCN most engineers would provide a heater.

Getting off the subject slightly, I'd like to comment on the holocaust propaganda that referred to "smoke and flames belching from the stacks at Auschwitz." Smoke can be ash, water condensation or unburned hydro carbons. If there are flames then the smoke is unburned fuel and there is only one conclusion: the boiler just blew up. Unburned hydro carbons to the point that they are visible is a very dangerous situation and a predicament that is not easy to solve. That is, since you are above the flammability limits you cannot turn off the fuel since you drop into the flammability limits and an explosion (a biggie) is certain. Flames out of a furnace stack is bunk.

The Revisionists do have a problem in disproving something that was never there. I personally never believed the story of the gas chambers. (I was 14 years old in 1945) because the whole idea (along with the Diesel Vans) was preposterous. There would need to be a reason for such contorted schemes. It is complicated, expensive and uses up important resources. It is a Hollywood script supported by Hollywood science. A bad "B" movie.

There is a lot of babble about the holocaust but then, that is life. We are forever bobbing along on a sea of bullshit. The best you can do is absorb as much information as possible and then try to make it all fit.

The Revisionist has been physically attacked, fined, and imprisoned. There are easier ways to make a living. I am not as distrustful of their characters although they bear watching. In every movement there are charlatans.

Fred Leuchter is a designer of execution chambers and as such I must defer to his opinion just as I would respect and believe (without contrary information) anything FAEM says regarding chemistry.

David Cole is a surprise. He produced an excellent video tape on Auschwitz. I had a short conversation with him at the last IHR conference and he struck me as straight. You never know and my judgment in Russian character has often been wrong. I have been swindled several times and always by a church-going, sunday-school-teaching, praying Christian [and I can shake hands with you on this one! —Ed.]. I have reserved the title of one of these "as the most putrid individual" I have ever met. So far I have never been cheated by a Jew, although I know of Jewish swindles but have avoided them.

As for Pressac and H. Auerbach of the Institute of Contemporary History, they are Zionist lap dogs happy to grovel before the Holocaust Icon. They have no choice but to attack the Revisionists or they would be out of a job—who is going to believe them?

Yours truly,
R.T., California

⊠ ⊠ ⊠

Paul Grubach
1228 Haverston Road
Lyndhurst, OH 44124
March 4, 1993

Mr. George Dietz
THE LIBERTY BELL
P.O. Box 21
Reedy, WV 25270

Dingbat Dietz:

The February 1993 LIBERTY BELL contains an ignorant, pseudo-scientific attack upon THE LEUCHTER REPORT and myself. The article is unsigned. Usually, intellectual cowards create unsigned aticles—they don't have the courage to publicly identify with their ideas. LIBERTY BELL likes to identify with the Aryan virtues of strength, courage and integrity. Yet, the editor—Dingbat Dietz—publishes unsigned attacks, a very cowardly practice indeed.

In a future issue of Jack Wikoff's REMARKS, I will refute the article point by point, and expose the author as an ignorant fool. It will also shown that the author actually vindicated much of THE LEUCHTER REPORT.

In order to demonstrate how faulty the author's viewpoints really are, consider these simple examples. On ages 36-37, he claims that I confused the terms "weak acid" and "dilute acid." This is patently false. An acid can be both "weak" and "dilute" simultaneously. When hydrogen cyanide (HCN) dissolves in water it becomes a weak acid. If this HCN/water mixture contains a substantial amount of water relative to the amount of HCN, it is correct to say the hydrocyanic acid is dilute. If HCN would have come into contact with the diffuse moisture in the alleged "Hitler gas chambers," some of it would have readily dissolved. This mixture could then be classified as a weak acid and a dilute acid. This was verified by a retired research chemist who is an expert on hydrogen cyanide.

On page 40, he writes: "...it takes very much higher concentrations of HCN to kill fleas than it does people. Here again we have another reason for one chamber having bluer walls than another. Higher concentrations are needed to kill fleas, bed bugs and lice than would be necessary for human beings or Bushbunnies. So there. My blue is bluer than your blue." In other words, baloney brain is saying the concentration of HCN used in a delousing chamber was greater than that used in a homicidal "gas chamber," and this is why there is more Prussian Blue in the delousing chambers than on the "gas chambers." This is contradicted by the Exterminationists themselves. Pressac claim that 12 g/m^3 (gram per cubic meter) was the concentration of the HCN allegedly used in a homicidal gassing, and 5 g/m^3 was used in a delousing. (See pages 36-37 of TRUTH PREVAILS.)

So, according to Baloney Brain's proposition, the amount of Prussian Blue is proportional to amount of HCN used. Thus, there should be more Prussian Blue in the "gas chambers" than in the delousing chambers—if the "gas chambers" were actually used to mass gas people. But just the opposite is the case; the delousing chambers have a far higher Prussian Blue content than the "gas chambers." The ignoramus inadvertently vindicated THE LEUCHTER REPORT.

On page 37, more hot air emerges from his big mouth: "Water remains as a gas, when evaporated, and never condenses until the 'dew point' is reached and then, only a fraction of it." Apparently he never saw the distillation of water. (See enclosure.) By heating water in a flask, the liquid is converted to vapor. The vapor is then condensed to liquid in a cooled condenser. This makes use of a simple fact of nature—addition of heat to a liquid speeds up evaporation, and cooling a vapor favors condensation. This has nothing to do with the "dew point."

Finally, his views on the behavior of HCN in a gas chamber are either misleading or outrightly false. In this context, consider this statement: "The boiling point of hydrogen cyanide is 78 degrees Fahrenheit...the poo-plah about this or that because HCN would condense below this temperature occurs in most of the revisionist twaddle in an attempt to 'prove' that 'gassing' was impossible without heat and a full moon (p. 37)." At the Mississippi State Penitentiary, there is a gas chamber for the execution of prisoners. It was built in the 1950s by the Eton Metal Corporation. The chamber was designed to be heated before an execution to 80°F, above the boiling point of HCN. The intake air used to expel the gas from the chamber after the execution is also heat to 80°F. Both measures are taken to prevent the HCN from condensing on gas chamber surfaces. The engineers who designed the chamber made use of this simple fact of nature (which escaped the anonymous dingbat's attention): "addition of heat to a liquid speeds up the rate of evaporation, and cooling a vapor favors condensation."

Exterminationists say the HCN was rapidly evaporated by heating it with human body heat. They then claim the "gas chambers" were ventilated with cool air from the outside. The cool air from the outside environment would have caused much—but not all—of the HCN to condense.

Mr. Dietz—you are hereby forewarned. You have every right to contest my ideas or theories. You have no right to spread any lies about me. If you publish any false information about me, I may take legal action against you. LIBERTY BELL has a lot of enemies—even among the political right. It would not be hard at all to find a lawyer to handle an expensive lawsuit against you.

Sincerely,
signed: Paul Grubach.

Copies to: Jack Wickoff; Dr. Charles Weber; Pastor Otten; Charles Provan; Fritz Berg; Bradley Smith; Mark Weber; Mike Hoffman; Fred Leuchter; Robert Faurisson; Hans Schmidt; Ernst Zündel; Lou Rollins.

Thank you, Dingbat Grubach!

Since I failed my Chemistry exams in school, I'll have "baloney brain" give you an appropriate reply (See below). As far as "you are hereby forewarned" is concerned, I won't stoop to your level at all! Be my guest; but do me a favor, if you should ever call me again, don't address me as "Comrade" Dietz, I should need that like you need another hole in your head!

Very sincerely,
George P. Dietz
8 March 1993]

☆ ☆ ☆

Jack Wikoff-Editor
REMARKS
P.O. Box 234
Aurora, NY 13026-0234
Ph: (315) 364-8407
March 8, 1993

George Dietz
The Liberty Bell
PO Box 21
Reedy, WV 25270

Dear Mr. Dietz.

Paul Grubach recently sent me a copy of a letter from him to you dated March 4, 1993. In that letter he calls you an insulting name and threatens possible legal action.

In his letter Mr. Grubach states that an article by him will apear in REMARKS refuting the article "HI HO, HI HO, A-REVISIONING WE WILL GO" from the Feb. 93 Liberty Bell.

This is not correct. I have no intention of publishing such an article and Mr. Grubach has no legitimate reason to mention my name in any dispute he may have with you.

I am writing to inform you that I have absolutely nothing to do with this matter. In a separate envelope I am sending a copy of issue #13 of REMARKS.

All the best.
Sincerely
Jack Wikoff

☆ ☆ ☆

Paul Grubach
1228 Haverston Road
Lyndhurst, OH 44124
March 10, 1993

Mr. George Dietz

LIBERTY BELL
P.O. Box 21
Reedy, WV 25270

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Jack Wickoff's letter to you of 8 March 1993 contains false information. He wrote: "...Mr. Grubach has no legitimate reason to mention my name in any dispute he may have with you."

Mr. Wikoff originally agreed to publish my rebuttal to the article in question—and I have documentary proof of this [I am glad you have, but who the hell cares?! —Ed.].

Mr. Dietz, my statements in my letter to you of 4 March 1993 still stand. LIBERTY BELL attempts to identify with the virtues of strength, courage and integrity. Yet, you—the editor—publish unsigned attacks on a fellow Revisionist. In my opinion, this is cowardly and foolish. And once again, you have every right to publicly contest my ideas, but you have no right to publish any false information about me. If you ever do, I may take legal action [Go ahead—make my day! —Ed.].

Sincerely,
signed: Paul Grubach

☆ ☆ ☆

A CHALLENGE TO AN INTELLECTUAL COWARD

Paul Grubach
1228 Haverston Road
Lyndhurst, OH 44124
March 4, 1993

Mr. Robert Frens/Edward Lee
Box 433
Buffalo NY 14223

Dear Mr. Frens/Lee:

In the February 1993 LIBERTY BELL, an attack upon myself and THE LEUCHTER REPORT was published. In my opinion the anonymous author is an intellectual coward because he did not even have the courage to publicly identify with his ideas.

Do you know who this coward is? If you do, please inform him of the following. I will refute his attacks in an article for Jack Wikoff's REMARKS. I openly challenge this coward to step forward and publicly identify himself as the author of the article. (Real name, not some phoney pen name.) Finally, if this person ever publishes any false information about me, I may take legal action.

Sincerely,
signed: Paul Grubach

9 March 1993

Dear Paul,

Thank you for the kind thoughts and "challenge" (to whom it may concern). I am somewhat perplexed as to what you consider to be an "attack" insofar as the Liberty Bell article was concerned. As I read the article, I noted that it contained nothing other than a capsule view of the testimony given by revisionist Dr. Lindsey at one of the Zündel trials. In my view, if you are liberal enough to allow me one, Dr. Lindsey was an embarrassment and a liability to Mr. Zündel, as far as the trial was concerned. If he were alive, you might, in typical jew-fashion, threaten him with a law suit also.

In regard to your referring to Mr. Dietz as "Dingbat Dietz," I take notice that all of you revisionist types seem to act like jews—through and through. Mr. Dietz is one of the very few publishers who really BELIEVES in our First Amendment. He has more backbone than the entire pack, put together, of lace-drawered wimps who cry, moan and want to sue anyone whose opinion differs from theirs. As far as I know, revisionists will print nothing that disagrees with their particular notions. I would suggest that instead of worrying about hydrogen cyanide gas, you might try inhaling some nitrous oxide gas (laughing gas) in an attempt to elevate your depression somewhat and stop running home to tell mommy every time someone sticks their tongue, in what you perceive, as your direction. In addition, you might try enlightening yourself as to the distinction between a value judgement, a factual statement and a statement of fact.

As far as pseudonyms are concerned, I was told that "Paul Grubach" was the pen-name of Guru Paulbach. Moreover, I am not sure if the person you are looking for is an "intellectual coward" or just a cowardly intellectual. Since I am not an intellectual, I'll refer your letter to someone who might be.

If the Leuchter Report is your new bible, then it might possibly be to your benefit to have it blessed by a rabbi, before snuggling into bed with it. It is just a pack of paper which convinces only those who wish to be convinced. I am positive that, in a courtroom setting, no judge would allow me to open a six-pack of Zyklon B, even though I proved that the ambient temperature was only 72 degrees. If the judge were that simple-minded, I am sure that the jury would seek the first exit at the suggestion. In all fairness to Fritzie, I would also have a diesel engine running in the back of the court room. Diesel notions are passe and irrelevant.

Hang loose! David Cole called me, and wrote in a letter, that he had it on good authority that "certain LA people" knew I was a faggot and I might have AIDS. Golly gee. Do you think I should sue him? Wonnerful Amelica—lots and lots of sue-age.

Hydrogen cyanide is an acid (as are all acids) by virtue of its structure. Water has nothing to do with it. Your statement: "When hydrogen cyanide (HCN) dissolves in water it becomes a weak acid" is false. HCN didn't "become" anything. It was an acid all along. Oleic acid does not "become" a weak acid when it dissolves in water simply because it is insoluble in water, as are a host of other organic acids. It is hard for me to believe that you ever passed high school chemistry.

All of your revisionist crowd acts as if there existed, somewhere, an etiquette school for that purpose, since your behavior is predictable and uniform. Was it the Revisionist University at Toonerville? You all seem to have graduated from the same RUT.

Revisionism is irrelevant! Every revisionist I have met has been, by virtue of his behavior, an enemy of the Aryan cause. Revisionism feebly attacks the state religion and the sooner they are buried for heresy, the less encumbered will the real fighter for American liberty be.

Pray and send money. I am always happy when I find people, like yourself, who support the right to express contrary opinion.

Best regards-
Bob Frenz

AN OPEN LETTER TO ALL AFRICAN AMERICANS

I am a European American who fully supports welfare and massive gifts to the victims of white racism. It is the least we can do to correct the wrongs inflicted upon your people by the racist institution known as slavery. We, the white Americans, owe a debt for all of those cotton balls which were picked in the heat of the sun. Without cotton shirts and underwear, it would have been impossible for this continent to have been settled. Again, thank you for all of those toted barges and lifted bales.

Today, I am troubled. I see hordes of Mexicans lining up to collect benefits and cash welfare checks that rightly BELONG TO YOU. The maternity wards of the hospitals are jammed with Mexicans taking up YOUR BED SPACE. Its an outrage. Therefore, I hope that all of you deserving Blacks will take the appropriate action to eliminate the Mexican blood-sucker who is DEPRIVING you of what is YOURS.

I wish you God speed.
Adolf—88

(Offered as a public service by Bob Frenzelheimer)

☆☆☆

PO BOX 433
BUFFALO, NY, 14223
11 March 1993

Dear Paul,

Today, with a little more time on my hands, I had an opportunity to read more slowly your emotional letter to Mr. Dietz. I am somewhat perplexed as to why you would want to refute, "point-by-point", an article written by one who, in your superior judgement, is an "ignorant fool", a "baloney brain" and an "ignoramus". Isn't that a case of lowering yourself to his level? Anyway, the author is known to me and I must reveal that he has gone into hiding for fear of his life. Whether correctly or not, Mr. X assumes that you are emotionally disturbed and that your threats are not to be taken lightly. If you ever regain your composure, I'll be happy to coax Mr. X to come forward. After all, he has no principles and can easily be bribed.

In regard to your "point-by-point" refutation, I am not sure what you mean by "point". Are these only the statements with which you happen to disagree? Or does it include all of the statements made by Mr. X? If the later is the case, then I am afraid that you have an impossible task before you. In order to help a bit, I am enclosing a piece of paper (revisionists love paper) listing concentrations of hydrogen cyanide vapor vs temperatures below the "distillation" point. Also, perhaps you could ask yourself why a substance such as d-13-(2-cyclopentenyl) tridecanoic acid is called an acid when it produces no hydrogen ions in solution simply because it is not soluble in water! I have several grams of tri-hydroxyl stearic acid (also insoluble) in my laboratory. I'll gladly send you some (as well as potassium cyanide for the bathroom experiment mentioned later) and you can enjoy a hands-on experience with a wax! Education is an on-going thing.

Let's assume that all of Mr. X's statements are patently false. Do you feel that you are the only one who recognizes this? Or are the readers of REMARKS so simple-minded they cannot figure things out for themselves? If so, then why would these simple folk be able to comprehend what you might possibly say? Perhaps the readers believe you to be Christ and therefore they obligingly accept your every word, unconditionally.

In regard to your "warning" (threat!) to Mr. Dietz about publishing false statements about you, what if these false statements were complimentary? Would you object? Suppose Mr. Dietz printed false factual statements which included (1) You have an IQ of 187, (2) You are rated as the sexiest man alive and (3) You own Israel. Would statements such as these cause you to have hissy-fits? Suppose embarrassing true statements were made about you, would your action remain consistent? Or are you only interested in adulation? You place Mr. Dietz, and others, in a very uphill position. The best approach would be where no one mentioned your name, ever. That wouldn't do, however, since your ego demands some sort of public notice. Therefore, if anyone is to publish things about you, they must be aware of the truth so that falsehoods could be studiously avoided. It is therefore necessary for you to supply a list of truths about yourself. Perhaps it might include things such as your height, weight, birth date, scholastic record, date of circumcision (if any), homosexual tendencies, criminal record, missing teeth, body scars, blood type, history of venereal disease, how long you can hold you breath, drinking habits, episodes of woman-beating, child molestations, etc. A list of this sort would be extremely valuable to anyone who wanted to mention your name in passing without causing your brain to flip into sue-gear. It's the right thing to do.

Your view of Mr. X is not shared by others. He was awarded the Rensselaer Polytechnic Math-Science Award when he was 14 years old. He completed 6 regents math courses in high school with a 100 on each exam. This was continued during his college days with 100s in analytical geometry, differential equations and number theory. Also, in high school, he finished 3 regents level science courses, again with a 100 percent average. A former chemistry professor of his, Dr. Harold Urey (Nobel Prize 1936 - heavy water) never called him an ignoramus. After completing a 3 hour math exam in 23 minutes, Dr. McLouth never called him "baloney brain". Upon the submission of an amazing, and ingenious, 192 byte computer program for computing π to 20,000 places in record time, Dr. Zachariasen never called him an "ignorant fool". But then again, what do those jerks at the University of Chicago know? I could go on and on, but it would only demonstrate that the world is full of fools who think that Mr. X is definitely not a fool. But, that is the beauty of "revisionism" " it makes gods out of its adherents and allows them to sit in judgement and declare "truth".

Arguments, debates and refutations never accomplished anything. They are only vocabulary exercises. It is one thing to bellow that you are an expert in apple growing, and have a degree to that effect, and quite another to actually prove it by growing an apple. I suggest that you place your cyanide where your nose is. Carry a pail of battery acid, or muriatic acid, into your bathroom and lock the door. Then, toss a fistful of potassium cyanide into the bucket and breathe away. If you make sure that the room is cold, then you will have nothing to worry about since the HCN will be condensing all over the walls. ¿No es verdad? If you are also a believer in the diesel-exhaust-gas-is-harmless notion (version 2: carbon dioxide = fresh air), then I have another experiment I'd like you to perform.

Revisionists are a hilarious lot, especially when they are fleecing the flock. Suppose Abe Goldswanz was an "eye-witness" to an event which involved two Nazis stuffing a hose into the rectum of a "survivor"; filling him up with helium and then using the floating body for target practice. Upon receiving this information, revisionists would immediately launch an investigation which might result in "proving" that a body cannot hold enough helium to enable it to float in air. This would necessarily be based upon "references" as revisionists have an aversion to actually trying anything. In addition, they probably would have "discovered" "documents" which show the Nazis didn't have helium in the first place. Whoopee. Revisionists are merely reactionaries.

Anyone who dabbles in the concentration camp gossip stories cannot help but notice the structural similarity to Rube Goldberg inventions. Rube, as you know, devised 'round-about and lengthy operations in order to achieve an otherwise simple objective. This is lost upon revisionists who, for some reason, waste their time trying to "prove" (convince others!) that Mr. Goldberg's apparatus could not have done what it was supposed to do. I lost several, and close, childhood friends during WW II and am familiar with the simple ways in which fighting men dispose of each other and innocents. Dick Wilkes simply ran over surrendering German soldiers with his tank. Gene Elmore used Japanese prisoners as target practice. The Soviets executed tens of thousands with pistols. It is so unlikely that the Germans would imitate Rube Goldberg, in order to dispatch a few six-pointers, that I'm surprised when I hear about people actually believing they did. Jews simply took the Goldberg route for their tale telling " it's in their blood. Believe it or not. That's what it is all about anyway " belief.

Many, many people assume that tossing their life savings into some revisionist cause will secure the future of the Western world. This is pure delusion as the scattered carcasses of Faurisson, Leuchter, Zündel, etc. all demonstrate. Holocaust shrines and theme parks are still being erected on schedule. Unless revisionists secure the political power necessary to control the media and mass education, revisionism will forever be a parlor game which wastes the resources of decent people and fattens the cats who promote it. An honest revisionist would give them their money back and go find virtuous employment, for a change. One must never forget, that revisionism is only a historical debate over events long past, and hence useless, since no one learned from it and few people care anyway. Revisionism is irrelevant.

Yours in Christ,
Bob Frenz

cc:

Bradley Smith
Egbert Souse, PhD
Eric Thomson
Ernst Zündel
Winston Smith
Otis Guelpe, LLD
Sneed Hearn, SPCA
Figley E. Whitesides, MS
Hyman Gervertz, ADL
Mahatma Kane Jeeves
George Dietz
Jack Wikoff
Charles Provan
Lou Rollins
Sue Rollins
Bart Meddler, BS, SB
Solomon He Chu
Shawn Tiffany
Otis Criblecobis, PhD
Dr. Larson E. Whipsnade
Juan Ferromaños, BTF
Lyle Kurasaki, FBI
Major Rubin Berg, USA, Ret.
Minor Robin Burg, USN, Ret.
Hillary Redman Closetdyke
Mr. Bater
Mrs. Bater
Miss Bater
Master Bater
Clyde Bonney
Bonnie N. Clyde
John Dillinger, LSMFT

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Sir:

Re: Vol. 20 #6 Feb. issue
FAEM's Planet of the Gapes

As a long time "fan" and reader of the "Bell" I was absolutely flabbergasted to read the asinine article captioned above. So entirely diametrical opposed to the long time policy of the "Bell." Who is the horses neck that is known as FAEM? If he had an ounce of intelligence he would know that the so called "Holohoax" was physical impossibility—forget any moral issues. He just might research the world almanacs or the Jewish Encyclopedia (the numbers differ only by some 2000) and learn that if Hitler had all the Jews available there would be only 4.5 million. He could further learn from the present German government that—with a gun to their head—we forced Germany to compensate the Jews who were mistreated or their kin run through the gas ovens and he would learn that 4,650,000 plus have been compensated. Now just where in the hxxl did they come from? The proof that the "Holohoax" is without doubt one of the greatest, if not the greatest, lie ever told in human history. He just might find he owes an apology to the revisionists and everyone else who read his nonsense.

I am not "mad" at Liberty Bell—far from it, but why that above asinine FAEM drivel?

Yours,
H.N.H., Arkansas

[Thank you for writing, Mr. H. —To answer your question, what with all those Letters to the Editor coming in after almost 20 years, stuffed with pats on my back, praise, and dollar bills, the Letters to the Editor pages were growing duller and duller by the month. I finally seem to have found the right formula to get the Letters section out of the doldrums by putting a little bit of controversy—in the form of "asinine FAEM drivel" etc.—on the front burner giving "baloney head" (see above) the chance to voice his 'crazy' ideas, and giving you the chance to tell him where to go with his 'crazy' ideas. Isn't that what Freedom of Speech is all about? Meanwhile, readers, disgruntled or not, as the old lush, Dino Martin, would say, keep those cards and letters coming! Thanks again, Mr. H., for writing. —Ed.]

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

I have just read Liberty Bell for January 1993. I think that J.B. Campbell has the right stuff/guts in himself to be the new leader for you folks over there. I especially liked what he wrote on the upper half of page 30. That insight (yeah, (Erkenntnis) Sündenbekenntnis der amerikanischen Nation) is just what I have missed in other prospective leaders: Duke, Metzger et all. (Sorry for W.M., Texas, page 53) writing eulogies for Schönhuber. Schönhuber is a renegade married to a Jewess and therefore NOT the guy to "bring about a resurrection of the German soul" (in spite of his otherwise correct viewpoints).

I enclose copy of a letter to The Spotlight. Please print it in Liberty Bell; I do not think that Spotlight will dare to print it. It is useful for our cause to discredit trash like Carrington who, by the way, is a Kike (which I did not mention in my letter).

Yours nationalsocialistically,
O.M., Norway

To the Editor
The Spotlight
300 Independence Ave SE
Washington DC 20003 USA

Osteras, 18 February 1993

Dear Editor:

We here in Norway have read about the grotesque sex crimes in the U.S. (The Spotlight, June 1st, 1992). It seems that you have got the perverts firmly entrenched in that infamous "Establishment" of yours. Yet, also on the international scene the perverts are popping up. I just heard a story told by a Norwegian luxus call girl who had worked as a so-called "escort girl" in London. Now she was seeking psychiatric treatment here in Oslo (the Capital of Norway) because of her dire experiences. —The worst customer she has had, she told, was no one less than Lord Carrington (of Bilderberger fame!) who demanded very special services. Well, special? It was just the infamous routine of S/M, whippings, leather-style and all. The last heard of as for Carrington was his pro-Serb peace-mission in former Yugoslavia, where he did what he could in order to delay a reasonable solution. Perhaps he grew "hot" by what he did experience there.

O.M., Norway

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George,

Enclosed is my renewal for another great year of the Liberty Bell. I've also enclosed a duplicate amount as a donation which you may use where you see fit (perhaps a subscription to one of our white brothers currently a guest in one of ZOG's institutions?), you be the judge, George, as you know the needs better than I do.

I enjoyed my all too brief visit with you last October; hopefully, time will permit me another visit sometime.

On a serious note, I've been getting mailings from Harold Covington of his Resistance newsletter which has been making some very serious charges against a great man in this movement, your neighbor practically in West Virginia, Dr. William L. Pierce.

The basic gist of Covington's attacks against Dr. Pierce and the National Alliance is that Dr. Pierce hired one Will White Williams who was formerly with Ben Klassen's Church of the Creator in Otto, N.C. and that Klassen is really a Jew who has homosexually raped young white men in his Movement and that Will Williams knew this and did nothing. It's even been suggested that Will Williams has somehow "taken over" the Alliance and pushed Dr. Pierce into the background (or worse). This is total B.S. I visited the National Alliance offices in Hillsboro the same day I visited you; I met both Will Williams and Dr. Pierce and nothing was at all out of the ordinary or strange about the goings on there; they even invited me to stay for dinner! I bring all this up because I know in the past you have published articles by Harold Covington which it is certainly your right to do. I would ask you, then, George, to decline anything of Covington's that contains these vicious attacks on Dr. Pierce and the National Alliance. Why Covington is doing this, I don't know...

For White Victory
M.R., New Jersey

[Dear M.R.: Thanks a lot for your subscription renewal, and also for the extra funds you sent which will be used to continue the sub for Tyler Turner who is presently enjoying plush accommodations in a ZOG hotel in Texas.

Regarding the writings coming from Dixie Press, Box 37001, Raleigh NC 27627-7001, well, Harold Covington is the writer / publisher / distributor of the Resistance newsletter with which he exercises his right to freedom of speech and voices his opinions on controversial issues. Since I do not have the time, personnel, or other resources to prove or disprove anything that comes my way from Dixie Press, I refrain from voicing any opinion in Liberty Bell, and leave the investigating and the proving or disproving to you and anyone else who so desires.

I know Dr. Pierce, Ben Klassen, and also Harold Covington personally. I know OF Will Williams, whom you might ask to refrain from writing me silly letters, as he did a few years ago when still employed at the world headquarters of the Church of the Creator, Otto, NC., threatening to put me out of business if I didn't desist from publishing any of that horned & tailed Devil Covington's material, and as he did quite recently from his new home in West Virginia.

At any rate, thanks, M.R., for writing and expressing your opinions. — Ed.]

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

Just want you to know at least the Western U.S. is being saturated with Campbell's article, "Weaver and Gritz," in recent Liberty Bell. This includes Criminal Politics—Patterson will "talk" to Gritz again (for whatever good that will do). Fortunately they are familiar with Liberty Bell—and John Campbell. Great!

Enclosed is a donation to use as you see fit. Give 'em Hell!

Sincerely,
Mrs. E.S., Oregon

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz — Grüß Gott!

I would like to thank you for the complimentary copy of the Liberty Bell. The timing was uncanny as I received it the day after I was placed in the hole for violation of "Rule #4—Escape, attempted." It seems a friend and I got lost in a snowstorm on the way to recreation—don't ask us how we missed that first fence... Needless to say, I thoroughly enjoyed the issue I received while confined to "strip cell." Standing around in nothing but my boxer shorts dramatically increased its entertainment value. While there is no way I could possibly afford to subscribe to your most enjoyable publication, I do thank you for your consideration in sending me this copy.

Yours in the fight for all that's White & Right.
Christ, Race, Faith — Blood, Soil, Honor.

David Tate W/155209
Rte 2, Box 2222 (2C-24), Mineral Point MO 63660

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, unifying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 including postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

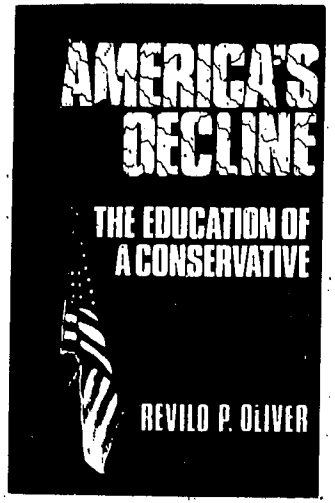
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congolds unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intelleotual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

Did 6 Million Really Die?

Book Review
By Dr. Charles E. Weber
page 1

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Bob Frenz
Lavender Blew, page 12;
Mileage Out of Creeps, page 13;
Rochester, page 14;
Convalescence, page 14.

Allan Callahan
"Turning the Bones" on Madagascar, page 30.

J.B. Campbell
Courage, page 34.

Jack Jones
An Open Letter to
Dr. J. Clayton Lafferty, page 51.

VOL. 20 - NO. 9 MAY 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

BOOK REVIEW

Barbara Kulaszka (editor), foreword by Dr. Robert Faurisson, Did Six Million Really Die? / Report of the Evidence in the Canadian 'False News' Trial of Ernst Zündel - 1988. 8 + 564 pages, 28 x 21 1/2 centimeters; many illustrations. Available from Samisdat Publishers Ltd., 206 Carlton Street, Toronto, Ontario M5A 2L1, Canada; Phone: 416-922-9850.

By
Dr. Charles E. Weber

As a result of publishing a small book, Did Six Million Really Die? (reproduced on pages 505 ff.), Ernst Zündel, a German-born commercial artist residing in Toronto, was charged with violating section 177 of the Criminal Code of Canada, which provides:

> Every one who wilfully publishes a statement, tale or news that he knows is false and that causes or is likely to cause injury or mischief to a public interest is guilty of an indictable offense and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

This law had seldom been applied in its long existence. In 1985 and 1988 two long trials by jury took place. They are among the most significant trials in North American legal history and provide a valuable source for historians.

As one of the defence witnesses in the first trial I had an opportunity to observe members of the jury, which consisted mostly of rather old men, some of whom must have been veterans of the Second World War (as I am). For me, the trials of Ernst Zündel had a bearing on my own experiences in life, for I had been involved in the Allied "denazification" following the war.

I know from my own experiences and observations that most veterans of the Second World War have a tendency to want to believe that their sacrifices and those of their contemporaries were for a good cause and that they were involved in a "good war" in spite of our alliance with and strong support of one of the most evil regimes in the history of mankind, the government of Stalin, which had ruthlessly murdered millions of its own people, even before the war. Believing the "Holocaust" tales is thus a psychological compulsion for typical Canadian, American and British veterans of the Second World War.

In a broader sphere, the desire to believe in the ethical inferiority of our adversary in the war, National Socialist Germany, in a war which required great national sacrifices, is no doubt a factor that favors the ready, seldom-questioned acceptance of the "Holocaust" accounts and tales, fantastic and improbable though they might seem to an unprejudiced examiner. The sentences imposed on Ernst Zündel (later revoked by higher courts) were dependent on opinions of members of a jury consisting of Canadian citizens selected more or less at random. In assessing the verdicts in the trials of Ernst Zündel we must bear in mind the atmosphere in which they were conducted.

The trials, however, provide a unique opportunity for historians who wish to be objective to examine the "Holocaust" material, since they involve a juxtaposition of opinions of advocates of what might be called the Extermination Thesis, a thesis which even today has an important influence on American thought, policy and even legislation in a number of areas. The "Holocaust" question is certainly one of the most important questions with which an historian can concern himself. The first trial, but not the second, received a great deal of attention in the Canadian press and television. The media in the United States paid virtually no attention to the trials.

This massive book is an admirable and valuable attempt to summarize what was brought out by historians with opposing views on the "Holocaust" during trial in which the usual rules of evidence were supposed to prevail, quite in contrast to the Nuremberg trials of 1945-1946. Furthermore, the book supplements the evidence brought out in the trials with new developments on the "Holocaust" question that have taken place since 1988, such as the report of the Krakow Forensic Institute commissioned in 1990 by the Auschwitz State Museum (page ii).

The book summarizes rather closely the testimony presented by the various witnesses, with many direct quotations included. The summary of the testimony for the Crown occupies 157 pages, that for the defence 276. Two major witnesses for the Crown, Raul Hilberg and Christopher Browning, were involved. The summaries of their testimonies occupy 148 1/2 pages, while the summaries of the testimonies of six major defense witnesses occupy 224 pages; Felderer 13, Weber 63, Walendy 13, Faurisson 65, Leuchter 8, Irving 62. I give these figures in order to provide the reader at least an idea of the dimensions of the book and its contents since it is difficult to indicate much more than the general nature of the testimonies within the usual limits of a book review.

Summaries of the testimonies (pages 1-423) are preceded by a publisher's note (pages i-ii), an editor's introduction (page iii), a foreword by Dr. Robert Faurisson (pages iv-vi) and a significant essay by Barbara Kulaszka (pages vii-viii) on the legal aspects of "Holocaust denials," in which she points out that even statements by Jewish historians might constitute "Holocaust denial." Faurisson stresses the importance of the investigation of the physical aspects of Auschwitz by Fred Leuchter and subsequent investigators as well as the courageous rôle played by Ernst Zündel. However, he also admonishes us that court proceedings are not the ideal setting for the examination of complicated historical questions.

Only one major witness appeared for the Crown in person, Christopher R. Browning, whose testimony is summarized on pages 84-157 (73 1/2 pages). Browning is, ironically, a professor at Pacific Lutheran College in Tacoma and was 43 years old at the time of the trial. He obtained his Ph.D, degree in 1975 and studied in archives in Jerusalem, Bonn, Koblenz and in other locations. His research specialty was the treatment of Jews by the National Socialist government. He is the author of Fateful Months: Essays on the Emergence of the Final Solution (1985; 111 pages), which we reviewed in our Bulletin 9, republished in Christian News, 2 March 1987. Browning read from a number of documents in order to discredit Did Six Million Really Die?. Many of these documents had been presented a the Nuremberg trials, such as the Stahlecker Report. Stahlecker was commander of an Einsatzgruppe operating in the Baltic region (pages 94-95). It mentions executions by Latvian and Lithuanian auxiliaries selected on the basis of having had relatives murdered or deported by the Communists (during their occupation of the Baltic lands during 1940-1941). Christie's cross-examination of Browning begins on page 103. Browning admitted that the was being paid $30,000 by Yad Vashem for writing a book. In contrast to such defence witnesses as Felderer and Leuchter, Browning admitted that he had never visited any concentration camps in Poland or Germany for purposes of research (page 104). Browning's naïveté about the origins of the Second World War becomes apparent on page 109. The famous phrase, "bei Freilassung" (= upon release) in the Wannsee Protocol is discussed on page 112. A striking example of the biased, one-sided nature of Browning's research is on page 130: Browning, who had claimed that he had spent 17 years studying the treatment of Jews by the National Socialist government, admitted that he had never read the works of Wilhelm Stäglich, whose Der Auschwitz Mythos was perhaps the most important revisionist work on the question ever published before 1988. (It was reviewed on pages 24-44 of the May 1985 Liberty Bell.) Browning had heard of the "Committee for the History of the Second World War" (page 156). Did he have our committee in mind?

The court also had read to itself the testimony that Raul Hilberg had given in the first trial in 1985. Hilberg is an author who has written a great deal to support the Extermination Thesis and is a professor at the University of Vermont. His chief work is The Destruction of the European Jews, of which the first of several editions appeared in 1961. In a letter to the Crown attorney, Pearson, dated 5 October 1987 and reproduced on page 445, Hilberg declined to testify at the second trial for various reasons, including the "time and energy required to ward off" the assault on his testimony. Douglas Christie, Zündel's attorney, objected to the reading of the testimony from 1985, charging that Hilberg had perjured himself at the first trial. Hilberg's testimony is summarized on pages 5 to 80. In view of Hilberg's justified timidity about subjecting himself again to Christie's penetrating cross-examination, it would appear that Hilberg's testimony should not detain us in detail here. The curious reader can read Douglas Christie's devastating cross-examination on pages 15-78. Christie was very well prepared for detailed cross-examination of Hilberg and confronted him with a great many appropriate citations from a great variety of sources.

Ditlieb Felderer from Sweden was the first witness called by the defence. Felderer had been an adherent of Jehovah's witnesses and wanted to investigate the fate of members of that cult in German concentration camps. This stimulated his investigations of various concentration camps and he found to his astonishment that they were quite different from the way they had been described by advocates of the Extermination Thesis. He became strongly fascinated by aspects of the thesis, so much so that he made some 30,000 slides of concentration camps in Poland, about 300 of which he showed to the jury and 230 of which are reproduced in the pictorial section toward the back of the book (pages 457-462). On page 167 Felderer drew parallels between West German Auschwitz trials and trials of witches who had to admit to having had sexual intercourse with the Devil.

Following Felderer's testimony Thies Christophersen, author of The Auschwitz Lie, testified. Christophersen was an officer who was stationed at Raisko during 1944. Raisko was a subsidiary camp near Auschwitz. Agricultural experiment were conducted there.

The eighth witness for the defence was the historian Mark Weber, who was born in Oregon in 1951. Weber discussed a wide variety of aspects of the Extermination Thesis, including the Einsatzgruppen, the Wannsee Conference, Zionism, the Hoess confessions obtained by torture and aerial photographs of Auschwitz. Throughout his testimony Weber demonstrated his wide archival experiences and hist vast knowledge of many aspects of the history of the Jews in Europe during and before the Second World War. He discussed the questionable legal basis of the Nuremberg trials which were condemned by no less a figure than Senator Robert Taft of Ohio (page 208). Pearson, the attorney for the Crown, cross-examined Weber at great length (pages 239 ff.), largely about the Einsatzgruppen and then about Weber's personal experiences and beliefs. In sometimes bitter exchanges Pearson tried to suggest that Weber was a racist.

The twelfth defence witness was the Jewish author, Joseph G. Burg. He testified that there were no liquidations in the concentration camps (page 261). Burg was not cross-examined.

The sixteenth witness for the defence was the German historian and publisher Udo Walendy. His testimony dealt largely with his collaboration with Zündel, censorship and "reëducation" in Germany. Walendy has been publishing the important series, Historische Tatsachen, for nearly two decades. He wrote several books and distributed Did Six Million Really Die? in Germany.

Professor Robert Faurisson was the eighteenth witness for the defence. In Faurisson's six days of testimony he, like Mark Weber, covered a very wide range of aspects of the Extermination Thesis, one of which was his notable research on the diary of Anne Frank. A good deal of Faurisson's testimony was devoted to an analysis of the booklet, Six Million Did Die (pages 307 ff.), published by the South African Jewish Board of Deputies. Faurisson characterized this book as a "bad book." At the beginning of cross-examination by Pearson, Faurisson pointed out (page 328) that court proceedings are not the proper setting for historical debate, as he does in the foreword to the book. Faurisson demonstrated not only his wide knowledge of the history of the Jews in Europe during the Second World War, but also his great verbal skill (with an occasional touch of Gallic humor) in a language which is not his first language. Faurisson summarizes his opinion on the "Holocaust" as fallows:

> The alleged Hitlerite gas chambers and the alleged genocide of the Jews are one and the same historical lie which opened the way to a gigantic political-financial fraud, whose principal beneficiaries are the State of Israel and international Zionism, and the principal victims are the German people—but not its leaders—and the entire Palestinian people.

Pages 354-362 contain the relatively short but crucially important testimony of Fred Leuchter, the American expert on penal execution procedures. Although Leuchter was allowed to give oral testimony, Judge Thomas did not allow a presentation to the jury of the Leuchter Report with its detailed physical and chemical data from his on-site investigations of concentration camps at Auschwitz, Birkenau and Majdanek. (See also testimony on this matter on pages 376-379.)

The prolific British historian, David Irving, was the twenty-third and final witness for the defence on 22, 25 and 26 April. Irving can justifiably boast—and indeed he is not a man to hide his light under a bushel—not only about the quantity and wide range of his publications on the history of the Second World War, but also about his extensive archival research and his knowledge of the German language, which gives him far greater access to original sources than in the case of some historians who have written in this area. Irving has written on such diverse topics as Churchill and the Hungarian uprising of 1956. He often shows his contempt for academic historians who show no originality, who drift along with popular mythology and who do not rigorously go to original documentation. Irving said that he had not read Hilberg's three-volume work and added that he does not read other people's books if he can avoid it and that it is easier to go to the archives and read the original documents (page 394). When Irving published Hitler's War in 1977 he accepted most of the Extermination Thesis without much questioning but later changed his views on it. Pearson found what he considered an important wedge here and took advantage of it by reading extensively from Hitler's War and challenging Irving's change of views (for example, pages 394 ff.). Irving had strong praise for the value of Leuchter's forensic, on-site investigation, which he characterized as "shattering in the significance of its discovery" and "a stroke of genius on the part of the defence" (page 378). Irving's views were changed even by testimony he had heard at the trial "in the last few days" (page 384). Irving testified that he did not dispute the authenticity of the Wannsee Protocol of 20 January 1942 (page 380). I find this astonishing because there is a good deal of evidence that it has been altered, if it were not a forgery from the outset. It has even been convincingly argued that there are Anglicisms in it. (The German text is readily available in Wilhelm Stäglich's Der Auschwitz Mythos.) I also find Irving to be rather cavalier about statistics. On page 395 he mentions the 11 million Jews in the statistical table of the Wannsee Conference protocol, figures which are considered notoriously high (especially for France) and which include Jews in neutral countries and above all the USSR. He says (also page 395) that Hungary had "nearly a million Jews." Irving would do well to look at some pre-1933 sources, such as the readily available statistics on European Jews cited in my propaedeutic book, The Holocaust: 120 Questions and Answers, which I took from Der große Brockhaus article on Jews published in 1931, volume 9, page 473, where the number of Jews in Hungary is given as $500,000. Although there were many discussions of Jewish population statistics at the trials, no witness seemed aware of the excellent study on Jewish population by the statistician Friedrich Burgdörfer, "Die Juden in Deutschland und in der Welt" on pages 152-198 of the third volume of the invaluable Forschungen zur Judenfrage, Hamburg, 1938. I could not escape the impression that Irving was crippled as a defence witness as a result of his somewhat embarrassing, previously expressed positions, positions which he should not have taken as late as 1977, long after questions had been raised about the Zionist versions about what took place during the war, for example by the senior U.S. intelligence officer John Beaty, whose important Iron Curtain Over America was published in 1951 and also cited in my book. Irving adheres to the view that there were isolated massacres of Jews in the Baltic lands and in Ukraine which were not authorized by Hitler and indeed prohibited by him (page 417) and that Hitler envisaged the final solution of the Jewish problem in postwar emigration of Jews from Europe, a movement which has actually taken place to an extent since 1945. Irving suggests a similarity in some respects of the massacres of Jews to those by American forces in Vietnam (page 368).

All of the six major defence witnesses, with the possible exception of Mark Weber, have been subjected to severe legal difficulties, like Zündel himself. Faurisson testified that he would continue his historical activities no matter what was to be his fate, in spite of previous legal harassment and brutal physical attack that had taken place against him. Of course, such measures against historians who question the Extermination Thesis are a striking demonstration of the panic amongst Zionist propagandists whose lies and distortions have been exposed by a small, poorly financed group of courageous historians motivated by an idealistic search for the truth. At the end of Weber's testimony (page 253) he pointed out that he was appearing as a witness with no compensation other than a personal satisfaction, quite in contrast to Browning, who was being paid $150 per hour by the Canadian government. Faurisson (page 297) mentioned that a man who distributed Harwood's Did Six Million Really Die? in France was murdered, thus demonstrating the importance of the booklet.

There was general agreement amongst the defence witnesses that Did Six Million Really Die? was a relatively early (1974) revisionist work on the "Holocaust" question that contained some errors, mostly of a minor nature. Irving felt that it contained essentially sound arguments. Much of the testimony and cross-examination by the Crown examined particular passages from the book, as was in keeping with the objectives of the trial.

Nearly all of the major witnesses, both for the Crown and for Zündel, pointed out that many deaths of Jews resulted from actions of the Einsatzgruppen, German field security units whose duty it was to protect German soldiers from the devastating actions of partisans, irregular forces fighting for the Communists. Since the vast majority of the partisans were Jewish, measures taken against them resulted in Jewish losses. (For detailed information on the partisan aspect of the Second World War, see Rudolf Aschenauer, Krieg ohne Grenzen, 1982, reviewed In our Bulletin 59.)

The summaries of the testimonies are followed by an epilogue containing Judge Thomas's reasoning for sentencing Zündel to nine months in prison (page 424-425), a very valuable pictorial section (page 428 to 468) that included 230 slides presented by Ditlieb Felderer, a condensed version of the Leuchter Report that was never permitted to be shown to the jury (pages 469-502), a facsimile of the original bone of contention, the booklet Did Six Million Really Die? (pages 537-562). The two final pages reproduce Zündel's appeal of 5 January 1993 for compensation for wrongful prosecution after the Supreme Court of Canada invalidated the whole trial on 27 August 1992 on constitutional grounds and thus acquitted Zündel.

This book is an absolute necessity for every reputable university library in institutions where modern history is taught and indeed for any honest scholar of modern history who deals with the "Holocaust" question, even just tangentially. With all due respect for the books previously published by revisionist historians in the area, this book now assumes the position of the most important reference work on the "Holocaust" question. Advocates of the Extermination Thesis will ignore it at the risk of making fools of themselves. ❑

LAVENDER BLEW

By Bob Frenz

One fellow informed me that an impeccable information source had discovered that I am a faggot. Since I rarely engage in the refuting dance nonsense, I decided to use an appropriate color for this month's issue. I hope this "expert" will accept this documentary (paper) "proof" as a validation of his assertion. I am no hypocrite and will not run, with tears in my eyes, to the nearest lawyer because someone called me a naughty thing.

I have also been accused of causing upset stomachs in the ranks of the "right-wing". I hope so. A catharsis will improve their dispositions. In addition, many feel I should be writing for the ADL since I say things which they "might use". My friend Eric, who coined the term "ZOG" in 1976, refers to this set of etiquette minded twits as the "blight-wing". I am disrupting the effort of "fighting the juice", so they say. The Jews are not the problem. They simply stepped into the shoes that the Aryans who built this country no longer wish to fill, and were applauded for doing so.

I don't care who controls the media or what the Nazis did 50 years ago. I do care about people like the woman, a frequent dinner guest in my home, who was recently the victim of a genuine atrocity. While leaving a bowling alley, in broad daylight, she was punched so severely, from behind, that she fell onto the pavement face down. Her attacker, a 240 lb. Sonderneger, then proceeded to stomp upon her upper body until she suffered a broken collar bone and broken ribs. He then stole her purse and fled.

Curiously enough, the previous day, a teen-age daughter of another friend of mine was smashed in the face with a pistol barrel while she exited the subway. No provocation and no motive was discovered for the pistol-whipping which broke her nose and cheekbone. The assailant was a teen-aged female of the melanin persuasion. Events, such as these, concern and trouble me, deeply.

MILEAGE OUT OF CREEPS

A local priest now has his tail in hot water because he "misappropriated" church funds. That's "nice guy" talk for theft. The man is a thief. Period. Given the opportunity, he would steal from other sources because thievery is part of his character and I don't care if he does talk to God. Thieves also lie. The "blight-wing" says that a person, of this type, has his uses and hence, should not be condemned. Perhaps this is a modification of Lenin's "useful idiots" notion. Whatever we call this aberration, it permeates the thinking of all blight-wingers from the "inter-lick-you-all" to the envelope stuffer. They seem compelled to try and get mileage out of creeps.

We are directed to overlook the LSD addiction of one creep because he is an "excellent writer for our side". Another creep, whose word is not worth a maggot fart, is supported because he publishes expensive brochures which are useful in "fightin' da juice". We are told not to criticize a well-known (creep) advocate of race-mixing because he appears on numerous creepy talk-shows (for "our side", of course). Recently, millions supported a political aspirant (creep) who declared "equal treatment for whites". The fact that this person was heavily addicted to sodomy and other sexual excesses, was never talked about in "polite company" because he was "heppin' our honkie asses". It might do well if we stopped and asked ourselves what "our side" really means.

Is a crook to be admired because he steals for us? Should we support liars because they lie for us? Must our ranks be tolerant enough to accept drug-heads, alcoholics, thieves, prevaricators, steroid-gulpers, womanizers and perverts simply because they perform something seemingly useful and seemingly helpful? If you believe so, then it might be worthwhile for you to examine what kind of Aryan people you wish to be a part of, or represent.

During one of my undergraduate years, many, many moons ago, I was introduced to a young woman who absolutely captivated me with her physical beauty. Her name was Yolanda and we saw each other several times. However, during an exam in social science, I observed that she was cheating. From that moment on, my interest in her ceased. If I were a blight-winger, I could perhaps have "tolerated" this slight imperfection and concentrated upon the beautiful face and body, the excellent skating ability and the warm, sweet smell of her body. However, I could not divorce myself from the fact that she was a cheat and my decision to not see her again inaugurated a very difficult period in my life.

So I say to all of you blight-wingers and your "fightin' da juice" business: Go suck on a razor blade, call me what you will, threaten me with your mealy-mouthed law suit notions, look down your wart-decorated noses but don't expect me to lie down with your dogs. I don't like fleas.

ROCHESTER

Freshman week, at the University of Rochester NY, starts with an inner city graffiti cleaning project. Like sheep, we sweep. It's part of the "They breed. We feed." program. UR takes pride in "helping" the community, which in my vulgar world, simply means cleaning up the crap the apes leave behind.

UR is also very considerate. It accepts recommendations from the parents of the students in regard to their offspring. Since all parents know their children are beautiful and intelligent, one must necessarily stand amazed at these high standards. (Thanks, HG)

CONVALESCENCE

As I sit, licking the wounds of recent verbal assaults upon my wicked person, and feeling deep empathy for the verbal beating George Dietz is taking from the right-wing / "blight-wing" thought-police, I have decided to give the readers a coffee break. The following is the text of a 1987 report to the British House of Commons, by Dr. John

Seale, Royal Society of Medicine, concerning the hero's disease — AIDS. I was led to believe that this report had been deep-sixed and therefore not generally available. For what it's worth:

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Third Report from the SOCIAL SERVICES COMMITTEE
Session 1986-87
PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH AIDS
Volume III
Minutes of Evidence (8 April-13 May 1987) and Memoranda Ordered by the House of Commons to be printed 13 May 1987

LONDON:
HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE
60. Memorandum by Dr. John Seale, Royal Society of Medicine

INTRODUCTION

No politician can make rational decisions to deal with AIDS without a clear understanding of the nature and severity of the epidemic, the means of transmission of the virus and the prospects for cure or preventive vaccine. The key scientific facts underlying the epidemic are quite simple, though AIDS is perceived to be unusually complex and full of scientific uncertainties. These perceptions have been produced by a few scientists and others who have recklessly minimized the seriousness of the epidemic and have fostered confusion and dangerous misconceptions.

The mos impotrtant and urgent task for politicians, both in Government and Parliament, is to force scientists to speak clearly, precisely and honestly about the AIDS epidemic. Half-truths, wishful thinking, flawed scientific hypotheses and deceptions have been perpetrated by scientists, and allowed to flourish as conventional wisdom, aided and abetted by editors of scientific and medical journals. The deceptions must be exposed with maximum publicity.

The public must be fully informed of the true nature of the threat from the virus which faces us all. Once this is done the mass of the population will accept measures essential to halt the spread of the virus, even though they will inevitably require severe curtailment of the liberty and civil rights of everybody, just as happens in war-time. The longer the truth is obscured from the public, and the greater the multitude of innocent people who die most horribly as a result, the more ferocious will be the explosion of hatred and revenge against those guilty of perpetrating the deceptions.

The virus has the properties of a skilled, devious, hidden and implacable invader with the capacity and willingness to kill every man, woman and child in our country. It may now be spreading amongst us precisely because it has this capacity. It is unwise to assume that such a force can be vanquished without taking actions which the people of Britain accepted as entirely appropriate to fight two world wars; particularly as dissemination of the virus is being actively encouraged by some who wish to destroy our society.

A. THE NATURE OF THE DISEASE

1. AIDS is a contagious, infectious, communicable disease caused by a lentivirus (slow virus), a member of the family of retroviruses.

2. No lentivirus has been known to affect humans before the advent of AIDS.

3. AIDS is a typical slow virus disease with a prolonged, silent incubation period of great variability, but usually lasting several years, followed by slowly progressive disease always ending in death.

4. An epidemic of a new slow virus disease spreading unchecked is the ultimate virological nightmare, yet in none of the major scientific or medical journals has this been spelled out clearly and the implications discussed.

5. Death is caused by the AIDS virus infecting, and slowly destroying, cells in the brain, lungs, intestine and the immune system.

B. MORTALITY FOLLOWING INFECTION

1. Within five years of infection with the virus, 25 per cent of people have developed full-blown AIDS and all of them die. This is the official conclusion of the US Public Health Service recently endorsed by leading scientists from the National Academy of Sciences in Washington.

2. The ultimate mortality within twenty years of infection is unknown as the virus has been spreading for only ten years. The optimistic view held by a decreasing number of virologists is that only 50 per cent of those infected will die. Many virologists now accept the pessimistic view, that all people infected with the virus will eventually be killed by it.

3. All virologists are agreed that once infected with the AIDS virus, people are potentially infectious to others for life.

C. FAILURE OF ANTIBODIES OR VACCINES TO PROTECT

1. In all people with antibodies to the AIDS virus, some virus persists in brain and other cells from which it cannot be removed. In contrast to most virus infections, antibodies to a lentivirus do not provide protective immunity; they fail to neutralize or eliminate it. Although many people infected with the AIDS virus look and feel well for several years, destruction of cells of the brain and immune system is progressing slowly.

2. The outlook for a successful vaccine is bleak. None is available for the lentivirus diseases of animals. Search for a vaccine against infectious anaemia of horses for eighty years, and against maedi-visna in sheep for forty years, has proved futile. Indeed, when antibodies to a lentivirus are produced artificially by vaccination, the vaccinated animals die after subsequent infection more rapidly than those which are not. In spite of many successful vaccines, it should be realized that for the majority of viral and bacterial diseases vaccines do not work.

D. BLEAK OUTLOOK FOR A CURE

1. No simple, effective, curative drug, like penicillin, will be available for AIDS in the foreseeable future because once a person is infected, the viral genetic code is permanently inserted into the human genetic code of cells in the brain and other tissues. Any drug which blocks replication of the virus, thereby halting the progress of the disease, will have to be taken continuously for life. All drugs used so far are highly toxic and expensive. If a cheap, apparently effective, drug becomes available it will take several decades to be certain that it is both effective and safe. Nevertheless, many companies will announce "promising" new drugs and "breakthroughs" in the treatment of AIDS for simple commercial motives.

2. The handling of the recent AZT clinical trials by the US Government was particularly important. The US Public Health Service insisted the trials cease long before any long-term benefit of the drug had been shown, and before the manufacturing company suggested it, thereby misleading the public into believing a "cure" for AIDS was already in the pipeline. Such disinformation weakens the political will to implement the tough control measures required to halt the spread of the virus.

E. TRANSMISSION OF AIDS - SEXUAL INTERCOURSE

1. Scientists and doctors have repeatedly stated as fact that the AIDS virus is fundamentally transmitted during sexual intercourse but is, unfortunately, sometimes transmitted in blood. This is highly misleading, though published laboratory and epidemiological evidence, and editorials in scientific and medical journals, have been heavily slanted to support this "fact".

2. In reality AIDS is characteristically a blood transmitted infection, which is only transmitted with difficulty during sexual intercourse compared with the genuine sexually transmitted diseases gonorrhoea and trichomoniasis. All the experimental and epidemiological evidence is consistent with this view.

3. Obviously AIDS is transmissible during sexual intercourse, but so is influenza, glandular fever and scabies. Sexual intercourse is only one of many ways by which the virus can be transmitted, and is by no means the most efficient.

4. The illusion that AIDS is essentially a sexually transmitted disease arose from the first observations that AIDS appeared to affect only sodomites with numerous partners. However sodomy is not sexual intercourse in the biological sense of the words. As we are dealing with a very important biological event, the transmission of a lethal parasite from one human host to another, it is essential that scientists use words describing the transmission with the utmost precision.

5. In biological terms sexual intercourse means the union between male and female which may result in reproduction of the species. In mammals this invariably requires contact between male and female genitalia. Consequently sexual intercourse between two men in the biological sense is impossible.

6. Scientists who state, or imply, sodomy is sexual intercourse without some qualification are being imprecise and misleading, whether intentionally or not.

7. Homosexual men engaged in homosexual activities frequently insert their fingers, fist, penis or tongue into the lower intestinal tract of their partners. These manoeuvres transmit any virus which persists in the blood for months or years with devastating efficiency, even though no virus is present in either semen or saliva. This has been shown very clearly with hepatitis B virus which, in prosperous communities, infects the majority of homosexual men within three years of becoming sexually active whereas hepatitis B infection remains rare amongst heterosexual men and women, even though they frequently change partners.

F. DISINFORMATION FROM SCIENTISTS

1. The AIDS virus persists in an infectious state (i.e. as cell-free virions) in blood and semen at levels up to 25,000 virions per milliliter, according to the only published paper giving this critically important information. Cell-free virions were detected easily in saliva over two years ago, but quantitative studies have still not been published.

2. No infectious virion has been detected in semen according to the only two detailed published studies on the subject, which between them included a grand total of merely three men examined. In 10 percent of 50 infected men, according to another report sent to me personally but which gave few details, cell-associated virus has been detected in a few white blood cells in semen, but never in spermatozoa.

3. Virions have been detected in the vaginal secretions in only trivial quantities - about one per milliliter - indicating that their infectivity is minimal.

4. The scale of the deceptions and misinformation perpetrated by virologists, clinicians and editors of scientific and medical journals about the infectivity of genital secretions, compared with that of blood, serum and saliva, has been astonishing. In the presence of a new, lethal virus spreading amongst people, for which no vaccine or cure is in sight, every sane person would assume that scientists have been working flat out to verify precisely how it is transmitted.

5. On the contrary, having assumed for a variety of motives that AIDS is a sexually transmitted disease like syphilis or gonorrhoea, a negligible research effort has gone into the critical matter of transmission. A few preliminary papers were published and their findings have been repeatedly quoted as showing the opposite to what they actually showed. When this was pointed out in letters to the editors of major medical and scientific journals,

6. As far as it goes, the tiny research effort into infectivity of bodily fluids indicates that saliva is more infectious than genital secretions but that blood and serum is vastly more infectious than either. Consequently the idea that condoms can have any significant effect on the spread of AIDS in a nation is utterly preposterous.

7. Governments all over the world are spending millions of dollars advising their citizens to prevent AIDS by using condoms on the basis of manifestly fraudulent misrepresentation of scientific evidence presented by scientists themselves.

8. The AIDS virus is unusually stable outside the human body. It retains almost all its infectivity after seven days in water at room temperature and some after being kept dry for a week. A virus with this degree of stability, which persists in the blood and is shed in saliva cannot possibly fail to be transmitted in many ways apart from sexual intercourse.

G. VARIABLE EFFICIENCY IN MEANS OF TRANSMISSION

1. A virus which persists in moderate quantities in the blood for years and is shed in small quantities in saliva will be transmitted with far greater ease by some means than by others.

2. Injection of the virus through the skin in hypodermic needles is the most certain method of transmission. This happens when blood-contaminated hypodermics are re-used without sterilization, as is common amongst drug addicts in the West and in health care facilities in less prosperous countries. It also occurs when virus-contaminated blood transfusions and clotting factor are administered.

3. Male homosexual contact of the finger, penis or tongue with the rectal wall of another man transmits the virus very easily. 70 per cent of the male homosexual population of San Francisco were infected within six years of the arrival of the virus in the city and nearly 30 per cent of London homosexuals are already infected. The percentages are rising remorselessly in large cities throughout the western world unaffected by the highly acclaimed "safe sex" propaganda.

4. Well over 50 per cent of new-born babies of infected mothers are infected.

5. Moderately efficient means of transmission include mouth-to-mouth and genital contact before and during normal sexual intercourse, oral salivary contact between small children, needle-stick injuries to nursing staff and chance contact of sores or abrasions with blood, serum, saliva or sputum.

6. Inefficient means of transmission include social kissing, inhalation or respiratory aerosols caused by coughing or sneezing and blood-sucking insects.

7. Transmission by inhalation is only inefficient because of the relatively small number of virions shed in saliva and bronchial secretions. However if an AIDS virion is inhaled into the lung it is engulfed by an amoeba-like macrophage on the lining of the alveoli (air sacs). It has been shown repeatedly in the laboratory that the AIDS virus readily infects macrophages, and the virus replicates within them, thereby enabling infection of people to be initiated by this route.

8. Understandably, and wisely, the DHSS has officially advised all British dental surgeons always to wear masks to avoid AIDS virus infection when using high speed drills. These drills make aerosols of saliva similar to those produced by sneezing.

9. Chronic lymphoid interstitial pneumonitis is a well recognized variety of pneumonia caused directly by infection of the lungs with the AIDS virus. It is similar to the pneumonia of maedi-visna in sheep and is particularly common in children with AIDS. When associated with pulmonary tuberculosis, a very common complication of AIDS, it is inevitable that coughing will produce some aerosols containing tubercle bacilli and the AIDS virus. After the fluid in the aerosols evaporates the minute dry flakes

3. The initial impact of AIDS on homosexuals in the West inevitably resulted in an unusually high proportion of them becoming involved with the disease since it first surfaced. Many of the men who are particularly knowledgeable about and dedicated to AIDS research, treatment, legislation, publication and education are homosexuals.

4. Most in the professions are only identifiable as homosexuals to other men with similar tastes - few have "come out" and even the wives of those who are married are usually unaware of their habits. Hence they automatically form a type of secret society without even trying, with wide ramifications across professional, institutional and national boundaries.

5. Homosexual men have been vectors of the virus throughout the western world and if it had not been for their activities very few people in prosperous countries would now be infected. Their oft-repeated statement that they are the major victims of the virus is true, but it is also true that they have spread the virus to each other by their practices and then onward to the rest of the population.

6. Many do not wish to face reality because of guilt, most do not wish to change their ways, and a few seeing death and destruction facing themselves and their friends are dedicated to destroying the rest of society with them.

7. All wish to deny the reality that restricting the freedom of homosexuals to infect each other and other people, is essential if our society is not to be destroyed by the virus.

b. Scientists

1. Every biological scientist who has dispassionately studied the virus and the epidemic knows that the origins of the virus could lie in the developments of modern biology, just as the origins of the nuclear bomb was modern physics.

2. Most biological scientists have not yet come to terms with the terrible truth and have developed various neurotic reactions to cope with it.

3. Many have developed a selective denial of reality and genuinely cannot see what is happening. Most who see it keep quiet, but increasing numbers are talking privately though they still lack the moral courage to speak out in public. They still hope it is a nightmare which will vanish with tomorrow's dawn.

4. Some who know perfectly well what has happened are deliberately fudging scientific data to keep the heat off them and fellow members of their molecular biological "club".

c. Editors of Scientific and Medical Journals.

1. Medical and scientific editors have misled their professional colleagues about the nature and severity of the AIDS epidemic for five years. By selective acceptance or rejection of original papers and letters, and by selecting authors to write "safe" editorials and review articles, they have perpetuated dangerous misconceptions.

2. As the harsh reality of what is happening becomes ever more obvious editors have developed a range of neurotic reactions similar to those of the scientists.

d. Doctors.

1. Most doctors are incapable of conceiving the scale of the problems as only three hundred people have died from AIDS in Britain in the last five years, but 40,000 die each year of cancer of the lung. How can AIDS be so important?

2. An epidemic slow virus disease is new to medical science and its significance largely incomprehensible to doctors because it is outside both their practical experience and theoretical training.

3. Epidemics were supposed to have been abolished, along with the old fever hospitals and TB sanatoria twenty-five years ago. It is difficult to change cherished beliefs. It is assumed that scientists will soon have a vaccine and the AIDS epidemic will disappear like a bad flu epidemic.

4. Doctors who have treated many patients with AIDS are profoundly shocked at their own, and modern medicine's, inability to restore the health of so many young patients.

containing tubercle bacilli and AIDS virus float in the air indefinitely and both remain infectious for days.

10. The normal route of transmission of the maedi-visna lentivirus between adult sheep is by respiratory aerosols when they are crowded closely together in winter shelters. Maedi-visna is not a sexually transmitted disease of sheep.

11. The efficiency of the transmission of the AIDS virus by biting insects will depend upon the quantity of virions in the blood of the bitten person, the anatomical structure of the biting parts of the insects, their feeding habits and other factors.

12. Infectious anaemia of horses, a lentivirus disease, is characteristically transmitted by large biting insects, particularly stable flies and horse flies. It is not a sexually transmitted disease of horses.

13. The AIDS virus has been shown to remain infectious in the stomach of bed bugs for at least two hours. It has been shown that it can infect the cells of insects, including mosquitoes and cockroaches, both in laboratory cell culture and in intact insects. Replication of the virus in insect cells has not yet been demonstrated.

H. SATURATION OF THE BRITISH POPULATION WITH THE VIRUS

1. There is a key to estimating how long it will take for the people of Britain to be saturated with the AIDS virus, if its spread is allowed to continue unchecked as at present. This is the application of probability theory to the known facts about the virus, its pathogenesis, the frequency of "contact", and the efficiency with which different "contacts" transmit the virus.

2. The basic facts are that the entire population is susceptible to infection, and once people are infected they remain potentially infectious to others for life.

3. As the number of people infected rises the probability of transmission during any particular "contact" between individuals also rises.

4. Initially the virus was introduced into Britain from the United States by homosexual men who soon infected others by having frequent, efficient, "contacts" - sodomy with strangers. As the number of infected homosexuals rises the probability of infection being transmitted during one "contact" rises at first exponentially, but then at a slower doubling rate as saturation with the virus of the homosexual population is approached.

5. Once some intravenous drug addicts were infected, a further, frequent, efficient "contact", self-injection with shared needles, rapidly spread the virus amongst addicts.

6. As numbers of infected homosexuals and addicts increased, efficient "contacts" rarely performed - such as receiving a blood transfusion, or clotting factor, or having a baby - infected more and more people.

7. Once a critical mass of infected people has been created by highly efficient "contacts", then "contacts" which are only moderately efficient but occur very frequently - such as normal sexual intercourse or small children playing together - will spread the virus in ever widening circles throughout the population.

8. Finally, highly inefficient "contacts" which occur very frequently indeed, such as coughing and sneezing in public, and being bitten by insects, will infect many people as millions of infected persons interact with the non-infected, and saturation of the entire British population becomes unstoppable.

I. GROUPS MISINFORMING THE PUBLIC AND THEIR MOTIVES

a. Homosexual Men.

1. Homosexual men have been the most determined and effective in distorting the truth about AIDS.

2. They have been so effective because there is a scattering of homosexuals amongst all the key professional groups involved - scientists, doctors, medical editors, journalists, lawyers, politicians and priests.

Although death be delayed, remissions are temporary. Deterioration is so protracted, often lasting years, that many AIDS patients kill themselves as a means of escape.

5. Many young doctors working only with AIDS patients soon become depressed themselves. The term "AIDS burn-out" is now widely used in America - it has similarities with war-time battle exhaustion.

6. Many senior doctors in charge of numerous AIDS patients develop profoundly neurotic attitudes which enable them to cope with their job by selective denial of reality. In support of their patients for whom they can do so little medically, they fiercely defend their rights of confidentiality, and freedom of association, totally ignoring public health responsibilities to ensure that others are not infected. They are regularly consulted by Government and the Media and other doctors on how to control the epidemic.

e. Journalists.

1. In the face of a lethal disease, journalists and media editors have been frightened to contradict the conventional wisdom being put across by the scientists. There has been no serious attempt at investigative journalism into the wealth of scientific scandals surrounding AIDS.

2. They have often given way to the tremendous pressure put upon them by scientists and homosexuals to understate the seriousness of the epidemic and, in the last two years, have capitulated to demands that AIDS is portrayed as an "ordinary" venereal disease.

3. Understandably, as in a war that is going badly, all news of break through with cures and vaccines are given lavish cover. These lull politicians and public into fatal inaction.

f. Politicians.

1. Leading politicians from all parties in all nations have, till very recently, hardly mentioned AIDS in public. Accepting the earlier views of scientists that it was just a homosexual disease, and the revised view that it is only a venereal disease, they know that taking AIDS seriously would have gained them few votes.

2. No prominent politician has thought there was reason to doubt the much publicized opinions of scientists and public health doctors concerning the facts about AIDS.

J. VARIETIES OF MISINFORMATION

1. People with AIDS are categorized as belonging to a small number of "risk groups" giving the false impression that the vast majority of people cannot get AIDS.

2. AIDS is portrayed as only a behavioral disease caused by sexual and narcotic misdemeanors. This implies that if anybody gets AIDS it is their own fault.

3. Emphasis on transmission of the virus during sexual intercourse, and education as a solution to the epidemic, implies that the disease will disappear with modified behavior. This misses the point that as the epidemic explodes infection by chance, non-sexual, contact becomes ever more common.

4. By equating sodomy with sexual intercourse the impression is given that homosexuals have just been unlucky to get infected before heterosexuals. In reality homosexual activity has spread the virus through the population at a vastly greater speed than normal sexual intercourse could achieve.

5. The value of blood tests for diagnosis of AIDS virus infection is repeatedly denigrated by those who do not want them introduced compulsorily. In fact the blood test is an unusually reliable diagnostic tool.

6. The suffering of those with AIDS is highlighted while ignoring the suffering of those who will get AIDS in the future if appropriate steps are not taken to stop its spread.

7. The rights of those infected with the virus are stressed, while the rights of the uninfected to be protected from infection with a lethal virus are ignored and glossed over. Protection of the life of its citizens is one the major obligations of the State.

8. Misinformation is perpetuated by homosexuals actively obstructing the publication, in the scientific or general press, of facts and conclusions which they want suppressed.

K. METHODS OF CONTROL

1. The most urgent step to be taken is to break the pervasive grip by homosexuals on the information and disinformation which has emanated for so long from the journals of science and medicine, and from much of the media. Once this has been done other scientists, doctors and politicians can stress accurately the reality of the situation.

2. Once the truth is known and publicized the steps required to halt the epidemic become more obvious and less controversial.

3. Speed is of the essence because every day that is lost will increase the human misery which, in any event, will be vast.

4. We are facing a national catastrophe equal to any in the history of the nation. The life of every citizen is at stake. Death from AIDS is a protracted horror unequalled by other diseases.

5. The only way to halt the spread of the virus is to identify all those who are infected by compulsory testing. Government must then take whatever steps are required to ensure that those infected do not pass the virus on to anyone else.

6. The longer this action is delayed the greater will be the task when it is finally undertaken, and the greater the danger that the spread of the virus will then be unstoppable.

7. The actions required by Government are comparable to those taken in waging a war of survival.

8. The war against AIDS is a war of survival. If we lose, Britain and all her people will perish.

From F.A.E.M. (First Amendment Exercise Machine, April 1993), Box 433, Buffalo NY 14223,

"Turning the Bones" on Madagascar

By
Allan Callahan

Most people know very little about Madagascar. Fewer yet know that Hitler hoped to settle European Jews there.

It is a very large and interesting island. White snakes and black geese are found there, along with white-necked crows and fireflies which give off a green light. The white snakes are slender, get up to four feet long, and are found nowhere else on earth (there are no poisonous snakes on the island). Madagascar is also the home of a plethora of other creatures.

Up until recent centuries a giant bird, called "aepyornis," meaning "High Bird," lived on Madagascar, which was far taller than any ostrich. They attained a height of 14 feet, laid eggs up to 14 inches long whose shells could hold six times as much as an ostrich egg, or as much as 12 dozen hen's eggs.

It is thought that the last of the High Birds died more than 250 years ago. A half-century or so back, a report stated that the eggs of aepyornis could still sometimes be found by natives who searched for them.

Madagascar, maybe better known to the younger generation as the Malagasy Republic, or the Democratic Republic of Madagascar, is 980 miles long and 360 miles wide at the widest part. At around 226,000 square miles it is the fourth largest island in the world. Plenty roomy to have settled the Jews on. And not overpopulated either.

The native inhabitants are a mongrelized mix. It is thought that people of Polynesian stock first came to eastern Africa, partly mixed with the Bantus, and to a certain extent with Arabs, also. They then migrated to Madagascar sometime between the first and 10th century A.D. Arriving on the large and fertile island, a large portion of the purest Polynesian stock settled in the highlands in the central part Holland, Belgium, Germany and England, to name a few, are far more densely populated. In fact, compared to them, Madagascar is vastly underpopulated. Yet they are light years ahead of the Malagasy natives as far has High Culture is concerned. The type of people makes the difference.

Conditions on Madagascar are causing some very deep furrows and some very high brows. There are plans to try and save some of the most threatened animals and birds. The plowshare tortoises were saved when there were only thirty left. Various other creatures will probably also be snatched from the brink. But it looks like many will die out in the next century, unless things change.

Whites living on the island are of course worried, and want to help, but their small numbers make them only a speck on the colored population. Whites from other countries will have the most leverage; but, without the cooperation of the Malagasy natives, it doesn't look like things can ever really turn around.

With the average income only $200 a year, the poverty is desperate. The forest have been reduced to groves along the coasts and some of the mountain slopes. The erosion goes on apace, more and more plants and animals are threatened, but the Malagasy themselves are not concerned about their island's future. They think that all they have to do is dig up the bones of their ancestors occasionally, turn them, and all will be well. This will take care of the severe forest destruction, the erosion, and everything else. No need to worry.

It looks like the Bantu-Arab-Polynesian mix did not turn out a hybrid that is very good at thinking. The blood of the darker Bantu people overwhelmed the blood of the other two lighter-skinned subraces. This is always the way these things work out. The Bantus are the most primitive of the three, and the more primitive genes are always dominant. ❑

COURAGE

By
J. B. Campbell

The show trials were already in motion. Having usurped the Bill of rights, the judges in the land were busy sentencing dissident patriots as quickly as the marshals and Special Police could round them up. Wives of rebels were given especially severe sentences in order that their now-motherless children could be seized from the schools-at-home and re-educated.

The Battle

Jennifer Thompson sat in a cold cell, on a hard, steel bedframe. The guards who had carried her in, kicking and handcuffed, three days ago hadn't bothered to give her a mattress or a phone call or even the paper she needed to use that wretched pot in the corner.

She'd read about the demoralizing tactics the government used on dissidents. They were described in a booklet distributed by one of the outlawed patriotic organizations. The booklet made clear what to expect in an interrogation; what you could expect was to be tortured to some degree. It had rather quaintly advised the reader to demand all his rights and to waive none of them, but that part was of no use to her now. Dissidents had no rights under the new emergency laws. Things such as Habeus Corpus and the right to counsel had been suspended in all cases which the government considered "seditious." She had read the booklet with interest then, though never intending to be captured herself. Her husband and she had agreed over a year ago, during the Great Gun Grab, that they would never submit, since it was generally believed that political prisoners had begun to disappear. "If they come for me, Jock," she'd assured her husband, "I promise you—I won't go quietly."

These people want to demoralize me, she thought. But even if I am, I won't let it show, she determined bravely. I will deprive them of that until the bitter end, if it comes to that, and surely it will, now that I killed those foul-mouthed assassins who attacked me at home (was it just three days ago?). She forced herself to relive that horrifying afternoon...

of the island and more or less kept to themselves. The geographical separation from the African stock preserved some of the Polynesian blood until about 400 years ago, when integration and mongrelization set in in earnest. The dark descendants are called the Malagasy.

Their religion is a kind of fetishism, with a peculiar feature. This is to dig up the bones of their ancestors from time to time and turn them. This is supposed to take care of all problems.

And problems they have, aplenty. Originally a dense belt of forest, averaging 15 to 20 miles wide, passed around the whole island, but much of this has been cut down. At the present rate of destruction it is predicted that the forests will be gone in 30 to 40 years. But the Malagasy have a saying that "the forests, like true love, will last forever."

Erosion is another problem they either cannot or will not get a handle on. From space, a red ring around the whole island is visible, from the countless tons of soil that wash into the sea. At one time the native fishermen used a somewhat large European-type schooner, but extensive sections of the rivers are silted up so badly now that more and more of these schooners are sitting high and dry on mud flats, and the fishermen are reverting to the same small-type skiffs and rowboats that their ancestors used generations ago.

Annexed by France in 1896, many thought the island had a bright future if France would colonize it, and the native population was much smaller then. Some French colonists did come, plus some other European, Chinese and Indian settlers, but there were not nearly enough to offset the lopsided weight of the Malagasy population.

There was still room for a lot more people, though, in 1940. The short war between Germany and France ended in June of that year, with Germany the victor. Hitler was keen to find a homeland for Europe's Jews somewhere, and Madagascar seemed like the best bet. Some of "God's Own" were willing to go, but the main Zionist leaders wanted Palestine, claiming that their ancestors had lived there, even though most of them were Khazars who had never lived in Palestine. Hitler, however, must have felt that a Jewish homeland carved out of Arab territory in Palestine would have caused too much trouble with the Arabs, and events have more than proved him right.

Hitler's plan hinged upon a favorable outcome of WWII, which of course did not happen. It seems to have been a reasonable plan, though, and had Germany won, there appears to be no reason why the plan could not have been carried out, in whole or in part.

It is interesting to speculate on what would have happened if most of Europe's Jews had indeed settled in Madagascar. Would the island have been ruled by Vichy France? Or Germany? Or would the Jews have been allowed to rule it themselves? Some say that the Jews, with all their supposed skill at handling money, are no good at running their own country, and that the state of Israel would have gone broke a long time ago if various other countries, and particularly the U.S. and former West Germany, hadn't given them an immense fortune in money, grants, loans and "reparations" over the years.

This may very well be true. But another possible explanation is that the Jews haven't had to shape up. With so many brainwashed and Jewized nations willing to hand over aid to them, why should they shape up? But maybe they could, if they had to.

Even if they are not particularly good at running a country, they have done pretty well in agriculture in Israel, under conditions that are at least partly quite arid and harsh. So, if Hitler's plan could have been carried out, the island of Madagascar would have been a lot better off today, as far as its farmland and forests are concerned.

It became independent from France in 1960, and was named the Malagasy Republic. In 1975 it was renamed the Democratic Republic of Madagascar. A January 1993 report said that Madagascar now has 11 million people. Still it isn't overpopulated, compared to a lot of other countries. But it does have one of the fasted population growth rates in the world.

Coming home from the grocery store, she'd had an unsettling premonition. Something seemed terribly wrong. Her skin got that creepy feeling, the one that children described as "a ghost walking through you." A mother's intuition, perhaps? Hers was well developed, no doubt about it. She turned off the main road and took a seldom used route. Her feelings made her hurry. Forgetting about the bags in the back of the pickup truck, she took a corner recklessly and sent the groceries tumbling.

Her imagination had given her a picture of their house, surrounded by lawmen. She breathed a sigh of relief as she pulled into the empty driveway and parked alongside the kitchen door. God, I feel silly! Why am I being so paranoid? We've done nothing wrong! Still, I'll feel better when Jock gets back... She swung her shapely legs from under the steering wheel and got out, taking the keys with her. Despite her relief, her fingers trembled as she unlocked the kitchen door and pushed it open, leaving the keys dangling from the lock. The house was empty and quiet except for an impatient Congo, who was out on the deck, scratching at the sliding glass door. The sight of him relieved her further as she crossed the wide living room to where the huge Rottweiler was waiting happily, wagging his tail and prancing in place.

Letting him in was easy; getting rid of him was next to impossible! He had been Jenny's constant companion for over eight years. He'd arrived as an adorable puppy, cleverly disguised as an engagement present from Jock, the man with whom she was hopelessly in love. He'd used tiny Congo as bait to trap her into marriage, or so she often teased. For her, it had been love at first sight and she couldn't possibly live without either of them, so she became Mrs. Jock T. Thompson.

After being properly greeted by Congo, Jenny went to check her answering machine. The first message, she was annoyed to hear, was yet another one from the federal education officer, inquiring again about her son and daughter, ages seven and five. "Mrs. Thompson, as you well know, it is, now, one full month into the school year. Dane still has not been enrolled in second grade. Michelle is supposed to begin kindergarten! I have left a message every day this week! Your neighborhood monitor informed on—informed me—that you have been home. Home-schooling was made illegal last year, Mrs. Thompson. I have requested that you be investigated immediately!"

"This creep won't take 'No' for an answer," Jenny observed. Congo gently accepted the biscuit she offered him. The next message was from Jock: "Hi, Darling! I'm still on the road. Won't say where in case Big Brother's listening. Everything went well, so don't worry! We all love you and I'll call tomorrow. Erase this message pronto! Bye, Love."

She did so as the biscuit recipient licked her hand and she smiled down at him. "We missed him. Too bad. Well, I'll just have to deal with Mr. Education Officer myself. With your help, of course, you big monster. In fact, when he shows up, you can answer the door!" As if he'd understood, the nimble giant sprang to his feet and headed for the open kitchen door. "This is a job for Congo!" she mused. Before she'd finished his name, however, a man's bloodcurdling scream pierced the air.

Startled, Jenny turned to the closet beside her and found a short-barreled shotgun and made her way for the kitchen door, where the scream had faded to a whimper. Outside, on the ground, she discovered a very thin, ferret-faced man on his back with his head pressed painfully against the front tire of her Chevy. His torso was covered by Congo, who had the man's throat in his massive, disciplined jaws.

As she stood in the doorway she observed three men to her left, approaching cautiously as if they had run away and were now unsure. She watched them steal up the driveway and decided they were the most repulsive looking thugs she'd ever seen. Were they for real? It occurred to her they might be escaped convicts! Suddenly very glad she'd grabbed the intimidating sawed-off gun, she leveled it at the advancing trio and told them, "Stop!" They had just reached the rear of her long-bed pickup.

"Put that ——— gun down before you hurt somebody!" the shortest of the three demanded in a voice so gratingly nasal that she winced. "I am a federal marshal. We are here to search your house. I am ordering you to call off your ——— dog!" Jenny jerked her head in the dog's direction and without taking her eyes or gun off the three, asked, "Who's that?"

"That-is-Mr.-Finkel! He is the federal education officer for this sector and you are in a hell of a lot of trouble!"

"Congo!" she said firmly, "come!" In an instant, the obedient canine was at her side, teeth bared at the menacing intruders. Mr. Finkel, she noticed, was crying now and had curled up like a baby around the truck tire. Jenny wondered if there were more of them possibly closing in on the house? Better to get back inside, she decided. "That's what happens to idiots who come sneaking up on people," she warned, indicating the pathetic Mr. Finkel with her toe. "If he'd had just one foot inside the door, our dog is trained to attack! From the looks of it, he must have come in without knocking."

"You!" shouted a young, pimply-faced officer who wore the badge of the Special Police, a blue, six-pointed star with the initials, "SP" over it. "You're under arrest for threatening federal officers and Special Police with a firearm and, hey, that's a shotgun and they're illegal, too! You've had it, lady!"

"Put down dat weapon an' get on de' ground!" the other SP shouted. This one was a negro with baleful, bloodshot eyes that blazed with hatred. He and the other two had their hands on their revolver butts. Jenny aimed the shotgun directly at the marshal's head, since he appeared to be the leader, and in her bravest voice, replied, "You go to hell." And with that, she pulled the keys from the door and stepped back inside, shutting it and locking herself in.

Congo began to pace frantically, growling all the while. "Oh, my God!" Jenny rushed to the telephone to call her brother who lived in the next county. "Ray would never forgive me if I didn't call him now..." But as she dialed she realized the line was dead. Stay calm, she told herself, but started as a man's head popped up in the living room window. She swung the shotgun at him and he disappeared. "Checking to see if I'm alone," she whispered to the dog, "and now they know."

But she wasn't alone, not really... Her husband and children were with her, in spirit. She lived for them and would die for them if it became necessary. But physically, they weren't here today because Jock had driven the children to her sister and brother-in-law's home in the Rockies. There he'd left them in anticipation of this battle with the school system. "They're making monsters in those public school factories," Jock had said angrily, "and we didn't have children so we could turn them over to government brain surgeons so they could come back to us with their brains like processed cheese!" And she had agreed wholeheartedly. Their son had always been home-schooled and little Michelle had been too young, until this year.

Jock wasn't due home for several days.

Jenny made her way to her husband's gun room. Pulling the heavy curtains closed, she emptied a box of shotgun shells into a paper bag. She found a brand new five hundred round box of .22s and reached up for her favorite plinking rifle in the rack: the Winchester Model 62 her grandfather had left her. She took everything into the hallway where she could watch both the living room and the kitchen and loaded the rifle with experienced but nervous fingers. This has the same action as that pump shotgun and I won't get confused, she thought. And its fifteen rounds at a time would be handy if this turns into a shootout. I can hold them off with this, she figured.

Cautiously, she made her way to the kitchen and got her purse. She took her snubnosed .38 out and began to feel better. Who would make the next move, she wondered? "That ugly marshal with the foul mouth wants to take me to jail, Congo. You saved me, you know. They were going to sneak up on me and you saved me! Come here, you big hero!" He did and got a kiss on his head and a big hug. But the moment she released him he returned to his frantic pacing by the kitchen door, growling and sniffing at the sill. Jenny was glad that Jock had insisted on leaving the capable dog.

All at once there was the sound of shattering glass! Congo bounded for the living room. Jenny retreated to the shelter of the hallway and picked up her shotgun and thumbed back the hammer of the old Model 97. She could hear heavy footsteps on the deck outside. She kicked off her heels and pressed her back into the wall and raised the muzzle expectantly. Congo was growling ferociously. Jenny dropped down and peeked around the corner and could see him braced in front of the jagged hole in the sliding glass door, his fur bristling, his paws struggling to push away the flower pot beneath him, the flower pot which had just come through the glass. The marshal's heavy New York accent split the air: "Listen, lady, we can do this the hard way or the easy way but either way, we're comin' in! We have a free entry pass here, and you are breakin' the law! Think about your kids... livin' in a foster home... Do you want people tellin' 'em their ol' lady's a ——— fruitcake? Maybe they say it already," he sneered, "but don't make it any harder on 'em!"

So, thought Jenny, Jock had been right! They had come for the children. How utterly evil! Thank God they're safe! The state's deadly fingers would never touch them now. Now, nothing can hurt me. Not these mercenaries and not their weapons. Her precious little ones were free from harm. She got up and pressed herself against the wall again. Surely, she thought desperately, he won't stick his hand through that hole to unlock the door! Surely, he's not that stupid. But Congo's growling intensified then and there was a scream of pain followed by a stream of filthy language and Jenny winced at the nauseating words. There was a shattering gunshot! A heartbreaking thud. "NO!" she cried.

It was then, when all the pent-up rage she'd been storing from all the abuse and intimidation to which she and her family had been subjected, all of the frustration and pain they'd suffered at the hands of their own government was released. Shotgun in her hands, .38 in her waistband, she stepped 'round the corner to deal with the devil just as the sliding glass door slid open. With hot tears of fury streaming down her cheeks, she pumped three rounds into the marshal who was just stepping over her beloved pet, still cursing, his shirt-sleeves shredded and his arm bleeding. The first shot blew him against the door frame... the second and third weren't necessary—they were for Congo.

She knelt down and stroked the face of her lifeless animal. "I'm sorry," was all she could get out, her voice failing. She knew as she stroked Congo that there were at least two more of them. Why didn't they rush me with the first shot?

As Jenny stood up warily, shotgun ready, a bedroom window was shot out. The negro SP suddenly appeared, head and shoulders above the railing of the deck. She was staring right at him! Somewhere in her mind she heard the word, "Pull!" She squeezed the trigger and didn't need to go look to know he was finished. Skeet shooting, she thought ironically, had been her favorite sport until they outlawed shotguns.

What happened in the bedroom? She crouched low and carefully checked but found it empty. Just a bullet hole in one small pane of glass. A diversion, she decided. They wanted to check on the marshal.

They hadn't expected her to go on the offensive. Most women, especially mothers, wouldn't. That gave her the advantage. They probably expected her to faint or give up when they broke the glass door. The marshal had probably been a big shot who'd show the SPs how it's done! Well, he'd showed 'em, all right.

She went back to the dead dog. She held the gun one-handed and pulled a woolen blanket off the couch and carefully spread it over Congo's body. "Goodbye, my friend," she whispered, big tears welling in her stinging eyes.

Her ears were still ringing from the gunshots so it took her a few moments to realize that sirens were approaching. The missing SP must have called for backup. She made her way carefully to the picture window by the front door. She could see four squad cars. One blocked the driveway and three were in the street. She withdrew and could hear the distinctive noise of a helicopter overhead. This looks like my Alamo, she reflected. She and Jock had made a special trip to San Antonio while on their honeymoon. She remembered the plaque near the entrance to that famous battleground:

Be Silent, Friend
Here Heroes Died
To Blaze A Trail
For Other Men

Smoking canisters crashed through windows and a dirty haze filled the air. Jenny didn't need to be told it was gas. Some gas makes you cry and some makes you sick, Jock had told her. She fled the living room into the den, collecting the shells in the paper bag as she went through the hallway. She locked the door and quickly found the gas masks that Jock had bought them at a survival store after their friends had been gassed out of their home in an illegal IRS seizure. She pulled the awkward mask over her head and tugged the straps to tighten it, forcing herself not to panic. I'm going to die with dignity, she resolved, and I'm taking as many of these devil's assassins with me as I can!

She plunged her hand into the paper bag and reloaded the shotgun. As her fingers did automatically what they'd done thousands of times before, she thought how they must have joked at my expense this morning, planning this "simple" capture! Won't these vampires be disappointed when I don't come out coughing and crying? She smiled at the thought of depriving them of this last thing. She looked around, thinking. Jock always says to do the unexpected. She scrambled atop his heavy roll top desk. They won't be looking up this high when they rush in, she told herself, aiming the Winchester at the door.

A few more minutes passed and they seemed an eternity. Then, the door burst open and Jenny's gun exploded into the thick of a nightmare of masked faces coming through the fog. She fired and pumped and fired and pumped 'til the shotgun was empty. She reached for her .38 just as hands grabbed her ankles and yanked her down to the floor where fists and heavy boots pounded her almost senseless. The last thing she saw was one half of a numchuck before it slammed into her head.

***

he gingerly fingered the bump on her head and winced. The swelling had finally begun to diminish last night. It still surprised her that the powerful blow had not killed her instantly! Why am I alive? Why didn't they shoot me? Were they ordered to take me alive? Maybe, she thought, they'll torture me! After all, they consider Jock a leader of the rebellion... It's probably a concentration camp for me...

How long have I been here, she wondered again. I keep losing track of time. No windows and they never turn out the lights. She knew she had passed out when they hit her. That was Friday afternoon. But how long was I unconscious? She shook her head. She'd awakened handcuffed and struggling with a guard on either side of her, practically dragging her through a corridor between rows of cells. She found her voice and delivered a scathing commentary on the episode at her house, the Special Police, marshals and the wicked government in general, only to be shoved against a cold, dirty, graffiti covered wall. One of the guards pressed his body to hers and told her in no uncertain terms what he would do to her if she didn't shut up! She believed him.

She wished desperately that she could wash up. Hours later, a guard appeared and ordered her to do just that. "Yo' is goin' befo' de judge today!" stated the big uniformed black guard.

"What day is it?" Jenny asked.

"Dis be co'te day , woman!"

"But, can't you tell me what day it really is?" She asked desperately, "I mean, what day of the week?"

"Monday."

"Thank you," she sighed. The guard watched as she cleaned her face and hands over the stationary tub near her cell. As he led her back to the cell, Jenny asked him if she could have a rubber band? At first he refused.

"What fo'?" he demanded. But something in the dignified woman's pleading eyes made him change his mind. He found one and gave it to her, saying, "Be quick! We doan' make de judge wait!" and with that, he turned away.

As she braided her hair, she thought of her reflection in the mirror over the stationary tub. I look like a raccoon, she thought. Two black eyes and a cut lip. My whole face hurts but not as much as my aching body. It hurts to breathe but I don't think my ribs are broken. The movements she made to fix her hair caused shooting pains through her arms and torso but she couldn't let herself appear degraded. Then they'd win.

The guard came back. With the rubber band in place at the end of her braid, she stood up. Now, she told herself, I'll go tell that judge exactly what I think of him! I've got nothing to lose now.

"Stop rat theah, woman. Lemme put dese shackles on you!" She stopped and looked down as the jailer fixed the leg irons and belt manacles. "Dey tells me dey shot and killed yo' old man..." The guard was watching her craftily and grabbed the chain belt as her knees buckled. Jenny regained her balance and fought to keep her composure as she furiously reminded herself of the diabolical tricks they would play on her. I will not believe it! I will not believe it! "Okay... come on, woman!"

Judgment Day

"God, I love my job," Herman Cohen had told his caddy just that morning at the country club. Now, seated at the bench in his courtroom in the the county courthouse, he eagerly anticipated the prosecutor's haranguing of Jenny Thompson, the captured wife of a rebel leader. He'd been particularly pleased by her violent arrest. He'd harbored a black hatred for Jock Thompson, who had appeared before him several times before the rebellion on charges of Crimes Against the State and weapons violations. Thompson had managed to beat the system with technicalities. Cohen despised Thompson's scornful independence, his refusal to bow down. Thompson's contempt for authority seemed to fill the air every time he'd entered the courtroom. Technicalities, thought the judge, could no longer be used by the Jock Thompsons of the country; they were the property of the State.

Judge Cohen was a happy man. He would destroy Thompson by destroying his wife. He was practically delirious, envisioning the rough treatment she could receive at his request—and he would request it. He knew where to send her: Everglades Facility for Dissident Women. She'd do hard time in the swamps, three thousand miles from home. A thousand acres of dirty water, alligators, mosquitoes and bloodsucking leeches. And helplessness. More women died there than were released. The federal medication law was in full effect there and the inmates were frequently "going crazy," or contracting AIDS. It was rumored that the prison officials were threatening the injection of AIDS-tainted blood to coerce new confessions and information from the women.

Everything would be perfect, he thought, if that Thompson woman would wipe that dignified look off her face and grovel. She should be frightened, he thought. He looked her over. Obviously a good looking gal when she wasn't beaten up. Even in ugly jail dungarees she has presence... too much confidence. How? Hadn't the jailers done their best to humiliate her for three days? Hadn't they denied her even the basic necessities? Hadn't the foul obscenities and threats against her children broken her spirit? What do these goddamned rebels have that makes them immune to even the harshest treatment? "God, I hate you," he murmured under his breath, his thick lips barely moving. He blinked suddenly as he realized she'd been watching him! Insolent bitch; just like her husband. "Let's get this over with!" he bellowed, no longer able to look at her.

"This court will come to order!" shouted the bailiff, "Judge Herman Cohen presiding!" Jenny glanced at the bailiff as he shouted, twisting to look behind her at the empty spectator area. So, this is how they do it, she thought. No lawyer for me! But what difference would it make? He'd just sell me out anyway. Just a prosecutor and a bailiff and a judge. I guess I can defend myself as well as any court-appointed shyster would in this mock-trial... No cameras allowed in an in camera court trial! Chamber trial's more like it... It's a secret! Nobody knows I'm even here!

"This," began Judge Cohen, "is the sentencing hearing of dissident Jennifer Thompson..."

Jenny gasped involuntarily. Sentencing!

"... who has been convicted of multiple Crimes Against the State which include seditious writings, inciting to riot, distributing anti-State propaganda, membership in an outlawed organization, participating in outlawed demonstrations, destroying evidence, failure to comply with compulsory gun registration, compulsory census returns, compulsory tax returns, compulsory child registration and mandatory public schooling. You have concealed your children from federal education officers and have practiced illegal home schooling. You have failed to use your Social Security number on legal documents. You have failed to obtain Social Security numbers for your children as required by law." The judge paused to catch his breath and wipe spittle from the corner of his mouth.

"Sentencing? What about my trial?"

"You have failed," he continued, "to comply with your federal neighborhood watch program and have refused to fill out and return your weekly watch forms. This criminal negligence gave cause for a lawful entry into your home. You, however, denied lawful entry to two federal officers and two Special Police, who possessed a free entry residence pass for search and seizure. You brandished a loaded, sawed-off shotgun and threatened these officers with bodily harm. When the officers attempted to perform their lawful duties, you deliberately shot and killed a federal marshal and a member of the Special Police while resisting arrest. Subsequently, you deliberately shot and killed four members of the marshal's SWAT team and wounded two others. In addition, you deliberately loosed your trained and vicious attack dog on a federal education officer..."

Cohen looked up. Jenny Thompson returned his gaze evenly. "Does the prosecution have anything further to add?"

"Your Honor," hissed the prosecutor as he stood up, "this despicable dissident has shown that she is incapable of rehabilitation. She is a violent traitor to her country and a cold blooded killer! The People ask for the harshest possible sentence: death by electrocution!"

That's too quick for this one, Cohen thought, but he nodded at the prosecutor. He glanced at Jenny. That must have thrown you, you bitch. You thought you were coming here for a preliminary hearing! These emergency laws were made for scum like you...

Despite her sophistication and awareness of New Reality, Jenny wasn't prepared for this. The electric chair! When, tomorrow? Will the children understand? My sister will explain this, somehow. And Jock—surely he's not dead! Dane and Michelle... what beautiful children! Intelligent and funny, loving and strong. No public school will ever poison those two. They're safe, at least, in the mountains. They'll always be able to think for themselves... What has happened to our country that men such as these—parasites, sadistic parasites—have become our overlords? How—

"Defendant will answer!"

Jenny blinked and looked at the judge. "What?" She hadn't heard him at all. The bailiff was approaching her menacingly, hand on nightstick.

"The honorable judge," barked the bailiff, "asked if you have anything to say for yourself, prisoner!"

"Why?" Jenny cleared her throat. "The question is, what will you have to say for yourself, Judge Cohen? Liar! You, not I, will answer for your crimes. I will say this: I have lost nothing! I have my dignity, my loyalty to the cause. I have betrayed no one, nor will I ever; I would die first. My children are safe and free. I have done the best I could. My husband would expect no less from me. My only regret is that I lost consciousness before I could empty my weapon in every one of your murdering Gun Police!"

"Jailer!" screamed the judge, "Gag her!"

"Never mind," said Jenny. "I'm finished." The bailiff hesitated and looked at the judge and slowly replaced his soiled handkerchief, obviously disappointed.

The prosecutor cried, "This defendant is without remorse, your honor! Justice begs for the harshest possible sentence!"

"The Court agrees," said Judge Cohen, "and hereby sentences the defendant to life imprisonment at hard labor in the Everglades Facility for Dissident Women in South Florida, without possibility of par—"

Suddenly, there were two bursts of gunfire outside the courtroom. The door banged open and an armed guard fell in, dead. Another one lay beyond him in the hallway. Stepping over both of them was Jock Thompson, his submachine gun still smoking. He wasn't happy. The brawny bailiff grabbed his revolver but was blown against the bench in the hail of .45 calibre bullets. Jock's stride didn't falter as he went to Jenny. The judge and prosecutor were frozen in place as she swayed and fell toward him. He picked her up in one arm and went to the dead bailiff, watching the two men from the corner of his eye. Wordlessly, he knelt down and found the keys and quickly unlocked Jenny's shackles as she helped herself free. He picked up the dead man's revolver and handed it to her. Then he stood up and looked at the judge. His anger filled the courtroom.

"I told you I'd kill you if you ever tried this. Remember?" Herman Cohen licked his lips and swallowed. "Do you remember?"

"Thompson, you'll never get away with this! How dare you shoot your way in—"

"You don't remember."

"I'll remember this when we strap you in the electric chair! I'll remember what a dirty son of—"

Thompson's submachine gun came alive and the judge was blown over backward and disappeared behind the high bench. There was a heavy thud and Jock went around and gave him another burst for good measure. The judge's ruined head hung over the trash can. Jenny peeked around the bench and observed, "He was trash!" They heard running footsteps and looked to see the prosecutor making for the door and freedom. Again, Jock's gun blazed and the lawyer fell in a heap. Quickly, he changed magazines and removed his wool jacket, handing to her. As she put it on he gently touched her bruised face.

The Militia

"I knew you weren't dead! I knew they were lying," Jenny murmured. He looked at her wearily and shook his head.

"Come on, my love," he looked her over. "You don't look too much like a jailbird now." He watched her check the bailiff's revolver and snap the cylinder closed. "There'll be time to talk, later."

"But how did you know where I was?"

Jock looked out carefully and conned the hallway before leading his wife out of the courtroom. "Believe it or not, we've got a couple of militiamen in the police... now—let's go!" They darted into the empty corridor. "You watch behind and don't hesitate to shoot anyone with a gun drawn!" They scooted toward the main doors but Jock halted so suddenly that Jenny ran into him.

The sounds of pounding footsteps, jangling key chains and rattling equipment were coming up the stairwell from the basement. With his left arm Jock swept Jenny against the wall and he then hit the floor as a half dozen cops made the landing. Deliberately waiting until all were exposed, he fired a long burst into them, knocking everyone down. Quickly, lying flat as possible and not taking his eyes off the fallen men, Jock again replaced his almost empty magazine. Then he was up and sprinting for the entrance, Jenny hot on his heels. They reached the main doors and as Jock peeked out he warned, "Watch 'em, Jenny! They're wearing bulletproof vests..." She glanced quickly from man to man but none was in shape to harm them.

"Okay, love—here's the drill: we're going down that long walkway to the parking lot and our car which I hope is not blocked. If necessary, we'll commandeer someone else's. Okay? Now!"

He pushed the heavy door open and out they went into the early morning sunlight. "Keep your eyes open, watch for guns—uh oh!" A large black van rolled silently into the parking lot and accelerated up to the courthouse walkway, its back doors swinging open before the thing could be screeched to a halt. Black-suited SWAT shooters jumped out but were startled to see Jock Thompson charging them, submachine gun blazing in short, deadly bursts. Two SWATs were hit immediately and two more fired their assault rifles ineffectually and ran back behind the Black Maria, momentarily rejecting whatever discipline they'd accumulated. Jock bent down and saw their feet and quickly sent a hail of slugs ricocheting into their ankles and calves. Down went two more!

Without looking behind him, he motioned to Jenny to catch up. The wounded SWATs struggled to recover their rifles but Jock put an end to their efforts. "The driver!" shouted Jenny, who saw him lurch from behind the wheel and disappear. Suddenly the ninja-clad SWAT tumbled out the back, clutching an UZI but took a burst of lead before he could get an accurate shot off. Jock pulled Jenny down behind a bench as he again replaced the magazine.

"Oh, no! Jock—look!" Several police cars roared into the parking lot from different directions. Bending low, Jock scuttled to one of the dead SWATs and recovered his assault rifle, checking it quickly.

"Here! It's ready—just pull the trigger!" He held it and she ran up and took it just as they heard a crash of breaking glass behind them. Jock's head jerked at an upstairs courthouse window; a cop aimed his revolver at them as Jenny snapped the rifle to her shoulder and fired three times. The cop was hit and fell back inside.

Then, from within the courthouse, there were muffled gunshots. Jenny searched but couldn't seen any attackers. Jock was searching the parking lot. "Come on, friends, now's the time," he muttered, his vantage point obstructed. A half dozen police were approaching cautiously, shotguns and revolvers clutched nervously. Jenny got down next to Jock and watched the scores of courthouse windows for trouble.

Suddenly—crack! Crack! Crack! Ducking, they both looked at the approaching cops in the lot. Three of them were down and motionless. The other three jumped and looked behind them. "Hey!" cried one, "We're in a crossfire!"

"Throw down your weapons!" boomed a voice in the distance. Jenny frowned and cocked her head. "NOW!" The three patrolmen laid down their guns and raised their hands reluctantly. Instantly, four armed men appeared and rushed the surrendering cops, who cringed slightly. But the men expertly took the lawmen down, handcuffed them and their own cuffs and retrieved the weapons.

Jock sighed in relief and turned to examine the courthouse windows. Jenny whispered, "Who was that?"

"That was your dear brother, Ray!"

"I knew it!"

"Okay, dear—let's get to the car..." On their way, Jock collected the SWATs' weapons and placed them in the Black Maria, collecting from within some of their loaded magazines.

One of the armed men guarded the three prone policemen as his companions approached Jock and Jenny. One of the cops groaned, "Who are you bastards?"

"Mind your manners!" snapped the armed man. "You're talking to a militiaman..."

"...Yeah. I figured as much."

The three militiamen smiled grimly at Jock and his wife. "Good job," said Jock, matter-of-factly.

"Yeah, thanks! We'd have gotten those SWATs, but you were so damned quick!"

Jock nodded. "Always do the unexpected. And always charge an ambush! Now—Mike, drive Jenny out to where Ray is..." Jenny clutched his arm.

"Oh, please, Jock!"

"Dear, we've got some business inside. The safest place I can think of for you is with that ex-Marine sharpshooter out there. You've had enough excitement for a while!" He put his arms around her waist and kissed her tenderly. "You can keep the rifle, sweetie—and these extra mags... Now go... We'll be out of there in a few minutes..." Jenny sighed but obeyed and went with the other man to the gray sedan. Then they were gone.

"Right," said Jock, "let's get these guys tucked away first..." The militiamen pulled the prostrate cops to their feet and pushed them into the back seat of a patrol car, rolling all windows up. The cops didn't say a word, realizing their lives were being spared today.

Then the five militiamen checked their weapons and headed for the courthouse.

Later

Jenny ran up and threw her arms around her husband as he stepped down from the Black Maria. She kissed him and hugged him. "I'm so sorry," said Jock quietly, "you've suffered so... I'm so sorry I wasn't with you at the house..."

Jenny just hugged him, tears pouring down her cheeks. "Congo was so brave, Jock! He saved my life! Twice!" Jock just nodded, too choked up to trust his voice.

"Good old Congo," he finally muttered. He cleared his throat. "Right! Let's get the hell out of here!"

As the militiamen transferred the SWAT weaponry from the Black Maria to their vehicles, Ray emerged from his vantage point. He silently shook hands with his brother-in-law and hugged his sister. "Well, folks—the revolution's under way..." Everyone stopped briefly and looked at the ex-Marine, then went about his business. "All right, boys—let's bombshell and meet you-know-where."

As the men began driving away in different directions, Jenny asked Jock, "What happened in the courthouse? What was the shooting we heard from inside, anyway?"

"As I said, we've got a couple of patriots in the police... We went back in to help 'em clean up... This county's now suffering from a shortage of crooked judges, cops, lawyers and other parasites."

"Did you get the jailers, downstairs?"

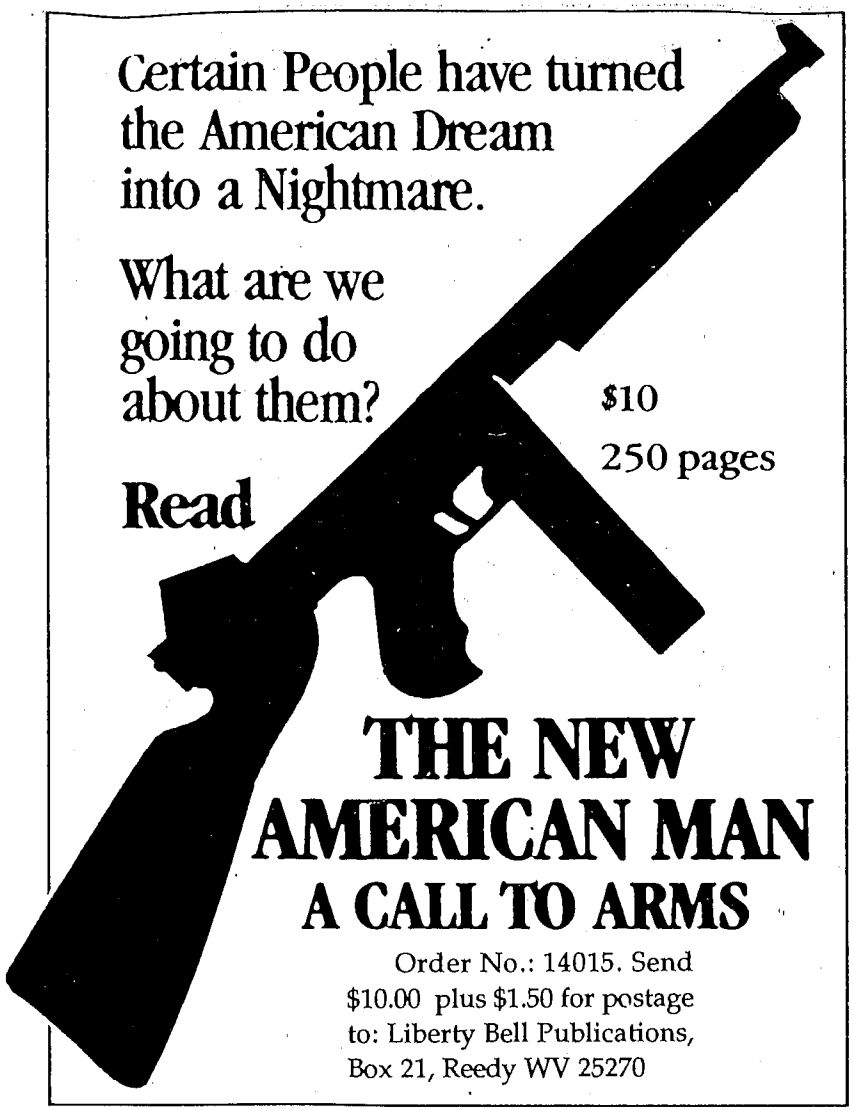
"We got 'em all, honey."

Jenny nodded., She understood. "Jock, let's go get the children..." ❑

Certain People have turned the American Dream into a Nightmare.

What are we going to do about them?

Read



$10

250 pages

THE NEW AMERICAN MAN

A CALL TO ARMS

Order No.: 14015. Send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage to: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270

PLEASE REMEMBER:

Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular contributions are our lifeblood. Help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

OPEN LETTER to

Dr. J. Clayton Lafferty, CEO
Human Synergistics, Inc.
39819 Plymouth Road
Plymouth, MI 48170

December 3, 1992

Dear Dr. Lafferty,

I read your article, "America: A Future Without Achievement?" in Crain's Detroit Business, November 30, 1992. You seem to think we can psych ourselves out of our national decline. I'm sure you make money selling that idea to naive managers.

However, no amount of self-psyching can overcome the debilitating effects of national leaders (from the President, thru his Cabinet and down to the lowest freshman in the House) who are traitors and are deliberately subverting America.

We invented the telegraph, the telephone, the phonograph, the electirc light, the vacuum tube, FM radio, the transistor, the integrated circuit, the modern computer, the laser, the Salk vaccine, the A and H bombs, nuclear reactors, the satellite system, the space shuttle, the fastest and highest airplanes in the world, the CAT scanner, and on and on and on—and yet we are becoming a third rate nation.

How do you suppose we got from the TOP to the BOTTOM, Dr. Lafferty? It wasn't because of any silly psychoanalytic theories as you propose, IT WAS BECAUSE OUR LEADERS DELIBERATELY SUBVERTED OUR NATION TO TAKE ITS PLACE IN THE NEW WORLD ORDER—A VERY LOW PLACE.

You see, Dr. Lafferty, we (the U.S.) are completely under the control of the International Bankers; the Rockefellers, the Rothschilds, the Warburgs, the Pincuses, the Lazares, the Kuhns, the Loebs, the Lehmans, the Goldmans, the Sachs', etc.

When they say "Crap," George Bush squats—like right now!

The well-known fact is these banks have made billions of dollars in unsound loans to third world countries—Mexico and Brazil are two good examples, but there are many others.

These third world countries could never repay the loans so the bankers ordered Bush to export American jobs to these countries, so they could make some profits and repay the bankers. And Bush is using American tax dollars to take away jobs from the Americans who paid the taxes.

It is that simple Dr. Lafferty—you don't need a Ph.D. and esoteric psychoanalytical theories to explain it.

Furthermore, Dr. Lafferty, every time America and the other countries of the world have a war and come out of it poorer than they went into it, you will see if you check, that the International Bankers did just the opposite—they came our of it richer than they went into it.

Why do you suppose, Dr. Lafferty, that the Federal Reserve has never been audited and strenuously fights every attempt to audit it, and why every politician who tries to audit it gets defeated in the next election? IT IS BECAUSE THE FED IS GIVING AMERICAN TAX DOLLARS TO THESE FOREIGN BANKS WHO OWN THE FED—AND THEY WANT TO KEEP IT SECRET.

It is obvious, on the face of it, that anyone who refuses to be audited is doing something shameful they want kept in the dark. Your psychoanalytical theories should tell you that.

I could give you a hundred examples—but I will limit it to just one more. These same International Bankers financed Marx and Engels to write the Communist Manifesto. They next financed the Bolshevik revolution in Russia and murdered the Czar and his family. They actually sent revolutionaries trained in New York City to help in the revolution. Various reasons have been advanced for the above. Three that I value highly are:

1. To punish Russia for passing repressive laws against the Jews in the 1880's.

2. To give Russia a nonproductive economic system (Communism) which would eliminate them as competitors against Western Capitalism and keep their people in penury.

3. To give the Free World (?) a straw man adversary to instill fear of attack in our hearts so we could be bled to death by taxes to create a totally unnecessary military machine to fight the adversary the Bankers had created. The Bankers got the taxes of course, in the form of interest on the national debt.

It's all so simple, it's laughable. But it's so well concealed that nobody (almost) believes it. No grand psychoanalytical theories necessary, all you need to know about is:

1. Dollar power
2. Greed, and
3. Satanic intelligence.

That explains it all, Dr. Lafferty. Even a 12 year old kid (with no Ph.D.) could understand it (Satan is a bit too much for a kindergarten kid).

So if you find any people who put money first, above all else, and are extremely greedy and have Satanic intelligence—then you have found the culprits.

Tho' I have demolished your theory, Dr. Lafferty, take heart—here is a chance to make an easy 100 bucks. I'll bet you 100 bucks that Keith Crain will not print this unexpurgated rebuttal to your article. If he did, he would lose most of his advertising overnight or be kicked out of the NWO Establishment.

Yours truly,
Jack Jones, President
NRG Control, Box 389, Walled Lake, MI 48390

Distribution: Keith Crain/Crain's Detroit Business; Matt Rouch; Read Dunn, President, Franklin Bank, NA., Southfield; Thomas Jeffs II, Vice Chairman/NBD Bankcorp, Inc., Detroit; Edward LeFevre, Chairman/Royal Bank Group, Inc., Royal Oak; Michael Monahan, President/Comerica Bank, Detroit; Will Nill, Chairman/First State Financial Corp., Eastpointe; Forrest Ward, Ernst & Young; Rep. Henry Gonzales; Rep. Bob Smith; Rep. William Broomfield; Sen. Carl Levin; Sen. Don Riegle.

* * *

Jack Jones on

DISINFORMATION (I)

December 22, 1992

Memo to: Criminal Politics; The Spotlight; Northpoint; Aid & Abet; George Eaton; The Omega Times; Christian Research; Karen Meyer; Rev. L. Pulvermacher; Bo Gritz; Len Martin.

There is, in my opinion, SERIOUS DISINFORMATION being spread around by a screwball named George Eaton of The Present Truth, P.O. Box 122, Ponderay, ID 83852. Following are some points from his recent newsletter (If any of you want copies, let me know).

1. The National Guard Armory in McCall, ID was broken into recently and all weapons were taken. I called McCall telephone info and the McCall police station and THERE IS NO NATIONAL GUARD ARMORY IN MCCALL!!!!!

2. UN troops have Ocala, FL surrounded and going house-to-house confiscating weapons. I called my dealer in Miami and he said, "That's absolute nonsense. I have friends in Ocala and I'd have heard about it if it were true."

3. Pratt & Whitney is making F-18 fighters for Japan in West Palm Beach, Fl, making Japan the third largest armed force in the world, and a threat to America.

Now it just so happens that I've spent 8 years in engineering on jet engines, including 2 years on the F-18 fighter.

A. P&W does not make aircraft; they make only engines.

B. The F-18 fighter is made exclusively by McDonnel-Douglas in St. Louis.

4. There is a super patriotic, super rich organization called COSMOS that will save us all from the NWO.

Sure it will!!!!! And its COB is the Tooth Fairy, its CEO is the Easter Bunny and Ross Perot is the janitor who cleans the toilets and David Rockefeller is trying to get Henry Kissinger a job there as a typist.

THERE IS MUCH MORE!!! IT IS TRULY INCREDIBLE.

Either George Eaton is shooting up with something very powerful, or he is a great practical joker, or he is an infiltrator from the enemy. (But the enemy is not so stupid, therefore we must rule out the last reason.) Whatever he is, he gives me a pain in the butt and I would like to kick his.

Some people are actually falling for his stuff, so it might be wise to publish a warning about him in your periodicals.

Sincerely, Jack Jones.

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 (which includes $2.50 for postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003).

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980—except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 (which includes $1.50 for postage and handling). Sample copy of our monthly magazine Liberty Bell and copy of our huge book list containing hundreds of "Eye-Openers," $5.00. Subscription for 12 hard-hitting, fact-packed issues $40.00 (U.S. only). Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

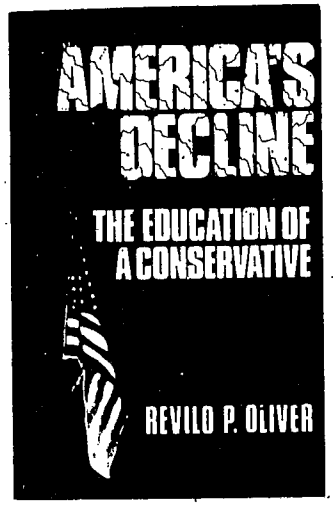
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . , for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congolds unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

The Most Evil Man

An Essay by
Richard C. Bentinck, M.D.
page 19

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Professor R.P. Oliver
POSTSCRIPTS

Clarification
page1;

Calvin Dishonored
page 2;

Divinest Poesy
page 6.

Letters to the Editor
page 39

VOL. 20 - NO. 10 JUNE 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

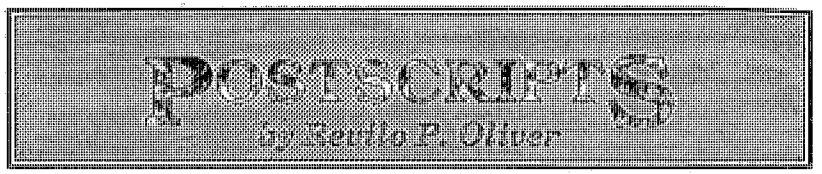
The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher



CLARIFICATION

Communications that I have recently received by mail and telephone oblige me to state precisely the extent of my responsibility for what appears in this periodical.

What I write appears in Liberty Bell without editorial intervention. I am therefore entirely responsible for the content and style of everything that appears under my name, except, of course, for any mechanical slip that may occur between the proof-sheets and the final printing. The editor is responsible only for the publication of what I have written.

Since I have not been blessed with the infallibility of evangelists, I am likely to be guilty of inadvertent errors and oversights. I shall be grateful for corrections, as I am grateful to the valued correspondents who send me useful information, whose names I do not disclose without specific permission.

I write for the tiny number of individuals who wish, not to be shocked by horrors, but to understand their antecedent and sometimes remote causes, so far as that may be possible. My concern is with facts and their causality, not with scribbling egotistic rodomontade. I have neither time nor inclination to disregard our desperate plight by indulging in the now fashionable distraction of lambasting fellow "racists" in billingsgate. And if you wish broadsides in simplified language that (you imagine) will startle a million Americans from their narcotized slumbers, you must apply to some other writer.

I do not finance Liberty Bell. I would not do so, had I the means. That would contravene my principles. I have never subsidized or otherwise contributed financially to the publication of anything that I have written. I do not enjoy composing these little articles. I do so only on the chance that they may help my readers identify strands of the spider's web that has been woven about them and in which they are now held captive and helpless. I write with the hope of fostering in some small way the putative survival of our race and culture. To that end I employ whatever talent I may possess. It seems to me that when I have done that, I have done my part in a normal relationship between author and publisher. If our people do not see fit to arrange for the publication of what I earnestly offer them, then I am mistaken, either about a society that is no longer viable or about the value of what I have written, and it would be an exercise of either futility or vanity to try to force it on the attention of the public. Such is my standard. Other writers feel otherwise. They may be right, but I cannot emulate their self-assurance.

I do not edit Liberty Bell. I do not see articles (other than my own) before they are published in it. I do not want to see them. Such energies as I have left are fully occupied by tasks that I hope I may live to complete. And if that were not so, I would not presume to admonish the editor about what he should include or exclude. If there are articles which offend or disgust you, communicate with him, not with me. I may agree with you, but do not expect me to endorse your opinion. Long ago, when I was young, there yet lingered in the Western world a tradition of courtesy toward one's hosts. An author is a guest at the publisher's table. According to the etiquette I was taught, it would be impolite to throw dishes or silverware at him.

CALVIN DISHONORED

Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Michigan, was founded in 1876 by the Reformed Christians, a sect of dissidents who had left the Dutch Reformed Church about twenty years before. It was named, of course, in honor of the great heresiarch of Geneva, father of all the many sects that profess Calvinism. It is supported by that church, but probably has now also become in some way a leech on taxpayers. It has a faculty of about 280, which presumably tries to teach some four thousand individuals who are charitably called students.

A recent outbreak of academic rowdiness at Calvin is reported by Christian News, 17 May 1993. According to that periodical and its press service, the occasion was a speech given by David A. Noebel to a campus audience of more than 1200 on 22 April under the auspices of the undergraduate Republican Club. The speaker, it seems, discussed the recent act of the citizens of Colorado in denying special privileges to perverts and degenerates.

I have had some correspondence with Dr. David Noebel, who was at one time, and may still be, President of the American Christian College in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Manitou, Colorado, which he rescued from the evangelical pervert generally called Billy James Hoggis. He has written cogent articles and a book on such subjects as the psychological effects of pornography and of music, including nigger-noise and the other kinds of din that are now produced by abuse of instruments designed for music. He now publishes a small monthly journal called the Summit Journal. (Not a pretentious title; The Summit was the name of the once fashionable hotel (originally Bella Vista) on a high hill above Manitou Springs which was given to the College some decades ago.) Although he does not assume the title 'Reverend,' he is, for all practical purposes, a clergyman, one of the very few whom I credit with believing what they say.

To judge from the printed report, the burden of Dr. Noebel's discourse at Calvin College was an argument that the Christians' Bible condemns homosexuality. From the standpoint of a rational society, that is irrelevant, but oddly enough, none of his enemies said so—perhaps because Calvin still claims to be a "Christian college." Evidently, however, he also disapproved of degeneracy on other grounds.

The majority of his audience is said to have heard him with favor and applauded parts of his speech, but he infuriated the vociferous and probably numerous perverts in the "student body" and on the faculty, and the result was a continuing uproar in the gutters.

As one would expect, the punks became hysterical. One self-proclaimed pervert, the Reverend [sic! Who, this side of Hell, would even respect him?] Jim Lucas of the Christian Brotherhood, yelled in print that the address was "poison." An undergraduate pervert claimed that he was "made in the image of God" and would certainly "inherit the Kingdom of God." (All of it?) He was so distressed by the college's failure to prohibit Dr. Noebel from appearing on the campus that he would not return next fall. The college thus received at least one benefit from the address.

What is really disturbing is the reaction of the faculty of the college.

Dr. Lambert Zuidervaart, chairman of the Department of Philosopy [!], demanded an apology from the President of the college for having permitted the statement of doubtless accurate facts that were "hate-mongering" which "acknowledged [the existence of] homophobia [sic]." It is evident from the context that the savant is so ignorant that he does not know that 'homophobia' means 'having the same fears'[1] and thinks that it denotes reprehension of homosexual perverts and similar biological refuse.

Dr. Dale Van Kley, Professor of History [!], yowled in a full-page article that Dr. Noebel's speech was "the filthiest event in this college's history," and, of course, when a "Liberal's" suppurating ulcer breaks open, there is also some pus about the millions of Sheenies who came to infest the United States after the wicked Nazis exterminated them. The self-styled historian is quoted as having described Dr. Noebel's speech as "distilled hatred that would not and should not have been tolerated on any secular campus in this country." I am not sure that all colleges and universities are as rotten as Van Kley claims, but he is probably correct in regarding most of them as incubators of virus more malignant than "AIDS."

1. To know that requires no learning. One need only consider the meaning of the scores of English words of similar derivation: homologous, homomeral, homoethnic, homodox, homophyly, etc.—even 'homosexual'!

The point is that we must tolerate perverts, but must not tolerate persons who do not love perverts. That neatly illustrates the hypocrisy of "Liberals," who plead for "toleration" to facilitate the work of destruction that will enable them to become as intolerant (and happy) as Torquemada. Like their famous ancestor, Robespierre, they yearn to do good with a guillotine.

Van Kley had a solution to the distressing toleration of rational discourse. The faculty should force the college to prohibit addresses for which the funds are supplied by alumni and friends, since the vile Republican Club's modest finances come from such sources. Of course, the college itself subsidizes speakers who are the avowed enemies of our race and civilization, whose spiels are called "political awareness."

A student named Ben Slenk, spokesman for the Republican Club, observed that "The administration here has been very good on this thing [permitting speakers that "Liberals" want to suppress]; the problem is that we've been having to deal with the faculty, not with the administration." He added that the only difference he could see between the faculties of Calvin and "any other state school" was that at Calvin perverts on the faculty are still more circumspect and do not noisily flaunt their leprosy, as their counterparts in the other schools do.

If you should be tempted to send to Calvin College a child of whom you are fond, remember that he will be taught "history" by Van Kley and his no doubt like-minded colleagues, and will be taught "philosophy" by professors selected by the hysterically ranting Zuidervaart.[2]

2. A following article, evidently by the editor of Christian News, admits that if an outspoken critic of degeneracy spoke at Valparaiso University, which is maintained by the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church, the same disgraceful hullabaloo would follow. He also reproduces a manifesto by the organized perverts at the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago. They proclaim that, by God, they're going to be ordained as ministers and will "recruit" male and female perverts who will "openly affirm their God-given orientation."

DIVINEST POESY

A recently deceased nigger called Steve Biko was unofficially made the poet laureate of the African National Congress and the darling of "Liberal" churchmen and intellectuals in our rotting land. His masterpiece is a set of verses entitled "Uhuru Day," from which I copy the following inspiring lines:

I will rape their daughters.
I will kill the living;
I will murder the unborn,
And curse the Whites dead.
For it is they who raped Mother Africa,
For it is they who oppress my Black People.
I will hang them on trees, I will burn...,
I shall kill with all the strength I have.
Kill! Fragment! And eliminate all that is white,
For I will be paving the way for uhuru day.
The time to free ourselves has come.
Blood will ooze! Blood will flow!
And blood will flood the rivers of Africa
And the Black Man shall have his freedom!

These exquisite sentiments send our great humanitarians, who think themselves safe in North America, into tizzies of rapturous admiration. They were the inspiration of all the Jews' stooges who imposed "sanctions" and otherwise harassed the civilized people of South Africa in an effort to force them to abandon the rational policy of apartheid and commit suicide by tolerating insubordinate niggers and their blood-thirsty chiefs, including the pseudo-nigger Mandela,[1] the mass-murderer (chiefly of niggers, whom he, like his mongrel ancestors, must hate) who was given a purse of $20,000 by blood-thirsty clergymen in New York and was reported to have a million dollars (probably from Jewish sources) waiting for him in Europe.

The verses above are a sufficient commentary on the insensate folly of the Aryan imbeciles who taxed themselves to give the black animal an education that enabled him to express his delicate sentiments in English. It is also a commentary on the insanity by which they permitted Jews and their degenerate White stooges to rouse the blood-lust that is an inherent part of Congoid nature.

Congoids are innately savages, but they are normally a feckless and docile people, among whom slavery is simply a natural part of life. Under pressure, at first coercion and now bribery, from White nations, the Congoids have officially renounced slavery and practice it only when they are unobserved.[2] You may be quite sure that as soon as the White people have reduced themselves to debility and poverty, the niggers will reinstitute slavery as a necessary part of their uhuru.

1. He is a Griqua, the spawn of a group of not despicable persons, the result of miscegenation between Capoids (Bushmen, Hottentots) and degenerate Whites, who seceded from Cape Colony and made a home for themselves in a region they cleared by simply exterminating the Bantus. Mandela, so far as is known, has no drop of nigger blood, but the niggers are too stupid to know that. Capoids are a race that is entirely distinct from Congoids. They are noted for steatopypy, which serves the same purpose as a camel's hump, and for the grotesque deformation of the females' genital organs, which is biologically inexplicable. In South Africa today, the term 'colored' is restricted to mongrels resulting from miscegenation between Caucasians and Capoids, and is never used of niggers or mulattos. 'Griqua' is said to be a Hottentot word meaning 'bastard [i.e., mongrel].'

2. In Africa today niggers quite commonly trade a wife or two for a goat, cow, or other more valuable animal. They often give away their children, sell them for a small fee, or use them in sport. I have a copy of a letter from a "Liberal" ignoramus who went to Africa in the "Peace Corpse," and was astonished by the "culture" of the Balubas, who enjoy stringing a razor-sharp machete on a rope and whirling the rope, much as little girls in this country once whirled "jumping ropes." The game is a competition to see which player can toss the greater number of babies through the path of the whirling machete without having them sliced up. Some babies are bisected during the game, but no native is perturbed; there is an abundant supply: easy come, easy go. True to what he had been taught in his moron-mill, the "Liberal" nincompoop solemnly opined that we must not be so bigoted as to criticise adversely the Baluba culture, which is every bit as good as our own.

Congoids, when under the dominion of civilized people, are normally docile, but can be roused to murderous fury.

In the earlier part of this century there was current in nurseries an apologue which may or may not have had a basis in fact. According to the story, an Englishman obtained a tiger cub and domesticated it, keeping it so well-fed that he had the equivalent of a four-hundred-pound cat. All went well until one day the man cut himself, and the discovery that the master had blood aroused the tiger's appetite. He dined on his suddenly deceased owner. The apologue may be applied, as an apt analogy, to Congoids, although their blood-thirst may be aroused by a variety of stimulus, though usually by perception of some weakness in their victims.

Congoids are normally docile when controlled by a race they instinctively recognize as superior, and they, like dogs and horses, are capable of loyalty to their masters. When the savage in them is aroused, they, unless supported by White renegades, do not attack White men who have treated them harshly or even cruelly—they are afraid of them—but attack instead men who have been kind to them, thinking kindness a weakness.[3]

Very instructive is the event with which Clifford Downey begins his concise but comprehensive History of the Confederacy, 1832-1865 (1955; New York, Barnes & Noble, 1992).

In 1831, Southhampton County in Virginia (on the border of North Carolina, east of Emporia and west of the Dismal Swamp) had a population of about 16,700—about what it has today. In 1831 there were 6500 Whites, 7700 slaves, and 1500 freed negroes. (The comparatively large number of the latter, although not at all unusual in the South, will astonish many readers.) There were no large plantations. The more prosperous Whites commonly combined a profession or craft with a 'plantation' that was no more than a farm.

3. Hybrids are, of course, a different matter, and their conduct is less predictable, since they are charged with the incompatible instincts of fundamentally different races. That is true of ordinary mulattos and even more of quadroons. In octaroons the White element is almost always predominant, and some are highly intelligent. The most vicious of all mongrels are said to be sambos, who mingle the blood of two radically different but innately savage races.

A certain Joseph Travis was a skilled coachmaker and had a rather small farm. His was a simple household, and he had no domestic servants. He owned three families of niggers, of which the adults worked alongside him and his son in his shop and fields. The slaves had Saturday afternoon and Sunday off from work, and were encouraged to raise their own garden and to earn money. Turner was a kindly and perhaps too indulgent man. He treated all of his few slaves with kindness, but he had a favorite, a nigger boy named Nat, who seems to have grown up in Mr. Turner's possession.

As Christian, Mr. Turner felt charged with his slaves' spiritual as well as physical welfare and urged them to attend a local church. (Little is known of the White clergyman or his sermons.) Nat was taught to read and was an eager and apt pupil—in comparison with other niggers, of course. He was encouraged to read and "study" the Bible, which made a great impression on him, and he seems to have evinced pietistic or mystical tendencies. His religiosity pleased his owner and doubtless won him further favors.

On the principle of "monkey see, monkey do," Nat began to imitate the White clergyman by preaching to the niggers of the region, soon attracting quite a following, and he became known among his kind as The Preacher. Unfortunately, there seems to be no evidence whether his grandmother, who raised him, practiced Voodoo[4] (secretly,

4. Perhaps the silliest etymology ever proposed and taken seriously is the derivation of 'voodoo' from Vaudois, the French name of the Waldensian sect (the Twelfth-Century 'Pauperes Lugdunenses,' early Protestants, related to the Cathari, whose cult spread from Southern France to Switzerland and the Piedmont; despite centuries of almost constant persecution, the cult survives today, chiefly in Switzerland, where its ministers usually speak 'Bernois,' said to be a dialect of German once spoken generally as Berne; it is unintelligible to Germans.) You will find this absurd etymology in some older dictionaries and it is even mentioned in the First Edition of Webster's New International. The word is common to the native languages of central West Africa, the region from which of course), but that does not matter. Even if he had never heard of it, Nat had Voodoo in his blood. It is the natural religion of his race. And his savage mind was ignited by the Christian doctrine he began to cite, the potentially Communist poison attributed to Jesus, "the last shall be first."[5]

Nat's professed Christian piety doubtless contributed to the privileges given him by Mr. Turner: he was made the "overseer" of his few companions and he was probably exempted from most or all of the work required of the other male niggers, who had to work hard five days of each week. By his orating, he acquired a great influence over the negroes of the region, including, perhaps, some who had been freed. He may not have understood what he was saying; we may be sure that most of his audience did not: they liked the sound, admired what seemed mastery of the White man's most slaves were brought; the various spellings, voudou, vudu, vodu, may represent dialectical differences. It is variously defined as 'sorcery,' 'a witch-doctor,' 'a spirit,' 'fetish,' 'spell,' etc. by Europeans, who want a clear definition, but the dim minds of Congoids do not make such distinctions and the word represents only something supernatural. The companion term, 'ju-ju,' is usually defined as 'a fetish,' and that is what it usually means, but when a Voodoo priest performs an important rite, such as the sacrifice of a 'hornless goat' (now usually a young child, gladly supplied by its parents), he is said to 'make ju-ju.' Voodoo is much practiced by niggers in the United States, not exclusively in the South, since it is popular in Detroit and similarly infested cities. The current occupant of the Papal See is trying to incorporate Voodoo in his "One World" religion, but has not yet pronounced whether the ceremony of a "hornless goat" is an acceptable substitute for the Eucharist.

5. The dangerous doctrine is proclaimed twice in Mat., 19,30; 20,16; in Marc., 10,31; and Luc., 13.30. So long as this was explained as referring to an imaginary Heaven or to a "Kingdom of God" to be established on earth someday in a putative future, it was relatively harmless, but it obviously suggested to malevolent agitators the "social gospel" of Marx and the overthrow of civilization to produce at once the New Jerusalem and the New World that Jesus, according to the Apocalypse, was going to set up for homosexual Jews after he exterminated mankind.

language, and the flow of words to which they may have attributed a magical power.[6]

Nat nursed and matured his plans in secret for some three years until he was thirty. His own explanation of his conduct was that in the spring of 1828 he heard "a loud noise in the heavens" and "the spirit instantly appeared to me and said the Serpent was loosened, and Christ had laid down the yoke he had borne for the sins of man, and that I should take it on and fight against the Serpent, for the time was fast approaching when the first should be last and the last should be first." Note that this typical fit of religious insanity made Nat the appointed successor of Jesus, i.e., a nigger Christ.[7]

It was nicely ironical that on Sunday, 25 August 1831, the Travis family spent the day at what was called a "camp meeting," listening to the rant of evangelists, which they probably took seriously, and incidentally profiting from the opportunity to meet White families of the county who were not immediate neighbors. Nat, after giving his followers enthusiasm from a copious supply of brandy, organized the seven in whom he had confidence to carry out his plan,

6. In the Belgian Congo during the late 1920s there was formed a secret society of Congoids to promote uhuru or whatever may have been the equivalent of that word in their dialect. They attributed some mystic power to the ceremonies in which their leaders, dressed in clothing stolen from the Whites, enacted a banquet, to which niggers in evening dress ceremonially escorted male niggers in evening gowns, and delivered orations that consisted of jumbles of whatever scraps of orotund French they were able to remember, often with phrases in the most ludicrous juxtaposition, and entirely meaningless. But the creatures seem to have felt that they were thus making big magic in preparation for their "liberation" from civilized rule. This is a good index to the racial mentality of Congoids, on which see the excellent article by Noël Hunt that I extracted in Liberty Bell, May 1986, pp. 9-16. He reminded us of the basic truth that "A White man can no more think like a Black than he can think like a bee."

7. Recently a nigger named Tom Skinner, who had long performed for the famous hokum-monger, Billy Graham, broke ranks and repudiated a white Jesus, demanding a black successor. He called "for the abolition of existing institutions and the erection of new ones that will be relevant to the black community." The soul of Nat the Preacher goes marching on.

doubtless adorning it with typical rodomontade. Since Nat seems to have been a comparatively puny nigger, it may be significant that of the seven, one, Hark, who was devoted to Nat, also belonged to Mr. Travis and was "a magnificently and powerfully built black man," suggesting an alliance between cunning weakness and stolid strength, such as sometimes has sexual implications. Two of the other recruits belonged to Mrs. Travis' brother. The ownership of the rest is not recorded.

At ten o'clock the conspirators, one of whom had kept the Turners' house under observation, broke into the house without awakening the family. Nat, armed with a hatchet, tried to split the skull of Mr. Turner, whom he doubtless despised for his kindness, but the blow was a glancing one, and one of the Preacher's followers had to split Mr. Travis' skull with a broadaxe and then perform the same service for Mrs. Travis. It is to be noticed that on this and many subsequent occasions, Nat, who must have been both awkward and comparatively weak, was never able to strike a killing blow with either axe or sword, and his work had to be finished by his followers.[8]

The rest of the Turner family was speedily butchered. The black Christ and his seven henchmen dressed themselves in the White men's clothes and, finding some red cloth, tore it up to adorn themselves in keeping with their racial instinct.[9] They also acquired four shotguns, several muskets, and powder-and-shot, and set out to surprise and butcher other White families in the neighborhood, with notable success.

It is unnecessary to detail the career of the rabid niggers. They succeeded in slaughtering a total of between fifty and one hundred White men, women, and children, usually mutilating the corpses with their instinctive

8. He is said to have succeeded once in killing a woman who was already wounded and unconscious.

9. In the days of the slave trade, a nigger, especially a young one, could often be bought from his family for a few yards of bright red cloth.

savagery. The series of attacks on isolated families is outlined by Clifford Downey, op. cit., pp. 16-22, to which I refer you.

We need notice only what is particularly significant. (1) The Preacher's success brought him many recruits, eager to join the fun, including—nota bene—some freed negroes, who owed their freedom to the kindness and generosity of the master who liberated them for meritorious service or liberated all his slaves by will. (2) Some slaves remained loyal to their masters, warned them and tried to help them hide; there are even instances in which they fought for them. (3) A certain Captain Barrow held off the whole gang of murderers for some time and until a nigger got him in the back. His courage and prowess so impressed the Preacher and his men that they cut off his head and drank his blood. That, of course, was only natural, although it may be odd that they did not also eat selected parts of him.[10]

The black Christ with sixty or more disciples met their first check when they encountered a band of eighteen White men, who opened fire. In the brief combat which followed, the boldest niggers were killed and the rest fled. The Preacher with some twenty followers escaped and headed for the next county, where he obtained some fresh recruits. They thought to creep up on the home of Dr. Blunt, a prosperous physician who had an establishment that, though modest, really deserved the name of plantation. After the marauders broke in the gate of the surrounding fence, Dr. Blunt, his fifteen-year-old son, and his manager opened fire with muskets and shotguns that were reloaded by the women of the family. A few volleys sufficed to kill some niggers and daunt the rest; then Dr. Blunt's slaves, armed with hoes and other improvised weapons, set upon the assailants, who ran. Ned had only a dozen disciples left when the cavalry of the Greenville-County militia rode them down, killing or capturing all except Ned and two of his men. He managed to hide until October, when a poor White farmer captured him.

10. You may recall that when Aryan idiots made the Ivory Coast a "free and independent republic," the leading natives so admired their Ambassador to the "United Nations" that when he returned home, they ate him, intending, of course, thus to acquire his talents.

Ned and fifty-two accomplices, including five freed negroes, were brought to trial. They were given a fair trial. The freed negroes were allowed to appeal to the Supreme Court. Some were hanged, some transported, and a few acquitted.

Nat's apostolic effort was just an outbreak of nigger savagery, with "freedom" and Jesus no more than convenient slogans, but it was called a "slave revolt," as indeed it was in one aspect and on a small scale. It reminded everyone of the real insurrection of slaves on the island of Hispaniola, where, probably incited and certainly abetted by degenerate Frenchmen and British missionaries and soldiers too stupid to know what they were doing, the niggers succeeded in exterminating the civilized population of the part of the island known as Haiti, which has remained a festering jungle ever since.[11]

In Boston, the news of "Nat Turner's rebellion" and the comparison with Haiti excited a misfit, William Lloyd Garrison, his mind seething with organic hatreds, who published a seditious newspaper called The Liberator and is usually called the founder of Abolitionism. It is only fair to notice that the revolutionary poison only slowly affected New England. Garrison was mobbed by sane persons in Boston, and for a long time Abolitionists were regularly run out of towns such as Lowell. Garrison, however, was able to enlist a wealthy, superficially well-educated, and idle young man named Wendell Phillips, who had some oratorical talent he yearned to display and a wife whose little head was crammed with feminist do-gooding.

11. On this bloody affair, see Lothrop Stoddard's The French Revolution in San Domingo (New York, Scribners, 1914; reprinted, s.l.& a., c. 1970).

Garrison and Phillips together launched what a judicious contemporary at once recognized as "a crusade in the name of liberty but with the purpose of plunder." That was the start of a revolutionary movement that was inspired by all the blood of the French Revolution but prudently used the fancied plight of niggers in the South as a means to power and outrage.

In Virginia and the South generally the reaction was essentially one of shock. Haiti was far away and in the past, and Southerners had grown complacent about the labor on which their economy depended. The demonstration of what the beasts were capable, if they got out of control was dismaying. It was as though horses had suddenly conspired to turn upon their owners.

In Virginia, where the economy was less dependent on crops that could be cultivated only by Congoids and the climate did not make field work by White men suicidal, there was among the planters a very considerable sentiment for a sane policy of emancipating the Congoids and shipping them back to Africa, on the model set by the Great Emancipator, who was not Dishonest Abe, but John Randolph of Roanoke: he emancipated by will his four hundred slaves and provided for their return to the continent from which they or their parents had been brought. That example naturally aroused the fury of Garrison and his fellow conspirators, who for decades decried, sabotaged, and frustrated every sane effort to terminate slavery, because they wanted freed niggers kept in the South so that they could make it a new Haiti.[12]

The subsequent disaster, the Americans' first fit of murderous righteousness, is beyond the purview of this article, 12. Garrison deprecated violence with an hypocrisy that should have deceived no one. So far as I know, no historian has tried to determine the extent to which the Sheenies instigated, fomented, and subsidized the blood-thirsty Abolitionists. God's People, you may be sure, did not overlook so efficient a means of carrying out their mission to destroy every nation they succeed in penetrating (e.g., Exod., 23,27 in the Jews' story-book; cf. Deut., 31.3 et passim).

in which I have adduced the events of 1831 in Southampton County only as an illustration of the natural behavior of Congoids, especially toward White men who show them kindness and generosity, when their blood-lust is aroused.

Ned the Preacher in 1831 and Steve Biko, a hundred and sixty years later and in a totally different environment, both responded to the same racial instinct, which had been acuminated, and perhaps aroused, by education given them by foolish White men. That is only what we should expect. Everyone knows that biological species do not evolve or change in periods of less than geological time.

A rose is a rose, and a nigger is a nigger. He is a nigger whether he is anointing himself with elephants' dung in a squalid hut on the banks of the Zambezi or is riding in an air-conditioned, custom-built, chauffeur-driven Rolls-Royce.[13]

Innumerable tons of paper have been wasted on discussion of what is now called "inner city crime" by one of the sneaking circumlocutions with which the prostitutes of journalism construct booby-traps for their readers. There is endless drivel about "poverty" and "education" and "prejudice" and "urban pressures," all leading to the conclusion that the nasty White people have not impoverished themselves enough. There was only one cause of "inner city crime": niggers—until our rulers added a second by importing millions of half-breeds from Mexico. And unless the now aroused niggers are exported or beaten into servile fear and obedience by measures that would make do-gooders scream and swoon, that crime, in the "inner city" and in the "exclusive" suburbs and even in small towns still preponderantly white, will constantly increase until the jewspapers will no longer be able to fool their readers,[14] who will have personally experienced the consequences of petting and cherishing innately savage animals.

13. For example, the witch-doctor's purple limousine (specially built for him, of course, at the expense of Aryan imbeciles) described by Isaiah Oke in Blood Secrets (Buffalo, New York; Prometheus Books, 1989), an important book on which I have yet to report in these pages.

Today, Americans gladly send their children to boob-hatcheries in which skilled educators grab the child by the neck, rub his face in garbage to extinguish his self-respect, and inject the diseased pus of "One World," to make the little imbecile deny the evidence of his senses and believe that there are no racial differences between species of talking anthropoids. My younger readers may not realize how recently this program of induced dementia has been carried out.

A good illustration of what was normal recognition of the obvious a few decades ago may be found in the work of the late Robert A. Heinlein, who was the most prominent and successful writer of the kind of stories that is called "science fiction." You must understand that Heinlein did not write literature, that is, works of verbal art created according to aesthetic and philosophical principles. He wrote, as he liked to say in both conversation and in print, "to buy groceries," i.e., to please and entertain as many readers as possible. He was anxious not to offend the sensibilities of any. That is why I now cite a story, The Sixth Column, which, after preliminary publication in a "pulp" magazine, was published as a book by the Gnome Press, c. 1949, and reprinted in 1951 under the title The Day after Tomorrow by the New American Library in New York.

As the story opens, the United States has been totally conquered by the PanAsians (i.e., the Japanese, who have obtained control of China and formed a Mongolian Empire). A sudden attack with atomic bombs has annihilated New York and Washington (the major pest-holes of the country, as Heinlein is careful not to say). All that has not been occupied by the Mongolians is a secret military research laboratory located under one of the Rocky Mountains. The five men in that laboratory who have survived a disastrous experiment set out, under the command of a major of Military Intelligence, to reconquer the United States. To attain their seemingly mad purpose, they have only two resources:

14. The jewspapers habitually suppress or falsify news of such crimes so far as possible, admitting the event only locally where the news would circulate by word-of-mouth and so expose their censorship. A sampling of current nigger crimes can usually be found in current issues of Instauration (P.O. Box 76, Cape Canaveral, Florida; 32920; $30.00 per annum) and The Truth at Last (formerly the Thunderbolt; P.O. Box 1211, Marietta, Georgia; 30061; $15.00 per annum). They can, however, report only a very small part of the horrendous total.

(1) The genetically innate differences between the Aryan and the Mongolian minds, making it possible for an Aryan aware of those differences to outwit a Mongolian.

(2) A phenomenal scientific discovery of a "magnetogravitic spectrum," which is analogous to the familiar electromagnetic spectrum, and of means to control that spectrum, just as we now control light, Roentgen rays, and the rest of the electromagnetic spectrum. This makes possible seemingly miraculous effects, including a "death-ray" which may be attuned to the physiological differences between races and thus made selective, i.e., at one frequency it will kill only White men, at another, only Mongolians, etc.[15]

The entire story, you see, depends on the facts of fundamental racial differences, such as the boobies are now forbidden to perceive. I think it almost certain that it is no longer in print. A week or so ago, I mentioned the book in conversation with a friend of mine who had remarked that he particularly enjoys Heinlein's writings and collects them. He had never heard of this book under either of its titles.[16]

15. I need not tell you that the Americans are saved in the story, which was, indeed, prophetic in many details, since the PanAsians oppress the conquered Americans by imposing many measures (such as "social security" registration) to which those hapless creatures now unthinkingly submit.

16. Heinlein may himself have become diffident about this novel. Around 1960 he planned a series to be called "Future History," tracing the history of the United States and the earth from the Twentieth Century to the end of the Twenty-Second, and dealing largely with interplanetary and intergalactic travel, but including such things as a theocratic and Puritanic dictatorship in this country c. 2090. He omitted the Day after Tomorrow from the list of books already published in the series as he outlined it.

THE MOST EVIL MAN

An Essay by
Richard C. Bentinck, M.D.

©Copyright 1993 by Richard C. Bentinck, M.D.

In all groups of social animals, there is a ruler—a dominant individual, usually a physically powerful male. His purpose is to serve the group as its leader, its protector and guide to food and often he is the source of most of the male complement of its gene pool. He does not share his power. He rules because he is strong and only so long as he can, by physical prowess, defend his position.

Man brought a new essence to life. As his brain expanded, so did the scope of his curiosity and he added guile to his armamentarium. No longer did the leadership of the group necessarily belong to him whose strength was purely physical nor was leadership vested any longer in a single individual. In the beginning, man's curiosity extended from an investigation of what edible morsel might be found beneath the nearest rock to the world around him and the skies above.

But, even then, man went beyond. While nature decreed that he live in the present, his concept of self and his inability to accept the possibility of personal extinction, drove him to live also in the future. Thus, he supports two leaders; the one to protect and guide the needs of his physical being and another to assure him of meaning to his existence and to guide him into a later world where all his wishes are fulfilled and he may exist forever in ecstasy.

And, from the beginning, there always was one who said he had all the answers and knew well the path.

In the beginning, this 'spiritual leader', priest or medicine man probably was not malign although he was an opportunist. He was clever, guileful, probably physically weak or even congenitally deformed. If he should look or seem different in some way from his peers in the tribe, it is only human to hold him a bit apart and attribute to him facilities the others lack, particularly if he claims to have powers beyond their comprehension. He fascinated others by exaggerating his difference. In all likelihood he was lazy. He grew fat. He enjoyed the soft bed he had made for himself and found succulent and tasty the sacrifices he required to the powers he claimed to represent. He had no wish to destroy the basis of his relative luxury. He lived for his lifetime alone. He was brilliant and sometimes even insane. He honed to a pinnacle a characteristic that is almost exclusively human. This man's prey was his own kind.

Agriculture was invented. As the tribes of man ceased their wandering and coalesced into stable city states, the lucrative business of religion was no longer left to the isolated medicine man. Religion became organized. It was the first privately held big-business corporation. As such, it assumed a life of its own that far exceeded the three score and ten allotted to its officers and their consumers. From the beginning, these corporate organizations were potentially immortal.

Just as no system of economics yet devised can see its immortal future as a mature state of static no growth, churchly religion, as a big business, is dedicated to perpetual growth.

Perpetual growth of a producing business enterprise requires an ever-expanding market for a product that fills a real or created need. It can achieve this either by building a limited useful life into its manufactured artefact so that it wears out and must continually be replaced, by continual "improvement" of its product, by increasing the numbers of its customers or by a combination of all three methods. But, the churchly religion business cannot achieve its desired growth by these methods. It does not market a material product than can be obsolesced or continually "improved" so that the full cost of a replacement must be expended repeatedly by the consumer.

Its single product, a doctrinal notion asserted without regard to rational evidence, truth or basic need is based upon an alleged one-time event that is not susceptible to proof of either occurrence, quality or utility. It is a unique invention that cannot be improved. Organized religion advertises that the delusional system it sells holds the answers to all of mankind's deepest questions while it promises the means to the fulfillment of his most arrogant hopes. It markets a lie dressed in pomp and ceremony.

It solves the marketing dilemma of a static product by requiring its consumers to buy the product in installment payments over their lifetimes with a balloon payment at death if the devout decedent has any remaining resources. This deathbed pauperization supposedly assures that the decedent will not face the same frustration as that stupid camel of "eye-of-the-needle" fame.

This is simply good marketing strategy as is used by any successful corporate enterprise whose claims and promises seldom confront reality.

One of the standard avenues to growth remains open to it. It can grow by increasing the numbers of its customers by converting existing populations to its product. This it does very effectively through hard- and soft-sell methods. But this does not solve its greed for consumers into perpetuity. Perpetual growth over time is assured and maximized only if subsequent generations of consumers can be enhanced in numbers and sensitized to desire an unchanging product and made to believe that it is unchanging because it always has been the ultimate in quality. They must believe that it could not be made better.

Organized churchly religion has devised a unique and highly effective means of increasing the numbers of its consumers into perpetuity that is available to no other business entity. It has incorporated into its product—its authoritarian dogma—the requirement that, in order to enjoy the full benefit package, the consumer must reproduce to his or her maximum capacity. This serves a two-fold purpose. First, it increases the numbers of consumers exponentially across generations. Second, by requiring parents to allow their children to be instructed by the church about the benefit package from birth onward, its salespersons are able to establish lifelong allegiance to the product as a conditioned reflex. It is as if a producer of diapers were able to brainwash its infant customers so that they would feel fearfully guilty and undressed unless they wore diapers to the end of their lives.

Through this ploy, the churchly enterprise is virtually assured of an exponentially increasing market that, procreating mindlessly, eventually must overwhelm the ability of the earth to support life. The principal by-product of organized religion is people. The only way it can grow perpetually is to provide that more people are exponentially produced in perpetuity. People exist only as producers of yet more people and as consumers. As consumers, religion's by-product must, above all else, be prepared to consume religion's own dogma. The by-product of organized religion has, then, only the functions of reproduction and allegiance to its dogma. These aspects of its market, along with quantity or sheer numbers, organized religion monitors and controls closely. Aside from the reproductive efficiency of its by-product, its only other quality concern is that its consumers be docile and accepting towards the administration and exist in mindless ignorance.

Herein lies one of its most destructive tenets since it cannot tolerate any increase in what civilization always has referred to as the quality of man and his life situation. It cannot tolerate a thinking consumer because a thinking consumer, a thinking human being, is a danger to any scam. A human capable of logical thought is the only thing that could destroy the business of organized religion. And this is why its over-all influence is to halt, not only evolution of the human animal, but also any socio-cultural evolution that might advance the quality of life on earth for all organisms. It thrives on ignorance, filth and poverty.

Its consumers must scramble for sustenance. Whether the scramble is by legal or illegal means, is of no real consequence to the church. It can forgive. It leaves its consumers only sufficient leisure to perform the only act remaining to its pauperized mental and material resources: the act of fornication. This it holds sacred, next to allegiance, as the most basic of consumer rights and duties. It is an act, not to be enjoyed for its own sake, but only for the "joy" of having impregnated or conceived. The concept of responsibility for the consequences of the act is not to be considered by either party.

Organized religion is a monolithic hierarchical organization. Its Chief Executive Officer, its CEO, sits at the apex of a pyramid. It is anything but democratic and this, perhaps, is why it has lasted so long. There is no possibility of serious internal dissent. The CEO, the Pope, is not responsible to its Board of Directors, the College of Cardinals, for example. He may take their advice, but it is not binding upon him. He has declared himself infallible. Consequently, what he says, goes. He, then, is solely responsible for the actions of his organization. He, and only he, must bear the onus.

Organized religion is a system of beliefs supporting a monolithic factory. Its net product is reproducing machines from which it collects a profit. Its dogma, or by-laws, does not spring, full-fledged as a revelation from somewhere on high. It is an invented thing. All organized religions have been invented by a person or group of persons in the name of a person, either real or distorted or wholly invented, to whom, in retrospect, mystical powers have been attributed. The inventor—or inventors—had a reason to invent and establish, through the development of an elaborate system of deception, their organized delusional system. The reason, consistent with all human motivation—even of altruism—must be personal gain of some sort such as personal ease, luxury and power. While the person of talent may meet his expectations through his talent, the man with no talent and great expectations, like a politician or a priest, must exploit the abilities of others.

Unless these inventors were insane—and through the ages, they could not all have been insane—they had to know that what they had invented was just that—invention. They had to know that their invented doctrine had no basis in reality and was, in fact, as false as the attributes they had given the mythicalized figures they had named as the founders of their organizations.

But they also knew, as practice proved, that the increasing multitudes would accept their delusional system as fact. They, the priests, had to have become the ultimate cynics. They developed a profound contempt for all of mankind because of the self-seeking gullibility mankind demonstrated by their subservience to themselves, the priestcraft. This contempt, transmitted to the organization they served, became in the organization's grand and immortal view, contempt for all life. Bound by its own perverted ideology, it has no moral imperative and in no way is the fount or origin of moral precept and behavior. Mindlessly, it seeks to destroy that which it has come to abhor.

Paul, the inventor of Christianity, was just such a person. Today, he would be a successful television evangelist. Then, he was the opportunist par excellence. Upon the dogma he concocted from the myths of the world that preceded him and an otherwise obscure political activist, rose the Catholic Church in its awful eminence. The Pope who, under many aliases, serves this monolithic monster is the most evil man the world has known.

His hatred for life is unbounded. In theistic terms, he is opposed to all that god has made. In secular terms, the "good" that god has made is all of nature—the universe and all that it may be and hold including the tiny particle upon which we exist, planet earth. And the greatest god, in earthly terms, must be the freedom for all that is natural of planet earth to realize its potential. The greatest evil must be that which opposes and frustrates the greatest good. Throughout man's history, good and evil have been portrayed as locked in mortal combat. Depending upon the viewpoint and motives of the identifier, more often than not, each has been misidentified as the other. Within the bounds of human knowledge, neither good nor evil can be defined in the absolute sense since we know neither the meaning nor the purpose of the universe or even if there be purpose or meaning. We do not know for sure whether or not there has been a beginning nor if there will be an end. After millennia of delving, science can say with certainty only what is not; things are not as they appear to be. Reality is ephemeral. Perhaps, even, there is no reality!

In order, then, to define both good and evil in terms that have meaning to our macroscopic conception of reality as cognizant beings existing in a minute portion of unmeasured vastness, an assumption must be made. It must be assumed that the reality of life on earth is "good." And that assumption must refer to each and all of the living things that compose the biosphere. This is the ultimate equality, a unity against entropy. Each and every living thing has equal rights to pursue its destiny before the judgement of time. These rights are enforced by the precisely balanced interdependency of each upon the others. Disturb this balance and all suffer. Whatever promotes the balance of nature and permits every form of life, each species, to exist within a natural biosphere and to pursue its evolution to either perfection or natural extinction must be assumed to be the ultimate good. Conversely, whatever may act by unnatural means to frustrate or interfere with this balance of nature in a manner or to an extent that overwhelms nature's ability to recover or brings to unnatural extinction a species, must be the ultimate evil.

Man had nothing to do with the creation of this homeostasis. Nevertheless, as painfully recent arrival upon this scene, he has been informed by Christian edict that it was all created specially for him and it was his right to use nature in any manner that he wished. What can make possible such a misinterpretation of all that surrounds him?

What is evil of this magnitude? It is not merely "bad." What is 'bad' may befall anyone or anything at any time simply as a matter of circumstance. Even if contrived, 'bad' tends to be relatively minor. It does not send chills to the depths of being, it does not repel with horror when found. A shrug of the shoulders, 'it was just bad luck'. It just happens. Unmitigated evil, on the other hand, must be contrived by an informed and highly intelligent mind. The ultimate evil must contemplate the ultimate harm and eventual destruction of the ultimate good. There must be malice and deception, deliberation and calculation of fiendish proportion. What is done must be done knowingly with full intent to utterly destroy its target. For centuries, the Pope's unhurried aim has been directed against all that is good.

What qualifications must this paradigm of all that is evil possess? What character of man is he? Male he must be—and have been—because the doctrine that supports him reviles and demeans women as lesser creatures whose sole function is to serve the male as a receptive vessel of all which may be tossed her way.

He cannot be a mental defective. The mental defective cannot be evil. While he may do 'bad' things, isolated acts that conceivably could be as bad as an isolated act of the evil man, he could not, with limited abilities, integrate over the millennia these individual acts into a plan which at its fruition will utterly destroy the earth's ultimate good. Forgive of doing evil him of low intellect, for he knows not what he has done. His limited span of attention could not allow him to devote himself single-mindedly over his many lifetimes to such a goal.

No, the paragon of evil is not a retard. He is not stupid. Nor is he ignorant. While ignorant man may have a superlative brain, his mind is undeveloped either because the will to know and learn is lacking or the opportunity never occurred. Without a broad and deep knowledge, the evil man could never have selected and then maintain through the changes of the ages the single thread that surely must bring about the end of all life on earth.

It takes intelligence. It requires an informed, educated mind to have selected and maintained with dogged purpose a means of destruction that can masquerade as the greatest good. While 'good' has no reason to masquerade as that which it is not, the repugnance of evil will always require that it cloak itself in a mantle of 'good.'

Perhaps this man may be forgiven because he is insane. After all, the destruction of all life on earth cannot be the goal of a sane man., can it? Perhaps he needs help.

While he may be the ultimate psychopath or sociopath, he is not insane. He knows what he does. He does it consistently, without variation except superficially in order to adapt his malevolence to changing conditions. There is none of the unreliability of behavior that is the mark of insanity. Insanity could never bide its time, could never persist through generations so unrelentingly to its goal. With the charisma that often marks the sociopath, he inspires the ignorant masses to worship and follow him blindly in their march to his hell.

He knows the meaning of the "balance of nature" and what could most surely upset it for he has always had at his disposal all the knowledge that man has laboriously gleaned over the millennia. He is always a highly intelligent, educated man. And he is jealous of his knowledge.

Over the centuries, his organization has systematically sought out and destroyed those who delved into the workings of nature. Writings, contrary or dangerous to his own dogma, were buried or burned. Cleverly, he selected himself as the appointed guardian of all that is true and right. Those who disagreed were, quite simply, wrong. If they could be made through torture to retract their writings and admit their wrong, they were spared further torture and killed quickly. If not, they were killed horribly and their writings burned or secreted from unauthorized scrutiny where knowledge that could change history still exists today. If, at times, it became awkward to maintain older ideas for which men had been killed, he would reverse himself in effect while cleverly mouthing circumlocutions that made him paradoxically seem correct in each of his opposing views. He promulgated ignorance and has always looked upon education, other than that sanctioned by himself and given by his minions, with displeasure.

Why should this man who enjoys the adulation of billions and the fantastic wealth and power mulcted from them through devious deceit wish to destroy the basis of his position? Through his many lives, he has lived in ultimate luxury with every material benefit that life could offer. He has denied himself nothing though he professes poverty and abstinence from all earthly pleasures. Strangely, his duality blinds the eyes of his adulators. Somehow, they fail to see his deceit. But he has more. When all the material things of life are at hand, man still has the capacity to desire more. Power is both the ultimate aphrodisiac and the ultimate orgasm. The power of life and death, the power to destroy, is absolute power. In his little way, the terrorist feels that the sacrifice of his own life is worthwhile if he is able to inflict even greater sacrifice upon others. The greater the damage, the greater his happiness in his own death. The greater the evil created, the greater the evil creator. Through the millennia, it is this that has sustained this man of many lives in his direction of the organization called the Christian Church. At once, its evil transcends him as it creates him while it chains him to its contorted icons.

The doctrine of total death, the ultimate power of powers, has marked his single-minded purpose of his dominance of this diabolical entity. The end of all life is simply the final manifestation of united hatred and contempt for the billions who, in their blind ignorance, had adored him and had followed his church to their deaths, bringing all living things with them. He is the most successful huckster of all time.

This most evil of all men whose brilliant mind is twisted by hatred and power-lust cowls his ugliness with the ultimate arrogance of dominion over all of nature by right of his personal goodness. His practical sense advises him to avoid naming himself as god. He retains the idea of a remote and all-powerful being upon whom he can blame, as misinterpretations of unclear commands, his own machinations to retain his status in the face of the results of scientific inquiry. But he leaves no doubt that he is god's right hand man.

How best accomplish the destruction of all living things?

Life on earth is a syncytium that makes of the earth itself a living thing. In this delicate balance of nature, life makes life possible. The biosphere is a marvelous interdependency between the living and the non- living, the animate and inanimate, between organism and stone. The elements themselves, the atoms of the earth—even the nature of the universe—are parts of this balance. Without the precision of proportion of everything from the force of gravity to the metabolic requirements of a bacterium, life could never have existed. Science now recognizes this incredible coincidence of conditions necessary for the existence of living things as the "anthropic principle." The "anthropic principle" holds that if the universe had been only slightly different in any of many ways to do with the laws and constants of Nature and to do with the properties of the substances to which those laws give rise, neither we nor any other living thing would be here to wonder at the marvel of it all. The existence of life on earth seems to be due to the delicate interplay of an immense number of individually incredible coincidences. A perversion of any of the innumerable permutations and combinations of the elements and forces of nature from the instant of the "big bang" some fifteen billion years ago to the beginnings of life in the murky waters of our early earth some three billion years ago and these words would never have been written. The biosphere, that thin layer of living things at the surface of our earth, would never have existed. And even now, we now can so vividly see if we but look, the perversion of that delicate balance which is destroying it.

In this marvelous interdependency, each species has its niche and by its existence provides a niche for yet another. No species that lives within the bounds of nature's law is redundant. Each owes its existence to another and is essential to the survival of all. Each has its consumptive quota, its share of the earth's resources. Sooner or later, the numbers of each, the very existence of each, is under the control of natural forces in a relationship so complex as to be beyond human understanding. It may be through a feedback mechanism as simple as rabbits multiplying beyond their food supply leading to a massive die-off or as complex as the flutter of a butterfly's wings in central Mexico resulting in a flood in Bangladesh as 'Chaos Theory' tells us. Chaos Theory tells us, in fact, that we can neither know nor predict the ultimate effects of our actions. We cannot—and will never be able to—predict the weather with accuracy more than a few days in advance. We cannot know when the despoliation of our biosphere by our sheer numbers will kill us—only that it will.

We should never have allowed ourselves to be lulled by a false dogma into believing that we are the ultimate of all evolution, that all of nature's bounty exists only for the willful profligacy of human beings and that we, of all creatures, are exempt from nature's laws. As living beings, we are only part of a being that is all of life and living things. When a species passes into extinction because our numbers have expanded into its living space or have poisoned its ability to survive, all of life loses a part of itself. It is maimed and the whole being suffers. It has become a little less that it was.

When ingenuity, misidentified as intelligence, has allowed a species to temporarily overcome nature's constraints, that species becomes deformed, a tumorous thing that no longer can function as an organ of the greater body of living things. As a cancer invades and destroys the solitary body, a species gone cancerous invades and destroys the very being of life on earth. And as its malignancy spreads, it destroys the mindless thing it has become. The touch of a man was the touch of death; the touch of mankind, diabolically managed, can be the death of all life. Because of his ingenious power to kill, mankind will at last remain as the solitary lord of the lifeless devastation he has created only moments before he too passes into oblivion.

Long ago in one of his earlier lives, the Pope had seen the way to the goal of his organization. He had seen the rains come and the earth blossom. He had seen the flocks multiply and then he had seen the dry years when death reaped the flocks of their excess. He had seen men ingeniously tear at the earth for the wealth and power it brought today with no moment given for intelligence to consider that a bill might be tendered tomorrow. Shrewdly, he saw that in each man there existed a greed that, coupled with ingenuity, could accomplish his purpose. Go forth and multiply. The Pope's existence, his power and his goal depended upon numbers of a being whose contemplatory intelligence could be dulled as his ingenuity was sharpened. No matter were his "flock" to consist of the poor in spirit, he realized that sheer numbers, even of paupers, under his aegis would give him control of princes and kings, of tribes and nations. Numbers would make him greater than all. In the beginning, that much he knew. Rule them, he would, but not by the sword. He would rule by word alone.

He is clever, devilishly clever. He would rule, not by his word, but by HIS. He studied the myths of many cultures and then in his own image he created the single god who would reveal to him the laws by which he would rule as that god's representative on earth. As god's special intermediary, he reasons, he has the best of all possible worlds. Rule by revealed law sets a divine and mysterious basis for a hierarchical authoritarian structure with him at its earthly summit. It gives his word unquestionable authority since no person could possibly be in a position to question that which he concocts in the privacy of his own brain. His own word is beyond refute. He has at once become infallible. Yet he leaves himself an avenue of escape should he, in his many lives, contradict himself. He can always claim that as a mere human, he had misunderstood the divine revelation—or that his petulant god was testing him.

Since he had placed himself beyond scientific or worldly proof, he realized that he must build his edifice upon a different rock. Its validity must be based upon belief. Belief—faith—must be established as a valid route to truth—as the only way to the ultimate truth. The critical senses of his followers must be overcome and replaced by faith and trust that his words were true and divinely revealed to him alone.

To overcome the critical logic of human reasoning and intelligence, he knew that his dogma must appeal to the most basic of human desires, exploit the most fundamental of human drives, stunt the development of human intelligence, foster ignorance, and channel natural human curiosity of the origins and meaning of life into seeking the answers through him alone. He knows that as long as he can control these modalities of human existence, his power will grow and his evil purpose ultimately will be accomplished.

With care and precision, he designed his dogma to conflict with natural laws of survival while hiding its depravity behind a veil of goodness. Its appeal was directed to the weak, the poor in spirit, the slaves and the downtrodden because there are so many of them and because, in their ignorance, they are so gullible. To them, in their misery—and because of it—he promises a reward proportional to the degree of misery they suffer. He made of earth a vale of tears. He abolished joy and established a darkness upon earth that it might contrast with the brilliant realm that he promised lay beyond. He knew that the true rulers of the secular world would not oppose his dogma since it made the masses tractable and docile in their misery. It gave them a currency with value in a later world while the currency gained by their masters in this world became, to them, an insurmountable barrier to the next. Cleverly, he made it possible for the rulers of the secular world to pass miraculously, like a camel through the eye of a needle, into the kingdom of his heaven by deathbed surrender of their earthly wealth to him.

Preservation of human life regardless of its value to either the individual, though he lived in pain, or to society, though he brought only pain and harm to its members, was commanded. The tenet of infinite compassion assured that nature's unfit might prosper and multiply at the expense of the strong. He feared the strong since only the strong in mind and knowledge might overthrow him. Devolution of the species was inevitable.

He is the first true master of doublespeak. He took hate and called it love. He perverted love into a sick thing that is the ultimate nemesis of individual and group survival. He taught submission, not just to himself, but to all. To insult and injury, turn the other cheek. Submit and in submission, reap your glory. Love your enemy—and when he kills you—or those you love—love him most of all. This concept of love destroys the process of natural selection upon which evolution is based. It replaces survival of the fit by survival of the unfit and makes inevitable that man will become more brutish as he descends into the pit of inviability where he will perish taking all other living things with him. Bitterly, he attacks any concept of human evolution while holding that mankind is the ultimate of all creation and exists as its perfection. From this stand, it is but a short step to his doctrine that all living things have been created for the celebration of man, for man to use, exploit or kill however he sees fit. It is the ultimate song of hatred for all that is living—including humanity.

Throughout this dogma, he wove one of the most intensely basic of human drives, the sex drive. Into this tapestry, he wove his doctrine of original sin into a complex pattern that imposed a vague, over-riding guilt that attached itself to every action his believers might attempt. From birth to their death, he rode their backs like a life-sucking incubus. Like a fish twisting in torment from the pricks of a swallowed hook, the devout can never escape the barbs of implanted dogma.

Women, he reviles. Yet women worship him. He made of women mere property, vessels into which man could pour his sperm in order to later withdraw his image and servant. Conceived in sin and corruption, he taught, each must seek his salvation through devotion to him. And between birth and death, he placed as hazard those most unavoidable of human functions and named them as sins for which only he could give absolution—always at a price. In the name of morality and as its fount, he perverted life processes to his own ends. From requiring that his believers seek his forgiveness for having followed the natural dictates of physiology, it was but a short step for him to grant absolution, usually through his minions, of any crime, no matter how heinous. Forgiveness always comes at a price, but always could be bought.

He seemed to require so little of his believers compared to overlords who could only promise so much less. He demanded above all absolute loyalty and, something new that had not been required in the annals of folklore. He imposed an obligation upon his followers to recruit others into the ranks of his subjects. The absolute requirement to proselytize in order to remain in good standing in his organization coupled with the assurance that it was the recruit who had the most to gain by being recruited was a master-stroke of evil genius. If, one way or another, an outsider could be brought into the fold, he was guaranteed all the promised delights while his recruiter, no matter what his method of recruitment had been, stacked up currency for his own future. It was, perhaps, the first "win-win" situation even though it began the collapse of civilization. The organization grew as it must—and as its evil brain had willed—to a world-wide scourge.

As sales staff, enforcers and interpreters of his authoritarian rule, he recruited an army of often deluded, more often depraved deviates, lazy and greedy in their parasitic existence. Under his tutelage, most became masters of dissimulation to the extent that few of the laity can believe the obscenity of their secret lives. Over the centuries, his dogma was polished and preened. While his autocratic rule was able to stifle the natural tendency of humanity to advance itself during the centuries now known as the "Dark Ages," human ingenuity ultimately overcame his suffocation. Cleverly, he gave way and adapted his dogma to changing circumstances. But always, unchanging, was the doctrine calculated to bring about his ultimate goal: total destruction of life on earth. To maintain his authority, like a chameleon he at times enticed and cajoled; at other times, he tortured and killed. All the while, he wrapped himself in a mantle of treacly goodness. All his transgressions were done for the ultimate good of the transgressed, he taught. And the ignorant masses deprived of their souls, of their minds, by the pomp and splendor, the power and promise of this great organization, believed. He had the wile, the cruelty and the viciousness of a Satan—and the patience of Job. He knew he would win. He knew his target and his instrument. He fostered the natural ignorance and cruelty of man while he destroyed the singular man who might rescue his brothers from the bottomless pit.

Only one crime he could not, would not forgive. He will not tolerate the crime of disbelief. Disbelief could provoke critical analysis of his dogma and this, he knew, it could not survive. This was heresy and this he punished unmercifully with the most hideous of tortures his cruelly depraved priests could contrive. At times of stress in order to squelch dissent and demonstrate his power, he named as heretics innocent women. He called them witches and turned them over to his depraved priests that they might vent the hatred of their own impotence in obscene tortures.

Whether or not these victims recanted, they died. He knew the falsity of belief bought by torture. The ability to believe without logic or reason cannot be willed. The ability to believe or to disbelieve a falsity, is innate. It is genetic. Those who could disbelieve his dogma are dangerous. Over the millennia, his organization would identify and weed out any dissenters and his dominion would grow as the genes of intelligent dissent passed into oblivion.

From birth, he takes charge of the brains of his followers before the neural pathways of independent thought have begun to function. Here and now, he instills his message. Like Pavlov's dogs salivating to the sound of a bell, he has created an automaton who responds to his bidding without thought or question. The reflex arc has been solidified in place, unchangeable unto death. Thought, not only forbidden, not only unnecessary, has become unthinkable. The hardware of the brain, usurped by religious dogma, will never know the freedom to develop a mind and become the individual that nature had intended. Mindless, his followers exist a few short years to do his bidding before they vanish into the dust of forever. He has robbed them of the greatest reward life has to offer; the right to freely develop one's own, unique mind.

As mindless things locked into an organized deception, robbed of the uniqueness that had lain dormant in each, never-repeated combination of genetic elements, his followers literally cease to exist as independent, sovereign beings. By being no more, they forfeit even that illusion the most evil of all men promises them. As non-entities, as non-individuals, they cannot look forward even to the dream of immortality by which he had trapped them. While it is unknown whether or not there may be more to life than the strictly physical machinery allows, the patterns of nature dictate that any such potential, should it exist, would be selective. It is not reasonable that such an option would be open to one who had never come into existence or who had voluntarily submerged his individuality into a mass delusion.

His worshipers are an immense army of all-consuming breeding machines. Control of fertility without limitation of sexual activity is forbidden upon penalty of excommunication and everlasting torment. Effective birth control is a sin. This is his method—so simple, so terribly effective.

Within limits, planet earth can survive the destructiveness of man. But earth's life force is not inextinguishable. It can be overcome. Through his metabolic needs alone, even without the production of mountains of industrial poisons and wastes, man by his numbers can defeat the defenses of earth.

Through the numbers of mankind, this evil being proceeds to pollute the earth beyond the capacity of life to recover. The intelligence that could overcome his evil is powerless against his massive attack. He has created a brainless mechanism of terrible ingenuity with an infinite capacity to desire and the ability to kill all living things including itself. Catholic mankind has lost sight of all earthly beauty in his fascination with his own ugliness.

Now, the Pope can see the imminent fruition of the plan he has spent millennia in bringing to a conclusion. It is the beginning of the end. His worshipers have consumed and bred themselves to approaching extinction. The beautiful earth is dying, smothered in filth.

Were this evil man simply an ignorant fool, the remaining intelligence of earth might convince him of error, despite his claim to infallibility, and convince him to advise his followers how to reduce their burgeoning billions before all is gone. But he knows full well exactly what he does. He cannot fail to know that his billions of followers, living, starving in misery while they breed yet more of their kind are surely destroying all that lives. He knows, for this is his mission. Earth abides—for a time. By whatever power may lie behind the cosmos, this truly evil being can never be forgiven.

Mankind, by his sheer volume of pulsating, all-consuming protoplasm, has conquered the earth. It is not a magnificent conquest and it will not be a magnificent passing. As man has long demonstrated his ability to kill anything that lives, as species after species vanishes at exponentially increasing rates, he has brought nature to bay. He nears the goal of the most evil of his kind. The earth itself, its fragile beauty sullied, its skeleton laid bare, its waters and atmosphere made poisonous, is in its death throes.

And yet the most evil of all persists, against all reason, in promoting the exponential increase in human population so that even more may live a short while with hunger and pain to complete the murder of all life. He refuses any benefit of science and knowledge to his mindless billions that could alleviate their sufferings and their numbers while he, with evil illogic uses that same knowledge and technology to add to their numbers.

He has many imitators, this servant to the embodiment of all that is evil. There are many priests of many systematized religions of man who serve organizations devoted to the same ends. Evil they may be, but less successful and therefore, perhaps, less evil than the man who always had ruled from the Vatican. ❑

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Anti-Defamation League
823 United Nations Plaza
New York, NY 10017

Dear Sir:

I understand that one of your publications is now equating those who are refuting Zionist propaganda with "Hitler's Apologists."

It so happens that I am an American-born veteran whose duties involved "denazification" during 1945-1948 in Europe. I was trained in the army intelligence center at Camp Ritchie, Maryland. Being in "denazification" afforded me the opportunity to hear both sides of the history of the Second World War.

Let me inform you about something that you might not know. Many of those who are refuting the Zionist tales are delighted by the newly opened "Holocaust Museum," located near the very modest memorial to the nearly 58,000 fallen Americans who gave their lives in combatting the forces of evil in Asia. This museum is going to be a memorial to Zionist arrogance, financial power and ability to corrupt the American political process. And it might last for centuries!

Already there are many Americans who doubt the "Holocaust" tales, even though the historians and scholars who are refuting them have only the most modest means at their disposal, quite in contrast to the huge resources of the tellers of the tales. I understand, for example, that the production costs of the television series, War and Remembrance, ran into someting like $140,000,000, which makes whatever resources the revisionists have at their disposal seem like a drop in the bucket.

The Zionist propagandists have become so stupidly arrogant that they persist in telling tales that many people readily recognize as being false, such as the tale that Negro units liberated a number of German relocation camps. Zionists have become so arrogantly stupid that they think that they can fool the American people just because they have virtual control of the television networks. But they have gone so far that many Americans of some intelligence are doubting the whole fabric of the "Holocaust," and these doubts seem to be growing. Zionist power has been so great in Canada, Germany and France that objective historians have been imprisoned or even murdered. Such actions simply show up the falsehoods to a broad mass of people. The 1985 trial of Ernst Zündel caused a sensation in Canada that opened up the minds of many Canadians, even if the details of this trial were given the silent treatment in the United States.

I predict that the "Holocaust" Memorial Museum is going to become a millstone around the necks of all Jews in this country, including righteous Jews who want nothing to do with some of the nonsense being propagated by stupidly arrogant Zionists.

Sincerely,
Dr. Charles E. Weber
2446 East 22nd Place, Tulsa, OK 74114

✠ ✠ ✠

Something to think about.

Around a hundred years ago, a man named Sanford Dole migrated from New England to Hawaii. He somehow learned of the pineapple plant, and saw its potential as an item of food. First he developed agricultural methods of raising pineapple, then he developed techniques for processing and canning pineapple, so to be able to sell his new product he had first to DEVELOP A MARKET.

Before 1940 the use of narcotics in this country, and in most of the world was quite small. Today, the annual sale of narcotics in this country alone is some five hundred billion dollars, over a trillion dollars world wide. In dollar volume of sales, the narcotics industry is reported to be the largest industry that there is. The megabankers in New York City who have a monopoly on international currency conversion are reported to be making more than a hundred billion dollars a year just from laundering drug money. In order to bring about such a gigantic volume of sales, SOMEONE? had to DEVELOP A MARKET!!!

WHO? HOW? This looks like an important area of interest for some capable researcher, doesn't it?

Wonder what the dollar volume of sales of pineapple may be these days?

Ancient Patriot, N.Y. State

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George:

Thoroughly enjoyed John Campbell's response to Gritz. Great! Campbell really turned him every way but loose! Will send copy to Criminal Politics (Patterson will read it!).

Enclosed is my check for a one year subscription for David Tate. This is the Tate who wrote letter to ed—April LB—I assume he is the David Tate who was in the order.

I certainly admire and respect you for what you are doing. Thank you! I know it has not been easy these many years. I have the same respect for Lawrence Patterson. I have been warning him about Gritz ever since I read Called to Serve but I am having trouble convincing him. Hopefully Revilo Oliver and John Campbell will do it for me.

My best to you and yours,
Mrs. E.M.S., Oregon

✠ ✠ ✠

Hello George:

So there you have it! In Bo Gritz's own words! He is a "Christian" first (worships a Jew-created God). He is an "American" second (pledges allegiance to a Jew Government).

He is a "fellow white racial comrade" not at all.

Yours, R.W., Idaho

✠ ✠ ✠

Attn. Mr. George P. Dietz:

The article entitled "Their Capitalism and Ours," that appeared in the March 1993 issue of Liberty Bell, represents the undeniably best description of "capitalism" that I have ever had the privilege of reviewing. Hector Rodgers, Ph.D. and his second-person knowledgeable mathematician friend are to be congratulated. An added bonus, of course, was the Zionist camouflage exemplified by the writings and true ideology of the late Ayn Rand. Your readers should read and re-read the article...

Fraternally, W.H.E., M.D., Maryland

✠ ✠ ✠

To George Dietz, Liberty Bell

It is a mistake to focus on David Irving as the #1 revisionist historian and "our hero."

It is time to shift focus to the #1 ANTI-revisionist historian, David McCullough who has just won the Pulitzer Prize for his biography, Truman.

David McCullough has earned his Prize: he is a prostitute. He has rendered long and faithful service to the cause of Zionism and he is living proof that no one gets this Prize who refuses to grovel before "our" Zionist Occupied Government.

Revisionism is not something abstract and irrelevant to our everyday life. Witness the adulation of anti-revisionist David McCullough here on Martha's Vineyard where he lives as a homespun "neighbor."

McCullough's skill is in avoiding the basic issues suppressed by the Zionist Thought Police including those issues raised in the 5 minute revisionist speech I yelled out on April 4, '93 to homosexual Congressman Gerry Studds and his enraged Zionist/Goy audience of 120 supporters (all McCullough fans) and reported in the local press:

Congressman Studds,

All our health problems can be readily solved when you and your fellow-congressmen stop giving our wealth to our enemies. You recently gave 10 billion dollars to Israel plus billions in interest to the bankers.

The Israelis don't have a health problem; they have the Americans and the Germans to provide for them.

Once we get the Israelis off our backs, we can then get other countries off our backs. We currently give billions to Egypt—as bribe money—to guarantee that Egyptians will be obedient to the Israeli tyrant as they commit genocide against the Palestinians.

Mental health is the first requirement of a healthy democracy. That means there can be no taboo subjects when democracy itself is threatened, such as the subject now being raised.

Pres. Clinton said his appointments would reflect the real America, but Prof. Charles Weber and many others report that more than 50% of his major appointees are Zionist Jews. If we are a healthy people not ruled by taboos, we will be able to discuss this publicly—not just privately in our homes.

Since Jews make up some 3 or 4% of the population, we should be able to ask, "How many Jews in government are too many? 20%? 30%? 40%? How many?"

Is Pres. Clinton already guilty of treason by these appointments?

On December 10, 1992, the FBI raided the San Francisco office of the so-called Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith for treasonous activities against this country. The police dept. of Los Angeles refused to cooperate with the FBI in a raid on the Defamation League in that city. Are they now guilty of treason also?

If we are to be a healthy people, we must talk about this and ask why the media in the Mid-West and on the East Coast blacked-out this treason by the Anti-American Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

We are here to discuss the suffering of people who need proper health care. To do this effectively, we must not be guilty of saying or implying that the suffering of one ethnic, religious, national group is important and others are not.

And yet, that is what is happening in Washington D.C. right now! On April 22nd, a museum will be dedicated on the Mall in Washington which will say in effect that the suffering of one people of Asian origin is important but the suffering of American Indians, African slaves and many other groups is not important.

It's time we heard from you, Mr. Studds, on these issues, unless your policy is, "All people are equal but some people are more equal than others."

The above speech intruded into the world of fantasy exemplified by David McCullough who at the moment is a hero of lies in the service of Zionists, Jews and Israel. He excels in the lies of omission and daily reinforces moral, spiritual and intellectual corruption here on the island of Martha's Vineyard.

To say that revisionism is irrelevant is to say that the daily pollution of the minds of school children by the many McCulloughs is also irrelevant.

I am constantly pressing local librarians, school principals, etc. in a revisionist direction and currently I am suing my home town in Federal Court for discrimination that springs from anti-revisionism.

I am convinced that most readers of LB will never enter the real world of revisionism until they publicly challenge the sanctimonious, hypocritical anti-revisionists where they live. It's great sport exposing the Miss Goody Two-Shoes frauds and watching them howl in pain as they slink away.

Enclosed is an audio tape of my 5-minute speech, with Studds trying to stop me, dozens of hate-driven Zionists trying to shout me down and finally, goy women trying to drown me in soft, sanctimonious song. Please feel free to offer copies of this tape to your readers as a How-to-do-it lesson in exchange for a contribution to LB.

Best wishes,
David Wayfield, Box 699
Vineyard Haven MA 02568

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George:

Food for thought: When as a young man I was once jokingly told, in reference to a bunch of queers, that "It takes one to know one." I have long thought about that little piece of advice and have applied it to many things in life such as, it takes a thief to know a thief, a liar to know a liar, etc.

After reading the booklet, New Light on the Protocols, that I recently obtained from you, the above saying again came to mind. It was either in this booklet or the one before it (Jewish Ritual Murder) that the supposition was made that "Gentiles" were either mesmerized or hypnotized by the Jews because they seemed powerless to resist them, or words to that effect.

Perhaps so, but I see it differently: Since it takes one to know one, I believe the White man is unable to cope with the Jewish juggernaut simply because he is not capable of understanding it. White people are the builders of civilizations not the destroyers of them. To plot to destroy a civilization would be the last thing to enter a White man's mind. Why would he wish to destroy the very thing his instincts instruct him to create?

Conversely, since the Jew is incapable of creating civilizations, what does it matter to him that they are destroyed? His Protocols tell him only to destroy; not once do they instruct him to build. One might wonder what kind of a world the Jew visualizes for himself after he has succeeded in having his own way. Who, for instance, will do the creating, the building and the managing after the Jew has won? Surely he has thought about that little problem so perhaps, just perhaps, he will be forced to keep a few White people around on tethers just to handle these mundane affairs after his destiny has been fulfilled. But what will the White slave do then? Will he continue to curry for the favor of his slave masters and in the process carry on the destruction to its inevitable conclusion? Et cetera, et cetera, ad nauseam. As I said, just a little food for thought.

I see from the last issue that things are heating up in the Liberty Bell. I have not yet had a chance to read it completely but when I do I am likely to have something to contribute to the debate.

Enclosed is a check for next year's subscription. Liberty Bell is above all others my favorite publication. Keep up the good work.

Very truly yours,
J.M., West Virginia

✠ ✠ ✠

To the editors at Liberty Bell,

I recently received a copy of The March Up Country by Harold A. Covington from a good friend of mine. Although I had heard of the book, I was never able to obtain a copy.

Now that I have read the first two pages, I had to write and inquire about buying my own copy. A catalog or price list would be greatly appreciated. As a college student, I face the liberal, multicultural bias of the American school system every day. To hide my true beliefs and intentions during class discussions has become increasingly difficult. Books such as The March Up Country are incredibly important to the movement in my opinion; they provide education as well as motivation, both very powerful tools.

I hope to hear from you soon, and I thank you for the work and dedication Liberty Bell has offered.

In Truth, H.R., Michigan

✠ ✠ ✠

PRAY FOR ME

I am about to incur the wrath of Bob Frenz. I want to add to the list of recommended racial nationalist political groups I ran last issue the Institute for Historical Review, P.O. Box 2739, Newport Beach CA 92659. I tore my hair at the thought of plugging anything to do with Willis Carto. But the I.H.R. is the best revisionist organization, bar none. Why is historical revisionism vitally important? Bob says it isn't. His position, (and I dare not state it incorrectly, else I'll wake up with a horse's head in my bed) Is as follows: A) the whole Holocaust shtick is the historical equivalent of a Rube Goldberg invention, so patently outlandish and ridiculous that only an idiot would believe in it to begin with; B) Holocaust revisionists are an eccentric, nit-picky, argumentative lot of eggheads who irritate him: C) the whole thing is increasingly irrelevant to our present crisis.

I must agree with proposition A. wholeheartedly. Even as a kid I never bought it. Unfortunately, the vast majority of White people are empty vessels who hold whatever ideas or convictions are poured into them by the media. This blind belief is a problem for us. I also agree with Proposition B to some extent. For instance, I have always found Bradley Smith to be an insufferable, conceited ass. He is also married to a Mexican. But he has elected to take on the Holocaust establishment, and he does so with vim and verve. I can't quite bring myself to recommend him—there is a limit, and race-mixing is it with me—but not recognize his contribution towards our cause would be equally dishonest.

"...And the Truth Shall Make You Free."

Proposition C I must disagree with, and thus incur the thunderbolt from Buffalo which will doubtless descend upon my hapless noggin eftsoons. First off, I happen to be one of those curmudgeons who believes that truth is important for its own sake. Silly, antiquated, impractical idea, I know, but there it is. It has always struck me that the greatest enemy of mankind is the lie. When men do evil it almost always goes back to a lie somewhere along the line. Sir Edmund Hilary climbed Mount Everest because it was there, an explanation which has always made perfect sense to me and which expresses a deep-rooted aspect of the Aryan soul. We need to battle the Holocaust myth for the simple reason that it didn't happen. It is a lie. Aryan man needs no other reason.

But there are very pressing, practical considerations which dictate that we do everything in our power to smash the Holohoax. I have repeatedly said that we see our primary enemy every morning in the mirror, but by this I certainly don't mean to say that world Jewry and their incredible power are peripheral.

Jewish power today is a tripod. The three legs are money, Israel, and the Holocaust. Knock away one leg of a tripod and the other two collapse. The Holocaust is the most vulnerable leg, because it is based on a fabrication of such complexity and such gossamer-thin credibility that, slowly but surely, it can be destroyed. Take away the Holocaust, the sympathy and moral capital it provides for world Jewry, and what have you got? A sleazy, half-demented little race of paranoid schizophrenics whose antics would no longer be tolerated by a world outraged at the massive historical fraud which these people have perpetrated.

The key issue is those damned gas chambers. Destroy the gas chambers and you destroy the Holocaust. Destroy the Holocaust and you destroy the entire moral foundation of Western society since 1945. Destroy the post-1945 Western ethos, and you have the Jews by the throat.

From Resistance, Issue #27, April 5th, 1993
Dixie Press, Box 37001, Raleigh NC 27627.

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Hateful "Live-8"

Two talking media heads, with a Jewish dweeb on remote assignment in Reedy, West Virginia, doing a four-part exposé on George P. Dietz and Liberty Bell Publications [February 15, 16, 17, 18, 1993 — "Mountain State Swastika", WCHS-TV News 8, "That's Shocking!— Uncle" Tom McGee, News Anchor; Steve Levine, Reporter. 1301 Piedmont Road, Charleston WV 25301, Phone 304-345-4115]. "Live-8" consulted the ADL and the NAACP, finding George Dietz guilty of publishing views contrary to official opinions about Jews and non-whites. Liberty Bell Publications prints in four languages, it was charged. But it was the German editions that most worried the thought policy of the "Live-8" crew. Nazi propaganda gets into the hands of young Germans who hate foreigners! They "Sieg Heil" and goosestep while reading The Liberty Bell in German. To prove it, "Live-8" scanned a pile of Liberty Bell publications and pictures, which demonstrated that "Live-8" is being fed materials by the ADL.

Four nights in a row, "Live-8" protested that although Liberty Bell Publications was violating no U.S. laws, the literature was in contravention of German laws which forbade National Socialist symbols and promotions. David Irving was recently thrown out of Canada because a German court had found him guilty of "defaming the memory of the [Jewish] dead." This is how the ADL and its stooges think: find a way to get around George Dietz's First Amendment rights in America because the Bonn regime does not permit The Liberty Bell to freely circulate in Germany.

The First Amendment is a fragile principle. The Jews have been chipping away at White speech since World War II. Using local police agencies and the FBI, the ADL have been able to come down on Aryanist publishers and distributors. Send a Fax over a telephone wire that some Jew or darky finds offensive, and the cops may come barging in on you at 6:A.M. with drawn guns. It happened to a friend of mine in Wisconsin. Launch a computer bulletin board for White racial communications, and the media and press go ballistic. Then the FCC is complained to by God's sheeny pets to have you fined or imprisoned for having "unlawfully" used the long distance lines and the communication satellites,

There is an ADL office and a branch of the NAACP in every state. They are the thought police. When Hillary and Billary Rodham Clinton get their claws into free speech for Whites, the thought police will be into everyone's business. Then a cell awaits anyone who dares to express himself. "Live-8" will one day say something to offend the thought police. Watch the whining when the FCC comes down on them because a few Yids decided it is time to pull their plug.

Maj. Donald V. Clerkin, Euro-American Alliance, Inc.
Box 21776, Milwaukee WI 53221.

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

April 20, 1993

...I viewed the "Mountain State Swastika" series you sent me. It was a typically Jewish hatchet job, with a jar of Jewish soap, a Jewish lampshade, etc. They even pretended that Rockwell's old "Communism is Jewish" pamphlet was really an attack on Irishmen. I was surprised to see such lies on WV TV. Where will we ever find enough Zyklon-B to handle all of these would-be Jews in addition to the real Jews?

Sincerely, William L. Pierce
National Alliance
Box 330, Hillsboro WV 24946

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Sirs:

March 2, 1993

The ATF "general" who ordered his two hundred men to storm the self-sufficient compound of the Branch Davidian "cult" in Waco, Texas with guns blazing is a nigger. The Davidians, a multi-racial group, had been in their Sunday morning worship service on their own property many miles out of town. Like so many of the Christian nuts, they had been anticipating Armageddon. When they hard the unprovoked attack coming at them, they scrambled to defensive positions and returned the fire. From under cover they took out four brave young white agents who were just following orders by running across an open field with guns blazing. Sixteen other agents, all white, were seriously wounded.

General Coon watched the action from the safety of his attack helicopter. When the chopper took twenty hits from small arms fire he quickly retreated to a safe distance of two miles to re-think his battle plan. After forty five minutes of intensive gun battles, the surviving 180 agents negotiated a cease fire that required them to leave their weapons on the ground and retreat with their hands up.

By Tuesday the ATF had called in the FBI who quickly assembled fourteen Abrams tanks, twenty Sikorsky combat helicopters and fifteen thousand combat troops. The bets are on the side of the FBI who have vowed to "stop this insidious cult from inflicting further terrorism on the community."

America—defender of democracy, religious freedom, tolerance, brotherhood, and innocence until prove guilty, is literally on the ropes.

This was just a training mission, still the brain-dead white ATF agents will never ever suspect that General Coon was out to kill some white people that day. It did not matter whose side they were on.

H.D., Texas

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George:

Re: The Museum of Unprecedented Chutzpah.

I hope that you are in good health and spirits. Hospital stays—both for my wife and myself keep me from sending any monies right now.

But, I have a suggestion to make in regards to that monstrosity getting ready to open in Washington, District of Corruption: How about calling it The Chutzpah Museum? This by way of description of Chutzpah as given by Victor Ostrovsky in his book, By Way of Deception. Sooner or later they will have to get rid of the stink.

Uncle H.B., N.Y. State

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Landsmann:

I'm sorry to have to tell Mr. EHE [see Letter to the Editor in April Liberty Bell, pp. 37/38] that everyone who took the flu shots in 1991 and 1992 does test positive for AIDS. The standard test for AIDS detects anti-bodies formed by the body as a response to viral infection. The flu vaccine causes the formation of the same type of anti-bodies thus leading to what the media calls "false positives." This was discovered after the 1991 flu vaccination season when blood banks were forced to throw out large amounts of blood that tested positive thus causing a blood shortage. The flu vaccinations have just about invalidated the standard AIDS test in the New York area. This was in all the papers here and on the radio. I sent some articles about it to a friend and so don't have them on hand. I guess this news didn't make it down to Virginia where EHE lives.

Now the media say that this is a false positive and that the vaccination didn't really give people AIDS. I hope this is true for the sake of those who got the shots. AIDS is a racially specific disease of coloreds and Jews but the jewsmedia have been pretending that "AIDS does not discriminate." Fortunately, it does discriminate and Whites are largely immune to it but they can get it via injection or sodomy. I have thus been fearful of an attempt to spread AIDS to Whites via vaccination in order to make the jewsmedia's lies come true.

Vaccination is an extremely dangerous and suspect procedure. Recent discoveries indicate that the entire germ theory of disease, on which vaccination is premised, may be false and that vaccinations don't protect anyone against anything. They do however poison the victim. I can still remember how 79 men out of 200 in my Army company were admitted to the hospital with pneumonia several weeks after our shots in basic training. During the swine flue vaccinations 279 people died immediately and some 4,000 more suffered severe reactions, many of whom have since died. Information gathered by Nord Davis indicates some 17,000 veterans of the Gulf War have suffered severe reactions from an experimental anthrax vaccine given them before the fighting. There is said to be a whole ward of deformed babies at Ft. Bragg, N.C.. due to this vaccine. This is the one that put the Defence Secretary, Les Aspin, in the hospital a few weeks ago. He got it before his planned trip to Somalia. People interested in this subject should read E.L. McBean's books, The Poisoned Needle and Vaccination Condemned. Vaccination is a useless and dangerous procedure even without the chance of getting AIDS from it. It should be avoided whenever possible.

Jews have a long history of being well poisoners and plague spreaders. This is not just hearsay but was proven in numerous court cases in earlier times. The Talmudic school of Safed, in the 1800s, actually declared it to be a sin if a Jew doctor treated a patient and did not poison him. The AMA (like the ABA and NEA) is totally in Jewish hands and I note hat almost 100% of the chemotherapy poisoners in this area are Jews. This AZT that they are selling to the AIDS infected is so poisonous that it was declared too dangerous to be used for chemotherapy 25 years ago. McBean gave it as her opinion that vaccination campaigns are conducted simply to drum up business for the medical racket as a wave of illness and death follows every vaccination campaign. The medical establishment's response to her findings was to classify public health statistics as secret!

I don't know it all, but I am always trying to learn whatever I can. Liberty Bell and your other publications have been a big help in that. I also try to pass on what I discover. Recently I read a very interesting account of how the German 1918 offensive was stopped by the U.S. During the battle of Chateau Thierry the American artillery was said to have bombarded the Germans with bacteriological shells carrying an airborne flu virus. The battle was a tactical defeat for the Americans with over 4,000 men shot down by only 800 or so Germans but, within a few weeks, the flu had incapacitated the German Army and stopped the German offensive until the tide of American reenforcements and the revolution overwhelmed Germany. The flu, of course, could not be limited to the Germans. It spread around the world killing some 20 million people including 500,000 in the U.S. If this was possible 75 years ago, one can imagine what is going on today!

Sincerely, S.R., New York State

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George:

Things are sure moving fast out here. The new slate of politicians aren't wasting any time putting the squeeze on the people (fools) who put them in office. Gov. Lowry is adding 20 cents a gallon to gasoline and agitating for a state income tax, plus a rise in the already choking 8% sales tax. (I happened to be in his home in 88 when he had it on the market and there was a huge picture of Golda Meir on the wall—so what else is new?) The media says we must all do our share, you know. That's getting to be the new American motto. Only the Gods can get us out of this.

Best regards, Mrs. M.M., Washington

✠ ✠ ✠

THE LIBERALS IN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE MASS MEDIA ARE LIARS.

THEY'RE

using the public schools to teach our children that homosexuality is good and desirable. They're literally us with disinformation on the AIDS epidemic. (Examples: Have the mass media informed you of the fact that the HIV virus can easily pass through a latex condom? Have our been warned that sex with a Black is more than 14 times as likely to infect them with the AIDS virus than sex with a White?) Listen to our weekly radio program, American Dissident Voices, to get the facts that the liars of the media have kept from you:

KILLING

YOUNG GIRLS

NATIONWIDE/WORLDWIDE Saturday 9pm Eastern Time, 6pm Pacific on 7355 kHz shortwave via WRNO; ARKANSAS Saturday 10am, via KMTL Little Rock, 760 on your AM dial; FLORIDA (central) Saturday 11:30am, via WTIS Tampa, 1110 on your AM dial; NORTH CAROLINA (eastern) Sunday 10:30am, via WNCT Greenville, 1070 on your AM dial; OHIO (Cleveland Area) Saturday 6pm, via WHK Cleveland, 1420 on your AM dial; VIRGINIA (southeastern) Saturday 10:30pm, via WKGM Norfolk, 940 on your AM dial. More stations are being added; write for updates!

NATIONAL ALLIANCE • BOX 90 • HILLSBORO • WV 24946

George,

You probably heard that our favorite Right-Wing Short Wave station burned to the Ground April 4th. WWCR - 7435 khz in Nashville carried the Bill Cooper and Tom Valentine (Liberty Lobby) broadcasts.

Cooper was able to get space on WRNO - 7935 at 1 AM EST. Valentine is still looking for a station. We also have Pete Peters on 7315 khz at 10 PM EST.

H.H., Michigan

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Mr. Dietz,

You misread my scrawl so there was an error in my letter published in the April 1993 edition of the Liberty Bell. In the sentence "You never know and my judgement in Russian character has often been wrong" the word "Russian" should have been "human." I can recall only meeting four Russians in my lifetime. Hardly a sufficient sample to make any judgements.

Mr. Frenz, whose credentials are impressive, critizises Revisionism, more or less, as a useless exercise. I do not agree.

The goal of Revisionism is to correct history. David Irving writes history books. That is his vocation. The IHR was organized to review history. They succeeded in uncovering new information; and in distributing books not available in establishment outlets.

My plunge into Revisionism was to find information that I could use in political discussions with friends and associates who believed in the holocaust which I knew to be untrue. It then became a hobby of sorts that I prefer over other distractions.

Through Revisionism I have:

1. Purchased many interesting books and publications including the Liberty Bell.

2. Met many fascinating people, mostly at the IHR conferences. Where else could you meet those who personally knew Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler?

3. Studied the provocative philosophies of National Socialism.

4. Participated in the exposure of the Allies' World War II propaganda lies.

5. Influenced the thinking of some in regard to the Holocaust and the Third Reich.

Why should we listen to and accept the hallucinations of some lunatic Jews? Many Germans, some of my relatives included, cannot think clearly about contemporary events because of the stigma of "their history."

Revisionism is only one battle in a larger war. The persecution of Zündel, Faurisson and others is a direct measure of their success, and uncovers the fraud of Democracy (that irreversible disease) that attracts mostly liars, swindlers and plunderers.

Presently there is no real alternative to Revisionism. How do we further they "Aryan Cause?" There are no guidelines to coordinate an effort. Instead, what we have is mostly bickering.

Obviously, the Leuchter Report is not clean but it is still an early edition. It is imperative that all errors and contradictions be corrected. Those valid discrepancies published in the Liberty Bell should be considered as helpful to those publishing the report. The report does underline the technical weakness of the Holocaust and especially the lack of cyanide traces in the alleged gas chambers. The burden of proof of the Holocaust belongs to those who believe in it. The Holocaustians can set up and carry out any experiments to support their claims. Why should we? Besides, Diesel exhaust makes me sick.

The article "Gas Guessing" refers to the California's execution gas chambers being operated at a negative 10psi vacuum as apparently stated in the Leuchter Report. Incidently, the term "negative pressure" is commonly used in industry. Pressure gages operate in relation to atmospheric pressure as zero. The 10 psig must have been a misprint somewhere along the line. 10 psig on an 8 x 8 foot wall would result in a total force on that wall of 92,160 pounds. The wall would need to b extremely strong n order to keep the seals. The chamber vacuum is necessary, I suspect, so that there are no HCN gas leaks. This is a common technique to control any undesirable leaks of dangerous gases. Boiler brick set furnaces are kept negative (0.05" W.C. to 0.10" W.C.) to prevent the flue gases from entering the boiler room; and electrical sheet metal enclosures in hazardous locations are held slightly positive (1.0" W.C.) to keep out potentially explosive gasses. (1 Psi=27.7 inches water column). I suspect that the -10psi should have read -10 inches water column or as low as 1.0" W.C. negative.

A comment on the Diesel Vans: No one claims that you cannot die from Diesel exhaust fumes, only that a Diesel engine is a poor producer of carbon monoxide. The Germans did use some small trucks that ran on wood gas. You needed to start a wood fire in some contraption to produce that gas (CO). The starting procedure took over an hour and special precautions were taken because of the lethal hazard of carbon monoxide. Why wouldn't the Germans use this handy inexpensive device to operate the extermination van? The Diesel engine is a ridiculous execution device and is only promoted because "Diesel" has a nice German propaganda ring.

Those who want William Schockley to write for the Liberty Bell need to start with a shovel. He died several years ago.

Yours truly, R.T., California

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George,

First, please renew my sub. Enclosed, my check for $50.

Second, with regard to Gritz. He suffers from a case of arrested development. How can anyone wander around the U.S. today and not be alarmed at the demographic changes taking place against the wishes of the onetime majority? What is the nature of these changes? Racial! Gritz has bought the "anti-racists" racist propaganda and is unable to identify with anyone or anything other than that which meets the approval of the Hebe media masters.

Now, with regard to the controversy over FAEM and Robert Frenz. I understand how the man feels. I have been involved now for 18 years trying to interest my neighbors in what is happening to their country, the Holohoax, immigration, race, etc.... The majority are braindead, reduced to the level of robots by their religion (the ultimate form of hedonism) and I refer, of course, to Christianity (the worship of Jews). Yes, it is ridiculous to have to talk about the Holohoax but Frenz himself has evidently done considerable thinking about the problem. I have met and enjoy the company of many of those who have written for the IHR. Their objective is of course to debunk the ridiculous extermination garbage. Our opponents have had years to fabricate all kinds of garbage, "testimonies," "confessions," photographs, drawings, etc. We know that it is garbage and that it is used against us, yes, all of us of European descent. Where Frenz can point to error in analysis, all to the good. I understand his frustration. I am a commercial pilot who must abide by certain laws of physics to survive so I don't understand the journalist mental type who believes that putting words together in a certain order constitutes proof.

Frenz's criticism of the intellectual crowd may have some validity. I have handed out leaflets at local colleges and universities, run for public office, written letters to the local newspaper, offered a $1000.00 reward to local high school teaches for proof of one gassing, donated books to high schools and colleges, picketed the University of California at Davis AGGIE newspaper. I haven't heard from one area academic, not one! This system will have to crash before they can resume thinking.

We should do everything to prevent this country from going to war against people of European descent, regardless of their political system. Ultimately we will have to confront all of the problems which are the result of our meddling in Europe in this century. What will happen here on this continent will make Bosnia look like a Sunday picnic.

To all those who debunk the Holohoax, hats off!

Regards,

H.A.T., California

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Landsmann:

Considering what was written about Col. Gritza in Liberty Bell and elsewhere and in view of the mass murder of the Christians in Waco by the government, I come to the conclusion that the US government regards the American people just as it regarded the Viet Cong in Vietnam. There, any armed civilian not on our side was an enemy to be killed. The government clearly regards White Americans as enemies and is now trying to set the precedent that possession of arms by them is a capital crime. This is the viewpoint of an alien invader occupying a country and Gritz apparently shares this basic outlook. Some have long called the Washington regime a "Zionist Occupation Government" [ZOG]. It is certainly behaving like one.

Soldier of Fortune magazine had an interesting series of articles on the ATF attack on the Waco Christians. According to their story, one of the ATF agents had special orders to murder Koresh at all costs. When the ATF assault group in trucks and trailers pulled up to the door of the compound, Koresh came to the door to see what they wanted. When he opened the door an ATF agent opened fire on him with a silenced machine pistol wounding him and killing his 2-year old daughter. Men with rifles covering Koresh from inside the building then shot and killed the ATF murderer. Another account says the first shot was fired as one of the ATF idiots jumped off a trailer and accidentally shot himself in the leg. Probably both events happened together.

If the story is true that an ATF man was especilly assigned to kill Koresh, then this puts an even more sinister light on the whole affair. In that case, the raid was not intended from the start to capture the church members. The intent was to provoke resistance by shooting people. The resistance was then to be used to justify a general massacre. This scenario would explain why other agents broke into a nursery on an upper floor and opened fire on a bunch of children killing a 6-year old girl. The resistance there came from two 70+ year old grandmothers who took up shotguns in defence of their grandchildren and killed two of the ATF gangsters. SoF notes that the ATF killers were using special armor piercing ammunition not available to the public and that a good number of the agents shot each other through the walls. The distinctive bullets made it easy to tell who was hit by "friendly fire." After 20 minutes of wild shooting the ATF ran out of ammunition and had to flee in disgrace. They left their wounded behind and three unwounded prisoners in the hands of the Christians.

Unfortunately the Christians bandaged them and then let the three ATF agents drag them and the dead away. Considering later events, this was a big mistake as prisoners and wounded should have been held as hostages against a peaceful surrender.

After the disgraceful fiasco of the ATF attack, anyone familiar with the way the US government now operates knew that they had to redeem their prestige by murdering the Christians and destroying the compound to conceal the evidence of their crimes.

It is interesting to compare the government's actions at Waco with the way the surrender of the rioting convicts at Lucasville prison was handled. Here were a bunch of black convicts who had murdered a bunch of white prisoners and a guard in what are obviously racial crimes. Yet these black bandits were allowed to go on TV, were promised immunity for their crimes and allowed to surrender peacefully to authorities. No such kid glove treatment for white slaves! If the policemen who beat up Rodney King deserve punishment, what do the ATF and FBI scum who murdered 80 people deserve?

Col. Gritz's intervention did prevent the murder of the Weaver family by fire in the Waco manner. Please note that the black smoke above the compound is typical of an oil fire, not of dry wood burning.

Sincerely,
S.R., New York State

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George,

As always, your magazine is a model for others. Dr. Oliver and others are great. I must give support to Robert Frenz. I support the idea that revisionism is not a panacea for the salvation of the Aryan race. In fact, several revisionists I know would not pass the race test. I also agree that it is odd that anti-Semites would care if the story were true.

In a Woody Allen movie I once watched, Eric von Sedow was asked by his daughter how such a thing as the Holocaust could have happened. Von Sedow replied, "The question is, why doesn't it happen more often?" Perhaps that is a new field of revisionism to wrestle with. Given the nature of Jews, why doesn't it happen more often?

Keep smiling!
Tom Metzger, W.A.R., Box 65
Fallbrook CA 92088

✠ ✠ ✠

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

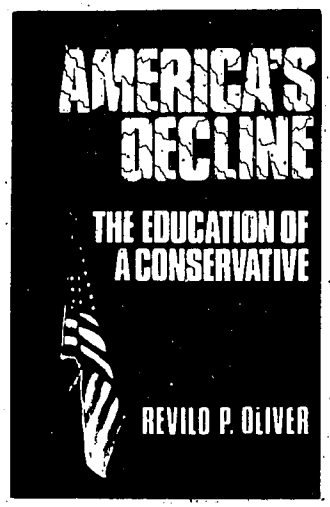
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

AT THE JEWISH CEMETERY IN PRAGUE

A Translation
by Dr. Charles E. Weber
page 11

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

POSTSCRIPTS
by Professor R.P. Oliver:

Kosher Cuts
page 1

Addendum on Children
page 5

Lost Hope
page 8

VOL. 20 - NO. 11 JULY 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS
by Revilo P. Oliver

KOSHER CUTS

Two or three female journalists are in the lucrative business of producing syndicated columns that purport to quote letters written by silly women who seek advice about "personal problems" created by a signal deficiency in common sense. One of the wise women uses the pseudonym, "Ann Landers." (I have a record of her true name, but I won't waste time looking it up.) In a recent column, published in the Muskegon Chronicle and doubtless many other newspapers on 12 April 1993, she, naturally, endorses the sexual mutilation of males that is practiced by many tribes of savages and some barbarians, including her own race, which, according to its Holy Book, believes that the world was created by Yahweh so that males could be circumcised, and would come to an end, if males were not sexually mutilated to gratify his ferocious sadism.[1]

The Kikess, who does admit in one sentence that "some say [sexual mutilation] is 'barbaric and unnecessary,'" contributes on her own the information that "uncircumcised males get recurrent urinary tract infections." That, no doubt, is true. So do a great many males who have been mutilated. And ulceration of the urinary tract is especially common in infants who have been mutilated.

The central letter comes from a stupid woman whose son complained that he had been dreadfully embarrassed in the gymnasium, where the other boys ridiculed him because he didn't resemble a Sheeny. The stupid youngster, anxious to appear just like the rest of the vulgar herd, demanded to be circumcised. The foolish parents, instead of teaching their son to be an individual with self-respect, consented, although they might have made a weak protest had he wanted to wear a bone in his nose (a fashion not yet promulgated by the "schools")—or to become a pervert, in keeping with the gospel promulgated in the public boob-hatcheries. The circumcision was "a very painful operation," and the feeble-minded youngster blamed his parents, not himself, for the pain he had brought on himself. The moral is, make your son resemble an Australoid or other savage when he is an infant and can't complain about the pain and the probable subsequent deformation of his personality by the traumatic shock inflicted on him.[2]

1. On this disgusting form of persisting savagery, see Nicholas Carter, Routine Circumcision, the Tragic Myth (London, Londinium Press, 1979) and Liberty Bell, October 1989, pp. 1-5; November 1989, pp. 7-10. On the practice of contemporary Jewesses with regard to copulation with White men, see Liberty Bell, February 1992, p. 20.

The pièce de résistance is a letter from "Old Doc in Kentucky," who doubtless profited for many years from collecting fifty bucks for a single clip. He opines that "Studies over the past several years have shown that women whose sexual partners have been circumcised tend to have a lower incidence of cervical cancer." The "studies" are not specified. All such studies are worthless, if not correlated to race, ethnic group, and social status. Races differ physiologically as well as psychologically. Certain diseases, for example, occur only in Jews. And there is some evidence that Jewesses, who presumably copulate chiefly with males whose foreskins have been sacrificed to beastly old Yahweh, have a lower incidence of cervical cancer than women of other races. They may also have a higher incidence of uterine cancer. So what of it?[3]

According to "Ann Landers," several "young docs" also wrote to defend and justify a considerable part of their income. (The depreciation of the dollar may have increased the once standard fee of fifty bucks.)

2. On the psychological consequences of the mutilation, see Carter, op. cit., especially pp. 85-93, It is, incidentally, interesting that the one hundred male perverts examined by a Naval physician were all circumcised, and while it is quite possible that sexual mutilation may predispose to homosexuality, as it is said to do among Semites, usually Moslems, among whom both circumcision and perversion are, so to speak, merely normal, prevalence of sexual mutilation in our time deprives the statistic of cogency.

3. On this topic, see Carter, op. cit., pp. 41-46.

No one seems to notice the great intrinsic improbability that mutilation of the penis could biologically affect the vagina. Does it also cause wives to gain or lose weight? Or to suffer from ingrown toenails?

What is important here is to note the general worthlessness of all statistical "proofs" that are based on relatively small percentages and a small number of subjects. If two or three hundred specimens yield a perfect result (i.e., that 100% or at least 98% of group X show a characteristic that is absent in 100% of group Y) that is noteworthy and calls for duplication and verification, but if group X shows 5% more of the characteristic than group Y, that difference is likely to be aleatory and is certainly devoid of validity. When differences of only a few percent are observed in less than five thousand specimens, the observation is not worth mentioning. Statistical studies of the common type would undoubtedly show that the wives of uncircumcised men get more or fewer permanent waves than other women, eat more or less asparagus, see cinemas more or less often, or make more or fewer trips by aëroplanes. Undoubtedly more or fewer of such women will be found to have been born under the zodiacal sign of Cancer,[4] and more or fewer of them will be left-handed or golden blonde or astigmatic.[5]

4. Some years many pages of the Skeptical Inquirer were blackened with a foolish controversy over the "discovery" by some Frenchman that a slightly larger percentage of noted athletes were born when some planet (Mars, of course, as I recall!) was in the ascendant. What would have been remarkable would have been a discovery that there was no difference between the astrological auspices under which they were all born. Take any relatively uniform group of a few hundred persons, and you will find small percentages of difference between them in anything for which you may test them. And do not be confused by the difference between a simple calculation of probability and a calculation of the probability that the probability will be realized in any one instance. The probability that a tossed coin will come up 'heads' is one out of two, but you have doubtless witnessed occasions when 'tails' came up four or five times in succession, although for each successive try the probability was still one out of two.

5. A perfect example of what you or anyone else can do with statistics is provided by William F. Buckley, Jr., in his syndicated column for the ninth of April (National Review, 24 May 1993, p. 69). He quotes a writer who says: "I published an Obviously, not even a tentative hypothesis of a causal relation can be based on such evidence.

It is only prudent to suspect all statistics of social import. If they favor "Liberal" (i.e., Marxist) purposes, they are likely to be as fraudulent as the "study" by which the Rockefeller Foundation promoted male homosexuality. The finding that 10% of all males (race unstated) were perverts was accepted for almost half a century, until Kinsey's statistics were shown to have been rigged and flagrantly dishonest.[6] Now, despite all the intensive efforts of the public schools in the meantime, recent surveys put the number of perverts at 1% or something between 1% and 2%. Why was the truth not ascertained by independent investigation forty-five years ago, when it would have done some good? Was there some clandestine power that forbade such investigation, or were all "social scientists" childishly and irredeemably gullible?

Remember that the Federal government has many squads of trained statisticians who will prove anything at the drop of a hat or a nod from their paymasters. You should not be surprised by the recent issues of Criminal Politics which show that economic and financial statistics are being systematically falsified. The same is doubtless true in the current hullabaloo about cigarettes, obviously designed to keep the dim wits of the general public so occupied with fictitious crusades that they will not perceive what is being done to them until it is too late.

If the statistics are not faked, remember that small percentages except in very large numbers (ten thousand is a minimum) have no probative value whatsoever. For example, no one should have even noticed Dr. Rhine's famous "proofs" of "extrasensory perception." As I pointed out in Is there article showing that the correlation between eighth-grade math scores [i.e., scores made on examinations in mathematics] and the distance of state capitals from the Canadian border was .522, a respectable showing. By contrast, the correlation with per pupil expenditure was a derisive .203. I offered the policy proposal that states wishing to improve their schools should move closer to Canada." The satirist chose an example that was prima facie absurd. A less scrupulous writer could have found a similar correlation with, e.g., annual rainfall or the sale of cigarettes or circumcision, and sold his "discovery" to many suckers.

6. On the "Kinsey report," see Liberty Bell, February 1992, pp. 14-21.

Intelligent Life on Earth?, pp. 29-34, what Rhine's data really proved was that if there are persons endowed with "extrasensory perception," he had encountered none of them.

"Ann Landers'" propaganda gives you an opportunity to notice what is much more important, the fallacious nature of most "studies" about matters of social importance. Do not, however, blame her for her deceptive column. She is loyal to her race. Let us hope that you and I are as loyal to our own.

ADDENDUM ON CHILDREN

My article, "Suffer, Little Children," in the issue for January 1993 was based in part on an Australian periodical which reported scandalous crimes in Nebraska centered about a rich, tall, and piggish nigger named Larry King. A kind and thoughtful reader has sent me two books that are more authoritative and recount the appalling events in detail. They add much to my discussion, but do not alter the conclusions, so I shall only list the books here as sources of copious information.

A former Senator in Nebraska for sixteen years, John W. Decamp, has written The Franklin Cover-Up: Child Abuse, Satanism, and Murder in Nebraska (AWT Inc., Lincoln, Nebraska, 1992; paperback, $9.95; I suppose postage is additional). I strongly recommend this book, if you are interested in determining the present status of the United States, which is that of an apple rotten to the core. Nebraska is merely a part of the whole, and what applies to it applies, mutatis mutandis, to Illinois or Louisiana or any other state. You will incidentally be able to form some estimate of one of our leading criminal organizations, not the Mafia, but the F.B.I. (The I in the abbreviated name of the Federal Bureau once represented 'Investigation'; it now represents 'Intimidation,' including, as was recently seen in Waco, Texas, terrorism and murder.)

The cover-up of nigger King's activities, which Mr. DeCamp compares to the infamous Warren Report to cover-up the assassination of Kennedy, was on a smaller scale: only fifteen witnesses and investigators died mysteriously, probably by murder, whereas the Warren cover-up cost the lives of at least thirty-five witnesses to unwanted facts.

The criminal gang in Nebraska includes the state's richest financiers, the leading "newspapers" (i.e., liepapers), the executives of large corporations, mayors, chiefs of police, prosecuting attorneys, judges, and ranking state officials, and a Masonic or quasi-Masonic order known as Ak-Sar-Ben,[1] which consists of the social élite of the state and crowns an annual King and Queen in antics reminiscent of the old Krew of Komus in New Orleans.

Do not overlook Mr. DeCamp's Appendix B. It is a succinct description of an erstwhile friend and typical politician of the better type (i.e., only an opportunistic crook).[2]

A booklet entitled The Mystery of the ["] Carefully Crafted Hoax ["] (s.l.& a. [1992?]) is by an anonymous author who writes in the name of the publisher, the Nebraska Leadership Conference[3]; there is a foreword by Ted Gunderson, an investigator who must be responsible for much of the material. The quoted part of the title is a phrase invented by an obviously corrupt Grand Jury that had been convened on the behalf of the criminals to silence with indictments witnesses who could not otherwise be intimidated.

The booklet necessarily covers more summarily much of the same ground as Mr. DeCamp's longer book, but contains some new material (quoted testimony etc.) and concludes with a helpful chronological table.

1. One of the Burlington Railroad's "Zephyrs" was named in honor of this clique. See its timetables in the later part of the 1960s, before the summary destruction of American railroads and industry by our alien government had become spectacularly successful.

2. I admire Mr. Decamp's courage and shall not be astonished if I hear of his sudden death from a "heart attack" or the crash of an airplane or "suicide"; cf. his Appendix A, which notes the manner of death of the fifteen witness whose sudden decease facilitated the cover-up by the criminal network whose normal activities had been fortuitously exposed by nigger King's stupidity. He is a veteran of the action to kill young Americans and disgrace our once respected country in Vietnam, and he first became unpopular when he proposed a rational consideration of the so-called war. But I do not mean to make him a hero: he is also responsible for the importation of almost three thousand Vietnamese children into the United States. (Note that 'Vietnamese' merely means that they come from the geographical area now called Vietnam; they may belong to any of the numerous racial groups in that region. But that makes no difference. They do not belong in an Aryan nation, such as we once were.)

3. P.O. Box 30165, Lincoln, Nebraska (68503); $6.00 postpaid.

Both books consider the prevalent charges of Satanism and include descriptions of typical rites, including the sacrifice of children to Satan, that are often used to traumatize the children who are compelled to witness them and will be enslaved by terror. The children who are sacrificial victims are usually sold by their parents and their disappearance is not reported or otherwise noticed. (It is estimated that 100,000 children (races unspecified) disappear in the United States every year.) The adults who attend or participate in such ceremonies obviously enjoy them.[4]

There has been a campaign in the press (including the Skeptical Inquirer) to discredit reports of such ceremonies. The principal facts (as distinct from embroidery by excited witnesses or unscrupulous journalists) seem to me entirely credible. Indeed, they are no more than what was to be expected in our great ochlocracy, and it is noteworthy that they excite only a morbid interest without real moral (as distinct from religious) indignation. I have forgotten which historian of the Roman Empire remarked that a society that loses its capacity for moral indignation is doomed to extinction.

'Moral indignation' is not precisely the right term; it conveys a suggestion of righteousness, which is often deadly. More fundamental is a rational awareness of the need to preserve the consensus on which a society is founded, the norms of conduct that are taken for granted and only partially defined in enacted laws, which are always less binding than the unwritten ones. Since 'law' is a word that has now become ambiguous and is often limited to legislation, the best term for the whole of a society's moral foundation is nomos (Greek νόμος). When that consensus has been destroyed by parasites and folly, the result is anomia, for which it is unnecessary to import the French form, anomie, now in current use. When the foundation has been subverted, the society collapses, as does a building of which the foundation has been destroyed. It collapses into a chaotic heap, a horde of

4. I have received an anonymous memorandum from a man who says that he "began with 'wife-swapping'" (an amusement that violates an Aryan man's instinctive sense of self-respect) and proceeded along those lines until he was "terribly shocked" by a realization that he "relished" the sexual abuse of children of both sexes below the age of puberty. The ambiguous word leaves one uncertain whether his enjoyment was that of a spectator or of an activist.

bewildered individuals who have not even an instinct of self-preservation. It becomes a jungle in which it is possible for a female named Rodham, her despicable male assistant, and their scabrous and reeking gang of degenerates to be invested with what is legally the supreme executive power—a jungle in which the ruling Sheenies can force their victims to spend fifty million dollars on a monument to the greatest and most outrageous swindle in the world's history—a jungle in which the same victims must maintain a horde of several hundred professional murderers to begin a rule by sheer terror. Throughout such a jungle, the total demoralization and rot accidentally disclosed in Nebraska has become merely normal and commonplace, and Satanic rites, including the killing and dismemberment of infants and young children, becomes no more than a titillating entertainment.

As I noted in my article in Liberty Bell, Satanism need not involve a religion and a superstitious belief in the supernatural.

LOST HOPE

The current epidemic of the African Plague, usually and mistakenly called "AIDS," encouraged rational observers to entertain hopes about three critical matters. One deplored, of course, the atrocious fact that many innocent and valuable citizens were infected in hospitals, chiefly by being given transfusions of infected blood, partly from cynical negligence and partly because the means of detecting such blood are inadequate and fallible. As a recent scandal has shown, in France many persons were deliberately infected by the French government, which ordered the distribution of blood known to be diseased. The official reason was budgetary, but it is quite likely that Mitterand & Co. also reasoned that the majority of victims would be White men, women, and children. No such planned pollution of blood supplies is reported in the United States, in which efforts to disseminate the disease among the American people chiefly take the form of Congressional legislation to force the employment of diseased carriers of the plague in situations (e.g., in restaurants) in which they will necessarily infect some unwary White men and women.

One also felt some compassion for White women who were infected by men they never should have married. But these losses were offset by the expected benefits, viz.:

1. The science and practice of medicine would be put on a more rational basis by being forced to study and understand what had thus far been taken for granted as a mysterious vis medicatrix naturae. This hope has been realized, and the immune system of the human body is now being intensively studied, with promising results, despite some obfuscation, ordered by our Jewish rulers, to conceal the fact that the immune system of any individual is hereditary and therefore also varies from race to race. This may be the greatest advance in therapeutic science since Harvey.

2. One also hoped that the dire disease would abate the plague of homosexual degenerates who are forever yelling for their spurious and imaginary "rights," and seeking, with the help of Congress, opportunities to infect valuable human beings. The quantity of animated garbage that recently stank up the already reeking streets of Tel Aviv-on-the-Potomac (commonly called Washington, D.C.) raises serious doubts about the effectiveness of "AIDS" as a social antiseptic and purgative. Optimists will continue to hope, counting on the incubation period of the virus, which is often as long as ten years.

3. The known death-rate in Africa and observations by satellite of deserted and presumably lifeless villages and areas encouraged hopes that the African disease would clean up that continent, perhaps in time to avert the massacre of the civilized inhabitants of South Africa, for which American "do-gooders" and the traitors who rule South Africa have been working for decades. Alas, it is now clear that "AIDS" will not save the South Africans from their folly.

What is even worse, according to a report reprinted in the April 1992 issue of the little newsletter issued by Canadians for Foreign Aid Reform,[1] the Congoids are breeding faster than the disease can dispose of them and faster than they are killing each other with weapons supplied by American and other taxpayers. The population of Africa south of the Sahara was 190,000,000 in 1955, when the Communists ("anti-colonialists") were just getting down to creating disaster. Despite "AIDS," "civil" wars among the sub-humans, and starvation, the population increased to 515,000,000 in 1991, and is still increasing at a rate that will produce at least one billion talking apes by 2015.

1. P.O. Box 332, Station B, / Etobicoke, Ontario / M9W-5L3; subscription, $16.00 per annum.

If that statistic is correct, it cancels one of the brightest hopes excited by the epidemic. It now appears that nature will not work for us in the Dark Continent, and intelligent Aryans, if there are enough of them left, will have to confront the imminent crisis and deal with it. American nitwits, excited to sentimental fatuity by scenes cunningly exhibited on the Kikes' boob-tubes, have generally approved the wanton waste of their resources and of some American lives in an attempt to mitigate the effects in Somalia of a famine the inhabitants brought on themselves. (The mongrel inhabitants are of largely Semitic and Hamitic, rather than Congoid, ancestry, but they are 'wogs,' biological trash.)[2] If Americans are so eager to benefit the world, they should adopt a rational policy: use the Navy and Air Force to prevent the delivery of the one billion dollars' worth of food that is now given each year by foolish Aryans to the Congoids and similar sub-humans. This would surely accelerate the beneficial effects of starvation. It would probably also be well to prevent the delivery of arms and ammunition. It is true that such an embargo would decrease the rate at which the niggers kill each other, but it would help preserve the elephants, rhinoceros, and other valuable species of mammals that the savages are now slaughtering.

Africa contains many valuable and some indispensable minerals which the "New World Order" is designed to prevent Americans from procuring for such industry as they have left. A drastic diminution of the number of talking anthropoids in Africa would make it possible to disinfect the regions from which we could obtain the minerals we need, and would also ensure the survival of mammals that we like and with whom we have formed some traditional bonds. But muzzy headed females will complain, as usual, that common sense is hard-hearted and "unfeeling."

2. Cf. Liberty Bell, March 1993, pp. 15-21.

AT THE JEWISH CEMETERY IN PRAGUE

A Chapter from the Novel BIARRITZ

By Hermann Goedsche

Originally Published in 1868 and Republished Numerous Times

Translated from the German and annotated
By
Charles E.Weber, Ph.D.

TRANSLATOR'S INTRODUCTION

Biarritz is the title of a very long novel by the German diplomat, Hermann Goedsche (1815-1878). It was originally published in 1868 by Liebrecht in Berlin. Goedsche published Biarritz under the pseudonym of Sir John Retcliffe. Various editions of it appeared later, one in Berlin around 1876 and another in Munich around 1924. The chapter of Biarritz entitled, "Auf dem Judenkirchhof in Prag" (At the Jewish Cemetary in Prague), occupies pages 141 to 193 of the edition from which I obtained copies of the chapter. This chapter was reprinted in Berlin in 1919 under the title, Das Geheimnis der jüdischen Weltherrschaft, aus einem Werke des vorigen Jahrhunderts, das von den Juden aufgekauft wurde und aus dem Buchhandel verschwand (The Secret of Jewish Domination of the World, from a work of the previous century that was bought up by the Jews and disappeared from the book trade). This reprint is listed as having 47 pages in the catalogue of the Library of Congress in Washington. In 1933 the chapter was again reprinted, this time in Berlin with an introduction by a prominent National Socialist legal scholar, Johann von Leers. This edition bore the original title, "Auf dem Judenkirchhof in Prag." Further editions of the chapter were published by the Orbis Verlag in Prague, 1942 ff.

"Auf dem Judenkirchhof in Prag" is reputed to be one of the chief sources of the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, which was first reprinted in Russia in 1903 in the newspaper Znamia and subsequently in book form in 1905. This famous work purports to be a report of the meetings held in Basel in 1897 at the time of the first Zionist congress. It was translated into a number of languages. Its authenticity has been disputed, but Henry Ford, who supported the publication in 1920-1922 of research on the Jewish question, seems to have given the wisest evaluation of the Protocols when he remarked of them, "I don't know who wrote the Protocols, but everything is going according to their plan."

An important difference between the Protocols and "Auf dem Judenkirchhof in Prag" lies in the fact that the latter is in a form which reveals itself at the end to have been a dream with aspects of a nightmare. In this dream, however, criticism of actual Jewish power and behavior is presented. Several decades earlier the famous Jewish poet, Heinrich Heine (1797-1856), had bitterly criticized contemporary German conditions within the framework of his Reisebilder (travel images).

When we read "Auf dem Judenkirchhof in Prag" we must bear in mind that it was written at a time when the emancipation of the Jews in western Europe had taken place less than a century earlier, largely as a result of the French Revolution and the spirit of the Enlightenment. In Germany, a notable manifestation of this spirit was the famous drama by G.E. Lessing, Nathan der Weise (1779). During the course of the nineteenth century, Jews in Europe acquired a further tremendous financial power, as Goedsche brings out in quite detailed, specific terms. This financial power, however, had not been something entirely new in the nineteenth century, post-emancipation time, as demonstrated by the rôle of the Jews at various courts, such as those in Württemberg in the eighteenth century and in Brandenburg in the sixteenth century. No less a figure than Frederick the Great, king of Prussia from 1740-1786, entrusted great monetary responsibilities to a Jew by the name of Ephraim. It seems ironic that Hitler had a great admiration for Frederick the Great, whose portrait he kept during his last days in his bunker in Berlin.

Perhaps the most remarkable, if not downright eerie, aspect of "Auf dem Judenkirchhof in Prague" is its prophetic quality. Allowing for external changes and developments, such as the introduction of television, perceptive, well-informed Americans will have no trouble in noting many parallels between the objectives and behavior of Jews in the present-day United States, on the one hand, and those of the Jews as portrayed by Goedsche. This is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that Goedsche's work was written some 125 years ago, when some 90% of the Jews in the world were still living in Europe.

There are a number of technical difficulties which I have encountered in translating the chapter. Goedsche not only uses a number of Hebrew words (which I have retained) but even imitates the word order frequently used by Yiddish-speaking Jews, the juxtaposition of dependent infinitives with modal auxiliaries and future tense auxiliaries, while in standard, modern German such infinitives are usually at the end of a clause in a word order that would be analogous to "I shall this afternoon into town go." Since this Yiddishism has its parallel in English, I was not able to convey this particular Yiddish quality in my translation. It is all too often true that translations can be only approximations of the original text as to meaning.

Portrait of Nathan Hirschel, Primate of the Prague Jewish community in academic robes. Augsburg copper engraving of the eighteenth century.

AT THE JEWISH CEMETERY IN PRAGUE

The so-called Jewish City of Prague is formed by a remarkable jumble of crooked, cornered, and narrow alleys in the proximity of the old Prague Ring, which has witnessed so many bloody and important episodes of Bohemian and German history.

These dirty, narrow alleys, which for the most part have no names and whose labyrinth is familiar only to the inhabitants, are lined not with doors and entrance halls but rather dark caves which are never brightened by the light of day, chasms which spew out a throng of bargaining, selling, scolding men, women and children that live, crowded together and die in the desolate, dirty rooms and fill the narrow alleys during the day with the strangest small wares when they are not roaming about in the Christians' part of the city in order to carry on their trade and usury. Prague is the only city in Germany where the Jews are still secluded by customs and dwelling from the nation whose name they have assumed as a general classification in order to enjoy the advantages of an association with a government, or rather to make this government of service to their own advantage. [This refers to the citizenship status gained by Jews during the course of emancipation during the nineteenth century.]

The Jewish quarters in Prague are at once the trinket market in Vienna and the temple in Paris. In this mixture of ribbons, rags, iron and leather, deals with [the value of] thousands are transacted every day!

After one has pressed through this stinking, dirty and eerie market he suddenly comes upon a high, weathered wall which surrounds an area of one or two acres. Elder bushes and other wild shrubs jut up over this wall, the entire length of which is surrounded by the old houses of the Jewish quarter, houses which seem to be in danger of collapsing over it at any moment. This strange ring of wall has, from the outside, an eerie, confused, weather-beaten appearance.

It is the place of the dead — the famous Jewish cemetery of Prague!

Tombstone of David Gans (1613) in the Prague Jewish cemetery. Czechoslovakian postage stamp issued in 1967 to publicize the State Jewish Museum in Prague.

Not the melancholy quiet under the old elms and firs of the Christian cemeteries; not the mild shade which lies over the cypress forest of Turkish cemeteries and usually makes them the gathering place of the idle; not the treeless and bushless bleakness of the newer Catholic cemeteries of the west with uniform grass cover that makes everything equal and therefore so painful to the heart! That is not the character of this resting place; another spirit, the spirit of the people whose bones have found a place here after long, restless roaming, their whole, frightful history full of suffering, struggles, resistance and invincibility, characterizes it. It is as if at any moment these graves, heaped over each other tenfold, chaotic and covered with shrubbery, would open up, break open the stones that had been crumbled by a millennium in order to send out the restless roamer, a knapsack on his back and staff in hand, far out amongst the living generations, to defraud them, to enslave them and to seek the new Canaan: supremacy!

The Jewish cemetery in Prague is the oldest known. For a hundred years government law has closed it. For the present and for strangers it is one of the historical sights of Prague; for the Jews it is something sacred.

A gate-keeper with a garrulous tongue and red eyes who lives outside the wall opens the gate, which is otherwise always locked, for the curious stranger, and leads him into this wilderness of death, which intensifies the impression of the external milieu. Only a narrow path is left between the tightly crowded rows of graves and moss-covered gravestones. Briers and broom cover everything; even the grass that grows up between them appears to emerge withered from the earth.

While one is walking along, the guardian of the dead relates the story of death; of Rabbi Ben Manasse, the great conqueror of death, of Rabbi Löw, the most learned rabbi of the 17th century, of Shimeon the Just and of the Polish princess Anna Schmiels. Then he leads the traveler to the gravestone of Anna Kohn and shows him the mysterious number 606, which is supposed to prove that Israel has been burying its dead here for twelve hundred years, in the legendary time of Libussa and her maids on the Wisherad, long before the cross pursued hither the people scattered in all directions by Jehova's wrath. [Libussa was the legendary founder of Prague.]

Without giving credence to this date, one can nevertheless agree with the opinion of all of Jewry that there existed here one of the oldest — the Jews say the oldest — Israelite settlements and communities in Europe.

However, the Jewish guide, along with the curious stranger, goes on past a place where a strange heap of field-stones arises under an ancient elder tree amongst sunken stones; and if the traveler asks him he gives an evasive answer.

Beth-Chayim — the house of life — is the name of the cemetery! Yes, certainly this resting place of the dead is the house of life! This is true because there issues forth from here the mysterious, powerful impulse which makes the dispersed people the master of the earth, the scorned people the tyrants of the nations, and which is supposed to fulfill the promises to the children of the Golden Calf, promises that were once given to the people of God in the burning bush of thorns! [*]

Even the gloomy appearance of the Jewish city had taken on a certain festive appearance. The fluttering small wares had disappeared from the corner stones and door posts, the old, toothless women, the lads with the pointed, sharp faces and the shrewdly glistening eyes, the girls with the stout fullness of breasts and hips, which facilitates so very much the reproduction of the people, darted from cave to cave in holiday garments. Leafy branches were put up on the houses and broken window panes. On the old stone bench men were sitting in lively conversation; along the passages the younger people were chatting. Men and women in their best Sabbath dress, their prayer books in their hands, were walking among them to the synagogue, and poor Christian women, whom poverty forced to be servants, came with bowls and bottles in order to make preparations for the meal.

It was the Feast of Tabernacles, the last day, the day of gathering, and the darkness of the evening already was descending on the narrow alleys, while beyond the Jewish quarters the Christian part of the city was at the moment still lit up in the light of rays of the departing sun.

Two men, one of them older, in a black, silken talar and long, hanging locks at the temples that characterize the Polish Jews, the other in his middle years in a modern suit on which sparkled the diamond buttons of his shirt and the thick, golden chain on his vest whenever he happened to pass a scarce ray of light, were walking through the narrow streets without bothering to notice the activities around them.

[*See Exodus, chapter 3.]

The younger man appeared to be the guide and when he brought his companion as far as the little house in which the gate-keeper of the cemetery lives, he knocked on the already closed shutter, through the slots of which the pleasant glow of candles proclaimed the festive activities inside, for the summer had been good and had brought in generous tips of the tourists.

The narrow face of the gate-keeper appeared at once at the door and looked out into the darkness of the evening with unseeing eyes.

"Are you Levi Aaron? Where have you been staying so long? After all, the neighbors are already all together and the cake and kosher wine are on the table."

"It is not Aaron," said the knocker. "Come outside, Joel, someone wants to talk to you!"

The dull eyes of the gate-keeper had become accustomed to the darkness. "God the just," he said with astonishment while darting out of the door, "it is one of the elders! Honored sir, what is it that you command?"

"I, nothing, but the rabbi here wishes to conduct another short prayer at the cemetery because he wants to leave with the train very early in the morning."

"At the cemetery? Tonight? After all, you know yourself, honored Mr. Banker, that I am forbidden to open after sundown, and in addition today, after all, is the holy Sabbath."

"In the first place, you need not shout out my profession in the night," said the banker with hesitation, "so that every peddler Jew knows that the banker Rosenberg was at your house. As far as the permission to open is concerned, I am the elder and I give it. I shall wait here until the prayer is at an end."

"Would you not deign to enter my poor house?"

"No! hurry and fetch the key!"

"It is hanging here behind the door."

"All the better. Then the company inside need not know what we have done. Find a pretext so that the curious people will not pester me!"

The gate-keeper disappeared inside, but he soon returned with the bunch of keys and opened up the little portal next to the gate path. He had taken a lantern with him and was about to light it.

"Forget it!" spoke the deep voice of the rabbi. " I do not need any light. Lock the door from the inside.!"

"But Mr. von Rosenberg...."

"Lock it, I tell you!"

The gate-keeper obeyed with a hint of suspicion.

"Now lead me to the grave of the holy rabbi Simeon ben Yehuda."

"Take hold of my garment, honored sir," said the cemetery guard, "it is dark and you might stumble over the old graves."

"I see at night better than during the day, my son!" answered the deep voice of the Polish scribe.

" Well, then. Here is the grave!"

The old man reverently kissed the pile of stones to which the gate-keeper had led him. Then he wrapped the prayer strap around his forehead and bowed his head.

The guard heard him murmur a long prayer in the Hebrew language, but it was so mixed with ancient words or a dialect quite unknown to him that he understood only a few expressions, although in former years he had long been a prayer leader of a Bohemian congregation.

It was only after quite some time and after the gate-keeper had given signs repeatedly of a growing impatience that the stranger ended his prayer and turned to the guardian of the cemetery.

"How long have you been performing the duty?"

"Ten years!"

"And how long did your predecessor perform the duty?"

"Forty-five!"

"Forty-five years; they cannot know it," murmured the old man. "Listen!"

"What do you wish?"

"When you took over your duty from your predecessor, did you receive an instruction or an order from him?"

"I?"

"Yes, you! because it has been thus since the first dead person found his final resting place in this soil."

"Well, and if that is the case, why are you asking about it? This is the first time that that happened during my duty."

"Because it happened only once every hundred years and a man's life only seldom reaches this goal."

"I see, you know about it, rabbi," said the gate-keeper fearfully. "But if I am to obey you, you must give me the word which was handed down to me by my predecessor with a holy oath that I had to give on the Torah."

The Polish rabbi bowed to him and slowly whispered to him a word with seven syllables.

The gate-keeper turned with humility. "You are the master, rabbi," he said. "Everything that you order will take place."

"You will send away the friends that are celebrating the festival in your house before the clock of the Christians, which they made on the tower on the market to scorn our people, strikes the eleventh hour."

"It will happen, rabbi, as you say."

"When the hammer of the clock first strikes you will open the gate of this garden of Adonai, and when the last stroke has died away you will disappear into your house and close the doors and windows and go to your bed, so that you and yours will be like a corpse, which neither sees nor hears."

"I shall neither see nor hear!"

"The angel of death will keep your soul in your body and cause it to roam between the graves to the end of time if you do not strictly follow the order!" threatened the old man. "Now come and bear in mind that in your service you are a servant of the great synagogue of Jerusalem. I do not need to remind you to remain silent, even to the man of earthly vanity who brought me here."

They both went back to the gate at which the banker was still keeping guard.

"Now," said the banker, "your will has been carried out, rabbi, and you can inform my business friend in Warsaw that Rosenberg and Son are always ready to do any favor for a guest that is recommended to them from such a good hand. Should we go home now, where my wife is waiting with the meal?"

"Let us go, son," spoke the rabbi, "but excuse me from the vain display. I shall spend the night in prayer!"

The banker shrugged his shoulders and offered the gatekeeper a coin. "Joel," he said softly, "it is not necessary that the other elders of the community learn about the violation of the rule."

The gate-keeper nodded and the two men disappeared once more in the dark alleys, which had gradually become more nearly empty, while joyous chatting and sounds of the festive meal could be heard from the houses.

Miserable, dirty and dark though these caves appeared from the outside, not a few of the parlors in the spaces furthest to the rear were now resplendent in the light of numerous wax candles which was caught in high mirrors and on the precious Brussels rugs on the floor or glistened from the rich table ware that heavily loaded down the tables with vases, bowls and goblets, at which the women and girls were sitting who perhaps during the day were keeping the notions down on the stinking alley and were now rustling in heavy silken dresses, adorned with golden chains and bracelets, while the fire of diamonds and rubies glowed from the dark hair and the highly arched bosoms.

Czecho-Slovakian stamp issued 23 February, 1957

Who does not know of the splendid Prague bridge which leads over from the old quarter to the Hradschin, or had not at least heard of it?

On sixteen double arches the bridge spans more than 150 feet over the Moldau [Czech: Vltava], which rushes far below, connecting the old quarter with the Mala Strana [Little Quarter] and the Hradschin.

Emperor Karl IV, to whom the old Bohemian city owes its splendor, laid the foundation stone on 9 July 1358, but it was not entirely completed until 150 years later under Vladislaw II [king of Bohemia 1471-1516].

What fates, what splendor, what streams of blood have been witnessed by the mighty structure, which has defied for 500 years, almost without damage, time, tempests, waves and cannon balls.

The unsaintly Wenzel [IV, king of Bohemia 1378-1419] had Saint Nepomuk [ca. 1350 to 1393] thrown into the current because he did not want to reveal to him the minor sins of the Bohemian queen; along the Stone Alley the wild king raged with cane and hounds; Huss [ca. 1370 to 1415; religious reformer] walked there with his students to the Hradschin; the vain Sigismund [emperor 1410-1437] in gay splendor was to break his Imperial word so wretchedly at the stake of Kosnitz! — the wild Zizka [Hussite leader, ca.

1370-1424] swung his club, — George of Podebrad [reigned 1458-1471] went to his coronation over the mighty arches, Louis the Jagellone to his death in the Battle of Mohács [in which he was defeated by the Turks on 29 August 1526], looked proudly on his beautiful Prague and the all too weak Rudolph [II, 1576-1612], emperor of women, jugglers and astronomers, hurled down his curse upon the ungrateful city, which gave the stolen crown to his brother Matthias Corvinus [Goedsche has confused Emperor Matthias, 1612-1619, with the earlier Hungarian king, Matthias Corvinus]. The square stones, which were already gray with age, witnessed the Imperial councillors Martinitz and Salwata being thrown from those windows by the Bohemian nobles on 23 May 1618, thereby beginning the bloody religious war with which Austria devastated Germany for 30 years. How often strode over these arches the horse of the proud Friedländer [i.e., Wallenstein], how the Swedish cannon balls thundered for weeks in vain over the bridge against the bridge tower of the old city, which was defended by the students and citizens and on whose corner tower were stuck for ten years the heads of the loyal men who paid on the scaffold of the Great Ring for their religious courage and for their loyalty to the Winter King [Frederick II of the Palatinate] and for their defeat on the White Mountain (8 November, 1620].

And again an Imperial procession of the Bavarian Albert moved over the bridge. Albert, led to Prague by the hereditary foe of the Germans, the French, during the War of [Austrian] succession, had himself crowned there as Karl VII. Then came the Prussians for the first time (1744) and thirteen years later the cannons of Frederick the Great spewed 90,000 balls against the city. —

But even the most recent time has also drenched the bridge with blood in the Pentecostal week of the year 1848, when the wild uprising built its barricades at the bridge tower of the old city and the cannon of Prince Windischgrätz thundered over to the old city and avenged the death of the Princess!

Certainly, few bridges have such memories!

On this evening, too, the stream of people who always enliven this interesting as well as beautiful spot of the Bohemian land filled the broad granite sidewalks and salients of the arches, with their benches and statues, surging back and forth, an unending, colorful, scintillating line; citizens, soldiers, tourists, farmers, clergymen and workers, who moved from one side of the river to the other or who were walking on this beautiful evening for recreation to the splendid Moldau Island.

From the towers of the city clocks were striking ten o'clock. In the semicircular structure in which stands the statue of Saint Nepomuk, at the same place from which King Wenzel had the silent father confessor thrown into the currents of the Moldau — probably because at that time Offenbach had not yet written his famous couplet for husbands in La Belle Hélène [operetta, 1865] — and thus made a Christian martyr out of a quite obstinate clergyman — there sat on a stone bench a man of tall, slim build whose serious, pale appearance with a balding forehead, the result of many nights spent at a study desk, gave the impression of his being older than he really was. His large, light blue eyes with a somewhat rigid glance looked attentively over the passing crowd of people as if he were searching amongst the hundreds of people for a certain figure and could not yet find it.

Although the face of the waiting man exhibited the Germanic type, with its physical strength, this strength was spiritualized by great capacities and exertions of will of his mind. The characteristics of the mind and the habits of life certainly exercise great influence on one's external appearance, and if they cannot reshape the original type, they nevertheless leave their traces on it.

Every physiognomist who saw the waiting man on the Prague bridge over the Moldau would have recognized immediately that this man was leading a lofty intellectual life and had dedicated his youthful vigor to serious and difficult studies.

The bells had just rung out the tenth hour when a man approaching from the direction of the Hradschin dressed in a light summer coat stepped into the semicircular structure toward the waiting man, who promptly rose.

"Welcome, sir, I see that you received my letter and that curiosity or the thirst for knowledge were really so great as to cause you to make the trip."

He extended his hand toward him, which the other man clasped and shook cordially with his two hands.

"Signor Lasali, how happy I am to see you again, healthy and strong!"

"Cospetto! [= good heavens] after the adventure in the Roman catacombs, where you saved my life! You see, the five days of hunger and thirst have left no aftereffects other than the fact, at most, that my appetite for Ortolans and Champaigns has become all the sharper. But you also see, dear doctor, that Larochefoucauld's [French author, 1613-1680] and Machiavelli's maxims about gratitude of people are not always quite reliable and that in the latter half of the twentieth [sic] century there are still human beings who remember their obligation of gratitude and cash their checks without being forced to do so by a commercial court."

"Believe me, signor," said the scholar, "it was less the prospect of the keeping of your promise and thus the fulfillment of one of my most ardent wishes than the fact of hearing something from you after three years that delighted me and motivated me to follow your short lines at once and to make the trip hither from Berlin to Prague."

"For this purpose I came directly from Milan. Indeed, my letter was short. Do you have it with you?"

"Yes, I know the lines by heart, having read them so often. They read: My life saver! I once vowed to you to procure for you the true key to the Cabala if I found the opportunity to do so; otherwise, I do not think much of sworn oaths, but I am prepared to keep this promise if you wish to meet me at 10 o'clock on 8 October under the Nepomuk statue on the old bridge over the Moldau in Prague. Under that your name."

"Right. That is the way it was. Do you still insist on your wish?"

"More than ever! You will render an invaluable service to the body of knowledge!"

"To the body of knowledge?" said the stranger with scorn. "That would certainly not motivate me to do this if my own curiosity did not. Listen, doctor, bend a bit over the balustrade, because what we have to discuss should scarcely be heard by the waves of the Moldau if both of us do not want to expose ourselves to a certain death."

The young scholar looked at his companion with some astonishment but complied with his wish.

It is time that we say something about the personal traits of this man.

He could have been of the same age as that of the young scholar, although the peculiar complexion of his face made difficult any estimate. The color of his skin was like the dull shade of a wax candle; no trace of color, of healthy redness, was on his face. Even the raised lips that witnessed a search for pleasure appeared void of blood and revealed, when open, a row of firm, large teeth that were similar to the set of teeth of a wolf. The chin and nose were strongly developed, the latter protruding narrowly and boldly, revealing his Jewish origin by its characteristic curvature. His forehead was high and broad, the whole upper part of his head was strong and full, as the thick, light brown curly hair showed that was similar to the wool of a Negro. Around the mouth and the broad nostrils there was a haughty smile which often became the expression of scorn and cruelty. The eyes, more round than oval, were gray-green, very bright and had something vulture-like about them.

"Listen to me, Doctor Faust,"[*] he said as the two men were leaning over the balustrade and looking into the river, on which the shine of the narrow crescent was shimmering. "When I promised you three years ago in Rome to make you acquainted with the secret of the Cabala, that took place more to boast about power and capability that I did not, in fact, possess at the time; for even though I had pursued a number of studies about the secret traditions and sciences of my people from ancient time, not as a result of thirst for knowledge, but rather of curiosity and caprice, I knew very well that I had hardly put my foot in the door of those secrets, which I now still believe to be nothing other than the sophisms and speculations of exalted spirits, with the nimbus of which blockheads are kept in bounds and obedience. Several chance discoveries which I have made since then have led me to other thoughts and stimulated my curiosity. In spite of the short time of our association you know that I am not the man to give up so easily an idea on which I have seized or a trace which I have found. Whatever my purpose of the satisfaction of my curiosity might be, whatever the real reason that motivated me to select you as an accomplice, do not bother yourself about it. Anyway, the opportunity of fulfilling our mutual wish is at hand and it is simply a matter of whether you want to fulfill the conditions which I must place on your participation in the exploration."

[*Lasali addresses the scholar somewhat scornfully as Dr. Faust, who is portrayed in Goethe's famous drama as an idealistic seeker of truth and whom Mephistopheles tries to seduce away from his ideals.]

"If they are not contrary to my honor and conscience, any conditions."

"Cospetto! [= good heavens] Every one himself is the best judge of that, Signor Dottore! But you have nothing to risk in that regard, but certainly in another regard, that is, your life. Do you feel determined enough to defy a serious danger?"

"For the sake of knowledge, any danger!"

"Bene! [= well] Then I must tell you that I shall lead you to a place where both of us would be more likely to be torn to pieces if discovered than our being allowed to escape alive, indeed, where a mere suspicion that we were in on the secret would bring a mob on our neck that would hound us to death in a short or long time."

"You are making me ever more eager, Signor Lasali."

"That is the one thing that I must tell you. The other matter is—you know that I myself am a member of the nation that is scattered over the earth."

"You told me that you were born a Jew."

"For that reason — although I was rejected and excommunicated by all the silly ceremonies and curses as prescribed by the books of law because I considered it advantageous for my purposes to have a bit of Christian holy water poured on my head — I nevertheless have a certain faible [= partiality] for my origin and the stipulation that I make you is your word of honor that you must keep strictest silence about everything that we shall see and hear until I release you from your promise."

"Upon my honor!"

"Agreed. I know, do I not, that you understand Chaldean?"

"During my studies of the ancient texts I mastered it completely."

"You know that I understand it also, if not as well as you. We shall probably need this knowledge. — From your research on the Cabala do you recall that there is reference in the mystic writings to a congress of chiefs or chosen men, a congress that is repeated from time to time?"

"Yes. In the Jezirah there is mention of it with certain words, and if I have interpreted these words correctly such a congress takes place every hundred years."

"That is the way it is. The last one was held in the year 1760 and you will recall that soon thereafter there followed a great movement amongst Jews. At present we are writing the year 1787 of the destruction of Jerusalem and it is, I do not know as a result of what constellation of numbers, the certain year of the congress of the Cabalistic Sanhedrin."

"From what do you know that, friend?"

"That can be no concern of yours. Do not ask me any questions about that. It is just that way. Moreover, this evening is that of the congress and this city is the place. I intend to be at this congress at any risk of danger and I am prepared to take you with me."

"But will this not be a dishonest eavesdropping, an illegal penetration of the secrets of other people?"

"Per Bacco! [= by Bacchus] as we Italians say, if you have such scruples, then give up the fulfillment of your so long harbored wish. Or do you believe that those men who keep the secret of the Cabala will serve it up to you on an offering plate? As far as I am concerned, I want to learn it at the risk of any danger!"

The scholar thought for some moments, then he said with resolution: "I shall accompany you, no matter what might be the results!"

"Good. Then we are in agreement. Let us go, because we do not have a moment to lose. It is a good thing that you are wearing dark clothes, as I am. Here, take this short five-chamber revolver and be ready from the outset, as I am, in case of discovery to sacrifice any life other than our own. Come."

The two men left the bridge and made their way into the old city. The Italian appeared to be familiar with all the corners and little alleys or to be taking a direction in keeping with previously noted points because without losing his way once he soon turned into the side of the Jewish City. Under a dark gateway he stood still and pulled from his pocket two false dark beards that could easily be fastened with rubber band and gave one to his companion. When they thus made themselves more similar to the inhabitants of this eerie part of the city they plunged without hesitation into the narrow dirty little alleys.

The Italian turned to the left near the cemetery, slipped through a dark passage and arrived with his companion at the northern wall of the cemetery, against which extended the houses of this side with their narrow, filthy courtyards. He must have already sought out during the day the appropriate place because in a dark corner not illuminated by any ray of light he soon came upon a pile of debris and stones which was half as high as the wall. He secured a knotted rope on a beam, the other end of which he threw over the wall and, having whispered once more the stern admonishment of silence and caution to his companion, he climbed up the wall, over whose top, protected with pieces of broken glass, he cautiously threw his coat and let himself down on the other side onto the chaotic tangle of graves.

With the same silence and caution, the scholar followed him without heeding various injuries on the sharp edges of glass. Then Lasali got his direction by the gables of the houses outlined in the night sky over the place at which they had climbed and motioned to his companion to follow him on hands and feet, crawling over the sunken graves further toward the middle of the cemetery.

The clock of the tower of the town hall was just striking the eleventh hour, and at the first stroke the two men heard the key creaking in the gate.

A deep silence followed this sound. It showed that the cemetery had been opened. As strenuously as they listened, they did not hear anybody enter.

The two men now found themselves crouching next to each other in a depression between two grave stones that were overgrown with a thorny hedge, in the proximity of the pile of stone which forms the grave of Rabbi Simeon Ben Yehuda. In the Jews' houses around the cemetery the lights began to go out and all sounds of the festival began to die away.

An even more eerie silence spread over the eerie place.

Thus the two eavesdroppers distinctly and clearly heard the first two quarter hours striking from the towers of the city.

Suddenly the Italian pressed the arm of the scholar.

"Silence — they are coming! Not a sound, no matter what you may hear and see!"

The gate of the entrance creaked softly — then there was a rustling along the hedges and stones like that of slowly dragging garments — a white, indistinct figure glided noiselessly, like a shadow, in the passage ways.

The figure bent down at the pile of stones, touched the stones thrice with its forehead and began to murmur a prayer softly.

The German understood that the words were Chaldean, but he had no time to think about that. In through the passage from the gate there was a hobbling, coughing and moaning; an old, bent-over figure came, almost crawling, along the even older graves and sat down beside the first figure and joined its murmured prayer.

And again there was the sound of firm, strong steps that approached on the path, a tall stately figure in a white, fluttering taleth, a prayer cloak. The figure bent down, as if unwillingly, over the plot fence.

The walk was repeated thirteen times. Thirteen ghostly figures had arrived. The doctor had counted them, but he hardly knew if they were the living or the dead. A cold shiver ran over his back and a profound horror caused his heart to thump. Involuntarily he recalled that eerily lofty tradition of the Day of Atonement on the tenth day of the month of Tishri in the synagogue of Posen, when just at the prayer, Kol-Nidre, the congregation grew and grew and figure after figure crowded in, covered in their prayer cloaks, hundreds and hundreds, far more than the numbers of the community, until the horrified rabbi raised his hands for exorcism and demanded: Whoever has flesh on his cheeks out there must remove his taleth! And when hundreds remained covered and the cloaks were removed from their heads, the skulls of the dead were seen. They had come from their graves to celebrate the festival along with the community.

As in that instance, the doctor believed that he saw the white talethim fall and skull upon skull grinning, when the last stroke of the midnight hour trembled through the night. With the dying out of the tone, a sharp metallic sound could be heard and a ghostly blue apparition of light flared up as if issuing forth from the pile of stones, the grave of the old Cabalist, and dimly lit the thirteen white covered figures that were bending down around the grave.

"May ye be greeted, ye Roshe-Bathe-Aboth[1] (1. heads of tribes) of the twelve shebatim[2] (2. tribes) of Israel," spoke a deep voice.

"Mayest thou be greeted, thou son of the cursed man!"

"One hundred years have passed. Whence come the Nesiims?"[3] (3. princes of tribes)

"Where the wind blows hither, where the people of Adonai are scattered across the lands whose governance was promised to them by the father of elders. [*]

"Are ye prepared to fulfill the promise in the hundred years that are coming?"

"We are prepared!"

"Then give the answer of those whom you represent. Shebet[4] (4. tribe) of Judah?"

"Amsterdam!" answered a strong, firm voice.

"Shebet of Benjamin?"

"Toledo!" resounded in a low manner.

"Shebet of Levi?"

"Worms!"

"Shebet of Manasseh?"

"Budapest!"

"Shebet of Gad?"

"Cracow!"

[*Compare Deuteronomy VII, 16: "And thou shalt consume all the people which the Lord thy God shall deliver thee; thine eye shall have no pity on them.]

"Shebet of Simon?"

"Rome!"

"Shebet of Sebulon?"

"Lisbon!"

"Shebet of Ruben ?"

"Paris!"

"Shebet of Dan?"

"Constantinople!"

"Shebet of Asser?"

"London!"

"Shebet of Isashar?"

The men behind the thicket could not understand the name which was murmured by the hoarse, weak voice of the man who had been called upon.

"Shebet of Naphtali?"

"Prague!" [*]

"And I, the representative of those who are outcast and roaming about," said the questioner with a deep voice, "who moves around throughout the world to gather you for the work of revenge and of the promise that was given to the seed of Abraham, taken away from that seed by the sons of the crucified man! Whoever is present from the house of Aaron[1] (1. the tribe of Levi) should stand up and test the heads and gather the council!"

[*The reader will have noted that all of the cities named are in Europe and none in the western hemisphere, not even New York. In 1868 that was justified because the vast majority of Jews, ca. 90%, lived in Europe at that time. The Jewish population of the United States at that time amounted to about 1/2 of 1% of the total population. The great waves of Jewish migration to the United States came after 1880, largely from the Russian Empire, which included at that time Poland, Lithuania and Latvia, areas of heavy Jewish settlement. For a detailed statistical study of Jews in Germany and in the world, see Forschungen zur Judenfrage, volume III, pages 152-198, Hamburg, 1938.]

The man who had come first got up and sat down on the pile of stones. One man after the other stepped toward him and whispered to him the word with seven syllables which had been mentioned to the watchman of the cemetery that evening and each time he nodded his assent.

Then they all sat down again.

"Brethren," said the Levite, "our fathers have made the covenant which leads the initiated of the shebatim every hundred years to the grave of the great master of the Cabala, which is the teaching that imparts to the elected men the power in the world, the governance over all of the generations of the seed of Ismael. For eighteen hundred years the people of Israel have been carrying on the struggle for governance which was promised to Abraham, which the cross has seized from us. Under the soles of our foes, under pressure and death and persecution of every sort, Israel has never given up this struggle; and because the people of Abraham were dispersed over the whole earth, the whole earth will also belong to them! The wise men of our people have been leading the struggle for centuries, and step by step the people of Israel have been lifting themselves up from their decline, and mighty is the power which they already exert, openly and in secret, over the thrones and nations. For ours is the god of the earth which Aaron made for us as a consolation in the desert, the Golden Calf before which the apostates bow!"

"We are listening!" was murmured in the circle.

"When all of the gold of the earth is ours, all of the power will be ours. Then the promise that was given to Abraham will be fulfilled. Gold is the New Jerusalem; it is the mastery of the world. It is power, it is revenge, it is pleasure, thus everything which people fear and wish. That is the secret of the Cabala, the doctrine of the spirit that rules the world, of the future! For eighteen centuries we have belonged to our enemies; the new century will belong to Israel. For the fifth time, at this place, the knowing members of the secret covenant are gathering in the thousand year struggle, for which we have finally found the courage, for the purpose of conferring as to the best means that the times and the sins of our foes offer, and every time in the past five-hundred years the new sanhedrin has had continuing victories of Israel to report. No century, however, enjoyed such successes as this one. For that reason we may believe that the time is near for which we are striving and we may say: ours is the future!"

"If a wave of hostility toward Jews does not intervene!" said the tribeless man with a bitter scorn. This man seemed to represent the advocatus diaboli of the collegium of consecration at this gathering.

"The dark times of this danger are over. The advances of the so-called culture of the Christian nations are the best protection for our efforts. Before we hear the advice of the individual voices, let us examine the means for material power of our people at the present, the cash capital which is at the disposal of Israel. So name the richest of our people on the seven international markets of Europe and how high their assets are estimated! Begin with Paris!"

"Fould and Co.," reported the voice of the seken, "20 million francs; A.J. Stern and Co., 30 million; G.L. Halphen and Co., 20 million; Anton Schnapper, 15 million; Samuel von Haber, 7 million; H.J. Reinach, 7 million; J.E. Kann and Co., 5 million; Bischoffsheim, Goldschmidt and Co., 15 million; M. Cahen D'Anvers, 5 million. Together 124 million francs. There are, in addition, the smaller houses with approximately 80 million, so that the capital in the hands of Israel amounts to more than 200 million francs."

"That is 47% of the government debt of France," said the roaming man. "Pereire and Mirés, who belong to our people, are to be estimated at 30 million." [*]

[*The reader must bear in mind that the franc values represented actual gold coinage, which was struck in denominations of 5, 10, 20, 50 and 100 francs. The

"Continue. The report from London?"

"Moses Montefiore, 2 million pounds; Moses and Son, Bischoffsheim and Goldschmidt and the Stern Brothers, each 1 million; R. Raphael and Son, Samuel Montague, each 500,000 pounds; together 6,800,000. The smaller houses of the City, over 4 million — together 11 million pounds or 260 million francs in London."

"I notice that the seken is leaving out the houses of Rothschild, the princes of the stock exchange!"

"They must be mentioned separately," declared the Levite. "The report from Vienna."

"Moritz Königswarter, 14 million gulden," reported the third voice; "Herman Todescos, 15 million soldi; M.L.

20-franc piece, also known as the "Napoleon," contained 6.46 grams of 900/1000 fine gold. For the sake of comparison, the United States half eagle ($5. gold coin) contained 8.36 grams of 900/1000 fine gold. In 1868 the British pound had 7.99 grams of 917/1000 (22 carat) gold, the 10-gulden piece of the Netherlands 6.73 grams of 900/1000 fine gold and the 5-ruble piece 6.54 grams of 917/1000 fine gold. The 20-franc pieces were introduced in 1803 by Napoleon I and became so popular that they were copied in Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and other countries, but not in Germany, the Netherlands, Scandinavia and Russia. The German taler, or more specifically the vereinstaler in 1868, was a silver coin of 900/1000 fineness with a weight of 18.52 grams on the basis of the monetary treaty of 1837 amongst several of the German states, joined by many others later. The United States silver dollar, which had derived its name from the German taler, weighed 26.73 grams and was 900/1000 fine. The Austrian silver gulden (or florin) weighed 12.34 grams, just a bit less than the United States half dollar. In 1868 gold content was the basis for exchange rates. In 1868 gold had an enormous purchasing power in terms of wages. Between 1803 and 1914 Europe had, with practically no exceptions, stable currencies based on definite quantities of the precious metals. For that reason, government debts were a serious matter, since government could not pay them off with such excuses for money as paper notes and coins made of copper, zinc and aluminum. Since 1918 there have been a number of inflations and hyperinflations in Europe, in one form or another. In general, these inflations were seriously disadvantageous to middle class Aryans and advantageous to Jews, who often profited enormously during inflations at the expense of their host populations, such as during the Weimar Republic in Germany (1919-1933).]

Biederman and Co., Max Springer, Ephrussi and Co. and Eduard Wiender, each 1 1/2 million; Ludwig Ladenburg 2, Fr. Schey 2 1/2, Leopold Epstein 3 million. Together 46 1/2 million, the smaller houses 14 million, together 61 million gulden or 152 million francs in Vienna."

"The Austrian bonds are cheap! The government debt is 2268 million gulden. When there is bankruptcy the fortunes of our people must double!"

"Berlin!"

"S. Bleichröder, Mendelsohn and Co., H.C. Plaut and S. Herz, each 1 million talers; N. Reichenheim and Sons and Liebermann and Co., each 2 million; Hermann Gerson and M.C. Levy, each 1 1/2 million; Joel Meyer 1 1/4, Moritz Güterbock 3/4, Louis Riess and Co. 1/2 million; together 13 1/2 million talers or 90 million francs."

"Thus, one twelfth of the government debt in our hand. However, this sum is modest. The proportion must become different."

"The report from Hamburg!"

"H.B. Oppenheimer 4; J.E. Oppenheimer, Jaffé Brothers; Pintus Nathan Sons each 2 million marks; Behrens Sons 1 1/2; Ferdinand Jacobson, Samuel Levy Sons, L.R. Veit and Co., A. Alexander, Lieben Königswarter. M.M. Warburg, Consul H. Jonas and Co., Julius Leser, Martin M. Fränkel, each 1. Mendelsohn-Bartholdy 3 million marks; in Altona Amsel Jacob Ree, 1; Hesse Newman, 1; W.S. Warburg 2 million; together 27 1/2 million, with the other houses around 40 million marks or 76 million francs. But the wealth of the Christian houses is unfortunately still larger! Our people cannot always work their way up in the stiff Imperial City.

"Frankfurt on the Main!"

"B.H. Goldschmidt 7 million gulden; Marcus Königswarter, Jacob S.H. Stern and the Sulzbach Brothers, each 2 million; Lazarus Speyer Ellissen 1 1/2; Ed. Moses Kann and Co., 1 million. The smaller ones with lottery collectors approximately 8 million. In addition, the princes of capital, the combined houses of Rothschild in London, Paris, Frankfurt and Vienna with at least 100 million. Together that makes 123 million gulden or 260 million francs."

"The house of E.M. Günzburg in St. Petersburg [*] is estimated to be worth 2 million roubles; our houses in Rome and Naples are estimated at 20 million livres; in Amsterdam: Hollander and Lehven, Lippmann Rosenthal and Co. Becher and Fould, Wertheim and Gompertz are estimated at 40 million gulden. If we add all that up, the demonstrable fortune of Israel in merely ten capitals amounts to 1165 million francs. And in addition, the cities of second rank! Brethren, we may assume — without counting the people — that the great capital holders of Israel already have at their disposal a capital of two-thousand million francs in Europe!"

The approving murmur of the twelve gave the answer.

"For 3,500,000 Jews that amounts to 600 francs per capita," remarked the representative of the tribeless. "But the 3,500,000 are opposed by 265,000,000 enemies in Europe, or 500,000,000 fists!"

"The head will subdue the fist, just as it has done in the past. Labor is the servant of calculation, force the servant of intellect. Who would deny that cleverness is the talent of our race?"

"It is vain and greedy, haughty and pleasure-seeking."

"Where there is light there is also shadow. It was not without reason that Adonai, the lord, gave his chosen

[* It might seem strange to the modern reader that Russia had a well-developed commercial life in the 19th century. That fact became vivid to me when I was living in St. Petersburg in 1970. Along the Neva River there is a huge building in the Classical style built in 1805. It was the Russian stock exchange, which played an important rôle in European financial life. When I roamed through the building in 1970 it was being used as a museum of naval history.]

people toughness of the snake, the cunning of the fox, the sight of the falcon, the memory of the dog, the diligence of the ant and the faithful community of the beaver. We were along the waters of Babylon in captivity and we grew powerful! Our temple was destroyed and we built a thousand! We were enslaved in the dust for 1800 years and our head has grown above the nations and we shall enslave them again as long as the world exists!"

"The number of those who are having themselves baptized is growing!" the doubter harshly remarked.

"Fool!" said the Levite. Has not your roaming through the lands of the earth taught you that water does not wash away the spirit, but only the flesh? Let their missionary societies waste their money foolishly! Has not the haughty Times [of London] recently calculated that every converted Jewish soul costs the English mission 250,000 francs? And have we not ourselves prayed for the apostates on the Day of Atonement? For verily, I say unto you, the Jew does not become a Christian, but the Christian a Jew for generations by mixing the flesh. The baptized are the steps on which we ascend the paths that are still blocked for our people because every one of them adheres to us and not to those who are not of our body and spirit in spite of baptism; that is unless Israel itself would reject them as lepers!"

The twelve [members] of the circle murmured a curse; the doctor felt the Italian press his hand franticly and firmly around his arm. [This refers to the eavesdroppers in the cemetery.]

"Be silent and listen!"

"Brothers," spoke the voice of the Levite, "it is time that we, in accordance with the principle of our founder, that each of us, according to the experiences of the hundred years, pronounce the paths on which Israel is to be led so that it will arrive at its goal. We, the knowing ones, are the leaders who lead the multitude, which is blind. We are the architects who put together the dead stones of the tower so that it will jut up into the heavens."

"The tower of Babylon was smashed by the hand of him whom I dare not mention," said the tribeless man.

"Our structure is on the ground of the promise that was given to Abraham. Begin your words, tribe of Ruben! How will Israel attain the power and dominance over all the nations of the earth which are due it?"

A bright, sharp voice which had a somewhat cutting quality, spoke as follows:

"All of the princes and lands of Europe are in debt today. The exchange regulates these debts. Such transactions, however, are made only with liquid capital and for that reason all liquid capital must be in the hands of Israel. A good beginning toward that end has already been made, as we have just heard. Inasmuch as we dominate the exchange, we dominate the assets of the governments. For that reason the contracting of debts must be made easier for governments in order to get more and more into our hands. Wherever possible the capital for that must be based on mortgaged institutes of the government: railroads, receipts, mines, franchises and domains. Furthermore, the stock exchange is the instrument for bringing the assets and savings of little people into the hands of capitalists by enticing them to play the stock market. Installment purchases of stocks are the fortuitous invention of our people and even if the stock exchange people cheat each other, in the final analysis people outside the guild foot the bill."

The voice, which had certainly often been heard on the great stock exchange in Paris, became silent. "Are the sekenim in agreement with the opinions of the brother?" asked the Levite.

An approving murmur was the answer.

"It is the turn of the tribe of Simeon."

A solemn, deep voice whose intonation and words gave testimony to deep contemplation carried over to the ears of the eavesdroppers.

"The ownership of real estate will always be the ironclad, indestructible asset of every country. In itself it imparts power, respect and influence. Ownership of real estate must thus pass into the hands of Israel. That is easy if we control liquid capital. For that reason the primary effort of Israel must be depriving the present owners of their ownership of real estate. Above all, the large-scale ownership of real estate is dangerous to us. For that reason the contracting of debt by the young aristocracy in the big cities must be made easy. By the fear of scandal we shall ruin the fortunes of the aristocrats and weaken the importance of the aristocracy. The ownership of real estate must be liquidated by making it a fluid commodity. The more we cause a division of real estate holdings the more easily and cheaply we will get them into our hands. For this purpose capital must be withheld for some time from mortgages and their insecurity propagated. Under the pretext of wanting to make things easier for the poorer classes and labor the taxes and burdens must be imposed on real estate alone in the government and communities. If the real estate and land are in our hands the toil of the Christian tenants and workers will produce a tenfold interest for us."

The tribeless man laughed mockingly. "This advice is good, but not new. Ask in Paris and Vienna who already owns the houses! The Damno [apparently a type of mortgage payment plan], my invention, is an excellent device for ruining the owner."

Again there followed the approving murmur of the gathering.

"Tribe of Judah, it is your turn!"

The voice that was raised had a convincing, aggressive tone that had the sound of years and thalers. [The German monetary unit before the foundation of the Empire in 1871 was the thaler.]

"The artisan class, that force of the middle class, is standing in the way of Israel, as the ownership of real estate is the strength of the aristocracy, must be ruined. The artisan must be allowed to be nothing other than a worker. The best means for that is absolute commercial freedom. The manufacturer should take the place of the master craftsman. Since he himself does not have to work, but only to calculate, the children of Israel can thus turn their efforts to all branches of labor. Their capital and shrewdness will take the place of skill. With the conversion of the artisan into our factory workers we shall likewise dominate the masses for political purposes. Whoever opposes this system must be destroyed by competition! The public is a thoughtless and ungrateful mass that will leave the craftsman in the lurch in this battle when goods can be purchased somewhat more cheaply from the manufacturer." [This discussion reminds us of the conflicts portrayed in Gerhart Hauptmann's famous play, "The Weavers," which has to do with the tribulations of Silesian weavers in competition with emerging factory production in the middle of the 19th century.]

A quick approval of the new sanhedrin proves that the truths of this advice had been comprehended and followed for a long time.

"It is my turn," said the Levite. "I shall speak in the name of the tribe of Aaron."

"The natural foe of Israel is the Christian Church. For that reason it must be undermined. Its splits makes this easier. We must encourage free thinking, doubts, lack of faith, discord. Thus constant war in the press against the Christian priesthood and suspicion and mocking of the clergy. A main pillar of the church is the school. We must thus gain an influence over the education of Christian youth. First of all, for that reason, a separation of the school from the church. Under the heading of progress and equal rights of all religions: conversion of religious schools into secular schools. The Israelites can become teachers in all schools, Christian education will be confined to the home and since the masses have no time for that and the religious life of the upper classes is in shambles, it will soon cease altogether. Agitation for the expropriation of the property of the churches and schools and transfer of the church and school property to the possession of the government, thus sooner or later to the hands of Israel."

The approving murmur accompanied the words of the speaker, no voice was raised against them. Then the speaker continued:

"The seken of the tribe of Isashar has his turn to speak."

It was the trembling voice of an old man who spoke thus:

"May the brothers work toward the cessation of armed force. Crude military service is not for the children of Israel; not every one is a Gideon! The armies are the support of the throne and schools of a narrow-minded patriotism. Not the sword, but rather intellect and money must govern. On every occasion, for that reason, the ridicule and suspicion of military personnel amongst the populace, the arousing of hostility between the two. Mercenaries are sufficient to do police work and to protect the haves from the have-nots.

"The lion of Juda has given us his resounding voice," the migrant said with scorn. "David overcame Goliath. In the future the nations will live in their night clothes, not in the shirion [= armor] of the warrior. A boxing at the stock exchange will be like a fought battle.!"

A protest against the impudent disdain appeared to arise in the circle but a word of the eldest quieted it.

"He is the son of Belial! He can speak but he will do as the council of shebatim decides."

"The tribe of Sebulon may speak."

A voice as sulking as thunder in the distance spoke as follows:

"Our people are basically a conservative people who adhere to that which is old and firm. But for our advantage we require an energetic involvement, that is to say, the leadership of the movements which are trembling through the world. It is undeniable that a tendency toward reformation is current in our times, but its original idea is the reformation of material things, that is to say, the material condition of the needy classes. For such a reformation however, the propertied classes must make sacrifices, especially capital. But this capital is in the hands of Israel. For that reason it was its task to participate superficially in the movement in order to guide it from the field of social reforms to the political field. The mass of the people as such is always blind and stupid and permits itself to be led by the screamers. But who screams as loudly and cleverly as Israel? For that reason our people were prominent on the tribune and prominent in the newspapers and in the organizations of the Christians! The more organizations and gatherings, the more discontented disinclination to work. From this there necessarily follows the impoverishment of the people and hence its subservience to those who have the money, and simultaneously the growth of our wealth. Furthermore, every movement brings us money because it ruins the little man and increases his debts. The insecurity of the thrones causes our power and influence to grow. For that reason maintenance of continuous unrest! Every revolution pays interest on our capital and advances us to our goal!"

A rather long silence followed these horrible sentences, as if every member of the secret sanhedrin were thinking about their frightful implications.

The son of Belial could once again be heard laughing hoarsely. "Are you afraid of blood? It is not yours!"

Then one of the members began to murmur his assent and the others followed.

"Son of Dan, it is your turn!"

The response bore the stamp of the lower Jewish type even in its voice.

"All commerce where there is calculation and profit must be in our hands. This commerce is our inherent right. Above all, we must have the commerce in spirits, oil, wool and grain. Then we shall have a hand in agriculture and land. We can make the daily bread everywhere and whenever discontentment and distress arise we can easily shift the blame and the outcry onto the governments. The little stuff that requires toil and yields little profit can remain in the hands of the Christians. They can wear themselves out and torture themselves just as the chosen people have tortured themselves for many centuries."

This speech hardly required an assent. The Levite summoned the next man: "Tribe of Naphthali!"

The words which followed had a sharp and self-confident sound.

"All offices of the government must be open to us! Only if this principle is realized will the cleverness and persistence of the Jewish office seekers soon create those who are really influential because it is only a question of such offices that bring external honor, power and advantage. The Christians can keep the offices that require work and knowledge. For that reason the Israelite will scorn the subaltern positions. The justice system is of prime importance and the legal profession is a great step forward. It is in keeping with the cleverness and persistence of our people and affords us insights into and power over the circumstances of our natural enemies. Why should a Jew, if there is equality, not be able to become a minister of education, since there have already been, after all, Jews who have been ministers of finance in more than one government?"

"Think of the gallows of Haman and of the fate of Süss and Lippold!" spoke the admonishing voice. [*]

"What is this raven squawking about past times that are behind us and that have been overcome? Is not one of our people a great minister in France and respected by the emperor [Napoleon III] himself?"

The tone of satisfied honor lay in the agreement which was accorded to the speaker, who continued:

"We must have our men join the legislators of the government. The special laws of the goyim for the children of Israel must be abolished everywhere, while we shall keep the principles of our fathers. We no longer need any special laws for our protection. Now we must be concerned with laws that guarantee advantages! A mild bankruptcy law that is supposed to be in the interest of humaneness will be a gold mine in our hands. In particular we must see to it that the usury laws are abolished in all countries with the outcry that money will become cheaper that way. Money is a commodity like any other commodity and the law itself must give us the right to raise its price as is necessary for our advantage.

"The messenger from the tribe of Benjamin should speak."

"What am I to add to the advice of such wise men? Israel should also have fame and honor. For that reason Israel must get to the top of all organizations where there is honor and no danger and throw itself onto those branches of science and art which are most readily in keeping with the character of our people. We can become great actors and great philosophers and great composers, because in all three of these fields abstract thought finds its application. In art we shall obtain appreciation and consecration of our people. In science, medicine and philosophy are the fields

[The references are to Haman of the Biblical book of Esther and to two Jews who had become influential at courts but were later executed for various crimes. Süss-Oppenheimer rose to a high position at the court of Duke Karl Alexander, where he engaged in various schemes to exploit the people of Württemberg. After Karl Alexander's death and after a long investigation of Süss' activities, Süss was executed in Stuttgart on 4 February 1738. Lippold was a Jewish mint-master who became influential at the court of the Elector of Brandenburg, Joachim II, after whose death Lippold was executed in 1573. For further details see the valuable book by George Liebe, Das Judentum in der deutschen Vergangenheit, Jena, 1924. Süss is perhaps the most famous of many "court Jews" who exercised diabolical influences on princes who took them into their confidence. Around 1940 a big-budget film was produced in Germany based on Süss' activities in Württemberg [a video cassette "Jud Süss" is available from Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 U.S.A. - B/W, 90 min. $50.00 + postage]. Even Frederick the Great of Prussia (reigned 1740-1786) was involved in Jewish intrigues and frauds. He leased his mint to his Jewish court jeweler, Ephraim, who debased the Prussian coinage. At present writing (December 1992), we Americans are being presented with the spectacle of a future president who is appointing one Jew after the other that will be in a position to manipulate the economy of the United States, the Senate of which will have 10% Jews, at least thrice their proportion of the American population.] which we want to seize. They afford the maximal room for theory and speculation. The physician penetrates the secrets of families and has their life in his hands." []

"Tribe of Asser, it is your turn!"

"We must demand the right of intermarriage between Jews and Christians. Israel can only profit from that, even if it pollutes its blood.[†] Our sons and daughters like to marry into the prominent and powerful families of the Christians. We give the money and for it we obtain the influence. The relationship to Christians has no effect upon us, but we shall have an effect on them. That is one thing. The other thing is that we honor the Jewish woman and practice forbidden lust preferably on the woman of our foes. A Jew should never make a daughter of his people into a

[* In 1933 there were 51,067 physicians in Germany, of whom 5,557 (10.88%) were Jewish by religion, thus 15 times the Jewish proportion of employed persons (.74%). In 1934, 9.4% of the population of Vienna was Jewish, but 52% of its physicians. Source: Volume III, pages 188, 189 and 192 of Forschungen zur Judenfrage, Hamburg, 1938.]

[† On this point, see Dr. Alfred Nossig, Integrales Judentum, Vienna, 1922, page 76. In my translation, he expresses the following observation: "In opposition to the intentions of the founders of the Jewish nation, which strictly forbid to it the mixing with other races, per nefas, if one insists, Jewish blood has poured into the veins of other civilized nations in a plentitude not suspected. Only the more recent investigators have dared to point out the fact, so unpleasant to earlier generations: the condition of being half Jewish is so widespread that it almost must be considered a characteristic of civilized nations. One can speak of a biological Jadaization of the civilized world..... If blood is a special juice (a phrase Nossig takes from Goethe's Faust, line 1740), however, this is especially true of Jewish blood. A single little drop of Jewish blood influences the intellectual physiognomy of whole families, even through a long series of generations. It brings about the firing up of the ganglia of their brains and in many instances impregnates these generations with a Jewish drive for development, for social justice and a rapprochement of nations." See also Volume VI of Forschungen zur Judenfrage, which contains a very long and detailed article, 148 pages long, on the penetration of Jewish blood into the English upper classes. This volume was published by the Hanseatische Verlagsanstalt in Hamburg in 1941. Biblical admonishments against intermarriage are in Ezra IX, 2 and Malachi II,11.]

chonte. If he wants to sin against the sixth commandment, there are plenty of Christian girls for that purpose."

"For what purpose are the pretty wenches of the goyim employed in the department stores?" interjected the representative of the evil principle with scorn. "Those who will not accommodate our desire for pleasure will get no work and thus no bread! We must also grant our young men some pleasure. Go into the big city and you will really see that they have not waited for your wisdom. The worker can be satisfied with our discarded clothes! — Make out of the marriage of Christians a contract rather than a sacrament and their women and daughters will be even more compliant in our hands!"

The frightful cynicism of these words, which touched a sore spot, did not fail to make an impression in view of the strict views of the ancient doctrine concerning the purity of morals.

"What does the law say?" asked a voice from one of the twelve.

"For adultery with a woman of our people, death. The weakening of a virgin can be atoned with money if she is not betrothed. Then death! The transgression of the flesh with a female slave is punished only mildly by the law; her body belongs to her master!"

"Are the goyim supposed to be better than our slaves?"

This declaration was followed by the murmur of agreement.

"The tribe of Manasse may speak."

The last of the speakers raised his hand meaningfully and slowly moved it back and forth while he spoke as if he wanted to strengthen the impression of his words. His voice was rasping and unpleasant and full of presumption and impudence. But he spoke confidently and skillfully.

"If gold is the prime power of the world, the press is the second. To what end are all the opinion and pieces of advice that have been given here without the support of the press? Only if we have the press in our hands will we get to our goal. Our people must rule the daily press! We are adroit and clever and have money which we know how to make serve our purposes. We must have the great political newspapers which form public opinion, criticism and popular literature, the telegrams and the stage. Step by step we shall displace the Christians; from them, then we can dictate to the world what they are to believe, what they are to esteem and what they are to damn. In a hundred forms we shall resound the cry of woe of Israel and the oppression which is upon us! Then—while every individual is against us—the masses in their folly will always be for us! With the press in our hands we can turn justice into injustice, disgrace into honor. We can shake the thrones and divide the family. We can undermine the belief in everything which has hitherto maintained our enemies. We can ruin credit and arouse passions. We can make war and peace and impart fame or disgrace. We can elevate talent or we can shout down and persecute it and kill it with silence. Whoever has the press has the ear of the people. If Israel has the gold and the press, it will be able to ask: on what day do we want to put on the Ataroch [= crown] that is due us, ascend the Chisse [= throne] that was promised and wield the Schebet [= the scepter] of power over the nations of the earth!"

An almost tumultuous applause followed the words and for a few minutes the deeply moved eavesdroppers could understand only a little of what was being spoken. Then, however, there arose the voice of the Levite and commanded silence.

"Rosche-Bathe-Aboth of the twelve Schebatim have spoken wise and important words. They will be the pillars of the coming time if the son of the "restless man" writes them into his memory and spreads their seed amongst the people of Israel so that he will arise as a mighty tree from east to west and from south to north. They should be the chereb [= sword] with which Israel strikes its foes! Jacob's seed must keep together in good fortune, in wealth and in power, just as it kept together in misfortune and danger. Everyone must help the other. Where one man has gained a foothold, he must pull along the second, that is, his brother! —Whenever one man has had a misfortune, the other must pull him up! Whenever one man has come into conflict with the secular law, the brothers must help him through, provided simply that he lives in peace with the law of our people. Even if a man has been sitting in the penitentiary for ten years, he can still become a rich man before whom the princes and the counts of the goyim must bow, if only our people do not abandon him. When every man is against us, all will be for us. The hand of the Lord led us after forty years from the desert to rulership in the land of Canaan, and his hand will lead us after forty-five times forty years from our roaming about in misery to dominance over the lands that are forty-five times as large as Canaan! If Israel follows the advice on which the sanhedrin of the Cabala has decided, our grandchildren, when they come to this place, to the grave of the founder of our covenant, will be able to announce to him that they are the real princes of the world and that the promise has been fulfilled to Israel, which was promised dominance over all nations of the earth as its servants! Renew your oath, ye sons of the Golden Calf and disperse in all directions of the wind!"

And the bluish light coming from the grave of the rabbi shone more brightly. Now around this light there moved the thirteen with a singing murmur, while each of them threw a new stone onto the heap of stones, a stone which he brought forth from his garments.

It seemed to the doctor as if there were glowing on the top of the grave a golden, misshapen figure of an animal in a ghostly blue brilliance, then suddenly, with the sharp metallic sound at which the light had appeared, it disappeared, and deep, uniform darkness covered the eerie cemetery.

Down through the graves individual white figures scurried. The portal creaked softly — it was not the night wind that moved it on its rusty hinges!

From the towers of the city the clocks proclaimed the first hour of the day.

The scholar was still lying in his hiding place — he did not dare to make a motion — so frightful and overpowering was his impression of that which he had heard.

Finally, a rustle at his side indicated that his companion had got up along side him, and with a deep, heavy breath of air he attempted to do the same.

He got up half way — propping himself with his arm — when the unexpected sight that encountered him caused his blood to freeze and paralyzed every fiber in him.

Half kneeling on the nearest sunken gravestone, and bent over, he saw the Italian raise his right fist, as if for a murderous thrust, and in this fist there glistened in the light of the stars the sharp steel of a stiletto.

The features of his face, at other times so cold and haughtily mocking, had assumed a truly diabolical expression. A greenish fire seemed to radiate from his eyes, like the eye of a cat in the night or of the tiger about to jump on a helpless prey.

"Lasali — friend! — what do you want to do? Do you want to murder me?

The dagger glistened in the light of the stars and eyes glowed. Then, as if seized by a sudden thought, the frightful man let his arm sink, arose and stepped back.

"No" — he said somberly — "those thoughts are not my work and I am too proud to play a secondary role and to be nothing other than handyman! It will be a greater honor to combat them. — Stand up, man — you have nothing more to fear!"

The scholar got up. It was only when he was on his feet again, man facing man, grasping the revolver that the Italian had given him himself, that he again felt some calm and security.

"What did you want to do, Lasali — why did you raise a dagger against me that you brought here?"

"Because I wanted to murder you, doctor!" the Italian said coldly.

"One more moment and you would have been as silent as the stones of these graves and the secret would have belonged to me alone! Or do you believe that Juda's blood in my veins would not have been incensed at the thought that an unauthorized man, a Christian, were to know about the mighty work of putting Israel onto the throne of all nations? Really, if I had been one of those thirteen men, you would have died by my hand, even if you had saved my life ten times, for the thought of this dominance is great and lofty. But it is not my work and they have chosen another man for its spread and execution. For that reason it must be opposed and I shall take up the struggle against their idols of power, the Golden Calf, and I will beat it to pieces, just as Moses did to its image in the desert!"

"It is shocking; what we have heard threatens all of civil society," said the scholar, "Shake my hand; I want to be your companion in the struggle against this power of gold!"

The Italian shook his head while rejecting the hand of his companion. "No," he said firmly, "what I am going to do

I want to do alone and may the honor be mine. There is another power, when gathered and properly used, is just as powerful as gold. It is poverty, labor! I intend to summon it and lead it into battle. Proud Israel, take care, because I am going to put you up against social democracy!"

"And I," said the scholar with enthusiasm, "I intend to lead everything that is noble and lofty, science, idealism, faith, into the struggle against this materialism of money with what I write and speak."

His companion laughed scornfully. "Your ideals will shatter on that, like clay against metal. On the raw strength of fists and the battalions of the hungry are the fighters who will be able to overcome the Golden Calf! [*] Our ways are parting here; you go yours and I shall go mine! My word has been kept, but recall yours, your oath; keep silent about everything you have seen and heard here!"

"I shall keep my word. The secret of the Cabala will not deter me from struggling against the visible aspects of their efforts!"

"So come, we shall commence our retreat from the grave of the very venerable and wise Rabbi Simeon and we shall have no fear of being discovered."

But he was destined to be mistaken!

The two men had reached the place at which they had climbed over the wall and the Italian was just swinging himself over it when a voice cried out from the entrance of the cemetary: "Ganovim! Ganovim! [= thieves) Graverobbers! Catch them! Catch them!"

It was simply the following that had taken place.

The curiosity characteristic of his people had not allowed the cemetery watchman to sleep and even if he had not dared to eavesdrop outside as a result of the strict commandment that was imposed on him, the obedience to which his oath obligated him, he had, nevertheless, remained in his clothes in the dark room and peered through the slots of the shutter after he had sent away the supper guests under a pretext and sent his family to bed.

[* Karl Marx' Communist Manifesto had already appeared in 1848. Nevertheless this passage is prophetic in view of the rôle which Jews were to play during the course of the twentieth century, especially in Russia and eastern Europe.]

He saw the white figures slinking past and disappearing in the opened gate of the cemetery and waited patiently until the clock struck one. The mysterious figures came back individually and turned to the right and to the left without exchanging a word with each other. Thirteen; he had counted them and now he backed away hastily from the slot in the shutter. At that moment he saw the last man approaching the window.

There was a knock on the shutter and a hoarse voice said, just as if it had known that he had remained awake, "Close the house of life, guardian of those who are awaiting their resurrection! — and let your mouth be closed for a hundred years with Solomon's seal!"

The figure dashed away, but the cemetery watchman did not dare, for a long time, to leave his house, not until he was finally convinced that it was all over, no matter what business the mysterious people might have transacted. It was only then that he got up, left the house and crept toward the open gate of the cemetery.

He could not forgo casting a glance into the cemetery, although horror caused his arms and legs to shiver. He stepped softly into the area of the cemetery.

It had seemed to him as if he had heard talking. At the first moment he wanted to retreat, but curiosity and perhaps also zealousness in duty pressed him forward.

In the uncertain and yet sufficient light of the stars he saw two men standing along the opposite wall. They were about to climb over it. He had seen thirteen enter the cemetery and thirteen leave it. Hence, the two men could be only persons who were not associated with them.— Grave robbers.... burglars ... thieves.

At once he shouted loudly, "Ganovim! Ganovim!"

"Away! We have been discovered. Save yourself if it is possible!" whispered the Italian to his companion while jumping to the outside from the wall, tearing away his coat with impunity. "I to the left, you to the right! Silence until the time of your death!"

With a desperate effort, while the watchman was shouting behind him, the scholar had reached the top of the wall. His hands and knees were bleeding from a score of wounds. Fortunately, the previous climb at this point had broken off the glass fragments already. Otherwise, it would hardly have been possible for him to get by the hurdle. Without hesitating for a moment, he threw himself down from the wall onto the pile of debris because, in spite of the late hour, the shouts of the watchman were beginning to alarm his neighbors' houses. One by one strangely covered heads were poking out of the windows and were joining in the shouting when they saw the fleeing figures.

The doctor had heard his companion running to the left and now he hastened off into the other direction without knowing if he would find an exit here from the labyrinth of the narrow alleys and whither the exit would lead. As he ran along the wall, things got louder and louder behind him. He thought of the revolver he was carrying with him and thought that he could sell his freedom or his life at a high price; but with a lively feeling of unwillingness to have innocent people suffer for his adventure, perhaps in the excitement of the moment, he threw away his revolver. Immediately after that he heard ahead of him the call of the watchman's horn and the rattling of a spear on the pavement. Turning at this moment into a dark cross-alley, he saw in front of him an even more darkly yawning opening, the open entrance hall of one of the old overhanging houses. Urged on by the danger, without thinking he jumped into the dark entrance hall, groped for the door with his hand, closed it and pressed it into the lock.

Breathing heavily, he remained standing and listening and he soon heard several people running past the door and others going back and forth and speaking.

He was caught in the place at which he had sought safety.

After some thought he realized quite well that he could not stay at the place where he was.

The fact that the door was open proved that the inhabitants of the house were outside of it. They could return at any minute and would then no doubt discover him. He thus had to look for a hiding place in which he could wait out this return and an opportunity to get away without being noticed. This was impossible at the moment because, in spite of all his groping, he could not find the lock on the door from the inside.

Feeling his way further with his hands and feet, he carefully groped forward along the walls in the pitch-black passage. The walls were dirty and as moist as those of the cave. After about ten steps he felt an opening in the wall, a rope instead of a railing along it and the worn steps of a staircase,

He climbed up it while carefully counting the steps in order to be able to know the height.

There were eighteen steps. When he was at the top and was groping further along the wall in the depth of the darkness, there suddenly appeared to him a weak ray of light which seemed to shine on the floor through a split in the door.

His predicament became even more intense. He really did not know what he was to do. He finally decided to go further at the risk of being discovered and finding people who would mercilessly hand him over to his pursuers. After a few steps he was at the door below which the light had previously penetrated.

He put his ear to it — no sound could be heard. finally, he resolutely put his hand on the handle and the door opened without the slightest sound.

He saw that he was in a sort of vestibule that was dirty, nasty and full of junk, but from a half opened door, the one opposite the one through which he had entered, a bright light emerged. A further glance showed him that this door formed a sort of mobile cupboard that had to cover the door when it was regularly closed.

Along with the light a precious fragrance penetrated the vestibule which did not seem to be in keeping with these dirty, bad-smelling surroundings. A spicy, pleasant warmth also penetrated the vestibule.

Softly he crept nearer; a heavy curtain of precious Gobelin hung half pushed back on the inner side of the door. Through the opening he saw an adjacent, rather large room.

What he saw was like a dream from a Thousand and One Nights, an Oriental fairy tale!

And even the fairy was not lacking in this dream, for on a broad divan with sea-green Persian silk there lay .....

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular – monthly or quarterly – basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense – and we need and use many of these here every month – and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

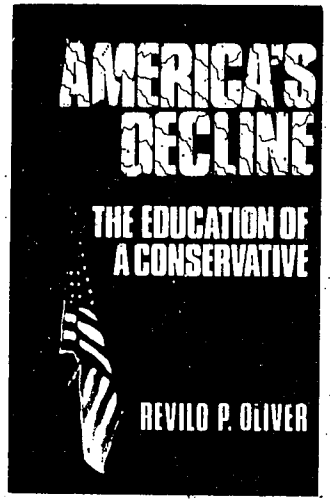
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

THE U.S. HOLOCAUST MUSEUM

by Ernst Zündel
page 34

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

POSTSCRIPTS
by Professor R.P. Oliver:
OBJECT LESSON, page 1
Oberlin College, page 3
Slavery, page 5
The Apostates, page 13
Honorable Christians, page 20.

MEMORIES
by J.B. Campbell, page 25

THE GOOD GUYS WORE BLACK
by J.B. Campbell, page 41

FOLKISH OBSERVATIONS
from N.S. Kindred, page 53

VOL. 20 - NO. 12 AUGUST 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Revilo P. Oliver

OBJECT LESSON

C-T/BruceP.Bishop

DWIGHT HOLLINS, assistant director of admissions at Oberlin College, poses at monument dedicated to the Underground Railroad on the college campus. Hollins says he has been denied promotions and pay raises because he is black.

Inspect the photograph above. Contemplate the visage of the being portrayed in it. And decide how you would feel if you encountered it on a lonely road and did not have a Colt .45 or equivalent in your pocket.

According to the Chronicle-Telegraph (Elyria, Ohio), 19 March 1993, the scowling and sinister countenance belongs to one Dwight Hollins, who is Assistant Director of Admissions at Oberlin College!

He is featured because he is the most noisy of three niggers[1] in the Office of Admissions who are yelping because they have not been given the promotions and emoluments they want. Their claims have been investigated by two faculty committees and pronounced moonshine, but they allege that they have been victims of discrimination, no doubt correctly, if we are here using the English language. Discrimination, although much decried by boobs who have been told that it is "un-American," is the faculty that enables an observer to distinguish between chocolate candy and excrement, between reality and illusion, between logic and unreason, between competence and ineptitude, between intelligence and stupidity, between civilized men and disguised savages.

Although the responsible administrators of the college have twice rejected the complaints and ignored the threats of the three niggers (and were so bold as to question Hollins' expense accounts!), doubtless with the approbation of all responsible members of the faculty, the trouble-makers' claims to what they want are endorsed by a Professor of English, who is probably a stellar member of the Modern Languages Association, of which the present status is described in Liberty Bell, March 1993, pp. 35-40.

It is not clear whether the howling of the niggers contributed to the resignation of Frederick Starr as President of Oberlin, but one notes with satisfaction that the Vice-President, Thomas C. Hayden, is not cowering before the spoiled pets of our Jewish government.

1. 'Nigger,' as I have pointed out before, is an etymologically correct word and convenient because it includes both Congoids and mulattos. It is not clear from the photograph whether or not Hollins is a mulatto. If he has a beard, that is evidence of some infusion of White (Aryan or Semitic) blood.

The obvious lesson to be drawn from the trouble at Oberlin is that it is sheer folly to admit niggers to positions above the janitorial in academic institutions. It is probable, however, that most of the savants on the faculty of Oberlin are too venal or stupid to perceive the obvious and demand that the administration clean house.

Oberlin College

Fifty years ago, Oberlin enjoyed a certain distinction. It may have been the last American college of any consequence of which the President was a learned man and eminent scholar, instead of a professional promoter and bureaucratic chameleon. Its President, until his retirement in 1946, was Dr. Ernest H. Wilkins, a true scholar, whose definition of Humanism I have often quoted,[2] and author of a long series of learned and eminently judicious articles and books on the early Renaissance and especially Petrarch. We may be quite sure that the rot began after 1946.

Oberlin has a checkered history. Founded as an Institute in 1833, it soon attracted notice by admitting female students to its classes, but it was really moulded by the Reverend Charles Grandison Finney, who became Professor of Theology (his own revision of Calvinism, generally known as the "Oberlin Theology") in 1837, the year in which the first class of both males and females was graduated. He dominated the college, although he did not take the office of President to himself until 1851. He was notorious as an Abolitionist,[3] and at least connived at the criminal activity of the "Underground Railroad," on which Oberlin became a principal station and transfer-point.

2. "Humanism is a scholarly and initially reactive enthusiasm for Classic culture, accompanied by creative writing in Latin on Classic lines." I copy this definition from his excellent article on the Renaissance in Italica, XXVII (1950), p. 67.

3. I have read only a few excepts from his voluminous output of theological drivel, so I cannot tell you whether he had the effrontery to claim that Abolitionism was Christian. I suspect, however, that he did.

The belligerent nigger shown in the photograph at the head of this article is posed beside a "monument" to the "Underground Railroad," which was a gang of amateur thieves engaged in smuggling stolen property through the United States to Canada.

It must be remembered that every piece of livestock stolen from a Southern owner by this gang of lawless marauders represented a capital investment of at least $100,000 and often of $600,000 in terms of the currency now in use. One or two such losses sufficed to ruin small proprietors and perhaps to reduce them to indigence, and were serious losses to even the largest planters, whose economy was strained by the social security they provided for their slaves, which made it necessary to support them when they became old. The gangsters carried out such malicious depredations in defiance of American law to assuage their festering envy of the supposed prosperity of all Southerners and their venomous hatred of the far superior culture of the upper classes. Of course, as such malefactors usually do, they talked of a "higher law" and "social justice" as a pretext to mask their crimes.

Oberlin College today has a faculty of 348 and about 2,900 persons are classified as students. I have no information about its academic standards or its student body, but I note that a certain Jacob Weisberg, one of the editors of the New Republic, wailed that the disgustingly polyphyletic students are not compelled to cuddle one another.

The Yid is quoted by the egregious Arthur Schlesinger in his Disuniting of America (p. 104) as having written: "Increasingly, Oberlin students think, act, study, and live apart. Asians [!] live in Asia House, Jews in 'J' House, Latinos [i.e., mestizos] in Spanish House, blacks in African-Heritage [!] House, foreign [sic] students in Third World House. Even the Lesbian, Gay [i.e., pervert], and Bisexual [!] Union has broken up into racial and gender factions. The result is separate worlds." From this it appears that Oberlin has become an anthropological zoo. There are, no doubt, Americans at Oberlin, too, but we are not told whether those despised creatures, who were not worth mentioning, have a place to which they may retire to lick their wounds. What is interesting is that the other races are not so degenerate as our own and have retained their racial instincts, as is done by all viable species of mammalian life.

I learned from the Chronicle-Telegraph that the college is disfigured by a department of "black studies." This carbuncle is probably the usual focus of crypto-Communist agitation, designed to excite niggers to contempt for, and violence against, our race, and to inject into the minds of gullible White students a deadly feeling of inferiority and guilt. Such hokum is usually compounded of outright lies invented for the occasion (e.g., that the Ancient Egyptians were niggers) and cunning misrepresentation. Commonly, for example, ignorant students are assured that Othello was a nigger. (He was a Moor, i.e., a Semite or possibly a Semite with an admixture of Berber or similar blood.) One common trick takes advantage of the standard English idiom, "black man," which is said to designate a nigger. A "black man" in the standard English idiom is a White man with black hair and, sometimes, a somewhat "olive" complexion. In a Nordic population, black hair (usually evidence of a Mediterranean admixture, as in the blue-eyed, black-haired Irish) is most unusual and therefore a remarkable characteristic. The English idiom was used correctly until quite recently. It is, for example, used correctly in detective stories, a very popular form of fiction, necessarily exempt from literary affectation and archaism, e.g., Josephine Tey's The Singing Sands (1952) and Agatha Christie's The Mirror Crack'd (1962).

Slavery

As everyone who has more than the feeblest smattering of anthropology well knows, slavery was a great and decisive advance in the evolution of mankind. It was comparable to, but far more fundamental than, the much-touted Industrial Revolution. It made it possible for individuals and tribes to produce more food and artefacts than they could have obtained by their own unaided labor. The resulting surplus made it possible to trade with others for part of their different surplus, and that was the beginning of commerce.

It is impossible to determine or even conjecture when a victorious tribe first had the inspiration to enslave the vanquished rather than massacre them. The Cro-Magnon people, the first species that can properly be called human, evidently found Europe populated with Neanderthaler and exterminated them. There is no indication that they enslaved any of the sub-human creatures, who, it is possible, were too brutish to be enslaved as our race later enslaved the horses on whom it rode to victory and conquest. There is some evidence, however, that in the region of Palestine there was some interbreeding with Neanderthals, and intensive investigations in that area, now carried out largely under the direction of Jews, has produced dubiously dated and confusing evidence that the two species there coexisted for some time.[4] The most logical interpretation of those data, if they are valid, is that the higher species had enslaved the lower. That is possible, but, in the present state of the evidence, must be merely conjectural.

We can be certain of no more than that slavery was a well established institution in the earliest societies that attained a barbaric stability, and that it made possible the consequent emergence of civilization. It is therefore an institution that deserves respect and of which the propriety was never seriously questioned anywhere in the world before the Nineteenth Century in Europe.[5]

4. Summarized and perhaps distorted in an article by Ofer bar Yosef and Bernard Vandermeersch in the Scientific American, CCLXVIII, #4 (April 1933), pp. 94-100. A less tendentious account by Bruce Bower appeared in Science News, 8 June 1991, pp. 360-363. A very concise statement of the basic problem appeared in the same periodical, 22 May 1993, p. 326; from this you will see how exiguous and fragile are the available data.

5. Except for limitations on racial grounds. The Aryans' ancient laws of Manu in India flatly provided that (a) no Aryan could be a slave, and (b) no Aryan could engender offspring by a slave woman of another race (by sexual intercourse, he automatically emancipated her). Quite a few enlightened Greeks often argued that no Greek should ever have a Greek slave, but their rational rule was never enacted legally, although observed by some cultivated individuals. Roman law provided that no Roman could be a slave in Roman territory, but there were ways of evading that law. It is generally true that in Antiquity there was a fatal failure to consider the racial and national origins of slaves. The collapse and fall of the Roman Empire was largely the result of idiotic adherence to a formula that had been reasonable in the time of the kings, when slaves were captives of the same race taken in war and, on emancipation, became part of their owner's family, taking the family name and becoming Roman citizens. When Rome became prosperous and mighty, and was flooded with Oriental (chiefly Semitic) slaves, the maintenance of the old custom had disastrous consequences and hastened the extinction of the Romans as a nation. In the later Republic, it also became a device by which prosperous Jews could buy Roman citizenship. The slave trade then, as in later Europe, was almost entirely in the hands of Jews, who were glad fraudulently to claim that ambitious fellow Jews were slaves and sell them to a dishonest Roman, who, for a fee, emancipated them and thus made them Roman citizens as well as members of his disgraced family.

Slavery, as I have said, was a prerequisite for civilization, and not necessarily an evil, even in modern terms. The slavery which is best known to us is that of Graeco-Roman Antiquity, in which certain fundamental distinctions are to be observed. The generic words for slaves were δοῦλος/δούλη, servus/serva. (There were many special words that denoted the way in which a slave had been obtained, e.g., ἀνδράποδον, δμώς/δμωή, mancipium, verna.)

There were, however, two distinct classes of slaves. Domestic slaves, for which the generic terms were οἰκέτης/οἰκέτις, famulus/ancilla, generally had quite comfortable lives, and were only rarely exposed to abuse or misfortune. Normally, they enjoyed the social security for which most Americans are still eager to surrender what is left of the freedom which their forefathers won by great sacrifice. The famuli and ancillae were reckoned as part of the familia and in many households were part of the family in the meaning of the English word. Their marriages (contubernia) were respected. Ancillae who conceived by their masters and famuli who impregnated a mistress who did not abort the foetus were almost always emancipated so that the child would be born free. Slaves were permitted to earn small sums and have property of their own; many were eventually able to purchase their freedom.[6] Some became quite prosperous while they were slaves.[7] Humane owners so commonly emancipated their slaves by will that Augustus found it necessary to set limits to that custom. Slaves who had any professional competence or were given real responsibility were almost invariably emancipated by their owners and became liberti/libertae. The freedmen became members of their former owners' families, usually taking the owner's praenomen, always taking his gentile name, and adding a cognomen which was commonly their servile name (e.g., Cicero's secretary, Marcus Tullius Chrestus). And, of course, they and their descendants were Roman citizens.[8]

Domestic slaves were indispensable. In comparatively small households, they freed their owners for education, culture, social activity (including politics), and business, and even today the lack of domestic service is a great hardship to persons with

6. An interesting but far from unique example is provided by the inscription (Corpus inscriptionum Latinarum, Vol. XI, #5400) on the tomb of the Greek physician, Publius Decimius Eros Merula (the double cognomen may mean that he passed through the hands of two owners, one of whom renamed him, or, more probably, that he was a slave in a household in which more than one slave bore the extremely common name Eros; how he became a slave is not stated, nor is it stated how he acquired his professional skill). He bought his freedom for 50,000 sesterces and practiced as a clinical physician (i.e., one who made house calls), surgeon, and ophthalmologist. He bought for himself the municipal dignity of Sevir, contributed generously to public works (adorning the temple of Hercules with statues and paving the streets), and left to his heir the sum of 800,000 sesterces.

7. A slave could, for example, own a slave or even slaves of his own. There are quite a few examples. A slave could even make his own slave his vicarius and set him to performing the tasks set by his own owner!

8. A libertus or liberta legally had certain obligations to the owner who had liberated him or her, and the owner in turn had obligations to the slave he had liberated. This protected the freedman or freedwoman from the consequences of a sudden transition to a novel and radically different status. The children of a libertus were legally indistinguishable from other Roman citizens, and so were the children of a liberta, unless their father was a slave (that raised legal questions that exercised lawyers, but need not concern us.)

such interests. In large households, the numerous slaves permitted indulgence in great and even fabulous luxury, and they were often unreasonably multiplied for the ostentation that gratifies vanity, especially that of parvenus, such as Trimalchio.

In great contrast to domestic slaves were the slaves used in the mines (e.g., the publicly owned silver mines of Laurium, whence came much of the wealth of Athens), the quarries, the great agricultural plantations, and some similar quasi-industrial establishments. They often had to endure extreme hardships, and, barring some unlikely event, could look forward to release only by death. We may deplore their suffering, but we should remember that they made possible the progress and preservation of civilized nations.

It is true that slavery has serious disadvantages. In the Europe that emerged from the fall of the Roman Empire, slavery was largely replaced by serfdom, by which a peasant or herdsman was made a part of the land he cultivated or on which he pastured his owner's herds, so that virtual ownership of him passed with the title to those lands. What may also have had an effect was an evidently racial reluctance in Germanic peoples to own outright a human being, especially one of a race not markedly inferior, but it is hard to estimate the precise effect of that racial peculiarity, which is found in no other race. It was more congenial to employ free labor, but on the assumption that the employee's work belonged entirely to his employer.[9]

In European households domestic service was performed by free employees, who normally became family retainers. Slaves were rare and almost curiosities.[10] But especially after the colonization of the New World, hard labor was often performed by persons who were "indentured servants," free

9. "Liberals" who read John Locke usually yelp when they encounter Locke's natural assumption that everything that is made or harvested by servants belongs by natural right to their employers. If they ever read Locke's proposed constitution for an American colony (South Carolina), they probably swoon.

10. If you have read what is, with but one exception, the most famous of Dumas' many novels, you will remember the sensation that was created when the Count of Monte Christo brought into Nineteenth-Century men and women by a legal technicality, but virtually enslaved for crime or debt for a definite (often large) number of years. They were commonly treated harshly, often cruelly, exploited to the limit of their strength, and not infrequently cheated of the freedom and remuneration that was promised them at the expiration of their term of servitude. Many were actually not indentured, but had been kidnapped in the British Isles by thugs and sold to slave-dealers. The appalling and sometimes heart-breaking record is summarized by Michael A. Hoffman II in an excellent booklet, They Were White and They Were Slaves (Dresden, New York; Wiswell Ruffin House, 1991).[11]

One shocking fact that you will learn from Mr. Hoffman is that the White "slaves" commonly fared worse than Black slaves. With the colonization of the Western Hemisphere and the consequent demand for labor, shrewd entrepreneurs, most commonly Jews, began to buy from African chieftains Congoid slaves for shipment to the New World for sale at a profit. The first shipment of such slaves was landed at Jamestown by Jews from Holland in 1619. The cost of maintaining "factories" in Africa and of shipping the merchandise made Negroes expensive. Such slaves, representing a very considerable capital investment, were anxiously cared for by all but the most feckless planters, some of whom perceived that it was much less costly to exploit their "indentured servants" to the limit, since the unfortunate Whites had been bought cheaply and would become worthless when their term of servitude expired. One deplores the France a number of slaves, including the beauteous Haidee, whom he raised and educated as a daughter until, after the consummation of his vengeance, she became the mistress with whom he retired to a life of tranquil happiness somewhere in the East. — A few slaves, mostly Orientals, Congoids, or Indians, were brought into England before 1833, but they were curiosities. The Portuguese were the first and almost the only Europeans to make extensive use of slaves from Africa in Europe; the result was a mongrelization that rotted the nation.

11. The booklet does contain a little rhetorical exaggeration here and there. It must be remembered that many of the "indentured servants" were, as Wellington said of the soldiery with which he conquered Europe, "the scum of the earth."

absence of racial sense in the White masters of White slaves, which may even foreshadow the present imbecility of the many Americans who deplore "racism." When slavery was eventually confined to Negroes, that was a great and noteworthy progress, but seems to have owed little to Aryan conscience.

In Nineteenth-Century England the greedy capitalists of the Industrial Revolution were well aware that slavery was economically disadvantageous. They profited enormously by employing workmen who would be discharged when age or other infirmity made them less efficient in performing their appointed tasks. The capitalist thus escaped the slave owner's responsibility to provide for his slaves when they became old or infirm, to nurse them when they were sick, and to provide for their children while they were too young for serious work. The capitalists, who probably also resented the superior culture that has an agrarian basis, were therefore content with the agitation against slavery and sometimes, from vanity, subsidized it.[12]

The damning disadvantage of slavery is obvious when the slaves are of an inferior race.[13] Miscegenation, however

12. Some capitalists, such as Robert Owen, were shrewd enough to perceive that it would be profitable to win the loyalty of workmen by caring for them and their families, thus introducing what can be described as a kind of feudalism adapted to an industrial society, (How much of Owen's success at New Lanark was owed to his perception of the superiority of American "sea island" cotton is uncertain, but the prime factor must have been his policy of employment. His subsequent career as a crackpot social reformer and subsidizer of utopian colonies in the United States indicates that he was not intelligent enough to learn from his success at New Lanark.) Some British companies followed the precedent set by Owen, notably the Great Western Railway, which is best known for the engineering triumphs of Isambard Kingdom Brunel, but was a model corporation in other ways. See the nostalgic article by a former employee (a 'platelayer,' the equivalent of an American 'section hand') of the Great Western in Spearhead, December 1992, pp. 7-9.

13. When a child, I read in a treatise on slavery a chapter by a Protestant clergyman who argued that it was much better that young men should assuage their sexual urges on females of an obviously inferior and despicable species, rather than with prostitutes of the same race, who might make them cynical about women of their own class, or courtesans, with whom deplored, is inevitable and, if unchecked, eventually catastrophic.[14]

Slavery, except for household service, was made economically and industrially disadvantageous by the introduction of machinery by the middle of the Nineteenth Century, and, of course, would be ruinous today. It remained the most efficient form of agricultural work in warm climates until after the attack on, and conquest of, the South, when field hands were replaced by "freed" niggers who were quickly reduced to virtual slavery by being encouraged, usually by Sheenies, to buy gewgaws and trinkets and thus contract debts they could never pay, while the landlords no longer had any responsibility for their welfare. In certain kinds of agriculture even today, mechanization is incomplete and inefficient.

Technology has drastically reduced the number of workmen required or even useful in modern society. That inexperienced young men might even fall in love. I no longer recall correctly the title of the treatise and so am unable to cite it. The advice was obviously predicated on the assumption that the offspring of such bestial copulation would be slaves and never affect the stability and integrity of society. — So far as I know, the number of mulattos produced before the end of slavery has never been estimated. Undoubtedly, the incidence of miscegenation greatly increased thereafter. According to reliable estimates, the niggers now in the United States, considered as a whole, contain some 40% of White blood. Individuals, of course, differ widely, ranging from some pure-blooded Congoids to mongrels of various degrees. Mulattos, strictly speaking, are the result of miscegenation between a Congoid and a White, and our vocabulary goes no farther than 'quadroon' and 'octaroon.' One of the early issues of Mankind Quarterly dealt with the elaborate vocabulary in Spanish for designating other admixtures precisely (e.g., the offspring of mulatto by a Congoid, and in the next generation, that creature's offspring by a Congoid, a true mulatto, or a White). The resulting vocabulary is too cumbersome for use, and, in most cases, the true lineage would not be ascertainable anyway.

14. One can only marvel at the obtuseness of the Egyptian king (Sesostris III, i.q. Khakaure, c. 1887-1849 B.C.), who, in a memorable inscription, dilates on the racial inferiority of the Nubians whom he conquered and whose survivors he categorically excluded from Egypt, but also boasts that he carried off Nubian women to be slaves in Egyptian households.

fact is, ironically, being used to hasten the American people's headlong rush to the social security of serfdom and virtual slavery.

The Apostates

The gang of Abolitionists, who eventually destroyed the American Republic, repudiated its Constitution, and genetically impoverished the nation, made no rational objection to slavery. On the contrary, they ranted pseudo-humanitarian bilge with consummate hypocrisy and mendacity.

No historian, so far as I know, has estimated the extent to which the Abolitionists were incited, financed, and impelled by Jews. What was our country was lousy with Sheenies from the very first. They had probably infiltrated the colonies even before a passel of them landed at New Amsterdam in 1654 and celebrated their arrival by trying to swindle the officers of the ship that had brought them. (The governor, Peter Stuyvesant, perceived the need to expel the noxious aliens, but he was overruled by the directors of the Dutch West Indies Company, into which wealthy Jews in Holland had bought heavily.) Once established in a new Canaan, the Yids faced their usual problem: "How can we set the stupid goyim to killing one another, so that we may loot their country and then destroy it?" No one can believe that the hostes generis humani overlooked so promising a means of ruining Americans as contrived agitation about the negroes who were abundant in one half of the country and rare in the other. But we need a systematic study of their activity.

The Abolitionists had, of course, a numerically large following of gullible and ignorant, illiterate or semi-literate, persons who knew no better, but their leaders fell into two distinct classes.

Some Abolitionists, belated spawn of the French Revolution, had a contempt for Christianity which they dissembled only to avoid alienating dupes. Noteworthy examples are William Lloyd Garrison, who founded the Anti-Slavery Society in 1833, a malevolent misfit and professional agitator, animated by envy of his betters; Theodore Parker, the egomaniac conspirator, who professed the vapid deism of the Reverend William Ellery Channing, called "Unitarianism" and hypocritically disguised as not anti-Christian;[15] and John Brown, self-appointed President of the United States, a notorious murderer,[16] inspired by homicidal mania and an insatiable blood-thirst.

Even more repulsive were the rabble-rousing clergymen, necessarily men of some education at that time, who maliciously lied and claimed that slavery conflicted with the tenets of Christianity. As a matter of fact, Protestant Christianity, of which the doctrine is based on its scriptures (sola Scriptura!), necessarily sanctions and authorizes slavery. Of this, there is no possible doubt. Yet some of them were so brazen that they called a nigger "a man and a brother for whom Jesus died"!

The famous Jesus, the protagonist of the "New Testament," evinced no interest in any race but his own. All authority for the extension of his Jewish heresy to goyim is based on the collection of letters that were attributed to a Jew named Saul, alias Paul. And this Paul very emphatically laid down the law that slaves must obey their masters in all things. That is said explicitly in three passages in the letters, viz., the epistles (a) addressed to the Colossians, 3,22; (b) to the Ephesians, 6.5; and (c) to a certain Peter, I.2,15. In the King James version all three passages are dishonestly translated with the word 'servants,' thus misleading persons who do not refer to the original text. Why the translators deliberately deceived English readers with a mistranslation or, at best, a studied ambiguity is uncertain.[17] One possible reason is a wish to retain the erroneous translation in the earlier English versions, beginning with Wyclif (c. 1382). That merely raises the question why Wyclif was dishonest.[18] The Greek text is explicit and the meaning is indubitable. (a) and (b) agree in reading δοῦλοι, ὑπακούετε....τοῖς κυρίοις, and (b) even adds that the slaves should obey their lord as they would obey the Christ (ὡς τῷι Χριστῷι)! (c) has οἰκέται, probably because the author of that letter knew that only household slaves would receive commands directly from the master; slaves in mines or on large plantations would be given their orders by an overseer, who was usually also a slave.

15. On the Unitarians, see Liberty Bell, April 1985, pp. 15-20; November 1985, pp. 3-12.

16. For his bloody career, see the excellent work by Otto J. Scott, The Secret Six (New York, Times Books, 1979; reprinted by the Foundation for American Education, Columbia, South Carolina). The criminal conspiracy of which John Brown was the murderous agent was first described by J. C. Furnas in The Road to Harpers Ferry (New York, Sloane, 1959).

Now δοῦλος means 'slave' and cannot mean anything else.[19] And the translators of the King James version knew it. In at least four places in the letters[20] they translated the word correctly as 'bond,' a noun not yet archaic in their time, which obviously meant 'slave' since it is contrasted to 'free.' Why they did not use 'slave' in these passages is not clear; by their time the word had certainly lost a racial connotation (it was derived from Sclavus, which designated a Slav, but by the end of the Sixteenth Century the word was being freely used for slaves of any race). The specific English word 'thrall' (Anglo-Saxon þræl, rarely ðræl; Norse þræll) may have seemed slightly archaic in the time of King James, but is the word that Wyclif could and should have used, had he not intended to deceive or mislead.

17. Cf. Liberty Bell, April 1985, p. 19, note 5.

18. Wyclif (also Wycliffe) translated from the Vulgate, which, however, correctly has in all three passages servi, which means 'slaves' and cannot mean anything else.

19. The word, of course, may be used metaphorically, as we say that a man is slave of his appetite or was enthralled by a woman who has fascinated him.

20. Epp. ad Galat., 3,28; ad Colos., 3,11; ad Corin., I.12,13; ad Ephes.,

It is quite obvious, despite the dishonesty[21] of all early English translations of the "New Testament," including the one authorized by King James I, and of almost all later translations,[22] the authors of the letters attributed to Paul emphatically approved of slavery, since they enjoin upon all slaves a Christian duty to obey their owners in all things. But what if we jettison Paul and, with him, the entire foundation of Protestantism?

According to the stories collected in the "New Testament," the famous Jesus never explicitly commended slavery, but he took it for granted and never evinced the slightest disapproval of it. In both of the tales ascribed to Matthew and to a certain Marcus, Jesus drew a pointed contrast between the status of a slave (δοῦλος) and that of a hired workman (διάκονος), and throughout the stories he frequently refers to slaves, regarding their condition as only normal and unexceptionable. Consult any concordance to the "New Testament," s.v. δοῦλος.

For example, Jesus says (Luc., 12,43) that fortunate is the slave (μακάριος ὁ δοῦλος) who has pleased his owner. As I have mentioned before, slaves in large households were often entrusted with great responsibility.[23] That was the basis of the parable in which Jesus tells us (Matth., 25.15) that a master summoned three of the slaves who were his trusted assistants (τοὺς ἰδίους δούλους) and entrusted each of them with a large sum of money to invest during his absence, evidently by making loans at a probably high rate of interest (τόκος). The two slaves who were not afraid to take risks and realized a profit of 100% were rewarded, not with emancipation, but with promotion to positions in which they would be the overseers of large bodies of slaves, probably on large plantations or mines that were the property of their owner.

21. That the mistranslation was deliberate is shown by the Oxford English Dictionary, which could find no precedent for the incorrect use of that word; look s.v. 'servant,' §3.a. That educated men understood the trick is shown by the fact (§3.b) that 'servant' was used as an euphemism for 'slave' in the American colonies. Usage may have been affected by the "White slaves" so well described by Hoffman, op. cit. 'Servant' was gradually supplanted by 'negro,' the Spanish derivative of niger, which became a standard term for a Congoid slave.

22. If you wish to make a rapid check of the integrity of any translation, look up the passages I have cited above.

23. Roman law made it advisable to free slaves and employ them as freedmen before entrusting them with financial responsibility, but that was not true of Greek law generally or of the law in force in Palestine under any régime.

In the first half of the Nineteenth Century, every graduate of a reputable college had learned to read Greek. There were, therefore, many educated men who, if they were interested in the question of slavery, could have consulted the text of the "New Testament" and immediately detected the translators' supercherie. So could the comparatively few women who were given an education generally reserved for males. What is more important, every clergyman in a respected denomination had necessarily read the text in Greek while he was in his cult's seminary and before his ordination. He, therefore, must have known the truth. It follows that all the holy men who whooped it up for the revolution knew that they were liars and scoundrels, consciously and malevolently imposing on the ignorance of their congregations. So much for the Protestants.

The Catholic Church recognized the authority of the Scriptures, relying on the Vulgate, rather than the Greek, but the low-grade Latin is equally explicit and yields the same indubitable meaning.[24] The Church, however, relies also on a tradition formed by the Fathers of the Church before the dissolution of the Roman Empire in 476. This is a far more intricate subject and one on which I cannot speak with authority.

I verily believe that no living man would have the truly incredible stamina and fortitude to read through the 387 thick volumes of Migne's Patrologia. I have looked into it, but I doubt that I have read as many as three hundred of the closely printed pages. I have read in critical editions most of the letters of Jerome, the major works of Tertullian, Augustine, Eusebius, Orosius, and Origin and parts of other Fathers, and I have read with particular attention the Christian polemists who attacked the less absurd religions called (by a typical propagandist trick) paganism: Minucius Felix, Arnobius, Firmicius Maternus, et al. On this basis I can say that, to the best of my recollection, those writers always accepted slavery as normal and never gave the slightest hint of disapproval. With some exceptions, they mildly encourage a Christian owner to convert his own slaves, but they strongly deprecate any effort to convert to the new religion slaves owned by pagans: that might create social difficulties. They provide that no slave should be baptized unless he presents a signed permission from his owner. They never suggest that Christian slaves should be freed. They anxiously discuss whether or not a Christian owner should disturb the "idols" owned by his pagan slaves and kept in the house. And they are unanimous in repeating Paul's command that slaves diligently obey every wish of their masters. They occasionally urge owners not to treat their slaves harshly, but that is all. As a matter of fact, the Christian writers, representing a religion that is a revolt against nature, show less disapproval than pagan philosophers or even pagan lawyers, who noted that slavery is unnatural.[25]

24. E.g., In Ep. ad Colos., 3,22, the Vulgate reads Servi, oboedite per omnia dominis, and Ep. ad Ephes., 6.5, Servi, oboedite dominis...sicut Christo.

For a concise conspectus of the attitude of the Church toward slavery in the time of the Fathers, see Robin Lane Fox, Pagans and Christians (London, Viking, 1986), pp. 295-300. I owe to him a reference to an article by Gustav Sergius that contains a datum which perfectly epitomizes the Christian attitude toward slavery in Roman times. The date is the beginning of the Fifth Century and therefore long after the orthodox Fathers had got their hands on the Imperial government and used it to persecute their Christian competitors, the "pagan" religions, and rational men.

25. E.g., Digest, I.5,4,1: Servitus est constitutio iuris gentium qua quis dominio alieno contra naturam subicitur.

On the island of Sardinia, notorious for its unhealthy climate, the life of slaves in the silver- and iron-mines must have been sheer Hell, equaling, if not surpassing, Dante's most lurid imagination. To prevent the wretches from successfully escaping, metal collars were riveted about their necks. Recent excavations on the island have uncovered a number of such collars, some of which are inscribed with the Christian Cross and a statement that the miserable creature wearing the collar was the property of Felix the Archdeacon.

So much for the authentic Christian attitude toward slavery.[26] The religion, both Catholic and Protestant, must be acquitted of complicity in the crimes of the Abolitionists.[27]

The many clergymen who were active Abolitionists were, as we have seen, ordained liars and swindlers, who preyed upon the confidence of their gullible congregations, but their motives were doubtless as varied as those of the miserable little shysters who in their pulpits today peddle the "social gospel" of the Marxian Reformation and bamboozle their unthinking parishoners with propaganda designed to destroy our race and civilization. Some probably express malice and a gnawing sense of their own inferiority; many grasp an opportunity to gain ascendency over weak or feckless minds; others know what kind of drivel will win them largesse from

26. I should perhaps add that it is to the credit of the Catholic Church that very few of its members were deceived by the Abolitionists.

27. Except, perhaps, quite indirectly. The Pauline doctrine of "neither Jew nor gentile," the interpretation given to the passage that some forger tacked onto the gospel of Mark in the Seventh Century, and the denial of nature by pretending a fictitious "spiritual" equality may have contributed to the impairment and etiolation of our race's instincts. (That may have contributed also to the odd emphasis on territorial sovereignty in the modern languages. In English, King James was King of England, but in Latin he was Rex Anglorum.) To this must be added the eventual effect, which did not become calamitous until the Eighteenth Century, of a religion that exalted the poor, boorish, and ignorant and damned the prosperous, cultured, and learned—a fantastic subversion of civilization and an hallucinatory denial of nature, that reaches its acme in the poisonous promise that the "last shall be first." For the effect of that lure on niggers, see Liberty Bell, June 1993, pp. 10 ff.

our open or disguised enemies. They are a contemptible lot, as were their predecessors in revolutionary agitation in the first part of the Nineteenth Century.

The dishonest clergymen who served the Abolitionists were not Christians. They were, as the Reverend Lewis F. de Boer observed, "apostates from Christianity."[28]

Honorable Christians

There were, of course, many honest clergymen who told the truth, and they deserve to be remembered to the honor of their religion. Some of them published books in an effort to arrest the baleful revolution, and I have some of their books at hand. To survey them, however, would add inordinately to the length of this article, and I reserve the subject for adequate treatment in the future, when I can outline each writer's career and indicate the extent to which he supplemented theology with economic and philosophic considerations.

There are honest clergymen even today. Christian News, a weekly newspaper that I have often commended in these pages, published, 19 October 1992, a long article by Al Benson, Jr., refuting rant by a man named Jim Stafford in a propaganda sheet called Christian History.[29]

Mr. Benson's fine article emphasizes four principal facts, viz.:

(1) "No matter what you may think of slavery, you cannot make a case for its being a sin from the Scriptures.". If challenged, he would, of course, adduce the proof that I have given above.

(2) While there were "misguided [i.e., ignorant] Christians" among the Abolitionists, the leaders of the gang

28. See Liberty Bell, April 1985, pp. 15-20.

29. Stafford was up to the old trick of using sophistry and rhetoric to benumb American minds with a spurious sense of guilt for "the terrible sin" of negro slavery.

were not Christians, but belated offshoots of the French Revolution.

(3) Herbert Aptheker, the Sheeny who was one of the cleverest as well as most vicious of our domestic enemies, wrote a book, Abolitionism—a Revolutionary Movement (New York, Macmillan, 1987), in which he praised the vicious creatures as proto-Communists. As Benson remarks, "It takes one to know one."[30]

(4) Mr. Benson particularly calls attention to a verbal trick, comparable to the use of "Civil War" to describe the flagrant invasion and looting of the Southern States after the American Constitution was repudiated and annulled by the ignorant or cowed majority in the Northern States. After their bloody victory, the Abolitionist gang was called "radical Republicans," to conceal the fact that the criminal agitators became criminal governors.

This is a crucial point that your course in American History concealed from you. The "Republicans" who destroyed the Republic were the old Abolitionists under a new name. They were a motley lot, but they acted in unison. There were many hate-crazed fanatics, like Julia Ward Howe,[31] but the effective members of the conspiracy were misshapen degenerates like Thaddeus Stevens,[32] vicious opportunists, like Edwin Stanton (who managed the assassination of Lincoln), and oily scoundrels, like the sanctimonious Salmon P. Chase.

30. You will remember that it was Aptheker who, in a moment of candor, disclosed the basic Judaeo-Communist technique for destroying a nation: find large groups (e.g., laborers in a particular occupation, women, niggers, perverts) that can be made to believe that they are victims of society and can profit by subversive and illegal agitation to extort special "rights" from that society. In this way a nation can be shivered into many reciprocally antagonistic groups and easily enslaved by its "liberators."

31. On whom, see John Synon in Liberty Bell, January 1985, pp. 53-55.

32. Some facts about this depraved creature are given by Allan Callahan in Liberty Bell, August 1986, pp. 27-31.

Lincoln was a politician, which, in a democracy, means that he was dishonest.[33] He knew that he had been "bought and sold six times" at the convention at which he was nominated, and when he went to Washington, he knew that his job was to get the war and killing started and then orate about saving the Union he had just destroyed.[34] He undoubtedly participated in what may have been the first plan for starting the war, the scheme of perfidious deception which, when it could not be kept secret, virtually forced the citizens of Charleston to reduce Fort Sumter before it became a base for a treacherous bombardment and attack on their city.

Lincoln, however, was not entirely without principle. It seems certain that he had a Jeffersonian perception that there was no place for niggers in an American country and hoped to see them exported to Africa. He began this work by having several thousand transported to Haiti, since shipment to Africa was too expensive while his war against the South was in progress, and he had a provision for repatriation of niggers incorporated in his (illegal) "Emancipation Pro- clamation." His taskmasters doubtless indulged him in this project, sure that they could eliminate him as soon as he had done the work for which they had selected him.

After they had eliminated their stooge, they controlled the government in Washington and looted it while appeasing their organic hatred of civilization by afflicting further the civilized population of the vanquished Southern states.

Needless to say, they repudiated and tore up the Constitution that had been adopted by the federated states in 1789. That was obvious in 1865, but, oddly enough, the first Justice of the Supreme Court to state the truth publicly was

33. For a succinct appraisal of Lincoln as a politician, see the excellent article by Sam G. Dickson, "Shattering the Icon of Abraham Lincoln," in the Journal of Historical Review, Fall 1986, pp. 319-344, a nigger named Marshall. It is true that pieces of the old Constitution were pasted together and the boobs were told that it was still in effect. And the utter absurdity of what is called "democracy" is demonstrated by the fact that the boobs believed it, even after the "Republican" gang had demonstrated its character as a lawless dictatorship by a brazen and blatant fraud, called the "Fourteenth Amendment" and accepted by the boobs as such, although it had never been ratified according to the provisions of the Constitution which, they were told, was still in effect. The "Fourteenth Amendment" was ratified only by bayonets, although a member of the gang, a scoundrel named William Seward, tried to cover up that fact with an outrageous lie. For the details, see the most important article ever published in the old U.S. News and World Report, David Lawrence's "The Worst Scandal in Our History," in the issue for 26 January 1970. The boobs, as you would expect, paid no attention, but the article deserves to be reprinted today.[35]

34. Destruction of the Constitutional union was an objective of the Abolitionists from the very first, when they agitated for secession of the Northern states.

35. It is worth noting, by the way, that the "Sixteenth Amendment" (the White Slave Act) was never legally ratified. That was shown by the diligent research of Bill Benson and M. J. Beckman, reported in the two small-quarto volumes of their book, The Law that Never Was: the Fraud of the 16th Amendment and the Personal Income Tax (South Holland, Illinois; Constitutional Research Association, 1985-1986), a massive work on which I hope to comment soon. Mr. Benson examined the original records in Washington and in the capital of every state, and very often found evidence that the iniquitous legislation had been imposed on the unsuspecting public instead of being legally ratified. This means, of course, that when you surrender part of your income to the slave-masters of Infernal Revenue, your act is legally indistinguishable from surrendering your billfold to a thug at the point of a gun, although the Jews' courts will pretend otherwise and punish you (as they punished Mr. Benson) for noticing the illegality of the exactions. The imposition of the fraudulent "amendment" in 1913 (in preparation for the suicidal conflict in Europe called the First World War, which was scheduled to begin in the following year) was the first step on the road to total slavery, when, as inaugurated and exemplified by the recent and atrocious massacre in Waco, Texas, by the two small armies of professional terrorists and murderers that are maintained at the expense of the enslaved tax-payers, our rulers will at last discard all pretense and rule, as they did for so long in Russia, by sheer terror.

It would require a small volume to enumerate the depredations of the criminals in Washington and their dupes and allies throughout the country. Using the spurious drivel about "preserving the Union" and "Christian duty," they acquired control of the public schools, and generations of American children were mentally crippled by being made to believe that it was a grand and glorious thing to get a million Aryans killed for the comfort of niggers.

If any one crime deserves special mention here, it is the preparation for the Federal Reserve swindle that has so greatly contributed to the liquidation of the American nation. The looters, headed by the slimy Salmon P. Chase, who defaced our coinage with the derisive "In God We Trust," did more than burden the nation with an enormous debt on which the boobs who fought to free niggers had to work, in partial slavery, to pay interest to the Rothschilds and their accomplices. The "Republicans" sabotaged the nation's economy by getting control of the banking system ("national banks") and introducing the economic absurdity of a currency based on debt.[36]

In the felonious Abolitionist scum of the 1830s we may see the inception of the lethal disease that has brought us to our doom, so that we can now look forward only to the proximate future, when the territory that our Aryan ancestors won by blood and toil will be occupied by a half a billion—or a billion—diseased and mindless mongrels, who will swarm, like rats, over the ruins of civilization and the graves of our race.

36. Cf. Liberty Bell, October 1992, pp. 17-24.

PLEASE REMEMBER:

Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular monetary contributions are our lifeblood. Help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

MEMORIES

by

J.B. Campbell

"Save Russia—Kill The Jews!" This, the slogan of the Russian nationalistic movement known as Pamyat, or "Memories," refers to memories of Russia before 1917, before hundreds of Jews imported from New York and elsewhere seized power and then destroyed everything. (An official of Pamyat was recently tried for "hate crimes" and sent to hard labor for several years. Shortly after beginning his sentence the unfortunate man was murdered. Nationalists must never surrender to the police.)

The theme of this correspondence is of course the development of American nationalistic feelings and their logical consequences. It would be an affectation, however, to ignore the events in the Soviet Union especially if we can draw lessons from them. We will also find that events in the Soviet Union are made in America, so it is our responsibility to understand them and protect ourselves from their consequences.

Communism is collapsing because many Jews are getting out of it. It is necessary for them to escape the inevitable reaction to their bloodsucking depredations in the captive nations. The simple truth is that the Jews of Russia have sucked their hosts dry and must move on to a more plentiful supply of blood. They intend to move here and latch onto our veins directly. American taxpayers are expected to provide a life support system for the millions of victims of Judaism in Russia and her satellites. There is no question of our doing this; we are only allowed to wonder which gang of "former communists" will be handling the goods. For example, Boris N. Yeltsin is currently being hailed as a "populist hero" for his performance during the very strange attempted-coup in August. Old habits die hard, however, and Yeltsin embarrassed his supporters in September by threatening to "redefine the borders" of any republic which would declare independence from the Kremlin, which he swears he does not intend to occupy.

By far the most revealing and disturbing episode at this point is the interview conducted by the Jew, Ted Koppel, with an unreconstructed Communist named Col. Altsnis (a member of the moribund Congress of People's Deputies) along with an American Jew named Allen Weinstein, who runs something called the "Center for Democracy" out of his office in Washington, D.C. (It is of interest that Weinstein has also run something he calls the "Center for Constitutional Studies" out of the same office. Unbelievably, this Jew, obviously an agent of the Money Power, is hailed as "the Jewish James Madison" and has advised other governments on the proper ways to emerge into democracy. The constitutions he has designed for them closely resemble the United Nations charter and contain the same loopholes for banker-predators.) Koppel's viewers were treated to the extraordinary sight of desperate "former Communists" in the Congress of People's Deputies calling Weinstein long-distance for minute-by-minute advice on how to transform the Communist Party into the Democrat Party and still stay in the saddle. The very next day the Deputies disbanded their Congress and the USSR is now the CSR, or, Confederation of Sovereign Republics, at least for a while. Imagine, though, the American Jew calmly laying down the law not only to his cowardly sycophants in the Congress but also to the rather non-plussed Col. Altsnis. Even Koppel was taken aback at Weinstein's staggering aplomb and asked Col. Altsnis if re resented Weinstein's patronizing and meddling? The Communist mumbled that he welcomed all advice, etc, etc, which meant that there was absolutely nothing he could do about it. Weinstein was good enough to reassure Altsnis that there would be plenty for him to do in the new democracy and the Communist blinked hopefully.

Can you believe it? Capitalist Jews take over as Communist Jews take off! Jewish domination of Russia & Co. continues!

Here is the situation, then: Most of the Jewish party members have escaped their sinking ship, leaving their Gentile patsies holding the bag. These Jews have arrived or will soon be arriving here after layovers in Europe or Israel. Many of us harbored the cheery thought that Russia & Co. minus the Jews equals nationalism and better lives for White people in those regions. Of course, we didn't want their Jews wandering over here to set up shop and replicate the Jewish virus here, in our already weakened state of health and mind. No, what we really hoped was that the Pamyat men would "save Russia—kill the Jews." That was too much to expect from men who've been under the Jewish spell for seventy-four years, and now we've got them here, like African killer bees, with more on the way. Moreover, an American Jew is directing the reconstruction of the "sovereign republics." Another destruction and reconstruction. Sound familiar?

What has been the purpose, really, of the world Communist conspiracy which exploded in our faces during World War I? Certain anti-communist groups such as Liberty Lobby and the John Birch Society have shown that Communism is a weapon of the super-rich rather than a workers' union as it purports to be (the hammer and sickle supposedly representing "labor"), but what has been the idea behind this weapon? There is no question that American capitalists have always supported Communist parties in every country with huge cash payments, free technology and arranging tax subsidies, loan guarantees and credits. Still, that doesn't answer the question of why capitalists would have anything to do with, let alone promote, Communism. The answer is really very simple even if it is breathtaking in its monstrousness. What is Communism, after all? It is the policy of deliberate failure. It hasn't taken seventy-four years to figure that out; the Bolsheviks' experiment had failed by 1919 and Jacob Schiff had to send 20 million dollars to keep his gangsters in power. One of the Rothschild conspirators had even written a book in 1911 which admitted that "Socialism as dreamed of by Karl Marx" would destroy initiative and progress (Philip Dru: Administrator, by E. Mandel House). So it was known in advance that putting Communists in charge of a country would arrest all future development and probably wreck all past development. Again, why did they want this?

The American capitalists wanted this so as to prevent the possibility of competition. Their first victim was the Confederacy of eleven Southern States which were provoked into seceding from the United States in 1860-61. Jefferson Davis was nominally the president of the CSA but he was controlled by the Rothschild agent, Judah Philip Benjamin, who was quite naturally a Jew. The vast wealth and potential competition of the South were stolen and stunted, respectively, forever by the Northern capitalists in their experiment in Destruction and Reconstruction of the Southern States. Germany and Austria-Hungary were their next victims. The Talmud commands that "The best of the Gentiles should be killed" and the natural superiority of the Germanic peoples placed them in this dangerous category. The true purpose of a war often cannot be detected until the terms of the treaty are announced. The Versailles Treaty revealed that some thirty-seven million men were killed or wounded so that Germany would never be competitive again, unless by some miracle the Germanic peoples might one day rise up and say "No!" to the stunningly hateful specifications of the diktat. Between 1914 and 1918, however, in the midst of the Great Tragedy, another tragedy occurred. The sick dream of the Communists became a reality when the Bolsheviks seized power in the fall of 1917 following the most bizarre joint effort in history. The German army arranged for Mr. V. I. Ulyanov (Lenin) to travel with a hundred or so of his Jewish thugs from Zurich to St. Petersburg on the condition that if he were successful in seizing power from Kerensky he would arrange a peace treaty between Russia and Germany and stop the bloodletting on that front. Of course, the German army (and people) would pay heavily for this miscalculation (and soon).

At the very same time, the Anglo-American Jewish capitalists arranged for Mr. L. D. Bronstein (Trotsky) and hundreds of his Jewish thugs to travel from New York to St. Petersburg to meet and combine forces with Lenin. This was just after Wilson's declaration of war against Germany! After a few setbacks, Trotsky/Lenin seized power and plunged Russia into a new Dark Age of terror, mass death, slavery and perpetual failure, as specified by their capitalist sponsors. Russia and her unfortunate satellites would never compete with America! Russia, as we know, possesses untold mineral wealth but so did America and the Wall Street manipulators wished to exploit America's resources first, controlling the price structure without pressure from Russian competitors to lower those prices. John D. Rockefeller, remember, the Rothschild oil agent in America, had a devil of a time trying to support oil prices by declaring "shortages" from year to year, only to lose control of pricing with the accursed blowout of the wildcat "Spindletop" well in East Texas. The last thing he and his bosses wanted was a rash of discoveries in Russia! So they sent in their death squads which would not only prevent all such development by murder and expropriation but as an added bonus would turn that potential powerhouse into a vast "welfare state," totally at the mercy of Wall Street for food, medicine and technology, paid for by U.S. taxpayers. That's the way it's been now for seventy-four years and probably will be for as long as our money holds out, unless we get rid off the policymakers.

Trotsky/Lenin repaid Germany for her help by sending Jewish terrorists to seize power in the chaos of the war's aftermath. Over a hundred thousand Germans were killed in this terror war before the treacherous Jews were finally caught and executed by the Freikorps, a band of patriots from the German army who were passionately determined that their country would not become "the laughing stock of the world" by caving in to a few Jews. But what damage a few Jews managed to do: the combination of capitalists (reparations payments thereto) and Communists (destabilization through terror) kept the mighty German industries practically shut down for many years and her people destitute and demoralized. America's primary competitor was in liquidation.

While the potential competition of Russia (with her limitless raw materials) and the actual competition of Germany were being dismantled, plans for an even more catastrophic destruction were being formulated by the new "Council on Foreign Relations" in New York. More competitors were to be wiped out: Japan, China, France and the British Empire. This last may sound wrong in light of the Anglo-American alliance, but wait...

Our strange and contrived war with Spain in 1898 had given us a strategic foothold in the Philippines, as had England's strange, contrived and very cruel war against the Boers a year later given them a secure and strategic foothold over the Cape of Good Hope, for the Boers were natural allies of the Europeans and had to be neutralized. (The British originated the inhuman practice of concentration camps for Boer women and children in an unsuccessful effort to force their husbands and fathers to surrender—over 20,000 perished.) Now, with secure refueling stations the Anglo-Americans were ready for a world war which would last for the entire 20th Century. This war would accomplish several purposes: As mentioned, Communist dictatorships would deprive all the victim peoples the use of their own resources, thus securing the hegemony of the Wall Street capitalists; the victim peoples would become consumers-only, dependent on the good will of ignorant American taxpayers; and hundreds of Gentiles would be exterminated in Communist famines, Communist gulags, Communist purges and vast, internecine fighting in the name of democracy.

Once the American bankers, all of them agents of the Rothschilds of France, Germany and England, had extracted every possible thing of value from the German people, nationalistic reaction was slowly allowed to develop. Adolf Hitler enunciated the outrage of the Germanic peoples. The emergence of such a man was fortuitous for the conspirators; they needed a dynamic opponent to make the second half of their world war convincing after the insane and discredited bloodletting of 1914-18. Hitler received support from the Rothschild banks and investment houses in America and Europe, right through the war, and he was without question an unwitting pawn of the Jewish Money Power. This was not to Hitler's discredit for his tiny, impoverished party had to accept support under the crushing, communist-dominated circumstances in Germany, and it was never his intention to fight America or England, or even France. His intention was to destroy Communism and if he had to take the capitalists' money to get going, well—too bad. What choice did he have? Once Hitler came to power the Jews turned on him and organized an international boycott on German trade. This was led by the New York criminal lawyer, Samuel J. Untermayer, who ran something called the World Jewish Economic Federation. This boycott was an act of war against Germany by International Jewry, in case anyone should ever wonder why certain Jews were eventually treated as enemy aliens for deportation, but in April 1933 Germany responded by merely declaring April Fools' Day to be a day of protest during which no one must buy from Jews. Few Germans paid any attention to this counter-boycott.

Those provocateurs who gave support to Hitler and his party became extremely alarmed by 1936 when it became apparent that the German people were swiftly rising from the ashes of the Versailles Dictate into a state of productivity and dignity as if they were totally unaware of the crushing depression into which the rest of the world had been pushed. Germany issued its own debt-free money (the same sort that Lincoln and Kennedy issued months before they were shot) and within three years the German people emerged from the double hell of the general world depression and the Versailles Rip-off. The developing prosperity of his people based on debt-free currency marked Hitler as an enemy of the "civilized" world, according to the usury-parasites who ran that world. The man the parasites chose to represent them against Hitler was Winston Churchill.

Those who doubt that the World Wars of this century were Jewish operations must read David Irving's Churchill's War. In it we find a Winston Churchill quite different from the popular, i.e., Jewish, version. By 1936 he was being groomed by a combination of three Jewish groups, the Jewish Defence Fund, the Board of Deputies of British Jews and the American Jewish Committee. Although he had been out of office for ten years and was heavily in debt, a Czech Jew named Henry Strakosch bought his debts in September, 1938. "Sir Henry" was the chairman of a South African gold mining syndicate. The Jews owned Churchill and he was obliged to do what they said, which was to make a war against Germany. In fact, General Leonard Wood testified before Congress in 1941 that Churchill had told him in 1936, "Germany is getting too strong again. We shall have to smash her in another war!" The Jews ordered him to loot the British treasury of every last ounce of gold before they would allow the impoverished American taxpayers to begin to send billions of dollars worth of weapons and other supplies. When Britain's gold ran out, Franklin D. Roosevelt sent a battleship to Capetown, South Africa to remove another fifty million pounds (sterling) in gold. Satisfied that Britain was well and truly bankrupt, the Jews began the bankrupting of America with "Lend-Lease." By "the Jews," of course, I refer to the Sanhedrin, or the Money Power, which is ultimately the Rothschild Group, as far as we know. Their agents, the ones who provided the strong-arm tactics, were Bernard Baruch (who'd made a personal fortune of 200 million dollars with his government job during WWI), Felix Frankfurter (Supreme Court justice and head of the American Jewish Committee), and Sir Robert Waley-Cohen (chairman of British Shell Oil Company). All money figures should be multiplied by ten to get today's equivalent. Interestingly, each of the above-named Jews was a Freemason of high rank, as were Churchill and Roosevelt (and Truman). Contrary to his oft-quoted lie, Winston Churchill did become His Majesty's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire!

Pamyat, the far-right party, is suing the Jewish Gazette, Russia's largest Jewish newspaper, for 20 million rubles, which by the time it is paid, if the judgment goes against the Jewish publication, may hardly amount to more than a couple of dollars, since Russia's galloping inflation continues to gallop. The Jewish Gazette, say Pamyat officials, called their organization "anti-Semitic"–fighting words almost anywhere and particularly so in contemporary Russia, where the Jews hope to become as untouchable as they are in the West. Pamyat's gravest sin, according to the Chosen, was serializing the Protocols.

The trial began with a bang as 48 black-shirted, black-trousered Pamyat troops, hogging most of the seats, chorused, "Save Russia, Kill the Jews."

From "Elsewhere", Instauration (June 1993), P.O. Box 76, Cape Canaveral, FL 32920

Regarding Japan, the Los Angeles Times reported in November, 1941 that America's chief trading partner was Japan. Wall Street could very well see Japan as a deadly competitor but even more dangerous than that was Japan's certain hostility to a Communist dictatorship being established in China. For those two reasons, Japan had to undergo Destruction and Reconstruction. MacArthur and Nimitz were ordered to destroy Japan. MacArthur, a Freemason of high rank, stayed on for five years as overlord of the Reconstruction. Meanwhile, over in China, George Marshall ordered Chiang Kai-shek to accept Mao Tse-tung's Communists in a coalition government. Chiang refused and Marshall ordered all supplies and ammunition to our Chinese allies discontinued. The Communists were given the tons of captured Japanese weapons and the anti-communists were driven from the mainland to a little island known as Formosa, or Taiwan. Thus America again imposed deliberate failure and mass death on a potential competitor.

But what about Japan? Didn't America allow her to become a deadly competitor? Well, not exactly, as it turned out. The reader will recall, several years ago, the announcement that Rockefeller Center was sold to Mitsubishi Holdings. Within a week the Spotlight reported that Mitsubishi Holdings was bought up by Rockefeller Brothers in the early aftermath of World War II, along with many other Japanese and German industrials. SONY, we are now told, stands for Standard Oil of New York.

China, however, was a different story. Perhaps the reader cannot picture primitive Red China as a serious competitor. But consider tiny Hong Kong, the center of the truly-free market. Consider tiny Taiwan, that barren, rocky refuge of Chiang Kai-shek in 1949. By the 1970s Taiwan had risen to Number Four GNP in the world! Can we now picture the potential GNP of a billion—or two billion—of the same people under the same philosophy? Our Wall Street capitalists could and that's why they installed Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai in a Communist dictatorship which went on to slaughter the entire Chinese middle and upper classes and de-brain the rest which ensured that China would never threaten America's control of prices. These two agents of the Sanhedrin produced the greatest pool of consumer/slaves imaginable. Many of our most respected corporations are exploiting those slaves under the aegis of the Pacific Basin Institute. American capitalists have always supported Communism because it was good for business. Most of us just couldn't see how good.

America destroyed the French Empire, too. It has been said for many years that Vietnam controls vast oil reserves and that those reserves were the reason for the Vietnam War. I'll buy that but let's recall that Vietnam used to be called French Indochina. Step One was to take Indochina away from the French and give the northern half to Ho Chi Minh, an agent of OSS, in 1945. Step Two was to fight like hell for the southern half and then give it to Ho Chi Minh in 1975. Step Three was for Ho Chi Minh, who used to turn in his OSS reports to the Texaco office in Hanoi, to prevent any North Sea-type discoveries in or offshore of his new kingdom—discoveries which would threaten the always-precarious price structure.

France had tremendous influence in the Middle East, too, until America destabilized that region by foisting a vicious bunch of Polish and Russian Jews on the hapless Palestinians in 1948. The oil companies created the Council on Foreign Relations, their own ministry of subversion, in 1921. The CFR agents engineered World War II and its "New World Order," known as the United Nations. The first act of this peacekeeping body was to wage war on the Palestinians and re-name their country "Israel" and deny them their self-determination. We now had perpetual war for perpetual profit. We also had a bunch of outraged but impotent Arabs who could only, in their terrible frustration, nationalize their oil wells. Bingo! France was quickly aced out of the Middle East and North Africa and the radicalized Arabs were driven toward the Soviet Union, since we were responsible for Israel. The Soviets didn't know how to drill oil wells or do anything else to help the Arabs and the latter were inexorably forced to toe the American line to get their reserves exploited. The American line was: control production, keep prices up and run all transactions through American banks. This was the purpose of foisting the bloodthirsty Khazar Jews on Palestine—Jews who had no roots there. Our driving the desperate Arabs toward the Soviets justified our support of "Israel," which we billed as a "democracy."

Another service to their oil masters performed by the Israelis has been the severing of all major oil pipelines in the region. This has given full control of pricing to the oil companies rather than to the Arabs who actually own the oil. Some pipelines took oil directly to Europe but now it must be shipped and the oil companies own the ships, or lease them under contract. We can remember

Saddam Hussein offering oil at very low prices, earlier this year, to Third World countries who could sail their tankers up the Persian Gulf and load it. Finally he offered it free to anyone who could come and get it. American warships, acting for the oil companies, blockaded the Iraqi outlet and kept the oil price at the desired level.

America foisted the Israeli dictatorship on the Palestinians deliberately to destabilize the oil-rich Middle East and prevent Islamic cohesion. American oil companies—the same companies which had achieved the Israeli takeover through their agents in the CFR and United Nations—were gratefully permitted to exploit Arab oil, royalties from which went to purchase vast amounts of hideously expensive American armaments to protect Arabs from Zionist fanatics who gloated about a Greater Israel. Arab kings, princes and sheiks were slowly corrupted until they are now shown to be financial supporters of the Zionist fanatics. Arab opposition to U.S. domination of the region has evaporated in their realization that our country is still willing to drop megatons of high explosives on any country which might momentarily believe in the myth of its own sovereignty. If in fact we have a president who is a co-owner of Pennzoil (which means Texaco, too) and a partner with Saddam Hussein in a ten billion dollar kickback scheme, as discovered in Chicago court records by Sherman Skolnick and reported in the Spotlight, then we have another strong reason why Israel will receive ten billion dollars more of our tax money. Israel has been doing the dirty work of the oil companies since 1948, to the great profit of the latter, and the tiny nation of parasites is ever-ready to carry out its blackmail against the most visible member of the oil establishment, George Bush.

Finally, the East European countries were also potential industrial powerhouses which were deliberately crippled by American (CFR) policy at Yalta and Potsdam in 1945, policy which condemned those peoples to the horrors of Communism for forty-five years. I fear that if we subject two generations of a country to Communism the effects may be permanent, regardless of an inevitable "freedom movement" forty-five years later. So, let's not be fooled by the long-overdue collapse of the Soviet Communists into thinking that things are going to get better here. We still have a president who intended to merge his repressive government with the Soviet dictatorship in a New World Order, the same president who condemned the freedom struggles in Ukraine and the Balkans just a few weeks ago. We still have a Mulatto chairman of the joint chiefs (who's fluent in Yiddish, by the way) who recently met with his Soviet counterpart in Moscow and claimed a "partnership" with the Communists. Our president still supports the Communist regime in China; he hastily and secretly dispatched another member of the CFR to reassure the Chinese butchers of his support for them right after their atrocities in Tienamen Square. In other words, our country is still run by a small gang of pro-Communists on behalf of their masters in the Sanhedrin.

JUDAISM MUST BE DESTROYED!

The militia must gird itself for a lifetime of violence against the enemy within, which can be described as the Jewish Axis. This axis runs from New York to Hollywood. The New York end is the Money Power and control of information (News); the Hollywood end is the mind control system (Television, Music and Motion Pictures). This Jewish Axis limits our actions by designing our thinking to their specifications. As simple proof of this charge we know that the average American, no matter how much he may secretly resent Jews, probably would not deny the following: "Only a sick neo-Nazi would blame Jews for America's problems." Our self-defense against Jewish looting is wrecked by the lifelong conditioning of our brains with the feeling that to be anti-Jewish is to be mentally ill, even when the looters' names are Boesky, Milken and Steinberg. How has this conditioning been accomplished? It was accomplished before we were born by the use of something called Christianity, which is a modified form of Judaism. Christianity is Judaism for Gentiles, courtesy of a Jewish agent of the Sanhedrin known variously as Saul of Tarsus, Paul and St. Paul. Our Christian is placed on the horns of a dilemma in Sunday School when he is informed that the Jews are the Chosen People of God and that they caused his Saviour to be foully murdered! Of course, these two pieces of information are not presented at the same time for that would wreck the effect. This writer will probably have much more to say along this line because Jews are definitely under the protection of the Bible just as Cain was under the protection of God despite the fact that he murdered his own brother out of jealousy, which began the endless pattern of Jewish madness and murder, generally forgiven by the Jews' God, which we observe in the Bible. All along the Jewish Axis, from New York to Hollywood, we see the Judaization of our culture being carried out in the Christian churches. The churches, with the Bible as their weapon, have so softened up our people that they cannot resist the most blatant attacks by the Jewish Axis. Just as Communism has been used to wipe out potential competition around the world, Christianity has been used to wipe out potential resistance to the Jewish takeover here and in Europe and everywhere White men have been in charge.

Before we can liberate our country from Jewish looting we must liberate our minds from Jewish influence. All militiamen are encouraged to read the Bible in its entirety so as to understand the terrible Jewish drive for the enslavement of the Gentiles and to get it firmly in our minds that these people are the cruelest, most superstitious and hysterical bunch of liars on Earth—and totally dependent on our good will toward them.

Those of us who might still doubt that the Conspiracy against Humanity is Jewish must only observe Mr. Allen Weinstein, the Jewish James Madison, advising "former Communists" on the short cuts to democracy, which is a polite term for semi-violent rule by Jews. ❑

The U.S. Holocaust Museum

Will Become for America What the Soviet Katyn Monument Has Become for the Russians: A Monument to an Allied War Crime And the Most Cynical, Bold-Faced Lie of World War II.

by

Ernst Zündel

Remember the shrill accusations against the Germans during and after World War II about the horrific mass executions of the Polish officer corps at Katyn?

The Allied newspapers, newsreels and history books never tired of showing the gruesome photos of the grotesquely mutilated and semi-decomposed bodies of thousands of Polish soldiers, covered with mud.

Most of these bodies had sawdust in their mouths, and bullet holes in the back of their necks. Many had their cheekbones and half of their faces blown away.

A Soviet War Crimes Commission was set up which held meetings and made long investigations by noted east European forensic experts and criminologists. Experts in forensic medicine finally certified that the vicious, brutal Nazis were the killers of these helpless prisoners, all of whom had died with their hands tied behind their backs while they were totally defenseless.

The Soviet authorities had obtained thousands, not hundreds, of signed, dated, detailed affidavits by local peasants, workers and other Soviet citizens. These affidavits and the "scientific" evidence presented by the Soviet experts were the basis for war crime proceedings against numerous German officers and soldiers by Soviet courts.

Seven (7) of these Germans were tried, while being tried, filmed, photographed, vilified and paraded in front of the Soviet public as devils and heartless monsters. They were shown as having been the willing servants and tools of an evil Nazi system which ruthlessly killed in order to destroy the Polish elite; by murdering these 15,000 Polish officers in an "industrially organized" orgy of genocide and mass murder of the future leaders of Poland.

This was willingly repeated for almost 50 years in history books and encyclopedias around the world in east and west.

In those kangaroo proceedings of hate and vengeance in Nuremberg against the vanquished Germans, the Allies acquiesced to making this "Murder of the Polish Officers at Katyn" part of the official War Crimes Charges.

Today we know that the British had already known, through the Polish underground army, what the true facts were in this bizarre and monstrous crime.

The British government has played along with and has not officially denied this despicable Soviet W.W.II propaganda lie to this day.

The German defense lawyers tried in Nuremberg to introduce the truth about Katyn, although severely handicapped by the rules and regulations laid down in the Statutes of London. These rules of ex post facto laws, specifically promulgated to obtain the "legal" convictions of the German leadership, were designed to camouflage the judicially sanctioned murder of some of the most brilliant military and political minds of an entire generation of Germans.

The Allied prosecutors and judges knew all along that Nuremberg was a victor's vengeful instrument to beat and batter into submission those accused in the "Courtroom" whom they could not win against unless they rigged the rules against them beforehand.

The Allies, especially the Western Allies, saw to it that the "Katyn controversy" fell through the "cracks" of the Nuremberg proceedings.

Thus the charge or accusation appeared at the beginning of the proceedings but has mysteriously disappeared in the verdict. This is not surprising to those who have studied the Nuremberg Trials.

Former Chief Justice Fisk-Stone of the United State Supreme Court had referred to U.S. Justice Jackson as running a high-grade "lynching party" in the Hall of Justice in Nuremberg.

Evidence of Allied torture was simply "expunged from the Nuremberg trial transcripts," by order of the tribunal judges, as in Julius Streicher's testimony of beatings, having to drink the saliva of guards and being forced by his U.S. guards to drink from the toilet bowl in his cell.

All this came to light in my two Holocaust trials in Toronto, as evidence introduced through documents by my expert witnesses.

The media reported these testimonies at the time and quickly went on to repeat the same accusations and baseless lies against the German leaders and thus the German nation, as they had before.

Why do I tell you all this?

Because the Holocaust, or much of the so-called evidence for its existence and for its alleged horrific murders, was obtained in the same way, by the same type of people possessed of the same hatred and loathing for their war-time opposite numbers and erstwhile enemies, as was done in the case of Katyn.

This is why the Nuremberg trials were such a farce and in effect a crime in themselves. The parties to the case before the bar were not only the investigators and interrogators, but had even written their own rules and ex post facto laws for these specific proceedings in Nuremberg.

Not only did the war time Allied nations supply the investigators and interrogators, they also supplied the jail personnel. They controlled the issue of funds, food coupons, travel documents and living accommodations for the defense lawyers. They could also refuse attorneys to the defendants as their lawyers if they did not like their political past. The Allies also supplied the prosecutors and the judges in these proceedings. These proceedings would have been unthinkable in any civilized country and will forever be a blemish on the behavior of those countries who instituted them and participated in them with the hypocritical claim that they were judicial proceedings were Justice, not Vengeance, was served.

The Holocaust Museum in Washington and all the other monuments now springing up all over the U.S., Canada and, to a lesser extent, in the rest of the world, are there to dispel doubt in the minds of all those people who are equipped with critical minds and who instinctively have a sense of fairness.

These museums, by their theme parks and images of horrors, are there to create "doubting Thomases." They are also there to silence the Holocaust doubters and critics, the so-called "Holocaust Revisionists."

These monuments are a visible admission and a declaration by the Holocaust promoters that they have lost the battle for the public's mind, in spite of their massive "control of the media airwaves."

These monuments are also there because, as revealed in a recent U.S. poll, the Holocaust education and brainwashing of Americans has proved to be a spectacular failure.

I reproduce below some clippings for you from the standard media. They are self-explanatory.

I have contacted Jewish and government organizations as well as police agencies and asked them to conduct just such an opinion poll in Ontario and Canada, to find out how many people in Canada or Ontario doubt the Holocaust. If the U.S. survey is representative, then between 2-3 million people in Ontario do not believe in the Holocaust either.

I have contacted some opinion pollsters like Gallup and Fact Canada for a quote of an opinion survey of our own. They tell me it would cost about $10,000 to $15,000 if we want to get an analysis done by them as to what the poll reveals and if we want to use their names in publishing the results. I have released this offer in a statement to the most important media sources in Canada. So far, there has been nothing but deafening silence.

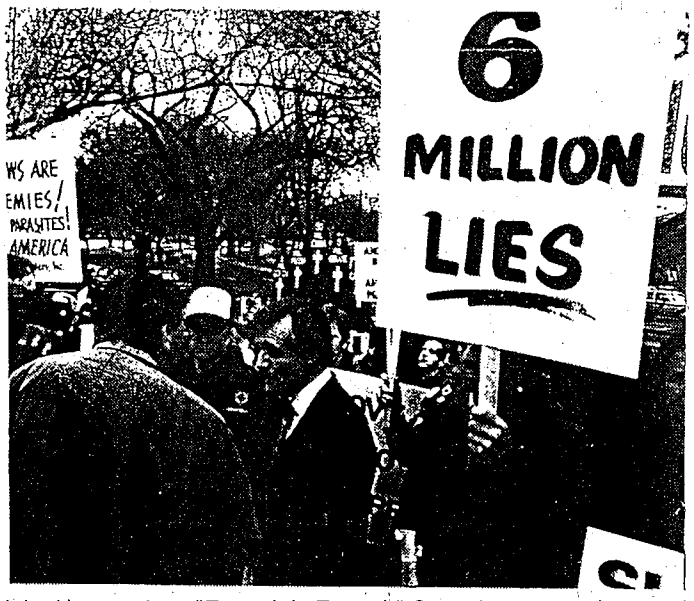
If there is a supporter out there who would want to finance such a poll—I have the lawyers and the experts to formulate the questions for us. All that separates us from knowing the true feelings of the public about the Holocaust issue is the money to conduct the poll.

I think that Jewish groups will be reluctant to conduct such a poll in Canada, after the disastrous results they obtained in the U.S.A.

I submit these ideas to you. I don't have the funds but at least I can supply you with the idea and the expertise to get the job done.

No ordinary people were let into the Holocaust Museum during the time the Samisdat crew was there, so you will have to wait for a more detailed analysis of the "inside." So far, I have only seen the media tours like the rest of the world on T.V.

In the meantime, the Museum can fulfill a very useful role as a focal point where revisionists can meet thousands of people and hand them revisionist literature on a daily basis, while they are already sensitized by their horror mu-



John Nugent, from "Enough is Enough" Committee, organized and co-ordinated the Counter Demonstrations. He was frequently interviewed by the Press and T.V.

Old and young, male and female, from many ethnic groups joined in to protest the "Museum of Hate and lies.

erature on a daily basis, while they are already sensitized by their horror museum visit.

Revisionist Truth Guerillas, intellectual Freedom Fighters and "Truth Squads" can leaflet cars, buses, and airports in Washington now that we have a "Focus Point"—their Museum of Horrors. We could never have achieved this "Agitation-Bonus" by ourselves.

Since U.S. Federal money, land, etc. is involved, politicians and courts can be enlisted in getting the Museum to show both sides or at least some semblance of balance—or one can take them to court. Someone told me that even on the diplomatic front there are already massive repercussions.

Apparently, even the bootlicking representatives of the Vassal government in Bonn protested the museum by staying away from the opening ceremonies. Kohl and that hypocrite Weizsäcker stayed away! I could not believe my eyes! So, maybe the devil sometimes does create some good by wanting to do evil.

So my friends, there is no need to panic or to get depressed! Our enemies are flailing around like some drowning man making lots of noises and splashes to draw attention to himself because he is drowning.

We have turned the corner! The Holocaust Legend will one day, in the not so distant future, go down in history as a vicious, self-serving lie, just like the Allied war time propaganda concoction which was "Katyn."

What will remain in Washington is one of the ugliest structures, typical of "in poor taste" synagogue architecture throughout the world.

The building will temporarily be a monument to show the Zionist influence and power over a latter-day Rome or Babylon by the Potomac called the United States of America.

The muggings, rapes, thefts and robberies of Holocaust Shrine visitors will go on and increase inside and outside the museum! Inside the museum, the Holocaust lobby will "mug their minds and emotions" while outside they will be mugged by America's teeming hordes....which Emma Lazarus celebrated with a similar monument at a different place and a by-gone age.

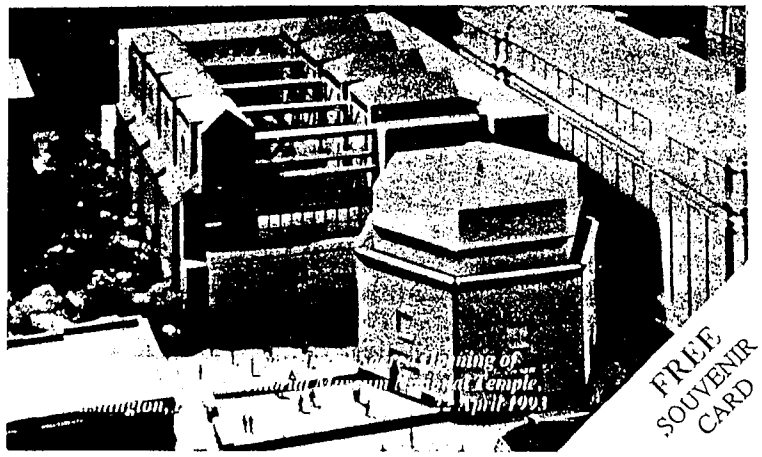
The effects will be the same—decline, disbelief, cynicism and disgust—not tolerance. The real non-fake-Holocausts will go on in Palestine, Iraq, Bosnia and Somalia! No museum like that monstrosity in Washington is going to prevent it. Not now nor in the future!

Thank you for your support. I could not carry on without your help, your love and your kindness.

Ernst Zündel
206 Carlton Street, Toronto ON M5A 2L1 CANADA

✠ ✠ ✠ ✠ ✠

YOUR TAX DOLLARS AT WORK



From the Congressional Record (House of Representatives) June 16, 1992:

The Holocaust Memorial Council was created in 1980 by an act of Congress and was charged with building the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, DC. The Museum is being built on Federal land, but the act specifically stipulates that the costs of construction be covered by private contributions, as the Vietnam Memorial and many others have been.

The Federal role was limited to the donation of land and $2 ½ million in up-front development funds. To date, Congress has gone well beyond the original figure by appropriating $33 million above the authorized ceiling.

H.R. 2660 authorizes such sums as may be necessary in fiscal years 1992 to the year 2000 for the operation of the Holocaust Memorial Council and Holocaust Museum. The CBO estimates that such sums means about $18.3 million in fiscal year 1993, and $15.4 million for each additional year, adjusted for inflation, and that could amount to $110 million until the year 2000. These are not small sums. This is $3 million more than operating the Air and Space Museum, the most visited Museum in the world. It is seven times the funding authorized for the Lincoln, Jefferson, and Washington Memorials combined.

Paid for by German-American Nat'l PAC. P.O. Box 1137, Santa Monica, CA. 90406

Do you know how many American soldiers died in World War II?*
No?
But you know of the foreign "Six Million", right?
How come?

Skeptical about the "gas chambers"?
Would you like to hear the other side of the World War II story?

Just write your name and address below, and mail this card to us.

Please
Place Stamp
Here

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ Zip _____

GERMAN WORLD WAR II VETERANS
c/o Hans Schmidt
P.O. Box 10600
BURKE, VA 22015

* According to the 1992 World Almanac, 407,316 American soldiers sacrificed their lives for their country in WWII.

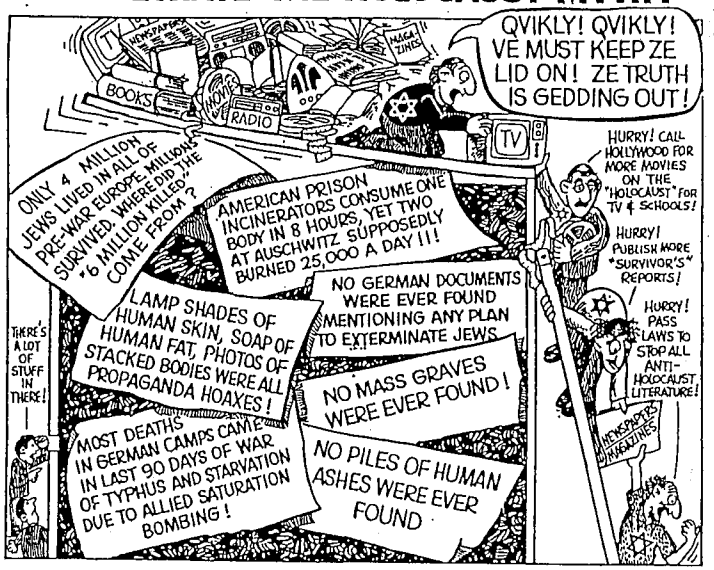
✠ ✠ ✠ ✠ ✠

QUESTION: HOW LONG CAN THE JEWS PERPETRATE THE HOLOCAUST MYTH?



ANSWER: NOT MUCH LONGER!

The Good Guys Wore Black

by

J.B. Campbell

Where will we militiamen fit in the scheme of things? How will we justify ourselves as American men in the 1990s? How will we be compared with the real freedom fighters of the 1940s? I refer of course to the million men from all European nations who volunteered in the great struggle against the Jewish allies known as Capitalists and Communists, the million men of the Waffen-SS. This is not to take away from the freedom fighters who served in the German army, air force or navy and who fought with often equal valor and distinction against the forces of the Kremlin, the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve. But the Waffen-SS was special because it was so thoroughly and indelibly anti-communist, and because it made a reality of an unauthorized Europe, that fantastic nightmare of the international bankers, finance capitalists and communists. The Waffen-SS proved that Germany is the heart of Europe—the indispensable organ which pumps a life force into the waiting arteries throughout the multiplex, protean continent. The volunteer battalions of the Waffen-SS showed the world how emergencies should be handled and how life should be lived.

This writer's life was turned around in 1984 when Willis Carto handed me a booklet by Leon Degrelle and Ted O'Keefe entitled, Epic: The Story of the Waffen-SS. Degrelle, now in his 80s, was a famous Belgian nationalist who volunteered to defend Europe from the Red Army at the age of 35 as a corporal in the Wallonian Legion. This unit was merged with the Waffen-SS and Degrelle rose to the rank of general and its commanding officer. He remains a phenomenal example of manhood. In this booklet he and O'Keefe put me on notice that my education was limited and my view of life flawed. The next blow to my complacency was Degrelle's book, Campaign in Russia: The Waffen-SS on the Eastern Front. Further proof that in the anti-communist league, I was a small fry. For an American, a reading of this great book is the most humbling experience imaginable, for in this one we discover how the real anti-communists operated. (I was to be humbled further four years later in San Salvador when I was asked eagerly by the cousin of Major Roberto D'Aubuisson how many communists I had killed in Africa? Very few, I confessed; my men and I had accounted for hardly more than a dozen. "Phooey! The major has personally killed hundreds of them here!" We have a lot to learn from Roberto D'Aubuisson.)

We have a lot to learn, too, from the heroes of the Waffen-SS—the Germans, Norwegians, Belgians, Spaniards, Italians, Frenchmen, Swedes, Danes, Croats, Dutch, Rumanians, Finns—60,000 Muslims and even a couple of Englishmen! Of the million volunteers, only 400,000 were from Germany; the majority were from elsewhere. It was the first and genuine version of NATO and it literally kept the Red Army from marching to the English Channel. The difference was that it was not a mercenary army of the Federal Reserve as are the NATO forces of today, as were the Allied armies of the 1940s.

We Americans have a lot to learn about these things. When we finally do learn them and the truth hits us with its blinding light, it is a profound experience. My friend, for example, who has a German-sounding name, is of Scandinavian extraction. He was a young enlisted man stationed in Germany in the late 1950s and had under him a couple of veterans of the Eastern Front. These men were always correct and polite but my friend now realizes how it must have galled them to have to answer to such a callow youth who not only had never fought the real enemy but who now represented that enemy in their own land. My friend has taken the time to study the war from the revisionist viewpoint. He bought a tape of German wartime songs and played it on the way to work the other day. He got through a couple of numbers alright and then it hit him—how monstrous our side had been, how decent and healthy and simply self-defensive their side had been. He thought about those two Germans who'd had to work for him back in the 50s, about the millions of women and children our side had roasted and crushed and blew apart in our cowardly, fiendish bombing of cities and towns, about the million German POWs our side starved to death after the war and the millions more who disappeared into Russia and he pulled off the road and stopped and cried like a baby. My friend is not given to spontaneous crying jags. I'm not either, but the same thing happened to me once. If we have any humanity left in us, we cry in unbounded shame for the All-American sadism of our leaders past and present. We cry because we can't even express how much there is to be ashamed of. We cry in horror at what our country did to the best people in the world.

What a stinking, rotten country is America, which her ignorant countrymen want to believe is so benevolent and moral. Imagine sending millions of our trash—black, brown and white—overseas to exterminate the German people. Naturally some very decent men were among the trash but, if anything, they probably did more killing since they were "more patriotic."

Take the case of Audie Murphy, our most decorated soldier ever. Here was a young Texan who was so poor he'd never owned a pair of boots or played a game of any sort. He was the perfect tool of Franklin Roosevelt, born and bred, we might say, to execute his foul orders. After all, he'd been dirt-poor because of the Great Depression which the Roosevelt crowd had designed and kept going for twelve years. Murphy found a home in the army—good clothes, good food and a place to sleep. He willingly became a perfect killing machine, which he quickly proved on arrival in Sicily. Two Italian officers had, in the distance, mounted their white horses and ridden away from the Americans. Murphy dropped to one knee and, with his carbine, nailed them both from behind. His comrades were unsettled by his cold-bloodedness but he shrugged it off with, "That's war." As time went by, Murphy became addicted to getting the job done, or something. He managed to kill 240 Germans before he got a bellyful. It slowly dawned on him that he was doing a terrible thing, and that the Germans he was killing were mainly trying to get away, back to the fatherland. He got so sick of doing the Jews' killing that often he'd sneak up on a bunch of relaxing Germans and just watch them as they cooked and ate and sang songs and tried to rest. Then he'd sneak away, disconcerted. He knew they were better men than the Americans.

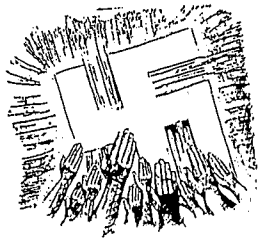
Later, in America, he refused to discuss the war, except, when pressed, to recount how many Germans he'd let live. Sometimes, while watching newsreels in the theater which showed the hungry children in postwar Germany, he'd cry and mutter, "Maybe I killed their fathers." His biography, No Name on the Bullet, tells the story. But Audie Murphy, like so many others—bomber and fighter pilots, seamen, tankers, infantrymen—was a man-made monster, created by Dr. Frankenstein Roosevelt. Contrary to popular belief, the more human of them suffered terribly from "post traumatic stress disorder," although they weren't allowed to say so. After all, who should feel bad about killing Germans?

Among the countless atrocities "our boys" committed, one of the most disgusting was the liberation of Dachau by an element of the 45th "Thunderbird" Division. This outfit was made up largely of Oklahoma Indians and had, ironically, a swastika for an insignia, the "symbol of prosperity and good fortune." This was changed to a thunderbird for obvious reasons. (The Institute for Historical Review once reproduced a 1920s ad for a Jewish product which included a swastika—"the symbol of purity!")



The story of Dachau is told by an eyewitness in his book, Dachau—Hour of the Avenger. Col. Howard Buechner, then a lieutenant and 3rd Battalion surgeon, happened to enter the killing area just after 346 soldiers of the Waffen-SS were machine gunned by American soldiers, while the wounded were being dispatched with pistols. His book is a collection of truths, half-truths and fantastic lies but it is also a collection of shocking and grisly photographs of the killing. What happened is this...

On the morning of 29 April, 1945, I Company, 3rd Battalion, 157th Infantry, 45th Division approached the Dachau factory and camp with orders to capture it, post an airtight guard and let no one enter or leave. A surrender had been negotiated with the Waffen-SS commanding officer, Obersturmführer Heinrich Skodzenski of the Viking Division. Despite this, the Americans, at 11:20 am, immediately shot 122 men who had surrendered. 358 others were taken prisoner. At 12:05 pm another twelve men were shot in a panicky and botched job. Nothing more happened while the commanding officer, Col. Felix Sparks, reported to regimental HQ and received his orders. Upon his return to Dachau camp at 2:45 pm, the remaining 346 men of the Waffen-SS, who were at Dachau recuperating from exhaustion from fighting the Red Army, were lined up against a wall in the hospital area and machine gunned. .45 automatics were given to Jewish inmates who went along the wall, shooting the wounded in the head. The Americans allowed the Jews to murder anyone they wanted—by gunfire, knives, shovels, bricks. The Americans watched while Jews tore some victims limb from limb.

The division commander was Major General Robert T. Frederick. It was he to whom Col. Sparks had reported and who had given the order to massacre the men. He visited the killing area at 3:15 pm and suggested that the bodies be distributed around the camp and then photographed to make it look as if the soldiers had been shot while trying to attack or escape. This was dropped when he was told that a technician fourth class, Arland B. Musser, Signal Corps, had photographed the whole thing, as had an inmate by the name of Nerin Gun, whose photos were published in his book, Day of the Americans. The fact that a concentration camp inmate was allowed to keep his camera is very interesting.

The atrocity was reported to General George S. Patton, Jr. by Brigadier General Henning Linden of the 42nd Infantry Division. Patton was duty bound to investigate. Court martial proceedings were actually begun on the charge of violating the rules of the Geneva Convention, which protect prisoners of war, and on other charges. Patton handled it by ordering all photos, documents, reports, etc., brought to him by the killers and witnesses. Some but not all were produced whereupon Patton put them in a wastebasket and set them afire. Thus the war crime was officially covered up.

Why had it been committed? Simple. The Jewish Allies, i.e., the Americans, Soviets and British, had been committing countless war crimes against the Gentile Allies from the beginning and knew the genocide would be continuing in accord with the terms of the Morgenthau Plan into the postwar future. To divert attention from this the Jewish Allies invented the War Crimes Tribunal. It was the innocent being accused, tried and executed by the guilty. Compared with firestorm bombing of civilians, machine gunning of prisoners, mass starvation of prisoners and civilians, slave labor and forced repatriation to horrible deaths in the gulags, the Germans were relatively guiltless. The Americans knew this but a legend was being constructed and any honest witnesses to the conditions in the concentration camps, in this case, a handful of actual SS camp guards along with the hundreds of Waffen-SS soldiers resting there, had to be silenced. That's why all those men were lined up and shot.

It was for this basic reason that Adolf Eichmann was kidnapped in Buenos Aires and taken to Israel for "trial" and liquidation. The man actually in charge of the Final Solution was the biggest threat to the lucrative lie of The Holocaust. The veteran reporter, Jim Taylor, has, in a 1989 Liberty Bell magazine article, described his visit with Eichmann in 1960 shortly before the abduction. The French intelligence unit, SDECE, asked him to go to Argentina and warn a certain man that he was in danger. Taylor went to the address and recognized the man as Eichmann. He also saw that the modest home was under surveillance. He explained the situation but the former SS officer scoffed politely, "Why would they want to harm me? I did nothing but help them." He explained that he had helped the Jews get out of Europe and into Palestine. We now know, officially, since it surfaced in the Israeli press last year, that his Jewish counterpart at the Palestinian end of the pipeline was none other than Shitsack—excuse me—Yitzhak Shamir, who was also slightly embarrassed by the revelation that he had offered an alliance with the Nazis against the British, in a letter to Adolf Hitler. Hitler, to his credit, ignored the little bastard.

Eichmann was in a daze as he stood in his tiny glass booth, listening to the whoppers being told about him and Himmler and the rest. He even confessed to some whoppers himself, after experiencing the most excruciating Jewish torture. Back in Buenos Aires, when Jim Taylor had pointed to the men in the car up the street, Eichmann peered at them and assured Taylor, "Even if for some reason it did happen, the Americans wouldn't let them hurt me." Adolf Eichmann didn't get it: he was the only living threat to one of the greatest rackets in history; he could document the Final Solution to the Jewish Problem as a mighty heave-ho deportation of Jews rather than the Old Testament-style extermination known reverently as The Holocaust.

The Spotlight has recently reported that the diaries of Heinrich Himmler, Reichsführer SS, have been located in Israel. These crucial documents have not been released for publication by the Israelis because there is no mention in them of any policy of extermination of Jews or anyone else. It is known that they do record Himmler's concern over the increasing death rate in the various camps toward the end of the war as well as his explicit orders that the deaths be stopped at all costs. The death rate could not be decreased because America and England were then bombing all roads and railroads and strafing anything that moved on the ground. Food could not be transported anywhere, not to the cities and not to the camps.

This writer gained a bizarre insight into the trial of SS Panzer commander Joachim Peiper, whose men waged the desperate counteroffensive against the Americans known as the Battle of the Bulge. After the war Peiper and his men were accused of lining up a number of American soldiers and shooting them in what was called the "Malmedy Massacre." It is now known that Peiper's men did no such thing but rather got in a gunfight with those Americans and won. Since there was some time available, Peiper ordered the dead Americans be gathered up for the approaching graves registration personnel who would eventually find them. The fact that the bodies were left in an orderly fashion along the roadside gave rise to the charge that they had been lined up that way and then shot. Eyewitnesses were produced who swore that this was the case. These eyewitnesses all proved to be liars.

I read an account of the trial of Peiper and his men in the Journal of Historical Review and recognized the name of the American prosecutor, Burton F. Ellis. I had done a favor for a man by that name a year or so before by taking a gun of his to the army museum at Ft. Ord. I called him in Fresno, California and asked if he were in fact the same man? He said that he was. I told him that I had an article before me which claimed that he and his Jewish lawyers had tortured Peiper and his men for their confessions. He denied this and insisted that others had investigated the charges and found they were false. Who investigated the charges, other Americans? Yes, and why was I interested? Well, I said, World War II was the most important thing that ever happened and it's important to know who actually did what.

I recalled that he and his team got death sentences for the defendants. "Yes", said Ellis, "but they were commuted later."

"I guess that proves the whole thing was phony... There were Belgian witnesses who would have testified that it was a regular shootout."

"No, no—Peiper was guilty!" insisted Ellis, "but you know, war is hell." I thought, this from a lawyer who never heard a gun go off in anger. "Peiper was doing what he thought was necessary in a bad situation."

"Did you say that at his trial?"

"Well, no."

"The witnesses say that his men never murdered our guys, that it was a legitimate gunfight."

"You know, Peiper wrote me a letter after the trial, congratulating me on my victory."

"Well, isn't that just like a German."

"Yes, he was really quite a man."

"The Jews finally killed him, didn't they."

"So I understand."

"Yeah, he was living in France. He had a shotgun and from the looks of it, he probably killed one or more of them."

We militiamen may never measure up to the valiant volunteers of the Waffen-SS, but we've got to try. The first step is to recognize them for what they were: the finest, bravest and most dedicated freedom fighters of all time. They started out as the Schutzstaffel, or "protective echelon," which guarded Adolf Hitler from the Communists in the 1930s. By the 1940s they transcended the personalized nature of their inception and became a phenomenal, unprecedented fighting force for Europe.

It is to their high standard which we militiamen must strive. We must become a phenomenal, unprecedented fighting force for America.

* * * * *

From GANPAC-BRIEF No. 128/June 1993, (Box 1137, Santa Monica CA 90406).

Many GANPAC-BRIEF readers are very much interested in stories pertaining to Germany and Germans that will never be printed by the American establishment press (and neither by so-called Germans newspapers). Well, here's an unusual report:

Last fall, a van-load of veterans of the former famed "Wiking" division of the Waffen-SS decided to travel deep into the old Soviet Union to visit places where they had fought against the Red Army exactly 50 years earlier. Everywhere they went, the native population received the ex-SS soldiers with open arms, and many a tear was shed when a former German soldier was able to again enter the home of a Russian or Ukrainian family where he had been quartered so long ago. In spite of 50 years of incessant "anti-fascist" propaganda by the Soviets, the population had not forgotten how well German soldiers really behaved. One of those who went on this trip with the Waffen-SS soldiers was a young German who had until recently been a captain in the now dissolved NVA (Nationale Volksarmee), the Army of disintegrated Communist Germany. He wrote the following letter:

"Last September I had the opportunity to travel with the ex-Waffen-SS soldiers to the Kaukasus mountains where they had fought in 1942. It was overwhelming. I must be honest, before I undertook this trip, I had my prejudices about the entire undertaking. I asked myself three questions: 1. If all that which I had been taught in school about the Waffen-SS is true, how dare 'they' even visit Russia again? 2. Even if they dare to go there, will 'they' admit to what unit they had belonged? 3. When 'they' admit who they are, how will the population react? Well, I can only say that 'they' went there and told everyone who they had been. The result? 'They' were almost 'killed'.....with melons, and greetings and friendliness. Everywhere they went, town officials were astounded. Finally, they even supplied us with an honorary police escort. At first the interpreters didn't even want to translate (correctly) the expressions of happiness of the people. They had to make an adjustment to the truth. It was amazing to see the high regard the] still had for the German soldiers even after such a long time. I myself asked especially the younger people what their parents or grandparents told them of their experiences with the Wehrmacht or the Waffen-SS; in unison they told me that not a bad word was said. I must admit that I was ashamed of myself for having had doubts about the honorable behavior of the German soldiers of World War II, I guess neither one of us is immune to propaganda."

A lasting result of the trip will be that the Russian population of the area visited will assist the former Waffen-SS soldiers in reestablishing a cemetery of their fallen comrades that was plowed over when the Red Army retook the territory in 1943. ❑

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 including postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003) to:

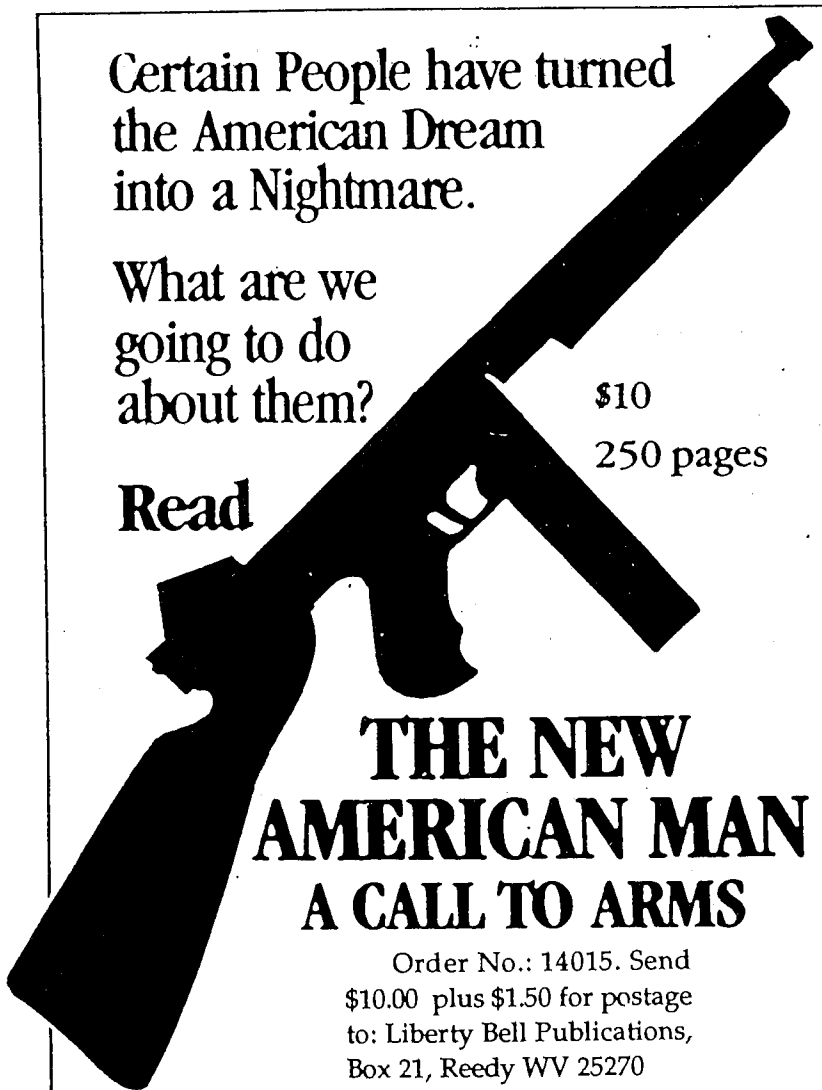
LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Certain People have turned the American Dream into a Nightmare.

What are we going to do about them?

Read



$10

250 pages

THE NEW AMERICAN MAN

A CALL TO ARMS

Order No.: 14015. Send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage to: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270

PLEASE REMEMBER:

Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular contributions are our lifeblood. Help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

Folkish Observations

Solution-oriented commentary for those who realize that to change the world, you must first change yourself!

FALLOW FOF-104
June 1993

For family, Folk, and the future!
NS Kindred
PO Box 256
NSJ, CA 95960

"The Victim of His Generals"

By Jost

It is very important for all National Socialists to understand the real reason that Germany lost the war. Most of us are quite aware that Germany was out-numbered, out-gunned, and out-produced. Ordinarily, this alone would suffice to bring about a quick defeat of virtually any nation. But National Socialist Germany was not defeated quickly nor easily. In fact, it was not the lack of manpower or resources which destroyed Germany. Just as in the first World War, Germany was defeated from within! On April 30, 1945, Adolf Hitler told his friend and personal pilot, SS General Hans Baur: "Baur, my gravestone must read, 'He was the victim of his Generals.'" Indeed, it was nothing more than a despicable band of traitors, largely among the Officer Corps, which were primarily responsible for the defeat and destruction of National Socialist Germany!

Much has been told about the conspiracy of Military officers who attempted to murder Adolf Hitler on July 20, 1944. But little has been said about how much this deplorable group of traitors sabotaged Germany's war efforts, and knowingly and willingly gave significant aid to the enemy. These disgusting traitors were directly responsible for the lives of tens of thousands of German soldiers, and the lives of hundreds of thousands of German civilians, men, women, and children!

The Normandy Invasion

The devastating results of Germany's military traitors are graphically presented in David Irving's biography of Field Marshal Rommel, The Trail of the Fox. Irving points out that the invasion of Normandy could not have possibly succeeded without the unbelievable amount of complicity by the traitors within the German officer corps. It was virtually a foregone conclusion that without the success of the Normandy invasion, Stalin would have happily agreed to make peace on the eastern front (such negotiations were in progress), thereby forcing the war-weary and politically shaky (Churchill was in a very precarious political position) western powers to do the same. The war would have been over and Germany would have remained a National Socialist Folk-community.

But the traitors did not want to see this happen. They hated Adolf Hitler, and that hatred shrouded and distorted their loyalty and any real concern for the welfare of their Folk. They succeeded in manipulating Field Marshal Rommel into ignoring Normandy and putting his major defenses at Calais. Even after the Normandy invasion had begun, they worked together to convince Rommel that General Patton would soon invade Calais, thereby stalling critically needed reinforcements at the Normandy beachhead. This was all knowingly done so that the enemy could get a good foothold in France. While deliberately doing everything in their power (which was considerable) to keep desperately-needed reinforcements out of Normandy, these disgusting traitors watched thousands of young German soldiers shot to pieces as they tried to hold back Eisenhower's crude, but ultimately effective, Russian-style attacks. (I am a combat veteran myself, and when thinking of that desperate battle, my emotions do not allow me to express in any words the feelings which I have for the plight of the common soldiers—on either side.)

The Shameful Cause

Why did these traitors hate Adolf Hitler? Bit by bit, the facts have filtered out through the shroud of misinformation, justifications, and bald-faced lies which always cloud the truth about these times. The sad, shameful truth is that they hated him only because he had not risen from the Officer Corps or the Aristocracy, but had come from the ranks of the common soldiery. Indeed, he was a heroic winner of the Iron Cross, but nevertheless, this "corporal" had bruised many an officer-ego in his efforts to lead Germany during those desperate times. It was not lack of manpower or materials, but simple-minded, petty-classism which was the primary cause of Germany's total defeat.

A Lesson for Today

As in National Socialist Germany, traitors in high places are a great cause of the desperate racial situation of today. But this, like the situation in general, is tolerated because selfishness, materialism, ego-pandering, cowardliness, greed, and indulgence rule our race today, and barring a miracle, there is little hope for survival. It is not the Jew, Negro, or Asian who is to blame; it is none other than ourselves! Realizing this, we are developing a prototype Folk-community, the primary purpose of which is to produce Aryan men and women who will not be affected by selfishness, egoism, and irresponsibility, and the heirs of whom will have the power to lead the remnant of our race not only to survival, but to ennoblement and ultimately to a golden age of prosperity and enlightenment.

But while we work toward this important goal, we should not forget those traitors of National Socialist Germany. Many of the traitors in the German Officer Corps were men who had proved themselves in actual combat, and who were awarded honors and medals for their service. Still, they had enough selfishness hidden within to bring about the disaster of 1945. In contrast, few of those in today's National Socialist movement (or for that matter any of the other White racial movements) have such credentials. In fact, we've encountered a dismally large number of them who either avoided military service, were rejected from military service for mental or physical reasons, or were thrown out of the service (for political reasons, of course!). The very unfortunate point here is that one has to use some real discrimination in dealing with people in the White-racial movement, including those with long-term service in political organizations. We learned this the hard way.

Our initial strategy for creating a Folk-community was to bring together some selected individuals and families who had demonstrated their commitment by spending considerable time on staff of a National Socialist political organization or by long-term support of such an organization. The result of this was disastrous. The aforementioned petty-classism of the German Officer Corps was absolutely nothing compared to the insecurities and hyper-sensitive egoism which hid secretly behind a phoney façade of National Socialist idealism! We are now working with families who have demonstrated their worth in more viable ways than service on the staff of defunct political organizations—families and individuals who understand that the first step to changing the future is to change themselves!

As long as we recognize the enemy, and we have the will and idealism necessary, we can prevail. Over and over again we have pointed out that our enemies are not Jews, Negroes, Masons, nor International Finance. Our sole enemy is the collective selfishness of our own race! This is a problem which only we ourselves can solve—and we can solve it! Folkish Observations is produced especially for this task. By introspection and analysis we can begin to know ourselves and overcome ourselves, ultimately bringing forth that healthy Aryan Folk envisioned by Adolf Hitler! ❑

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

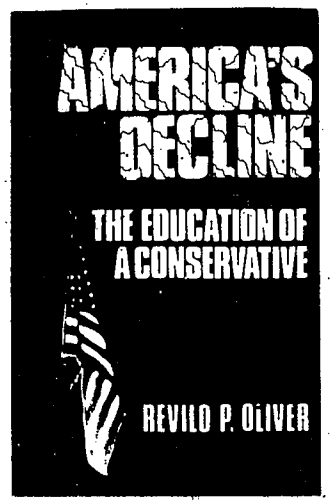
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

THE DEATH OF PATRIOTISM

By Maj. D.V. Clerkin
page 20

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

POSTSCRIPTS
by Professor R.P. Oliver:

The First Massacre
page 1.

The Cult of the Personality
by J.B. Campbell, page 23.

"Why the Germans Are Idiots"
page 32.

A Fumbled Opportunity
by Harold Covington, page 34.

Hamburger Rare
from FAEM, page 36.

Letters to the Editor
page 41.

VOL. 21 - NO. 1 SEPTEMBER 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Revilo P. Oliver

THE FIRST MASSACRE

As I write, early in June, the New World Order is still celebrating its first ostentatious massacre of Aryans in the United States, the first of the many that are planned by our masters.

The dim consciousness of the American boobs has been so immersed in sludge that, so far as I have heard, no one seems to wonder why the Treasury Department maintains its own little army of terrorists and professional killers, equipped with machine guns, tanks, high explosives, helicopters that spray the ground with fire from multiple machine guns, and other military equipment for a war against the American people.

As you have learned from the press, while Lord Bushy was still the Jews' stooge in Washington, one or two hundred of these valiant assassins were sent to Idaho to murder an Aryan and his family. They did not cover themselves with glory. They were so inept that they killed one or two of their own number, and succeeded only in killing one man and wounding another. They did, it is true, shoot a woman through the head while she was holding her baby in her arms, and that was fun, but scarcely a soul-satisfying achievement. And they had failed in their primary purpose: to teach the American serfs that for them there is no hiding place down here.[1] When it was all over, they naturally felt somewhat embarrassed and longed for an opportunity for more magnificent exploits.

1. As I have often remarked, many Americans who are aware of their danger are still living at the beginning of the Nineteenth Century, when muskets or rifles were the principal weapons, and one armed man was as good as another, except for differences in skill, courage, and discipline. Even as late as 1941 that was true in certain special situations;

This was provided by the cowboys of B'nai B'rith,[2] who put the finger on the ninety or so members of an obscure religious sect in Texas, and by implication said, "Go, get'em." So the army went joyously to work.

One can see what was so offensive about the sect that had its communal dwelling near Waco, Texas. They were peaceful folk, who formed a little colony of their own, lived quietly together, respected by their neighbors, without proselytism or agitation of any kind, much less the subversive attacks on civilization that are the speciality of so many Christian sects, especially after the Marxian Reformation. They were self-sufficient and were not parasites on the taxpayers. They minded their own business and did not harass anyone. They were mostly Aryans, and did not include nigger rapists, mestizo muggers, Chinese highbinders, squawking "intellectuals," screaming perverts, diseased punks, or anything nice. And, furthermore, they had a religious faith,—not such faith as is said to be common in the United States today, but one of uncommon intensity, which made them a cohesive little group, devoted to their holy man, and without an urge to make noise and denounce or harass other Americans.

The information on which I base this article comes principally from the May issue of The Balance[3] and the April and May issues of Criminal Politics,[4] with some details from March-April issue of the Jubilee,[5] and various items in The Spotlight, Christian News, and the few credible parts of reports in the daily press. The June issues of these magazines, which may contain additional information, have not yet reached me.

I cannot tell you what was the theology of the Davidians, since I find nothing about them in my notes or reference works I have at hand. What appeared in the jewspapers after the massacre was planned, was, of course, concocted to tranquillize the few boobs who might feel some qualms about the atrocious murder of some ninety men, women, and children: it undoubtedly consists of either outright lies or accounts so drastically censored and distorted as to amount to the same thing.

The religion of the Davidians, whatever it was, was certainly no more silly than the doctrines of other Christian sects and was less pernicious than many, since, as I have said, it did not move them to undermine what is left of our civilization. Although I have to rely on inference and conjecture for the theology, the lineage of the cult seems clear.

The Seventh Day Adventists are a sect formed in 1844 when old Jesus failed to keep an appointment to smash up the universe by the procedures described in the Apocalypse. Since most calendars show the week as beginning with Sunday, and the Jews' creation myth has old Yahweh take a rest after six days of toil, the members of the cult observe the Jewish Sabbath, which begins at sundown on Friday and lasts until sunset on Saturday. There are calendars for example, the highly efficient and mechanized German Army was never able to suppress resistance in the rugged and mountainous territory of Yugoslavia. Some Americans accordingly dreamed of forming colonies in the mountains of the Northwest, unaware that really up-to-date military equipment makes such locations as indefensible as any other. In any event, our rulers are now filling up the Northwest with enemies imported from China and Vietnam, who can be counted on to deal with Americans when the time comes.

2. The Yids boasted that they instigated the assault on the Davidians. See the accounts in the Spotlight, 17 May 1993, p. A-2, and especially Criminal Politics, May 1993, p. 13.

3. The publication of the Cause Foundation of Houston, Texas, a small group of lawyers who are trying to defend the supposed rights of Americans in the courts, on the chance of finding judges who still feel free to consider statute law; P.O. Box 1235, Black Mountains, North Carolina (28711); $20.00 per annum.

4. P.O. Box 37812, Cincinnati, Ohio (45222); $197.50 per annum.

5. A stridently Christian bimonthly publication, of which the Supreme Editor-in-Chief is the famous Yahweh; P.O. Box 310, Midpines, California (95345); $15.00 per annum (cash or money order; no cheques or bank drafts). If the publishers were able to bring out an issue after the massacre, it did not reach me. This journal's reporter succeeded in obtaining some interesting pictures before his camera was confiscated and he was imprisoned for "criminal trespass."

which begin the week with Monday, and if the Adventists had had one of them, the result would have been quite different. They believe in the literal truth of the Christians' story-book, and most of them are mildly ascetic, eschewing such wicked pleasures as are provided by alcohol, tobacco, tea, and coffee. (The more indulgent churches permit the two vices last named.) They claim to have about 700,000 members, who must be living in a state of some tension, since old Jesus may pop out of the clouds at any minute to raise Hell on earth.

As always happens when a doctrine is based on a written text plus lively imaginations, there were many rows within the sect since 1844, and many groups split off to maintain the tenets they fancied. Most of these withered away, but at least two are still represented by congregations of some size in the United States,

The precarious cohesion of the Seventh Day Adventists was shaken again in 1929, when one of the pillars of their church, a man named Victor Houteff, walked away to set himself up in the holy business. He seems at first to have presented himself as a reformer within the church, but within a few years became an independent operator of a Salvation emporium. After his death, his sect naturally broke up into several groups, one of which came in 1984 under the leadership of a man named Vernon Howell, who changed his name to David Koresh, prophet and head of the Branch Davidians. He must have been a young man, for the photographs of the man murdered in Waco published in Criminal Politics and the Christian News show a not unhandsome man in his forties. (The photographs I have seen in the jewspapers have all been crudely retouched to deform the victim's countenance and libel him by suggestion.)

An explanation of the name, which may be of some interest, will take us back to the sixth century B.C. and one of the great figures of human history and especially of the history of our race, Cyrus the Great, the founder of the Persian Empire, who died in 529. His name, Kῦρος in Greek, was Kuruś in Old Persian, and probably related to the Sanskrit Kuru, which, as you will remember, was the name of the eponymous ancestor of the Aryan tribe in northern India that was opposed to the Pāṇḍavas in the great war described in the Mahābhārata, and was eventually defeated in the epochal battle that marked the beginning of the age in which we now live, the Kali Yuga.[6]

Now the name of Cyrus became a very popular name given to male children, especially in the United States. I guess that the reason for its popularity was not so much the historical Cyrus's great achievement as the fact that he was made by Xenophon in his Cyropaedia the model of the manly virtues esteemed by Aryans.[7]

Thus the name of the great Persian was given to a boy born in Utica, New York, in 1839, Cyrus R. Teed. He was given some education and practiced medicine for a time, although he seems never to have obtained the degree of M.D. He was a Christian and had evidently learned some Greek and Hebrew, and when he had an impulse to become "the new messiah," he seems to have meditated on the transcendental significance of the name given him at birth, doubtless by divine guidance.

The founder of the Persian Empire was a great man, but he made two fatal mistakes. He fell into an ambush set by the Massargetae, a barbarian tribe east of the Caspian Sea, and he protected the Jews. He was an Aryan and accordingly felt an obligation to make a return for

6. This, the shortest of the four ages of the world, will last until the world comes to an end at 9 A.M. (Greenwich time) on the morning of 18 February in the year A.D. 428,900. The Hindu mind is above the petty reckonings of our Millenarians.

7. Young students generally begin to read Greek with Xenophon, whose Classical diction is simple and comparatively easy. The work first read is most commonly the Anabasis, but an edition of the Cyropaedia for class use was still in print thirty or so years ago.

services rendered, and he probably was compensating the Jews for having betrayed Nabonidus, the last king of Babylon, who had rendered them great services, and his capital city, which Cyrus was thus able to occupy without fighting and with its population and structures intact. (He had the Aryan wish to preserve property, not destroy it with Jewish ardor.) He accordingly authorized them to occupy Jerusalem and a part of Palestine. Cyrus may also have hoped to rid Babylon of the parasitic race, but if he did, he was disappointed, for only a contingent of wealthy Jews, followed by trains of goyim slaves, set out for the promised land, where Cyrus built a temple for them and their gods, while the majority of the race remained in Babylon to prey on the Babylonians and their conquerors.[8]

The Jews flattered Cyrus and, although he was a goy, recognized him as their Christ, a rank conferred on him by old Yahweh himself in one of his edicts.[9]

Now the name of Cyrus in Hebrew is KRŠ, which, according to the vocalization introduced by the Messoretes in the Ninth Century, is pronounced Koresh. Teed probably deduced from his personal name that he, "the new messiah," was a goy christ, and hence called himself Koresh. He founded one of the innumerable Christian communist

8. Babylon was throughout Antiquity the capital of the international race, although rivaled for a time by Alexandria, and should be thought of as the ancient analogue of New York City today. Some attribute to Cyrus the further motive of a wish to create a buffer state between his realm and Egypt. After the Persian conquest of Egypt, his successors encouraged and protected Jewish colonies in Egypt, notably at Elephantine, where were found the Aramaic papyri that are our primary data for fixing the time at which the Jews elaborated the religion of the "Old Testament."

9. Yahweh is quoted in Isaiah, 45.1, where Septuagint has Yahweh describe the Persian King as his χριστός μου Κῦρος, which the Vulgate correctly renders as christus meus Cyrus. Most English translators, including those of the King James version, fudge ("anointed"), to avoid making Cyrus a peer of their Jesus.

sects,[10] which he called the Ecclesia Koreshana or the Church Triumphant.[11] It is uncertain whether he or unsympathetic outsiders called his doctrine Koreshanity. He gained converts slowly, but established one community of True Believers in Chicago in 1885, and another in Estero, Florida,[12] in 1894, which was joined by the Chicago contingent in 1903. They were still in Estero around 1940, and may be there even today. Christ Teed's doctrine included remarkable revelations in history, geology, and astronomy, but I am not acquainted with the details. If you are curious, find a file of his periodical, The Flaming Sword, which was published for many years by the colony in Florida.

It is obvious whence Vernon Howell derived the inspiration to assume the name 'Koresh.' The 'David' comes, of course, from Jewish mythology, in which one of the most prominent figures bears the somewhat improbable name of David,[13] which evidently means 'darling,' and is more likely to have been an epithet or sobriquet than a personal name. His prototype was probably a Jewish bandit[14]—or possibly, like Robin Hood, a fusion of a

10. For examples, see Liberty Bell, January 1989, pp. 8-14, Christian communism, needless to say, long antedates Marx, and, in fact, goes back to the Essenes, who contributed much to the tales about the famous Jesus.

11. Not to be confused with the Church Triumphant founded in Illinois around 1880 by a certain Jacob Schweinfurth, who decided to become "the Christ of the Second Coming." He obtained converts and seems to have flourished until his death, c. 1914, but, so far as I know, established no colony, since his doctrine was not communistic.

12. Estero, which was then a very small town, is some fifteen miles south by east of Fort Myers and is now on the four-lane highway to Naples.

13. The spelling ('Dabid' etc.) and vocalization vary, but that is irrelevant here.

14. Possibly one of the Habiru, if that tribe of marauders, mentioned in the Tell-el-Amarna letters, is to be identified with the Jews.

number of such outlaws—about whom accreted the inconsistent tales told in the "Old Testament," with internal contradictions that are only magnified in the earlier version preserved in the Septuagint.[15]

While it is not impossible that the bandit did succeed in displacing the chieftain of his barbarous tribe, it is more likely that in folk-lore he was assimilated to another character who expunged the chieftain ("king") and took over. In the myth, however, David the bandit is also David, the King of the Jews, whose position was hereditary by divine decree, so that a legitimate King of the Jews must be his descendant. (That, of course, is why the famous Jesus is described as a scion of David, although, for Christians, this raises the insuperable problem of how a child can be engendered by two fathers.) Now, according to the ravings of Jeremiah (33.15), old Yahweh is going someday to restore the sovereignty of his race by appointing a king who, in the terminology of the King James version, will be a Branch of the House of David.

It is obvious that when Vernon Howell embarked on his religious career, he knew that a genuine christ (messiah) must be a descendant of David, and he accordingly assumed the name 'David' to signify that he was the Branch

15. One of the latest additions to the myth (as is obvious from the "Old Testament" itself; cf. Reg. [= Sam.] I, 21.19, which is patched up in the King James version) was the tale about David and a giant named Goliath, obviously derived from a tale according to which Goliath was a Philistine (Aryan) warrior who followed the Aryan custom of having issues decided by single hand-to-hand combat between champions (Paris and Menelaus, Hector and Ajax, and many later examples, including the Horatii and Curiatii). An armistice was supposed to prevail when the challenger appeared in the space between the two opposing armies. According to what was probably the first version of the tale, a Jew-boy (later called David) treacherously sneaks up on the Philistine champion and kills him from a distance with a missile from a slingshot. In what is probably a revised version, the incident is smoothed over by having David address Goliath before killing him. At any event, that was like killing with a revolver shot a man who had come to fight a duel with swords.

mentioned by Jeremiah. Hence, of course, the name of his sect, Branch Davidians.

Since Howell was not a Jew,[16] it is, in the absence of evidence, a logical inference that he also adopted some version of the odd doctrine of "British Israel,"[17] that the Anglo-Saxons and other Germanic peoples are the real Chosen People, descendants of the characters celebrated in the "Old Testament," and that the persons who now claim to be Jews are a race of imposters. Against this inference of mine must be set the evidence that he did not restrict membership in his cult to his Chosen People.[18]

Furthermore. the symbol of Jewish sovereignty is the "Star of David," two opposed and intersecting or interlaced triangles that form a six-pointed star, which is more commonly called "Solomon's Seal." and attributed to the mythical successor of David, a wealthy monarch who was

16. Although he may have had the "drop [or more] of Jewish blood," which, according to Dr. Nossig, whom I have so often quoted, suffices to pervert the minds of Aryans. Dr. Nossig's view is widely held by Jews, e.g., by Jabotinsky, quoted by Lenni Brenner in The Iron Wall (London, Zed Books, 1984), p. 81. For another statement of this Jewish belief in the dominating power of their genes, see Dr. Charles Weber's translation from Gœdsche's Biarritz in Liberty Bell, July 1993, p. 50.

17. Sometimes called "Identity" in this country. It was founded by another Anglo-Saxon descendant of David. See my 'Populism' and 'Élitism,' pp. 65-66, and Liberty Bell, October 1985, pp. 12-15.

18. The evidently well-informed Texan whose letter was published in Liberty Bell, June 1993, p. 48, affirms that the congregation was "multiracial." The June issue of Instauration affirms that the cult was "a potpourri of races, including Hispanics, Negroes, and Asians. Some cultists came from as far away as Australia and Britain. There was even one Israeli." I must remark, by the way, that the usually level-headed editor of that periodical fell into the trap set by the lie-machine, which compared the massacre to the mass-suicide of the niggers in Jonestown, a settlement in Guyana founded by a mulatto named Jones (on which see Ed Dieckmann, Jr., Beyond Jonestown, 'Sensitivity Training' and the Cult of Mind Control; Torrance [now Costa Mesa], California; Noontide Press, 1986): he believes that the terrorists' victims incinerated themselves!

probably modeled on some Phoenician king who lived in another place at another time.[19] This sacred symbol[20] therefore appears on the flag of "Israel," and "David Koresh," as the legitimate heir of the Judaean kings, logically adopted the symbol as his own and put it on the flag that flew above the habitation he and his followers had built for themselves near Waco.

All this naturally incensed the Master Race, whose ownership of the planet depends on a bargain (b'rith) they made with old Yahweh, who, incidentally, commanded them to show no mercy to the hapless inhabitants of countries they infiltrate, take over, and destroy.[21] Whether they had other grievances against the upstart goy, I do not know, but what I have mentioned is enough to account for the selection of the little cult near Waco for the first conspicuous exercise of the New World Order in America, at a time roughly coinciding with their triumph in forcing their American livestock to pay more than fifty million dollars to erect an ugly monument[22] to the greatest swindle in the history of mankind.

19. The archaeological record is sufficiently complete to make it certain that no such kingdom existed in the Jewish part of Palestine.

20. Since Solomon was a great magician, his Seal has great magical powers, and was considered of transcendent efficacy by Mediaeval warlocks and sorcerers, who often called it a pentacle. A man who stands in the area common to the two overlapping triangles is immune to supernatural powers and may safely deal with the elemental spirits and demons whom he summons up. If the secret name of Yahweh is written in that part of the symbol on a piece of paper, it will give the magician power to animate clay or wood. In one Jewish myth, a rabbi in Prague was thus able to create a golem, an artificial giant which slew many Aryans until it got out of control.

21. E.g., Deut., 7.16 ff.

22. The architecturally squalid monument evinces the Jews' instinctive hatred of beauty, so evident in the disgusting "art" of Picasso, Chagal, Epstein, et al. that they have foisted on stupid goyim. Any blithering "intellectual" will assure you that our concept of beauty is merely a mental "construct"—and he will be right, for the Aryan perception of beauty is unknown to other races and other mammals, to say nothing of birds and insects. If—perhaps I should say when—Aryans become ex-

It was obvious that from the first a massacre was intended. What pseudo-legal charge was made against the cult or its leader is unknown, since it was, in contravention of all the principles of jurisprudence, "sealed" and kept secret to prevent White slaves from knowing what it was. It is rumored that Howell/Koresh was suspected of having "illegal weapons," just as you can be "suspected" of that horrid offense when the time comes, even if you have in your possession no weapon more effective than a table knife. If the Constitution—even the substitute pieced together in 1865—were still in effect, there could be no "illegal weapons," but only weapons which might or might not be used illegally.

It is clear, however, that the cult, at the direction of its leader, had provided itself with simple weapons, chiefly rifles, for protection against marauders, though not, of course, against modern armies with the equipment that was used by the Jews' stooges against the people of Iraq. The reason for this sensible precaution is unknown. Howell/Koresh may have had superstitions about Armageddon etc., or he may have been shrewd enough to see that the coming collapse of the United States, when its bankruptcy has been declared, will inevitably precipitate an anarchy during which enemy races, many imported for that purpose, will start to massacre the Aryans who have not been prevented by miscegenation and abortion.

Had there been any legal or even illegal charge against him, Howell/Koresh could have been arrested at any time when he left the communal dwelling on business, and he is said to have offered to stand trial on any charge that might be brought against him. That, of course, would have spoiled the game.

When the army of terrorists had been brought up to besiege the rather frail dwelling of the Davidians, one of its tinct, our art, from painting and sculpture to architecture and music, will not appeal to other races and be preserved by them, although they may not share the Jews' itch to destroy it.

pimps was sent in to spy out the premises before the assault.[23] Then the army, under the command of a nigger[24] and doubtless including many of his species, who stayed out of harm's way, sent White troops to begin the killing. Our "intellectuals," do-gooders, and others who scream for "multi-culturalism" will doubtless rejoice that the poor oppressed niggers in the army were at least able to express themselves vicariously with machine guns, tanks, helicopters, and poison gas.

After the beginning of the siege, when more than one hundred professional killers, clad in black uniforms and jack boots, presumably in a travesty of the German SS, screamed like Apaches while they sprayed the frail building with fire from machine guns, they succeeded in wounding Howell/Koresh and murdering his father. Some of the thugs broke into the church, joyously tossing hand grenades at random, and they, with aid of a helicopter which sprayed the bedrooms of the establishment with the fire of heavy machine guns that penetrated the flimsy roof, succeeded in killing four or five Davidians and wounding some others, but the desperate cultists took up their rifles, killed three murderers and captured four others. The murderers, with their usual ineptitude, killed at least one of their own band. They were routed with ignominy, but they had the consolation of having wounded one man in a place where he could not be reached by fellow Davidians, so that he slowly bled to death. That must have cheered them up a little.

23. The creature's race is unstated, but there are White men so depraved that they will serve in such a function. Incidentally, one grievance against the man named Weaver whom the terrorists failed to murder in Idaho was his natural refusal to serve in such a function as a spy on the establishment of "Aryan Nations." That he should have been asked is merely typical of the Jewish mentality, to which all conceptions of personal honor are not only alien, but probably incomprehensible.

24. This highly significant fact was mentioned, so far as I know, only by the Texan cited in note 19 supra. The silence of other sources is conclusive proof of the narcoleptic trance imposed on the American mind.

When the members of the cult begged for an opportunity to tell their side of the story, it was obvious that all of them would have to be exterminated to prevent that, and it may have been decided at that time to incinerate them in their inflammable wooden building, although, for the sake of appearances, there was some parleying and delay. Mr. Lyons and numerous other attorneys appeared for the trapped Davidians, who were being held incommunicado by four M-1 tanks and hundreds of the Treasury Department's troops, but a trained judge denied all legal appeals and, with the scoff-law attitude of so large a part of the judiciary these days, prevented the attorneys from seeing the officially public record of documents on which the terrorist raid was supposedly based.

It seems that at this point the terrorists from the Treasury Department called in the more efficient killers of the Federal Bureau of Intimidation,[25] since it was the latter's agent-in-charge who threatened to hang lawyers

25. This organization, which is evidently destined to become the counterpart of the Soviet Secret Police, was originally a small and, I believe, innocuous part of the Department of Justice and early came under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover. It first attracted attention, I believe, for illegal terrorism in 1917, when it carried out a flagrantly lawless and despotic raid on the home of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Sr., then a Congressman from Minnesota seeking reëlection and apparently the only man in public life who dared to perceive the power and purposes of the Federal Reserve. According to a source that I do not entirely trust, it was J. Edgar Hoover in person who mauled the young son of the Congressman, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., who later became a famous aviator and patriot. In 1922, a raid on a nest of Communist vermin on the private estate of a wealthy man in Michigan was much applauded by Americans, although its doubtful legality depended on the presence of alien criminals (Jews, of course) who had slipped into the United States by various tricks. Under the direction of Hoover, the bureau, now officially the Federal Bureau of Investigation, gained in the 1930s considerable public approbation by a "war" against the criminals that had been created by the nation's insanity in enacting the farce called Prohibition, and it steadily increased its purportedly legal powers, especially after the abduction and murder of the aviator's infant son. (The Bureau seems to have been merely a spectator in the judicial murder of Bruno Hauptmann, an incident that deserves extended mention in who mentioned the Constitution of the United States. All reporters from the press were driven from the scene and allowed to approach no closer than three miles, obviously to prevent reporters with some honesty from seeing and describing (at least privately) what would be done.

The Davidians imprudently released the terrorists they had captured and allowed the thugs to collect their own dead and wounded, in expectation that Howell/Koresh and his followers would be accorded a trial, even one before an obviously hostile judge. After some waiting, to permit the jewspapers to dish out some of their canned slime, the massacre began as planned.

Huge tanks, armored cars containing hundreds of heroic murderers, armored battle helicopters, and a horde of machine gunners and sharpshooters went into action at five o'clock in the morning. The tanks for six hours battered holes in the fragile frame structure that the Davidians had built as their church and communal home. Through nozzles they sprayed into the house, under pressure, in the form of volatile powder, a deadly gas, which they called "tear gas." If they had used Lewisite, they would doubtless have called it "laughing gas."[26] these pages.) The comparatively few agents of the F.B.I. with whom I was acquainted impressed me as honest and courageous men, and, in 1961, when "Bobby Sox" Kennedy was appointed Attorney General by his brother and began to recruit thugs for the F.B.I. in preparation for illegal intimidation to foist niggers' "Rights" on Americans, those agents winced when "Bobby's Boys" were mentioned—and computed the time to the earliest date on which they could retire. Why Hoover, who maintained himself in power by accumulating dossiers on the criminal activities of leading members of the Federal Government, permitted Kennedy's sabotage of his organization and ruin of the reputation it had patiently built up over the years, is uncertain, and all suggested explanations are mere conjecture. The files disappeared after his sudden death.

26. I am told that the corpses of men killed with Lewisite usually show on the mouth a rictus like that which often accompanies death by strychnine.

The gas, usually called 'CS' but chemically known as O-chlorobenzalmalononitrile, which, by the way, defeats all known types of gas mask, is so horrible in its effect on human beings that it has been "outlawed" and its use in real war forbidden. Even Lord Bushy did not venture to use it in his attack on the Iraqis. But, of course, nothing can be too horrible to be used on Americans.

The gas, according to its manufacturer, kills in six hours, but only after subjecting the victims to all of the tortures of Hell. It freezes shut the paralysed eyelids of the victims, corrodes their skin as with fire, slowly smothers them as their respiratory organs gradually fail, and finally provokes violent vomiting that continues even after there is nothing left to vomit. The agents of the Treasury and F.B.I, must have gloated as they saw the agonies of their victims, especially of the women and children; the open rejoicing of some of the terrorists was observed by some reporters, probably through binoculars. After this deadly gas-forming powder had been pumped under pressure for hours into the Davidians' home, the heavy armored tanks smashed the tanks of propane used for cooking and lighting, igniting them, and the gas carried the roaring flames throughout the dwelling. Overturned kerosine lanterns and the hay the Davidians had piled up in front of their shattered windows perhaps added a little smoke to the conflagration.

Under the constant battering of the wooden structure, the back of the church had collapsed, thus cutting off any escape from the rear, although many squads of expert snipers, concealed in the underbrush, had been waiting to kill anyone who might try to escape—even after the victims had been so blinded and paralysed by the gas that they could not have made such an effort! Once they got the fire started, and made certain that no fire-fighting apparatus could interfere with their jolly work, the murderers watched happily as the big wooden house burned fiercely for forty-five minutes, leaving only piles of smoking ashes. The eighty-nine men, women, and children of the Davidian cult were quickly incinerated and, if they had lived that long, thus finally put out of their torment. Many corpses were so completely consumed that they could not be identified and even the sex was in some cases uncertain. It took a team of anthropologists two weeks to reconstruct enough of Howell/Koresh to identify him. Although, despite all precautions, one or two Davidians escaped, the creatures in the White House could rejoice at their triumphant demonstration of the New World Order in action.

Of course, just to tranquillize any boobs who might think the exploit less than heroic, the murderers produced an "independent expert," who immediately "proved" that the Davidians had incinerated themselves. Unfortunately for the unspeakable criminals, the "independent expert" and his wife were soon identified as employees of the terrorist arm of the Treasury Department.

Mr. Lyons and associated lawyers are trying to obtain some redress in the courts, but, whatever the chances of success in lower courts, one wonders whether the Revolutionary Tribunal in Washington will not begin to rule formally that the Constitution was canceled by the "United Nations," which acquired power over the American people with the help of that ham actor and traitor, Ronnie Reagan. (Remember him? "Conservative" boobs doted on him because he was so superstitious.) The "United Nations," needless to say, is just a comic robot manipulated by the Jews, although it has been permitted, for the sake of appearances, to vocalize a few empty "resolutions" against the Holy Land, at which, needless to say, the Master Race heartily laughs.

It remained for the alert editor of Criminal Politics to perceive and point an instructive contrast. On one page of his May issue he printed, side by side, a photograph of Howell/Koresh, a self-appointed christ, who had been murdered by the ruthless terrorists of the New World Order, and a photograph of Manachem Schneerson, a Sheeny whose devotees claim he is his race's long awaited christ. The holy man himself was too august to appear before mere mortals, but he sent eight rabbis, his apostles, to the White House to give Slick Willie a dollar bill. The rabbis of the Lubavitcher cult of Jews[27] were received with obeisance and the chairman and all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, and several other ranking officials of the scabrous government in Washington were summoned to kowtow before the disciples of the Yiddish Christ in a meeting that the jewspapers kept secret from the Yids' American subjects. The birthday of Christ Schneerson was again proclaimed "National Education Day," as Ronnie and Bushy had done in their day, and the Congress again proclaimed a section of the Talmud the "Basis of American [!] Morality." The contrast between the two christs should convey a message to Americans whose brains can still function.

27. The Lubavitchers, as they are commonly called, are a small sect of Jews, of whom about thirty thousand, identified by their greasy black clothes and stench, cluster around their hereditary chief in Brooklyn. They are denounced as heretics by both orthodox and "reformed" rabbis, and, of course, regarded with contempt by the atheists who rule Zion and the part of Palestine they have taken from the Palestinians, but for almost two thousand years their race's cohesion has transcended doctrinal differences, and Jews, unlike Christians, feel no urge to annihilate their heretics.

27. The sect of Ḥasidim ("the pious ones") arose in Poland in the first half of the Eighteenth Century. In the opinion of the eminent Jewish scholar, C. D. Ginsberg, it was the result of "nervous degeneration" induced by the pernicious effects of the Kabbalah on "ill-balanced minds." It was begun by a Rabbi Israel ben Eliezer (c. 1690-1760), popularly called "Besaht" and "Baal Shem-Tob," famed for his many miracles and prophecies, and for the doctrine, comparable to Luther's, that men are saved only by Faith. The variety called Ḥabad (a nonce word formed of the initial syllables of three synonymous words denoting wisdom) was founded by Rabbi Schneur Zalman, (c. 1730-c. 1812), who seems to have had been called Lyuba, since 'Lyubavich' designates his son, and it was ordained that his successors must be descended from him, i.e., members of the family that took the name Schneersohn when Jews were legally compelled to have family names. This sect, which oddly blends the Tal-

One wonders what site will be selected, probably by B'nai B'rith, for the next demonstration of Yiddish ideals. According to The Spotlight, Hillary Rodham's male mascot, (who has admitted that he personally approved the massacre in Waco) when he presided at the inauguration of the disgusting momument to the Holohoax, denounced as "depraved and insensate" persons suspected of not acquiescing in the enslavement and eventual liquidation of Aryans, and specifically cited "the skinheads and Liberty Lobby here at home, the Afrikaners Resistance Movement in South Africa," et al. He did not explicitly call for the massacre of the "depraved and insensate" creatures who are guilty of insubordination to God's Race, but obviously implied that they are an obstacle to Yiddish-style progress and will have to be removed.

Particularly since Mr. Lyons and his associates are appealing to the courts, it will doubtless be deemed expedient to keep the armies of terrorists maintained by the Treasury and the F.B.I. inactive for several months or even a year or so until the few Americans who have taken any notice of the slaughter in Waco will have forgotten everything except the official lies. What is certain is that the war against the American people will be continued on all fronts. Eventually, the incident in Waco will be remembered as only the first of a long series of implementations of the New World Order.

mud with the Kabbalah to regain the 'purity' of 'primitive' Judaism, is vehemently opposed to all Aryan culture (including soap and water), and is said to have included about half of the Jews in Poland and adjacent regions. In addition to the closely packed colony of about 30,000 that lives and stinks in Brooklyn, the sect claims to have 100,000 members elsewhere, chiefly in the United States, because this unfortunate country harbors more Jews than any other. If their Messiah, Schneerson, is going to change the world, he had better get busy: he is reported to have had an apoplectic stroke and to arouse only occasionally from a senile coma. — A correspondent says that he has reason (unstated) to believe that this sect is responsible for the annual disappearance of a number of children of goyim.

It is likely that the next item on the program is a series of well-planned crimes that can be used by the boob-tubes to convince half-wits that crimes are caused by weapons of self-defence. Eventually, of course, either before or after some more exemplary massacres, the country will be divided into small, sealed-off areas, and the terrorists will conduct a search of each Aryan's home to confiscate weapons larger than penknives. They will doubtless be in a festive mood and, protected by their M-1 tanks, will throw hand-grenades through the windows of some houses so that they may trample on the bleeding victims while conducting their peace-keeping search.

Well, the Americans decreed their own doom. This is not the place to trace their idiocy to its origins; it will suffice to notice that as late as the 1930s, when the Americans had partly recovered from their outbreak of homicidal righteousness in 1917 and still had a country of their own, they could have saved themselves and their posterity.

They had been warned, cogently and emphatically, by intelligent compatriots, notably Correa Moylan Walsh, Madison Grant, and Lothrop Stoddard, and for a time it seemed that our people might have a future. But, as they had done for more than a century, the Americans, their little minds stuffed with Christian superstitions and "humanitarian" fantasies, obstinately refused to look at the real world and wantonly violated the inexorable laws of nature. So they have made themselves, like the aepyornis, the moa, and the dodo, biologically obsolete and have doomed themselves to extinction. The only hope that I can offer them is the observation that Machiavelli made near the close of his life, that desperation sometimes finds solutions that rational forethought was unable to discover.[28]

28. "La disperazione truova de' rimedii che la electione non ha saputo trovare."

The Death of Patriotism

By
Maj. Donald V. Clerkin

Many of you have seen the old television documentary entitled, "Victory At Sea." When I first saw it in 1953, I knew that I wanted to be a U.S. Marine. A boy who had grown up during World War II, I watched the Uncommon Valor demonstrated by naval and marine aviators, the bloody heroism of the marines on such islands as Tarawa, American submariners going after Japanese shipping—the entire panorama of a Great White Nation at war! I couldn't wait to get to Marine Corps Recruit Depot at San Diego in 1957.

I am not a bit sorry or remorseful that I had such feelings when I was young. Loving one's country was entirely natural—God's shiver up your spine when you took up your rifle and stepped off to a Sousa march on parade. What could have turned the love I had for this country into revulsion? I sit and wonder where it went all wrong for me. Something as clean and as wholesome as I perceived America to be then, why, to become a monstrous aberration, a pustule, is nearly incomprehensible.

I do know this much. While nearly a half million Americans died in World War II, few remember their sacrifice. But ask Boobus americanus how many Jews were gassed, sucked up into German vacuum cleaners, turned into raisins, or reduced to machine oil, and they will shout with certainty—"SIX MILLION!" I am not arguing the Holohoax claims, no longer do I really care what happened to the sacred Yids. One does have a right to expect his fellow white men to remember that in the same war the Jews claim was waged to eradicate them, 405,399 Americans, most of them white, died.

They died because FDR—Rosenfeld—instigated and provoked a Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and elsewhere in the Pacific. They died because this same loathsome creature schemed to carry out the Jewish plan to crush Germany, something the Yids had vowed to do since 1933. Americans died in World War II because 'Uncle Joe' Stalin was FDR's pal and accomplice. They died for no good reason to the white race! I now know that. Were it 1935, I'd be on a boat for Germany. Eighteen Sixty-One, and I would be on a train heading South.

In 1993 all I can do is forswear loyalty to that vicious regime in Washington. Never again will I salute the trappings of that vile camarilla. Being an Aryan and part of the movement to liberate the Aryan race, I have a higher duty than I had when I took my oath as a young Marine. The D.C. criminals have wiped their arses with the Constitution, and still they act as though it meant anything to them. They demand that we fear them. Not likely. I remember the American Republic of Antebellum days, just as I think of the Roman Republic that flourished before the Caesars. Both Republics were clean and manly, something to give your life to preserve and protect. Not anymore. What passes for government now is filth and stealth, armed sneaks and rotten writs. At least Caligula was direct enough to threaten the Roman Senate with expulsion if they dared to utter a peep about a return to the Republic.

Will we Aryans ever again pay allegiance to a country? Only if we are able to see beyond the present morass to the Aryan Republic. Only if the white race mobilizes to defend its prerogatives. I have learned from the study of history that no one goes back to greater times; they are history. The future cannot be fashioned from the ideas of other times, misguided loyalties and notions. Something new must enlist our labors, our loyalties, though this new idea must be predicated on our racial experience and traditions. The power of the Aryan mind is that it can fathom the future. Blankos continue to pine away for what was while wondering why their lives seem to have so little value. They cannot envision a new State, the product of Aryan political genius. Blankos cannot conceive of living without Jews telling them what to think, blacks living off the 'democracy' that doesn't include them. And the blankos wonder why ZOG pisses on them!

Young Aryans entering this movement first must know their own history. They cannot lead this movement into the next century without knowledge of who their forebears were and what they accomplished. ZOG does not teach our children their history, for if they were taught properly white awareness would be evident. Instead, ZOG teaches lies meant to instill a sense of guilt in whites. I always advise young parents to look for history texts published before 1945, the older the better; but 1945 is the margin between historical fact and the Aryan West and Judeo-Communist fiction. School yourselves in the record of Egypt, Mesopotamia, Greece, Rome, the Gothic era and the rise of Feudalism; the Renaissance and the Ages of Discovery and Enlightenment. Instead of this vital education, the ZOG gives your children Bart Simpson, Michael Jackson and Roseann. Aryan children are being dumbed at an alarming rate, negrified, judaized; ruined for any role the future has for the Aryan race.

America today is an alien force which threatens the future of the Aryan race. The America I grew up in was still a white-controlled entity. My education in the public school was solid in history, with stories of ancient peoples and our direct ancestors that were bigger than life itself. Little did I know that the yoke of serfdom was being fashioned for those whites who served proudly in the armed services, voted regularly and paid taxes. A government that would do this to its best citizens deserves contempt. Loyalty and patriotism are dead for those of us who have seen through the lies and treachery of Washington and its Judeo-Freemasonic basis. Something else has risen in its place for the aware Aryans. I am an Aryan movement man. It doesn't pay anything, but a feeling of honor and duty comes with the job.

When you enlist in the Aryan movement don't expect brass bands and flowers strewn in your path. Expect ZOG to revile you. Expect some family members to think you are nuts. But know that you are doing what is required to give your race a fighting chance. The longer I live the less I see patriotism for a ruined America as a requirement. Those who claim to be pro-white and who continue to wave ZOG's flag are just fooling themselves. It is my opinion that such fools will cop a plea whenever ZOG decides to come down on them. Real Aryan movement people expect nothing but hostility from ZOG, and we will give ZOG no quarter either.

From The Talon, July 1993, published by
The Euro-American Alliance, Box 21776, Milwaukee WI 53221

PLEASE REMEMBER:

Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular monetary contributions are our lifeblood. Help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

The Cult of the Personality

by
J.B. Campbell

We must make a realistic appraisal of our situation and then devise a realistic program for victory, a program which has factored into it the real strengths and weaknesses of the American men who will be conducting our struggle and who will be calling it "our struggle" in the future.

An appraisal is offered elsewhere in this book [The New American Man; $10.00 + $1.50 postage,available from Liberty Bell Publications]; suffice it to ask now that whether Americans are confronted with martial law in the future or the police/judicial dictatorship of today, is an organization possible to develop which can save America? If so, then how would the leadership of it be decided? How would it be protected from infiltration by police or military intelligence? How can an organization be prevented from consolidating into a cult of personality?

These are not trick or self-serving questions. We shouldn't be against organization per se, nor are we against real fighting leaders. We have seen the results of bad leadership and we seek to avoid these deadly hazards in the future. Some of us have analyzed Col. Amos' proposal for leaderless resistance and have called for an uprising of the militia, composed of independent, self-authorized American men who share the ideal of White nationalism. Individuals cannot be easily detected or "infiltrated." Independent men of action cannot be misled by bad leaders but this does not mean that if and when a competent and proven fighter displays true leadership qualities he should be automatically rejected. We obviously need many great and trustworthy leaders of our struggle against the New World Order but it is never wise to invest one's life with any man of unproven ability. There is no one who can now admit publicly to "proven ability" in the new, violent phase of our struggle against the NWO, for obvious reasons. As the harsh realities of martial law become routine, our men who have had successes against the NWO will begin to attract fighters to them. All this is right and proper. The following remarks are appropriate primarily to the opening, "phony war" phase of our struggle, but should probably be kept in the back of one's mind permanently.

A brief analysis of past leadership would be helpful, starting with the extreme examples. Experience and history have shown us the dangers of what became known under Josef Stalin as "the cult of the personality," and this phenomenon should be completely understood by the freedom fighter for obvious reasons.

Stalin and Mao Tse-tung were the worst examples of the ultimate horror of the personality cult. They showed what happens when degenerates rise to the tops of political organizations; each was responsible for the murders of at least 100 millions of his own people. Lesser tyrants from Africa to Jonestown have produced smaller amounts of death and suffering but only because they had fewer people under their power. A degenerate politician with total power will kill as many of his own people as possible, regardless of his nationality. He will find a way, whether it be by sending them against foreigners or by civil war, or by mass arrests and secret extermination.

In "civilized" England, David Lloyd George and Winston Churchill are perfect examples; how many hundreds of thousands of young Englishmen, Canadians and Anzacs did those two degenerates cause to perish when they sent them to kill Germans, Turks and others? In "civilized" America, Abraham Lincoln was personally responsible for the deaths of over six hundred thousand Americans—and for what? To preserve the Union! Is a Union which requires the deaths of six hundred thousand men to preserve it worthy of preservation? Is "preservation" of a Union so important? It was only because a degenerate politician with total power said it was and because no one around him had the guts and the decency to prevent the carnage by killing Lincoln and every other degenerate around him.

Woodrow Wilson's moral degeneracy (his marital infidelity) led to the violent deaths of one hundred thousand more young American men, sent to die overseas. He submitted to blackmail by Rothschild agents (Baruch, Frankfurter and Brandeis). Rather than resign, he presided over another Destruction and Reconstruction which cost over ten million souls, to the great profit of the international bankers who controlled him.

Now, it may be asked, can American presidents and British prime ministers fairly be labeled personality cultmasters? Why not? Don't they always attain their powerful positions due to their personalities? Haven't their arrivals at the pinacles of Anglo-American power followed lifetimes of marketing their democratic personalities to voters?

The greatest example of the personality cult in world history was the foul, degenerate, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. So tremendous was the power of his personality that he was elected president four times—despite his Wall Street background and partnership with Herbert Hoover; despite his closure of the banks; despite his utter refusal to stop the depression; despite his blatant mongering of another world war the prospect of which most Americans abhorred, and despite incredible ugliness of his wife! His cult of personality was protected by the press and then especially by ruthless suppression of his patriotic enemies once his war with Germany broke out (with Japan). Two hundred thirty thousand Americans and around 50 millions of other people were killed as a result of his war. He was directly responsible for the above cited death figures of Stalin and Mao, since they were his boys, as were Tito, Rakosi, Ho Chi Minh and the rest of his NWO satraps installed by his OSS.

These above listed degenerates are the most spectacular masters of the personality cult in modern history—and modern history is the worst of all history. They were all careful, except Lincoln, to surround themselves with toadies and sychophants. All but Lincoln were allowed to die in bed as rewards for their violent lives, after their dirty deeds were done. These were extreme cases in terms of total power but not so in comparison with thousands of lesser tyrants, right here at home, who would do exactly the same things if given the power.

Was Adolf Hitler's National Socialist Party a cult of personality? In many ways it obviously was. The party, the SA, the SS and the entire Third Reich were all manifestations of Hitler's personality and his genius for organization. The German people and many other peoples followed the Leader in his struggle against Jewish Capitalism and Bolshevism. A million men from all countries of Europe and elsewhere volunteered for the Waffen SS. Adolf Hitler, however, cannot be discussed out of his context, which is the context of the Versailles Treaty following WWI. It was not a treaty but rather a dictate and a license for the Allies to loot and dismember Germany and her territories, in perpetuity. It was nothing less than a miracle that an unknown Austrian soldier who'd survived four years in the trenches (including blindness from Allied gassing) could create a political party which would save Germany from the program of genocide devised by the New York/London axis, 1) to place millions of Germans under the jealous and sadistic administration of foreigners; 2) to unleash Jewish Bolsheviks who killed thousands in their attempt to seize power; 3) to plunder what remained of German production and savings through "reparations."

The following anecdote gives one an idea of the depths of Allied guilt over the Versailles diktat: in 1933, soon after Hitler became chancellor, the British foreign minister asked him to resume reparations payments to the bankers. Hitler replied that there would be no more payments. The minister huffed and bluffed, "I shall inform my government!" But nothing was ever said about it again, so guilty were the consciences of the Allies, for they'd already stolen everything there was to steal from Germany.

Adolf Hitler was the product of a desperate people but history will eventually reveal him to have been correct and justified in practically every one of his actions, especially now that the myth of the Jewish extermination, or "Holocaust," has been exposed. The question which must be asked here is, was Hitler the master of a personality cult? The answer is that Hitler's personality captured the imagination of not only an entire people but of the entire world. It still does. An obscure, penniless veteran pulled a shattered, destitute and demoralized country the size of Texas from the compound hopelessness of the Versailles Dictate and the world depression and within a few years, created true prosperity for the German people—without "help" from the finance capitalists. If anyone had needed peace to continue this economic miracle and compete favorably with England and America, it was Adolf Hitler. But economic miracles were not desired by the finance capitalists who controlled the Allied leaders and who desired Soviet-style destitution imposed on all industrial countries. Thus did the warmongering Churchill admit to an American officer in 1936: "Germany is getting too strong again. We shall have to smash her!" And David Irving has revealed that by 1936, Churchill was taking his orders and pay from the American Jewish Committee through Felix Frankfurter (Churchill's War).

War was plotted against Germany by the Jewish Allies (America, England, USSR and France) and terrible atrocities committed against Germans in Poland because of encouragement by Roosevelt and Churchill to do this. And so, the former trench soldier led his grateful countrymen on a crusade against the combined military forces of the entire world—and nearly won. He would have won but for the treachery of Roosevelt and America's betrayal of European civilization in her siding with the Bolsheviks.

In this writer's opinion, the phenomenon of Adolf Hitler's powerful personality cannot be categorized as a cult of personality for self-aggrandizement. It, the phenomenon, happened because of a Jewish program for the destruction of the German people. Hitler knew and the people realized they were marked for destruction or at least subjugation in any event, based upon their dreadful experiences under the Dictate. One man had the courage and the eloquence to say "No" to the New World Order. Under these circumstances, the man in front knowingly signs his own death warrant but does so in the hope his efforts will not be in vain. Hitler led the fighting from the front and accepted full responsibility for everything, right to the end. These are not the characteristics of a cultmaster, despite the great adulation which attended him. If one takes the trouble to read his speeches, it becomes obvious that, after years of cruel humiliation,the Germans and Austrians were ecstatic at hearing the simple truth being spoken so dynamically. Put ourselves in their situation!

The truth, under any circumstances, is a powerful weapon. And the truth was that there was only but one Hitler who would defy the deadly and insatiable Jewish program for world domination. He was the indispensable man—probably unique in world history. He took on the two-headed Jewish monster of Western Capitalism and Eastern Bolshevism and almost overwhelmed it.

Adolf Hitler remains a special man. His tremendous political support cannot be categorized as simply a cult of personality. An extraordinary leader, he had nearly total support of his countrymen in their epic struggle against the forces of Judaism. The memory of his deeds remains as a counterforce to Jewish aggression. The tragedy of Hitler (and the Ku Klux Klan and the Palestine Liberation Organization) is that the forces of Judaism, namely, Zionism, Bolshevism and Finance Capitalism, cannot be defeated in Europe or Asia or the Middle East or the South because Judaism has its powerbases in New York and London, Wall Street and "the City." Patriotic Americans and Englishmen must destroy these fountainheads of evil because they are on our ground. We owe this to our fallen in Judah's wars, to our children and to the millions of victims of the New World Order since 1861. We also owe it to the German people who were so fiendishly exterminated and defamed by our Jewish-dominated government forces from 1914 to 1950; the defamation continues to this day.

* * *

The following challenge was put to me by a man who resented my caution regarding "leaders: "

Do you know of any successful corporation, organization, movement or religion that wasn't founded by an outstanding leader, and they perpetuated by a succession of outstanding leaders?

While I, personally, am against the corporation for several reasons, I must admit that a successful business requires good leadership. Some people say that we must run the movement as a successful business but I disagree. A business must make money at all costs. This is the great advantage which the Jews have over us: their movement entails the making of money! Our movement requires the spending of money for any form of counterpropaganda. (The militia is already armed and its members need no subsidies for their actions against the New World Order.)

There is nothing wrong with a secret organization made up of intelligent, dedicated and disciplined men. It's just that in these days of high technology and low morality it is rather difficult to keep an organization secret in this country. This is why the militia is the most realistic action group (not for propaganda). It simply offers the greatest security for its members in the beginning phase, the phase in which any violent organization would be infiltrated, monitored and quickly neutralized by the police or military. These remarks are based on observations of the great political organizations in history, my favorite of which is the Republican National Alliance (ARENA), in El Salvador.

The reader may not know that the people in El Salvador, excluding the Indians, are Europeans. Industrious Whites, the antitheses of Mexicans, Hondurans and the rest. No siestas. These people work hard and long into the night. The truly Great Man of our time lives down there. Roberto D'Aubuisson was a patriotic army major who led a rebellion against the junta. He was arrested, nearly executed and sent into exile in Guatemala. But he came back and led the "death squads" against the Communist death squads and saved the country. It was a tremendous honor for this writer to meet that man and his associates and talk with them about the realities of seizing one's country back from the antihumans, who had the total support of the U.S. government.

D'Aubuisson is not president of El Salvador today because the CIA informed him that he would be murdered if he didn't allow someone else to lead, so intense is the Jewish hatred of him. So far, the rich, cultured and good natured coffee planter, Alfredo Cristiani, is handling matters well despite the daily sabotage by the U.S. State Department and the Army.

There can be no objection to leaders if they are fighters who lead from the front, although these are quite rare. We must try to duplicate D'Aubuisson's success with a rising of the militia in this country as he is the only man in our time who, by his great courage and power of his personality, led the destruction of a powerful communist terror organization, the FMLN. D'Aubuisson, I must add, kept his humility and has allowed no cult of personality to build around him. This is the sort of leader who is deserving of trust, based on his guts and good judgment, but who, still, must be watched carefully. It may be a coincidence, but I believe that one of the keys to his success was his infectious sense of humor. He is the funniest guy I ever met. If the reds or CIA (same thing) ever got him, he'd be tortured to death. He faced death every day for years but he never takes himself seriously. Everyone else does!

What movement in this country (our side) was not ruined by "leadership?" The original Ku Klux Klan was dismantled by its founder. America First was a good movement but it, too, was dismantled by its leadership. The various Ku Klux Klan namesakes of the original have high percentages of federal agents in their memberships and even in their leaderships. Joe McCarthy had tremendous support but no actual movement, unfortunately for him, and for Jim Forrestal before him. The fact is that a movement must have guns behind it—guns in the hands of men who will kill any and all betrayers of that movement.

Robert Welch tried to play it safe with his John Birch Society, if in fact he was on the level. Eustace Mullins writes that Welch was "on the square," a 32° Mason (Murder By Injection). If so, this would explain his refusal to authorize the membership to attack the enemy within. Mason or not, Welch ran a true cult of personality based upon his undeniable ability to write about communists in the Establishment. But he kept around him weaklings and yes-men and always ejected anyone who might make his movement effective, such as by trying to link communism with Judaism. He had to raise over four million dollars each year to keep his movement afloat. Think of that! And for nothing. Maybe it was a Patriots' Tax; it kept all that money from going to a good use.

Ayn Rand (Alice Rosenbaum) was another classic case of a personality cultist with a case of bigshotitis, as was her protege, Nathaniel Branden (Nathan Blumenthal). Objectivists who attended their meetings in New York have said they were astounded by the totalitarian nature of the movement, considering it was obstensibly devoted to freedom of ideas. A confused devotee would be ordered out of the movement for "asking a stupid question." The arrogant Jewess calmly announced to her husband and to Branden's wife that since Rand and Branden were the two smartest people in the world, they would henceforth commit adultery with each other, any time they felt like it. And off they went, into the bedroom!! She even set him up with his own cult, the Nathaniel Branden Institute, but closed it abruptly when she found that her weak protege had his own protege! Ayn Rand created a whole school of yuppie materialists and preached hard against nationalism and claimed that racism was the lowest form of collectivism. Objectivism was thoroughly Jewish. (Ayn Rand's disciple and co-writer of Capitalism: The Unknown Ideal, Alan Greenspan, found no contradiction in switching from John Galt to Gerald Ford, or in running the financial swindle known as the Federal Reserve System.)

This writer has no comment, for now, on the question of religion and leadership other than his opinion that Jewish Christianity has been directly responsible for the catastrophe which confronts us.

A cult of personality must be avoided, be it on a national or local level, for two reasons: first, the sort of man who would encourage a political or religious devotion to himself simply cannot be trusted. Regardless of how well-intentioned he may be at the start, the charismatic leader will eventually depend more and more on his charisma and less on the (perhaps) sound thinking or action which originally attracted his followers to him. He becomes resentful of what he begins to see as "competition" and refuses to train successors, let alone encourage other men to improve on his plans or leadership. In extreme cases, cults of personality may be formally established, complete with inner and outer circles of acolytes, all of whom are chosen for their dependable assurances of the leader's infallibility.

Weak men have always been attracted to charismatic leaders, who cannot help but encourage ever more weakness in their followers. Opposed to this is the militia, which is so configured that only strong men are wont to fulfill their duties to it, acting only upon their own consciences, without regard to any personality, confident that the militia cannot be personalized, or in any way regulated or misled. History has proven this. The militia is the only paramilitary body which is by its nature immune to the cult of the personality. That is its beauty.

Second and more importantly, the militia, in all of its state and local components, cannot indulge false leaders for security reasons. The planners of the New World Order welcome the charismatic leader; they know that by his ego and his craving for the limelight he can be controlled, perhaps remotely. He will inevitably have a staff which can be infiltrated or purchased. If the planners so choose, they may themselves call attention to the charismatic leader in such a way which will provide him with even more followers and then, at a certain time, may destroy his reputation with some actual or invented skeletons in his closet. They may kill him. The followers will be stunned and demoralized. The "resistance movement" will cease to resist. The NWO boys are past masters at this form of destabilization, in our country and all over the world.

To crush the New World Order requires new thinking. Our national problem is the dishonesty of the major news media. Our counterpropaganda cannot match the power of the media, which are totally in Jewish hands. Occasionally, however, a truthful man will emerge and the things he says make him extremely attractive. His long-suffering listeners or readers invest their hopes and emotions in him and thereby burden him with tremendous pressures to perform regularly and "on time." Even if he only intended to make a limited number of points, he becomes a celebrity. Like it or not, he is propelled into the "entertainer" category. Some men like it. The wise man, however, will take pains to disarm this potential cult-bomb. This tendency on our part can be overcome by frequent identification of this dangerous weakness in humans which has been made worse by decades of truth-suppression by the organs of Jewish disinformation.

The great power of the militia is in the decentralization of that power. If the power of a resistance movement is centralized in the personality of a "leader," the movement is vulnerable. Its power is as precarious as the life or reputation of the "leader," and under martial law that is precarious indeed.

It is only necessary that militiamen around the country dedicate themselves to the destruction of the New World Order as it has been enunciated by the Order's most visible. ❑

„Warum die Deutschen Idioten sind ..."

Aus den „Israel Nachrichten" (Tel Aviv)

„Die Deutschen sind dumm. Dumm ist nicht einmal genug. Sie sind idiotisch!"

Dieses Zitat stammt aus der führenden israelischen Tageszeitung „Israel Nachrichten," die in Tel Aviv erscheinen und ein Sprachrohr von Juden aus Deutschland sind. Veröffentlicht wurde der Beitrag mit den anklagenden Worten am 13. November 1992.

Warum aber werden die Deutschen „dumm" und „idiotisch" von der jüdischen Zeitung genannt? Die Begründungen, die das Blatt gibt, werden viele überraschen. Die Deutschen seien dumm und idiotisch, weil:

— „... sie es zulassen, daß sie von jenen beschimpft werden, denen sie helfen und beistehen."

— sie sich „in die Hand beißen lassen, die das Futter reicht."

— sie „den Völken, denen blühende deutsche Provinzen zugesprochen wurden, Millarden und Abermilliarden freiwillg geben, ohne Bedingungen, a fond perdu."

„Was ist ein guter Deutscher?" fragen die „Israel Nachrichten" provakativ. „Ist das einer, der dem hemmungslosen Zuzug von Ausländern nach Deutschland freudilg bewegt zuschaut? Ist das einer, dem es egal ist, wie es in Deutschland ausschaut? Ist das einer, der selbstlos einen großen Teil seines erarbeiteten Einkommens für Fremde hergibt, die uneingeladen als Dauergäste einreisen? Ist das jemand, der bedenkenlos seine Kinder in Schulen schickt, wo Deutsche in der Minderheit sind? Ist das jemand, den die wachsende Unsicherheit in seiner Heimat und die zunehmende Kriminallität nicht im geringsten stört?"

Das jüdische Blatt fährt fort: „Millarden harterabeiteter D-Mark zahlen die Deutschen jährlich für ihre Zukömmlinge. Sie fühlen sich mehr und mehr als Fremde im eigenen Haus. Wer in Hamburg, Berlin order Frankfurt am Main mit der Untergrundbahn fährt, kommt sich vor wie im Ausland. Den Ton geben die Zuwanderer an. Und dieser Ton ist laut. Ist nur der ein guter Deutscher, der gedanken- und bedenkenlos zusieht, wie immer mehr Ausländer aus sehr entfernten Kulturkeisen nach Deutschland strömen?"

Ein Wort des Dankes würden die Deutschen selten hören. „Die Deutschen sollen zahlen. Basta." Wenn die Entwicklung aber so weitergehe wie bisher, „werden die Deutschen nicht mehr zahlen können," mahnen die Israel Nachrichten.

„Zuviel ist zuviel!" meint die Tageszeltung in Tel Aviv. „Alles hat seine Grenzen." Auch wenn man den Deutschen ungeheuerliche Verbrechen in der Vergangenheit vorwerfen müsse, für die sie tief bereut hätten.

Gewarnt wird davor, gegen die Deutschen eine Hexenjagd zu veranstalten, sie als „Unverbesserliche, die ewigen Nazis" zu titulieren. Denn ansonsten werde genau das geschehen, was man verhindern wolle. „Gnadenlose Hexenjagd könnte zu einer Katastrophe führen. Wer ist schuld daran, wenn es so weit kommen würde? Wieder die Deutschen? Nur die Deutschen?" fragt die jüdische Zeitung.

"Why the Germans are Idiots..."

Read carefully — The comments may surprise you — (The Editor)

From the Israel Nachrichten" (Tel Aviv)

"The Germans are stupid. Stupid is not even adequate. They are idiotic!"

Above quotation appeared in the leading Israel newspaper, the "Israel Nachrichten" published in Tel Aviv, a mouthpiece for Jews that came from Germany. The article containing these reproaches was published on the 13. November 1992.

Why did this Jewish newspaper call the Germans "stupid" and "idiotic"? Many will be astonished by the reasoning of the publication.

"...they tolerate, that they are being maligned by the very people whom they endeavor to aid and support",

"...they allow beneficiaries to "bite the hand that feeds them"

"...they voluntarily pay billions upon billions, without conditions to the nations that took possession of their flourishing German provinces, a fond perdu".

"...Who then is a good German?" Is the provocative question of the "Israel Nachrichten". "Is it one who watches the unrestrained influx of foreigners into Germany with pure joy? Is it one who doesn't care about the state of affairs in Germany? Is it one who unselfishly gives up a large part of his [hard] earned income to foreigners who arrive uninvited and then stay as permanent guests? Is it one who without reservations sends his children to attend schools where Germans are in the minority? Is it one who is not the least disturbed by growing insecurity and rising crime in his native land?

The Jewish Newspaper continues: "Germans pay billions of their hard earned D-Mark annually to support their newcomers. They perceive themselves even more as strangers in their own home. Whoever travels the subway in Hamburg, Berlin or Frankfurt am Main feels as though he is in a foreign country. The sounds of the newcomers dominate their surroundings. And these sounds are noisy. Is only the one a good German who watches without thought and reservations more and more foreigners from far removed national cultures pour into Germany?

Rarely do the Germans hear a word of thanks. "Let the Germans pay. Basta - and no objections! Should however this situation continue, admonishes the Israel Nachrichten, "then the Germans will not be able to pay anymore."

"Enough is enough!", declares the daily paper in Tel Aviv. "There is a limit to everything. "Even when one has to condemn the Germans for the monstrous crimes in their past, for which they have expressed their deep remorse.

It cautions not to start a witch-hunt against Germans to label them as "incorrigible, the eternal Nazis". Because then just what one wants to prevent may become a self fulfilled prophecy. "A merciless witch-hunt might lead to a catastrophy. Who then is guilty if this becomes a reality? Again the Germans? Only the Germans?" queries the Jewish newspaper.

Translated from the original German language article

A Fumbled Opportunity

On June 24th the Movement worldwide thrilled to the news coverage from Johannesburg, at the sight on our TV screens of the armored Land Rover battering through the plate glass windows of the air-conditioned yuppie palace where loathsome traitor F.W. De Klerk conspired with the ANC to destroy the Afrikaner people. Then it came—oh, glorious sight! White men with guns! Could this be it? Could South Africa be snatched back from Kaffir rule on the very brink of catastrophe? Had the Boers finally re-discovered the courage and determination of their Voortrekker ancestors? Was a provisional government about to be declared? The National Party arrested and dragged to the gallows they have so richly earned? The Jewish Marxists and the gibbering monkoids of ANC put to flight? The youngest child of the Aryan family of nations saved?

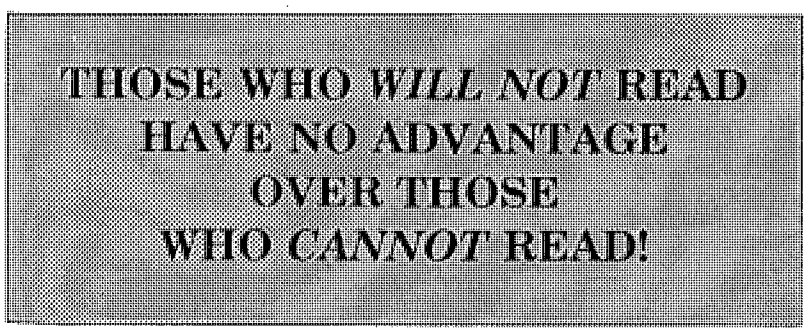
No. The AWB and CP protestors had the enemy in their very hands—and they flubbed it. They wandered around the building for an hour in a confused daze, standing idly by while mercenary police whisked the delegates and officials of the "Conference on Democracy" away to safety. They sprayed a few slogans on the walls, waved their unfired weapons in the air, and then wandered off to the pub to chug-a-lug Lion Eager and boast about how "We really showed those skellums today, ek se!" By the time of this writing the retaliatory gun raids, arrests, and police sweeps may already have begun.

The White resistance in South Africa is led by cowards and incompetent fools, just like the White resistance in this country. The main "White supremacist spokesman" in South Africa is a bloated buffoon who on one occasion was so drunk he fell off his horse during a parade in front of TV cameras. On another occasion he pursued a nubile female reporter to the extent of leaving pathetic, sodden love messages on her answering machine whining about how lonely it was at the top and describing the sexual acts he would like to perform with her. Both of these inspirational gems of Aryan revolutionary conduct have been broadcast all over South Africa and the world. I am sure I am not the only one who has buried his face in his hands and damned near wept in rage and frustration and agony for the Afrikaner people who are about to perish from the face of the earth.

Barring a miracle, South Africa is gone. The granite-faced farmers, the wiry miners, the peerless bronzed young soldiers, the incredibly handsome girls and beautiful children I remember from my time there are going to be butchered by savages piecemeal, demoralized, disorganized, convulsively. They are going to die because the White race worldwide seems unable to produce anything remotely resembling true leadership committed to the only solution to the dangers which face us—revolution, complete, terrible, and all-consuming.

The next step in South Africa will almost certainly be government gun raids to disarm politically incorrect Whites. There may be some sporadic resistance at this point, a few individual heroes returning fire and dying on their doorsteps, but only a few. Most will simply wander about in confusion, waiting for an order which, it is now apparent, will never come. Those White South Africans who can cop a U.K. passport on the basis of ancestry may be able to escape and live out their days in some dreary British housing estate, a few pathetic souvenirs hanging on their walls, a lot of weeping into their beer in drunken shame that they did nothing to save their country. The Afrikaners themselves will meet a fate I cannot bear to think about. May God damn and blast the traitorous vermin, the puling cravens, and the blubber-brained idiots who have done this to the Beloved Country.

From Resistance, #30, July 1993, Winston Smith, editor.
Dixie Press, Box 608, Raleigh NC 27601



HAMBURGER RARE

The seaport of Hamburg is Germany's second largest city. It has a population of over one and a half million. Most of these people believe in the fire-bombing holocaust of their city during WW II.

The town of Hamburg, located south of Buffalo, is not New York State's second largest city, nor the third, nor the... It has a population of about ten thousand. Most of these people believe in the gassing holocaust of WW II. These people also believe in other things. Those who never question anything will believe anything.

The Hamburgers, living in New York, have debated about painting a replica of a hamburg(er) sandwich upon their water-tower to indicate a connection that wasn't, and isn't. If these people managed to move to Intercourse, Pennsylvania, I would suppose that they would then feel they had invented reproduction and Heaven knows what they might have wanted to paint upon that water-tower.

The term "hamburg(er)" usually means, in the American mind, a ground-beef sandwich. If we omit the bread, "hamburg" then means merely a ground beef patty and in this sense, is widely used. At one time, "hamburg" meant only ground, or chopped meat. Thus, we had things such as chicken hamburger and buffalo hamburger. I suppose there could also have been a ham hamburger. Today, we call the chicken hamburger, a chicken burger. Remember the days when you used to ask for an "ice cream milk shake"? This was soon eroded into "milk shake" and when the milk and cream disappeared, the concoction then became referred to as a "shake". Our journey now takes us to the first recorded instance of the use of chopped meat.

In the years surrounding 540 A.D. (or 1349 B.H. if you are using the white-man's calendar), Italian physicians prescribed a mixture of ground, fried meat, garlic and onions for the common cold and whooping cough. It was prescribed because it worked! Unlike the drug merchants of today, who chemically analyzes everything under the sun, the doctors of old used observation as a guide. This practice is certainly applicable today. In spite of the cholesterol and veggie oil baloney that is passed about today, anyone with a brain can readily observe the POSITIVE effect eggs, for example, with their cholesterol and animal fat, have upon the physical well-being of any critter which eats them daily. Animal fat allows you to have healthy skin and nice hair. Vegatoonians have hair that resembles the hay they eat. One of my brothers is now on a low-fat, zebra diet. Although 18 years younger than I, he has the energy of a toad and looks like his next step will be in the direction of a nursing home or funeral parlor. There is also a 19 year old grass eater down the street. I can spot his sick-looking body a whole block away. But, to each his own. Anyway, the whole chopped meat business is centuries old.

The first instance, of which I remember, where ground meat was sandwiched between pieces of bread, was in the last century and credit should be given to one particular American Indian.

Crazy Horse was born in Rapid Creek in 1842. He was named Curly. His father was named Crazy Horse and was a holy man of the Oglala Indians. The Oglalas were a part of the seven tribes that made up the Sioux nation.

From the time that Curly was a little boy he showed great brilliance. He learned to speak English all by himself, not an easy accomplishment. All he knew of the white man was what he saw. The soldiers coming into his father's encampments, culling and picking out the best looking Indian girls and dragging them off into the nearest handy bushes and raping them. The girls screamed until they were beaten senseless. The officers were standing around and chatting, waiting for the men to finish with the girls or looking for girls for themselves. Indian shelters of any kind were torn down and burned and Indian men were hung from willow trees for trying to defend their women and children. Indian men were tied on ropes and dragged behind horses until they were nothing but pieces of bloody skin bouncing over the prairie. Indian children and babies were ruthlessly shot by soldiers because as one white officer, Stevenson, ordered, "Babies grow up into Indians, kill them all." All Curly ever wanted to do was to try to stop the white men from murdering his people and stealing their land and food. As a youth in a battle against European immigrants, the older warriors were killed in the first rush and Curly took over and led the attack to a victory. For his gallant action he was given his holy father's name, Crazy Horse.

Crazy Horse became one of the best military leaders this country ever produced. He was on par with such honest military greats as Stonewall Jackson and Jeb Stewart. With a few warriors and practically no weapons, he defeated superior sized forces time after time.

At the battle of the Big Horn on June 25, 1876, he and the other chiefs licked General Custer, in a matter of minutes with just spears and arrows and less than ten rifles.

General Bradley forcefully was moving the Oglala down to the Missouri to pen them up in a reservation. He did not care how many of them he killed in order to do this. He treacherously sent out word to Crazy Horse that he would talk with him about moving his people. This was nothing but a pure lie to trick Crazy Horse. In the meantime, he prepared to murder Crazy Horse in cold blood if he did come in. The white man wanted Crazy Horse in only one way and that was dead.

Crazy Horse, against his better judgement, came in to talk with General Bradley. A Major Lee had people grab him. The officer of the day drew his sword but Crazy Horse struggled so violently that he could not run him through. The officer shouted to a guard, "Stab him! Kill the son of a bitch". The guard stabbed Crazy Horse twice in the back with a bayonet. One of the thrusts went completely through a kidney. The other nearly severed his backbone. Crazy Horse fell down and was put into a woodshed under guard and left to die. He could not move as his spine was too badly damaged. He suffered until the next day when loss of blood finally gave him peace in death. This act was performed by orders of a so-called Christian officer, a gentleman graduated from West Point, and was officially commended for the murder of Crazy Horse. We have no right to criticize any people or any nation for the worst possible cruelty to human beings. We have no right to criticize any people or nation for stealing land from innocent people. We still have never paid for any of the land we stole from the Indians. Today as I write this, just as one example, Cheyenne Indian children are dying of malnutrition on the bare rock reservations they have been forced on in Montana. Children still are trying to live on the gophers run over by cars going through the Cheyenne Reservation. We are trying to feed the world and bring up the world's standard of living. Why in God's name don't we give the people we stole this land from enough to eat and enough clothes to keep them warm?

The only people who remember Crazy Horse are the French. The Crazy Horse Salon is one of the most popular in Paris.

Crazy Horse did his best to defend and teach his people. He taught them how to cook and eat, how to keep away from white man's whiskey and how to make bread from the flour they received in trade for furs. Crazy Horse could have, if given a chance, sailed through any university in his country.

On special feast days, Crazy Horse and his people would prepare a mixture of fried, chopped meat (usually buffalo) and yellow squash. This was spread upon a piece of bread and could technically be called a hamburger sandwich. I have never tried this combination, but I was told it was very good. In my opinion, Crazy Horse should be given credit for the chopped meat sandwich and if you have a little extra space in your prayers add one for Crazy Horse. Perhaps the denizens of Hamburg, NY don't agree. There's more.

In 1891, Otto Kuase, a cook in a Hamburg, Germany restaurant, made a ground meat sandwich which was very popular with the sailors. The ground beef patty was fried in butter (the best way!) and placed upon a slice of bread. The meat was then topped with mustard and a slice of pickle. Then, a fried egg was added before adding the remaining slice of bread. Again, people tell me this is also very good. Sailors came and went but never failed to stop and ask for a "hamburger". If Crazy Horse had mustard and pickles, who knows? Ships go here and there and the hamburger sandwich ended up being popular in America. The people in Hamburg, NY, had nothing to do with it except to be residents in a town named after the great German sea-port.

As with all things, "progress" turned a good thing into crap. The Big-Mac is a long way from the genuine nutrition and excellent taste of a properly prepared hamburger made from healthy cattle. Our beef is about 20 percent rotted when we pick it up from the super market. Moreover, the meat comes from drug-laced cattle fed upon whatever crap the money-makers need to have re-cycled. You've lost before you've started. Even the preparation is hazardous to your health and is without taste-appeal. Good hamburgers are made very thin and quickly fried in butter. Salt and pepper should be mixed in before the cooking and not sprinkled on afterward. Vegetable oils are great for making paint and furniture polish. They also are resistant to burning, which butter isn't. They also do not smoke like lard, when hot. They don't taste good and it is no coincidence that the heart and circulation problems started in America at the same time we went nuts after (oleo) margarine and Crisco. I'm waiting for the next inane fad: Cooking in mineral oil—no smoke, no cholesterol, no calories, no fat, no love, no nothing.

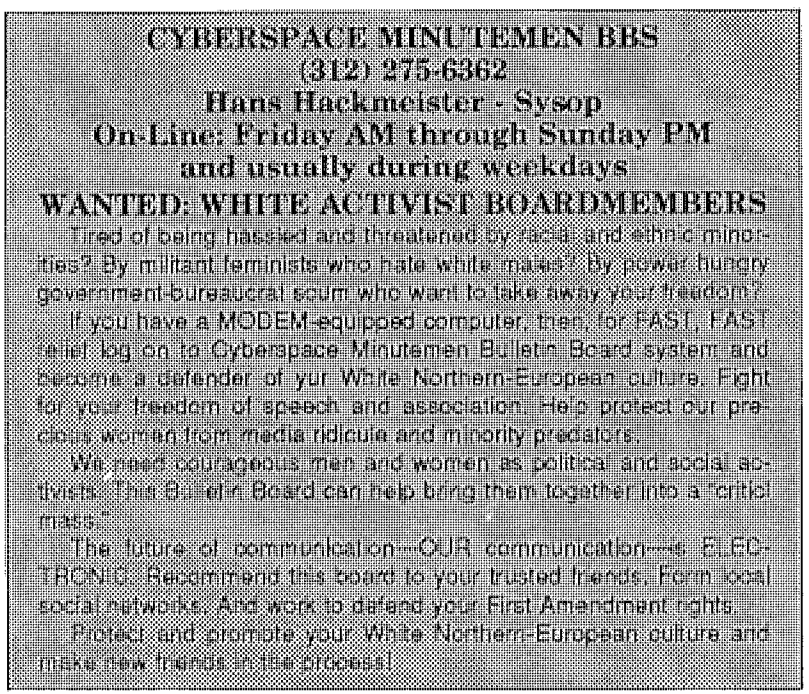
To the American people of Hamburg: Better luck next time and don't decorate any water towers.

From FAEM (First Amendment Exercise Machine),
Robert Frenz, Editor, Box 433, Buffalo NY 14223



LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear George:

In your continuing efforts to exercise freedom of the press, you have often printed articles which ruffled the feathers of some readers. One of those was an article of mine in which I criticized that new breed of "chosen ones"—the revisionists. I mentioned one Paul Grubach, who is a star writer for that stellar publication The Journal of Historical Review. It is my understanding that this literary genius has been plaguing you with, what appears to be, several varieties of threats. I have also learned, from a reliable source, that he claims you are a liar if you don't run Liberty Bell according to his demands. At this point, I hereby apologize to you for the sending of that article. If I had known that this would have invoked the harassment which followed, I wouldn't have sent it. Please don't cancel my subscription.

Paul (or is it Saul?) is an absolute stone-head. It is impossible for him to learn anything and this is exactly what I find to be a disturbing trait in most revisionists. Their mind-sets are no different than that which is found in the other group of stone-headed Jews with whom they argue. Saul is still hammering away at my criticism of his sophomoric notion of what an acid is. In spite of the several copies (revisionists love copying things) of acid-base definitions which I foolishly sent to him, he still waves ONE STATEMENT, from a low-level Chemistry 101 textbook, in our faces as if it were one of Moses' tablets. In addition, he has found some mysterious retired chemist which, in his view, agrees with him (or is it the other way around?).

Saul claims, with all the fervor of a TV evangelist, that ACID means HYDRONIUM IONS (hydrated protons; often called hydrogen ions). This statement indicates the level at which his chemistry education stopped. I tried to point out that acetic ACID, which is a compound contained in vinegar, is an ACID because it contains the carboxyl group, i.e., -COOH. It is called an acid by virtue of its STRUCTURE and not because of its behavior. Acetic acid happens to be soluble in water and a proton MAY split off to become hydrated. This is not true of ALL the molecules of acetic acid within a given solution. In fact, ONLY ONE MOLE-CULE OUT OF EVERY 200 IS HYDRATED in common vinegar. If this weren't true, vinegar would be highly dangerous to consume. Therefore, according to Saul, his isolated textbook and the "word" of someone with a degree in chemistry, we must accept that out of 200 molecules of acetic acid, ONLY ONE is an acid. What then, do we call the other 199? In a 5 percent solution of hydrogen cyanide in water, only one molecule out of 50,000 "becomes an acid" (in Saul's terms). Again in this wizard's terms, the other 49,999 molecules do not "become an acid". The "authoritative" statement which Saul repeats, ad nauseam, "When hydrogen cyanide dissolves in water it becomes a weak acid." is virtually meaningless. Moreover, stearic ACID, a substance common to candles and facial creams, is INSOLUBLE in water and therefore cannot yield any hydronium ions (hydrated hydrogen ions). Saul, a true revisionist, would then argue that this waxy, yellow stuff should be called STEARIC QUASI-ACID, an acid in name only. SOME acids yield hydrogen ions in solution with water. Those which don't are STILL ACIDS and, for the most part, are INSOLUBLE in water.

I am tired of wasting my time and money sending, what I believed to be helpful, material which I intended to enlighten this candidate for a brain-transplant who has an obvious ego-problem. I have no intention of having any kind of revisionist circle-jerk debate with anyone. May The Institute of Historical Review see fit to pay Saul highly (he apparently asks $2500 per scribble) for his scholarly works which are doing so much to alleviate the suffering of our Aryan brothers and sisters. The more he writes, the lower becomes the rate of assault against white people. Hadn't you noticed?

Sincerely,
Robert Frenz

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George

18th May 1993

I am enclosing a note I scratched out to that Homosexual promoter in the White House, Bill Clinton. I expect he or one of his off-siders will give it a quick glance and throw it in the rubbish, so I am sending you a copy so that at least someone else in the U.S.A. will know it has been sent.

As I said in my letter, I don't know very much about the Branch Davidians and David Koresh, but whatever they were doing they were upsetting some Jew-controlled bureaucrats who seem very reluctant to tell us why they had to mount a military assault in the first place. But apart from all that, they did have a lot of guts to stand up to the B.A.T.F. & F.B.I. as long as they did; they must have been under a great deal of strain during the siege of nearly two months. The burning of the 17 children is a real plot on those responsible, but it looks like a tough job to bring them to trial. Could it be that this episode may be enough to wake sufficient people up to that what is going on to start the turning of the tide? A small incident can often start a long march. I do hope so, for it still is a long road.

The news in Australia yesterday reported the "War Crimes" trial of Ivan Polyukhovich. After three years of court action he was eventually brought to trial, and the jury, after only an hour from the Court, returned the verdict of "not guilty." I understand the old man of 77 was under much strain and that it had it's effect on his health. The cost of all this was, I understand, something on the order of $20,000,000, which, I gather, has been charged to the "taxpayers." More debt and more interest for the Jew bankers!

Also in the news, David Irving's lecture tour of Australia. You may have heard that Irving was prevented from entering Australia earlier this year, because he was some sort of bad influence on us and would cause trouble. Well, David Irving had some video tapes recorded in South Africa, and the plan was to screen these in most of the State capitol cities tonight. From what I have just heard, there are still plans to show some of these videos even though the videos have not been given a rating for viewing in public. A friend said he thought that they had been classified with the pornographic material. There seem to be all sorts of protests being organized from both sides. You may have news of this before my letter reaches you. It does seem that the Jews are losing the battle of the Holohoax, and also loosing their cool. They didn't like the Polyukhovich verdict, and I think I heard one say over the radio that he should have been tried 30 or 40 years ago.

Best wishes, yours sincerely,

David Barton

Mr. Bill Clinton
President of the United States of America
The White House
Washington DC 20003, USA

21st April 1993

Dear Mr. Clinton,

I do not know very much about the religious and other practices of David Koresh, late of Waco, Texas. I have heard and seen various reports over the media, but I have no faith in the accuracy of such opinion, for I have found from long experience that the main media channels are very reliable in producing the wrong or reverse answer in such matters. However, I was horrified to witness on NBC television the use of tanks and the burning of the property occupied by Koresh and his companions. I understand that the death toll is about 86, including 17 children.

I have watched many television items, and heard radio reports, and read newspaper items on this saga for over a month, and at no time have I been informed of any crime committed by David Koresh to justify such irresponsible use of force as has become apparent in this case.

What on earth is wrong with you people? Have you not learned from the Gordon Kahl case, the Randy Weaver case, and many other such cases that your reputation for being a civilized nation is being destroyed by permitting such irresponsible "law officer" pack action to continue? The stink is rising to high Heaven. I believe the saga of Waco will, like "The Story of Burnt Njal," be remembered for hundreds of years; it will NEVER be forgotten.

I have noticed that you, Attorney General Janet Reno, and other prominent people in this affair, have been very quick to lay the blame for the death and destruction on David Koresh. Too quick? "The lady doth protest too much, me thinks," before sufficient evidence has come to hand. Was this an attempt, like that of Mcbeth, to clean the hands of blood?

"Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood Clean from my hand? No; this my hand would rather
The multitudinous seas incarnadine, Making the green one red."

You can but try.

There was a time when the police in England were forbidden to carry firearms, yet they seemed far better equipped than the present B.A.T.F. and F.B.I. in maintaining law and order. They were also respected. Perhaps American law officers should emulate the English?

I have noticed that the law officers involved in the Rodney King beating were taken to trial twice. How much more in need of justice than Rodney King are the burnt children of Waco?

Can it be that the real crime of the Branch Davidians was that they were educating their children free of "State" control? In lieu of a denial, am I free to assume the answer is in the affirmative?

Yours sincerely,
David Barton, Australia

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George — Grüß Gott!

Received the June Liberty Bell and was pleasantly surprised by the letter by Mrs.E.M.S., Oregon you printed, who so graciously paid up a year's subscription for me. Please let her know that, yes, I am the David Tate who was in The Order, and give her my deepest thanks for the sub.

For Dr. Revilo P. Oliver's interest, the book Fifth Column (Sixth Column?), by Robert A. Heinlein, is currently in print. I do not know the publisher, but I suspect all one needs to do is ask a local bookstore to order it. I read it in the Jefferson, MO prison a couple years ago, and saw it on the shelves when I worked in the library here (being in the hole, I'm not able to check up on it).

Heinlein's theme of a "Pan-Asian" conquest of the U.S. is something more than a "possible" threat in the future. An interesting analysis of past Mongolian invasions of Europe, updated with the modern probabilities and indications that such plans are in the works, are outlined in the January 4, 1993 Hoskins Report #220 (P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg VA 24505).

Hoskins asks: "What would happen if somehow the seemingly defenseless hordes of the Far East should turn out to be not so defenseless at all, but merely a part of the world which does things differently? What would happen if her tens of millions of soldiers suddenly, or by sections, piece-meal, picked up her massive stockpiles of weapons and followed the route taken earlier by the Mongols, the Huns, the Turks, the Ottomans, the Seljucks, and the Khazars—across the deserts and steppes to Europe? What would happen if the thousands of ships under foreign registration should appear off California?"—Provocative questions, indeed.

We've all read of the recent boatloads of Chinese landing upon American shores—is this just the preview of a massive invasion in the style of Raspail's Camp of the Saints? While it is nice to fantasize with Heinlein about a ray that could rearrange the molecular structure of various elements—hence, attuned to the genetic structure of a specific race could be used to effect only that race (just imagine, "Gold Niggers"—I daresay gold would become a common element, and Amerikan "Negroes" extinct, in short order)—it is doubtful that such a miracle weapon will appear in the nick of time to save us. If you'll excuse the scatological prison terminology: "It's time to get our shit together, somethin's comin' down!" Talk about a race war...

Loved Campbell's short story "Courage" in the May issue. The gentleman should write us an epic novel of Aryan Determination and valiant bravery.

Weiße Umwälzung ist die einzige Lösung!

David Tate #155209
Rt 2, Box 2222, Mineral Point MO 63660

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Kinsman:

Your article "The Most Evil Man" in the June 93 Liberty Bell was very interesting, very informative, very astute and should be read by every WAP who still thinks. Thanks for presenting it.

I hope you have read Zündel's new book on his trials, Did Six Million Really Die? [Available from Samisdat Publishers, 206 Carlton Street, Toronto ON M5A 2L1, Canada.]

Thanks also for reprinting the British article on AIDS. I copied it and sent out 73 mailers with your L.B. name and address on each. I hope it brings you more subscribers. To my knowledge the British government has not yet carried out its recommended methods of control.

Take care!
General Never, California

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

I have been watching the appearances of Aryan figures on national television—the tabloid shows—for some time now, and the more I see of this sort of thing the more I think it is futile to be portrayed in this fashion. Bob Miles said so many times that Invisible Empires ought to remain invisible to profane eyes. The Aryan movement looks silly when one or two half-wits allow themselves to be cursed and insulted by audiences on the tabloid shows. What is to be gained by any of this? The spokesman may be permitted to give a quick P.O. Box address, though usually the Yiddish or black host refuses to allow it.

The sort of dreck that watches these programs regularly is not good recruit material for any cause where the risk is as great as ours. I have done radio call-in shows and have received no written response from ANYONE. Our problem as a movement is that we continue to preach to people who would rather be persecuted by ZOG than dare risk their freedom or their creature comforts.

My theory is that this movement of ours is ours alone. Louis R. Beam Jr. once described us as "the already dead". Very likely. And yet we are, when compared to the blanko whites, a racial aristocracy. Those of us who stick with the Aryan cause, who cannot be scared or bought off, can only diminish ourselves by going to the studios of the enemy to appeal to the hoi polloi. I always remember Shakespeare's "Coriolanus," the supreme example of a man who was pushed by his inferiors to debase himself before the rabble. And I will never forget what Caius Marcius Coriolanus said to the rabble when they banished him from Rome: "There is a world elsewhere." Or as King Henry IV told Harry, Prince of Wales: "By being seldom seen, I could not stir but like a comet I was wondered at; that men would tell their children 'This is he; others would say Where? Which is Bolingbroke?'" ("Henry IV," Part One) This is the ticket. Create an Aryan mystique. We show ourselves too much, even under the best of circumstances, and the boobs begin to think we are media personalities, not Aryan opponents of a vile, corrupt System. I hope to see the day when no tabloid television show can get anyone from our ranks to sit there and be insulted.

On another subject, I've been listening to short wave lately.

And the Spotlight program during the week, together with the National Alliance's "Dissident Voices" on Saturday, make for better expenditures of one's time than can be wasted on the boob tube. Spotlight—"Radio Free America"—generally pulls its punches, though the Randy Weaver trial updates by Len Martin in Boise, Idaho are worth hearing. The Bill Cooper Show, which follows "Radio Free America" during the week, is somewhat weird, in that Cooper plays some funny "bumper music" he calls great stuff. I have heard everything from 'rock and schlock' to black spirituals. Cooper even played something from the Jewish Broadway play, "On a Clear Day I can See Forever." Then he goes Country and Western. The program opens with police sirens, marching boots and dog howls and growls, which is supposed to, I suspect, be the sound of the "New World Order." Cooper has been exposing Freemasonry and other secret societies, but he absolves the Jews of all responsibility for the sickened condition of the United States. Sounds like Belchite fulminations to me. You know, "the Elite," the "Communists," "the Insiders," that sort of thing. Cooper tells us that he asked a rabbi why things are in such bad shape. The rabbi was said to have answered, "Nothing ever happens by chance." No Scheiss! We need a sacred Yid to tell us this? Anyone who asks rabbis anything about the situation is not really one of us. Cooper says that he was with the Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI). When I was in Japan and stationed at the Naval Air Station, Atsugi, with the First Marine Air Wing in 1959-60, there was a very outspoken Marxist by the name of Lee Harvey Oswald who went from the H&MS-11 barrack over to the ONI building every day. Cooper may have been there. I don't know what his rank was or how old he is. He does make it plain that he is a former intelligence man. Like "Bo" Gritz, these are the types who surface in "patriotic" circles in the USA. One wonders why they are permitted to be on the radio. But then, what they say is for musk oxen to hear.

Well, George, it's Saturday night and I have "American Dissident Voices" on my shortwave. Strom is telling us that race is more important than ideology. Hear, hear!

Maj. Donald V. Clerkin

⊛ ⊛ ⊛

Dear Landsmann,

The essay "The Most Evil Man" by Dr. Bentinck was extremely interesting and confirmed my own beliefs about the subject. How come we of Northern European heritage believe in any of the so-called "World Religions"? All three, Christianity, Judaism as well as Islam come from the same region of the world—the desserts of the Middle East.

Our heritage is much different, and it was one that lived in harmony with nature. Christianity and Judaism and, to a lesser degree Islam, are all geared to exploit the earth and natural environment and we are now presented with the fact that our planet is dying. We are being lied to by the churches and, of course, ZOG and in fact all other governments. So long as our people cling to

ATTENTION!
English Revisionist Short-Wave Radio Broadcasts Beginning June 20, 1993

We have been producing our own 1/2 hour German language radio show, which is broadcast on 15.665 Mhz on the 19 Meter Band worldwide. This broadcast can be heard in Central Europe at 6:30 PM Central European Time; at 5:50 PM London Time; in Canada and America at 12:30 PM Eastern Time, at 11:30 AM Central Time; at 10:30 AM Rocky Mountain Time, and at 9:30 AM Pacific Time.

We will be broadcasting an English language version as of June 20th, 1993 as well. The English language Program will continue on 15.420 Mhz on the 19 Meter Band, from 11:00-11:30 PM each Sunday evening Central European Time, at 10:00-10:30 London Time. This English language program can be heard in Canada and America from 5:00-5:30 PM Eastern Standard Time, from 4:00-4:30 PM Central Time; from 3:00-3:30 PM Rocky Mountain Time, and from 2:00-2:30 PM Pacific Time.

REVISIONIST TV!

Watch "The Voice of Freedom" from space via Satellite TV every Sunday night beginning Sunday, June 20th, 1993 at 6:30 PM Eastern Time on Showcase America, Galaxy 5, Transponder 22, with your Host Ernst Zündel in English!

Please send donations for this very special project to: Samisdat, 206 Carlton Street, Toronto ON M5A 2L1, Canada. Tel. 1-416-922-9850.

these "Dessert Religions" there is little hope for our race as a whole and our planet as well.

I always read the Letters to the Editor with great interest; it is always good to know that there are other "thinking" people out there. Thinking people are a rarity nowadays. The news media are manipulated and we all know that they are in the hands of the Jews. I am always taken aback by the ignorance of the people here in the U.S.A. of current world affairs. All news is predigested, censored garbage most of the time.

The pace is picking up once again on U.S. TV to make NAZI monsters out of the Germans again; I guess the Jewish parasites here and everywhere else are afraid that the truth may yet come out about the Holohoax and their world conspiracy against the rest of us, but in particular against the White race. So intimidated are the Germans that they are now afraid to make any moves at all, so as not to upset the Jewish masters that control Germany with the everlasting reenforcement of the "national guilt complex." But it is not working anymore: a lot of young Germans are not buying the Jewish version of history anymore. I wish more people would wake up here too.

Thank you for your uplifting publication.

Sincerely,
C.S.S., Arizona

⊞⊞⊞

Some Open Letters to the Editors of
The Denver Daily Slime Sheet
Concerning the passage by the people of Colorado of a Constitutional Amendment (Amendment Two) prohibiting legislation giving homosexuals a favored Civil Rights Status.

Sirs,

1/17/93

It is difficult to say which was more shameful and reprehensible, Governor Romer's address yesterday to the legislature where, in a "fiery attack" on Amendment Two and its passage by the citizens, he reproached the latter, telling them in effect to mind their own business ("I would call on all citizens of this state...to spend less time trying to determine what it is that we ought to legislate about the morality of others," Denver Post, 1/15/93, front page) and then exhorting them, in the name presumably of minding their proper business, to "spend more time trying to determine how we can create a community where each of us can grow and arrive at what truth is for us" (does this pretentious piece of "do your own thing" mean that, if truth for me is that Romer is a closet pervert and should be shot, in implementing this belief I am "growing"; otherwise I am not?)—as I was saying, it is difficult to say which was more shameful and reprehensible, Romer's advocacy of the above pernicious bunkum or its reception by the legislators (loc. cit.) with "boisterous applause" (imagine: as if moral concerns were not a proper object of the citizenry!).

While we are on the subject of Amendment Two and democratic legislation, it might be in order to see what Plato, unlike Romer a genuine and not a sham one-day's philosopher, had to say on the matter in the Laws, his final work. Though our opponents may claim that Plato by the time of writing the Laws was in his dotage or some such thing, the very fact that the work has been preserved in its entirety argues that over the millennia the best minds have taken it to encapsulate, not dotage, but a long lifetime's wisdom. It might be pointed out too that Plato lived in a time like our own, a time in which an old, strict morality had all in a generation been discarded for almost total sexual permissiveness. I quote from the Laws, VIII, 835d ff.; Athenian:

> ...Where one to follow the guidance of nature and adopt the law of the old days before Laius—I mean, to pronounce it wrong that male should have to do carnally with youthful male as with [youthful] female—and to fetch his evidence from the life of the animals, pointing out that male does not touch male in this way because the action is unnatural, his contention would surely be a telling one...
>
> You know the question we are repeatedly raising is what enactments foster goodness and what do not. Very well, then, suppose our present legislation pronounces this practice [homosexuality] laudable or free from discredit. How will it promote goodness? Will it lead to the growth of the temper of valor in the soul of the seduced? Or the growth of a temperate character in his seducer? That is surely more than any man can believe [Plato did not know Romer!]. Surely, the very opposite is the truth. Everyone must censure the unmanliness of the one party, who surrenders to his lusts because he is too weak to offer resistance [to his lusts], and reproach the other—the impersonator of the female—with his likeness to his > model. Who in the world, then, will give legislative countenance to a practice of such a tendency? No one, I say, who has any notion of what a true law is [page Romer and the Colorado legislators]...

>
> It may be that my present proposals are no more than the aspirations of a pious imagination, though I assure you any society would find their realization a supreme blessing. However, by God's help, we might not impossibly enforce one or the other of two rules for sexual love. One would be that no freeborn citizen should dare to touch any but his own wedded wife, and that there should be no sowing of unhallowed and bastard seed with concubines, and no sterile and unnatural intercourse with males. Failing this, we may suppress such relations with males utterly, and as for women, if a man should have to do with any—whether acquired by purchase or in any way whatsoever—save those who have entered the house with the sanction of heaven and holy matrimony, and his act become known to man or woman, we shall probably be pronounced to do well by enacting that he be deprived of the honors of a citizen, as one that proves himself an alien indeed.

It might be added that Plato did not think that these proposals of his would find ready acceptance; in fact, just the opposite. By his time homosexual activity had become (as previously in Sodom) not only openly and widely practiced but expected and even demanded. Plato has the Athenian say (loc. cit.), "Yet should some young and lusty bystander of exuberant virility overhear us as we proposed it [such a law], he might probably denounce our enactments as impracticable folly and make the air ring with his clamor" [shades of the clamor that rose up and, fanned by the media, still rises up regarding the passage of Amendment Two].

Finally, it should be noted that the media have almost without exception either explicitly denounced Amendment Two and its passage or denounced them by innuendo. For instance, in the Denver Post's report of Governor Romer's speech which we have quoted from, the Post's reference to "Amendment 2" describes the amendment as outlawing "specific civil-rights protection of homosexuals." Unless a reader were exceptionally astute, he would naturally understand this description as meaning that homosexuals were left by Amendment Two unprotected from things that everyone else had legal protection from. But that is not so. Homosexuals are still left with the rights to vote; to assemble; protection against bodily assault; invasion of their homes, and so on and so on. What, then, can be the beef?

Sincerely,
A Defender of Amendment Two

* * *

Sirs and Siresses:

1/17/93

A writer in effect asks in your Open Letters, "What can be the objection of homosexuals and the media and Governor Romer and the Colorado legislators to Amendment Two and its passage by the people of Colorado?" ("What's the beef?").

One must wonder at the benighted condition of this writer. Does not she/he realize that Amendment Two reduces the status of homosexuals to the inferior status of non-homosexual male European Americans? For instance, according to Amendment Two, will homosexuals not have to suffer the invidious disability of not themselves being able to discriminate (except against non-homosexual European Americans), but of being allowed to be discriminated against by everyone else? Must not any self-respecting individual find it an assault on his human dignity to be so disenfranchised? Could any but a non-homosexual male European American be so bereft of self-esteem and so base not to be incensed and object to this second class citizenship's being foisted on her/him? In all humanity, then, must not the media, Governor Romer, and the Colorado legislators who applauded his speech to the legislature, recognizing this injury being done homosexuals, strenuously oppose its being committed and so oppose Amendment Two and its passage—just as they have been doing? What immoral twaddle "Defender of Amendment Two" talks! His mouth should be washed with soap.

Sincerely,
New Breed

* * *

Dear Sirs,

1/19/93

I shall only ask "New Breed" this one question: "Are not, in these United States, all individuals supposed to be equal before the law?" But if the homosexual is made equal before the law with the non-homosexual male European American what is wrong with that?

Defender of Amendment Two

* * *

Dear Sirs and Siresses,

1/21/93

Does or does not "Defender of Amendment Two" believe the Bible where it says that Israel will one day rule all other nations? And is not this prophecy in the way of coming to pass, witness the subservience of the United States to Israel? But does Israel hold to the gentile doctrine that all individuals are equal before the law? Are Arabs and Jews equal before the law in Israel? They certainly are not. But how can you then, being (one must suppose) a Judeo-Christian believer, oppose this gentile doctrine to the God-decreed doctrine that not all are equal before the law?

New Breed

* * *

Dear Sirs,

But if not all are equal before the law, New Breed, why is it that blacks, Jews, Asians, and homosexuals should have precedence before the law to male, non-homosexual European Americans rather than the other way around? Is it graven on some stone tablets that only male non-homosexual European Americans are to be second class citizens, alone allowed to be discriminated against by everyone but themselves not allowed to discriminate? Show me where the inequality you mention is authorized as falling out the way you and the media and Governor Romer and the Colorado legislators and homosexuals evidently think it falls out?

Defender of Amendment Two

* * *

Dear Sirs and Siresses,

Does not everyone know that the stone tablet has been deciphered by the Sanhedrin to read, "Male non-homosexual European Americans are alone to be second class citizens, against whom all may discriminate but who themselves may not discriminate"? This being the word of the Lord, must not everyone obey it, just as the Israelites had to obey the command of the Lord to slay all the male children of the Midianites? As anyone can see, the stone tablet does not mention homosexual male European Americans. It only refers to non-homosexual ones. There's your answer, so-called "Defender of Amendment Two."

New Breed

* * *

Dear Sirs,

1/26/93

Let me ask this "New Breed," where is the stone tablet he refers to located? I think at least non-homosexual male European Americans have the right to see it and read what's there before they meekly accept their second class citizenship. How about it?

And if they do see it How are they to know what's written there is the word of the Lord?

Defender of Amendment Two

* * *

Dear Sirs and Siresses,

No one but the Sanhedrin is allowed to view the holy sacred stone tablet. So there's no use telling non-homosexual male European Americans where it is located. But surely they may not doubt nonetheless that what's written there is the word of the Lord. Have they not doubted many much less credible things? Did they not doubt that the Iraqi soldiers committed all those atrocities that the daughter of the Kuwaiti ambassador, speaking before the United Nations, said they committed? Have they not doubted the rightness of affirmative action? Is their second class citizenship not proved credible by their unquestioning compliance in it? So if that second class citizenship is what the sacred stone tablet says belongs to them, is not its saying so credible also? And if that is the case, is it not just as credible that its saying so is the word of the Lord? But then is it not sacrilege and blasphemy for the people of Colorado to take it upon themselves to impose the same second class citizenship upon homosexuals? But surely the courts will see to it that this sacrilege and blasphemy is not allowed to be perpetrated. What is worse than a democracy gone wild?

One should at this point say a word too about Plato's wild speculations and censurings of homosexuality. Who is to be believed? Plato or the sacred stone tablet? Did Plato ever turn into a burning bush? Did Plato ever throw down the walls of a city? Did Plato ever give the Athenians an entire land in perpetuity, as the Lord gave the Israelites the land of the Canaanites in perpetuity? So why is Plato to be taken seriously?

New Breed

* * *

Dear Sirs,

New Breed thinks we have good reasons not to take what Plato says on homosexuality seriously. But he does think that we should take what the sacred stone tablet says seriously. But does not the sacred stone tablet say that the homosexuality of Sodom is an abomination and that for it Sodom is to be destroyed and all its inhabitants except Lot and his wife and daughters? New Breed, how do you and Governor Romer and the Colorado legislators answer this argument? Even if the United States is no longer a free and independent nation but a subordinate province of Israel, is it not Israel's own stone tablet that we are here quoting from?

Defender of Amendment Two

* * *

Compiler's Note:

It seems that at this juncture New Breed, Governor Romer and the Colorado legislature went out for lunch. In any case, no letter answering this final challenge was vouchsafed.

Hector Rodgers, Ph.D.—Archivist

THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp. hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Corneliu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after the brutal murder Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti-Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" —R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" —D. A. Apo). THE ANTI-HUMANS, Order #01013. Sale priced, single copy $2.00 + $1.50 postage. 10 for $15.00 + $5.00 postage.

For postage and handling add: On domestic orders: $1.50 for orders under $10.00; 15% of order total for orders over $10.00. On orders from abroad, $2.00 or 20% respectively. Sample copy of our monthly magazine Liberty Bell and copy of our huge book list containing hundreds of "Eye-Openers": $5.00. Subscription for 12 hard-hitting, fact-packed issue $40.00 (U.S. only). Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

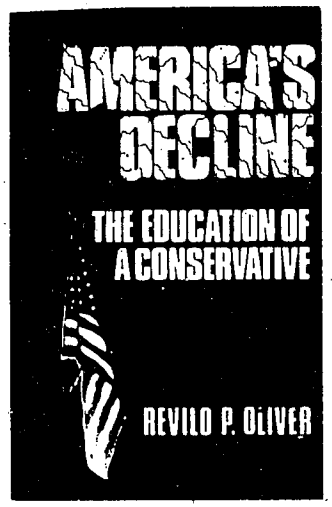
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 1007-$8.50 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage and handling. ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

NAZI GAS CHAMBERS

by

Friedrich Paul Berg

page 29.

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

POSTSCRIPTS
by Professor R.P. Oliver:
"Nat Turner", page 1; The Khazars, page 11; Secret Disclosed, page 20; Sporting Event, page 24; La-Bas and Lower, page 27.

From
First Amendment Exercise Machine:
Letters, page 35; Poemish Stuff, page 36; Sling-Shot Control, page 39; Hands Smith, page 40; Hate 'Tis, Revisionist Jews, page 42; More Comments, page 43; Gawd A Mighty! Dey's Racists, page 45; Faggots in the Army, page 46; Kool A.I.D.S., page 48;

Letters to the Editor, page 50

VOL. 21 - NO. 2 OCTOBER 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Revilo P. Oliver

"NAT TURNER"

A concatenation of causes, including the exasperating malfunctioning of the computer on which I wrote, which even swallowed up one version of my text, and the illness of my wife, which prevented her from reading the proofs, resulted in a sad confusion in part of my article in Liberty Bell, June 1993. pp. 8-14.

*As I stated in that article, I followed the concise narrative by Clifford Dowdey (*sic; correct the misspelling of his name) in his History of the Confederacy, 1832-1865, supplemented by my own notes, compiled from a variety of sources years ago. The most recent accounts, so far as I know, are by Herbert Aptheker, American Negro Slave Revolts (New York, International Publishers, 1943; reprinted 1969) and Eric Foner, Nat Turner (Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey; Prentice-Hall, 1971). Both books celebrate Nat Turner as a great hero, because he treacherously killed so many White Americans and jabbered about "freedom," but contain less factual information than is given in Mr. Dowdey's book (e.g., that Joseph Travis was a coachmaker, and that his wife was the widow of Putnam Moore). The old Communist displays an elaborate panoply of scholarship, but, of course, merely to whet the axe, the Marxian religion, that he uses to cut the tap roots of our civilization and subject us to his Master*

* It may be well to explain the nomenclature. A slave could have, of course, no gentile name, and Nat's only name was Nat. It was, however, necessary to distinguish between slaves who had the same name (e.g., one of Nat's recruits was also named Nat). Strictly speaking, Nat was "Ben Turner's Nat," but for convenience in ordinary parlance the owner's surname was simply added to the slave name, so that he was designated as Nat Turner. By the time that he passed to other masters, he was already so well known that he continued to be called Nat Turner.

Race. Foner's book is chiefly a compilation of excerpts from various sources, but includes a convenient reprinting of Nat Turner's Confession, made before his execution to Thomas R. Gray, an attorney, who may have reduced some of the nigger's words to more acceptable English.

It seems best to give here a corrected and expanded version of several paragraphs of my article, beginning with the last paragraph on page 8. I have added details that may be of some interest, which I had omitted to make the account concise, since the only really important fact is Nat's outbreak of savagery. The additional footnotes are keyed to superior letters, and I give only cross references to long footnotes, keyed to superior numerals, that were in the June issue.

In 1831, Southampton County in Virginia (on the border of North Carolina, east of Emporia and west of the Dismal Swamp) had a population of about 16,700—about what it has today. In 1831 there were 6500 Whites, 7700 slaves, and 1500 freed negroes. (The comparatively large number of the latter, although not at all unusual in the South, will astonish many readers.) There were no large plantations. The more prosperous Whites commonly combined a profession or craft with a 'plantation' that was no more than a farm.

A certain Joseph Travis was a skilled coachmaker and had a rather small farm.[a] His was a simple household, and he had no domestic servants. He owned three families of niggers, of which the adults worked alongside him and his son in his shop and fields. The slaves had Saturday afternoon and Sunday off from work, and were encouraged to raise their own garden and to earn money. Travis was a kindly and perhaps too indulgent man. He treated all of his few slaves with kindness, but he had a favorite, a nigger named Nat, in whom he had great confidence and whom he made an 'overseer' of the others, thus exempting him from much or all of the hard labor.

a. The Travis 'plantation' contained only 250 acres, if a likely explanation of a confusion in the county records is correct. The slaves were worth much more than the land.

Nat had come into Mr. Travis's possession a little less than two years before, and although Mr. Travis was regarded as his owner, Nat in strict legality belonged, I believe, to a small child, Mr. Travis's stepson.

Nat was born in 1800 to slaves owned by Benjamin Turner and seems to have grown up in Mr. Turner's possession. He was, in Roman terminology, a verna.

As a Christian, Mr. Turner felt charged with his slaves' spiritual as well as physical welfare and urged them to attend a local church. (Little is known of the White clergyman or his sermons.[b]) Nat was taught to read and was an eager and apt pupil—in comparison with other niggers, of course. He was encouraged to read and "study" the Bible, which made a great impression on him, and he seems to have evinced, even in childhood, pietistic or mystical tendencies. His religiosity pleased his owner and doubtless won him privileges.

Nat's religiosity seems to have been induced in him by his mother and grandmother at a very early age—three or four, according to his confession,[c] when he was told that he had spoken of something that had happened before he was

b. I assume a White clergyman because there is no record, so far as I know, of the presence in the neighborhood of a nigger congregation with a nigger holy man, such as were found elsewhere in Virginia and in many other parts of the South. Had there been a nigger preacher in the region, it would not have been easy for Nat to set himself up as a rival in the Jesus-business.

c. In his Confession, Nat claimed that he did not know how he became able to read! He had told his nigger converts that literacy had been divinely bestowed on him in preparation for his apostolic mission. He was able to write, at least to some extent. His secret "papers," which were obtained from his wife by duress after his execution, seem to have consisted chiefly of drawings of Christian crosses, conventional suns, "hieroglyphical characters conveying no definite meaning," and numerals representing quantities of something unstated, but he had also written down the names of his earliest recruits. It is likely that Turner or some member of his family (perhaps Mrs. Turner) gave the unusually intelligent pickaninny the rudiments of an elementary eduction.

born and that he was therefore the repository of supernatural powers. One is reminded of the voodoo[4] custom of selecting witch-doctors for training when they are children.[d] Unfortunately, there seems to be no evidence whether the two black women practiced voodoo (secretly, of course), but that does not matter. Even if he had never heard of it, Nat had voodoo in his blood. It is the natural religion of his race and is readily adapted to a Christian terminology.[e]

As a nigger professor, Vincent Harding, remarks in the chapter he contributed to the collection, Slavery, Its Origin and Legacy, edited by J. B. Duff and L. A. Greene (New York, Crowell, 1975), it is a nice irony that the White Christians, who imagined that doctrines of mercy and love would mollify the innate savagery of Congoids, thus fostered the propagation of a religion which really incited the savages to kill them. He points out that a few perceptive Americans, who had more or less emancipated themselves from the prevalent superstition, early became aware of the smouldering peril, but they were overruled by the credulous and sentimental majority of their race and even legislation to restrict the use of religion to incite insurrection and murder was never enforced. Much the same observation is made by Foner in his concluding chapter.

An excellent example of a rational Aryan is provided by the Governor of Virginia, John Floyd, whose letter to the Governor of South Carolina is reprinted by Foner, op. cit. He was well aware of the sources of outbreaks of savagery

4. I omit here the long footnote on the etymology and meaning of 'voodoo,' 'ju-ju,' etc. on pp. 9 f. of the June issue, d. As Isaiah Oke was selected, according to his own account in his Blood Secrets (Buffalo, New York; Prometheus Books, 1989).

e. In 1973 the Roman Catholic Church was embarrassed by one of its Archbishops, a mulatto named Milingo, who set himself up as a witch-doctor and practiced ju-ju, using a crucifix as his fetish. He was sequestered to avert a scandal at that time. See Liberty Bell, May 1986, pp. 9-10, 15; cf. Note 3, p. 14. The present Pope, needless to say, would have been delighted with an opportunity to promote 'Ecumenism' by having a ju-ju Cardinal.

in the South. He named visiting Yankees, "especially the Yankee [or Jewish?] peddlers and traders," who incited the niggers by peddling under the guise of religion doctrines of "equality" and "freedom." Principally responsible, however, were the Christian preachers, especially in the North, who had for decades striven so assiduously and successfully to expand their salvation-business. "Day and night they were at work and religion became, and is, the fashion of the times. Finally our females and of the most respectable [class] were persuaded that it was piety to teach negroes to read and write, to the end that they might read the Scriptures. Many of them became tutoresses in Sunday Schools and pious distributors of tracts from the New-York Society.

"At this point more active operations commenced; our magistrates and laws became more inactive; large assemblies of negroes were allowed to take place for religious purposes. Then commenced the efforts of the black preachers, ... we resting in apathetic security until the Southampton affair."

Governor Floyd was convinced that "every black preacher" was conspiring to incite the niggers to exterminate the White population, so that they, the vendors of a bloody superstition, would become the "governors, generals, and judges" of a nigger nation. He was probably right.

Orthodox Christianity—the religion of every sect that acknowledges the authority of the Christian Bible—explicitly authorizes slavery and enjoins upon slaves the duty of sedulously obeying the commands of their owners,[f] but malicious shysters and rabble-rousers can extract from the Scriptures passages that appeal to the malevolence of the envious and greedy, and which are consonant with the voodoo mentality. Nat's savage mind was ignited by the Christian doctrine he began to cite, the potentially Communist poison attributed to Jesus, "the last shall be first."[5]

f. See Liberty Bell, August 1993, pp. 13-20.

5. For citation of Scriptural passages, see the note on p. 10 of the June issue.

Nat was still an adolescent when he began to preach to the niggers of the region, soon attracting quite a following, and he became known among his kind as The Preacher. And he, conscious of a divinely-ordained mission, seems to have directed his rant from the first to a purpose suited to his voodoo mentality. Since he concealed that purpose from his masters by studied hypocrisy, his professed Christian piety pleased his simple-minded owners and further contributed to the privileges given him, since they assumed that his influence on the other members of his race was beneficial and encouraged such things as simple honesty, an illusion that Nat cleverly confirmed by holding himself aloof from the normal nigger habits of petty theft and gross sensuality.

By his orating, he acquired a great influence over the negroes of the region, including, no doubt, some who had been freed.[g] We may be sure that most of his audience did not understand what he said: they liked the sound, admired what seemed mastery of the White man's language, and the flow of words to which they may have attributed a magical power.[5] But in his ignorant and brutish congregations Nat was able to find tools fitting his concealed purposes, whom he could enlist as fellow conspirators when the time came.

That Nat really believed in his supernatural mission we may well believe, but he also knew that success depended on showmanship and deceit. In his Confession, as recorded by Mr. Gray, he said "Having soon discovered [myself] to be great, I must appear so, and thereafter studiously avoided mixing in society, and wrapped myself

g. Emancipated niggers were always a potential cause of subversion because they naturally taunted the slaves with their servitude, often while simultaneously cheating them. One can only marvel at the stupidity of the Southerners who did not insist that all emancipated negroes be immediately returned to the continent from which they or their ancestors had been brought.

5. For an illustration of Congoid superstition about use of the White man's language, see pp. 9-10 in the June issue.

in mystery, devoting my time to fasting and prayer." He denied having employed conjuring tricks, but there were reports from niggers in his "congregations" that he, for example, impressed them by spitting up at will quantities of blood, a trick he performed with the aid of a red dye used by White women, almost all of whom made their own clothes.

Nat, encouraged by messages from a supernatural power, conveyed by such means as a partial eclipse of the sun for Nat's benefit, nursed and matured his plans in secret for years. In the meantime, Mr. Turner, who had raised, educated, and patronized him, died, probably, if my precarious inference from ambiguous evidence is correct, when Nat was twenty-six or twenty-seven. He was sold, presumably by Mrs. Turner, to a certain Putnam Moore, who soon died himself, leaving only an infant and possibly posthumous son as his heir. Mrs. Sarah W. Moore (née Francis) soon married Joseph Travis, taking Nat with her to her new husband's farm—and thus unwittingly contriving his death, her own, and the murder of her little son by Moore and of the infant she had borne her second husband.

Before he was taken to Mr. Travis's farm, Nat's plans had been confirmed by another miracle. His own explanation of his conduct was that in the spring of 1828 he heard "a loud noise in the heavens" and "the spirit instantly appeared to me and said the Serpent was loosened, and Christ had laid down the yoke he had borne for the sins of man, and that I should take it on and fight against the Serpent, for the time was fast approaching when the first should be last and the last should be first." Note that this typical fit of religious insanity made Nat the appointed successor of Jesus, i.e., a nigger Christ. To his voodoo mentality, it was obvious that the mission of a black Christ was to massacre White men, women, and children. To his credit, however, it did not occur to him that his piety would be enhanced by prolonged torture of his White victims.[h]

After he was thus confirmed in his messianic mission, Nat spent almost three years in preparation for his epiphany.

It was nicely ironical that on Sunday, 25 August 1831, the Travis family spent the day at what was called a "camp meeting," listening to the rant of evangelists, which they probably took seriously, and incidentally profiting from the opportunity to meet White families of the county who were not immediate neighbors. Nat, after giving his followers enthusiasm from a copious supply of brandy, organized the seven in whom he had confidence to carry out his plan, doubtless adorning it with typical rodomontade. Since Nat seems to have been a comparatively puny nigger,[i] it may be significant that of the seven, one, Hark, who belonged to Mr. Travis and was devoted to Nat, was "a magnificently and powerfully built black man," suggesting an alliance between cunning weakness and stolid strength, such as sometimes has sexual implications. Two of the other recruits belonged to Mrs. Travis's brother, Nathaniel Francis.

At ten o'clock the conspirators, one of whom had kept the Travis's house under observation, broke into the house without awakening the family. Nat, armed with a hatchet, tried to kill Mr. Travis, whom he doubtless despised for his kindness, but the blow was a glancing one, and one of the Preacher's followers had to split Mr. Travis' skull with a broadaxe and then perform the same service for Mrs. Travis. It is to be noticed that on this and many

h. Compare the delights of the nigger Colonel in one of the "independent republics" set up by Aryan traitors excited to "anti-colonialism" by Jewish propaganda and the residue of Christianity in their feeble minds. Isaiah Oake, op. cit., describes in some detail the very exquisite tortures that the Colonel and his witch-doctor inflicted on an Englishmen, so stupid that he had come to Africa to help the newly independent nation—torments that were ingeniously prolonged by using the resources of modern medical science.

i. He had first planned to begin his massacres on the fourth of July, but had to postpone the good work because of ill health.

subsequent occasions, Nat, who must have been both awkward and comparatively weak, was never able to strike a killing blow with either axe or sword, and his work had to be finished by his followers.[8]

The rest of the Travis family was speedily butchered. The black Christ and his seven henchmen dressed themselves in the White men's clothes and, finding some red cloth, tore it up to adorn themselves in keeping with their racial instinct.[9] They also acquired four shotguns, several muskets, and powder-and-shot, and set out to surprise and butcher other White families in the neighborhood, with notable success.

After murdering several White families, the savages came to the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Turner, who quite possibly was the widow of the Mr. Turner who had raised Nat. She lived with another widow, her sister, and employed a White overseer of her slaves. All were butchered with the ferocity normal in Congoids.

It is unnecessary to detail the career of the rabid niggers. They succeeded in slaughtering a total of between sixty and one hundred White men, women, and children, often mutilating the corpses with their instinctive savagery. The series of attacks on isolated families is outlined by Clifford Dowdey, op. cit., pp. 16-22, to which I refer you.

We need notice only what is particularly significant. (1) The Preacher's success brought him many recruits, eager to join the fun, including—nota bene—some freed negroes, who owed their freedom to the kindness and generosity of the master who liberated them for meritorious service or liberated all his slaves by will. (2) Some slaves remained loyal to their masters, warned them and tried to help them hide; there are even instances in which they fought for

8. He is said to have succeeded once in killing a woman who was already wounded and unconscious.

9. In the days of the slave trade, a nigger, especially a young one, could often be bought from his family for a few yards of bright red cloth.

them. (3) A certain Captain Barrow held off the whole gang of murderers for some time and until a nigger got him in the back. His courage and prowess so impressed the Preacher and his men that they cut off his head and drank his blood. That, of course, was only natural, although it may be odd that they did not also eat selected parts of him.[10]

The black Christ and his sixty or more disciples met their first check when they encountered a band of eighteen White men, who opened fire. In the brief combat which followed, the boldest niggers were killed and the rest fled. The Preacher with some twenty followers escaped and headed for the next county, where he obtained some fresh recruits. They thought to creep up on the home of Dr. Blunt, a prosperous physician who had an establishment that, though modest, really deserved the name of plantation. After the marauders broke in the gate of the surrounding fence, Dr. Blunt, his fifteen-year-old son, and his manager opened fire with muskets and shotguns that were reloaded by the women of the family. A few volleys sufficed to kill some niggers and daunt the rest; then Dr. Blunt's slaves, armed with hoes and other improvised weapons, set upon the assailants, who ran. Nat had only a dozen disciples left when the cavalry of the Greenville-County militia rode them down, killing or capturing all except Nat and two of his men. He managed to hide until October, when a poor White farmer captured him.

Nat and fifty-two accomplices, including five freed negroes, were brought to trial. They were given a fair trial. The freed negroes were allowed to appeal to the Supreme Court. Some were hanged, some transported, and a few acquitted.

10. You may recall that when Aryan idiots made the Ivory Coast a "free and independent republic," the leading natives so admired their Ambassador to the "United Nations" that when he returned home, they ate him, intending, of course, thus to acquire his talents.

THE KHAZARS

The publication of an early translation into Ladino of Yehudah[1] (ben Shemu'el) al-Levi's often cited book about the Khazars[2] suggests that a summary statement of the question it raises may be of interest.

The Khazars, a tribe of uncertain race, first appear in history shortly before A.D. 198, when they occupied a part of the Caucasus and the northwestern shores of the Caspian Sea. Their 'heartland' appears to have been the delta of the Volga, which flows by many channels into the Caspian. Their most important neighbors were the Alani, a Sarmatian people of Iranian (Aryan) origin. Through this territory passed wave after wave of peoples migrating westward from central Asia, Tatars, Bulgars, Slavs, and many others, whom it would be tedious to enumerate. The Khazars and their neighbors were conquered and subjugated by the Huns in 448 and by the Turks in 560,

1, The Hebrew name YHWDH, now vocalized as Yehudah, is often written in English as 'Judas' or 'Judah' on the basis of the forms found in the Septuagint and "New Testament," which represent the pronunciation in the two centuries divided by the beginning of the Christian Era. The name simply means 'Jew.' The Hebrew spelling may have been devised to create a religious etymology by which the name could be interpreted as meaning 'Yahweh leads' or 'is praised.'

2. Ladino is the mongrel language the Jews made out of Spanish, as they made Yiddish out of German. Ladino was used by Jews throughout the Mediterranean world, as Yiddish was used in Northern Europe. (Cf. Liberty Bell, May 1985, pp. 11-17). The book in question is YEHUDAH HALEVI, The Book of the Khazars...a 12th Century Ladino translation..., edited by Moshe Lazar and Robert Dilligan. Culver City, California; Labyrinthos, 1990. It is reviewed unfavorably by Dwayne E. Carpenter in Speculum, LXVIII (1993), pp. 534 f. He does not raise the tactless question why compositors' time, paper, ink, and space on library shelves should be wasted by this publication. So far as I can judge from the review, no one seems to have made the preliminary investigation that should have preceded publication. Was the Ladino translation made from the Arabic original or from the translation into Mediaeval Hebrew? Is the Ladino translation accurate? If so, it is worthless; if not, does it contain mistranslations that might have given rise to some later writer's mistakes about the subject or contents of the original? If not, it is worthless. Only if it explains some important misconceptions (I do not know of any) was the publication justified.

but recovered their independence, and around 600 established a stable monarchy that, from its capital, Itil, at the mouth of the Volga, ruled a territory extending from the northern shore of the Caspian to Crimea, and flourished until 884, after which it rapidly declined. The Khazars were finally conquered by the tribes of southern Russia under the command of Verangian (Scandinavian) rulers in 965, and disappeared from history.

If the Khazars had a literature, it has vanished without a trace. We cannot even identify their language. Our information about them comes almost entirely from Moslem travelers and historians, supplemented by references (not always perspicuous) in Byzantine chronicles.

During the period of their great prosperity, the Khazars' realm had a population that doubtless retained genetic elements from all the diverse races and ethnic groups that had passed through the territory. There was a much inferior race, the Kara Khazars, described as squat, ugly, and having dark complexion; they may have been biological débris left behind by the Huns. The ruling class is described as having white skin and black hair; the men were of good stature, fine physique. and considered handsome; the beauty of the women was celebrated.

The prosperity of the Khazars depended on their geographical position athwart the trade routes between East and West, North and South. Goods from many lands were imported, bought, sold, and exported. When you know that, you need not be told that the race of international parasites swarmed into Kazaria, not only battening on commerce but, like the 'court Jews' of Mediaeval Europe, attaching themselves to the ruling dynasty and the aristocracy as physicians, financial agents, and administrators. We may be quite certain that from the rise of the Khazar kingdom to its decline, the land was lousy with Jews. Our historical knowledge is so fragmentary that there is no evidence that they contributed to the nation's decline and downfall, in keeping with their racial habits.

It is certain that there never was a state religion in Khazaria to which the rulers tried to convert their subjects by either persuasion or coercion. A large part of the population doubtless retained their native ("pagan") beliefs, and there were conversions to Christian and Moslem cults, and doubtless also to the Jews' religion. It is hard to believe that any member of the ruling class was actually converted to Judaism and submitted to the barbaric rite of circumcision. Whether Jewish physicians, like their fellow tribesmen in the United States, promoted the sexual mutilation of male infants of other races is not known.

It is true that after the Arabic conquest of Persia the Khazar kings professed Judaism, at least nominally. That was simply an act of political prudence. Their policy was to remain, so far as possible, at peace with both of their powerful neighbors, the Moslems and the Christians, and to avoid alliances with either. Had they remained "pagan," both powers would have been eager to invade their realm and slaughter them ad maiorem gloriam Dei, and if they had professed either Islam or Christianity, they would have exposed themselves to godly incursions and perhaps conquest by the other power. But the two fanatical religions that were irreconcilable antagonists were both based on Jewish mythology and thus required to tolerate and protect the insidious race that had supposedly been the sole concern and cherished darlings of their God for millennia. For the Khazar kings, a profession, perhaps hypocritical, of Judaism was politically necessary.

The history of Khazaria, so far as we can reconstruct it from our few sources, would be no more interesting than the history of any other of the many barbaric kingdoms that suddenly appeared and quickly disintegrated in the course of the sad history of mankind, but for the questions that were suggested by the description above. How extensive and numerous were the conversions to Judaism among the Khazars? And when the fortunes of the Khazars sharply declined, their numerous parasites would naturally seek more prosperous hosts, so whither did they go?

The Khazars who migrated in large numbers into the increasingly prosperous nations of northern Europe were either Khazars who had been converted to Judaism or were "Khazars" only as most of the Jews who swarmed into the United States in the Nineteenth Century were "Germans."

During the past century, many Christians who resented the depredations of the Jews, chiefly Ashkenazim, but wanted to retain faith in their favorite story-book elaborated the theory that their parasites were not really God's People but only the descendants of Khazars who had been converted to Judaism. The theoretical evasion was so attractive to them that it became an article of Faith, and it was finally adopted by a prominent Jew, Arthur Koestler, who expounded it in The Thirteenth Tribe: the Khazar Empire and Its Heritage (New York, Random House, 1976).[3]

This brings us to Yehudah (Judah) ha-Levi. He was a Jewish physician, born c. 1085, who, after the Christian conquest of Toledo, moved to Cordova, then still Moslem territory, where he assumed an Arabic name, Abu'l Ḥasan, much as Jews in our world assume English or Scotch names. Probably in 1140, shortly before his death, he wrote, in passable Arabic, a book with a formidable title, Kitab al-Ḥujjah wal-Dalil fi Nuṣr al-Din al-Dhalil. This was translated from the Arabic into German by Hartweg Hirschfeld and published at Breslau in 1885.[4]

3. Despite his odd claim that his book did not invalidate his race's claim to the territory now called Israel, Koestler's demolition of the "Chosen People" myth was savagely denounced by many of his fellow Ashkenazim. Some speculate that the hostility of his fellow tribesmen may have influenced the joint suicide of Koestler and his wife not long thereafter.

4. I have not consulted this work, which is rather rare, but fundamental to any throughgoing consideration of the question I am cursorily presenting here. I do not know whether the Arabic text has been published; if not, it certainly called for the effort that was wasted on the paltry Ladino version. I also do not know whether ha-Levi's Arabic differs substantially from the translation, mentioned below, from which it is commonly cited.

A prolific Jewish writer, commonly known as Judah ben Saul ibn Tibbon (1120-c. 1191), who was born in Spain but spent the greater part of his life in southern France, translated ha-Levi's work into Rabbinic Hebrew under the title Sefer ha-Kuzari ("Book of the Khazars"), and it is in this form that the work is generally known. The accuracy of the translation is problematical: ibn Tibbon is quoted as having confessed in another work that he knew Arabic, which he regarded as much the superior language, better than any kind of Hebrew, and having said that his method was to make a literal translation of an Arabic original and then rewrite it in his Hebrew as though it were an original work of his own. So far as I know, however, this fact has given qualms to none of the many who cite ha-Levi from that translation with unqualified confidence. I cite it on the assumption that the translation preserves at least the principal substance of the original.

The author, ha-Levi, wrote, as I have noted above, long after the Khazars had disappeared, but he knew of them and had heard that the rulers of the Khazars had adopted Judaism. His interest is theological, not historical. He imagines a long dialogue between a learned Jew, a Khazar king who is still a "pagan," and exponents of Christianity, Islam, and human reason. In five tedious chapters, the Jew "proves" that only a "revealed" religion has validity, and he refutes not only the Christian and Moslem doctrines, but mentions Neo-Platonism and produces an elaborate "refutation" of rational philosophy as represented by Aristotle, whom he treats with some respect, since he comes to the conclusion that if only Aristotle had lived at the proper time to become acquainted with the miracles wrought by Yahweh for his people, Aristotle would have been a convert to the True Religion of God's Race.

The long dialogue ends, needless to say, with the Khazar king's determination to become a Sheeny by adoption and to bestow on all of his subjects the blessings of Salvation.

I particularly call your attention to one of ha-Levi's two principal arguments: that the divinity of the Jews and their religion is proved by the fact that they alone possess a history of the world from its creation by Yahweh, i.e., the farrago of tales collected in what Christians call their "Old Testament." It may be highly significant in other contexts that the sequence of tales has an appearance of historicity that can impose on uncritical readers.[5]

Ha-Levi could have known a curious document which purports to be a letter from a Khazar King Joseph to a Jew of Cordova (Córdoba), and it is likely that he did, although that cannot be demonstrated. This letter is the only basis for the common story about the wholesale conversion of Khazars to Judaism that seems so important to our contemporaries, including Arthur Koestler.

Ḥasdai (ben Isaac) ibn Shaprut (915-990?), whose Arabic name was Abu Yusuf, was a Jewish physician famed for his suavity, his wisdom, his cunning, and his "thousand tricks,"[6] who used his knowledge of medicine, as Jews often did, to become physician to Moslem Caliph, 'Abd al-Raḥmán III, the Omayyad Emir of Cordova, who had proclaimed himself the Caliph of Islam in 929 and was the dominant power in the Iberian Peninsula until his death in 961. The wily Jew so captured that monarch's confidence that he became his confidant, financial officer, and minister of foreign affairs.

There is extant the text of a letter purportedly written by Ḥasdai in 960 or shortly before that date to the Jewish King of the Khazars, and of a reply from that King, Joseph

5. When speculating about what could have influenced our not unintelligent Germanic ancestors to succumb to so unnatural a religion as Christianity, I have often given weight to the Bible's simulation of historicity, especially in the appendix to the Jew-book called the "New Testament."

6. This eulogy of the Mediaeval Kissinger is quoted in the Jewish Encyclopaedia (1903), s.h.n.; the occasion was his success in inducing the Christian Queen of Navarre to recognize the Moslem Caliph as her overlord and place herself and her son under his protection.

ben Aaron, who gives an elaborate account of the Khazars' realm and the conversion of their king and virtually all the Khazars to Judaism at a much earlier time, apparently c. 740, when Yahweh sent a dream to Bulan, the Khazar King at that time, and inspired him to invite to his court "wise men of Israel," who speedily convinced him that he must worship the Jew's god. Bulan's successor, Obediah, imported flocks of rabbis to instruct all his subjects "in the Bible, the Mishnah, and the Talmud." The King who wrote the letter, Joseph ben Aaron, claimed to be a lineal descendant of the pious Obediah and to rule a religiously Jewish nation.

Is this exchange of letters genuine? Although we would expect it to have created something of a stir among the many Jews in Spain, there is no trace of it until about a century and a half later. Probably in the year 1100, a learned rabbi, Yehudah ben Barzillai, mentions the correspondence and quotes from King Joseph's letter after explicitly warning his readers that he in no way vouches for the authenticity of documents which may be, partially or entirely, tissues of lies. Proponents of the authenticity of the correspondence sweat as they try to explain away ben Barzillai's candid and judicious scepticism.

There are obviously two distinct questions. Did Ḥasdai write the letter purportedly addressed to the Khazar King (whether or not that letter was actually despatched)? He could have. The letter gives a glowing description of Moslem Spain that would have gratified 'Abd-al-Raḥmán III. It explains that the writer, having heard there was a kingdom of Jews in Asia, wanted to confirm that report and particularly hoped to find the "Ten Lost Tribes"[7] or obtain news of them.

7. If that subject interests you, consult the erudite, comprehensive, and massive work by Professor Arthur Godbey, The Lost Tribes, a Myth: Suggestions toward Rewriting Hebrew History (Durham, North Carolina; Duke University, 1930; reprinted with a new introduction, New York, Ktav Publishing House, 1974).

The obvious function of the letter is to introduce and validate the reply by King Joseph. Clever Ḥasdai could have written it (and the reply). So could any forger before 1100, if he took care to introduce no anachronisms in a letter purportedly written in or before 960. The real question before us, then, is posed by the letter from King Joseph.

To my mind, that letter is patently spurious. That is sufficiently proved by chronological considerations. If Ḥasdai had his inspiration to inquire in 960, that was just in time to get in before the Verangian conquest of the Khazar state in 965. And King Joseph, standing on the edge of the abyss, must have been a champion liar to give no hint of the desperate plight of his kingdom at the time he wrote.

We know from Arabic sources that decades before 960 the Khazar capital, Itil, had become a dwindling city, existing precariously on the customs-duties it could still collect from such trade as had not been taken over by the Verangian states or diverted southward, while the Khazar territory, instead of being the wide and peacefully prosperous realm that Joseph describes, had been progressively invaded and appropriated by its enemies and thus reduced to a fraction of what it had been a century before. In other words, if King Joseph wrote the letter in 960, he described as his realm the Khazar kingdom as it had existed in 800 or 850.

It does not really matter whether Joseph's letter was forged by Ḥasdai or both letters were forged by some later hand. A still later forger, probably in the Thirteenth Century, expanded Joseph's letter to produce what is called the Long Version, preserved by a manuscript in Russia.

Jewish writers have labored hard to prove the authenticity of the letter purportedly written by King Joseph, but all that they have proved is that most of the information about the Khazars given in that letter, except the mass conversion to Judaism, can be verified from

Arabic sources that describe Khazaria at one or another time in its history—sources which, obviously, could have been consulted by any forger before 1100. Some even go so far as to claim that the "Long Version" is the authentic text, and that the version known in 1100 was a "condensation" of it![8]

The Jews' interest in making King Joseph's letter authentic is explained by their pretense that they are a religion, not a race. If they are a religion, like Christianity and Islam, they must seek converts—and what better proof than that they once converted a whole kingdom?

If the letter attributed to King Joseph is a forgery, then there is no evidence whatsoever that any considerable number of Khazars were ever converted to Judaism. It will follow, therefore, that the "Khazars" who presumably became the Ashkenazim were simply parasites who flitted from the declining Khazar kingdom to regions where there were more prosperous goyim to be exploited. And if the swarms of Jews in Khazaria did not go north, what happened to them? A real "Holocaust" about which the race failed to howl and yammer? In short, we have no reason for doubting Professor Mourant's conclusion from haematological data that the Ashkenazim do not differ racially from other Jews.[9]

The fabulous conversion of the Khazars to Judaism is only one of the innumerable hoaxes contrived by a predatory race that has survived and surreptitiously conquered by its cohesion and virtual unanimity in insolently massive deceit.

8. This is done by Koestler, op. cit., although he honestly quotes the statistics that show the enormous differences in style and language between the two versions. So powerful is the will to believe what is patently false, which accounts for so large a part of religious and other belief in the supernatural today!

9. See Liberty Bell, July 1987, pp. 1-5; cf, May 1985, 15-17; December 1988, 2-4. The Jews' criterion of race (i.e., a real Jew must be the child of a Jewess, the race of the father being irrelevant) was explicable only in terms of mitochondrial heredity before the recent discovery that genes inherited from a mother differ in their genetic effects from the same genes inherited from a father.

SECRET DISCLOSED

The Polynesians are a hybrid race. It is generally agreed that they are basically a Caucasian (White) people that became mixed with one or more other primary or secondary races at a remote but uncertain time. Their stature and somatic formation is essentially Caucasoid; their color ranges from quite light to medium brown. They have a distinctive language, of which there are many dialects, related only to the Malayan tongue, and hence classified as Malayo-Polynesian. Their origin is obscure. They have a marked affinity to the Malays and may have been the Caucasoid people who first occupied the Malay peninsula and archipelago. It is generally believed that from some such location in Southeast Asia they spread throughout Oceania, but Thor Heyerdahl argues that they spread westward from South America. He is commonly ignored by professional anthropologists because he did not have an advanced degree, Philosophiae doctor or the equivalent, from a university. A candid observer may wonder whether the amalgam may not have come from two major and widely separated sources.

In relatively recent times, conjecturally beginning as early as c. A.D. 500 and certainly during the Eighth to Thirteenth Centuries they exhibited an extraordinary skill at navigation and in large catamarans (double-canoes), capable of carrying a hundred or even two hundred passengers for a voyage of a thousand miles or more, they migrated to, and established themselves on, many islands in the South Pacific. It must be only an odd coincidence that the period of their expansion roughly coincides with the navigation and exploits of the Vikings.

Aside from their remarkable skill as navigators, which must have been based on prolonged and accurate observation of the stars, the Polynesians were a neolithic people and may be described as either amiable savages or somewhat primitive and unambitious barbarians. They never developed a means of keeping records,[1] and their oral traditions are obviously unreliable. These suggest, however, that the Polynesians' first base in the Pacific was Samoa, where the best representatives of their dwindling race still live. Samoa is perhaps the region best known to literate Americans today, because it was the location of the great hoax perpetrated by Margaret Mead, which, given the prevalence of the Christian superstition about "all mankind,"[2] for decades served educators as a pretext for sabotaging the minds and souls of American children.

Whatever their point of departure, the Polynesians spread through what is called the 'Polynesian triangle' in the Pacific, reaching the Hawaiian islands on the north, perhaps in the Tenth Century, and New Zealand on the south, perhaps in the Thirteenth Century. They seem to have reached Easter Island at some time, and also Pitcairn Island, from which they vanished (either becoming extinct or abandoning the island) long before it was colonized by the mutineers from the Bounty in 1790. What is truly remarkable, they certainly invaded and for a time dominated Madagascar, the great island on the eastern coast of Africa. They may be responsible for the extinction of the Dinornis (Moa) in New Zealand and Aepyornis on Madagascar.

The best-known Polynesians were those who found and inhabited nesiotic paradises in the South Pacific, especially Tahiti and Samoa, celebrated by Herman Melville and countless other writers. On their islands, the Polynesians, divided into tribes governed by an aristocracy of chieftains

1. It follows, therefore, that the still undeciphered rongo-rongo writing on Easter Island, which has such strange points of similarity to the writing of the Indus Valley civilization, cannot be attributed to Polynesians.

2. A rational nation would have ignored the Mead woman's hoax because it would have known that whatever might be true of Polynesians on Samoa had no relevance to the life and culture of Aryans in North America. Margaret Mead was the unmaidenly handmaiden of Franz Boas, a twisted and venomous little Jew, who, by intrigues still unelucidated, became a professor in Columbia University and devised "social anthropology" as a weapon against our race. One of his hoaxes deceived Oswald Spengler and perturbed his understanding of racial genetics.

(who were distinguished by lighter complexions), formed simple but stable societies. Tribal warfare was essentially a recreation and amusement, rather than attempted conquest. Life on the more paradisal islands was supremely easy and the population correspondingly happy. Overpopulation was prudently avoided by methods that scandalized Christian missionaries when those pests arrived and began to delude and corrupt the natives. Sexual practices differed greatly from island to island, as did the attitudes toward Europeans, who were given a generous hospitality on the islands that were richest in natural abundance, and were sometimes treacherously massacred on islands where life was more difficult.

Their great migrations over the ocean were evidently inspired by a desire to find an amoenous home, and when that purpose had been realized, the techniques of long-distance navigation fell into desuetude and commonly were gradually forgotten. There was a general decline in the Polynesians' abilities, which cannot be strictly correlated to relative ease of life on the various islands. There are examples of so great a social deterioration that islanders forgot even the simple techniques needed to obtain fish that they particularly prized as esculent delicacies. We cannot here go into the details of that odd decline, which preceded the racial disaster.

When Europeans discovered the insular paradises in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, they brought with them syphilis, Christianity, and other somatic and psychic maladies that all but destroyed the Polynesians. Harassed and oppressed by missionaries, exploited by greedy adventurers, and eventually made subjects of European empires with their commercial interests, the Polynesian race rapidly dwindled. On Tahiti, for example, where the native population was estimated at 500,000 when the islands were discovered by Europeans, true Polynesians are now virtually extinct, although there is, of course, a large number of mongrels, produced by miscegenation with Europeans, Chinese, and, to some extent, Melanesians (who belong to an entirely different race).

This highly condensed and summary account of the Polynesians serves only to introduce the real subject of this little article.

According to the New Scientist, 10 July 1993,[3] Erika Hagelberg and John Clegg of the Institute of Molecular Medicine at Oxford, have determined that Polynesians "lack a sequence of nine base pairs in the non-coding fifth region of their mitochondrial DNA,"[4] and that a corresponding "deletion" is not found in the bones of the extinct people commonly regarded as their ancestors. It also is not found in Aryans and perhaps all Caucasoids.[5] In other words, the biologists at Oxford have discovered one of the genetic "markers" (there may be and doubtless are others) that positively identify the Polynesian race, and have disclosed that fact to the general public.

Everyone who has thought seriously and logically about the world today and the plight of our race has necessarily nourished hopes that the vast project of "mapping the human genome" now underway and in which a host of molecular biologists are participating, would eventually, perhaps not until well into the coming century, make possible a strictly scientific classification and taxonomy of races, superseding the sadly confused and ambiguous nomenclature now in use.

The biologists at Oxford have now disclosed the existence of a means of determining, by analysis of the clusters of deoxyribonucleic acid in chromosomes, a distinctive racial

3. The periodical is summarizing an article in the Proceedings of the Royal Society, CCLII (1993), pp. 163 f., which I do not have at hand.

4. It will be remembered that according to Jewish definitions, mitochondrial heredity is the source of Jewishness and thus determines membership in that hybrid race. It follows that there must be genetic "markers" peculiar to Jews, which can be identified to supplement and confirm the haematological data now available.

5. Presumably, therefore, if the somatic evidence of Caucasian antecedents is valid, the "deletion" was caused by the amalgamation of genetic elements that formed the stable race of hybrids.

characteristic and thus positively identifying a race with all its somatic and psychic peculiarities.

Christianity, which is essentially a mad denial of reality, infected our race with the absurd dogma that all talking anthropoids are descendants of Adam and Eve and therefore do not significantly differ ("neither Jew nor gentile") except as they have been doused in magic water and got Jesus on their brains. This delusion, as a poisonous residue, survived the accompanying superstitions about the supernatural, and is a dogma in the ostensibly atheistic religion that was founded by Mordecai, alias Karl Marx. It is, therefore, an indispensable part of the confused notions that fill the cerebra of "Liberals."

For example, Yale University was founded by Christians but soon became a distinguished institution of higher learning and a citadel of our culture. Its present degradation and intellectual squalor is of quite recent origin. I should suppose that among its faculty and student-body there are few, if any, who believe the tall tales told in the Christians' story-book. But a few years ago, when the eminent Dr. William Shockley came to Yale to deliver a lecture about one of the most obvious differences between civilized peoples and Congoids, a horde of undergraduates, zombies, programmed in this country's boob-hatcheries and moron-mills, poured into the lecture hall, shrieking and spitting, and created such a din that the speaker could not be heard. To the dim minds of those "intellectuals," their uproar doubtless constituted conclusive proof that there was no difference between races. Or, if they were not quite that stupid, their effort to hasten the suicide and extinction of their (and our) race warmed the nasty little creatures with a glow of Christian righteousness.

That is one reason why educated and sagacious men who want to act for the survival of our race must understand the deadly residue that a now unbelievable religion has left in the minds of our people.

SPORTING EVENT

The Chicago Tribune and perhaps other newspapers reported on 7 June 1993 an event in Liberia which, although merely normal, is of some slight ethnological interest. One of the three or more armies of savages that are roaming about in Liberia,[1] financed and supplied with modern weapons by Aryan imbeciles, rushed to take advantage of the distribution of free food carried out, chiefly at the expense of American taxpayers, by the vaudeville show called the "United Nations," a device for implementation of the Jews' New World Order.

On the ruins of a plantation that had been established by the Firestone Rubber Co. in the 1920s in a mistaken (and, of course, futile) attempt to help the Congoids in Liberia, an army of niggers[2] came upon a horde of nigger refugees, almost all women and children, and, since the refugees could offer no resistance, took time out for one of their favorite sports.

According to the report in the press, "They cut throats, they cut heads, threw out brains, opened stomachs and pulled out intestines, and broke legs, and shot, so many bullet wounds that you cannot understand why." Although the pudic reporter did not say so, you may be sure that the black sportsmen did not overlook the genital organs. He added that it is generally assumed that parts of the bodies were saved and

1. Liberia was established in 1821 on land purchased by the American Colonization Society to provide a home for emancipated slaves from the United States. The effort was denounced and sabotaged by the sleazy gang of crazed fanatics and cunning thieves called "Abolitionists" before 1861 and "radical Republicans" thereafter. See Liberty Bell, June 1993, pp.14-15; August. pp. 21-24. Some idealists were surprised when the niggers, freed from slavery in the United States, promptly enslaved native niggers after the Americans declared the country independent in 1847 and they were freed from White supervision.

2. The "army," doubtless a mere horde of nigger rabble, was reported to be the one commanded by a nigger named Charles Taylor, who is called a "rebel" because his chief rival is currently the pet of the gang in the White House in Washington, but there is no significant difference between the three boss niggers who are claiming to be a "legitimate government." Taylor claims that the massacre was the work of his rivals with the coöperation of the horde of 12,000 savages from other parts of Africa, especially Nigeria, that is maintained as a "peace-keeping force" by the clowns of the "United Nations." He may be right, but, of course, it doesn't really matter.

will be used for witchcraft, "which is common in West Africa."[3]

The number killed and dismembered in that Sunday morning is said to be three hundred. The army, evidently exhilarated by their recreational activity, went on to enjoy another camp, where "the death toll may be much higher." According to the reporter, the happy niggers "went from house to house killing entire families in the most horrifying manner."

The "orgy of killing and mutilation" is, as I have said, merely normal, but I mention it here as a convenient illustration of the biological fact that, as I remarked in my article, "Divinest Poesy" in June, niggers are niggers.

About the same time, the paper called USA Today reported that within two days there had been seventeen murders in Washington, D.C., a figure sufficiently above par to arouse some comment. How many of the victims were White was not stated.

The score seems to have excited some little concern, though not, I suppose, among intelligent "Liberal intellectuals," who must be profoundly gratified by the success of their campaign for "Civil Rights," and stimulated by a hope for ever better scores throughout the future. Some dim-witted "intellectuals" may be displeased by the ever increasing number of nigger crimes in Washington and many other cities, which they did not foresee, but for which they are morally responsible through their perverse ignorance of elementary facts and their obstinate determination to revolt against nature and

3. Faith in ju-ju is instinctive and innate in Congoids and is not affected by their use of the products of our civilization, such as the most modern rifles and Rolls-Royce automobiles. Their mentality is fundamentally and unalterably different from our own, and, like the mentality of chimpanzees or baboons, is so alien to us that we can attain a partial understanding of it only by observation of their behavior in their own habitat. See the article by Noël Hunt that I summarized in Liberty Bell, May 1986, pp. 9-16.

reality. They are now estopped from offering advice on any political or social topic.

As the late Professor Feynman remarked, "Nature cannot be fooled." The rant of malicious or stultified "intellectuals," no matter how loud and persevering, can never alter the simple facts of biology. A rose will always be a rose, and a nigger will always be a nigger.

LÀ-BAS AND LOWER

A kind reader informs me that the novel, Là-bas, a study in real Satanism from a Christian standpoint by Joris-Karl Huÿsman, which I mentioned in Liberty Bell, January 1993, p. 10, n. 7, is available in an English translation reprinted in Dover's series of well-made paperback volumes.[1] He adds that the translation, although published anonymously, is by Montague Summers, a distinguished writer, who was, among other things, an authority on witchcraft, vampires, and comparable phenomena.[2] I can therefore recommend the translation without having seen it.

In August 1992, p. 7, n. 12, I expressed doubt that there could be a completely literal translation into English of the works of the great champion of the French Revolution, the "Marquis" de Sade, but my correspondent informs me that "the Grove Press has published De Sade's complete works in unexpurgated translations, and these books have to be seen to be believed!" I shall take his opinion of the accuracy of the translations. I have read all of De Sade's major works with care and attention, and

1. All of these volumes that I have seen were printed in signatures, as were all decent books before the economic stringency of recent decades. These books are seldom available in bookstores, but may be had directly from Dover Publications, 180 Varick Street, New York City (10014).

2. He translated into English the famous Malleus maleficarum, a quarto volume also reprinted by Dover. He is the author of A History of Witchcraft and Demonology (1926), The Geography of Witchcraft (1927), The Vampire (1928), The Werewolf (1933), and other works on the same subject. His interests were not confined to the supernatural; he also wrote learnedly on Restoration drama and on Jane Austen.

have extensive notes on them, but to read them again would, I feel, go far beyond the call of duty.

I cannot share the kind reader's opinion when he writes, "The 'Divine Marquis' is merely a humorist. It is impossible to read him without guffawing. [I quail!] Real literary sadism can be found in Le jardin des supplices, by Octave Mirabeau. This is the most horrifying book I have ever read. This, too, is now out in several English language editions."

I remember having read Mirabeau's later novels, Le journal d'une femme de chambre (1900) and Les vingt-et-un jours d'un neurasthénique (1901), and one of his plays, Les affaires sont les affaires (1903), but I overlooked Le jardin des supplices (1898), and so missed the real horror. I have ordered a copy. ❑

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?

SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 including postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

Nazi Gas Chambers

The Answer to Dr. Faurisson's Challenge

By
Friedrich Paul Berg

In his recent article in the Journal for Historical Review about the new Holocaust museum in Washington, Robert Faurisson repeated the nine-word challenge he had originally made in March 1992 in Sweden: "Show me or draw me a Nazi gas chamber!" The same article also contained a great deal of nonsense about German delousing chambers. In footnote 3, for example, he claimed that a "Zyklon B delousing gas chamber could not have been used as a homicidal gas chamber" because of "the extreme difficulty of removing gas from the skin, mucous membranes, and bodily fluids of a corpse." Faurisson is mistaken! The standard Degesch delousing chambers could have been easily adapted for mass murder by the mere addition of some internal screening or metal grating so that people trapped inside could not wreck essential equipment which was readily accessible from within the chambers. That equipment included an automatic can-opener, a wire-mesh basket to hold Zyklon B granules, a radiator and a special four-way valve. No further changes would have been needed.

Except for their modest size, usually only ten cubic meters, these modified delousing chambers would have been extremely effective for mass murder. The absence of screening or gratings is proof, however, that these real gas chambers—many of which were actually in place in concentration camps such as Auschwitz and Maidanek, sometimes even in crematory buildings as at Dachau—were never used for mass murder. The exterminationists are perfectly correct when they show Degesch delousing chambers as gas chambers; they are perfectly dishonest, however, when they fail to explain that these chambers would have been completely impractical for mass murder without some shielding of essential equipment or some kind of restraint, shackling perhaps, of the intended victims. To use delousing chambers for homicide without any shielding of vital equipment or restraint of the victims would be comparable to trying to execute someone in an American gas chamber without first strapping them into the chair.

Railroad delousing tunnels (400 to 1600 cubic meters in size) for fumigating entire railroad trains, several cars at a time, would not have required any modifications at all; we can presume that the intended victims would have already been trapped inside cattle-type railcars. These delousing tunnels would have also had the great advantage that after forced venting inside the tunnels, the railroad cars filled with corpses could be pulled out and replaced almost immediately with another batch of fresh victims in railcars. What an enormously efficient operation one could have had! Dozens of batches per day, perhaps! Railroad cars filled with corpses could be parked at a rail siding to allow additional open air venting if that was deemed necessary or simply vented with moving air over several hours or days on the way to some isolated ravine or garbage incinerator anywhere in Europe.

While on the subject of corpse disposal, I will digress somewhat to suggest that cremation only makes sense if one intends to return a portion of the actual ashes of a corpse to the true family members; otherwise, cremation makes no sense at all. The ash is totally worthless compared to the far greater amounts of coal needed to produce it—the fertilizer claim is a bad joke indeed. Crematory ovens are specially designed for one primary purpose which is to allow recovery of ashes from one corpse at a time free of any other ash, either from the coal used as fuel or from another corpse. If one intended to merely destroy evidence of murder, incineration as is commonly practised for garbage disposal would be many times quicker and more efficient in every respect, especially in terms of the amounts of fuel consumed. One could still gather enough ashes to fill urns and deceive family members but, oddly enough, it has never been claimed in any of the Holocaust literature that garbage incinerators such as those inside Kremas 2 and 3 in Birkenau were ever used for anything but garbage. The startling fact is that by practicing cremation the Nazis and the SS went to considerable lengths and expense to treat the dead with genuine respect—even when many of the dead were Jews.

As to the gas chambers themselves, except for the shielding of some of the equipment inside the delousing chambers, the standard Degesch delousing chambers and the large railroad delousing tunnels contained all of the features needed for mass-murder. They all had a safe and relatively quick means of producing and dispersing a lethal concentration of cyanide throughout each chamber; specially coated and insulated walls to maintain a minimum temperature and reduce cyanide penetration and loss; and circulation blowers and ductwork to thoroughly ventilate the chambers with fresh air in about one hour after a batch of victims had been killed. The venting phase could just as easily last several hours depending upon the discretion of the operator. During all this time, the entire contents including corpses would have also been heated, contrary to another Faurisson claim, to temperatures at least ten degrees above the boiling point of cyanide. Cyanide boils at 78 degrees Fahrenheit. In this way the amounts of cyanide condensing on walls, clothing, skin, etc., would have been practically nil even before the venting phase began. Some cyanide may, nonetheless, have been retained by moisture near body openings but the danger to workers removing corpses could have easily been minimized with rubber gloves and by keeping the blowers operating while the corpses were removed.

Faurisson's claims that "oceans of hydrocyanic acid" would have been required and that the corpses as well as the chambers would have been "saturated" with HCN is pure fantasy! He is apparently unaware of the meaning of the word "saturate" and of the fact that the amount of HCN needed to kill someone is less than one gram whereas the amount needed to "saturate" a corpse is at least a thousand times greater. Practically all of the lethal dosage of HCN would enter through the lungs and not the skin.

Faurisson has repeatedly overstated the danger of HCN absorption through the skin. Although skin certainly does absorb HCN, it does so rather slowly. According to a source which Faurisson has himself used, 10 minutes are required to overcome a man with a gas mask whose skin is exposed to a concentration of 2% HCN in air. The typical lethal concentration for an execution chamber and for delousing is only 0.1%—in other words, the lethal gas need only be one-twentieth as strong as the gas used in Faurisson's reference. If one applies a rule of thumb or reciprocity known sometimes as Henderson's Rule, one would need twenty times as long to cause the same toxic effect. In other words, approximately 200 minutes or three hours of exposure to 0.1% HCN would be needed to overcome a worker wearing a gas mask but whose skin is exposed.

It is almost inconceivable, however, that workers removing corpses would be exposed to anything near these concentrations after the doors were opened. Depending upon the duration of the forced venting of the chamber, the cyanide levels confronting workers would be far, far less than 0.1%; that was why, after all, the chambers would have been force vented in the first place before the doors were opened. The principal danger to workers removing corpses is from cyanide vapors gradually leaving corpses and walls and then mixing with air surrounding the workers. However, with the circulation blowers continuing to bring fresh air into the chambers, the cyanide levels in air would be maintained easily enough at extremely low levels, safe enough for workers wearing rubber gloves to remove corpses without also wearing gas masks. In other words, the danger of HCN absorption through parts of the skin not covered with rubber gloves is negligible in a Degesch delousing chamber or tunnel if it is operated correctly.

Although cyanide gas leaving an American execution chamber is neutralized chemically before it is discharged to atmosphere, the Degesch chambers from all I have seen in the German literature never used neutralizing equipment although the cyanide concentrations for delousing were about the same as for US executions. The delousing chambers discharged 0.1% HCN directly to atmosphere and apparently relied on dilution with outside air as well as the fact that cyanide rises in air. No forty feet high chimneys either!

As to the airing and sometimes beating of items outdoors after a normal delousing procedure in a Degesch standard delousing gas chamber, Faurisson fails to understand that the need to remove every last trace of cyanide is far greater for deloused clothing than it would have been for victims of mass-murder. Among the items most often deloused were blankets and bedsheets and undergarments which would subsequently remain in intimate contact with people for many hours at a time. Dangerous amounts of cyanide would, if they were present, slowly leave those items and could enter an individual, especially if they were asleep, either through the lungs or the skin; no comparable danger is likely from corpses of murdered Jews.

The execution procedures employed in the US are quite elaborate for many reasons having nothing whatever to do with any likely requirements for mass-murder. One goal of US execution procedures is to kill quickly and painlessly. The executee must also be easily observable during his or her agony through a large window by a host of witnesses, ordinary citizens generally, who, if the spectacle makes them uncomfortable or puts anyone (other than the executee) in the slightest danger, may appeal to whomever to disallow executions in the future. To insist that the Germans would have had to employ similar or even more elaborate procedures for mass-murder is ridiculous. Executions in the US by hanging or firing squads are also elaborate. Murder, or better yet, war must be impossible because of the complex procedures used to execute people in Missouri and Maryland. Accounts of hundreds of thousands of soldiers dying from poison gas during World War I must, according to Faurisson, be fabrications as well.

A far better line of argument which is technically correct is the following: Since the Germans actually had equipment and technology easily adaptable for mass-murder in their concentration camps and in major railroad centers such as Budapest, why didn't they use it for mass-murder? Why wasn't this technology used in Auschwitz or Dachau or Budapest? Why would the Nazis have employed rather ordinary, dreary cellars with little holes in the ceilings instead of well-designed delousing chambers or at least large-scale variations of those chambers? To be consistent with the extermination theory, the answers to the above questions must of necessity be so bizarre that no one could possibly believe them.

Another false argument Faurisson has repeatedly used is that cyanide gas is explosive and, therefore, could never have been used near crematory ovens. Fred Leuchter was apparently persuaded to fall in line and use the same argument. The fact is that cyanide in air is only flammable in concentrations higher than 6%—in other words, the concentration of HCN in air must be at least 60 times greater than the 0.1% one is likely to use in a homicidal gas chamber—before it can even begin to become explosive! If the cyanide level exceeds 6% in only a small area—just above an opened can of Zyklon B, for example—the worst that one can get is a flame, but no explosion!

No one deserves more admiration for his courage than Dr. Robert Faurisson—but we must not let our respect and sympathy for a great man blind us. If Holocaust revisionists can not come to their senses and separate themselves from seemingly easy but thoroughly false arguments, more Pressacs will emerge and with good reason.

As to Faurisson's challenge to show him a Nazi gas chamber for mass murder, the answers were there all the time. The German delousing chambers with only minor modification and the large railroad delousing tunnels without any modification at all would have served the purpose perfectly well—but, they were used only to keep people alive! The great killer was disease. The Degesch delousing chambers and the railroad delousing tunnels and Zyklon B were essential to keeping disease, especially typhus, under control. ❑

From

First Amendment Exercise Machine

Robert Frenz, Editor — Box 433, Buffalo NY 14223

LETTERS

"Don't let those revisionists stick it to you. I have met a couple and they are fags." R.K., Iowa.

"By God, you can write when you want to. Your 'Good Guy Burden' was great!" B.W., Virginia.

"There is more truth in what you write than in all of that other conservative stuff. It's amazing!" R.M., New York.

"You are nothing but a Kike in American clothing. You are an agent provocateur who is out to destroy all of the good the revisionists have done. Please put me on your mailing list." R.K., Colorado.

"Why don't you and George Dietz get together. Then I'd only have one publication to buy." J.C., New York.

"Just in case you publish any sladerous [sic] information about me, my lawyer will need to know where you can be reached if he thinks legal action is feasible. Please send me a subscription blank to your newsletter." P.G., Ohio.

"You write like a drunken Harold Covington. You make me sick with your stupid lies." W.B., England.

"You wouldn't dare print that I know you to be a sick liar and an un-American s—head." H.V., California.

"I love it! You really exercise free speech. No one is immune from your acid comments. Too bad the right-wing is so full of spineless dicks who wouldn't say s— if there [sic] mouth had some in it." B.B., Virginia.

"We believe your WAR article to be the best single summary of our present situation....the clarity of your thinking and expression has been important in inspiring us to continue..." UWNNPM, Maryland.

"Thanks for the free copy. It's the first paper I've read that isn't a copy of stuff I already know. Your wit and humor was rather unexpected considering what I know about the right-wing in this country." M.H., Texas.

"You make me sick. The Holocaust is the central issue of today. Get with it. Don't send me any more stupid crap of yours." W.C., California. (Ed - I never did.)

"Finally. A lad from the States who knows the Holocaust issue has run its course. Send us more." W.C., England.

"Yes, we need people like Frenz to kick our brains back into functioning mode, but I do not think he is yet the man to eulogise in The Oak. Mr. Frenz's prognosis is correct." The Oak, England. (The Limeys do not use a 'z' in eulogize - Ed)

"I don't give one f— about the holocaust. It pleases me to think that millions of them were gassed. Too bad it wasn't more. Your [sic] right. Revisionism sucks." M.V., Ohio.

"You are nothing but a dirty jew. I hope some skin-head smashes you up." A.H., Delaware.

ED- You can't win them all. Please keep those insults and compliments coming. That's your F.A. right, as I see it.

POEMISH STUFF

A frequent correspondent from the land of my great-grandfather (Virginia, thanks L.S.) sends along this little bopper:

At a Doctors' convention in Switzerland, a conversation was taking place in a tavern following an enthusiastic lecture.

A Jew Doctor said: "Medicine in my country is so advanced that we can take a kidney out of one person, put it into another, and have him looking for work in six weeks."

A German Doctor said: "Medicine in my country is so advanced that we can take a lung out of one person, put it into another, and have him looking for work in four weeks."

A Russian Doctor said: "Medicine in my country is so advanced that we can take a heart out of one person, put it into another, and have both of them looking for work in two weeks."

The American Doctor shouted: Hah! In America we can take an ass-hole out of Arkansas, put it into the White House, and half the country will be looking for work the next day!"

TEARS

A tear (as in 'crying') is a sort of sandwich as it rolls down your cheek. The outside is an oil rich in vitamin A. Next to your eyeball, or skin, is the aqueous portion. To keep the two otherwise incompatible liquids together is a middle layer consisting of a compound whose molecules have a hydrophilic (water loving) part on one end and a lipophilic (oil loving) part on the other. The outer oil layer is the reason tears don't evaporate as rapidly as water drops. In a vitamin A deficient person, this oil layer is feeble and nearly non-existent which leads to a condition characterized by dryness and itching. This is the first sign that something is amiss.

As a child, my parents used Thursday as "liver day". Dad fried up fresh side pork (rich in saturated fat and cholesterol!) and used the accumulated fat to fry the liver. (According to the food faddists, we should have dropped dead on the spot.) Dad never thought in terms of vitamins but knew that every meat-eater on the planet usually consumed the liver first. Anyway, we never had a vitamin A deficient diet. In addition, my sweetheart of a mother believed that everything could be transformed into a good food if you added enough fresh milk, butter and eggs to it. So it was that our family came to grow up in the middle of a vitamin A surplus.

Vitamin A is an oil-soluble vitamin found in animals. The best a plant can do is to produce carotene which is water-soluble. Carrots and squash are rich in carotene. However, carotene is not used by our bodies directly. It is hopefully converted into vitamin A (retinol) in our intestines. It would appear that one could be a vegetarian and not be vitamin A deficient. This is not the case in nearly 40% of the people who elect to go on a rabbit diet. A large portion of the population does not adequately supply themselves with vitamin A because their converting mechanisms are feeble. Eat liver once a week and you'll never have to worry about vitamin A. If you can't stand to eat liver, then a daily breakfast of bacon and eggs will keep you tuned up. Incidentally, an average man needs about 40 grams of animal protein per day. If he gets his protein mostly from plant sources, it will take 75 grams plus a glass of milk (animal!) to supply the missing amino acids. Since beta-carotene has proven effective in preventing cancer, please don't neglect your broccoli, carrots and squash.

To maintain your Private Pilot's Certificate, you must pass the Class III physical exam at least once every two years. I recently had mine and my blood pressure was 125/75—the same as it was 40 years ago! This is in spite of the fact I carry around about 30 pounds of surplus fat on my body. Knowing about our family's eating habits and those of others, I long ago concluded that the best health follows from eating NATURAL foods. The rule is simple: If it wasn't formerly alive, then don't eat it. Look at the labels of the sheenie-market products and ask yourself this question about every single item. As an example, I have examined the label of a Nabisco product called "Triscuit", supposedly a whole wheat wafer. A "No Cholesterol" label is plastered across the front conveying the same message as a "No Cyanide" label would. To the dead-head, this is an invitation to buy this "safe" product. On the side of the box we see: "Triscuit wafers are made by a unique process..." That's enough to scare me out of my wits. Further on: "...from whole wheat, partially hydrogenated soybean oil, and salt. There it is—one of the reasons cholesterol, which our bodies are full of anyway, manages to stick to your arterial walls. Whole wheat was once a living thing. Salt is a universal, natural and needed mineral. Continue to eat this un-natural partially hydrogenated crap and you'll keep the medical profession happy and employed stuffing you full of other un-natural substances called drugs.

I would never eat a "store bought" cake for the above reason. Read the labels and you'll soon come across things that never existed in a natural state. I make my cakes from a selection of genuine foods: flour, eggs, cream (or butter and milk) and sugar. I make my own vanilla extract by soaking a vanilla bean in a cup of vodka or rum for a month. Even goodies like chocolate syrup are easily made at home. I take 1 cup of cocoa, mix it with 2 cups of sugar and add 1 cup of water, a little at a time to manage the control of lumps. After bringing this mixture to a brief, full boil, I let it cool and add 1 teaspoon of vanilla. That's it—each and every ingredient coming from a living thing. No artificial this or thats. Just food.

When you continually load your body up with sheenie-market concoctions, you are inviting disaster. You will have then entered a contest to decide how much artificial crap you can consume before your body revolts. Some people are tougher than others but since life is not a controlled experiment, I'd prefer not to "test" myself. I, on occasion, eat some crap (like Triscuits) simply for the taste sensation. Or even drink a "coke", for that matter. These occurrences are never more frequent than once every two months and then in small portions. Hell! I even smoked a cigar in 1978! I'm not a prude.

Food fads do not exist in a country unless there is a food surplus. In the 1930s, there were fewer processed foods and many people were happy just to fill their stomachs with anything. The first real food disaster to come onto the market was that genuine health-destroyer MARGARINE. My grandfather warned about this stuff when we were kids and Kas Kastner's (known to racing car buffs) father warned in 1948, in his book The Treasure of Life, about the use of artificial butter. Recently, a Dr. Douglass is yammering about margarine and its contribution to poor health. Now, I am also happy to see that several ophthalmologists are claiming that certain eye diseases can be "cured" by the simple exchange of butter for margarine on your table. One must not lose sight of the fact that butyrates, found in butter, have been used in the treatment of cancer. (I'll comment further in another issue about more recent discoveries concerning that health-destroyer margarine, a substance I've grown to hate.)

Eat natural things and avoid all artificial products and processed slop. Keep it simple because eating should not be an intellectual exercise. As you know, this paper is not devoted entirely to comment upon political and social issues. Aryans will survive but it will be only the healthy ones who have little to do with non-Aryans. Don't place your hope in a "leader" unless you are a mentally, physically and spiritually sound follower.

SLING-SHOT CONTROL

Hand-guns cause less damage to this country than do wayward penises. Rampant copulation has created an enormous tax burden and generated the massive butchering operation called "Pro-Choice". Un-corralled spermatozoa have unleashed the production of millions of environment trashers. It is impossible to "save the environment" and still subsidize the breeding of hordes of God's "images". As with the snake who dines upon its own tail, the end will be the same.

Even if guns were the source of all evil, it is absolutely foolish to attempt to control them. Criminals are law-breakers and only an asinine brain could be convinced that criminals would obey gun laws. Furthermore, any American patriot, who wasn't brain-dead, would see what the ruckus was really about and thereby manage to bury his "equalizer" in the corn patch. PVC pipe, which is used for plumbing, is an excellent container for things you'd like to bury. The four-inch size can be easily cut to length with a saw and sealed with caps and a good PVC cement. I used a thirty-foot piece when I decided to bury all of my gold and diamonds. For added security, I built an outhouse over the top.

If I were president, I would never get huffy over firearms. I'd simply control the flow of ammunition. What good is a Smith and Wesson without cartridges? All ammunition could be logged in and out the way prescription drugs are. To get new ammo, you'd have to return the spent cartridges like we did in basic training with the Army. We kept our weapons and they controlled the cartridges. This wouldn't prevent someone from being shot but it would hamper the criminal more than it would the law abider. Every year, during deer hunting season, one can see a cow or donkey proudly strapped over the hood of a car leaving the Colorado mountains.

Modern ammunition is not something you can whittle up in a machine shop the way firearms can be. Give me the ammo and I'll make you a gun to fire it. Personally, I prefer a blowgun. It is silent, accurate and the dart tips can be easily coated with a mixture of dextrin and cyanide for added "bite". If you have a brain, you can dream up weapons. If you don't have a brain, you can call for gun-control, burn your bra, don a jock-strap and be elected to the Senate.

How much peace would a society have if all firearms vanished overnight? Ask yourself what you, as a clerk, would do when someone waved a machete in your face and demanded all of the money. Hell, with all the mestizos flooding the grasslands, machetes will probably become the weapon of choice anyway. Where there's a criminal mind, there is a way.

HANDS SMITH

Hans Schmidt, who dislikes Holocaust museums and publishes the GANPAC Brief, is now going to write for Larry Patterson's Criminal Politics monthly. This statement has prompted my wee brain into directing a comment towards Holocaust museums and Patterson's periodical. Such is life.

According to a supporter (GCC of Oklahoma), "I used to take Patterson's Criminal Politics, but his Chicken Little style of writing was a bit much. Plus, I am a trifle leery of those who give financial advice, as well as having a product to sell, that just fits the advice!" "Right on!" as we say in the ghetto. (That's the old jew con-game. Create the problem and then offer a solution.) One thing that permeates all of the writings of the financial experts is simply the love of money. The country is going to Hell in a Korean honey-bucket but here's how to get rich in the process. Whether it is "how to get rich from the coming depression" or "how to get rich from the coming gold boom", the message is still one of greed. If anyone is really interested in the welfare of Aryan lands, then why in Hades would he support one of the reasons for their decline? I'd be interested in learning to what extent these capitalists offer financial assistance to supporters of Aryan ways. The worms who take this financial baloney seriously are as valuable to Aryan survival as are the followers of mirror-loving David Duke. Incidentally, when some of the Dukes' property was seized, our benevolent officials copied David's mailing list and sold them for $900 a shot. It is to the credit of Tom Metzger that he never bought one. The IHR did. I didn't, even if I could afford it. Duke supporters are the conservatives who put the blight in "blightwing". Dial 1-619-723-8996 for one of Tom's messages. He is worth listening to—if you aren't afraid of shadows.

Do you get sick when you see a Holocaust memorial? Do you have fallen arches? Does the lack of love-life bother you? Holocaust memorials do not cause, or spread AIDS. Holocaust memorials do not mug people. Holocaust memorials just sit there, waiting for someone to buy a ticket. Holocaust memorials don't come to you—you must go to them. What's the big deal? Haven't you seen eye-sores before? Visit the inner-city once in a while for a good dose of how graffiti and garbage have been raised to an artform. TV is 90 percent eye-sores, from the drug-rockers to lizard-eyed news-script readers. So what's new? Get a life. The only people who will visit The Temple of the Gassed will be masochistic jews, pickpockets and brain-dead whites who aren't happy without a guilt complex. For those who really need a live kosher gassing performance, I suggest a visit to the next session of Congress.

Across from our hill-top house was our beautiful, and large, pasture. It had a small pond, a productive natural spring, a hilltop with shade trees and a bounty of sweet green grass. As they moved from mouthful to mouthful, one could almost see smiles on the faces of our horses and cows. Often, we would meander through this meadow and stop to drink from the cold spring. Here and there, we would skirt piles of brown-stuff which my sister referred to as "cow-flops" and "horse-balls". They weren't pretty, but they were there. Our land, America, is a beautiful land and if you wander through it you will also see cow-flops and horse-balls here and there. So much for Holocaust museums.

HATE 'TIS

Somewhere on the campus of the Juniversity of Buffalo is a Holocaust "exhibit". Surprised? It is a mini-stockpile of the familiar copyrighted documents, trademarked objects and bullet-riddled bagels. Recently, some dirty-dog scribbled pen lines across the pictures and left a message that Butz's book The Hoax of the 20th Century was on file in the library. The obligatory jew obligingly offered the necessary TV news comment that some hater was trying to destroy the "evidence" of the holocaust. Ho hum, Scene 6, Act 6. The jew called Nessler (or something) was the head of some Polish organization for the something or other. If Poles must have jews running things for them, then they deserve all of those Polish jokes. Anyway, Professor (ain't they all?) Yarmulke failed to comment upon Butz's book. He probably never read it since it has a swastika on its cover and the Hakenkreuz scares the greed out of a jew like the Roman cross scares coffin dust out of Dracula.

REVISIONIST JEWS

Revisionism is on-going! According to an article in the Daily Oklahoman, sent to me by GC of the oil state, new plaques are being installed at Auschwitz. Auschwitz is the hub for jew revisionism as the buildings are forever being revised to fit the current Hollywood script and the anticipated taste of the goy-gawker. Gone are the bronze plates that stated four million jews were sent to gas heaven. Now, the revision mentions about one million jews and others. How long it will be before a plaque is installed which agrees with the documented Auschwitz death book list of 74,000 in number will be anyone's guess.

Behind the curtains, I can hear kosher feet doing the bagel-shuffle. The four million figure was "based upon fragmented accounts" which were "untrue". There was no mention of where those untrue accounts originated but we do know, don't we? Through it all is a common thread.

A recent phone call from TM of California, informed me that in Vancouver, Canada, Ernst Zündel was promoting David Cole almost as fervently as Ernst Zündel promotes Ernst Zündel. To the dismay of many, this jewish connection left many unanswered questions buzzing through the ether. Also, it was noticed how energetically the Institute for Historical Review was also championing David Cole. The answer is simply "business". Sounds like a Mafia response, doesn't it? Anyway, David is busy making videos with Bradley Smith and Ernst Zündel. One makes videos because one wishes to sell videos. That's it—just business. Nothing personal; nothing anti-Semitic; nothing pro-National Socialism; nothing racial—just do whatever is good for business.

One cannot help but notice how many people are being driven away from the revisionist "movement" simply due to the admittance of David Cole to the podium. In effect, David Cole's presence is counter-productive and, in fact, actually destructive. One cannot but wonder if this isn't a part of a plan because Mr. Cole popped out of nowhere, was expert at nothing and, like a cold-sore, grew rapidly. As the revisionists prepare to kiss more behinds, I must congratulate the jews for their good work in furthering their control over all that we do.

Whether from the mouth of Mr. Cole or from the mouths of the Auschwitz apologists, the message is the same: How can we really blame the jews for their false stories when some dirty dogs supplied them with false information from the start? Those dirty dogs are, of course, the "Soviets". Naughty, naughty. We are supposed to forget that those "innocent" lies were the basis for murdering inculpable people at Nuremberg (slime trials) and the continued payment of billions of dollars to people who do not deserve one shekel. Aside from this, it will do well to wonder who those lying "Soviets" really were. They were Soviet jews, of course!! Did you ever have any doubts? Enjoy.

MORE COMMENTS

Precedent Bill holds up air traffic while he gets a dandy-cut from a fag? Precedent Bill fires yet another White House staff so he can install a batch of his cronies? Surprise, surprise! Come on now. Did you really expect that an election could change a sow's ear (actually, the wrong end of the pig) into a nylon purse? Don't let anyone tell you that a man's moral character has nothing to do with doing a good job. You hear this crap every time some apologist for the perverts endorses some piece of trash. It is true, however, that a weirdo's proclivities might not interfere with music writing, mathematical endeavor or watch-fob weaving but deviants are not the people to put into positions of power over others or things. The recently crowned freak couple has installed some of the ugliest "female" misfits, into positions of power, that this country has ever been saddled with. The next time you see our draft-dodging leader flapping his pursed lips, examine closely the tell-tale coarseness and kink of his hair. That's a clue! America deserves no less.

Beware of those brain-damaged (by drugs or birth) ego-turds who plaster COPYRIGHT over everything that flows from their keyboard. If they really were interested in that nebulous thing called "the cause", they'd be happy to have everyone under the sun copy their stuff. F.A.E.M. articles are now being copied world-wide and that is good news for free speech. It is, however, bad news for the petty cash box here at bigot central. That is why we always appreciate those extra fistfuls of dollars that generous people send our way.

Talking about $$$—please send along a stamp or two if you want a reply to your letter. Also, there are no more freebies. When the drain is larger than the spigot, the tub runs dry. Right now, this hobby of mine has all the earmarks of Arizona during a drought.

For some reason or other, I get many requests from Germany. I send everything air mail and so this drains my purse more rapidly than before. That is why I appreciate those extra dollars from people who think my stuff is worth copying and supporting.

The word is out. Revisionists are now using the age-old jew-practice of ignoring in the hope that I will go away. I probably will, but it won't be because of a few self-styled egg-heads who never practice what they preach. One jerk babbles about increasing the white population (we must out-breed the minorities!) while having a family of zero. One also has never paid his debts to Ernst Zündel or David Irving. Another chides me for having a P.O. box (I'm hiding!) but failed to respond to my remark that Blue Cross also uses a P.O. box and so does the Federal Aviation Administration. Frankly, I am glad that I am now an out-cast. I dislike people whose word is valueless; turn their backs upon their debts and belch about things which have absolutely nothing to do with the present situation. Who cares if there were white slaves; or that Ghengis Khan had green eyes; or whether the buried at Manassas (Bull Run 1861-2) died of gun-shot, starvation, suicide, gassing or old age? The past is dead! Screw the Holocaust! Let the historians play circle-jerk until they die of AIDS or a mugging.

One clown has threatened me if I printed the personal stuff about him which was in David McCalden's letters to me. Relax, urine-face! With or without the threat, I wouldn't do it anyway. You're a plagiarist and we both know it. Go take a bath! Humbuggery!

GAWD A MIGHTY! DEY'S RACIST.

The recent flak over the Affirmative Action Secret Service Jungle Bunnies and Denny's restaurants was interesting if you managed to read between the lines. It was just another case of the mentally weak allowing their pea-brains to work overtime. The whole country is full of people with cry-baby minds who are forever blubbering over slights, whether real or imagined. If I were in a restaurant and the service didn't please me, I'd look down and say "Shoes. Do your walking." Like the mental infants they are, minorities, and decadent whites, are forever whining over things. I'd guess that the jews, with their WW II sob stories, established a precedent by bringing their wailing to the walls of America. True Aryans, like the Germans, never seem to have time to blubber over real tragedies such as Dresden and Hamburg. It is also a credit to the racially sound Japanese who do not produce Hiroshima and Nagasaki holocaust movies, ad nauseam, ad infinitum.

A couple of the We'z Equal Secret Service Blackheads were interviewed. Good grief Greta! What absolute morons! What better people could protect our draft-dodging leader? At the current rate, I suspect that good ol' "equality" will soon demand that we have a descendent of Chaka-Zulu for "da prizidint".

Beyond noticing that these fine black Secret Service personnel had the intelligence of gophers, I wondered why, in this land of brotherly-love, the blacks sat with blacks while the white SS men had their own tables. De Secret Service do do Affirmative Action but dey also practices segregation at da tables in da racist Denny's. There ought to be a law...

As a follow up, and just for laughs, I took my girl-friend out to eat at the nearest Denny's. We were led to a booth and a menu was dropped carelessly upon our table. We waited and waited. Soon, the MANAGER led a party of blackheads to an adjacent booth. He brought tall glasses of iced water (which we did not receive) and played kiss-ass for several minutes. Across the room, another blackhead shouted something and a waitress almost fell over herself responding to that call of the wild. We sat and sat. After several minutes we got up and left. On the way out, I was asked if anything was wrong. I replied that I didn't want to patronize establishments that discriminated against whites.

FAGGOTS IN THE ARMY...

WILL THEY EVER HARM ME?

I have always preferred the term "faggot" over others such as: queer, daisy, fairy, pansy or fruit. Whether adjective or noun, they always conjured up a mental picture which told the story. The current use of "gay" is misleading as it represents a condition which isn't. Perverts are bizarre and unhappy creatures who are usually full of hatred for that which is normal and, given the opportunity, will destroy that which is healthy and natural. Since "gay" is 180 degrees out of phase with reality, I suspect that the term was popularized by that peculiar tribe who is always presenting truth upside down and inside out—the "chosen ones".

"Faggot" rhymes with "gag it", "bag it" and "drag it"—food for the "maggot", which is an appropriate procedure. In a strict sense, faggot means a bundle of twigs which is to be burned as fuel. What a warming connection—a mini-holocaust, as it were!

Wait a minute! Before the ZOG mercenaries assault me with tanks, flame-throwers and mortars for "gay-bashing", let me have a word. I have no objection to perverts who keep their working-tools in a closet. In fact, many of them have enriched our lives by their efforts. I personally am very fond of the musical works of Cole Porter and appreciate the mathematical and literary talents of Lewis Carrol (C. L. Dodgson), not to mention Oscar Wilde. However, it must never be forgotten that perverts are handicapped people who should never be given power over others—especially political power! No handicapped person should ever be given political power, whether that handicap is physical, mental or spiritual.

This century has seen a bank-robber and sadist (Stalin), a drunkard (Churchill) and a cripple (Roosevelt) entrusted with massive political power. The bad-guy of the century (Hitler) was not a drunk, nor a crook, nor a cripple but was, in fact, a war-hero who never enriched himself at public expense and who subordinated his personal life for the sake of a people whom he loved. (Then there is Bill Clinton.) Hitler hated no man. Roosevelt hated anyone who could walk. Churchill hated anyone who was sober and Stalin hated anyone who was honest. Of the three faces of evil, ruthless and cold Stalin stood above the other two. He destroyed out of political necessity. Churchill loved destruction for destruction's sake. Roosevelt's envious hatred of Hitler was instrumental in the destruction of the Western world. Hitler was admired to an extent that Roosevelt could never be. Hitler accomplished things which Roosevelt failed miserably at. Today, we are living in the sewer created by those haters of all that is natural and Americans are still electing misfits to office. It is not the sort of thing which fertilizes optimism.

I was assigned to the 17th Airborne Division, 514th Infantry Battalion, and would visit New York City on my passes from Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. In Grand Central Station, while using a urinal, I felt warm air passing my ear. I turned my head to notice a faggot peering over my shoulder watching the event. That was the first time in my life I was exposed to an aggressive excrement lover. Since that time, with several forceful propositions during university, I have noticed a groundswell in faggot aggressive and disgusting behavior. Whether it is condom-tossing during a Mass or public fellatio in a park, the evidence of hate-filled aggression and the flaunting of perversion abounds. This, of course, is not confined to the "male" sex and several of Clinton's appointees are aggressive "female" perverts.

I was watching WOR-TV news last night. It is a good show for one interested in the criminal doings of that planetary blight referred to as Jew York City. The descriptions of murders and the spread of AIDS is the usual format but this program had an item which was new to me. NYC has several "sex clubs". Most of them are for perverts with penises. (I have a hard time calling these people "men" or "male".) These cultural clubs are now being monitored by mental retards who are on the lookout for unsafe sex practices. This is supposed to slow down the spread of the hero's disease. While a Creature from the Black Sewer ("sex monitor") was being interviewed, he mentioned that he often had to tap people on the back and say "You can't do unsafe sucking in here." Or "Sticking your bleep into that guy's bleep without a condom is unsafe sex."

Other than the obvious sanctioned depravity, one instantly notices the aggressive and blatant behavior of those perverts. Now, picture ZOG's army with a raft of these types taking a community shower with others who are physically the objects of their affections. Would you feel comfortable bending over to pick up your dropped soap? Would you still be able to get a sound sleep knowing that the excrement wallower in the adjacent bunk might just be waiting for you to fall asleep? Don't worry. Don't enlist! The American army is only a bunch of mercenaries anyway.

Hell, why go half-way? Let's have a total faggot infantry where "to the rear, march!" would be their favorite command and a general order would be "To walk my post in a perverted manner, keeping always on the alert and buggering everything that takes place within sight and hearing." Imagine the fellow who just "went over the top" with a platoon of Clinton's darlings at his backside. Could the faggots keep their minds on the enemy when they viewed those lovely buns within striking distance? Hell, if I were born 20 years ago, I could have been in the 514th Faggotry Battalion of the 17th AIDS Division. Make love, not war.

I guess that the latest poop is that it will be OK to be a patriotic fighting faggot for Uncle Lace-shorts as long as you don't practice your s—loving perversion. Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha. What absolute dung! Perverts, who boast of dozens of filth encounters per week are now supposed to practice abstinence when they don the uniform of the mercenary. If I were in that kind of army, I'd take a shower with my back to the wall and never, ever drop my soap.

KOOL A.I.D.S.

In a recent issue of Liberty Bell (PO Box 21, Reedy, WV, 25270) Dr. Oliver mentioned that the blackheads were multiplying faster than AIDS was wiping them out, or would wipe them out. Therefore, AIDS would never become the white man's great hope. I have never been much of a hoper but optimistic am I. As the bumper stickers mention: Shit Happens. Meanwhile, back on the farm, we plug along, year by year, positive of the value of hard work but knowing that naughty Nature with her nimble nonsense often turns our good starts into a disasters. Life is mostly a gamble where you win some and you lose some. The sorriest position of all is where one relies upon God, Uncle Samuel, "justice", "George", AIDS or whatever, to do for you what you should be doing for yourself. Life is a struggle where effort guarantees nothing. People who cannot tolerate life's struggle drown their uncomfortable thoughts with drugs, alcohol and sexual excesses. What a comfort it is to watch these failures slop along.

The progression of any communicable disease follows a typical "s" growth curve. The rate of new infections at any particular time is proportional to the product of those who are infected and those who may be infected. If 1 out of 100 is infected, then the rate is proportional to 1 x 99 = 99. If 50 out of 100 are infected, then the rate is proportional to 50 x 50 = 2500. When 99 are infected, then the rate falls to 99 x 1 = 99. Obviously, when everyone is infected, the rate is 0. This is why the recent San Francisco figures mentioned that the AIDS rate was falling among the dung dippers—most of them have it. Celebrate any drop in the AIDS rate, as this means they all will be going bye-bye in the near future. Let them enjoy their few remaining parades.

The blackhead birth rate is about 3 percent per annum. The rate of AIDS infection is currently below this. Keep in mind that when the non-infected population grows so does the rate of infection (the product ratio, remember?). In other words, the more blackheads that pop into existence, the more there are to catch it. The more that catch it, the faster it spreads. Sooner or later, the rate of AIDS increase will surpass the rate of population increase, and then—blooey! it's downhill all the way. In the meantime, don't rely on ANYTHING saving your beans. Never place yourself in harm's way, but sit back and enjoy the spectacle. ❑

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Mr. Dietz,

I read your magazine avidly and with admiration for the high standard of prose and expression of viewpoints contained in the articles. I was, however, dismayed by the dismal depths to which Miss J.D. of Canada descended in her letter to you which appeared in April's issue. She begged for forgiveness for the long paragraph—but what about the appalling syntax and "sentences?"

As a foreigner I dare not enter the lists concerning any number of issues which appear to rent and divide the (well what?) scene in the jewnited states. Patriotic? Aryan? White? Nationalist? Racist? Republican (not your political party!) Gritz, Metzger, Klassen, Williams, the IHR, Covington and many more. I get the impression that some people there seem to spend as much, if not more, time thrashing one another on our own side as on our racial enemies' (and their willing stooges' and accomplices') side.

May I put in a good word for Robert Frenz and his First Amendment Exercise Machine which has been under fire from some readers. I think his writing is absolutely first class and always his aim at targets accurate. Who could take exception to 'La Raza' in the July 1992 issue? His 'Planet of the Gapes' piece in February 1993 was another first class piece of writing. I do not know all the American televangelists (only the infamous are written about here) but I got the drift and his comments on modern massman's obsession with security were spot on..."They want their entire existence to be a succession of pleasurable episodes in orifice stuffing—from copulating to eating—and to have a world that is completely safe for cretins." A veritable aphorism, that.

It seems he is on the receiving end of fire because of his slighting of the Leuchter Report. But I doubt if it should be inferred from that he signs up to the Holocaust Myth.

The jewel in your own crown must without doubt be Professor Revilo's "Postscripts" which glow with fine precision like the innards of a sophisticated Swiss timepiece and are filled with remarkable, contemptuous put-downers. Long may he live!

Could I enter a plea for a little tolerance for ignoramuses like myself who are not acquainted with every acronym under the sun, especially those employed in a foreign country, that the full explanation be given first. I know the more popular once like FBI, which of course is Fanatical Bunch of Idiots, as G.B.. Campbell explained. But what is PBS for instance?

With every best wish for continuation and amplification in providing platforms for the expression of opinions and views that never see the light of day in these jew-infested, jew-dominated, jew-laws straitjacketed British Isles.

Sincerely yours,
B.C., England

⊠ ⊠ ⊠

Dear George:

Enclosed find a check to cover the cost of another year's subscription of Liberty Bell. I look forward to receiving each issue.

Articles by such talented writers as Prof. Revilo Oliver, Dr. Charles Weber, Donald Clerkin, Dr. William Pierce, Ivor Benson, and many others make the Liberty Bell perhaps the best racialist publications available today.

Recently On talk radio station WLS in Chicago I hear a discussion dealing with an interview with Nation of Islam leader, Louis Farrakhan, by a reporter for the Chicago Sun Times. It was not only interesting to hear what black callers had to say, but also how the two talk show hosts (one black and one white) responded. Blacks were neither too insensitive or too bashful to hold back on their opinion on Jews. Claiming, for instance, that Jews control black politicians, black athletes, and other black professionals. Callers also accused Jews of being instrumental in the defeat of Congressman Gus Savage by Jew bootlicker, Mel Reynolds. One caller went into great detail describing the ADL's spying on black muslims and other black groups.

The response of the talk show hosts to these accusations was most remarkable. Ordinarily when white callers have negative opinion of Jews, they are either hung up on or are called Nazis, racists, or bigots. NO such response to black callers as they seem immune to such treatment. One must believe that blacks wouldn't be so eager to voice their opinions about Jews knowing that they would be verbally assaulted and thrashed by the talk show hosts. We whites must not be afraid to be called Nazis or racists and should consider such taunts a badge of honor.

A good example of how black politicians and other black groups are fraudulent sell outs and lackeys to the Jews is illustrated by the fact that though a former black Harvard Law graduate, attorney, member of the NAACP, and other black groups, Wayne Martin, and his four children were burned up in the Davidian complex in Waco, Texas, it was kept from the public. This fact was revealed to the public for the first time on short wave radio station WWCR on the Radio Free America program. A guest on the program, Ken Faucet, played tapes of the 911 calls from the complex to Waco authorities. These tapes showed clearly that Mr. Martin was the chief negotiator during the first few hours of the siege. This was kept hidden from the public by radio, TV, and the press.

The system's black lackeys such as Jesse Jackson, Maxine Walters, Carol Mosley Braun, Al Sharpton, and black groups such as the NAACP and C.O.R.E. were conspicuously silent about these facts. These bought off, fraudulent blacks only scream when they're told to scream by their Jewish masters. It's heartening to know that the black Muslims are aware of Jewish control of their black politicians. More blacks as well as whites, however, need to be informed.

Liberty Bell readers should use every tool at their disposal to help enlighten blacks as to the Jewish problem. I would encourage Liberty Bell readers to order mass quantities of the reprint, Who Brought the Slaves to America?, and send it along with a copy of the article, "The Racial and Ethnic Composition of the Clinton Administration," by Dr. Charles E. Weber (which appeared in the March, 1993 issue of LB) to black ministers, black aldermen, and other black activists in their area. One thing we should all agree upon is that the Jews are the common enemy of both blacks and whites as they are the instigators and agitators of all of our racial problems.

L.W., Illinois

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

Dear Mr. Dietz:

If we accept Oswald Spengler's thesis that all nations are organic in form and structure as are all plants and animals and that they have limited life spans just as does any other organism, then it follows that the survival of the White Race is more important than the survival of America.

Just as surely as death follows birth, America's demise is assured. Only the time is in question.

But a race of people does not have to die. Healthy instincts, procreation and just continuing being themselves can be enough to insure immortality. But if their instincts are perverted and they inter-breed with other races they are committing racial suicide and bringing to an end centuries of their racial history. The flooding of America with hordes of alien peoples and the ever increasing power and influence of the Jews are parts of this death process.

The America of today bears no remote resemblance to the America of 200 years ago. If America is in existence 200 years from now it will be even less recognizable.

Whites should mate only with their kind and they should have large families. As Spengler said: "The survival of a people depends upon an abundance of children."

Do we want to survive?

On a trip to Germany a few years ago, Ernst Zündel saw Russian troops who, he claimed, were more White than the American troops that he saw there.

Yours truly,
J.Mc., Washington

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

Dear Editor,

The New Barbarians.

Ancient civilizations were swept away by barbarians, and in the USA today, New Barbarians are spreading a swath of destruction and devastation from coast to coast.

A look at the various cities that are "in trouble" gives the serious student of history a look at the New Barbarians. Many of our major cities have the appearance of being sacked.

Students of history know that the use of ransom and a policy of appeasement does not work. Politicians, however, are for the most part not historians, but lawyers. They are content to attempt to deal with the New Barbarians by offering up such "deals" as jobs programs, entitlements, quotas, subsidies, and magnanimous welfare programs, out of the pockets of the civilized people who pay for them.

This cornucopia of new social programs is nothing but payments made to the blackmailing New Barbarians. They are not working, and never will work.

No great nation in its history ever got better by increased taxing of its citizens. The power to tax excessively is the power to destroy. It has come to pass in this country that the thing raised most on land is taxes.

The tendency of taxation is to create this class of New Barbarians, who do not labor, to take from the civilized people who do labor, the product of that labor, and hand it to these New Barbarians as ransom.

In the past, victims of barbarians such as Alaric, Attila the Hun, Ghengis Kahn, et al, did not lament that "he was from a broken home," or "he was the product of a class struggle," or "he was filled wit rage." Our leaders do just this, however, and the quality of life for all in the USA has become worse.

The more ransom in the form of social programs paid to the New Barbarians, the more embolden they become.

The spirit of the age is the very thing that a great man changes. Today, that spirit is New Barbarianism, and our elected leaders choose not to be great, but miniatures, at a time when we need giants.

E.J. Toner, Howell, NJ

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

An Open Letter to

Abraham Foxman
Chief, ADL Eastern Region
New York City

Dear Abe,

with the publications of Kotkin's Tribes you lads are replacing caution and sycophancy with arrogance. What many of us have been saying all along (some even before the turn of the 20th century), that you people are an international cabal with allegiance only to yourselves and your offspring: Israel, you now admit being true.

I'll admit, Abe, your cards look good. You've finally drawn a full housing (using both top and bottom of the deck as you cunning sharks always do) and your opponents look nervous and weak. You've got the Congress in your corner and the Arkansas half-wit, fouling the White House, in your pocket. You've gotten Jews in all the right places in government. Your position looks impregnable. Yep, you "chosen" appear to have arrived.

But wait! Why are you looking over your shoulder so furtively? Could it be that things have gone too well for you? You own or control all the major means of communication; you control the financial centers; you control the Federal Reserve; you even control the military forces of the country to a degree—and the goyim never seemed more brainwashed, more docile, more stupid than they appear today. So—the tinge of fear must come from the knowledge of your long history of double-crossing any friendly, well-meaning host people who take you in. They always seem to ind out just what despicable, dangerous vermin you Jews are just at the very apex of your apparent control. You've been kicked out of just about every country in western Europe at one time or another. I don't believe in religious myths. However, if I did, I would say that far from being "chosen" you people are "cursed."

You are smarter than the ordinary Jew, Abe, that is why you have these tinges of fear from time to time. The truth is, old Hebrew, there is no Yahweh up there looking after you "Sweet Old Boys." Your nomadic ancestors "chose" themselves as the people. A pretty nifty gimmick that serves to keep your tribe united and always facing outward toward the rest of the world. As long as the Aryans, a people who have some kindness in their hearts, and a keen sense of humor and honor, could be hoodwinked, could be kept in the dark as to your true nature and plans, then so long could you go on weaving your sinister webs.

Unhappily for you, Abe, the Aryans are awakening. They are discovering that Adolf Hitler's assessment of you anti-humans was right on target. (Just finished reading Mein Kampf for the first time. A truly great work!). The "Talmud" is being widely disseminated across the land. The wonderful newspaper Spotlight is really turning its beam onto you. Every week it reveals another vile, sly and evil act you Jews have committed in your ceaseless bid for complete subjugation of the American White people.

You are at your peak, Abe. Enjoy it! There is a spreading awareness and anger moving across the land. You don't see it yet. Sam Hall, the brilliant, though mysterious, inspiration from the right wing movement, will be an influence soon, His truths will stun and galvanize many. You have misjudged again, old orthodox, you have pushed the Congoids on us relentlessly. You have preached the correctness of that unnatural act: race mixing, in school and on the TV screen. The truth is coming out. With the truth, there will be outrage. Those who know they are in the wrong can never fight with the devotion and courage that drives those who have been wronged and know they are in the right. I am looking forward to the coming years with keen anticipation...even relish.

In all sincerity,
A son of Liberty
Bully, for Sam Hall! May the Moslems push you Israelites into the sea!

Ode to Reno, The ADL & the Stud

From the shadows of this tyranny that covers a land once free came tanks and copters and butchers
The Feds on the march, you see.

To Ruby Creek in stealth they came a collection of clods with eyes aflame they unlimbered their guns as if in fun and murdered a boy and then his mom.

Not content with this evil, ghastly deed to Waco at full throttle they did proceed where with the same cold-blooded abandon they torched and killed almost at random.

The northwest ADL's mouthpiece, Stern denigrated the Weavers at every turn but arising from under these Jewish heels is a man of truth whose voice appeals.

And although the Feds and their master Jews search for Sam Hall with cries and hues they'll always find him beyond their grasp, a legendary figure in freedom's firm clasp.

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

Dear Sir,

The latest news about the massacre inb Waco comes from Linda Thompson. She has determined that three of the four dead ATF agents were bodyguards for Clinton during the election. The footage she shows on her tape of them crawling into a second story window is the same video I saw in Houston the day the dirty deed first went down. Just after they enter the fourth agent throws a grenade in behind them and then opens up with his machine gun. In a telephone interview broadcast over the shortwave one of the surviving Davidians claims to have counted over 2,000 bullet holes in the second story nursery, the room the three agents entered.

So it appears as if it is dangerous to work for the government.

H.D., Texas

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

Greetings,

Thank you so much for the sample copy of Liberty Bell. I was so impressed that you will find enclosed an order for a one year subscription. I also hope to be able to provide occasional financial contributions, economics permitting.

I used to thoroughly enjoy ..... magazine, but they have virtually ceased publishing. The last issue was early 1992! Apparently the ..... is using their time and money on such questionable ventures as publishing comic books!

Keep up the good work. I will share Liberty Bell with others who either are or might be receptive to the message.

R.M., Colorado

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 — except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

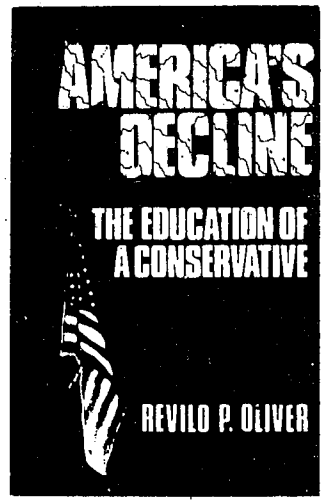
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

Destructive Immigration

An Essay by
Richard C. Bentinck, M.D.
page 1

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

J.B. Campbell:
Rhodesia, page 12.
Maj. D.V. Clerkin:
The Weaver / Harris Verdict, page 27;
What's New in Milwaukee, page28;
Bogus "EuroAmerican Alliance, page 29;
What I Read Each Month, page 29;
A Conversation with the Blankos, page 30
National Alliance:
Dead Children, page 34.
Eric Thomson:
An Interview with Josef Ginsburg, page 35.
Canadian Correspondent:
Criminal Prosecution of Holocaust Denial, pg. 43

Letters to the Editor, page 49.

VOL. 21 - NO. 3 NOVEMBER 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

DESTRUCTIVE IMMIGRATION

An Essay by
Richard C. Bentinck, M.D.

Polls show that the vast majority of Americans want legal immigration reduced and illegal immigration stopped. I wonder why our government has taken no action to stem the flood of third-world minorities poisoning our land like a noxious, self-reproducing scum that absorbs and transforms everything of value that it touches?

In fact, why does the U.S. Congress actually promote immigration, legal and illegal, against all reason? Our nation, already mired in debt, cannot productively employ our existing population and must create non-productive taxpayer supported "service" jobs to absorb the surplus labor we now have?

With rare exception, the immigrant, legal or illegal, from a third world area is fleeing, not political persecution, but economic deprivation as a direct result of indiscriminate breeding and its consequence, over-population, in quasi-feudalistic societies steeped in ignorance and authoritarian religious dogma. Decades of experience has shown that many of these immigrants and their numerous offspring end up as drains on one or more of the myriad liberal-sponsored county, state and federal give-away programs. Not satisfied with our bounty, they have leisure to turn to violence and jam our law enforcement, judicial and prison systems. All of this is paid for by confiscatory taxing of a diminishing number of mostly white, legitimate U.S. citizens productively employed in the private sector.

Why do Congress and federal bureaucrats ignore, when considering the illegal immigrant, our statutes that require a legal immigrant to be conversant with our history and institutions, guarantee that he will not require support from any federal or state program for a minimum of five years, be in good health, and have a working knowledge of English? Why this special status for the illegal—and now, even the legal immigrant as long as he is a "minority" (whites now constitute about 12% of the world population)?

And why, when a foreign woman gives birth in the U.S., is she not sent back to Mexico—or wherever she may belong—with her infant? Born in the U.S., the infant is considered a U.S. citizen. His mother is not. The courts have held that simply having received hospital delivery care in the United States at U.S. taxpayer expense, does not bestow upon the mother a right to U.S. citizenship. She must return to wherever she belongs and, since a minor child should not be separated from its mother, the court has held that the infant must go with her. When the child has reached his majority at the age of 21 years, only then may he return legally to the U.S. as a citizen by birthright. But this deliberately hidden aspect of the law is not enforced.

For decades, it has been no secret that a Hispanic female, usually Mexican, will cross the border surreptitiously or on a tourist visa, ostensibly for a day of "shopping", when she knows delivery of her pregnancy is imminent. Within hours, she is in a U.S. hospital giving birth to her little U.S. citizen, courtesy of the U.S. taxpayer. Almost certainly, the mother, often a child herself, has had no prenatal care and her pregnancy is at high risk for a normal delivery. If there should be problems, there is no shortage of hungry lawyers waiting to pounce on the delivering physician and hospital with law suits regardless of merit. Such an infant is more likely to require care in an Intensive Care Nursery where costs routinely are measured in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. In California, Los Angeles County alone spends millions of dollars for the care of illegal aliens!

Hospital Discharge Planning acquaints the new mother with all the taxpayer-supported programs ready to help her and her little one. More often than not, Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) has not been notified of her illegal status. Even if INS were notified, political and pressures from the Catholic Church, La Raza, and various Hispanic activist groups would force the INS to keep a strictly hands-off position. Our new Hispanic mother fades into the populace, untraced and untraceable—just one more of a vast, breeding, seething, brown multitude.

Almost immediately, she has obtained a Social Security card for herself and for her new baby. Shortly thereafter, she is on welfare, living in government-subsidized housing and is receiving the benefits of Food Stamps, the WIC (Women, Infants & Children) Program, and Medicaid. She has sent for her four to six older children (or, too young to have bred significantly, multiple siblings), her "husband" and, having learned of the Supplemental Security Income Program (SSI), her "disabled" parents and grandparents. Smiling to themselves, they settle down to a life of ease and luxury such as they have never known. A little later, having come to realize the unbelievably stupid leniency of their new host nation, she and her extended family begin to complain loudly of the injustices of U.S. society. By now, they have learned that the open display of the contempt they have long felt for the "gringo" brings not anger and retribution, but obsequious groveling from their "caseworker".

In a classic example of split thinking, they clamor that their native language and cultural mores should be officially designated as national alternatives while they complain that they are not accepted and are discriminated against by the dominant white, "gringo" culture. They have neither the intent, the desire nor the ability to become a part of the culture of the nation that gives them so much.

Meanwhile, any older children have found their place in society, joined a gang, and become deeply involved in lucrative criminal activities they would not have dared attempt in their home land. Their arrogant contempt grows for a system of law enforcement that, compared to the feared, often lethal, justice of their native country, is laughably lenient and totally ineffective in dealing with them. We have yet to learn that in dealing with a virtually uncivilizable example of human detritus, the penalty must fit the criminal, not the crime.

An extreme example? Not real? Not at all—this and even more flagrant abuses of the productive white American go on every day by the U.S. Congress and the federal and state bureaucracies as they dance to the hate-laden tune of crypto-judaic power.

And by what right does a judge, solely on his own, decide that a boatload of Haitians—or whomever—rescued from a watery grave by a U.S. Coast Guard vessel should be considered for U.S. citizenship rather than repatriated—or even left to the mercies of the sea? Is not the act of rescue itself sufficient demonstration of our humane goodwill towards all men? Must we allow a single man who calls himself a judge to second guess the majority of our citizenry? What loopholes allow him and a pack of racially-biased, money-motivated Jew lawyers to circumvent reason, logic and our laws and determine that these obviously economically motivated emigres are really political refugees? Why does Congress allow a judge to transgress the interests of those taxpayers who support him and allow him to flaunt the laws of the nation he is supposed to uphold? When our nation was vibrant and forthright in support of the interests of its own, such behavior by a public servant would not have been tolerated. Instead, a few years ago our imperial Congress flew in the face of the well-being of its constituents and passed an immigration amnesty act that forgave most illegal immigrants their crime and guaranteed that even greater numbers would cross our borders illegally. With the pomp and fanfare that Congress uses to cover its legerdemain, its smoke and mirrors, this legislation was heralded as the solution to our leaky borders. Instead, it has demonstrated to the world that our resolve to protect our borders is faint indeed. Worse, efforts by the citizenry to enforce our laws and protect ourselves from oblivion are hailed as brutal and racist! We no longer are sovereign within our national borders.

The surplus Hispanics, Asians, negroes from Africa, Haiti and other Carribean islands, ragheads and others who flood across our borders illegally every day are breaking our laws. They are committing a crime against the United States. That is, against you and me. Under our truly ineffective liberal laws, they are committing a minor crime—a misdemeanor. Elsewhere, they would be shot the instant they trespassed. Those who aid them, whether in giving them work or sanctuary, are accessories to the crime. They also are criminals. They have committed a more serious crime. They have committed a felony. But the long-term harm these people do to the future of our nation far outweighs the penalties our laws could exact were they enforced.

Unless we are prepared to admit that one who breaks our laws is punishable as a criminal only if we don't like him or her and we don't like his or her reason for committing the crime—or if he or she is white—then we had better either change the law or open our borders, declare that we are no longer a sovereign nation and submit to a theocratic world government dictated by the Zion conspiracy through the inheritors of the Caesar's Rome. The only alternative, if we are to regain our nation, is to enforce realistic laws instantly and equally, regardless of who may be flaunting them, church or corporation, working man or pauper, rapist or murderer—white or negro, yellow or brown.

The reasons usually cited for tolerating this national crime and disgrace are false and misleading.

First are appeals to our national heritage and conscience—"we are all immigrants and children of immigrants—our mass immigrations are what made America great—the Statue of Liberty proclaims our open door to the world's poor and oppressed". But it is this misapplication of the past to a very different present that plays upon our sympathies "for these poor people who are merely trying to earn a living" so that we will accord them special handling, immunities and benefits never accorded our ancestors nor even legal immigrants today. This is a fraud perpetrated upon our citizenry by our elected representatives for reasons that are political, directly related to personal gain of the elected elite and the hatred of a European minority. Ultimately, this course must lead inevitably to the destruction of white man's civilization.

It must be emphasized that we are no longer the great nation we once were. We are mediocre at best and still slipping. Our decline is largely because we have been bamboozled and weakened into profligate gifting of our resources, blood, sweat and tears to "those less fortunate", both domestic and foreign. And by this maudlin behavior, we have made all of them hate and despise us!

Our Congress has dealt much with "rights", but has been strangely mute about duties. Rights and duties must go hand-in-hand—even for "those less fortunate".

Then it is said that these illegal immigrants bring their cultures and add "richness" to our society. We might, however, question whether or not we really need what they bring of their "culture". Have we not already surfeited ourselves with those "cultures" and sought in vain for whatever "richness" they claimed through the many hundreds of thousands of legal immigrants we already have accepted from those same countries? We must jealously guard and be proud of the civilization white man has produced. It has given the world the most freedom it has ever known. It must not be adulterated. It must be protected from the sociopath who, incredibly, has been elected President and who is well on the way to the destruction of our national sovereignty. With our sovereignty, will go our civilization, submerged in a morass of festering purulence.

Moreover, these immigrants from the teeming third world are not those to whom the symbolism of the Statue of Liberty cried out in decades past. Even if they were, times and national needs and circumstances have changed. We cannot afford, as a nation, to indefinitely absorb the endless human surplus of the reproductively profligate third world. This is particularly true of those of them and their supporting institutions that flaunt our laws and bypass barriers we have had to erect to protect ourselves and our way of life from the diseases, social and physical, that run rampant in the third world.

They bring us diseases that had been virtually eliminated from our society and for which we no longer have the familiarity—or often even the means—to diagnose and treat. They bring us a long list of diseases including measles, syphilis, gonorrhea resistant to treatment, chlamydia, all manner of parasites—and now, AIDS, and even more recently, a virulent, drug-resistant strain of tuberculosis that is approaching epidemic proportion.

Among the illegals are the insane, the criminal and the potential saboteur or terrorist. Many, astounded and pleased by our leniency towards criminal behavior and the comparative luxury of our prisons in the unlikely event they could be convicted, turn to crime.

And of chilling import, they bring to us the genetic garbage and mindless breeding behavior that helped create the poverty and squalor of the native land they left. It is not just the millions who transgress our borders that menace us. It is also the living and breeding habits, enforced by an evil church, they bring with them. As an example, in the U.S., negroes are reproducing at a rate nine times higher than whites—and U.S. Hispanics outbreed the negroes! Already our standard of living has declined. Our descent into full membership in the third world community is assured unless we take immediate steps to clean up the corruption in our government and close the leaks in our borders.

Now that Congress has demonstrated our abject lack of national integrity by having granted amnesty to countless thousands of illegals who have verified their fitness to become U.S. citizens by having avoided our law enforcement institutions for a few years, millions all over the third world are overjoyed. They now know that there exists a foolishly generous nation where a criminal must spend only a short time as a fugitive to have his crime forgiven with no greater penalty for being caught before he qualifies for residency than the necessity to begin over again. When he achieves this goal, not only is his crime forgiven—even if suspected—but he is rewarded beyond his greatest dreams. He is welcomed as a fully-benefited U.S citizen without having had to fulfill the minimal basic requirements and restrictions for citizenship that are imposed upon all legal immigrants, past and present! He is instantly eligible for the multitude of federal, state and local give-away programs that are denied the legal immigrant. His cornucopia is overflowing, particularly when he learns that, for a few pesos or whatever currency he can steal, he need not exist as a fugitive hoping for another amnesty date. He can purchase illegally the papers necessary to qualify immediately for the myriad inducements to illegal activity that a corrupt Congress has provided. For all this, there is small risk. He risks neither his life nor incarceration—only failure of the attempt to deceive and the need to try again.

But there may be Americans who do not accept the "humanitarian" reasons for viewing illegal immigration as "not really a crime" and ignoring it. For these doubters, there is the clinching argument. It is pointed out repeatedly that the nation needs the labor of these illegals; that without them, crops rot on the ground and garments go unsewn. True enough—if we accept the popular superstition that there are no alternatives to the labor of the illegals.

The idea that the vast number of U.S. citizens who populate our nation's welfare rolls, now to the fourth generation, might supplant the illegals as a source of such labor is dismissed as a comical notion not worth serious consideration.

Many reasons are invented for sparing our own welfare populations the necessity of working for their dole and livelihood. Some of these reasons include the "impossibility" of transporting large numbers of negro welfarites from the crime pots they have made of the inner cities to the fields or shops now manned by illegals, that "welfare folk don't like to do this kind of work", and that many of them, while able-bodied, are simply unemployable. It is despaired that Congress could invent means to solve the problems it has invented to avoid the need to invent solutions!

Granted, while Congress is ingenious in its invention of ways to fleece the productive white American and breed niggers by the millions, it is not very inventive when it comes to methods to relieve some of the federal oppression under which the productive U.S. taxpayer labors. Federal and state bureaucrats, by and large, are even worse—their jobs depend upon the problems they are hired to solve. May that not explain why, after decades and billions of dollars expended, the nation wallows in more "problems" than ever?

But that problems have not been solved does not mean that they are insoluble or that there are no sources other than Congress or government bureaucrats for inventive solutions. For many of the able-bodied welfarites, who have been born into a system that supplies all or most of the needs of which they are aware along with plenty of time for more remunerative criminal activity, to actively seek jobs requiring regular hours and paying minimal wages, there must be a strong incentive. Many negro welfarites have no conception of work. Even the idea of having to show up at a specified time and putting in a set number of hours doing a task at some other's behest is, at best, foreign to them. At worst, it is anathema and intolerable. They have been perfectly satisfied, for several generations now, to subsist on their welfare dole, supplemented by occasional forays into crime to support more exotic pleasures. They are used to endless leisure time with boredom broken by aimless pursuits, a drug-induced Nirvana, gang activities and easy access to free and unlimited sex in all its forms and outcomes. And if he or she "gets in trouble", there is always a government program with some starry-eyed do-gooder at the end of it to assuage the wound and absorb the blame.

Hunger always has been life's most compelling incentive. If there were no welfare dole and none of the multitude of government programs supplying all of life's needs—and some that no one needs—to the welfare population, it is guaranteed that those hungry, able-bodied "poor" would do something. They would not just lie down and die. The first thought of most would be crime.

But, without the welfare drain, more and better resources might be devoted, for example, to law enforcement. If the judicial system was forced to live up to its name and objectively dispense swift and sure true justice with compassion for the victim instead of for the criminal, most of these able-bodied welfarites could be induced to reject crime as a means of self-support and give honest work a try.

Not long ago, repetitive perpetrators of even minor felonies were executed as habitual criminals. And today, countries of the middle east have virtually no crime as a result of their no-nonsense swift system of justice. In this country, realistic, victim-oriented justice rapidly would solve our related problems of crowded prisons and burgeoning numbers of melanin-bearers on the loose.

Latin Americans, and other illegals, driven by the same forces that could be brought to bear upon our own welfare population, travel thousands of miles across land or sea to reach a country whose language and customs they do not know and where they must dodge the law for surreptitious, sub-minimally-paid work. How much easier it would be for negro U.S. citizens to travel much shorter distances in a friendly land without the threat of apprehension, incarceration and deportation to obtain work that paid at least the minimum wage. Again, without the drain of the multitude of government social programs that, over the decades, have only bred more welfare negroes at a phenomenal rate, made the plight of the productive white intolerable—made all of us worse off—even transportation might be provided and the existing programs for migrant labor modified to fit changed circumstances.

Who knows? Such changes might find in the welfarite a vestige of pride and productivity and give their lives a purpose in this "best of all possible societies". Perhaps the time has come to face some of these burgeoning social situations realistically while we still have the option to act rationally and logically instead of being forced to react precipitously and violently to crisis. I think we have not much time before crisis is upon us. Already, whites suffer disproportionately the violence of so-called "minorities".

I wonder what might be the reason politicians have been so lacking in inventiveness that they have not long ago adopted rational and realistic solutions to the interrelated triplet problems of third-world immigration, chronic and seasonal needs for unskilled labor and our cloying, degrading, expensive and ineffective welfare system with all its attendant bureaucratic programs? Could there be a fear of either alienating or no longer enlarging certain voting blocks? Is it possible that most of our elected representatives rely upon an uninformed, illiterate electorate of legal and illegal minorities to tip the voting balance in their favor? Is it possible that politicians would thwart the democratic process in order to spend decades at the bountiful Federal feeding trough? Or are they merely well-rewarded puppets reacting to the hatred of Zion in its pogrom to destroy white civilization? Or both? Perish the thought! ❑

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 — except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

RHODESIA

by

J.B. Campbell

We all know what happened to Rhodesia. It became Zimbabwe. But it didn't have to happen.

A land development company in Carson City sent me to British Honduras, South Africa and Rhodesia in 1971 to discuss with each government the purchase of a minimum of one hundred square miles for the creation of a White enclave of Europeans, Canadians and Americans who were fed up with their regulated, taxed and racially mixed lives. The company proposed that the new immigrants be exempt from all taxes and the country's military draft. There had to be some incentive for White people to relocate. This was to be another free port such as the one in the Bahamas then recently shut down by Lyndon Pindling.

A8 THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
MONDAY, AUGUST 23, 1993

ZIMBABWE WARNS 'RACIST' WHITES

Zimbabwe's president threatened to expel white citizens who cling to what he called racist attitudes, which he labeled "the greatest enemy" of the country's 10.5 million blacks. At a rally in Gwanda, Robert Mugabe said that many whites still saw blacks as second-class citizens and that whites who don't change will be kicked out. The attacks followed weeks of acrimony over government plans to seize white-owned farms for resettling peasants. Some 4,000 farmers, most of them white, own about a third of the farmland in the southern African country.

The British Honduras government offered as much land as we desired. Our cost would have been to build a road for them from Belize City to Belmopan, 50 miles inland. This proved to be out of the question. A quick stop in Belize City was enough to kill the idea anyway. It had the most bizarre collection of racial misfits imaginable: Quadroons, octaroons and whatever you call beings with blond, kinky hair and pale Negroid features.

The next stop was Johannesburg where Finance Minister Dr. Nico Diederichs was quite willing to explore our proposal. His secretary, however, a Mr. Conradie, was extremely anxious to keep me away from the minister and was later revealed as a saboteur. I flew up to Salisbury for discussions with the Rhodesian Minister of Internal Affairs, Jack Howman. Surprisingly, my reception here was quite chilly. Of all the countries which could have benefited from an influx of hard-working Whites, I felt that Rhodesia could ill-afford to ignore our proposal.

"It's a pity," said Mr. Howman, "that you were not here two years ago. My predecessor, Lord Graham, would have viewed your plan quite favorably. I must tell you, however, that change has come to Rhodesia..."

"By 'change,'" I asked, "do you refer to International Socialism?"

Mr. Howman's eyes narrowed. "This government could never agree to exempt an entire group of immigrants from taxes and conscription in any case."

"I'm aware, Mr. Minister, that you have a terrorism problem here," I said. "You're going to need a lot of White men to deal with that. I assure you that a great number of us will join the security forces after we move here."

He shook his head. "I'm afraid it's out of the question."

My mission in Southern Africa unsuccessful, I returned to the U.S. I could not get what little I'd seen of Africa out of my mind and within a year I made arrangements to enter the Rhodesian Army's officer training program in January, 1973. At the last minute the army selection board noticed that I would turn 26 the previous month. I was notified that I would not be accepted because a candidate had to be 25 or less when the program began each January. I flew to Salisbury to appeal the decision. The reader may wonder why I would want to fight for a country whose minister of internal affairs had already admitted to me was acquiescing in the demands of the world socialist movement? My only answer is that hope springs eternal. I knew that there were rival and much more nationalistic parties than Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front. It was possible, I reasoned, that Smith and his gang of sellouts would be replaced with patriots when the war heated up. At any rate, I would be fighting alongside wonderful people for the supremacy of our race in an important part of the world.

Salisbury was even more beautiful than the first time. The rainy season had brought out the lushness of the region. The cab took me straight to King George VI barracks. I walked down the wet asphalt drive between neat rows of low-roofed buildings. Purple jacaranda and red frangipani trees were still dripping from a heavy shower. I passed by one ivy-covered barrack and saw a couple of men inside. They were working on a dozen or so Belgian machine guns, the sergeant in stiff khaki shorts, knee-length green socks and green army sweater, instructing the young private on the details of the weapon. "Where can I find Major Lamprecht?"

"Straight down the way, mate, at the end."

Major Nick Lamprecht was the recruiter who'd wired me not to come.

"Major? My name's Campbell."

"Not Mr. Campbell, from California?"

"Yes, sir."

"Didn't you get my wire? You're overage."

"Yes, sir, but I've come to appeal the ruling."

"Very well. Sit down." He picked up an antiquated telephone and asked for a number. He explained to a colonel on the other end that the American was here, etc. "Well, he wishes to appeal the ruling... I see. Yes." He hung up and looked at me. "Your appeal's been rejected."

"For Christ's sake," I swore, "that's not an appeal. I expect to go before a board."

"Mr. Campbell, we have rules, after all..."

This was more evidence I gathered of the deadly British influence which kept Rhodesia in the loser category. This reliance on stale British ways was ridiculous considering that London had caused Washington and the UNO to blockade Rhodesia and to support the incredibly awful communist terror war against her. England's socialist leader had vowed to bring Rhodesia to its knees.

"Rules? You need White men here, Major, not rules!"

"Mr. Campbell," said Lamprecht, "why have you come to Rhodesia—to fight terrorists?"

"Yes, of course."

"You can always join the police. They have an anti-terrorist group that does the same sort of thing we do."

So that's how I happened to join the British South Africa Police. After six months as a regular cop in the bush I was allowed to join Support Unit, the anti-terrorist outfit to which Lamprecht had been referring. Support Unit had forty young Whites in charge of 320 Africans. I'd had to start out in the duty uniform branch so as to learn some of the ways of the African before they'd let me in. The BSAP had good reasons for wanting foreigners exposed to the realities of African life before giving them authority. Most of us are so Judaized from our English, European or American upbringings that we are unprepared to deal with the African's explosive mood swings, his treachery, cowardice and utter cruelty. The typical White foreigner needed to have the accumulation of Jewish egalitarianism flushed out of his system before he could deal sensibly with the black savages. In my case I'd had almost no exposure to Negroes besides maids and stable grooms as a boy in Illinois. I did have at least one near-fatal fight with a nigger in Houston following my first trip to Africa and managed to draw some conclusions from that. I was certainly not prepared for dealing with them effectively right off the airplane. I remember sitting in front of my hotel, the Selous, the day before I joined the police. As I read the paper an African approached with a painting under his arm.

"You like-ee painting, baas?" he murmured. I looked up.

"What?"

"Very nice painting, baas!"

"Hmm."

"Only twenty five dollah, baas!"

"I'm afraid not."

He looked at me slyly. "You afraid, baas?"

"No, I'm not afraid," I said, angry with myself. "Get out of here."

I'd mishandled the transaction. It should have gone this way:

"You like-ee painting, baas?"

"Bugger off!"

Most of us have been conditioned to lend some sort of fake dignity to Africans when we first arrive. This is the worst mistake of all. The African interprets any sort of kindness as stupidity and weakness. He appreciates only strength. It should be fair but even if it's not the only thing that matters is strength. The African expects to be punished when he misbehaves, which is often. This is the thing a White foreigner must know to survive.

The main task of the police was to keep the African under control. His mercurial nature can take him from slothful torpor to frenzied bloodlust very quickly. He can return from frenzy to sheepish puzzlement just as quickly but it's the frenzy which has to be handled properly and swiftly. The African riots began to reoccur in the early 60s after Harold Macmillan's Winds of Change began to blow across the Dark Continent. Kenya and the Belgian Congo were experiencing the hell of Uhuru ("Freedom!") and the nignogs down south were trying their hand at it, too. The BSA Police created Support Unit was a riot control squad. The unit utilized African askari to put down the riots, led of course by White section officers. This was naturally designed to blunt world criticism but it didn't work. The Support Unit niggers killed hundreds of rioting niggers and were denounced as politically incorrect. Support Unit retired in disgrace to its home base in Tomlinson Depot for a number of years. By 1970, when the terror war was heating up out in the bush, Support Unit had a new raison d'etre. It became the militarized anti-terrorist wing of the BSA Police.

I can't say I was overjoyed at having to work with Africans. The facts were, though, that there simply weren't enough White men to go around. As mentioned, there were only 40 of us in Support Unit, leading some 320 constables and their sergeants. The entire strength of the all-White Rhodesian Light Infantry at Mt. Darwin, the early center of terrorism in 1973, was 150! The Rhodesian African Rifles also had a tiny number of White officers leading 4,000 Africans. The BSA Police had several thousand Whites and more thousands of African constables and sergeants but these were not anti-terrorists.

At any given time in the early 70s there were between 400-600 terrorists roaming around in gangs of five to twenty in strength. Hundreds more were being trained in Chinese and Soviet camps in Mozambique, Zambia and Tanzania. These terrorists committed the most hideous atrocities, the results of combining Jewish doctrine with normal African cruelty. The typical punishment for any African accused by terrorists of helping us was the slicing off of his nose, ears, lips and genitals. The victim's wife then had to cook and eat the whole mess. White victims were hacked to death or merely shot full of holes. The bayonet was typically used because it was slower and, if we were around, quieter.

My racial feelings were obviously healthy at the beginning of this adventure or else I wouldn't have been there. But they really weren't developed. I was proud to be fighting for White supremacy, of course, but I hadn't realized the profound meaning of race or the vast chasm that cuts between us and the nignogs. It wasn't until I had to deal with the victims of terrorism that I began to notice that I was not particularly bothered by the deaths of Africans. The sight, though, of a dead White sickened and enraged me. I saw the African as the ultimate consumer, as destructive as a baboon and totally dependent upon the White man. The sadistic pleasure they take in killing man and beast was proof that they do not deserve to live.

Rhodesia was struck by an outbreak of typhoid and cholera in 1973. Only the Africans were affected and for a while they were dropping like flies because of their filthy habits. The black population had swollen to five and a half million, which was all the fault of the White man's insane subsidies, and I recall being extremely cheered and hopeful that the cleansing epidemic would carry on. Alas, it petered out. (AIDS has been touted as the great White hope but it is now reported that even this pandemic cannot overcome the phenomenal African birthrate. Only starvation can cure the problem.)

The peak White population was 270,000, or one twentieth of the African. South Africa's White population is roughly one eighth of the African. Much of this disparity was instigated by the political niggers encouraging the tribal coons to overcome the goddamned White man by sheer numbers. Also contributing to the problem was the great illegal immigration from neighboring black countries. South Africa and Rhodesia were plagued by this immigration because it was widely known that work, money and benefits were to be had there.

Perhaps the greatest institutional responsibility for African unrest and dissatisfaction lay with the Christian missionaries from England, America and the European countries. All African children went to mission schools and were taught to read and write in English and their own language and to love Jesus. They were kept in these schools until the sixth grade whereupon they were released and encouraged to get a job, having now been ed-ju-cated! The problem was that with a 20:1 ratio of employees to employers, jobs were not easy to find and they certainly didn't pay very much. My batman, for example, received $14 per month on which he supported a wife and child. He was overpaid by a couple of dollars to boot. My pay was the princely sum of $250 per month, plus combat pay.

Besides this unrealistic expectation which the missionaries created, they filled the Africans' little minds with the same anti-White garbage that children in all other countries are forced to swallow in their churches and Sunday schools. Happily a number of these holy poisoners were being bumped off by the terrorists. The irony was that the missions were in the majority supporting the black bastards.

At one point I was ordered to visit an American mission which had been causing us a lot of trouble. I'd put this off for a month because I really couldn't stand being around them. However, one day I loaded six askari into the back of a Support Unit Land Rover and headed into the deadly Chesa tribal trust land. I had with me a Boer friend, Willem van der Merve, along as a witness. A TTL was an African reserve in which a White had no business unless he was a missionary or in the security forces. Presently we came to the offending mission and I parked the truck. The missionary's wife, a frumpy but cheerful American, came out to greet us. Rather, she greeted my Africans and finally remembered Willem and me. She wasn't so cheerful with us. "What can I do for you?" she asked coolly.

I introduced ourselves and said, "I'm an American, also, and I've been asked to come see you."

"Very well," she said, "Would you care for tea?"

Willem and I were led to the foyer of the mission and no farther. We sat and waited for our tea. In fact, we waited until my Africans had been pointedly served first outside. It was probably the first tea they'd ever tasted. Finally the holy cow came in to the foyer and sat.

"Is your husband here?" I asked.

"No, I'm sorry."

"Well, ma'am," I said, "I've been asked to come over and talk to you about the terrorists in this area..."

"There are no terrorists around here," she stated, obviously excepting myself.

"The problem is that we have killed terrorists who were wearing bracelets from your mission hospital, here."

"It is our obligation to help the wounded, whatever their politics."

"Yes, well—the fact is that you are aiding the enemy in time of war, you and the other missions. The Rhodesian government will not put up with this much longer. They are naturally reluctant to crack down on Christian missionaries but you are not giving them much choice..."

She knew I was bluffing and just looked at me. The missionaries had gotten away with such subversion at this point that they knew they'd never be run off. They were part of the plan.

"Besides," I reasoned, "regardless of how much you help these killers they will very likely turn on you one day as they have on other missionaries who have helped them."

"They wouldn't hurt us," insisted the woman. "They love us." Willem coughed to keep from laughing.

"Africans don't love, ma'am," I answered. "They don't even have that word in their vocabularies. You should know that."

"They have learned to love through our Christian teaching."

"One of these days," I said, "the ones you have helped will be ordered to come back and kill you and all your Africans. If they refuse to do this then they will be killed. The ones who kill them will come and kill you." She continued to deny everything I said so Willem and I got up and left. A few months later this mission was attacked and the White missionaries murdered.

I knew little about the nature of Israel until a friend in Special Branch told me that it had been learned that the Israelis were supplying the communist terrorists against us. As a typical American I'd had no interest in Mid East politics but this was preposterous. How dare this poisoned dwarf which had the gall to advertise itself as a country aid and abet the most evil black murderers then working in Africa? (Later, I saw that this made perfect sense; it was just one gang of White-hating terrorists helping another, a sort of professional courtesy.) Ian Smith, to preserve his credibility with the security forces, spoke quietly to South Africa's prime minister, John Vorster, who objected to Golda Meir, who denied the charge categorically. Vorster insisted that Meir put a stop to the Israeli treachery or else all private aid from South African Jews would be prohibited. That did it. Meir called it a rogue operation, apologized and promised it would never happen again.

Ian Smith was an enigmatic character. No one really understood what the heck he was talking about. He was sort of a Rhodesian Paul Volker. He of course distinguished himself in November, 1965 by making the Unilateral Declaration of Independence to England's socialist prime minister, Harold Wilson. This followed one of the slimiest betrayals in the slimy history of Perfidious Albion. Rhodesia used to be called "Southern Rhodesia." Northern Rhodesia became Zambia in 1964 after it was "granted independence" by England for its acceptance of democracy, that is, rule by niggers. England was in no position to grant independence to Southern Rhodesia because the latter had never been a British colony. "RSR" had been self-sustaining and self-governed since 1923.

Zambian strongman Kenneth Kaunda promptly broke his promises to the credulous Whites by seizing their farms and businesses right after the elections. The Whites in Southern Rhodesia took note of this as well as the madness in the Belgian Congo and decided to remain in control of their country. His war record and damaged face made Ian Douglas Smith an attractive prime minister in 1964. Rhodesians should have examined his war record more closely. Smith had been a Spitfire pilot and was shot down over Italy, one side of his face severely injured. He was rescued by Italian partisans and spent six months with them, fighting the Germans. The Italian partisans were Communists. This is the important part of his war record.

Nevertheless, in November, '65 he shook the world by saying "No" to the New World Order. Furious, Harold Wilson went to Lyndon Johnson, complaining of Smith's attitude, whereupon Johnson went to the UNO and a cruel blockade was enacted against the California-size, land-locked country. Rhodesia was declared an outlaw country headed by an illegal regime. Rhodesia would not be recognized by the UNO until it allowed itself to be run by niggers. Smith became defiant, promising that the country would not subject itself to the catastrophe of African rule in his lifetime. It was a thrilling performance but it was just a performance.

The leaders of the two main terrorist gangs, Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, were detained indefinitely in 1965. Mugabe headed ZANU (Zimbabwe African Nationalist Union) and was supported by the Chinese. Nkomo headed ZAPU (Zimbabwe African People's Union) and was Soviet-backed. The latter along with forty five of his senior gangsters were kept at a secret prison camp on the edge of a game reserve at Vila Salazar, on the Mozambique frontier. I only know this because I was sent there to supervise the guarding of them for six weeks at the end of 1973. It happened that one of Support Unit's secret duties was the guarding of this camp. It was this experience which persuaded me that my dear comrades and I were risking our lives for nothing.

Nkomo and his henchmen had been in detention for eight years at this point. This was a celebrated cause in the world socialist movement, their imprisonment without a trial. I quickly learned that this was part of the great deception practiced by Ian Smith. Nkomo and two other top ZAPU thugs were ensconced in separate, spacious rondovals (African huts) inside a high chain link fence. The rest of the leadership was in a much larger kraal, or collection of rondovals, a half mile away. There was no risk of escape because each of them would frequently be given a pass to travel by Rhodesia Railways to their stomping (and killing) grounds in Bulawayo, accompanied by one thoroughly intimidated African constable, free as a bird. Their relatives could visit as well—without being searched.

Nkomo was the postmaster of the detention camp. Their mail was not censored by the police! I thought this was remarkable but later found that there was no need for the terrorists to plot against the Whites; this was being done for them by the Ian Smith government. Anyway, Nkomo tried needling me once as I sat outside his hut in my Land Rover, waiting for him to finish postmarking the mail of his gangsters so that I could take it to the train. I could hear the deliberately slow thump of his rubber stamp. I became irritated. Finally I went to his door and shouted, "Joshua Nkomo, I am going to kick your fat, black ass!" Thump-thump-thump went the rubber stamp. Into the canvas bag went all the terrorist mail and he closed the padlock which sealed the bag and prevented us from examining it. I soon arranged for my niggers to practice with their machine rifles nearby, just to establish who was in charge here, but I was kidding myself.

Nkomo and his killers would frequently be trooped into a school-like building at the police camp. They would sit at their little desks and take examinations in political science, history, government and so on. They would cheat, of course—what did it matter? The walls of Nkomo's rondoval were littered with honorary degrees from Oxford, Harvard and the rest of the most prestigious pestholes in the civilized world. When I saw this schooling business I was appalled. "Why, these bastards are being groomed for leadership!" I yelped, "by Ian Smith!"

Police Inspector Tony Seward, Vila Salazar's member-in-charge, shrugged and said, "I suppose you could say that..."

"Hell, Tony," I said, not believing my eyes, "this is the sellout. This is how it works! No wonder this camp is a state secret. No wonder we're in charge of these guys instead of the Prisons Bureau—it's got to be covered up."

This was 1973-74. In 1975 Henry Kissinger ordered Ian Smith to release the entire ZAPU gang from Vila Salazar as well as Mugabe's ZANU gang from similar detention in their tribal area up north. Mugabe and his killers had also been groomed for leadership by Smith, doubtless at the orders of his bosses in the UNO.

Nkomo was of the Matabele (Zulu) tribe and Mugabe from the Mashona tribe. Everything in black Africa revolves around tribalism and witchcraft. Historically the fierce Matabele had dominated the cowardly but sly Mashona. For this reason Nkomo was assumed by Washington to become the first African prime minister of Rhodesia once the Whites had been tricked into relinquishing power by Smith. Nkomo's first act upon arrival at ZAPU headquarters in Lusaka, Zambia was to order the shooting down of a Rhodesian airliner. A Soviet missile was fired at an Air Rhodesia Viscount as it took off from Kariba. The plane crash-landed and there were many White survivors. One couple, experienced with terrorists, tried to get the rest to escape into the bush but they refused, preferring to wait for a rescue. The couple managed to hide before a gang of Nkomo's jubilant niggers approached. "We are here to liberate you!" shouted the commander. "First, give us your wristwatches and other valuables!" When these things were handed over the survivors were shot.

Nkomo ordered a second airliner shot down at Kariba. This time there were no survivors of the crash.

Ian Smith's mission was gradually to soften up the tough White farmers and security force men and to persuade them of the futility of fighting. It has always been done this way: An attractive leader tells the people what they want to hear; they believe him and invest their trust and faith with him. Gradually he changes his position and tricks his followers to change with him. Patriots who catch on are silenced.

Wilfred Brooks was the publisher of Property & Finance, a sophisticated weekly which covered farming, business, politics and the Jewish Problem. Brooks relentlessly accused Smith of betraying the country with secret deals with Washington and London, of suicidal military policies

(we were forbidden, for example, to attack the terrorist bases in the neighboring black countries) and with his increasing public defeatism which Brooks said was calculated to undermine the strong and very successful Rhodesian will to resist. Eventually Smith could take no more and sued Brooks in civil court. Just as the trial was beginning Brooks' son was killed by terrorists. Brooks asked for a delay for obvious reasons. Smith refused and forced him into court. Brooks was in possession of many documents which proved Smith's complicity in the UNO's proposed black future of the country but Smith invoked the Official Secrets Act and blocked Brooks' use of them to defend himself. Without these Brooks lost and Smith was awarded $38,000, which ruined Brooks. He lost his paper and left for South Africa.

Soon, Ian Smith arranged a ceasefire with the terrorists. The security forces, it was estimated, had reduced the terrorist population down to 45-70 killers still operating inside the country. In April, 1974 we were put on ice for an indefinite period. This allowed the terrorists to regroup and bring in replacements. After two months of this obvious treachery, I resigned.

After the Brooks episode no one else accused Smith of treason. I'm accusing him of it now, just for the record. When, in 1980, Smith spoke in a big church in Salisbury and announced, "We must accept the inevitability of majority rule," a few in the back pews booed and catcalled, but that was it. He'd performed his mission flawlessly over a fifteen year period. It had taken that long for the toughest bunch of White men since 1945 to be converted into helpless wards of murdering niggers.

What was it about? Minerals, of course, but it was even more about race. Wall Street and London crapitalists do not want independent White men in control of raw materials—in Russia, in Europe, in America or in Africa. The Jewish crapitalists want ignorant colored men in charge not just because they can make better deals with them but because they hate us.

The upshot was that Robert Mugabe's gang came to power in Zimbabwe. This came as a great surprise to the diseased democrats in the Carter administration who'd assumed that the dominant Matabele would continue to lord it over the Mashona. They forgot, I guess, that Mugabe's tribe was five times bigger than Nkomo's! As this is written Mugabe has begun a program of seizing the farms of desperate Whites who thought they could stay on and ride the tiger. The farms are being turned over to deserving terrorists. Mugabe announced that any Whites who show signs of racism by objecting will be deported. ❑

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 including postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

The Weaver / Harris Verdict

by
Major Donald V. Clerkin

The Federal trial of Randy Weaver and Kevin Harris, in which the Government charged that the two White separatists killed a deputy U.S. Marshal, ended with a verdict of not guilty. The Weavers lived in Ruby Ridge, Idaho. Randy Weaver was approached by the Feds who wanted him to infiltrate the Aryan Nations in Hayden Lake, Idaho. When he refused, the FBI concocted a gun charge against him, claiming that Weaver had sold a shotgun a quarter inch too short to an undercover agent. Ordered to appear in court on the charge, Weaver failed to show. A year and a half later, the U.S. Marshals Service sneaked up Ruby Ridge, shot the Weaver's dog, shot Sam Weaver, Randy's fourteen year-old son, and shot Mrs. Vicki Weaver through the eye, and prepared to drop a bladder filled with gasoline onto the roof of the Weaver home. The Feds knew that Weaver had his other children in the house they were preparing to incinerate. Like Waco, this did not matter. White people must be burned.

Weaver and Harris surrendered under the aegis of Officer Jack McLamb and Col. "Bo" Gritz. Brought to trial in Boise, Attorney Gerry Spence, who has never lost a criminal defense in court, took their case pro bono, without charge. Spence called no witnesses in the defense. His closing argument noted that the Government had not succeeded in proving a prima facie case against the defendants. The bullet dug out of the deputy U.S. Marshal's body during an autopsy was not the caliber of round that Weaver or Harris had, and the angle of the wound demonstrated that neither defendant could have fired the fatal shot from where they were at the time.

Ruby Ridge and Waco are signals to the white people of the United States that they are expandable. Zog burned Bob Mathews and Gordon Kahl. ZOG tried to burn Randy Weaver's family. ZOG burned the Branch Davidians. Mathews, Kahl and the Branch Davidians got no jury trial. But like the "Seditious Conspiracy" trial in Fort Smith, Arkansas in 1988, where the late Pastor Bob Miles, Pastor Dick Butler and Louis R. Beam, Jr. were acquitted by a Federal jury, Randy Weaver and Kevin Harris got a jury to pay attention to the wild stories that ZOG lawyers are willing to tell in court under oath. Gerry Spence did not put on a defense. He didn't need to. The jury took three weeks to decide, but they acquitted the defendants of the charge of murder. Randy Weaver was convicted of failing to appear in court on the gun charge. With time served he should do little jail time.

The System is corrupt, though obviously all white Americans are not so corrupt as ZOG would prefer them to be. The Feds thought they could tell a jury any cock and bull tale, but not before the media pumped up the defendants as the worst thing since John Dillinger and Machine Gun Kelly. It did not work this time. ZOG will try again against the survivors of the Branch Davidian holocaust. Know this, as the white race recedes in importance in North America, the integrity of trial by jury will recede with it. When whites are no longer in charge, then our civilization dies.

⊞⊞⊞

What's New in Milwaukee?

The F.B.I. has a thing it calls the "Violent Crimes Task Force." Well, the F.B.I. is supposed to be interested in violations of Federal laws, interstate flight to avoid prosecution, bank robbery, kidnapping, R.I.C.O. activities, etc. Murder, assault, even rape and child abuse [remember old bag Janet Reno moaning about alleged child abuse in the Koresh buildings] are not Federal crimes. Nevertheless, here in Milwaukee every other night or so an F.B.I. agent is on television in the city street, telling the reporter that the Feds are looking for someone who has committed not a Federal offense but rather an offense under Wisconsin law. When I attempted to make an issue of this lack of Federal jurisdiction with the Milwaukee Police Department and the Milwaukee Common Council, I was met with stony silence by the police command and by certain city aldermen who are hot dogs on local police affairs. No one wanted to discuss the matter, so it would seem that the tentacles of the Federal government are wrapped tightly around the local police departments in the cities. Boobus americanus will wake up one morning to find that he is pinched by a Fed, with no local cop in sight. Too late Boobus will figure out that the KGB and the Stasi, the Mossad and the ADL, are his policemen.

⊞⊞⊞

Bogus "EuroAmerican Alliance"

Someone in the Oakland and Berkeley, California area has decided to advertise himself as the "EuroAmerican Alliance," "Students and Workers fighting to defend our European Blood." Beware of whoever is behind this. There is no chapter of the Euro-American Alliance, Inc. in that area. Our name is solely the property of the Wisconsin corporation that bears the name. There are no licensees, no franchises; no one has been permitted to use our name.

⊞⊞⊞

What I Read each Month

Each month we receive a lot of Movement literature. I read everything that comes in here. Must reads are: The Liberty Bell, Box 21, Reedy WV, 25270; W.A.R. [JM., Box 65, Fallbrook, CA 92088]; GANPAC Brief [Hans Schmidt], Box 1137, Santa Monica, CA 90401; Resistance, Dixie Press, Box 608, Raleigh, NC 27601; The Truth at Last, Box 1211, Marietta, GA 30061; Calling Our Nation, Aryan Nations, Box 362, Hayden Lake, ID 83835; Criminal Politics, [Lawrence T. Patterson], P.O. Box 37432, Cincinnati, OH 45237; The C.D.L. Report, P.O. Box 449, Arabi, LA 70032. Some publications we do not receive every month, but they are welcomed when we do get to see them. NS Graphics, Box 68, Woburn, MA 01801, publishes Race and Reason." There are many newsletters received here each month, Identity Christian, NS, Klan—all good stuff. The ones I have mentioned I read with regularity. Can't mention every single publication we see, but they are all appreciated for their loyal expressions of concern for the Aryan race. That is what will do the job. Young Aryans writing and developing their communication skills. Before we can win over the white people to our side, they have to see that we have something coherent to say. The quality of the various new publications is improving every year. Keep at it.

⊞⊞⊞

A Conversation With the Blankos

I had a talk recently with two young white men, the subjects ranging from "hate crimes" laws to race, economics and history. One of the two, a college student and a born-again Christian, was trying to tell the other fellow that the Congress had passed a Federal "hate crimes" statute. I explained to them both that Congress had passed a "hate crimes" statistics law, not to be confused with the Wisconsin law that enhanced criminal sentences for "hate crimes," which the U.S. Supreme Court had recently upheld. The born-again Christian responded by saying that any white man who harmed a black or other minority for racial reasons should be executed, that racism is a sin; he hated white racists. When I asked whether he hated the black rapist who chooses white female victims, the other fellow, a student of economics, chimed in to say that the reason blacks do this to white women is the oppression they have suffered under the white man for three hundred years. I thought I was listening to Malcolm X!

The born-again Christian said he would have to see whether the black rapist had had a proper education. The black rapist gets the benefit of the doubt. The white felon goes down the toilet.

Our conversation turned to the future of the United States. I said to them that I thought the country was through because the founding white race has been dispossessed by immigrants from the Third World, the work of Washington traitors. The economics major claimed that white men have been in charge of things since the founding of the country. [Again I thought I was hearing Malcolm X.] He claimed that the peoples coming to America from the Third World would uplift the economy because they "work hard." [Which means they want to get rich quick!] The born-again Christian began to say in nearly ecstatic tones that God has His eye on America; that God won't permit anything nasty to happen here. Even so, he thinks he will be "raptured" and so avoid all the trials and tribulations to be visited on the rest of humanity. But if he is martyred, why, then he will be surely saved. Did he have any sense of personal responsibility for preserving the white race and its Aryan culture? I asked him. Like what? the economics major asked. Violence against minorities like in "Mississippi Burning"? The born-again Christian had an answer: God would not permit the evil racists to harm His children. No race war, no economic collapse; just onward and onward to Glory. When I reminded him that God did not prevent the murders of Czar Nicholas II, Louis XVI and Charles I of England, saying that the Red Jews hat shot down the entire family of the Russian Czar, the born-again literally turned ghostly pale. "Red Jews?" - "God's Chosen People? No! The Communists did that!" I could have laughed if his ignorance of events was not so pronounced.

Do you see why America is in the dumps? I was talking to two middle-class white males, not Ivy League nerds or black bucks from Malcolm X college. No idea of racial awareness did they express. Racial denial – racial abnegation, is what they offered as arguments. The economics major had nothing but concern for whether the non-whites were getting a fair break in a white-dominated society. The born-again Christian was prepared to see the entire white civilization go down, just as long as the true Bible-believers got saved in the end. America, they claimed, was too powerful to fall, though they agreed with me that there is corruption everywhere in government and the establishment. This was due, said the born-again, to not enough Christians in government, to which I responded that there are many, too many Jews in the Congress and the Senate. The economics major said that there should be more job opportunities for blacks, which would solve the race problem in the United States. He claimed that crime statistics would go down if every black had a good education and a chance for a better life. When I said that blacks view whites as potential prey, and money in their hands would just make them more capable of ranging far and wide seeking white victims, his response was, 'I have a black friend, and he is not that way at all.' Exasperating as this conversation was, I am more firmly convinced than ever that the blankos cannot be saved from their own folly.

And the blankos are America today. They cheer on the camarilla in Washington as it leads them to every dirty little Jew war, as the Feds murder the Weavers and the Branch Davidians; never do the blankos question in whose interest such atrocities are committed. If I live long enough to see the formation of our Aryan Republic, I will raise my voice against the admittance of such as the blankos. They will not gain from our sacrifices. These do-nothings can stay with the muds and Jews they loved and worshiped, with the dregs of the Feds who will find themselves suddenly without a master. It is difficult to think that such white nothings are in any way related to us, the Aryan folk. This is my indictment of criminal America. It had deluded whites into believing that there is justification for their dispossession and humiliation, their abject victimization. The blankos were brought up by television and 'educated' [indoctrinated] in race-mixing schools. They are the drones who make the ZOG go on and on, ad infinitum, as though the poor fools had a future in a country they no longer own. White racial denial, Holocaust acceptance, race bastardy—this will be the end of the blankos, and the final gong for America. It cannot be too soon to suit me. We Aryans realize that for there to be a new beginning there must be an end to this monstrosity known as the United States, this bloated Humpty-Dumpty; this thing that mocks the history of the Aryan race. Flawed from its inception, America was bought and sold long ago, the camarilla in Washington existing on the blood and labor of the Aryan people who gave this continent any chance for greatness it ever would have. In that the wretches have pissed away the country they had, we Aryans will tear a new nation, full of race and culture, from the tatters that remains. As for the blankos, there will be weeping and the gnashing of teeth, for many are called but few are chosen.

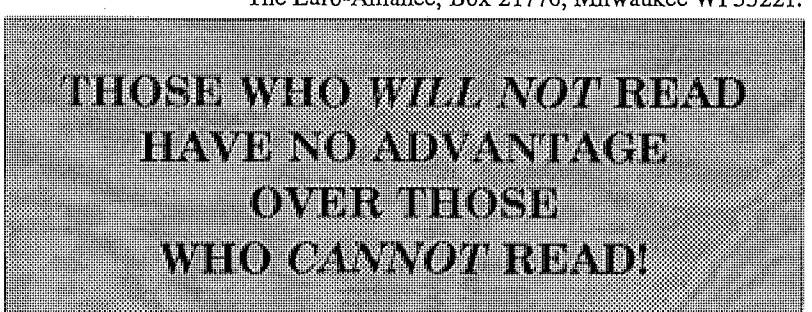
⁂

The arrest in California of the Fourth Reich Skinheads on charges of conspiracy to kill Rodney King and blow up a black church are fabrications of the F.B.I., which had one of their sting artists in the Skins' ranks telling them what to think and do. Beware of anyone who comes on with money and guns, telling you to do some damage to someone. Those who do violence never talk about it. Those who talk violence want you to do something. VIGILANCE!

From The Talon, Aug/Sep 1993, published by The Euro-Alliance, Box 21776, Milwaukee WI 53221.



DEAD CHILDREN

WILL BE THE RESULT if the American people don't wake up.

Our children are being taught that homosexual sodomy is good and acceptable behavior.

FACT: Sodomy (anal intercourse and related perversions practiced mainly by homosexuals) is the main way the AIDS virus spreads.

Our children are being taught that interracial sex is good and acceptable behavior.

FACT: Straight Black males are 14 to 20 times as likely to be infected with the AIDS virus as Whites, and sex with Blacks (and IV drug abusers, who are disproportionately Black) is the primary means by which AIDS is entering the straight White community. Our young girls must be warned!

Our children are being taught that wearing a condom will protect them from AIDS.

FACT: Condoms have a 12% failure rate in preventing pregnancy, and sperm is much larger than the AIDS virus. Tests have revealed that typical holes in condoms are 50 to 500 times the size of the virus, easily allowing its passage.

YOU'RE BEING LIED TO by the government and the media about AIDS, race, crime, and a thousand other things. Listen to our patriotic radio program, AMERICAN DISSIDENT VOICES, to get the facts that the liars don't want you to hear:

☐ NATIONWIDE on shortwave radio: Three times every Saturday via WRNO; 12:30 p.m. Eastern Time (9:30 a.m. Pacific) on 15420 kHz; 9 p.m. Eastern Time (6 p.m. Pacific) on 7355 kHz; and 1 a.m. Eastern Time (10 p.m. Pacific) on 7395 kHz. Though shortwave conditions vary, our signal can be heard on inexpensive shortwave radios almost everywhere.

☐ SOUTHEASTERN US AND MIDWESTERN US: Every Saturday night, 11:30 p.m. Eastern Time, 10:30 p.m. Central Time, at 1510 on your AM dial via WLAC, Nashville, Tennessee. WLAC is a 50,000-Watt AM station that can be heard in 16 states at night.

☐ ARKANSAS: Every Saturday morning, 10 a.m. at 760 on your AM dial, via KMTL, Little Rock. This station can be heard in most of the state. Also heard every Saturday night, 10:30 p.m. at 1510 AM via WLAC.

☐ FLORIDA: Every Saturday night, 11:30 p.m. at 1510 on your AM dial via WLAC. Also heard every Saturday morning, 11:30 a.m., at 1110 AM, via WTIS Tampa. This station covers a wide area of west central Florida.

☐ OHIO: Every Saturday night, 11:30 p.m. at 1510 on your AM dial via WLAC. Also heard every Sunday afternoon, 1 p.m. at 92.1 on your FM dial, via WNRR, Bellevue. This station can be heard from Fremont to Sandusky to Lorain and points south.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE • BOX 90 • HILLSBORO • WV 24946 • 304-653-4600

AN INTERVIEW WITH JOSEF GINSBURG

by
Eric Thomson

Josef Ginsburg, who wrote under the pen name of "J.G. Burg", came to Toronto to assist Ernst Zündel's defence effort in The Great Holocaust Trial in 1988, at which time I was able to speak to this remarkable anti-Zionist jew and to make extensive notes after each conversation. "Mr. Burg", as he preferred to be addressed, was the author of several booklets on such favorite Zionist subjects as the so-called Holocaust, the founding of the bandit-state of Israel, the so-called "diary" of Anne Frank, German "guilt", etc. Unfortunately, none of his works are available in English, to my knowledge, and most of them appear to be out of print. I am sure the Zionists are happy about that, for my own readings of his works answered any question I might have had as to why the "Bundeszog" or Zionist Occupation Government of Germany and their jewish masters were attempting to surround "J.G. Burg" with a wall of silence. Zionist thugs had even attacked him in a cemetery where he was visiting the grave of a lady friend who had perished in a fire which "Burg" insisted had been set by the Zionists.

Josef Ginsburg, who no longer needs the threadbare cover of his pen name, now that he is dead, probably put up a good fight, despite his years. He was a short, tough, wiry, agile and keenly alert man, with penetrating gaze and hawk-like features. His sharp eyes and almost haughty demeanor seemed to challenge all whom he met, as if to say: "You, there! How do you serve or thwart my purpose?" Being a jew, he often involved himself in confusing circular and/or corkscrew reasoning of the sort exemplified by Franz Kafka's stories. When his guard was up, as it usually was, he would only answer a question with a question: "Is your name Josef Ginsburg?" "Why do you ask me that?"

Certainly, I would have received nothing but questions in answer to my questions, had I told him that I was treating our conversations as an interview and that I was secretly making notes of his statements. For anyone who did interview him, with his knowledge, it was a struggle all the way. Whenever there were witnesses, cameras, microphones and/or tape recorders in evidence, he would become very cagey and evasive. He insisted that no one take any pictures of him and he actually made a videotaped interview in which only the face of the interviewer ever appeared on camera! After this "night and fog" appearance, he demanded and received the interviewer's promise that the interview would not be released or shown to anyone before his death. Although I did not tell him that I was taking notes, I respected Mr. Ginsburg's wishes also in this regard.

Josef Ginsburg was exasperating, for he was an eyewitness to history, specifically the Zionist-National Socialist collaboration which Zionists have always exerted themselves so mightily to cover up. Yet, he would not reveal publicly how he had learned the truth about the Holohoax and the gas chamber lie.

He would even quibble about his own identity and the political connections which caused him to be among the first Soviet inspectors of all the so-called death camps in Poland. Privately, he made no attempt to hide his Communist connections and sympathies.

Yes, he had toured the concentration camps of Auschwitz, Birkenau, Maidanek, Treblinka, Sobibor and all the others in Poland, as a member of the official Soviet inspection team and he found no evidence whatsoever of any attempt on the part of the Germans to exterminate anyone and certainly not by means of lethal gas chambers! But by refusing to admit this in any public interview, his statements debunking the Holocaust legend were largely dismissed by journalists as 'unauthoritative opinion', which went unreported. That gave these prostitutes of the pen an 'easy out', for they were already being paid to believe in the Holohoax. If Ginsburg had been more open to them, he could have at least raised some doubts in their own minds, regardless of the rubbish their editors deemed 'fit to print'.

I told him that he should tell them that he was a Communist and a member of the Soviet inspection team ("our gallant Soviet allies"), for in Soviet Canuckistan, alias Canada, that would be tantamount to sainthood. The word of a Communist jew "simply must be true" and the only rebuttal available to the Zionist Holocaustorians would be (a) to prove that he was not a Communist or (b) not a jew. But Josef Ginsburg would not go all out, as he saw it, to set the historical record straight. To this day it is a mystery to me why he wanted to 'pull his punches' or "hide his candle under a bushel", as the jew-book says. Perhaps he feared for his life, although he and his work were no secret whatsoever to the Zionists and their German Occupation Government stooges, for he lived in Germany and could be contacted through a small publishing firm there. Maybe he thought they could not locate him if he concealed his real name and background. He behaved as if he feared to compromise his 'security', no matter how illusory that security appeared to me and others.

Josef Ginsburg's motive for attacking Zionism by stating historical truth was indeed very jewish: he feared that jews were endangering their survival by putting all their political eggs into the Zionist basket. He saw in Communism, as his fellow jews had seen in Christianity and Capitalism, a protective cloak of universalism in which the body of jewish tribalism would thrive, much like certain maggots thrive beneath the protective skin of a living host, as they feed off the host's blood, I opined, for the similarity was obvious. Ginsburg saw the Zionist drive to particularize jewish, as opposed to Gentile, interests as extremely dangerous. I certainly agreed with him on this point and I asked him why the Rothschilds, the International Zionists par excellence, had funded Theodor Herzl's Territorial Zionist efforts, which, if successful, would serve to identify, separate and isolate the jewish population from the rest of the world. "The Rothschilds had to do it," said Ginsburg, "because it is so ordered in their family compact."

I asked him what he meant by that, thinking of A. Conan Doyle's "The Musgrave Ritual".

"Each heir to the Rothschild fortune must read the compact and agree to fulfill its provisions, to the best of his ability, during his lifetime," he said. "There is no argument with the terms of the compact, regardless of any perception of danger or undesirability on the part of the heir. The family compact has the force of law."

"But," I said, "the state of Israel is very much a danger to the interests of world jewry."

"I agree with you," said Ginsburg. "The Rothschilds may also agree with you, but they must carry out the orders which have been in effect for many centuries. They have no recourse."

Although jews have not only survived, but thrived, prospered and conned their way to conquest via such fallacious 'universal creeds' as Christianity and Capitalism, Ginsburg was convinced that 'Communism was the only way to go'. I mentioned Jabotinski's group, from which came the founders of Israel, as being a bunch of Communist-Zionists. "That is a contradiction in terms," he said, "for true Communism is internationalist and all-inclusive. It cannot be nationalist and therefore exclusive. That is why I call the Territorial Zionists who founded the state of Israel 'Zionazis' and that is why people like Ben Gurion, Levi Skolnick, alias Eshkol and Golda Meyersohn, alias Meir, got along so well with the German Nazis, especially after their little Kristallnacht show which they deemed necessary to scare their fellow jews out of Germany, hopefully to settle in Palestine."

"You bring up this recurrent theme of German Nazi-Zionazi collaboration," I said. "This is a fairly new concept to me." "And rightly so," he said, "for that is just the way the Zionazis who control the media want their collaboration to be: secret. Eichmann was one of their weak links. That's why they had to kidnap him from Argentina and murder him in Israel. They locked him in a glass box in the courtroom, supposedly for his protection, but really to keep him from hearing the real questions and giving real answers. Eichmann was a fool. He did not even know that he had a dangerous secret, for he had done nothing wrong. He should have kept his mouth shut and gone into hiding when he heard about the Zionazis' murder of his jewish counterpart, Joel Brandt, in Israel."

"So, innocence can be deadly," I said. "Yes," he agreed, "the guilty know why they should cover their tracks and they know how to do it."

"So what was Eichmann's role in German Nazi-Zionazi collaboration?" I asked. "He worked with Joel Brandt and others to smuggle jews out of Europe and into Palestine, against the wishes of the British who governed the territory under a mandate." "Would Eichmann have known about the Ha'arev or Transfer Agreement which allowed jews emigrating from Germany to take their wealth with them in the form of German-made goods?" I asked. "Another reason for his judicial murder," said Ginsburg.

"You mentioned earlier that the Zionists and the Nazis collaborated on the drafting of the so-called Nuremberg Race Laws," I said. "Yes," he said, "one of the Zionist collaborators was Rabbi Leo Baeck, who now lives in London, England." "What did Baeck do?" I asked.

"He helped the Nazis define who was a jew and who was a German and he suggested the adoption of the yellow, six-pointed star as the symbol of the jewish nation."

"You mean that this symbol was not previously used to signify judaism?" I asked. "Oh, it was a jewish symbol, just as it was a Babylonian symbol. The six-pointed star was used by many different people. The German Condor Legion used it as a badge of rank in Spain during the Fascist War from 1936 to 1939. Your American police often use the six-pointed star. But as late as the 1930s, 'The Lion of Judah' was used to symbolize jewish nationality. You may remember the British newspaper story which appeared in March, 1933, headlined 'Judea Declares War on Germany.'" "Yes," I said. "Well, the article carried a frieze-like strip of lions and swastikas across the front page which symbolized 'Germans versus jews'. No six-pointed stars!" he exclaimed.

"I remember the article," I said. "Samuel Untermeyer of the World Jewish Congress declared a boycott of all German goods. Did this mean that there was a conflict between the Territorial Zionists and the International Zionists?"

"No," he said. "The Zionists were only making sure that German foreign trade would remain under their control, as they had done with Germany in World War I. They made the blockade and broke it themselves. No one else was allowed to do that, so it was really a Zionist monopoly of German trade."

"What, in your opinion, was the reason for the Zionist 'declaration of war' on Germany in 1933, only a month after Hitler's election as Chancellor?" I asked.

"The Zionists (and all other jews, I thought) never do anything for only one reason," he said. "Their declaration of war was given with at least a twofold purpose. One reason was their hatred of Hitler's economic program and his intention of nationalizing the Bank of Germany, which was owned by the Rothschilds, as are all so-called national banks today."

"So you agree that the Rothschilds and their bankster stooges control the creation of money for the entire world," I said.

"Yes," he smiled grimly. "Their 'tekla mekla' money is created out of nothing and they charge interest on it!"

"What would be another reason for the Zionists' declaration of war on Germany?" I asked.

"To conceal their collaboration with the Nazis," he said.

"What were some major points of Nazi-Zionist collaboration?" I asked.

"First, was the creation of a Zionist state in German-controlled territory. Second, was the German Government's assistance for jews to leave Germany, preferably to enter Palestine illegally. Third, was Zionist assistance in supplying Germany with foreign exchange and goods, even during World War II." he said.

"But why would the Zionists support Germany, when they wanted the Allies to win?" I asked.

"The Zionists did not help Germany sufficiently to win the war, but only to make a profit and maintain their influence with the Germans," he said. "Zionazi Ben Gurion bragged that he was fighting London and Berlin."

"You said that the Germans helped the Zionists to build a state within German-controlled territory," I said.

"Yes," said Ginsburg. "Zionists were given such jurisdiction in transit/training camps like Theresienstadt and they also established autonomous zones in parts of occupied Poland and Russia, as well as ruling over the ghettos of Polish cities like Warsaw, Lublin and Crakow."

"Is it true," I asked, "that the Germans taught jews such trades as carpentry, bricklaying, machine tooling, plumbing, farming, animal husbandry, auto mechanics, etc.?"

"Yes," he said, "they did. The Germans also helped the Zionists to have their own money, banks, postage stamps, post offices and police, all of which were recognized by the German authorities."

"It is so different from the Hollywood version of German-jewish relations which the Zionists want us to believe," I said. "Was there, in your experience, sufficient jewish suffering during World War II to call it a 'holocaust'?" I asked.

"Oh, there was jewish suffering," he said, "but nothing to compare with German suffering!"

"Was jewish suffering due to German policies?" I asked.

"Indirectly," he said. "The jews suffered most under the Zionists, especially in the ghettos and the autonomous areas. A jew could be thankful if he were in a German camp like Auschwitz, for at least he would be fed as long as supplies lasted and he would receive medical treatment."

"What was going on in the Zionist-ruled districts that caused jewish suffering?" I asked.

"It was a catastrophe!" he said. "The Zionist administration was so criminal and corrupt that essential supplies, such as food, clothing and medicines wound up in the hands of black marketeers and speculators. There were shocking scenes of jewish children begging and starving outside jewish restaurants, while fat jewish diners looked out at them with indifference and jewish policemen strolled by, unconcerned!"

"What about the autonomous areas, where there was open land?" I asked.

"That was even worse!" he declared. "True, there was farmland and woodland, tools, implements and simple housing, wells and streams, but rich jews who had previously relied upon Gentile laborers and servants could not fend for themselves. Once again, jewish criminals stole the German food supplies, so even the rich jews suffered and died under Zionist misgovernment."

"In regard to hoarding, speculating and black marketeering, you had mentioned Simon Wiesenthal," I said.

"Yes," he said. "The Gestapo had a department called the Stachel (barb), composed of jewish agents who spied on fellow jews who were hoarding and black marketeering. The agent received a reward in the form of a percentage of the value of any contraband he discovered. Wiesenthal was such an agent."

JOSEF GINSBURG ON HOW TO MAKE A JEW TELL THE TRUTH: Jew-wise Gentiles know about the "jews' oath" or Kol Nidre prayer, which all devout jews say every year to absolve them from telling the truth in the year to come. But there is a way to make a religious jew tell the truth, according to Josef Ginsburg, who was himself the son of an orthodox rabbi. "First, all Christian symbols must be cleared from the room. Then, a Hebrew bible and a rabbi must be present. The jew must don a skull cap and take a rabbinical oath which nullifies the Kol Nidre anti-oath oath." After this procedure, Josef Ginsburg claimed that "99.5% of all the sick holocaust stories would become truthful silence!" Jews are not otherwise bound to tell the truth, because their courtroom oath (as well as their pledge of allegiance) is deemed by them to be of no account, whatsoever! ❑

CRIMINAL PROSECUTION OF HOLOCAUST DENIAL

by A Canadian Correspondent

Within minutes of the release of the Supreme Court of Canada's decision overturning the conviction of Ernst Zündel and striking down the "false news" law, representatives of Canadian Jewish organizations appeared before television cameras with dire predictions that they would make sure that Zündel would be charged under the "hate" provisions of the Criminal Code if he continued with his Holocaust denial activities.

There is nothing new in the demand of the Jewish organizations that "Holocaust denial" be prosecuted as "hate" under the criminal law. In a letter published in the Globe and Mail on January 22, 1992, David Matas, Senior Counsel for the League for Human Rights of B'nai B'rith Canada, called for the prosecution of Malcolm Ross for "Holocaust denial." Wrote Matas: "The Holocaust was the murder of six millon Jews, including two million children. Holocaust denial is a second murder of those same six millon. First their lives were extinguished; then their deaths. A person who denies the Holocaust becomes part of the crime of the Holocaust itself."But before Crown authorities commit themselves to any further criminal charges against Zündel or anyone else because they are allegedly "Holocaust deniers", they should ask two important questions: what is the "Holocaust" and what will constitute "denial"?

Will someone be a "Holocaust denier" because he does not believe that the six million Jews referred to by David Matas died during World War II? Certainly, the six million figure was cited by the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg. It found that "the policy pursued [by the Nazis] resulted in the killing of six million Jews, of which four million were killed in the extermination institutions." Yet if that is so, then several of the most prominent Holocaust historians would be subject to criminal prosecution. Professor Raul Hilberg, the author of The Destruction of the European Jews, doesn't believe that six million Jews died. He puts the total at 5.1 million. Gerald Reitlinger, the author of The Final Solution, didn't believe in the six million either. He estimated the figure to be a high of 4.6 million and admitted that the figure was conjectural due to lack of reliable information.

Will someone be a "Holocaust denier" if he says that Nazis didn't use Jewish fat to make soap? The International Military Tribunal, which had all the evidence before it to be able to decide whether this allegation was true or not (including actual bars of soap), held in its judgment of October 1, 1946 that "in some instances attempts were made to utilize the fat from the bodies of the victims in the commercial manufacture of soap." Then, in 1990, Israeli historians at Yad Vashem (Israel's Holocaust Remembrance Authority) admitted that the soap story wasn't true. "Historians have concluded that soap was not made from human fat. When so many people deny the Holocaust ever happened, why give them something to use against the truth?", said Shmuel Krakowski of Yad Vashem. (Globe & Mail, April 25, 1990)

Will someone be a "Holocaust denier" if he says that the meeting of Nazi bureaucrats at Wannsee on January 20, 1942, was not a meeting for the purpose of coordinating the systematic mass murder of Europe's Jews? Gunther Plaut of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto recently wrote on the fiftieth anniversary of this meeting that it was "a conference, surely the most macabre in recorded history... calmly discussing a task. Rounding up millions of men, women and children" who were ultimately murdered in "extermination camps." If Plaut is right, then Israeli Holocaust historian Yehuda Bauer must be wrong and a "Holocaust denier" to boot. With people like Plaut probably in mind, Bauer was quoted as saying at a recent London conference: "The public still repeats, time after time, the silly story that at Wannsee the extermination of the Jews was arrived at." In Bauer's opinion, Wannsee was a meeting but "hardly a conference" and "little of what was said there was executed in detail." (Canadian Jewish News Jan. 30, 1992)

Will someone be a "Holocaust denier" if he says that there was no policy to exterminate the Jews because no Hitler order for such a policy exists? Once upon a time the answer would have been 'yes'. In 1961, for example, Raul Hilberg wrote in his book, Destruction of the European Jews, that there were two Hitler orders for the destruction of Europe's Jews, the first given in the spring of 1941 and the second shortly thereafter. But by 1985 and the publication of his second, revised edition, Hilberg was not so sure. In a review of Hilberg's revised edition, historian Christopher Browning wrote:

"In the new edition, all references in the text to a Hitler decision or Hitler order for the 'Final Solution' have been systematically excised. Buried at the bottom of a single footnote stands the solitary reference: 'Chronology and circumstances point to a Hitler decision before the summer ended.' In the new edition decisions were not made and orderswere not given." ("The Revised Hilberg", Simon Wiesenthal Annual, Vol. 3 (1986), p. 294).

The controversy over the lack of a written Hitler order has fractured Holocaust historians into the "intentionalists" and the "functionalists"; the former believing there was a premeditated plan with Hitler at the top and the latter believing that Nazi Jewish policy evolved at lower levels in response to circumstances. But the point is, they cannot show either a plan or an order notwithstanding the capture of literally tons of German documents after the war. This was admitted by Hilberg at Zündel's trial.

So what will constitute "Holocaust denial"? Surely, if one claimed that most people at Auschwitz died from disease and not systematic extermination in gas chambers, this would be cause for prosecution. But perhaps not. Jewish historian, Arno J. Mayer, of Princeton University in his 1988 book, Why Did The Heaven's Not Darken?: The "Final Solution" in History, writes at page 365: "...from 1942 to 1945, certainly at Auschwitz, but probably overall, more Jews were killed by so-called 'natural' causes than by 'unnatural' ones."

Even the number of people who died at Auschwitz, the main alleged extermination centre, is not clear-cut. For 45 years after World War II, the monument at Auschwitz read: "Four Million People Suffered and Died Here at the Hands of the Nazi Murderers Between the Years 1940 and 1945." During a visit to the camp in June of 1979, Pope John Paul II stood before this monument and blessed the 4 million victims. Would it be "Holocaust denial" to deny these four million deaths? Not today. In 1990, the Auschwitz Museum removed the words from the stone monument, admitting that the 4 million figure was grossly exaggerated. The total has been tentatively put at 1.1 million, but the release by the Soviet Union in 1990 of the Auschwitz death register books has complicated matters further. They show a death toll in the camp during the war of approximately 74,000 people. Arno Mayer admits these are open questions. At page 366 of his book he states: "...many questions remain open... All in all, how many bodies were cremated in Auschwitz? How many died there all told? What was the national, religious, and ethnic breakdown in this commonwealth of victims? How many of them were condemned to die a 'natural' death and how many were deliberately slaughtered? And what was the proportion of Jews among those murdered in cold blood among these gassed? We have simply no answers to these questions at this time."

How about denial that "gas chambers" existed? Here too, Mayer makes a startling statement at page 362 of his book: "Sources for the study of the gas chambers are at once rare and unreliable." Mayer believes there is no question that gas chambers did exist at Auschwitz, but points out that "most of what is known is based on the depositions of Nazi officials and executioners at postwar trials and on the memory of survivors and bystanders. This testimony must be screened carefully, since it can be influenced by subjective factors of great complexity." One example of this might be the evidence of Rudolf Hoess, one of the three commandants of Auschwitz. At Nuremberg, the International Military Tribunal quoted from Hoess' evidence at length in its judgment to support its findings of extermination. But today, with the publication of the book Legions of Death, by Rupert Butler (Hamlyn Paperbacks, Great Britain, 1983), it is now known that Hoess was beaten almost to death prior to making the statements relied upon by the Nuremberg Tribunal. His wife and children were threatened with the firing squad and with deportation to Siberia. In Canada today, Hoess' statement would not be admissible in any court of law. He claimed that an extermination camp called "Wolzek" existed; it is now known there was no such camp. He claimed 2,500,000 people were exterminated in Auschwitz and that a further 500,000 died of disease; today, no historian can uphold these figures. It is obvious that Hoess was willing to say anything, sign anything and do anything to stop the torture and to try to save himself and his family.

Mayer also calls for "excavations at the killing sites and in their immediate environs..." to determine more about the gas chambers. Two such forensic studies have now been made. The first was conducted in 1988 by execution equipment consultant, Fred A.Leuchter, Jr., of Boston, Massachusetts. Leuchter was commissioned by Zündel during his 1988 "false news" trial to examine Auschwitz, Birkenau and Majdanek to determine if the places alleged to have been gas chambers could in fact have been used as such. Leuchter's conclusion, based on examination of the alleged gas chambers and the analysis of samples taken from the walls and floors, was that the sites could not have been used and were not used as homicidal gas chambers. Analysis of the samples taken from the walls of the alleged gas chambers showed either no or extremely small traces (1.1 to 7.9 mg/kg) of cyanide, the chief component of Zyklon B, the insecticide allegedly used by the Nazis to murder the victims. A forensic examination and subsequent report commissioned by the Auschwitz Museum has confirmed Leuchter's findings that minimal or no traces of cyanide can be found in the sites alleged to have been gas chambers. The significance of this is evident when forensic examination of disinfection facilities at Auschwitz where Zyklon B was used to delouse mattresses and clothing showed massive traces of cyanide (1050 mg/kg) in the walls and floor. The Auschwitz Museum still maintains that the sites were used as gas chambers, but obviously the results of these forensic reports has thrown the issue open to further investigation. In fact, further examinations are being planned by Polish authorities. A third study of the problem was made this year by the Austrian engineer Walter Loeftl. Loeftl called the alleged mass extermination of Jews in gas chambers "technically impossible." Loeftl is not a right-wing fanatic. He is the president of Austria's Chamber of Engineers and a respected expert witness in court cases.

So what will constitute "Holocaust denial"? Those who so vehemently advocate criminal prosecution of "Holocaust deniers" seem to be living still in the world of 1946 where the Nuremberg Tribunal has just given its judgment concerning what happened to the Jews during World War II. But the findings of the Nuremberg Tribunal can no longer be assumed to be valid today. Because it relied upon such questionable evidence as that of Rudolf Hoess, more and more of its basic findings are being debunked. The courts of Canada are not the place to resolve historical debates. Why should the taxpayers of Canada in these recessionary times be handed yet another massive bill in the millions of dollars to finance historical debates in criminal courtrooms because some special interest group doesn't like someone's opinion? Whether it is politically correct or not, there is a growing controversy over what happened to the Jews during World War II. ❑

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear George,

I have often wondered if you get as many "hate" letters as I do. You printed my "HAMBURGER RARE" article [see Liberty Bell for September 1993] which was supposed to comment upon the anticipated water-tower painting in Hamburg, New York. I NEVER said that Crazy Horse INVENTED the hamburger. In fact, I never said anyone invented it. Yet, the letters come in arguing about things I never wrote. One must wonder.

So far, three people have pointed out that "Big Horn" should have been "Little Big Horn". OK, I slipped up. Anyway, the Montana-South Dakota area, which contains the Black Hills National Park, is so full of Custers, Horns, Little Horns, Big Horns and Big Little Horns and Little Big Horns, that I find it hard to lose sleep over the whole thing. If, somewhere along the line, there were really two Little Big Horns, then we would have to name the larger, "Big Little Big Horn" and the smaller one, "Little Little Big Horn". I failed to mention, however, that papa Crazy Horse had light skin and light hair. Somewhere in the gonadic past, a wayward honkie was doodling around with the local wild-life. This, more than likely, accounts for the intelligence of Crazy Horse. That was not my point.

One fellow labeled the Indians as cannibals, which some were and some were not. Many tribes were as peaceful as an opium den while others were absolutely vicious. I remain continually disturbed over remarks made by many members of the blight-wing who love to paint everything they dislike in the worst of colors. Truth is never served by such nonsense. They also have a rather self-righteous bent whereby, if they don't happen to agree with you, they are compelled to claim you are an idiot. Axiom: If someone agrees with you, then they are obviously intelligent. I find this tendency increases as one is exposed to "higher" education. The greater the number of degrees or titles, the less is the ability to recognize that one's fly is open. I have yet to determine if a college education makes one stupid or whether only the stupid attend college.

The most interesting yelp came from a person who resented that I used the term "stole" in regard to the appropriation of Indian lands. This fellow is probably a jew, since he inferred that the land, which the Indians roamed over, somehow "belonged" to the white-eyes as a gift from God, much in the same way the Khazars feel they "own" Arab lands. Here is a brief lesson:

I hope we can all agree that the hair, which grows upon my head, belongs to me. In other words, it is my property. Suppose, that for some undisclosed reason, a person named Bill wishes to have my head of hair. Perhaps he wants to stuff a pillow with it or sell it to Cy Sperling. At this point, I may wish to keep it or I may wish to allow Bill to have it.

Case I: I agree that Bill should have it. I may give it to him. I may sell it to him. I may trade it for something of his which I want in return. In any event, we would be in agreement and a voluntary transfer would ensue. This transfer of hair would then be moral. Notice that I did not say "legal" as this word applies to man-made rules which generally have little, or nothing, to do with either morality or ethics.

Case II: I don't want to part with my hair and Bill does not end up with it. I am happy and Bill is not. Bill pouts but the non-transaction is still moral.

Case III: I don't want to part with my hair but Bill ends up by possessing it. Bill is happy and I am not. This is immoral since it involves an INVOLUNTARY transfer of property. All involuntary transfers of property are immoral. They may be legal, as in the case of taxes, welfare and so on, Hillary's communistic sick-care plan, but the immorality remains. Whenever an involuntary transfer of property takes place, we call it "theft", or that something was "stolen". There also exists a legal definition of theft which is designed to insulate the rulers from the serfs. I shy from legal things as "legality" generally implies immorality.

The Indians did not view land as property in the sense we use the term. The land "belonged" to them and at the same time it did not belong to them. It was their land, but it never could be bought, sold or given away. The Island of Manhattan was "sold" for such a small price because the Indians were befuddled over the white-man's notions about property. Besides, all of the turkeys and deer were gone anyway so the island was not worth very much to the Indians by then.

It is true, that the Indians could not produce a piece of paper, full of signatures and seals, which "proved" that it was theirs. However, no matter how you slice it, moving in and appropriating land that the Indians NEEDED to sustain their life was ABSOLUTELY IMMORAL. It was an involuntary transfer of the use of the land which made it theft. If we have a right to live, then we have a right to sustain that life. Americans infringed upon the Indian's right to sustain their lives.

The Americans did to the Indians what the Israelis are doing to the Palestinians. Many Americans approve of the Israeli conquests in the same way they approved of the Americans' conquest. I will not argue about the "right of conquest" superseding or negating morality, but will conclude with: The Americans STOLE property from the Germans during, and after, World War II. The Israelis STOLE land from the Palestinians. The Americans STOLE land from the Indians.

Yours in hate,
Robert Frenz
PO Box 433, Buffalo, NY, 14223

***

Dear George,

The October issue of Liberty Bell has arrived and been consumed with the usual intellectual relish. I must say that the articles by Robert Frenz were most interesting. I admit that I misjudged the venerable Robert early into my subscription to Liberty Bell, and am sorry for that misjudgment. As you recall, I took him severely to task late last year in a letter to you that you published. I am now trying to force my fork into this tough bit of crow blackening my plate. What a foul taste! Anyway, keep up the good work, friend Frenz.

How hard it is to pry open these welded skulls that shield the brains of boobus americanus. How much easier it would be if the hemispheres were bolted together rather than welded. Boobus americanus is the errant Aryan we are trying to reach and rescue; Congoidii and other hyphenated types we hope to repel instead.

Perhaps the youth of boobus americanus should be the target of our message. The youth are generally in rebellion against the establishment, and we could use this attitude to our advantage. After all, we have no love for this tyranny that now comprises the establishment either.

The question is, how do we contact the youth in number? [Well, you may want to contact the following individuals / organizations that are doing a fine job trying to rescue our YOUTH from the, as Dr. Oliver would say, boobhatcheries, and the brainwashing media: Rick Cooper, Box 328, The Dalles, OR 97058; Gerhard Lauck, Box 6414, Lincoln, NE 68506; JM, Box 65, Fallbrook, CA 92028; Dixie Press, Box 608, Raleigh, NC 27601. And don't forget, since all of them, as we do, operate on the tightest of budgets, to include a generous donation to cover printing and mailing expenses!—Ed.] We need to package our message so that it appears as an exciting avant garde endeavour that is slightly dangerous and one that requires effort and sacrifice; a movement of exclusivity with a strong bonding sense. (Despite all this hoopla re multi-culturalism and "equality", youths still are moved by a sense of belonging to an elite group of common heritage.) Ideals of our movement are high and they are very appealing to the fair-minded of all ages.

Let's go! truth lovers; rationalists. Time is a-wasting!

P.S.: I also appreciate the writings of Prof. R.P. Oliver and those of J.B. Campbell.

E.H.H., Arkansas

⌘ ⌘ ⌘

Dear Landsmann:

Did you hear that insolent trash, Clinton, imply that whites who refused to vote for black racist Dinkins were somehow guilty of something? Blacks in New York vote a straight racist ticket. 97% voted for Dinkins in the last election! And they will again this time. But it won't be enough because the Jewish vote fraud machine will be against him this time. Dinkins has dared to displease the Jews despite handing over control of the city finances to Jew Normal Steisel. He also angered Spics by refusing to share patronage loot with them like former mayors did. His open racism has even angered a few white Liberals enough for them to vote against him. White Conservatives in New York are a meaningless remnant, however they will also vote against the colored mayor. Thus, Dinkins is sure to be defeated. Does this mean there will be any change in NYC? No, because the white candidate, Guiliani, is the same thing as Dinkins, only better hidden. Guiliani supports "gay rights" including AIDS speading. He is an anti-white ultra Liberal. He is running on a "Republican-Liberal" fusion ticket. Jew David Harth is running his campaign. His running mate, Badillio, is married to a Jewess. It would be better for whites if open racist Dinkins were elected again. The issue would then be clearer.

Niggers here in New York have lately become very Jew conscious. I learned of Badillio's wife being a Jewess from the head of the black policemen's union who commented, on a radio show, that Badillio was unfit to represent colored people because he is married to a Jewess! Another prominent nigger just called for aid to Egypt and Israel to be halted so that the money could be given to blacks instead. This, of course, was blasphemy. What a Jew has stolen is his forever, in his mind. To the Jew mind the spoils of White America are already his and the thought of giving up any of them drives him to shrieks of rage. Outrage! The average white may still be blind to the Jew but the average nigger no longer is.

A recent Liberty Bell article condemned the Pope for, among other things, encouraging human reproduction. I consider this rather fatuous. Having children is the way a race projects itself into the future and squeezes out living space for itself in a very competetive world. If whites don't want to have children for economic or other reasons, it is futile to rail at coloreds for not copying their racial suicide. A recent article on abortion revealed that 44% of abortions in the U.S. are to niggers and another 10% to spics. Figures for Jews weren't mentioned, but I know they practice abortion heavily so they must add, at least, another 6% to the non-white total. Thus, overall, whites, with about 75% of the U.S. population, have 40% of abortions while our racial enemies have 60%. This is a damn good deal for whites. Our goal should be to reduce white abortion to near zero (many white abortions may be of colored babies!) while providing taxpayer financed abortions to non-whites. The government is moving in the direction of requiring state funded abortions to vermin on welfare. This is cleverly being sold to women as a "right" they haven been too long denied!

Starting about 1985, the Jew banks needed to increase their cash flow, so they decided to addict niggers to smoking cocaine, formerly a vice of the rich. They developed and popularized crack. Since then, about 1,100,000 brain-damaged negro vermin have been born to crack using sluts. These animals began entering the NYC school system in 1991-92. They are even dumber and more savage than the normal nigger bastards. To pretend to educate them requires special classes at a cost of over $15,000 per year per nigger compared to the usual $3,500. About the year 2,000, these crazed savages will be old enough to start major stealing and killing sprees and they will make the current racial crime wave look like nothing by comparison. These animals are the best argument for federally funded abortions one could imagine. Aborting a white baby is a crime. Aborting a colored one is a blessing.

PS: Due to a typo, a letter of mine that appeared in Liberty Bell earlier called Sharpton a "rapist" instead of "racist." Sharpton is an obvious racist but I have no evidence to show he is a rapist.

Yours truly,
S.R., New York State

⁂

Dear George,

...Well, Demjanjuk must be home by now. Imagine the kikes putting handcuffs on him as they took him to the airplane! What a typically slimy trick, trying to criminalize him in the eyes of the world as a parting shot. Somehow we must exploit his acquital because it is proof that Jewish eyewitnesses are liars— even the top Jews in Israel don't believe them! Persecution of these nice old men is probably finished. Eyewitness testimony is dead.

Remember the one named Rubinstein, who'd told the U.S. Army that he'd killed "Ivan the Terrible" in 1943? Then Demjanjuk's attorney was thrown out of a window. The backup attorney went to his funeral and had acid thrown in his eyes. The other day, when the Supreme Court announced the acquital, the news media identified one of the spectators in court as the acid-thrower! Unbelievable.

By God, if they intend to outlaw vitamins in December, can you picture what they want to do to us?

Yours truly,
J.B. Campbell, California

⁂

Dear Mr. Dietz,

The Liberty Bell is probably the only journal in America that permits bare knuckle, free swinging debates on varied subjects in the true traditions of free speech and press

[...and that is the reason why we are constantly limping with at least one foot, trying to get the bills paid and keep our head above water! —Ed.]. Probably the only reason that you aren't sued for your audacity is that you are dirt poor so there is no money to be made by our parasitical legal system [How right you are! —Ed.]

My favorite writer is Dr. Oliver, whose endless knowledge is astounding and his sarcasm rivals the great Westbrook Pegler. There is much to be learned from all your contributors.

Back to the gas chambers. I had previously concluded that the Revisionists overplayed the explosive dangers of the Cyanide. Last Month, and I forgot the exact source, the media reported that a lady had released all at once 30 fumigation bombs, the kind you buy at any hardware store, in her pest infested home. Well, would you believe it, she blew up her house. The gas did attain an explosive concentration and found a pilot light for an ignition source. So much for my theory.

Yours truly,
R.T., California

THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp. hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Cornelu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti-Humans is a well written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" —R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" — Dr. A.J. Appl. THE ANTI-HUMANS. Order #01013. Sale priced: single copy $2.00 + $1.50 postage, 10 for $15.00 + $5.00 postage.

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

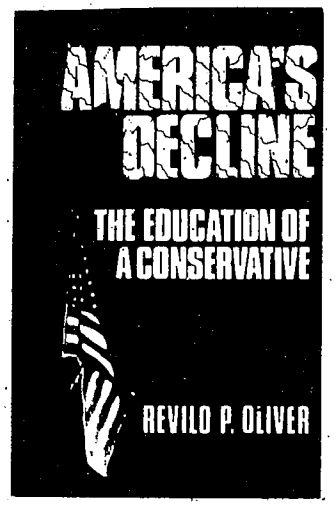
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

Clinton's Insidious Agenda

by

Steve Kelley

page 26

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Professor R. P. Oliver:
POSTSCRIPTS
Thank "AIDS", page 1; New Books, page 4; Technological Lying, page 19. — Dr. Charles E. Weber: The Essential Correlation, page 26. Reflections on an Informative But Deeply Disturbing Book, page 32. — She Cannot Comprehend Anything, by The Prof, page 37. — Is There a Black Christ in Your Future, by Allan Callahan, page 40. How the British Play Gulf, by RAM, Vienna, page 44. — Liberty Bell Index 1993, page 53.

VOL. 21 - NO. 4 DECEMBER 1993

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

THANK "AIDS"

The lethal disease, now epidemic throughout the world, commonly called Acquired Immunity Deficiency and designated by the acronym "AIDS," or called the African Plague, from its origin on the black continent, has bestowed on us one great benefit: it induced intensive study of our body's immune system, which is now recognized as the physiological mechanism that makes life possible.

Virtually the whole of the September issue of the Scientific American is devoted to a series of ten articles that describe the structure and functioning of the immune system, so far as they are known. Needless to say, I am not competent to appraise the validity of the articles, written by twelve authors, who are presumably highly qualified experts in five distinct fields of research. With the Judaization of scientific work, we must always be cautious and wary of elaborate hoaxes, but I can do no more than remark on the obvious fact that the studies are vitiated by the need to pretend there are no biological differences between the several species that are called human.[1]

We are told, for example (p. 99), that it is puzzling that "Some homosexual men in the U.S. who have been infected with HIV for at least 11 years show as yet no signs of damage to their immune systems." That should have suggested reference to the one scientific study known to me which gives, indirectly, a measure of the racial factor in the disease.[2] This indicated that the European, predominantly Aryan, peoples had a much higher resistance to the infection than other races. And although there is no mention of it in this article, it has long been known that a racial peculiarity of Congoids causes females of that race to transmit the disease by normal sexual intercourse with males.[3]

1. This pretense is maintained although a formal recognition of racial differences has been necessary in surgical operations, since it is known that Congoids, Indians, perhaps other "minorities," are so constituted physiologically that a graft or transplanted organ from a White person would be deadly to them. See Science News, 7 April 1990, p. 223.

A correspondent, who studies obituaries and consults coroners and medical examiners, reports that in the area around New Jerusalem-on-the-Hudson, the deaths from the African Plague are approximately these:

Blacks	40%
Mestizos	20%
Jews[4]	35%
Whites	5%

The epidemic, we are told, had infected 19,500,000 persons by the end of 1992, and by the year 2000 will have infected between forty and one hundred ten million persons, according to varying estimates of the speed of transmission. But only if we ponder occasional hints (e.g., p. 105) will we perceive that the great majority of infected persons (and almost all infected women) are in "developing countries," inhabited by races that are unalterably our natural enemies.

One encounters obiter in these articles items of particular interest, of which I shall mention only three.

Travel by air greatly facilitates and expedites the spread of epidemic diseases (p. 139). Persons who have been infected may now reach a destination almost anywhere on the globe before symptoms of the disease appear.

2. See Liberty Bell, April 1988, pp. 5-7.

3. This, by the way, was made obvious in the course of an article in the Scientific American, May 1992, pp. 58-66.

4. The high incidence of the disease and mortality from it among Jews is confirmed by a list of 386 "celebrities" (chiefly persons known in such areas of activity as motion pictures, the theater, television, and the "arts") who had died of "AIDS." Almost all were Jews. The list was distributed by Aryan Nations in January 1992.

A new variety of influenza appeared at Peking (now called Beijing) in November 1989. Between April and September 1990 it reached India, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. Between October and March 1991 it reached the United States and Canada, and it became epidemic in most of Europe, April 1991-March 1992.

All life is a struggle to survive in an unending war against other species. That is true even of bacilli and perhaps even virus. Tuberculosis was nearly made extinct by the efficacy of drugs of therapeutic power,[5] but a new and even more virulent strain of the bacillus (p. 144) resists all known drugs.

There are diseases, somewhat misleadingly called autoimmune, such as multiple sclerosis, which seem to be caused by a kind of civil war in the immune system (pp. 107-109). One probable cause is incompatibility between certain genes in the parents that engendered the diseased offspring, but the author of the article carefully refrains from inquiring about the possible effect of heredity.

There are occasional references to "the triumph of modern immunology" that is illustrated by the disgusting picture on p. 52. The "triumph" consisted of upsetting the balance of nature by greatly reducing the incidence of such diseases as diphtheria and poliomyelitis among pickaninnies in Africa, and thus contributing to the fantastic and catastrophic proliferation of the lower races that constitutes the one really serious pollution of the planet and can be checked only by massacres on a scale that will appall the "Liberals" and other "do-gooders" who are guilty of causing the disaster.

This calls our attention to a different immune system, which also determines the life and death of species. There are spiritual immune systems as well as a physical ones. Like all animals, races have innate instincts developed by evolution to ensure the survival of the species. Our spiritual immune system, perhaps fatally damaged by the potent mental virus, Christianity (including the Marxian reformation and sentimental humanitarianism), with which it has been infected for twenty centuries, did not protect us against the folly of meddling with other races to accelerate their proliferation, thus producing an ever increasing surplus population of several billion that will have to be killed, in one way or another, if the planet is to remain habitable. Even the witlings who call themselves "Liberal intellectuals" and are merely the Jews' stooges are at last perceiving, or at least admitting they see, the disaster they brought upon us, and it is typical of them that they cause a catastrophe and then moan about it and blame "society" for their crime against nature.

5. But, ironically, was in the meantime a chief cause of cancer of the lungs, since a "do-gooder" organization persuaded a great many individuals to expose themselves frequently to X-rays in order to be sure that they had not contracted tuberculosis in the few months since the preceding examination!

NEW BOOKS

The most convenient and copious collection of authoritative opinions about the world's parasites in English is Judaism in Action, compiled by a writer who, by an apt allusion, calls himself Apion.[1] It was first published from typewritten copy in 1963, augmented in 1964, and usually distributed in a paperbacked volume that also included a reprint of Arnold S. Leese's Jewish Ritual Murder (London, 1938) and a reprint of The Protocols and World Revolution, published in this country at Boston by the highly respected firm of Small, Maynard & Co., an offence for which the Holy Race smashed the publishers financially to make them an object lesson to Aryans who venture to displease their God-given Masters.

Judaism in Action is now available separately in a new edition, which reproduces the old, page for page, in more legible type, published by the Sons of Liberty in Metairie, Louisiana, and available from Jane's Book Service (P.O. Box 3622, Reno, Nevada; 89505) for $10,00, postpaid. (Leese's Ritual Murder may be obtained from Liberty Bell Publications for $2.00 + postage.)

• John Charmley's Churchill: the End of Glory (New York; Harcourt, Brace, 1993) is a useful supplement to

1. Apion was a distinguished Greek scholar, known to his contemporaries as 'The Toiler' (μοχθος), because of his phenomenal industry and application to study and research, and 'the clarion of the universe' (cymbalum mundi), either because his books were as startling as a clash of cymbals in a religious ceremony or, as Tiberius would have it, because he so loudly proclaimed his opinions. He succeeded the prodigiously industrious Didymus as head of the Alexandrian school of philology, founded by the great Aristarchus. He seems first to have visited Rome in the time of Tiberius, who was impatient of philological inquiry and evidently disliked Apion. In A.D. 40 he appeared before the Emperor Gaïus as a representative of the people of Alexandria to complain about the insolence and arrogance of the Sheenies, who had taken over a quarter of the city as their ghetto, but insisted on issuing from their opulent ghetto to harass the civilized population and "demonstrate" to disrupt theatrical performances and athletic contests. He wrote a learned treatise on the antiquities of Egypt, about which the elder Pliny considered him an authority, and another on the beliefs, practices, and tricks of the Magi, also cited by Pliny. All of his many works (some probably written in a jocular or satirical style that contemporaries misunderstood) are now lost, except for small fragments and except for a passage that is known to everyone, the famous story of Androcles and the Lion. The contents of a part of his work on Egypt may be inferred from the work by Josephus that is commonly given the title "Against Apion," although the alternative title, "Against the Greeks," is more accurate, since Josephus denounces and tries to ridicule civilized writers who do not believe the tall tales in the "Old Testament" and therefore do not acknowledge the God-given superiority of Yahweh's Yids. Josephus, as a typical Jewish apologist, concocted an absurd story about the ghastly death by which Yahweh punished Apion for his failure to venerate God's Children and particularly for having ridiculed the divine rite of circumcision: an ulcer on Apion's penis made circumcision necessary; the operation was followed by gangrene, and he died in terrible agony. This typical fabrication may be compared to the Jews' revenge on Titus, who besieged and captured Jerusalem in A.D. 69-70. They averred that Yahweh, who hadn't been able to save his Holy City from the Roman legions, created a gnat that flew up Titus's nose and began to eat his brain, inflicting on him exquisite torments until he finally died, after the brain-nourished gnat had attained the size of a swallow, as was proved when it issued from Titus's skull!

David Irving's magistral Churchill's War.[2] It details Churchill's entire career from his boyhood and thus covers what Mr. Irving had to treat very summarily, the many years of tortuous political twisting by which Churchill's overwhelming and ruthless ambition sought the power he eventually attained.

Mr. Charmley has a biographer's natural partiality for the subject of his labors, but does not conceal the grim fact that Churchill was an unmitigated and probably fatal disaster to the British people. Since he needed a war to become Prime Minister, he committed treason by conspiring with Franklin Roosevelt to get a catastrophic war started in Europe and to undermine the honest but weak Neville Chamberlain, who knew, of course, that there was no rational justification for a war with Germany, which was in no sense a menace to England and could have become a great and powerful ally. Churchill deliberately sacrificed the British Empire to create a war in which he was ready to kill any number of Britons and ruin the nation to please his Jewish masters and gratify his own pathological vanity. He, more than any other one man, destroyed Great Britain, and one wonders whether he perceived before he died that he had been merely Roosevelt's stooge.

Although Churchill, after he ruined himself by speculation when the inflationary bubble burst in 1929 and Yiddish "friends" undertook to restore and manage his finances, was merely a hireling of his paymasters, Mr. Charmley assumes that he was animated by a noble thirst for the glory of stout hearts, shining swords, and great deeds. That is more than doubtful. It must not be forgotten that Winston was the lineal descendant of the first Duke of Marlborough (1650-1722), whom many regard as Britain's greatest military strategist and tactician, as he was certainly the most rapacious, ruthless, and perfidious.[3] Winston did not inherit his great ancestor's military genius, but he did inherit his morality.

2. Volume I, Bullsbrook, Western Australia; Veritas Publishing Co., 1987; available from Liberty Bell Publications, $20.00 + postage. The eagerly awaited Volume II has not yet appeared, partly, one hears, because the Australian publisher is being harassed by the traitors who govern Australia for the Jews and are preparing, as rapidly as they dare, for the liquidation of the Australian people.

• The extent to which Churchill's maniacal hatred of Adolf Hitler (if that was more than a master rhetorician's pretext to cover his secret motives) not only drove Great Britain into an insane war against Germany but involved

3. Born John Churchill, he became an artful courtier and, aided by his sister, who was the King's mistress, he gained the confidence of King James II, who ennobled him while Churchill was conspiring against him, and made him commander of the royal army sent to meet the invaders from Holland in 1688; by shameless treachery, seldom equaled in recorded history, Churchill betrayed the King and joined the invaders, taking most of the army with him, thus leaving his benefactor virtually helpless. He was the strategist of the army that defeated King James' Irish and French forces at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690. King William knew better than to trust the traitor, but made Churchill commander of the British Army until Churchill's wholesale solicitation of bribes and extortion of money from subordinate officers was exposed. There seems be no proof of the rumor then current that Churchill was conspiring against King William on behalf of Charles, the son of King James, but that would have been in character. The devotion of his clever wife, who early obtained an ascendent influence over Princess Anne, restored Churchill to his command when Anne became Queen. Commander of the British Army, he, by a long series of brilliant victories, broke the military power of Louis XIV and greatly contributed to Britain's emergence as a great world power. It is nearly certain that he repeatedly, after attaining a decisive victory over the French, accepted lavish bribes not to follow up his victory and to permit the French to retire in good order. He thus not only further enriched himself but prolonged the war, ensuring for himself an opportunity for more victories and more glory. The bribes seem to have been transmitted through the sleazy Sheeny who called himself Solomon de Medina and who, in his official capacity of Army Contractor, was always at Churchill's elbow and, it is believed, also obtained for him the services of the Jews' world-wide espionage network. Churchill was probably the richest man in England and, haloed by such military glory as few have ever attained, certainly the most influential until 1711, when his enemies were able to expose in the Parliament his receipt of a annual stipend of £6000 from Jews in Holland.

betrayal of the British who lived overseas is set forth cogently by David Day in The Great Betrayal: Britain, Australia, and the Onset of the Pacific War, 1939-1942 (Sydney, New South Wales; Angus & Robertson, 1988).[4] Britain had officially taken responsibility for the defense of Australia against her enemies, but Churchill deliberately blocked all efforts to provide for the defense of that great part of the Empire, and was the real architect of the collapse of British power at Singapore and elsewhere in the Far East. In other words, Churchill made England betray her kinsmen in the Southern Hemisphere, and the Australians, finding themselves deserted and alone, quite naturally were alienated from the Mother Country. Churchill and Roosevelt even discussed whether they could openly permit the Japanese to occupy Australia and butcher the Englishmen there. The Japanese would have done so eventually, had not Roosevelt, in his haste to rush American cannon-fodder to serve the Jews in their war against Germany, unwillingly created a diversion by forcing Japan to attack Pearl Harbor.[5]

If one were not wary of superlatives, he would be tempted to call the part-Jewish Roosevelt the most evil anthropoid known to history.

• Edward Shepherd Creasy's Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World (from Marathon to Waterloo), which you probably read as a boy, was first published in 1851 and was out-of-print for many years. It was reprinted in 1992 by the Landpost Press (now located in Ocean City, Maryland) and may be obtained from Liberty Bell Publications, $22.50 hardbound, $10.50 paperback + 15% postage.

Since Creasy wrote, some additional historical sources have become available; there have been some relevant archaeological discoveries; the battlefields have been measured and allowance made for subsequent changes in topography; and the evolutions of the opposing armies have been critically studied by military experts. If, therefore, you are interested in any of Creasy's fifteen or other decisive battles as a student of military tactics, you should turn to the appropriate volume in the series of works by the foremost military historian of our time, General John F. C. Fuller (1878-1966), or, for a general conspectus, consult the three volumes of his Military History of the Western World (New York, Funk & Wagnalls, 1955-1957). But for a perspective of the several battles' effect on our civilization, you may read Creasy with pleasure and furthermore be instructed in the sublime self-confidence of our civilization when it was near its acme. Creasy, who was inclined to pacifism, hoped for an enduring peace in Europe, knowing that the rest of the world did not matter, and not foreseeing that our race, which then held undisputed dominion over the planet, had been so weakened by the Christian superstition that the enemies of all mankind could induce the suicidal frenzy of what now seem to be its last days.

• I should have noticed before this the rather charming work of Phillip Perotti, The Greek Generals Talk (University of Illinois Press, 1986). It is modern fiction, comparable to Dares and Dictys and the other numerous forgeries in Antiquity that purported to be the memoirs of participants in the Trojan War, but, of course, there is in this book no intent to deceive and no malicious itch to convict Homer of prejudice and falsehood. The author imagines that twelve kings, each of whom had led contingents of his own people against Troy under the overall command of Agamemnon and survived the war to return to his own land and resume rule over his people, have grown old and infirm, and each imparts to a visitor his reminiscences of the great war in which he fought in his long-past youth. Of course, none of them in his senile retirement foresees that after he dies the Dorian Invasions (and possibly drastic

4. The book was reprinted in the United States (New York, W. W. Norton, 1989.) I suppose it is still available from the American publisher.

5. Cf. Liberty Bell, July 1989, pp. 1-6.

climatic changes) will shatter Mycenaean civilization and plunge Greece into Dark Ages that will last for three or four centuries, or that a Homer will arise who will narrate some episodes of the Trojan War in verse of incomparable majesty and beauty.[6] Each narrative is well imagined and told with a delightful realism. It would be an impertinence to subject to a rigorous philological and historical analysis stories that you can read with unalloyed pleasure,

• Adam Parfrey has collected and edited, under the title Apocalypse Culture (New York, Amok Press, s.a.), a series of thirty-four items, mostly essays, chosen to illustrate the "culture" that prevails in the great insane asylum that lies between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, a "culture" which, as the editor says, is as winsome as a pox-ridden corpse. The second item, appropriately, is an interview with a female necrophiliac, who has copulated with about forty male corpses and is eager for more. (If you ask, For God's sake, how?, she gives you a fairly explicit hint from which you may infer the rest.) She says that there are many who share her notion of pleasure. The editor evidently did not know that, years ago, Kenneth de Courcy, a few weeks before the British government imprisoned him to shut him up, reported in his Intelligence Digest that the chief of the force that is intent on the abolition of our

6. Needless to say, this beauty cannot be even suggested by any translation. If, perchance, you had the good fortune to attend an educational institution and learned the Attic Greek normally taught to undergraduates without going on to Homer, you should not be deterred by the peculiarities of the older form of the language. I think you would need only a school textbook, the parts of the Iliad edited by J. G. Sitlington Sterrett (Cincinnati, American Book Co., 1907; reprinted several times), which contains an admirably concise summary of Homeric Greek; from that you could go on to the complete text of both epics edited by Van Leeuwen (Lugduni Batavorum [= Leiden], 1912-1917), which restores what was probably the phonetic orthography of Homer's language and is more perspicuous than the usual critical editions, which are based on the extant manuscripts, all of which reflect the Athenian recension of the great poems.

nations and civilization, presumably a Rothschild, was a necrophiliac. We may therefore soon see a national movement for the "liberation" of necrophiliacs, perverts whom the jewspapers will doubtless call Jolly Boys and Girls, and your children will be taught to respect and sample the "jolly life-style."

The collection is roughly divided into four sections: Theologies, Art, Science, and Politics. The last item is an essay on "Masonic Symbolism in the Assassination of John F, Kennedy," by James S. Downard and Michael A. Hoffman II, with an introductory essay by the latter.[7]

The items vary greatly in interest. The most valuable and informative is the editor's "Eugenics, the Orphaned Science," with its many quotations from eminent authorities. The most ingenious is Hakim Bey's "Quantum Mechanics and Chaos Theory," which addicts of one or both currently fashionable paradoxes should by all means read.

• The indefatigable Juan Maler has added a fourteenth volume to his series of books on the destruction of our world by Freemasonry, Bankrott! (Buenos Aires, Verlag Juan Maler, Belgrano 165, 8400 Bariloche).[8] It is amazingly comprehensive in its survey of the present situation, with data and quotations from a myriad of diverse sources, and, but for the author's obstinacy in overlooking the primacy of the race

7. Mr. Hoffman has two other booklets on the same general subject, Masonic Assassination (1978) and The Secrets of Masonic Mind Control (1989). He has also written on the first trial of Ernst Zündel for doubting the Yids' impudent Holohoax, The Great Holocaust Trial (1985) and the Psychology and Epistemology of Holocaust Newspeak (1986). All are available from his Wiswell Ruffin House, P.O. Box 236, Dresden, New York (14441). I have recently devoted two little articles to his booklet on the "White Slaves" of the Colonial Era.

8. Cf. Liberty Bell, February 1993, pp. 11-12. In a footnote I reported instructions that orders for Herr Maler's books should be sent to an address in Germany, but from the present volume I infer that that arrangement has been canceled and that orders should now be sent directly to Argentina.

that is the implacable enemy of all mankind (hostes generis humani), cogent in its presentation of the total collapse of our culture and the imminent End of History in a sense deeper than that used in currently glib comments on the junking of the Marxist Utopia.

The systematic destruction of Aryan culture and undermining of our civilization was begun in 1914, when the ideologues of the Liberal Party forced Britain into a war against Germany, and had by our time become so complete that the only currently potent social system was based on the proletariat, the dregs of society,—and now even that unnatural conception of a state has lost its force since the Jews decided to remodel and redecorate the façade of their Russian province. As Herr Maler says:

> Noch nie hat es einen solchen rapiden Ruin einer Weltkultur gegeben wie den Untergang des Sozialismus/Kommunismus. Alles jagt von allen Seiten auf diesen Kreuzungspunkt an. Und an dieser Weltenkreuzung gibt es keine Ampeln. Keiner hat Vorfahrt, keiner braucht anzuhalten. Es gibt kein Tabu mehr, keine Rücksichtnahme, keinen Ehenahmen, keine allgemeingültige Ethik, keine nationale Identität, keine Erinner ung mehr an Vorbilder.

The total collapse of the spurious ideologies leaves only anomia, moral and intellectual anarchy, so long as our people are determined to ignore reality—if, indeed, they have not lost the ability to perceive it.

I recommend Bankrott! highly to students of the present who can cope with its multifarious documentation.

I shall return to the subject of Masonry soon, since correspondents have kindly provided me with information ample to answer the question I asked in February.

• The revamping of Russia is still at so early a stage that the overall design of the new façade is not apparent and one cannot predict what colors of paint will be applied to it. It is virtually certain,[9] however, that the Soviet system has been discarded as worn out, and that with it the Marxian religion has been scrapped, to the great distress of "Liberal intellectuals," whose little minds can conceive of no alternative to the faith with which they were programmed.

Douglas Reed, who must be recognized as one of the most brilliant political analysts of this century,[10] perceived, half a century ago, the difference between the Jews' two visible organizations, Communism and Zionism. The latter was a racial imperative, while the former was merely a device for subversion of Aryan societies and could always be replaced with a new one.

That the Soviet state was worn out and would necessarily have to be replaced became obvious long before Gorbachev and the Jewess who supervised him[11] began to

9. It is barely possible that the blueprints call for the creation of such anarchy and dire hardship in Russia as would force Russians to the conclusion that Communism was, after all, the best régime, but that seems extremely improbable.

10. For example, in 1949, when no American considered his prediction as more than fantastic and absurd, he wrote: "The remainder of this century will hear the welkin ring, until the great decisions come, with the cry of 'colour,' 'the colour bar,' and 'down with all discrimination of race, creed, and colour.' It comes, perceptibly, from the two great political forces which the two wars have thrown up on the border of Asia: Soviet Communism and Politicial Zionism." — Somewhere South of Suez, (London, Johnathan Cape, 1950; American edition, New York, Devin-Adair, 1951), p. 274. In the same work, he points out that Communism, a tool which the Jews manipulate for their own purposes, is dispensable, while Zionism, which represents their race's inflexible purpose, is not. Reed's principal limitation as an analyst was his wish to preserve Christianity as racial asset; on this point, see especially his Insanity Fair (London, Johnathan Cape, 1938). His last work, completed shortly before his death, was The Controversy of Zion (Durban, South Africa; Dolphin Press, 1978; available from Liberty Bell Publications, $12.00 + 15%)

11. Raisa is said to have received from the American publisher an advance of $2,000,000 for an autobiography which was not vigorously promoted and had only a very small sale. The "advance" was in the nature of a bouquet of flowers, a small gift to a woman whose real function was understood.

perform on the stage. In 1982 appeared a book by Konstantin Simis, a wealthy Jew who had come from Russia to the United States to join his son, who (naturally!) was a professor in the Johns Hopkins University, U.S.S.R. —the Corrupt Society.[12] Simis had been one of the "underground businessmen," almost all of them Jews (of course!), who accumulated vast fortunes by wholesale bribery of Soviet officials—bribery which extended down to mere laborers, who accepted a small wage for doing work which, they knew, was highly illegal and would be savagely punished by Communist law, if the laws were not held in abeyance by bribery. The "underground businessmen" supplied the "black markets" that flourished, almost openly, in every city and town of the Soviet Union, and also by selling and exporting state property to purchasers in countries still partly civilized. For example, the manager of a Soviet factory, if not a Jew himself, could be hired to use the raw materials and labor supplied by the state to manufacture goods for sale in the "black markets," and could even become a little millionaire himself. This vast business was carried on with complete immunity, barring accidents and drunken indiscretion. Russia had become, as Simis said, a land ruled by thieves.

A Sheeny named Eric [!] Margolis on the staff of the Toronto Sun recently returned from Russia to report in that paper, 26 August 1993, on the universal corruption in that unfortunate land, where everyone who has a position of some responsibility is frantically exporting his loot to Israel, Europe, and North America. He takes his departure from a Jew named Dimitri Yakoubovsy, who was Yeltsin's "chief crime-buster" and was revently found in Toronto, living in a mansion that cost $4,800,000, with an income sufficient to maintain six bodyguards in addition to the usual domestic staff. He has an even richer brother who flitted to Israel when it seemed expedient to leave their Russian prey. A man who was until recently the Mayor of Moscow took 15% of every municipal contract and even maintained a special office to handle bribes and pay-offs. Oil, timber, and minerals are sold to Western purchasers at low prices in return for adequate payments under the table.

12. New York, Simon & Shuster, 1982. Simis' original title, U.S.S.R., the Land of Kleptocracy, was vetoed by the publisher, who wanted a title more perspicuous to uneducated Americans. The substance of the book was anticipated by Simis's article, "Russia's Underground Millionaires," in Fortune, 29 June 1981.

When Margolis was in Moscow, "the KGB was even offering to sell secret documents. I was horrified [Margolis continues], State secrets are supposed to be stolen. Buying them direct from the KGB seems indecent and immoral."

He could have added that the Secret Police also do dirty work on contract. They seem recently to have manufactured, doubtless on order, "floor plans, photographs, and letters," supposedly found in "recently opened KGB files," to document a book, presumably written in English, by a noted Yiddish yowler, Jean-Claude Pressac, The Crematoria of Auschwitz: the Machinery of Mass Murder, which was published at the end of September by "France's National Committee for Scientific [!] Research." The "documentation" reportedly proves that "a dozen private German companies competed for lucrative contracts to build and equip the [marvellous] gas chambers and ovens" that the wicked Germans used to exterminate with cyanide gas millions or billions of sacred Sheenies and then reduce them to ashless holy smoke.

Needless to say, it is implicitly preposterous to claim that such documents could have remained hidden in Soviet archives during all the years in which the Jews' Communist state worked so hard to bolster up the Holohoax that an American writer was able to claim, with persuasive documentation, that the "Holocaust" was "made in Russia."[13]

13. See The Holocaust, Made in Russia: a Collection of "Eye Witness" and "Survivor" Fairy Tales, by Jack Ketch [i.e., Carlos Porter], which was published by Liberty Bell Publications, c. 1988, but is, I understand, no longer available.

According to the press, Boris Yeltsin, the Jews' currently featured song-and-dance man on the Russian stage, has assumed dictatorial powers, comparable to Stalin's, with the support of the Russian military, and with the beatific blessing of our jewspapers, which would be screaming at the wailing wall, in every editorial office, if half as much had been done by an Aryan government to maintain order in its country. Among other laudable acts, Yeltsin has acted to suppress "rightists" and "reactionaries."

If you are interested in Pamyat and the other organizations that the haloed Yeltsin is trying to eradicate, you cannot do better than peruse the three hundred and thirty pages of Walter Laqueur's Black Hundred, the Rise of the Extreme Right in Russia (New York, Harper-Collins, 1993; $27.50). The writer's primary purpose, I need not tell you, is to denigrate and vilify everyone who doesn't venerate Yahweh's Children, but, so far as I can tell, when you have made allowance for that Kikish clamor, the underlying facts are probably correct enough. And you will be rewarded with reproductions of awfully unthinkable cartoons, such as one which portrays Gorbachev and Yeltsin as dogs being taken, on leashes, for a walk by their hooked-nose, rat-faced owner.

I am sorry that Laqueur, who writes with a clever simulation of scholarly detachment, missed an item that might have given him apoplexy. According to the Illustrierte Neue Welt (Vienna), August-September 1993, p. 17, the foremost Russian newspaper, Pravda, long the official organ of the Communist party, published, apropos of the "mysterious" murder of three ecclesiastics of the Orthodox Church, a disquisition on the ancient and modern Jewish rite of ritual murder of goyim as blood-sacrifices to Yahweh, a practice which is authoritatively sanctioned in the Babylonian Talmud.[14] According to the author, Dimitri Gerasimov, the holy murders are now carried out regularly by the Lubavitcher sect of extremely pious Jews. (Is it not a striking coincidence that the correspondent whom I mentioned in Liberty Bell, September 1993, p.18, n. 27, believed that the contingent of Lubavitchers in this country is "responsible for the annual disappearance of a number of children of goyim"?) The article, needless to say, gave conniption fits to the Jewish owners of the Neue Welt, and I do not know what it would have done to Laqueur.

14. The most concise guide to this subject is Arnold Leese's booklet, which I mentioned at the beginning of this article. According to Mr. Leese, goy children are the preferred sacrificial victims, but adults, especially if they are supposedly endued with Christian sanctity, may also be used.

• Evan Arthur McCallum has written and published a burlesque narrative to illumine one of the most vital historical problems now before us, Horus Saves: Conquest by Religion.[15] The proper names in the narrative seem designed to be bizarrely jumbled. Some are spelled correctly (Krishna, Druids), some are slightly misspelled (Woroaster, Bersia, Baul), some are a little more deformed (Essenes = Wasseene), some replaced by analogues (Jesus = Horus) or by odd epithets (Jewry = Genius), and some are simply travestied (Jerusalem = Bumslumdeedum). The scene is Palestine and the time is c. A.D. 30, but there are numerous anachronisms and anachorisms. The one link with an historical character is with a Sheeny named Saul, commonly called Paul, who, it is virtually certain, really existed and seems to have invented and peddled a doctrine which later became known as Christianity, although it cannot be ascertained precisely what he purveyed, since every sect forged letters in his name to confirm its own preferences in superstition.[16]

The bodies of the biped cattle must, of course, be drained of blood before they die, as is done with quadruped cattle in the nauseating Yiddish rite of ritual slaughter.

15. Orders for copies of the booklet should be sent the author, Suite 211, 630 North Tustin Avenue, Orange, California (92667), $4.26 postpaid; two copies for $8.02; five copies, $17.50.

16. If, for example, we had the letters of Paul published by the Marcionists, who were probably the largest Christian sect before their leading competitors got their hands on the Roman government and

The plot begins with a Jewish capitalist, named Leveraged Buyout, whose mind is stimulated by his psychiatrist, Sigmond Hog, who points out a way whereby the Genius (i.e., Jews), who dare not try to defy openly civilized peoples whom they hate, can attack, undermine, and eventually destroy those peoples by means of a specious and utopian superstition. Leveraged, with his son, Enhanced Truth, enlists the services of Baul of Tobasco, an itinerant merchant, who with his slaves travels in a caravan throughout Palestine, vending anything that will yield a big profit, such as condoms and pornography.[17] Baul took a leading part in persuading the Roman governor to consent to the crucifixion of five Wasseene crack-pots, and was anxious to devise a means of penetrating with others of his race into the territories of civilized people and swindling them of some of their possessions, especially the land that was needed if the predatory race was to survive and multiply.[18]

Leveraged Buyout and his son commission Baul to ascertain by investigation precisely what form of a universal religion would be the most efficient means by which the greedy barbarians could plunder and destroy the Romans and, indeed, all civilized peoples of the world. Baul accordingly travels hither and yon to consult sources of authoritative information, including an erudite Greek scholar named Fatso Greaseball. The burlesque narrative is ludicrous and you will often laugh as you read.

If, however, you wish to forgo the fun, you may confine yourself to reading the principles and considerations that ruled in the elaboration of the fantastic religion called Christianity. The author has obligingly printed all those passages in bold-face type.

Mr. McCallum's purpose, of course, was to state clearly the historical theory that Christianity was deliberately devised by Jewish hatred to poison the minds of our race and drive us to the doom that seems now imminent. This thesis cannot be categorically refuted; whether it is so cogent as to warrant general acceptance is a question that cannot be discussed here, but to which I hope to return in some later issue of this periodical.

TECHNOLOGICAL LYING

Some months ago in Liberty Bell I mentioned the consequences of the application to photography of the technique of digital recording that made possible, for example, the computers that are now in use everywhere and probably in your own home.

The New Scientist (London), 16 October 1993, contains an article which gives some precise information about the new technique, and proves its point by the picture on its front cover, which shows Einstein standing in front of No. 10 Downing Street, arm-in-arm with the current Prime Minister, a boyish man named John Major, who could have led a useful life in a position for which nature had fitted him, as a clerk in a department store or even, if kept under strict supervision, a teller in a bank. The photograph, we are told, is authentic, so far as experts can determine from examination of it, and therefore would have been, earlier in could start persecuting, we might be able to determine something of Paul's doctrine by comparing those letters with the ones produced by an informal committee (i.e., scribblers in general agreement on what they wanted to promote) and planted in the "New Testament." Various conjectures identify Saul with the Simon Magus of other Christian legends or the Liar (and traitor) who traduced the Teacher of Righteousness according to one of the recently disclosed Dead Sea Scrolls. But all this is mere vaporous imagining about a person whose real character has been so obscured by forgeries that it must remain unknown.

17. I need not remark that, so far as I know, condoms, made of the thin membranes of some fish, were invented in the Eighteenth Century by the Dr. Condom who gave his name to them; or that pornography did not become noteworthy or highly profitable before the Christians tried to suppress it.

18. Of course, at least a century before the assumed date and probably earlier, Jewish hucksters and usurers had infested every region of the known world in which there was money to be made by swindling the natives.

this century, proof that the mathematical Messiah was still alive or had returned from Sheol.

Before the advent of the digital technique, the surest method of lying with photography was to lie about the time and place at which the picture was taken. The Sheenies used pictures of the bodies of German civilians, killed when the Anglo-American barbarians incinerated Dresden, and claimed they were pictures of God's Children who had been slain by the Germans in the great Holohoax. The imposture was exposed only when the pictures were identified as having been taken by German photographers at Dresden. When the Sheenies patched up pictures or photographed composite drawings, they were usually so negligent that the fraud was easily detectable in a print of the picture—see the many examples in Ugo Walendy's booklet, Bild „Dokumente" für die Geschischtsschreibung? or the English translation, Forged War Crimes Malign the German Nation, both published by the Verlag für Volkstum und Zeitgeschichtsschreibung, Vlotho/Weser, 1973 and 1979[1]—and would have been obvious on examination of the negative.

Some photographs can be made deceptive by simple alterations. Years ago, when a horde of vicious niggers accompanied by white degenerates swarmed into the small town of Selma, Alabama, to afflict the residents, many of our jewspapers printed a photograph that showed nasty white policemen in the act of brutalizing an oversized female nigger, whom they had thrown to the ground. The liepapers produced the photograph by simply cutting off the part of picture that showed the long butcher knife in the rabid animal's hand.

Superficially deceptive photography has always been possible, of course. When a boy of twelve I was able to take, by simple double exposure, photographs of translucent ghosts haunting houses and winged dogs flying over a rooftop. This simple technique sufficed recently in Lubbock, Texas, when the town was invaded by thousands of individuals who call themselves 'charismatics' and have or pretend to have fits, similar to epileptic seizures, during which they babble nonsense, as they did when they were infants. Some of them photographed the open door to Heaven above the Texas landscape, and one was amused that the local photographers, determined to alienate no paying customer, told the newspaper that the photographs were genuine, so far as they could tell.

1. Note especially the photograph which shows officers of the German SS floating in the air, an inch or two above a pile of shoes that were supposedly taken from recently incinerated Yids.

Experts could, by patient and careful work, produce photographic lies that could not be detected from examination of a print (as distinct from a negative). I have in mind a photograph of Pope John Paul II, showing him with his arm raised in the old Roman military salute, which was, of course, the salute adopted by the Hitlerian régime in Germany, while he wears a gleaming swastika on his pectoral. But that required prolonged and careful work by a real expert in photography, and even so, expert examination of the negative would have discredited the fake.

Such expertise and elaborate equipment are no longer necessary to produce perfect forgeries. For $2000, you can purchase the necessary apparatus. According to the New Scientist, all that you need are "a desktop computer, a CD-ROM machine, and image-manipulation software." The technique is so simple that "just about anyone can turn themselves [sic] into an expert manipulator." The whole procedure is no more complicated than that by which you bring up on the screen of your computer a text from your "hard disk," alter it as you wish, deleting part of the text and replacing it with parts of other texts, and then put the revised version in place of the original one on your "hard disk," The only difference is that you are working with parts of pictures instead of words and sentences. Even if you are combining two pictures that differ greatly in quality, you can even out the differences. A recent advertisement on British television, for example, incorporates in a modern scene a performance by a long-deceased actor in a cinema made sixty or seventy years ago.

The new technique has been exploited in journalism, of course. The periodical Spy embellished its cover with a deliciously appropriate picture of our Chief Executive, Hilary Rodham, in the White House, attired as a 'dominatrix,' a whore who delights masochistic males by whipping and otherwise tormenting them. (The reproduction in the New Scientist shows how the composite picture was put together). The Sun, which is Britain's counterpart of our National Enquirer, illustrated a story about adultery between a fifty-five-year old monk and a girl almost young enough to have been his granddaughter, with a picture showing the girl and the ecclesiastic standing intimately side-by-side. The figure of the ecclesiastic was itself a composite, his head having replaced the head of a suitably robed monk.

British newspapers promptly protested piously that they would never, never do anything so dishonest, meaning, of course, that they would resort to photographic forgery only when the resulting pictures were plausible and falsification served some politically important purpose.

The fact is that photographs may now be forged undetectably. And undetectable forgeries may be produced by anyone bright enough to operate an ordinary computer. The only way to discredit a forgery is to find and exhibit the pictures that were combined, which, usually, are in the possession of forger, unless he has taken the precaution of destroying them.

One consequence of the revolution in photography is that henceforth photographs will have no more value as evidence than stories told by a single witness. We shall face endless quibbling and controversy about pictures that displease someone. For example, a little while ago a rather naïf American had some idée fixe that precluded belief in the savage massacres of prisoners of war carried out by the American barbarians during their jihad in 1945. He was therefore displeased by one of the photographs in Dr. Howard Buechner's Dachau, the Hour of the Avenger, that had been reproduced in an issue of the Journal of Historical Review. It showed in the distance the huddled bodies of German soldiers, prisoners of war according to the old code of civilized warfare that the British and Americans repudiated in their precipitous Advance to Barbarism, who had just been mowed down by a machine gun. The best the captious critic could do was to object that he could not see blood spurting from bodies that were in huddled positions so far from the camera that even with a magnifying glass one can discern heads and feet only here and there. Therefore, he argued, the picture must show German soldiers who had collapsed on the ground, as soldiers "instinctively" do, when they heard the report of a rifle that someone had fired within earshot. That was what he was told when he telephoned a general on active duty—obviously the duty of peddling official bunkum. The general did not explain how it is that battles occur because disciplined soldiers do not cower on the ground whenever they hear the report of a firearm.[2]

If the passionate patriot had known about digital technology, he could have claimed that the picture was a composite and showed what had never happened. The only argument to counter him would have been the date of the photograph, and that would depend on its position in the files of the U.S. Army, and even then he could argue that the photograph was one made by digital technique that had been substituted for the genuine one.

It is easy see to foresee what will happen. Although the boobs have long been accustomed to trick photography in the cinema, it will take a long time for the facts of digital photography to penetrate their dim minds, and in the meantime the technique will be sparingly but effectively used both in the press and on the boob-tubes. I shall not be astonished if a pack of pictures that show nasty Nazis in the act of asphyxiating, gassing, incinerating, or vaporizing saintly Sheenies is discovered in the "secret archives of the KGB," whose agents, like all other members of the government of post-Soviet Russia, are on the make and will, for a modest fee, discover anything you want them to authenticate.

2. There are numerous other significant pictures in Dr. Buechner's book. One shows a rat-faced Sheeny about to split the skull of a prostrate German with a heavy shovel, while his American captors watch the fun. Impassioned patriots could argue that the biped rodent was magnanimously trying to amuse the German—Alles nur Spaß!, you know.

I suggest that if you own a good computer and a "CD-ROM" apparatus, you could spend some time with both amusement and profit producing obviously genuine but impossible photographs. You might begin with a portrait of Abraham Lincoln standing beside his Lincoln Town-Car (a model of years ago, when Lincolns looked like automobiles of which the owner could be proud). From that you could go on to a photograph of a Kike who is joyfully distributing copies of Liberty Bell to White people on the streets of Los Angeles.

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?

SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the roles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way, Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way, Western Man? send $17.50 including postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

To Faithful old Friends . . . To cherished new Friends Our Best Wishes

During the year, in the rush of events, we tend to overlook the important friendships that are the true basis of business relationships. One of the great pleasures of the Holiday Season is the opportunity to exchange cordial greetings with those whose friendship and goodwill we value so highly.

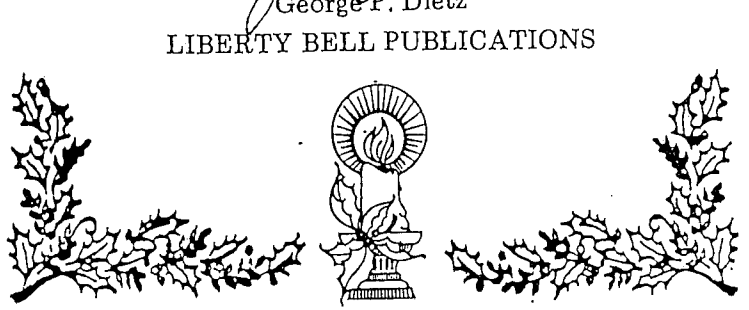
In this spirit it is our pleasure to say "Thank You" and extend our sincere appreciation for the very pleasant association we enjoy with you.

May a bright and prosperous New Year bring happiness to you and to yours.

With deep appreciation

George P. Dietz

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS



The Essential Correlation

By
Charles E. Weber, Ph.d.

Recently the Democratic Senator from New York, Patrick Moynihan, pointed out a noteworthy fact without drawing from it a noteworthy conclusion. The senator pointed out that the quality of public schools in various states has a positive correlation with their proximity to the Canadian border. The senator no doubt has his fact correct.

George F. Will is a journalist who, although he is an Aryan, has demonstrated in his writings his anti-Aryan manner of thinking. In a recent column Will offers a significant set of statistics which demonstrate (1) that the level of teachers' salaries has little to do with the scholastic achievements of their pupils and (2) that there is an essential correlation between the proportion of Negro pupils in schools in a given state and the lower scholastic performances of their pupils, although Will does not mention the word "Negro" at all in his column, which he introduces by Senator Moynihan's observation. Will, of course, is not a man to point out that there is a crucially important racial factor in cultural and economic aspects of human relations.

Will states that Moynihan is having "fun with a correlation that is coincidental, not causal." Will thus obfuscates the matter or simply lies about it, since the states closest to the Canadian border are, on the whole, the very states that have the lowest or lower proportions of Negroes in their populations. Another obfuscation occurs with regard to the correlation between Scholastic Assessment Test scores and the proportion of two-parent families in the states. Here again there is a racial factor which Will does not mention; the two-parent family is far less common amongst Negroes than amongst Caucasians. The whole set of correlations becomes clearer when the racial factor is taken into account, something that Will does not touch upon at all. One must really wonder whether Will is really that stupid or he is just being politically correct. The correlations are really not just "coincidental."

Let us now sample a few of the statistics which Will furnishes that demonstrate the two important conclusions mentioned above that we can draw from these statistics. New Jersey is the state with the highest per-pupil expenditures in the country, but the SAT scores of its pupils are 39th. New Jersey has a per-pupil expenditure of $10,561, more than three times that of Utah ($3,128), which ranks at the very bottom of the 50 states and Washington, D.C., but Utah ranks fourth in the SAT scores of its pupils. North Dakota and South Dakota rank 44th and 42nd in per-pupil expenditures but second and third in SAT scores of their pupils. Such statistics are not at all astonishing to me, a veteran of 32 years of classroom teaching. Well motivated pupils with good deportment make teacher's work attractive and hence create a willingness to work for lower salaries.

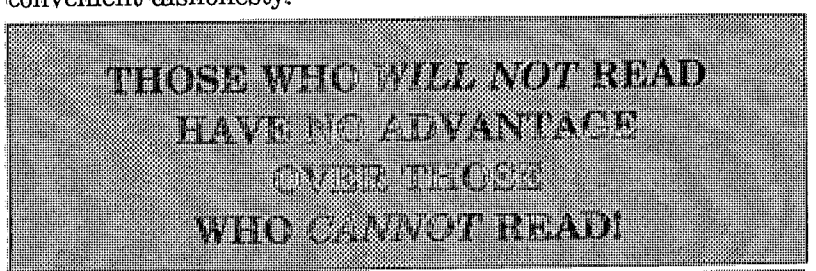
The most striking example of the depressing influence of Negro pupils is found in the Washington, D.C. schools, which rank fifth in per-pupil expenditures but 49th in SAT scores. As many readers are aware, the number of Negroes in the Washington, D.C. public schools is fairly close to 100%, no doubt a factor that caused the Clintons to keep their darling daughter out of the educational cesspool.

Will's obfuscating column seems to typify the unwillingness on the part of journalists, politicians and judges to face up to racial factors in the discussions of our desperate national problems, which will never be solved without considering racial realities. This applies to educational problems as well as to problems of immigration policy, family composition, unemployment and other social and economic problems.

In 1994 there will be commemorations of the thirtieth anniversary of the Supreme Court decision to reverse itself in the matter of racial separation in public schools. This very important decision, which has caused so much havoc in public education, was based on an unwillingness to face racial and psychometric realities or simply a cynical, politically convenient dishonesty. ❑



Clinton's Insidious Agenda

By Steve Kelley

The subject I am about to broach, and the content therein, will come as little surprise to readers of this fine journal, and similar periodicals. Unfortunately, those of us who are truly aware of what is going on in America only comprise a tiny percentage of the American populace. The fact is, the wool is being pulled over the eyes of the vast majority of Americans. I am referring to the insidious agenda of the traitors currently occupying the White House.

You see, these two licentious liberals, aka Bill and Hillary, have no interest in bettering and strengthening America. They care not about a strong defense or strong industrial base, and care even less about representing their decent, White majority constituency. So, what motivated the Clintons to seek and win the highest office in the land, if not the traditional lofty and patriotic goals? After carefully analyzing their actions during the first several months in office, their primary agenda is all too clear; to empower gays and racial minorities to the fullest extent possible.

Their first several appointments began to establish this trend. Uniquely UNqualified Negroes were put into a variety of positions; Ron Brown as Secretary of Commerce, Clifton Wharton Jr. as Assistant Secretary of State, Hazel O'Leary as Energy Secretary, Mike Espy as Agriculture Secretary, etc. And it appears in the near future we can look forward to Jocely Elders as Surgeon General. This Negress is particularly dangerous, as she has some very uncompromising and warped views on the subjects of AIDS, sex education, and abortion.

These transparent appointments of unqualified racial minorities have been quite brash, and have not gone unnoticed by many people. A few brave editors and editorial cartoonists have even referred to it, and it has been the subject of more than one editorial/article in European papers.

What has been much more subtle, and noticed by far fewer people, is the appointment of numerous homosexuals by this noble and enlightened administration.

Clinton's obsession with gays has been apparent from day one. With all the problems facing this nation, his first priority after his inauguration was pushing for the unrestricted integration of homosexuals into the military. It goes without saying that this was and is a sick idea. It repulsed most Americans, and many were wondering why this "gay thing" seemed to be such a high priority with "Slick Willy."

Then began the mostly low-key appointments of homosexuals to a number of administrative posts. Despite her denials and claims of simply being an "awkward old maid," it should be apparent to anyone with half a brain that our wonderful Attorney General is six foot, two inches of pure bull-dyke. Other prominent but slightly shorter lesbians include Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala, Press Spokesperson DeeDee Myers, and HUD Secretary Roberta Achtenberg, who actually is about the only one who is "out of the closet."

There are two male gays I am aware of, one being Transportation Secretary Federico Pena. Don't be fooled by the fact that he is married, with two children. That is a very old ruse that has always been used as a "cover," especially in Hollywood. In fact, Pena's homosexual tendencies are known by a sizable number of persons in Denver, Colorado, where he was mayor for a number of years. An acquaintance of mine has an uncle who was a high-ranking detective on the Denver police force. At one point in his career, he was saddled with the duty of escorting the mayor to some of his favorite gay night spots. It should be noted that the detective was straight, and this was strictly in a security mode.

Clinton has also appointed an incredible number of Jews to his administration, so many in fact that it is a topic for an entirely separate article. It should surprise no one that, as a far left-wing Democrat, Clinton has appointed all these Negroes and Jews. That is to be expected of a liberal, and is pretty much Standard Operating Procedure anymore, although he has certainly carried it to new extremes.

But it is a bit harder for the average American to comprehend Clinton's obsession with, and empowerment of, homosexuals. After all, he is ostensibly a straight White male, purported to have had a number of extramarital affairs with the female of the species. So why does he appear to be such a "gay lover?"

I must tread carefully here, so as not to overly-antagonize an administration that would so callously destroy lives, from Waco, Texas to Ruby Ridge, Idaho.

In a nutshell, it is rumored that our noble and enlightened First Lady is, and always has been, a lesbian. Though I totally abhor homosexuality, I am in the unique position to have contacts in the gay community, one of whom is, alas, a relative. It seems that Hillary's lesbianism is fairly well-known in many segments of America, which is why the gay community so overwhelmingly supported the Clinton presidency. They are now quite giddy over the fact that "one of their own" is in the White House. A friend from Arkansas advises me that in that state there was a lawsuit pending against Hillary, initiated by a former lesbian lover. Apparently one of those "palimony" type lawsuits. And it is whispered in some circles that a couple of her former college acquaintances had the audacity to come forward and allude to her lesbian tendencies. Don't hold your breath waiting for any of this to be reported in the controlled media.

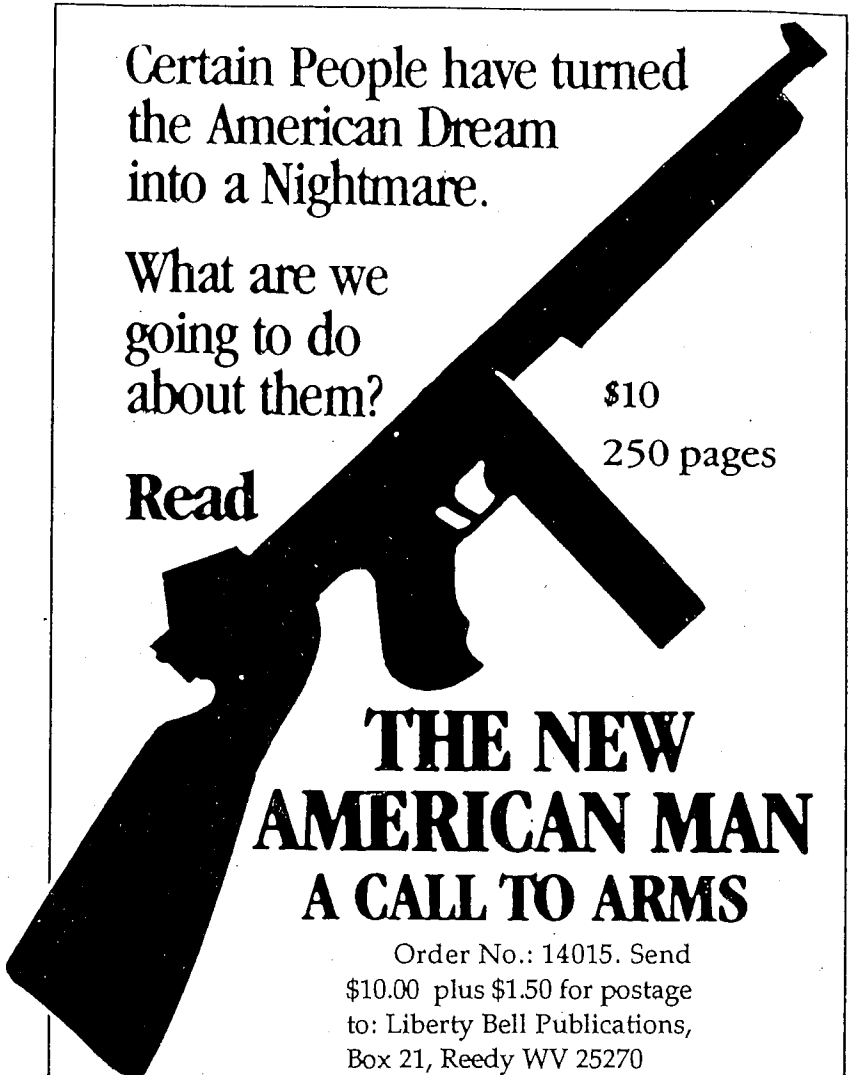
This purported sexual "quirk" of Hillary's would certainly explain many things; her "forgiveness" of Bill's many sexual dalliances, the numerous gay and lesbian appointees to his administration, the "high priority" of putting gays in the military, etc., etc.

Having said all this, and assuming it will be printed in the foreseeable future, I should probably prepare for a visit by this administration's secret policy, a la Waco. ❑

Certain People have turned the American Dream into a Nightmare.

What are we going to do about them?

Read



$10

250 pages

THE NEW AMERICAN MAN

A CALL TO ARMS

Order No.: 14015. Send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage to: Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270

PLEASE REMEMBER:

Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular contributions are our lifeblood. Help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

Charles E. Weber, Ph.D.

Reflections on an Informative But Deeply Disturbing Book:

Jared Taylor,
Paved With Good Intentions / The Failure of Race Relations in Contemporary America,
New York: Carroll and Graf, 1992, $22.95

The title of this courageous, path-finding book refers to Taylor's contention that the United States government and its taxpayers have made lavish efforts to solve the problems of the Negro underclass, even by such outrageously unfair measures as prejudices against the hiring of Caucasian men ("Affirmative Action"), detailed descriptions of which are amongst the most effective parts of Paved With Good Intentions. The discrimination against Negroes which might have existed in the past has been replaced by a reversed discrimination, directed particularly against Caucasian men, a discrimination which could reawaken old hostility toward Negroes. As Taylor points out, the prevailing social and legal climate permits Negroes to have their racially oriented institutions, such as black beauty pageants and black studies programs, while Caucasians are prohibited by law from having theirs. In spite of this bending over backwards to help the Negro underclass, this underclass is imposing ever-greater burdens on the country by rapidly increasing criminality and economic redistribution.

Although this book was published some time after the very destructive Los Angeles riots in 1992, it did not appear after the emergence of a dismal and expensive foreign policy failure, our intervention in Somalia, which is based on illusions about the ability of Negroes to form orderly governments, at least governments of a type which emerged from the racial psyche of Aryans. The book was also too early to include the recent damage being done to the economically important tourist trade in Florida by Negro criminals who have murdered foreign visitors.

For American Caucasians concerned about the future of their race, one of the most depressing statements in the whole book is found on pages 9-10: "The United States has embarked on a policy of multiracial nation-building that is without precedent in the history of the world." Although I do not contest the accuracy of the general observation expressed here, I would have formulated it with at least one different word. "Nation," by virtue of its etymology, implies a group of people who have a common origin by birth and hence some sort of common genetic heritage. In this connection, Taylor points out that at present "90 percent of all legal immigrants are nonwhite, and Asians and Hispanics have joined the American mix in large numbers." Here again we have a frequently misused word. So-called "Hispanics" are people from Spanish-speaking countries, but the flood of illegal immigrants from Mexico and other Latin American lands are people who have some or no Spanish genes in them. Other than language, if that, their absorption of European civilization has been superficial at most in all but a few cases. It seems more appropriate to designate these people by the lands of their origin; Mexico, Puerto Rico, etc.

Speaking of terminology, I am not completely happy with the use of skin colors as designations of races, convenient though that might be. Racial characteristics permeate the entire human being, including his brain structure, endocrine system, etc. When we use such designations as Caucasian, Negro, etc., we express our awareness that racial differences are not merely a matter of skin color, as the brilliant book by John R. Baker, Race (1974), informs us.

One of the greatest weaknesses I find in Taylor's book (amongst some notable strengths) is his lack of posing an all-important question, "Cui bono?". Without considering the answer to this question, no real understanding of the problems can be obtained and hence no beneficial changes can come about. If the government in Washington is cynically betraying the American Staatsvolk, the Aryan component which developed the country to what it is (or was), why is it doing so? What are its real motives? As in so many cases, we must examine the economic factors involved. Big, redistributive government has become big business and a very profitable activity for some of its captains. They live in luxurious houses with guards to keep out the criminals who have grown so rapidly in numbers as a result of the policies which they pushed forward. They send their children to private schools that have none of the border-line feeble-minded Negro children whose breeding and feeding they have subsidized out of the earnings of the productive, orderly Aryan middle classes. They confuse the Aryan victims with the most hypocritical, obfuscating lies imaginable, even forced also upon the intellectually defenceless pupils in public schools. If American borders have been left with few guards against the flood of illegal Mexican immigrants from the south while American armed forces are sent on absurd and wasteful assignments in far-off Somalia, we must again ask ourselves, "Cui bono?". Does the majority party in Congress envisage these non-Aryans as a future source of winning votes?

The terrible economic burdens resulting from attempts to solve social problems by heavy government intervention are perhaps best summed up by a shocking statement on page 347 which puts the long-range effects of this intervention into sharp focus: "In 1948, a married couple with median income and two children paid only two percent of its income in state, federal, and social security taxes. In 1991 they paid 30 percent." Taylor makes convincing arguments in various parts of his book that this heavy redistributive activity has simply made the problems far worse in terms of the percentage of illegitimate births, criminality and other burdens on the most productive citizens.

Taylor seems to pay little heed to the possibility that genetic factors have been and are the basic cause of Negro criminality and other forms of parasitism. It is difficult to imagine that this thought has never crossed his mind. In fact, we find a hint that it has on page 346: "Intelligence is largely an accident of genetics....."

I can find no reference which Taylor makes to the famous and crucially important article by Prof. Arthur Jensen in the Harvard Educational Review of Winter, 1969. This article, "How Much Can We Boost IQ and Scholastic Achievement?", discusses the genetic factors in human intelligence and warns that only limited results could be expected from such educational measures as Head Start. Prof. Jensen's admonishments were later borne out by studies which showed the benefits of Head Start to be only temporary (page 332). Jensen's wise article caused so much controversy that its author was subject to considerable abuse, especially by those who had read only misleading, second-hand condensations of his article. Much of Professor Jensen's data had been known long before 1969, but banished from fashionable thinking during the course of the 1960s.

Taylor is by no means sympathetic with some efforts by Aryans to protect their interests and safety on the basis of practical politics, such as those by David Duke against a very well funded opposition and even intervention against him by President Bush, who is the father-in-law of a Mexican. Taylor, alas, characterizes Duke as "disreputable" (page 149). One must ask if Taylor himself has ever been a victim of Negro crime or a victim of "Affirmative Action" or if he has ever bothered to read Duke's writings in the NAAWP News published by the National Association for the Advancement of White People (P.O. Box 10625, New Orleans, Louisiana 70181). Much of what Taylor says in his book had been expressed long ago by David Duke in his writings and public addresses.

After hundreds of pages describing the economic and social burdens imposed by the "black underclass," in the eighth and last chapter, pages 331-358, Taylor discusses the various possibilities of solving the problem, such as the "Tough Approach," schools, reproductive responsibility, "Obligatory Charity" (i.e., redistribution of assets through taxation) and finally "Ending Reckless Procreation." It is the last possibility in which Taylor sees the only feasible possibility of a solution in view of the present climate of sexual mores and disdain of family values on the part of the "black underclass." Taylor points out that in previous generations there were strong inhibitions which society placed, largely successfully, on procreation by persons incapable of supporting their children. (At this point we might mention, as Taylor does not, that many states had eugenic sterilization laws long before National Socialist Germany finally got around to passing similar laws in 1933; one of several influences on National Socialism that came from the United States.) To justify the feasibility of "ending reckless procreation," Taylor points to modern contraceptive means, notably Norplant. This chapter, which analyses the possible solutions to the problems engendered by the "black underclass," is perhaps the very most valuable one in terms of the effects which the book could have in the long run. However, Taylor concedes that his most favored possibility has already been met by accusations of racism.

Whatever weaknesses Taylor's courageous book might have, such as those in terms of approaching the "cui bono?" question and the lack of emphasis on the genetically determined aspects of the problem, the book has strengths that could bring about real changes in spite of the efforts by big government interests and the mainstream media to uphold the continuation of tried and failed approaches. Taylor's assembly of significant and pertinent data and his analysis of various possible solutions are arguments that could appeal to decision makers idealistic enough to overlook their own interests and to a large number of concerned, intelligent readers. ❑

She Cannot Comprehend Anything

By
The Prof

A recent and surprisingly forthright article in USA Today caught my eye. The piece ("Judge replaces Denny juror") concerned a request by the jury in the Reginald Denny case to oust one juror, a black female whose mind, it was said, "is closed to certain logic and reasoning". At this printing, I imagine, the case has been decided. But the incident in question bears another look.

Printed beneath the headline was a transcript of a note from another juror saying that the woman was "totally oblivious" to the jury's progress and weighing the evidence. "We have tried patiently to talk and work with her," read the note, "all to no avail!" While her personal views, it was explained, were not an issue, the fact remained that she could not comprehend anything. For much of the past twenty years I have been an educator. In reading this, I was reminded of my own efforts to deal with students of her ilk in the classroom. I was reminded also of the going pervasive lie of so-called higher education.

WAR [White Aryan Resistance, published by Tom Metzger (J.M., Box 65, Fallbrook, CA 92028)] ran a piece in September comparing black and white rates of success and in the California educational system. It reported that only half of all black students therein graduate from high school, compared with 90% of whites; likewise, that only 6% of blacks end up with a Bachelor's degree, and 27% of whites. The numbers, of course, are plausible. But I submit that the difference alleged is actually understated.

There is a common perception in this country that blacks have somehow worked their way up in the system and will continue to succeed in greater numbers, soon rivaling the numbers of whites, as old obstacles of institutional racism continue to fade with social "progress". In fact, nothing could be further from the truth. As one who has long seen the problem from the inside, and on more than one level, I can assure readers that the current black "success rate", what there is of it, is almost entirely the product of reduced standards, white fear, and a kid-gloves policy toward every black student currently in the system. Introduce genuine standards for every student, across the board—quantified entrance exams, required mathematical proficiency and high level skills of English language exposition, and black numbers will be decimated everywhere. The reality is that fairness works for, not against, the separation of the races. Equal treatment will not close the racial gap. It will widen it. Give blacks what they supposedly want—a fair shake, free of paternalism—and they will soon begin to vanish from every state campus in the nation. Make the needed chances at the high school level, and most of them will be kicked, flunked or dropped out of the running before their college entrance becomes an issue.

The education of the black student is a fiction. And the truth of the matter is this, that for every thick-headed "African American" that toes the line, about twenty others will be either mentally or physically absent from what transpires in the classroom—the same classroom, one may recall, that armed federal troops forced open to them a few decades back, over vehement public protest, for the sake of "justice". Yet today's black student, if he attends a course at all, is typically late to class, ill-prepared, dull-witted, obtuse, and even mind-altered. When, in rare cases, he is bright, he is still unconstructive, self-alienated and falsely contentious. On average, and for all of his alleged upstream ambition, he is unproductive, favor-seeking, plagiaristic, sexually distracted, and endlessly slow to absorb any point under discussion. Criticize him fairly, and he is antagonized. Extend help, and he is uninterested. Fail him, at last, and he is a racial victim. Like his caterwauling cousins who presently hold court in the mock arenas of media and politics, he lacks the first requisite for success in any serious mental endeavor, namely, the ability to see the world in objective terms and from a point of view outside his own. In short, he is consistent in nothing but failure. Were I to describe him in the briefest terms possible, I would say simply that he does not comprehend anything.

May I assure readers also that most educators, however liberal their public pose, are not oblivious to the fact of race. The great majority, in my experience, have spent hours—and years—in the generous effort to assist blacks—to remedially push their achievement, a la Sisyphus, to the level where Jew-inspired leftist egalitarians insist it belongs. And always without success. By this lengthy route, most have come to believe, in the end, that blacks are indeed just what the unaided common sense does make of them, namely, our own intellectual inferiors. Of course, one has to win their confidence before this admission is made. And few, if any, will say in public what they do say when behind closed doors and after their tongues have been loosened a little. Yet the belief, I find, is next to universal. ❑

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 — except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Is There A Black Christ In Your Future?

By
Allan Callahan

The notion of a black Christ may shock most Christians, but they should have expected this to come up, sooner or later. The Reverend Billy Graham said years ago that he didn't look upon Christ as white, but rather, as brown. And more recently, several black Christian spokesmen have said that they can no longer stomach the idea of a white Christ. And if the white population continues to shrink, below the replacement point, as it has, world-wide, since 1978; and darken, as it is doing now, then a black Christ is a virtual certainty, eventually.

The first colored Christ to appear on a large scale will probably be portrayed as a brown man with distinguished-looking Caucasian features. Then he will become a black man, with the same features. But if the white population continues to diminish, and become more niggerized, a more niggerized Christ will also come into being. How does this grab you? Could you worship a nigger god with thick lips, flat nose, sloping forehead, prognathous jaw, kinky hair (complete with dreadlocks), and maybe even with a bone through his nose? Could you revere a fat, "black mammy" type of Virgin Mary? Well, maybe you couldn't, white Christian, but your descendants could, because they will no longer be white, unless some changes are made in current trends. People tend to create gods in their own image.

The church of the years 2200 or 2300 may retain only faint vestiges of the old Christian church. Instead, the music could be the beating of tom-toms; the services, voodoo and dark-of-the-moon stuff, coupled with the beheading of chickens and goats, drinking some of the blood and smearing the rest on their bodies, mixed with cow dung.

Wouldn't a good dose of white pride start turning things around? Yes, if you could get people to listen. But a racialist leader in California said white Christians fought him even harder than Jews and blacks did. They didn't listen.

What a difference time makes! The Founding Fathers considered the Negro to be barely human, as did the clergymen of that era. The church was one of the strongest supporters of slavery, and was very rough on heretics, too. Not that it should be proud of things like its witchcraft trials; it shouldn't be. How did the Christians of that era justify cruelties, like burning people at the stake? Well, they felt that, since God was going to burn the poor sinners in Hell forever anyway, he wouldn't mind if they burned them for an hour or two ahead of time.

Medieval Christians were too cruel, in that they would burn people at the stake, and modern white Christians are too wimpy, in that they are not taking the measures necessary to save their own race. This is especially true of church leaders, and particularly those who go overboard on "humanitarian" ideals. But there was one outstanding exception of recent times—a man who is probably considered the greatest humanitarian of the 20th century. This was Dr. Albert Schweitzer (1875-1965), an Elsatian-German who won fame in four fields: philosophy, music, medicine and theology. At age 30 he became a medical missionary and ran a hospital at Lambarene, Gabon, in what was then French Equatorial Africa.

For sixty years the world press rhapsodized over what Schweitzer was doing for blacks in Africa. He usually read the Bible every evening, and nearly everybody assumed he was a great egalitarian, and a staunch supporter of race-mixing. Those who knew different rarely said anything about it. One journalist noted that Schweitzer had no Negro doctors at his hospital, nor was he training any. Schweitzer said: "You can't change their mentality." Maybe his most astounding statement, though, was made during the Congo campaign (1961), when the United Nations was instrumental in overthrowing the white man's civilization there. Said Schweitzer:

> I have given my life to try to alleviate the sufferings of Africa. There is something that all white men who have lived here like I must learn and know: that these individuals are a sub-race. They have neither the intellectual, mental or emotional abilities to equate or to share equally with white men in any of the functions of our civilization.
>
> I have given my life to try to bring unto them the advantages which our civilization must offer, but I have become well aware that we must retain this status: (white) the superior and they the inferior.

> For whenever a white man seeks to live among them as their equals they will either destroy him or devour him. And they will destroy all of his work.
>
> Let white men from anywhere in the world, who would come to help Africa, remember that you must continually retain this status; you the master and they the inferior like children that you would help or teach. Never fraternise with them as equals or they will devour you. They will destroy you.

Since Schweitzer had such a low opinion of Negroes it is reasonable to assume that he would have been horrified at the idea of a black Christ. And he was dead right about saying you can't change the mentality of blacks. Or whites, either; or Asians, or anyone else. Education can't do it. This can only (up to a point) raise the level of knowledge; it can't change mentality. This is inherited.

Had he known, in 1905, when he first went to Africa, that the Negro population would later explode so dramatically, perhaps he would not have gone at all. Who knows?

Blacks in Africa are increasing rapidly. How rapidly? A recent report said that the population in Sudan has been doubling every 22 years, so it isn't unreasonable to assume that all the countries of black Africa will double about that quickly also, if they can get the food, and if they can't raise enough or buy enough, the white nations can be expected to send whatever is needed, free of charge.

On top of this, blacks living outside the Dark Continent are also breeding like rats. One difference, though, is that rats take better care of their young. Niggers don't need to worry about caring for their offspring, because, if they don't do it, Whitey will do it for them.

Yes, Whitey tries hard to accommodate them on this. He has reduced his own birthrate below the replacement level so he will have more time and money to spend on pickaninnies.

Aryans need to start thinking some forbidden thoughts on the race question, one of which would be that black genes, if mixed and stirred completely into a universal human genepool, would have the power to pull down all High Culture on this planet.

And even if they aren't mixed into a universal human genepool, but just our own white genepool, it will still mean the end of us. Schweitzer's warning that Negroes can devour us, and destroy us, will then come true. If we are annihilated, isn't it very likely that our white god will vanish, too, along with us?

There is one group of whites, who, we can assume, would, right now, readily embrace the idea of a black Christ. A new term has been coined to describe them: "Whiggers" (white niggers). They want to imitate blacks in every way; in dress, speech, actions and thinking. Nearly all of them are young, and some are gang members. Violent white gang members usually love Negro music, but can't explain what it means to them. However, it's simple. Blacks are more violent by nature, and the music, in a subtle way, reflects this nature. Therefore whites, listening to this stuff, will become more violent too. If you look up some normal people in a room with a fool, they will eventually start acting somewhat like fools themselves. It is association!

White youth has embraced Negro music with open arms, if you can call it "music." Much of it is horrible stuff, about what you would expect from jungle savages. There is a primitive beat, along with a "social message," sometimes put forth with a half-incoherent screeching and caterwauling. The message is often something about "justice," which, in the minds of Negroes, means letting them have their own way. At other times there are inane lyrics. (One song has nothing but the words "I love ya' baby," repeated over and over again.) It is understandable why blacks listen to this crud, but mind-boggling to think about whites abusing their eardrums with it.

The thought of Christ turning black might jolt most whites, and especially religious ones, to sensibility on the race question. All except for Whiggers and fawning negrophiles. These people are a waste of skin, and may have to be written off as hopeless. But it should be possible to change most Aryan Christians. After all, if Medieval Christians could give up their practice of burning people at the stake, why couldn't modern Christians give up their practice of race-mixing? Why should one act be any harder than the other? And if anything could accomplish this, it would be the vision, in their minds, of a black Christ gazing down upon a planet devoid of white people. ❑

How the British Play Gulf

By RAM, Vienna

An outrageous event occurred in the year 1808 which shocked the Christian world: Arab Gulf-pirates had attacked the Minerva, a British trading vessel. An Arab ship had succeeded in stopping the Minerva and to put a boarding party on her high decks. After a fierce fight she was captured, her surviving crew was put to death, and the wife of one of the British officers, a Mrs. Taylor, was spared her life and held for ransom.

In spite of the daily reports from war correspondents about Napoleon's campaigns, and commentaries about the far-reaching transformations which all European nations were undergoing under the onslaught of the French revolutionary armies, Mrs. Taylor remained in the headlines on the front pages. Newspapers in Great Britain, on the Continent, and in America, warned that the established world order of the European Races had been threatened, questioned the supremacy of the Royal Navy to rule the waves of the Seven Seas, and cried out in indignation in the name of civilization that a gang of savage Arabs had dared to lay hands on an English Lady, by definition a higher creature.

The Tattler and similar periodicals of society speculated about Mrs. Taylor's tragic fate, described with dreadful details the awful conditions prevailing on Arab slave markets, reminded the readers of Mozart's "Seraglio", and fancied the nightmares of the lady in a harem, her "rose-colored flesh" at the mercy of a depraved Arab savage, subjected to the savage's bloodlust and unspeakable sexual practices.

The Times, as usual, was more sober and precise, and reported what had so far transpired, from Whitehall and Bombay: It was an established fact that the Persian Gulf and parts of the Indian Ocean were infested with Arab pirates for years. The tribe of the Qazimis, which had spread along the southern coast of the Gulf and the northern coast of Oman, lived off smuggling and piracy, and in those days boasted of a fleet of sixty-three large fighting dhows, 400 guns, and 8000 men. Raids on merchant ships and men-of-wars of the British East India Company were routine events. The British Admiralty, however, saw no obligation to get involved since the "John Company" was provided with a powerful enough fleet to protect the trade routes to and from its possessions in India. Furthermore, the regular units of the Royal Navy were fully engaged and stretched to the last sail to patrol the coasts of Europe, from the Baltic to the Mediterranean Sea, to ensure the tight blockade of the Continent controlled by Napoleon's armies.

What until then the losses of men, ships, and cargos had not brought about, it was the fate of Mrs. Taylor that heated the cold blood of the venerable Lords of the Admiralty to the boiling point. In the midst of a titanic struggle for world power between Revolutionary France and the British Empire, King and Country, Lords and sailors, did not hesitate: Their inherited and inborn values of chivalry and nobility of mind left them no choice but to follow their categorical imperative: As in the heroic tales of yore, they were compelled to save the fair maiden in distress from the fangs of monsters.

They did not delegate a Lord Owen, but armed a small fleet and ordered it into the Indian Ocean on a punitive expedition. After eight weeks the small force made its final, undetected approach off the main port of the Qazimis, Ras Al Khaimah. While HMS Caroline landed a regiment of marines nearby, HMS Chifonne's 36 guns strafed and sunk the unguarded Qazimi warships inside the port, and started bombarding the fort. When the pirates saw that the mud walls of their fortifications could not resist the naval guns of the British, they made a sortie landward, but were received there by field artillery and the disciplined fire of the well entrenched red-coats.

Only thirty men survived the carnage. In execution of the orders received, crews and soldiers thereupon proceeded to wipe out this pirates' nest once and forever: Women and children were driven into the desert, fortifications and houses were razed to the ground, water wells were blasted and date trees felled. The commander of the expedition summoned the last surviving warriors of the Qazimis, dictated the British terms of submission, and then boarded ship, but not before having handed some Bibles in Arabic to the desperate survivors for their spiritual comfort and edification .

Mrs. Taylor had been freed, not one of her fair hairs had been touched. Perhaps her "rose-colored flesh" was now a shade more suntanned than would befit an English Lady, when the little fleet had reached Plymouth and the glad tidings were received the world over, French and Spanish men-of-wars fired salutes in Toulon and Brest, in Cadiz and La Coruña, in honor of her safe homecoming—such was the spiritual congeniality of Gentlemen, Gentilshommes, and Caballeros of those times.

The Arabs of the Gulf had learned their lessons: Never again was any threat directed against British interests from the Pirate's Coast, or the Trucial States, as it was later named. Both the Persian Gulf and the Indian Ocean had become a British "mare nostrum".

Eighty years later again an outrageous event shook Victorian England: The Ottoman and German governments had signed a treaty for the construction of the "Baghdad Railway's" extension. The newly founded Second German Empire, newcomer on the geopolitical stage, was asking to play its part in the orchestra of the world powers. But this the British considered to be a preposterous threat to their interests, and a challenge to what, in their minds, was a God-given and God-pleasing dogma that it was their manifest destiny to rule the world. Neither the few newly acquired German colonies in Africa and Oceania were a cause of alarm to Albion, nor the small but modern German fleet. A much stronger threat was Germany's slow but steady advance on all world markets with superior products, in spite of all the import bans and preferential regulations imposed throughout the British Empire.

The construction of the Baghdad Railroad, which by order of the Ottoman government had been planned and started back in 1871 by an Austrian railroad engineer, Wilhelm von Pressel, had by 1895 reached Ankara, and was to be extended southward to the holy shrines of Medina and Mekka, as well as eastward to Basrah and further on to a small fishing village with a flourishing harbor, called Kuwait, located on the Persian Gulf.

And that was a last affront which Victorian England was not prepared to suffer. The long term implications would become intolerable: Products "made in Germany" would be transported on a German-Turkish railway to a German-controlled port on the shores of an inlet to the Indian Ocean, to the gates of British India and the exclusivity of a British sphere of influence. His Majesty's Foreign Secretary, Lord Curzon, wrote: "I should regard the concession of a port upon the Persian Gulf to a foreign power as a deliberate insult to Great Britain, as a wanton rupture of the status quo, and an intentional provocation to war; and I should impeach the British minister, who was guilty of acquiescing in such a surrender, as a traitor to his country." Immediate counter-actions had become imperative.

The Arab tribes along the Gulf coast were nominally under the domination of the High Port and were its tributaries, and so was Kuwait under the rule of the Al Sabahs. There were a few British trading posts in the Gulf, and their "political resident" was stationed in Bushor, on the Persian coast of the Gulf. The British had found out that Mubarrak, the half-brother of the ruling Sheikh, Muhammad Al Sabah, was striving after the reign himself and had been exiled into the desert. The ensuing course of action can easily be guessed: England's Political Resident supplied Mubarrak and his gang with the necessary weapons, and on May 17, 1896, they sneaked back into town and to the ruler's house. There Mubarrak murdered his half-brother while asleep and on the following morning proclaimed himself the new sheikh. It was pure coincidence that a British frigate was cruising off-shore that day, its guns trained on the town. One of Kuwait's luxurious boulevards of today is called "Mubarrak Al Kabir"—named after Mubarrak "the Great".

Two years later Mubarrak "the Great" and Britain's political resident signed a secret agreement, after payment of a 15,000 rupees' bribe to the Al Sabahs, in which the sheikh and his successors agreed to never receive representatives of foreign powers, let alone negotiate with them, prior to having asked for British consent. The construction of the Baghdad Railway went on and both Berlin and Constantinople were still convinced that London was recognizing Turkish supremacy over the Western Gulf. It took a few more years for the secret treaty to be made public and by then it was clear to all parties concerned that a stop had been put on any far reaching German plans in the area: Kuwait would be no gate to India and Southeast Asia, but would remain for ever a terminal station.

In 1913 Mubarrak "the Great" signed over all of Kuwait's oil concessions to the British for a five percent return to the Sabahs. When in 1941 a large segment of Kuwait's leading families joined or supported the anti-colonial freedom movement of Rashid Al Ghailani, who lead a revolt in Iraq against British occupation, it was again their faithful cronies, the Sabahs, who threw the rebels in jail. And the Sabahs are still in command, never failing their profitable engagements, never devoted to the cause of their nation, but exclusively so to the booty of—now—fifty percent on the crude oil production of their state, ever congruent with the interests of Britain and the Imperial Oil Company, and later with the U.S.A. and the Seven Sisters.

When the heat is on, one logically has to stand by such old friends: Under the pretext to liberate this paramount example of a "democratic" regime—this time no Mrs. Taylor—from the claws of the beast Saddam Hussein, our well-known crusaders and self-appointed guardians of democratic values and world ethics ordered nearly half a million American and West European soldiers into the sands of Arabia and from there to proceed on a punitive expedition; to protect, this time, newer and higher values: the billions of profits for the oil companies and the sheikhs' families, the protection of Israel, and the retention of a stronghold in the center of the rising Islamic revolution.

Again the Sabahs proved their invaluable reliability and to what extent they were ready to degrade themselves; when some men and girls of their family participated as impostors and perjurers in a televised horror show staged by the New York based public relations company, Hill & Knowling, financed by the Sabahs to the tune of ten million dollars. They impersonated doctors and nurses, testified at a hearing of the U.N Security Council that they had witnessed how Iraqi soldiers were murdering patients in Kuwait hospitals, and how they threw babies out of incubators, which they stole to be shipped to Iraq. These ten million dollars were a great investment that showed immediate returns; the world conscience had been titillated at the right time: President Bush signed the orders, and General Schwarzkopf was allowed to grill, blast, flatten, and pulverize a hundred thousand or so Iraqi civilians and soldiers.

Did the Arabs of the other Gulf states fare any better? Certainly not! The moment test drillings struck oil in any part of the desert, British emissaries would swarm all over the place, always following the same old pattern: They either would find some willing and understanding local ruler, or use more convincing methods of bribery—and liquidation.

The Bahrainis were the first to be subjected to the laws of "Pax Britannica". When oil was found on these islands at the beginning of this century, the British placed the country under the rule of the Arab Al Issa tribe, although eighty percent of the population were Iranian Shiites, and the Al Issas still "rule" today, of course, as an extended arm of British oil interests.

The other sheikhs' turn came after World War Two: There reigned in Abu Dhabi a venerable and patriarchal old man, a fervent Muslim, Sheikh Shakhboud Al Nahyan, who was very skeptical about modern, western progress. Not only alcohol and gambling were banned, but even hotels and banks—the latter due to their un-Coranic practice of usury. He resided in a fort built of white-washed mud bricks, the entrance gate was guarded by two rusty old Turkish guns. Twice weekly a small twin-engine plane landed on a sandstrip and brought the few visitors from the outside world to this sleepy spot on the torrid and humid coast of the Persian Gulf. The use of paper money was forbidden, transactions were performed with the use of Indian or British coins, or the Maria-Theresa-Talers.

When BP [British Petroleum Company] struck oil in the 1950s, the British watchdog—the local "political agent"—told the old sheikh that he had to adjust to the factual necessities of a higher order—and now! When Shakhboud hesitated and claimed that for his people he was pursuing a different kind of happiness, his fate was sealed: He was quickly disposed of, and his nephew, Zayed Al Nahyan, who at the time was a cadet at Sandhurst Military College, was flown back with some "advisors" and was proclaimed the new ruler. At once he proved how well he had been educated in England: After a few years the oil terminal was built, pipelines crisscrossed the desert, concrete towers had been erected, the banking business flourished, and there even existed a four-lane motorway leading 120 kilometers from Abu Dhabi to nowhere in the desert, where a lonely Hilton hotel stood all by itself.

In Dubai the English did not have to use much persuasion. Sheikh Rashid Al Maktoum eagerly had signed over all influence and oil concessions to the British in the early fifties, as long as they would not interfere with his favorite pastimes: Falconry, and gold and currency smuggling to and from India and Iran. The few remaining administrative and trade activities were handled by the political agent's right hand man, Mahdi Al Tajer, a former customs employee, who, covered by the sheikh, stuck his ten fingers into any dubious but profitable business in the country, always keeping 25 percent of the profits for the ruler. He became immensely rich, and in the 1970s his secret dream of a lifetime came true: As a reward "for services rendered" he was allowed by the British to become the sheikh's ambassador to London, where he resides in a luxurious palace.

Next was the Sultanate of Oman, in the course of the 1960s: There also ruled an old man who was rooted in old traditions and was a faithful Muslim, Sultan Taimur. He had not been able to prevent the appointment of a British political agent in his capital, Muscat, and therefore had chosen to exile himself to Sallalah in the remote south of his country, far from British insinuations and their subversive activities. Against his specific orders, a British-Dutch consortium had started drillings and had struck oil. When the black gold started flowing, Taimur's days were counted. The reader will guess the adopted procedure: Taimur was kidnapped and flown to England, where he died under mysterious circumstances soon after, and his son, Qabous, was taken out of Sandhurst College, brought back to Oman, accompanied by two gentlemen from the Special Services, and proclaimed the new Sultan. Today's Oman is a credit to the investors in Qabous' education; one can be proud of this booming petro-colony.

Saudi Arabia does not really belong here [in this essay], as it became an exclusive playground of the U.S. oil industry just about forty years ago. The Americans were lucky they had to deal with the aging king Ibn Saoud, whose advanced years and precarious health kept him occupied mainly with his numerous concubines and plane loads of call-girls, which were regularly flown in from Cairo or Europe for his exclusive and personal divertimento. But who has ever heard of this escapade, which occurred in the early fifties, and following which the British lost their last pretense to hold principles of honor and moral values above everything else, as they were viewed by the Saudis? The English ambassador in Jeddah gave a cocktail party, which his daughter who was vacationing there attended. One of the young Saudi princes, who had already been drinking too much, asked the ambassador to sell him his daughter. The ambassador tried to appease the prince and complimented him ever so gently out the door. Late in the night, however, the incensed prince came back with his bodyguard, forced his entry into the embassy, and killed the father who had tried to protect his daughter. An ensuing diplomatic conflict of enormous magnitude seemed unavoidable, with incalculable consequences and implications for western diplomacy and the interests of western oil companies; the oil fields being located in a part of the kingdom controlled by the Wahhabites, fanatic Muslims, who were strongly opposed to Ibn Saouds orientation toward the West. Not to mention the loss of face to the royal family, guardians of the Islamic holy cities, throughout the Arab and Islamic world. And so, ad maiorem gloriam petrolei, no reprisals were forthcoming, nothing happened at all! The ambassador's body, and his daughter in shock, were flown out the same night; the few Saudis who were aware of the crime held their tongues, and Downing Street No. 10 ordered a tight news blackout. Allegedly, both the British government and the family of the deceased indignantly refused to accept a gigantic sum offered by the king as a pay-off.

Today's British youth, with enthusiasm and fervor, read in the books of their immensely rich and heroic history about the exploits of King Artus' knights of Robin Hood, of Lord Nelson, Captain Cook, and Scott of the Antarctica's idealistic values. When young men are now shipped by the thousands on troop transporters or aircraft carriers halfway around the globe to wage war on the Falklands or in the Persian Gulf, they have to be told that they must protect the lives of a few hundred families of sheep-breeders, descendants of early Scottish settlers, from the grip of dirty Argentinean wogs, or they are shown on all TV channels the brilliantly rigged horror report of Hill & KNowling. What young English [or for that matter, European or American] chivalrous knight of today would not be proud to put his life on the line to stop that baby-killing down in Kuwait?

One thing they must not be told: That their mission on the Falklands or in Kuwait was to protect off-shore and inshore claims of British-American oil companies and the status quo of the established political world order.

Perhaps it is a sign of hope that 200 years of indoctrination and brainwashing by the new masters so far have not succeeded to eradicate any inherited compulsion to act according to traditional values and, instead, follow blindly the orders given by the system's controllers. Will the brainwashers ultimately vanquish heredity and genetics and be able to implant new compulsions into future generations of young European and Americans to become enthusiastic legionnaires under the banner of OPEC, crusaders under the cross of the World Bank or the IMF, conquistadores for big business and the armament industry, and to serve those masters with the same fervor and self-sacrificing idealism which they would have proven in previous and present times whenever called to save a Mrs. Taylor in distress? ❑

LIBERTY BELL INDEX 1993

JANUARY — Vol. 20 — No. 5

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: Lost Footnotes, page 1; Suffer, Little Children, page 1; Unamerican Cat, page 20. — Book Review by Dr. Charles E. Weber, Air Photo Evidence..., page 22. — Weaver and Gritz, by J. B. Campbell, page 25. — Clinton Victory, by Hans Schmidt, page 40. — Letters to the Editor, page 48.

FEBRUARY — Vol. 20 — No. 6

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: Academic Slums, page 1; Religio Religat, page 6. — From FAEM: Planet of the Gapes, page 29; Hi Ho, Hi Ho, A-Revisioning We Will Go, page 32. — Brave New World, by Manfred Roeder, page 45. — From The Talon: Germany Awakens, page 46. — Letters to the Editor, page 49.

MARCH — Vol. 20 — No. 7

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: THE QUADRENNIAL SHINDIG: Gritz, page 1; Perot, page 6; The War Lord, page 7; Slick (and Sick) Willie, page 8; Prolonged Uncertaintity, page 10; Prospects, page 14; Appendix, page 15; A Traitor is Worth More Than an Army, page 20; Spiced Crambe, page 22; The Rot and the Stench; page 35; Persecution of the Righteous, page 40. — Their Capitalism and Ours, by Hector Rodgers, Ph.D., page 46.

APRIL — Vol. 20 — No. 8

Open Letter to The American Christian, by Colonel "Bo" Gritz, page 1. — Gas Guessing, by Robert Frenz, page 22. — Race Mixing, by Eric Thomson, page 26. — Letters to the Editor, page 34.

MAY — VOL. 20 — No. 9

Book Review by Dr. Charles E. Weber: Did 6 Million Really Die?, page 1. — Bob Frenz: Lavender Blue, page 12; Mileage Out Of Creeps, page 13; Rochester, page 14; Convalescence, page 14. — Turning the Bones on Madagascar, by Allan Callahan, page 30. — Courage, by J. B. Campbell, page 34. — An Open Letter to Dr. J. Clayton Rafferty, by Jack Jones, page 51.

JUNE — Vol. 20 — No. 10

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: Clarification, page 1; Calvin Dishonored, page 2; Divine Poesy, page 6. — Letters to the Editor, page 39.

JULY — Vol. 20 — No. 11

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: Kosher Cuts, page 1; Addendum on Children, page 5; Lost Hope, page 8. — At the Jewish Cemetery in Prague, A Translation by Dr. Charles E. Weber, page 11.

AUGUST — Vol. 20 — No. 12

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: OBJECT LESSON, page 1; Oberlin College, page 3; Slavery, page 5; The Apostates, page 13; Honorable Christians, page 20. — Memories, by J. B. Campbell, page 25. — The U.S. Holocaust Museum, by Ernst Zündel, page 34. — The Good Guys Wore Black, by J. B. Campbell, page 41. — Folkish Observations, from N.S. Kindred, page 53.

SEPTEMBER — Vol. 21 — No. 1

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: The First Massacre, page 1. — The Death of Patriotism, by Maj. D.V. Clerkin, page 20. — The Cult of the Personality, by J. B. Campbell, page 23. — Why the Germans Are Idiots, page 32. — A Fumbled Opportunity, by Harold A. Covington, page 34. — Hamburger Rare, from FAEM, page 36. — Letters to the Editor, page 41.

OCTOBER — Vol. 21 — No. 2

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: "Nat Turner", page 1; The Khazars, page 11; Secret Disclosed, page 20; Sporting Event, page 24; Là-Bas and Lower, page 27. — From FAEM: Letters, page 35; Poemish Stuff, page 36; Sling-Shot Control, page 39; Hands Smith, page 40; Hate 'Tis, Revisionist Jews, page 42; More Comments, page 43; Gawd A Mighty!, Dey's Racists, page 45; Faggots in the Army, page 46; Kool A.I.D.S., page 48.

— Letters to the Editor, page 50.

NOVEMBER — Vol. 21 — No. 3

Destructive Immigration, by Richard C. Bentinck, M.D., page 1; — Rhodesia, by J. B. Campbell, page 12. — Maj. D. V. Clerkin: The Weaver / Harris Verdict, page 27; What's New In Milwaukee, page 28; Bogus 'EuroAmerican Alliance', page 29; A Conversation With The Blankos, page 30. — National Alliance: Dead Children, page 34. — An Interview with Josef Ginsburg, by Eric Thomson, page 35. — Criminal Prosecution of Holocaust Denial, by a Canadian Correspondent, page 43. — Letters to the Editor, page 49.

DECEMBER — Vol. 21 — No. 4

Postscripts by Professor Revilo P. Oliver: Thank "AIDS", page 1; New Books, page 4; Technological Lying, page 19. — The Essential Correlation, by Dr. Charles E. Weber, page 26. — Clinton's Insidious Agenda, by Steve Kelley, page 28. — Reflections on an Informative But Deeply Disturbing Book, by Dr. Charles E. Weber, page 32. — She Cannot Comprehend Anything, by The "Prof", page 37. — How The British Play Gulf, by RAM, Vienna, page 44. — Liberty Bell Index 1993, page 53.

Reprints of any article can be made available in quantities of 500 or 1000 copies. Please write for price quote to Liberty Bell Publications, Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

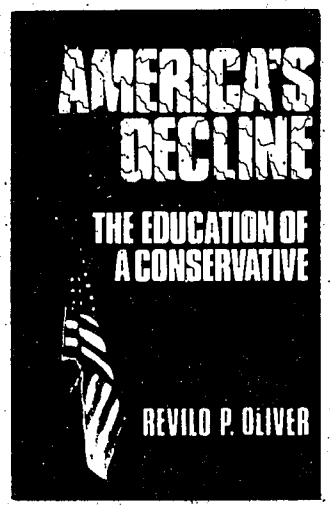
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage & handling 376 pp., pb.

ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

A Noteworthy Corroboration

by
Dr. Charles E. Weber
page 26

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Professor R. P. Oliver:
POSTSCRIPTS
Germany at Her Best, page 1;
Not News, page 7.

AIDS SECRETS: What the Government and the media don't want you to know, by Kevin Strom, National Alliance, page 25.

Letters to the Editor, page 37.

Highlands Man Refuses to Strike Nazi Flag, from the Asbury Park Press, page 49.

Russian National Unity (R.N.U.) page 56.

VOL. 21 - NO. 5 JANUARY 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Revilo P. Oliver

GERMANY AT HER BEST

The Landpost Press has again earned our gratitude. It has republished a book that is indispensable to everyone who wishes really to understand Adolf Hitler's National Socialist régime: The German Revolution, by H. Powys Greenwood (London, Routledge, 1934; available from Liberty Bell Publications, $22.50 clothbound, $10.50 paperback, + 15% postage.)

We need. first of all, to understand the situation in Germany in 1932-1935 as it appeared to a judicious and objective observer at that time.

That is a task of enormous and daunting difficulty. Our effort to reconstruct that situation in our minds will be inevitably distorted by our knowledge of what happened subsequently. And that knowledge includes awareness of forces that were hidden from contemporary observers, even, perhaps, in Germany itself.

It includes what was the crucial and decisive factor. I doubt that any Aryan at that time, not even Adolf Hitler or Julius Streicher or Alfred Rosenberg, perceived the full intensity of the Jews' hatred of civilized mankind, the terrible solidarity of the anti-human race, or the enormous power over us they had already attained by centuries of patient infiltration and massive deceit. Even Aryans who perceived the dire menace underestimated it; the vast majority, outside Hitler's Germany, were totally unaware of it.

For an objective view of Germany in the early years of the National Socialist régime, we cannot turn to American sources. As I remarked in America's Decline, it was hard, virtually impossible, for an American in the 1930s to form a just opinion. One almost insuperable barrier was the fact that Adolf Hitler and Franklin Delano Roosevelt attained power at almost the same time in nations that were in the throes of economic prostration, caused in Germany by the Treaty of Versailles and the Jew-dominated government known as the Weimar Republic, and in the United States primarily by the Federal Reserve, which, owned by Jewish financiers, had been given, in defiance of the American Constitution, almost unlimited power over the national economy. Both leaders attained power by oratorical promises, and it was easy to assume that Hitler's had been as insincere as Roosevelt's or even that Hitler had, like the American traitor, won election by flagrant lying. Both Hitler and Roosevelt embarked on programs of socialistic control over their respective nations, and the vast difference between the two was not obvious to observers at the time, and indeed could be surmised only after some years, when the results could be seen and it became apparent that Hitler was not only salvaging a prostrate nation but making of it a world power, while the diseased monster in the White House was working to subjugate and destroy the nation that he had trapped with his perjured pledges to liquidate the socialistic measures of Herbert Hoover and eliminate one-third of the Federal bureaucracy within ninety days after his inauguration. Given the news from Germany that filled the American press, it was easy to make a generalized estimate that both men were unscrupulous and vicious demagogues, intent only on attaining dictatorial power to appease their megalomania and ruthless ambitions. There was even a parallel between reports that Hitler was the hero of German women, who called him "der schöne Adolf," and the American affliction, whose power depended on his ability by slimily smooth verbiage, rhetorical tricks, and shoddy 'ideals' to fascinate American females and make rational men regret that women had been given the right to vote.[1]

1. I always remember the lady, a graduate of one of the most select women's colleges, who was a gracious hostess, but jumped up from the dinner table when it was time to listen to a "Fireside Chat" (known as "Hog Calling" to insiders in Washington), rushed to the radio, and listened raptly and entranced to the vapid verbiage and glutinous voice of her messiah, while her husband sat morosely in a corner and exchanged glances with me, who watched his countenance and exposed scalp became redder and redder with the effort of repressing his opinion of "that God-damned Communist son-of-a-bitch" to preserve his otherwise happy home.

What was essentially the American attitude is shown by the fact that, among rational men, the most common epithet applied to Roosevelt was "Frankie Führer." Although he had early formed diplomatic relations with his colleague and fellow conspirator, Stalin, on the pretext that it was "good for business" to shore up the Soviet with American machinery and techniques, men who perceived that he was a Communist bent on destroying the United States commonly called him the "American Kerensky,"[2] but assumed that his evil cunning would eventually be frustrated by the good sense of the American people. No one foresaw that he and Stalin would be able to start a catastrophic world war that would destroy our race's position in the world and, as now seems inevitable, doom us to eventual extinction.

The misconceptions about Germany were not countered by empirical knowledge. American tourists flocked to Europe, but they visited England, France, and often Italy, and only seldom—very seldom—Germany. And American tourists, in any case, saw nothing significant of the countries they visited, usually knowing nothing of the languages of continental nations and having no opportunity to talk to persons of any culture. It was amusing to watch them, shepherded by the agents of a tourist agency, going through the Louvre or the Vatican at a dog trot and gawking at the works of art they glimpsed in passing, or being exhibited to the denizens of Montmartre, who provided each group with obscenity measured to its tastes.

2. Kerensky was the Jew who, masquerading as a White man under the name of his foolish stepfather, prepared the way for the Jewish (Bolshevik) take-over of Russia. Some Americans called Roosevelt "the crippled Caligula," because they sensed that the diseased creature, like the insane Roman monster, wished that his subjects had only one neck so that he could cut it with single stroke of a knife, but it was not apparent before 1939 that the loathsome creature would become the world's worst and most infamous War Criminal.

To learn something worthwhile about another country, one must live in it for at least several months, and must become acquainted with that country's élite: literary men, scholars, persons of social standing, and judicious representatives or critics of serious political movements (not, of course, politicians, who are professional liars everywhere).

Intelligent Americans who went to Europe to observe with serious intent followed much the same pattern as the tourists. They visited France and Italy, but not one in a score noticed Switzerland or set foot in Germany. Only a few men, notably Charles Lindbergh, saw Germany or made any attempt to understand that nation. Only innate common sense saved others from becoming victims of the Jews' lie-machine, which went into high gear after the international race officially declared war on Germany in 1933, almost immediately after Hitler became Chancellor.

Englishmen were in a more favorable position. To visit Germany they did not have to cross the Atlantic; they had only to cross the channel and spend a night on a good train, but they did not generally avail themselves of the opportunity. They crossed the Manche to visit Paris, the south of France, or Italy, their favorite places of residence abroad. In the Eighteenth Century, the Grand Tour, given to young men after their years in Oxford or Cambridge, included a stay in various German states, but after the Victoria became Queen and the Salic Law sundered Great Britain from the Kingdom of Hannover, Germany was gradually dropped from the itinerary, and in the later part of Victoria's reign, the efforts of the British press,[3] dominated, of course, by the world's trouble-makers, aroused incomprehension of, and hostility toward Germany—a tendency that was fostered by Victoria's successor, Edward VII, who may have been partly Kike.[4] And the hostility became animosity during the war of 1914-1918, when the nation whose navy ruled the world's oceans fought deliriously against the "evil of militarism" on land, and had its mentality obtunded by swill from Lord Bryce's lie factory. And, in any case, it requires most unusual powers of objectivity not to hate a nation that seems responsible for the death of fathers, sons, brothers, and friends, and for the hardships that modern "democratic" war inflicts on every belligerent population.

3. See the late Peter H. Peel's British Public Opinion and the Wars of German Unification. 1864-1871 (College Park, Maryland; International Research Institute for Political Science, 1981).

There was a deeper and, for intelligent men, more potent source of incomprehension. Englishmen and Americans were virtually precluded from a sympathetic understanding of Germany in the 1930s. That was obvious then, although it is less apparent in our rotting nations today. By long tradition and ethnic culture Englishmen and Americans still had a ruling aversion from socialism, that is, from state control of the national economy and the lives of individuals, and were largely oblivious of the extent to which their prized personal liberty had been undermined and sabotaged by do-gooders and humanitarian babblers, who, of course, had been incited by our covert enemies. Since the Magna Carta, Englishmen had insisted on the maximum of personal liberty, at least for the upper classes, who, as all serious students of politics in the Aristotelian sense of that word well know, are the culturally determining element in a society.[5] When the Americans separated themselves from the Mother Country, they insisted even more absolutely on a maximum of personal liberty for everyone, and adopted a Constitution that was designed to limit government to the absolute minimum. Englishmen and Americans, therefore, felt greatly superior to the Germans, who, under their monarchy in the Nineteenth Century, had elaborated an effective and prosperous socialism, with which they had been well content.

4. Cf. Liberty Bell, June 1991, pp. 20-23.

5. That is obviously true in the United States today, where the upper class, which consists of Sheenies, traitors, thieves, and degenerates, determines the mores and conduct of our society as a whole.

The antithesis between Liberty and Socialism was a dominant force in the 1930s. Even the fairly numerous Americans who were wont to say "We need a Hitler here," did not approve of the National Socialist régime. What they meant was that we needed some leader who would put the slimy Sheenies in their place and restore a tradition of honesty and integrity in commerce, finance, and law, after which we would, of course, revert to the standard of individual liberty, which was to be maintained absolutely, even if it involved some discomfort for some of the proletariat.

Although Americans and Englishmen felt superior to the socialistic Germans, both under the Hohenzollern and under Hitler, intelligent men understood that what the Germans preferred for Germany was no concern of theirs. They stood aloof from the American boobs' morbid itch to meddle in other people's business. If told that the Germans were running the Yids out of their country, a rational man would have only said, "It will be interesting to see what effect the racial cleansing will have on the German economy."

H. Powys Greenwood, of mixed Welsh and English descent, held the perception then prevalent among cultivated Britons that their superior nation was "the work of a unified and cultured aristocracy." He naturally was repelled by the socialism of Hitler's Germany, by its arrant democracy, and by its doctrine of virtual equality among all who were German by race. (Only nations that have become functionally insane could believe in equality between their race and others.) Hitler, by demanding that every German contribute to the full extent of his ability to the renascent nation, was trying to create a "classless" society at a time when responsible British knew that a class structure and class distinctions were a necessary concomitant of personal liberty.

Mr. Greenwood, however, was determined to present, so far as was humanly possible, a dispassionate and objective account of the Germany which he had an unrivaled opportunity to observe at first hand. He was remarkably successful. His portrayal of Germany is the unprejudiced work of a competent observer. It is no criticism of Mr. Greenwood that he did not perceive the clandestine but ruling force of which virtually all of his compatriots (and contemporary Americans) were unaware. It is a pathetic irony that he could say that "We in England have no conception of social conditions in which Jews are definitely paramount." He could not foresee that within a few years the international vampires would have forced the abdication of a legitimate King of Great Britain[6] and would have driven that nation into a mad and suicidal war for revenge on a nation that was treating them with a mildness that will surprise most Americans who have listened to Yiddish wailing when they read this book.

The Landpost Press has now made it possible for you to see the Germany of 1932-1934 through the eyes of an honest Englishman (or, with some adjustments, and hypothetical American).

NOT NEWS

My reference to Michael A. Hoffman II's They Were White and They Were Slaves in the August issue induced a reader of Liberty Bell to obtain a copy of the booklet. It left him unconvinced. He had had the good fortune to attend a college in which the rudiments of a high-school education were still available, and had taken a course in Modern European History, in which he heard nothing about White planters' shockingly callous treatment of the White 'indentured' or convict servants they bought from merchants in that trade during the early colonial period. How is it possible, he asks, that so scandalous and abhorrent a practice as the enslavement of many Englishmen and some Englishwomen could have remained unknown for more than three centuries and been discovered only so recently as 1991?

6. The real reason why Edward VIII was forced to abdicate was the knowledge that he would not have consented to the suicidal war that was then being planned by Churchill and other flunkeys of the Master Race. There is great disagreement about other aspects of Edward's character. Cf. Liberty Bell, March 1987, pp. 5-7. In that article I should have made it clear that the DeCourcy whom I mentioned was not Kenneth, but his more circumspect and perhaps more opportunistic brother, John.

The answer, of course, is that the facts have been matters of common knowledge since the Seventeenth Century. The reader was doubtless misled by the booklet's extravagant subtitle: "The Untold History of the Enslavement of Whites in Early America," although Mr. Hoffman's rather extensive bibliography (which, unfortunately, seldom gives dates of publication) was proof that the story had been told many times before. Mr. Hoffman probably intended his deceptively hyperbolic subtitle to refer only to the fact that today, whenever slavery is mentioned, our domestic pests immediately snivel about sweet niggers and, if not simply ignorant, ignore the cruel treatment of members of our own hated race.

Although such virtual enslavement of Englishmen seems scandalous to us, it is, on the scale of historical events in the early colonial period, so relatively minor and insignificant that it did not deserve mention in a general history of Europe since the Renaissance and would properly be discussed only in detailed histories of Britain and her colonies during the colonial period or in special studies of the economic development of the British colonies in North America. In such books, however, the use and abuse of "indentured servants" and convicts was always given due attention.

The virtual enslavement of Englishmen also provided a not uncommon subject for fiction in the Nineteenth and early Twentieth Centuries. The example that first comes to my mind is one of the tales of swashbuckling adventure by Rafael Sabatini, a prolific and extremely popular novelist in the first half of the present century. The protagonist of his Captain Blood (New York, Houghton Mifflin, 1924) is an English physician, whose family name was Blood,[1] and who happened to be in Somerset in 1685 when the ill-advised and ill-fated Duke of Monmouth landed at Lyme Regis to begin the First Protestant Revolt against King James II.[2] Although he, a rational and prudent man, had only contempt for the "army" of zealous Protestants, chiefly peasants headed by a few ambitious or fanatical crackpots in the lesser nobility, and reprehended their attempt to start a civil war as they marched out to certain defeat, he, as a physician, tended some of the wounded after the battle of Sedgemoor, was arrested, convicted as a rebel, and condemned by the now infamous judge, Lord Jeffreys, to death by a sentence that was commuted to transportation to ten years of servitude in the West Indies.[3]

Landed, together with many who actually had been rebels, Blood was sold to a planter, and the first part of the book includes a vivid description of the callous treatment and misery of the White men who were actually (although not legally) slaves and, since they cost much less, treated far more harshly than the more expensive negroes, and

1. Probably not the common noun (although that was used as a slang term for a physician at a time when phlebotomy was common), but an English spelling of the Welsh patronymic, Bloyd, derived, like 'Lloyd' and 'Floyd,' from the Brythonic adjective lhoyd ('grey'), i.e., a man with grey hair.

2. For a summary of this event, see the Appendix below.

3. The story was probably suggested to Sabatini by the actual misfortunes of a physician, Henry Pitman, who, in somewhat similar circumstances, was unjustly convicted as a rebel and transported to Barbados, whence, after some years of penal servitude, he escaped and, after many adventures (none as spectacular and thrilling as Captain Blood's!), finally returned to England, where he learned that he had been pardoned in his absence.

were, unlike the latter, often subjected to wanton cruelty by the White men who owned them.

The virtual enslavement of Aryans, which arouses in us such indignation when we read Mr. Hoffman's booklet, was accepted as only normal at the time. For this there are several reasons that we must bear in mind before making categorical moral judgements.

(1) Contemporaries were satisfied by the legal technicality that the victims were not slaves, but only condemned to penal servitude for a fixed period of time, much as in this century, before 'sociologists' and parole boards made nonsense of judicial sentences, convicted criminals had to serve a stated number of years in prison and were punished further by being set to hard labor, until the greed of labor unions prevented them from being usefully employed. In the Seventeenth Century, the legal distinction was of great importance and prevented serious objection to the practice. For example, when so many of Monmouth's followers were being sentenced to transportation by the implacable Lord Jeffreys, Pepys was interested only in ascertaining whether they would be duly sentenced to servitude for a stated number of years or "sold entirely as blacks are to slavery for their whole lives."[4] He would have condemned the treatment of Englishmen as though they were niggers, but approved the sentences to the normal transportation.

(2) We must always remember that the persons who were legally and by due process sentenced to penal servitude in the colonies were all felons who had been duly convicted of capital crimes, for which the punishment could have been hanging or even execution with horrible cruelty,[5] and that transportation was regarded as commutation of a sentence to death. The death penalty, it is true, was then imposed for crimes for which we regard such

4. In a dictated letter of 29 July 1685. (He had, of course, terminated his enciphered diary when his eyesight failed, years before.)

5. Cf. Note 14 to the Appendix below.

punishment as grossly excessive, but that is an entirely different question.[6] Some persons were, no doubt, convicted of crimes of which they were in fact innocent, but miscarriages of justice occur in all societies—at least as frequently in our own as in any other.[7]

(3) Actual enslavement of Aryans, as though they were niggers, was, in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries, one of the risks to which travelers outside Europe knowingly exposed themselves. If you took passage on a ship that would enter the Mediterranean or cross the Atlantic, you knew that you were risking death in a shipwreck or in a storm at sea, and also risking murder or capture and enslavement by corsairs and pirates. The most famous example is provided by the Barbary States of Northern Africa, who continually attacked European vessels in the Mediterranean, looted them, and took the surviving passengers and crew as prisoners who were held or sold as slaves. So long as Northern Africa was part of the Turkish (i.e., Moslem) Empire, that was only part of the perpetual war between Islam and Europe. After the Barbary States became virtually independent, European renegades taught them the elements of navigation, so that they could employ sailing ships instead of galleys rowed by their slaves, and they became really formidable, capturing many

6. The death penalty for what we regard as petty theft was, in part, considered justified because (a) the thief, if spared, was likely to progress to greater crimes, and (b) such exemplary severity deterred other members of the lowest classes from theft and eventually worse.

7. For example, the Reverend Mr. Herman Otten, editor of Christian News, with a concern for justice that is rare in our time, has for years been conducting a campaign for the release of a Lutheran minister, Thomas Bird, who was convicted of murdering his wife, largely, it seems, because the public prosecutors were eager to put on a big show and advance themselves politically, as is normal in our "democracy." I am often reminded of the lawyer of the old school whom I heard, when I was a child, denounce, with rotund oratory, a politically ambitious state's attorney: "He is the kind of man who would use perjured testimony to convict his mother of murder and send her to the chair, if he thought that would get him a seat in Congress."

ships together with the passengers and crew, not only in the Mediterranean, but even in the Atlantic.[8] Wealthy captives were held for ransom; White men who did not have families that could and would pay enormous sums for their release were enslaved for the duration of their lives.

The depredations of the Barbary States were long tolerated, partly because the principal European nations were busy fighting each other, but primarily because each nation tried to use the wogs[9] against their Aryan enemies. France, for example, encouraged the barbarians to attack Spanish or English vessels, while paying the vermin enormous sums as tribute to spare French ships. Other nations did likewise. No serious attempt to abate the common menace was made until the European nations attained a precarious and temporary concord after the defeat of Napoleon. At the Congress of Vienna, the English, with Christian sentimentality augmented by the ranting of Jean Jacques Rousseau, agitated for abolition of the normal slave trade, and intelligent men asked why they were so concerned about niggers when there were thousands of Europeans, including many Englishmen, living in the utmost wretchedness as slaves in northern Africa. The British, shamed by the obvious paradox and by the United States, which, by naval action, had made good a refusal to pay tribute, finally sent a small fleet under the command of Lord Exmouth (Admiral Sir Edward Pelley before he was ennobled) to teach the Dey of Algiers a lesson by burning his fleet and reducing his fortifications to rubble. The Dey

8. Their audacity reached a climax when, under the leadership of a European renegade, they raided the coast of Ireland, sacked Baltimore, and carried away some hundred of the inhabitants to slavery in Africa.

9. The Barbary States (modern Morocco, Algeria, Tunis, and Libya) were (actually, though not theoretically) independent principalities ruled by absolute monarchs who bore the title of Dey (= Turkish Bey). The population was a mass of mongrels, combining Hamitic and Semitic stocks with a considerable infusion of Congoid blood, as is common in Moslem countries. The British colloquialism 'wog' is a convenient designation for such biological trash.

surrendered over three thousand European slaves, refunded ransoms that had been paid for others, and promised to abstain from piracy thereafter. There was less depredation, it is true, but the pests were not finally put in their places until the French occupied Algeria in 1830 and soon annexed it as a colony. In our time, the racial traitors of 'anti-colonialism' deplore the imposition of civilization on the wogs.

(4) Our greatest compassion must be reserved for the persons who were, like the historical and fictitious physicians whom I mentioned above, condemned for crimes of which they were not guilty, or were simply victims of kidnapping.

Everyone who grew up in a literate household remembers from his boyhood (or perhaps girlhood) Robert Louis Stevenson's Kidnapped, the action of which is supposed to have taken place in 1751, and the protagonist, David Balfour, who was seventeen at that time. His uncle, having usurped an estate to which David was the lawful heir by entail, arranged to have the lad kidnapped into the Carolinas.[10] From that horrible fate, David was saved by the series of coincidences that start him on the adventures that are the main subject of the novel. Otherwise, David

10. My phrase was normal English usage when 'kidnapping' retained its original and specific meaning. The word evidently came from the argot of the criminals who engaged in the crime of procuring, by deceit or violence, able-bodied White persons who could be sold to unscrupulous merchants for sale in the colonies as transported criminals. An innocent person thus abducted and sold was said to have been 'kidnapped,' and the colony to which he was taken was a normal complement of the participle. Kidnapping was a very profitable crime. Lord Jeffreys, reporting to James II, estimated that men sentenced to transportation would be worth £10 to £15 a head to the favorites to whom the King gave them, in lots of fifty or a hundred, for sale to dealers who would purchase the living merchandise for resale in the colonies. The dealer would, of course, add his middleman's profit to the price and he or a shipowner would add the cost of shipment across the Atlantic. Thus the price paid by a colonist would be at least double the sum received by the kidnappers.

would have been sold, for £30 or more, probably to the owner of some tobacco plantation[11] in North or South Carolina, to work alongside that planter's more expensive and valued niggers. He could expect no mercy from his master, who would have been told or would have assumed that he was a criminal transported for some crime. Far from his native land, where no one who knew him could ascertain what had happened to him, alone and friendless in a society in which no one would believe him or be actively concerned over his plight, he would have been broken by many years of brutal treatment and exhausting toil, and, if he survived the years of servitude, be without means to pay for a passage home.

As late as the end of the Nineteenth Century there were in Trinidad and perhaps other British islands descendants of persons who had been transported to the colony in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries. Known as "Red Legs," they lived in abject poverty, supported themselves by menial labor alongside free negroes, and were so debased that they retained no memory of their transported ancestors and did not know how they had come to be born on the island. It is noteworthy, however, that these degraded Whites were not so degenerate that they copulated with niggers and bred mongrels.

Kidnapping was so profitable a crime that persons who had climbed fairly far up the social ladder were often involved in it. When the "Bloody Assizes" came to Bristol, Lord Jeffreys found that there were no rebels to be tried, but he discovered that the municipal officers of the city were implicated in kidnapping. He forced the red-robed and august Lord Mayor to descend from the bench on which he was presiding and stand in the dock like a common criminal. I regret that I do not remember what penalties were imposed on the guilty. Transportation would have been especially appropriate.

11. Cotton was not yet a very profitable crop.

Another source of forced labor for the colonies was persons who really were indentured servants. Poor men, entranced by glowing tales of the wealth to be obtained in the colonies but unable to pay for passage on a ship, contracted to serve for a time sufficient to pay the fare, at the expiration of which they were to be given a tract of land in the colony. Some were worked to death before the end of the contractual date of release, and many who survived were vilely cheated in one way or another. This fraud was also lucrative for the scoundrels who promoted it.

(5) The treatment of the virtual slaves by many of their temporary owners, all of whom, remember, were professed Christians, was indeed deplorable, but the slaves were all believed to be, as most of them were, either convicted criminals, whose crimes had merited death so that their enslavement was a lesser punishment, or traitors who had sought to inflict again upon England the horrors of another Civil War, (In 1685 the Puritan Revolution, which had ended only twenty-five years before, was still fresh in the memory of all Englishmen past adolescence.) You may consider what would be your attitude, if you employed on your property a considerable number of convicted felons recently released from prison.

I have received other letters about the "White Slaves" of colonial times. I hope that the foregoing observations will help my correspondents see the matter in the proper historical perspective.

Appendix

An English writer of whose identity I cannot now be certain—probably one of the dozen or so who have devoted books to Monmouth's revolt—commented that if the relatively young Duke had been less temerarious and more patient, he might after all have become King of Great Britain, despite his illegitimacy. That is conceivable, but unlikely. It is true, however, that had he waited two years, he would have encountered an entirely different state of affairs in England.

James Fitzroy was born in 1649, the illegitimate son of Charles II and one of his mistresses, a courtesan named Lucy Walter. (The report that he was not the son of Charles may be discounted; everyone knows that sons often do not resemble their fathers in features and physique.) The King acknowledged the boy as his son, treated him with great generosity and affection, married him to the wealthy Countess of Baccleuch, created him Duke of Baccleuch and later Duke of Monmouth, and made him Captain General of the Army, a post in which the young man showed courage and military ability. He forfeited his father's love and favor, however, by his arrogance and the overweening ambition with which he successfully courted popularity, obviously intending to force his father to legitimize him and make him his heir, to the exclusion of Charles' brother, James. Furthermore, he participated in conspiracies against his father; he was certainly involved in the Rye House Plot to assassinate both his father and his uncle, and in many intrigues; if not he, at least his supporters were involved in Titus Oakes' bloody hoax[12] and the consequent execution of many men of prominence, who were convicted on the basis of forged evidence and perjured testimony. He fled to the Low Countries in 1683, and invaded England when his father died in 1685, proclaiming himself the legitimate son of Charles and therefore King of England and the Champion of all Protestants. He was captured after Sedgemoor and executed, although not until after his uncle was convinced that his professed contrition and desire to become a Roman Catholic were feigned.

12. The famous "Popish Plot." It is reported, perhaps conjecturally, that Oates' confederate, the Reverend Dr. Israel Tonge, was descended from "converted" Jews, but most historians believe that he was merely demented. As is evident from his portraits, the Reverend Mr. Oates was a genetic monstrosity of some kind. His early career showed that he was a social misfit and perhaps a pervert. When he finally overreached himself and King Charles was able to expose him, he was severely whipped for his crimes but survived, and it is a sad evidence of human irrationality that after the Protestant victory in 1688, this loathsome creature and murderous perjurer was not only pardoned but awarded a state pension!

In 1685, Monmouth's proclamation of a Protestant revolt aroused only a few fanatics and evoked no sympathy whatever from the great majority of Englishmen of all classes. They, whatever their religion, were content with the period just ended, that would later be nostalgically called "the Golden Days of good King Charles," and while the Protestants regretted that the new king, James II, was a Catholic, they, lulled by his formal statement of intentions, had no apprehensions. In the three following years, however, there was a great revulsion of English sentiment, and the Second Protestant Revolt, commonly known as the Glorious (or Inglorious) Revolution of 1688, triumphed in a few days because it encountered no effective opposition.

It is commonly said that the drastic change in opinion was, to some extent, caused by Lord Jeffrey's severity and cruelty in punishing Monmouth's followers. Of this, I find no valid evidence.[13]

In the "Bloody Assizes," Jeffreys, by such devices as trying a hundred persons in a single day, procured speedy convictions: about two hundred persons were executed, sometimes by simple hanging but often by the abhorrently cruel procedure of drawing and quartering[14]; more than

13. It is true that Jeffreys' outrageous bullying of juries and disregard of legal process two years earlier, by which he procured the conviction and execution of Lord William Russell (son of the Earl of Bedford) and Sir Algernon Sidney (son of the Earl of Leicester), did occasion some resentment, but that is quite another matter.

14. A typical sentence reads, "that you [the convicted men] be conveyed hence to the place whence you came, and thence you be drawn to the place of execution upon hurdles, that you there be severally hanged by the neck, that you be cut down alive [and restored to full consciousness], that your privy members be cut off and your bowels taken out and burnt in your view, that your heads be severed from your bodies, and that your bodies be divided into quarters."

six hundred were sent to penal servitude in the American colonies; and many hundreds received lesser but severe punishment. It is seldom mentioned that Jeffreys also pardoned about one hundred.[15]

The "Bloody Assizes" were so-called and reprobated only two or three years later, when we first find general disapproval of Lord Jeffreys' severity, and then he was vehemently denounced, not because the victims were Englishmen, but because they were Protestants. In 1685 Englishmen almost unanimously rejoiced at the speedy suppression of Monmouth's revolt and their escape from the horrors of a another civil war, and, in keeping with the principle of legitimate succession to a throne, were loyal to King James II, although they regretted that he was a Catholic. John Evelyn, although he was wont to be censorious of the Stuart monarchy, wrote in his Diary,

> Had it not pleased God to dissipate this [the Duke of Monmouth's] attempt, there would in all appearance have gathered an irresistible force which would have desperately proceeded to the ruin of the Church and Government.... Such an inundation of fanatics and men of impious principles must needs have caused universal disorder, cruelty, injustice, rapine, sacrilege, and confusion, an unavoidable civil war, and misery without end.

Evelyn expressed no disapproval of "Chief Justice Jeffreys, who has so vigorously prosecuted the late rebels," and when he dined with Jeffreys, "who had newly been the Western Circuit to try the Monmouth conspirators," he remarked only that Jeffreys, who treated him "with much respect," was a man "of an assured and undaunted spirit."

15. It is sometimes remarked that in 1685 Lord Jeffreys was already suffering acutely from the extremely painful disease that killed him four years later, but the key to his conduct, I believe, is to be found in his absolute and undoubtedly sincere belief in the divine right of kings, which he based on political rather than theological considerations. To enforce what he regarded as the only guarantee of domestic peace, he was ready to use any means, however ruthless and technically illegal. He was not without respect for the rights of a king's subjects, as is shown by his treatment of kidnappers in Bristol.

Evelyn evidently believed that the rebels had received only condign punishment. I mentioned Pepys' opinion above. The two famous diarists may be taken as representing the opinion of the great majority of Englishmen in 1685.

In the next two years, however, there was a great revulsion of English sentiment, occasioned by the sincerity and folly of King James. Although the motives of the able men who carried out the well-planned and well-financed Protestant Revolution of 1688 were far from religious, that successful revolt expressed the indignation of the majority of the English people over James' use of his power of dispensation (of dubious legality) to place Roman Catholics in responsible positions in government, the armed forces, and even in the universities, and their fear lest he somehow contrive to free all Catholics from the disabilities that effectively barred them from full citizenship.

Ignorant professors and other jabberwockies routinely deplore English "prejudice" against Roman Catholics in this period, but a candid and impartial observer must admit that the prejudice was amply justified, and repeat, sadly, Tantum rēligiō potuit suadere malorum.

You must remember that we are speaking of the latter part of the Seventeenth Century. It can be persuasively argued that the Protestant Reformation was a disaster, which shattered the unity of Europe ('Christendom') and impeded the liberation of the human mind, which, under enlightened pontiffs such as Leo X, would have followed without interruption the path set for it by William of Occam, the Humanists of the Renaissance, and philosophers such as Pomponatius. That may be, but History is irreversible.

The facts are that English fear of subjection to rule by the alien Papacy go back to the time of the Magna Carta (cf. Liberty Bell, August 1993, pp. 16 f.). That fear principally contributed to the success of Henry VIII in founding the Anglican Church. Under Queen Mary I the English had experience of Catholic persecution of Protestants; some three hundred persons, many of them members of the leading families, were executed, often by burning at the stake, while the facts, sufficiently atrocious in themselves, were magnified by pious Protestant liars, such as John Foxe in his Book of Martyrs.

During the reign of Mary's Protestant successor, Elizabeth, English received a long-remembered lesson in Catholic statesmanship when the Queen Mother of France, Catherine de' Medici, by an inexplicable blunder that ruined her domestic policy, authorized the treacherous massacre of the Protestant nobility of France on the eve of St. Bartholomew's Day.

At the time of the events that concern us here, the English people were continually shown the consequences of Catholic dominion by events in France, a nation from whose overwhelming military power they were protected only by the Channel. The Edict of Nantes was officially revoked only in 1685, the year of Monmouth's revolt, but it had been practically nullified for decades before that, and outrageous persecution of Protestants had sent to England a constant stream of Huguenot refugees who had succeeded in escaping from their country.[16] In Catholic Ireland, the priests were perpetually inciting their gullible parishioners to combat Satan's agents, the diabolical English, with sabotage, conspiracies. and open revolt, to facilitate the landing of French troops for a holy war in which England would be surrounded and crushed, like a nut in a nutcracker, between French armies on either side.

Furthermore, the English people had a partly justified dread of the Jesuits, a formidable order founded for the express purpose of extirpating the Protestant heresy.[17] It was the militant arm of Rome and organized like an army. Its members were well educated, highly intelligent, and amazingly versatile, capable of assuming any rôle and any persona. Their faith and discipline authorized them to act on the principle that a pious purpose justified any means used to realize it,[18] and hence to assume any disguise and to intrigue secretly for Papal dominion over England and the eventual liquidation of God's enemies, the damned Protestant heretics. (You remember Thackeray's Father Holt, alias Mr. Holt, alias Captain von Holtz, etc.) The ruthless pragmatism of their best minds is concisely set forth in the Oráculo manual of Baltasar Gracián.[19]

16. This was really the origin of the English readiness to admit refugees to their country. The Huguenots were persons of the same race and culture, but the tradition, once established, was fatuously extended to admit persons from incompatible ethnic groups and even alien races. This folly reached its climax in the recent flooding of Britain with racial enemies as a preliminary to imposition of the Jews' New World Order and the eventual liquidation of the now befuddled Aryans.

17. It is one of history's neatest ironies that the Jesuits, bound to blind obedience, through their General, to the Pope, refused to obey him when Clement XIV dissolved and disbanded the order in 1773. Leading Jesuits found a refuge with the monarch they should have hated most of all, Frederick the Great of Prussia, who protected them from Papal ire. Some went on to the domains of Catherine the Great of Russia, who protected them from both the Papacy and the scandalized clergy of the Greek Orthodox Church. For an eloquent defence of the Jesuits, see Julius Cordara's De suis ac suorum rebus commentarii, written shortly after suppression of the order by Clement XIV, but not published until many years later. It is Volume LIII of the Miscellanea di storia italiana (Torino, 1933). The real power of the order had been broken by a kind of coup d'état, secretly planned and ruthlessly carried out by King Charles III of Spain in 1767, who acted in clandestine concert with Louis XV of France. (Kings are responsible for the acts of their ministers.)

18. It is true that Jesuit documents do not explicitly ordain this conduct in political matters, and that the only published statement that the end justifies the means refers to sexual relations between husband and wife, but the conduct of the Jesuits in the Seventeenth Century amply authorized the belief that their determination to restore the universal dominion of the Papacy was modified by no scruples.

19. Read it in the Spanish original (there is an excellent edition by Miguel Romera-Navarro, Madrid, 1954), not in the diluted English translation entitled The Art of Worldly Wisdom (New York, 1945). I have not checked either the text or the translation by L. B. Walton, London, Dent, 1953. Gracián's indiscretion in publishing what should

Although the reports of continual infiltration by squads and companies of disguised Catholic agents were doubtless exaggerated, there were secret Jesuits in England, Catholic laymen bound by vows of obedience to them, and other covert Catholics as well as priests who intrigued with the Catholic gentry and nobility with a view to the eventual restoration of Catholic rule. Their seditious activities were, of course, greatly exaggerated by Protestant rabble-rousers, but even men of learning seriously believed that the Jesuits had introduced Calvinism as a means of destroying the Anglican Church and were therefore responsible for the Puritan Revolution, the murder of King Charles I, and the cultural squalor of the Commonwealth.[20]

It is true, furthermore, that the Jesuits and the Catholic clergy allied with them were primarily responsible for the woes of England in the period we are considering here. They were, secretly and even openly, active proselytizers and, being educated and subtle men, found it easy to prevail over minds already weakened by Christian superstitions and persuade them that Catholicism was the only true religion. In addition to the Catholic ceremonial, which had an aesthetic attraction for many, and their psychological penetration, sharpened by what they learned in the confessional, they had an argument that was logically powerful. Was it likely that the form of Christianity that had prevailed and been accepted universally (i.e., by all Europeans) for almost fifteen centuries, from A.D. 30 to 1517, had been, with the permission of its deity, a diabolic aberration that was first discovered and exposed by Martin Luther? As for the Protestants, what credence could you give to any of the many factions, Anglican, Lutheran, Calvinist (the Covenanters in Scotland and Puritans in England), Anabaptist, Quaker, and others, that were denouncing each other as vehemently as they denounced the traditional and time-honored Church?

For proselytism the Catholic zealots had ample opportunity at the English Court. Royal marriages are primarily political alliances. It had been expedient for Charles II to marry Catherine of Braganza, daughter of the King of Portugal, who, as a Catholic, necessarily brought with her priests who, in her household, could prudently and slyly influence Englishmen who appeared at Court. Charles' favorite and most influential mistress, Louise Renée de Kéroualle (who may have been an agent of Louis XIV) was a Catholic and had in practice a household and priests of her own. Charles, who was an intelligent man, wanted to end the reciprocal and bloody hostility of the various Christian sects. He prematurely promoted religious toleration, and, by adroit and sometimes unscrupulous political manoeuvres, he maintained, during his "Golden Days," a precarious domestic peace, during which the Catholic gentry and nobility were able to hold responsible offices in his government. It was only when he was dying that he permitted eager priests to slosh him with holy water and preserve his soul for celestial bliss, and he did so, we may be sure, only for such consolation as it would afford to the Queen, of whom he was sincerely fond, to Louise Renée, and perhaps to others of his mistresses.

Charles' brother, James, attained distinction as a naval commander, having defeated in battle the admiral who was reputed to be the foremost naval strategist of the day. He seems to have been an honest and forthright man (except in his relations with women), and he doubtless looked down on the devious policies by which his brother maintained domestic peace and gave England her first experience of real prosperity. Probably it was the priests in his sister-in-law's household, perhaps aided by secret Jesuit advisers, who convinced him of the truth of Catholicism have been secret wisdom greatly embarrassed his order. Only one copy of the first edition has survived to our time.

20. Such was the considered opinion of Sir George Mackenzie, Lord Advocate of Scotland, a man of no little legal and humane erudition. He even knew the identity of the disguised Jesuit who had begun the dirty work! See Evelyn's Diary, 9 March 1690.

and, over the protests of his more prudent brother, he publicly professed and practiced his religion. Of his sincerity there can be no doubt. After his defeat at the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland, James disinterested himself in politics, came under the influence of Cistercian mystics and practiced an austere piety, attaining such sanctity that he is credited with having miraculously healed many sick or infirm persons—and only political considerations prevented him from being made a Saint and having to spend eternity at the right hand of Jesus.

In 1673, when it seemed likely that he would succeed to the throne, James, again ignoring his brother's urgent advice, married Mary Beatrice d'Este, daughter of the Duke of Modena, famed for both her beauty and her piety, the marriage having been arranged by Louis XIV, who had dreams of making England a country as Catholic as his own and by similar procedures. Mary Beatrice, who was actually Queen of England for a short time but is not so reckoned, brought to England another Catholic household and was herself entirely in the hands of Jesuits.

English Protestants, not unreasonably alarmed, forced through Parliament the Test Act, which excluded Roman Catholics from all governmental positions and thus forced James to resign his naval command and many other prominent Englishmen to resign their posts. That began all the trouble that clouded the last years of the reign of Charles II.

The English, loyal to the dynasty, accepted James as King until he, doubtless under the influence of Jesuits and naturally disdaining dissimulation, began so to advance the Catholic interest as to make it seem that he was, step by step, preparing England for the reign of a male Mary I. It is in this sense that it can be maintained that the Jesuits and other zealous Catholics were primarily responsible for the woes of England after 1685.

Tantum rēligio.... ❑

AIDS SECRETS

What the government and the media don't want you to know

by Kevin Alfred Strom

(a speech given by Mr. Strom on the nationwide radio program, AMERICAN DISSIDENT VOICES, July 10th, 1993)

WHAT I AM GOING TO SAY will shock you. It will disturb your sleep. It will make you worry for your loved ones. It will give you nightmares of disaster, plague, and horrible death. It will make you rethink the priorities of your life. It will change the way you look at yourself and the world.

There is a killer loose in the land. This killer cuts down all whom he touches. If he touches you, you will die. If he touches your child, your child will die. His victims die a slow, horrible death. They waste away. They drown in their own body fluids. They lose control of their bowels. They lose their memories. They become demented. They die in agony. There is nothing that can be done to save them.

The killer's name is the Human Immunodeficiency Virus, or HIV for short. When he starts to kill you, it is said that you have AIDS, or Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. This killer emerged into our world over a decade ago, rising like an angel of death out of the oozing rivers of body fluids that spilled like fetid waterfalls into the streets of America from the sick and sleazy pleasure houses of the "liberated" homosexuals.

When a killer like HIV is stalking the landscape, one would assume that the guardians of the public health would be galvanized into action, taking any and all measures to protect the uninfected from coming into contact with this killer.

But the medical establishment and the public health authorities are not taking such action. In fact, most of their efforts are directed toward protecting the so-called "confidentiality" of the infected rather than toward isolating and preventing the further transmission of the virus. They withhold vital information about AIDS which could save millions of lives. By their acts of omission and commission they have become, in effect, the protectors and guardians of this killer virus. And as such, they may well become your murderers. Or your child's murderers.

Why are we being betrayed and lied to by those who are paid with our tax money to protect us?

It has been well-documented, on this program and elsewhere, that the tremendous power of organized homosexuals (which reaches even into the White House, as President Clinton's appointments and policies make clear) holds most of our craven and criminal politicians in thrall. And it should be obvious to Americans still capable of thinking for themselves that the homosexuals have been greatly aided by the controlled media. In the eyes of the powerful minority which controls the U.S. media, homosexuals are one among the many "oppressed minorities", criticism of which is forbidden, on pain of losing one's job or character assassination. (Look what happened to Andy Rooney when he mildly criticized perverts, or what happened to Jimmy the Greek when he speculated on the reasons for Black athletic success.)

Yes, the power of organized perversion is a factor in the suppression of the truth about AIDS. And it is certainly a fact that the darling deviants are a part of the media's push to destroy America. But there's more to it than that. If the uncensored truth about AIDS were released to the American public, it would have the potential of permanently derailing the plan to submerge America into a multicultural New World Order. It would have the potential of waking up the sleeping American people — and our masters in Washington, New York and Tel Aviv cannot allow that to happen.

AIDS is Transmissible via All Body Fluids

Listening to the establishment media one could easily get the impression that about the only ways that one can get infected with the AIDS virus are to share IV needles with, or have unprotected sex with someone who is already infected. Those who believe that lie are at risk of becoming tomorrow's AIDS statistics.

First, there is no such thing as "safe sex" with a person who is HIV-positive. The condoms available in your local pharmacy or handed to twelve-year-olds at public schools offer little protection from the virus. Dr. C. M. Roland, Editor of Rubber Chemistry and Technology for the Naval Research Laboratory, states: "The 12 per cent failure rate of condoms in the prevention of pregnancy alone argues against their use for AIDS prevention. However, because the AIDS virus is orders of magnitude smaller than sperm, the situation is actually worse." Dr. Roland goes on to point out that the AIDS virus is 0.1 micron in size, while typical holes in condoms, invisible to the naked eye, are 50 to 500 times larger, easily allowing passage of the virus. And according to Surgical Practice News of August, 1988, even surgical gloves, which are manufactured to a higher standard than condoms, may have holes nearly ten microns in diameter, or 100 times larger than the virus.

Thousands have died because they, or doctors they trusted, believed the government's and the media's lies about AIDS. A startling example of this is the criminal negligence regarding AIDS-tainted blood in the blood banks.

In 1983, we were told that the blood supply was safe. We were told that there were no documented cases of transmission via blood transfusion. When some individuals at the FDA and the Centers for Disease Control suggested that blood bankers could eliminate 80% of the AIDS-infected blood by testing all donated blood for Hepatitis-B, with which 80% of homosexual males are infected due to their filthy practices, and rejecting all the blood that tested positive, the higher-ups at both agencies declined to make that a requirement. Tens of thousands were sentenced to death by that decision. Why? Because homosexuals don't want to be tested, they don't want to be identified, and they don't want their twisted sexual appetites restricted in even the slightest way. Homosexuals and powerful forces friendly to the homosexualization of America have successfully blocked this and many other common-sense proposals to protect the rest of us from AIDS.

Later we were told that the chances of infection from blood transfusions were about one in 1 million. A few years down the road, the official story was that the chances were less than one in 100,000.

Finally, in May 1985, a test became available that tested for the antibodies that the body produces in response to HIV infection. Just prior to that, the official story had changed again. Now supposedly the chances for HIV infection from a transfusion were one in 50,000 or less. When the blood supplies finally were able to be tested, albeit indirectly, for AIDS, the shocking truth became known.

An investigation into the voluntary donor blood bank in San Francisco revealed that the risk there prior to 1985 was not one in a million. It was not even one in 50,000. It was one in one hundred.

The same people who lied to you for years about the safety of the blood supply now tell you that the supply really is safe. Well, after the body count had become astronomical, public health officials were forced to adopt testing for the antibodies to HIV, and all blood which tests positive is supposed to be thrown out. So the blood supply certainly is safer than it was a few years ago. But there is a period of time after a person becomes infected with the AIDS virus, before his immune system responds by producing antibodies. This period of time is six weeks to six months in most people, but in some cases it can be as long as three years before antibodies are produced. During this time interval, the individual will be carrying the virus in his blood, but will test HIV-negative. This period of time is called the "negative window."

If an HIV-infected person donates blood during this six-week to three-year "negative window," his blood will not be screened out by the test presently in use. Anyone receiving a blood transfusion from blood bank inventory blood is therefore still at risk. Using your own blood, or that of a designated donor known to be HIV-free, is far safer. And you should also know that factions of radical homosexuals have publicly threatened to purposely donate infected blood if certain of their demands are not met. The "negative window" effect means that these threats should be taken seriously.

You should also reflect seriously on the fact that, despite the availability of an HIV antibody test (and even its mandatory use in some situations such as blood bank donations), contact tracing of an infected individual's sex partners is not being done in most instances. Infected individuals, even if they work as dentists or doctors or in other occupations where they could easily pass on the virus to others, are not required to notify anyone of their HIV-positive status. The AIDS virus is the only virus that has "civil rights." Innocents must die, so that the sick sex games of the pervert minority can continue. The normal public health measures that always have been applied to other infectious diseases are not being applied to AIDS. The imposition of universal testing and quarantine where appropriate would end the anal fun, you see, and we can't—we simply can't have that. They—the infected—have all the rights. And we—the uninfected—have none. A complete inversion of what the public health system is supposed to be all about!

We are repeatedly told by the controlled media that the AIDS virus is fragile, and that it does not survive well outside the body. But that simply isn't true. The prestigious British medical journal, Lancet, for September 28, 1985, states that the virus can survive in dried body fluids for as long as seven days. It survives twice as long in a moist environment. The HIV virus easily survives freezing. It survives being placed under running alcohol for twenty minutes. It can pass through intact mucous membranes. It can pass through intact skin. It is present not only in blood, but in urine, feces, sweat, vaginal secretions, semen, tears, mother's milk, and saliva. It has been transmitted by kissing. It has been transmitted through contact sports. In short, wherever and whenever body fluids can be exchanged between individuals, the HIV virus can also be transmitted.

The government "experts" will tell you again and again that their studies "have not shown" transmission by these means. In many cases that merely means that studies have not been done. In some cases, studies have been stopped, apparently because they might have come to an "unapproved" conclusion if they were allowed to continue. Dr. Gus Sermos of the Centers for Disease Control was studying the possibility of mosquito transmission of the AIDS virus in semi-tropical Belle Glade, Florida, where an unusually high incidence of AIDS among low-risk individuals coincided with a large mosquito population. That study was stopped in its tracks, and there have been many other similar instances. The CDC stopped studying household transmission of AIDS after most such studies had been carried out for one year or less. They did this with full knowledge of the fact that it often takes six months and sometimes takes three years for an individual to develop antibodies to the virus. Now they point to these studies to claim that household transmission is insignificant.

Racial Differences in AIDS Infection

So far, the hidden facts about this disease that I have pointed out are hidden at least partly at the behest of organized perversion, which is very powerful, and which has powerful friends in the controlled media and even in the White House. But I want you to realize that the liars of the media are lying not only to protect the so-called "human rights" of homosexuals. They are also lying to protect their one-world, multicultural agenda.

Now I'm going to let you in on the AIDS statistics that the media masters are the most desperate to keep from you.

Most of you are not IV drug users, nor are you homosexuals, nor are you recipients of tainted blood. Most of you fall into the category of people whose greatest chance of contracting AIDS is via normal heterosexual sex. What are your risk factors? By what routes does this killer virus make its way into the bloodstreams of normal heterosexuals?

When looking at the data for heterosexuals with AIDS, the one fact that is the most striking is that Blacks are between 14 and 20 times more likely to be infected than are Whites. Fourteen to twenty times more likely! In fact, even though Blacks account for only about 12% of the US population, they account for fully 90% of all AIDS infections in this country which were acquired through heterosexual means.

Among straight White Americans who acquired an AIDS infection heterosexually, the risk category of the greatest relevance to most of us, and also the risk category that is never mentioned in the controlled media, the sources of infection estimates break down as follows (based on "Epidemiology and Evolution of Heterosexually Acquired AIDS—US", Stockholm, 1988; and R.M. Selik, American J. of Public Health v.78, #12):

- 3% of straight White Americans with AIDS got it by having sex with partners who had received tainted blood from a transfusion.
- 13% of straight White Americans with AIDS, in this case all women, got it by having sex with bisexual men.
- 42% of straight White Americans with AIDS got it by having sex with IV drug users.
- And 42% of straight White Americans with AIDS got it by having sex with non-Whites.

In other countries the figures are even more startling. In a study entitled "Patterns of Heterosexual HIV Infection in Brussels," published by the Division of Infectious Diseases at St. Pierre University Hospital, 250 heterosexual AIDS patients were studied. Astoundingly, in the very White country of Belgium, fully 83% of these cases were Black African immigrants. Most of the White males with AIDS lived in or traveled regularly to Central Africa. 70% of these men with AIDS had had sex with Black women in Africa. Of the White women with AIDS, all lived exclusively in Belgium, but 83% of them had had sex with Africans or sex with men returning from Africa.

Our young people need to be informed of these facts. These are the real-life risks that they face in this sorry world that we have made for them. It is criminal, it is homicidal, to deny them these facts just because the conclusions one might draw from them are at variance with the multicultural, one-world agenda that the forces behind Liberalism are ramming down our throats. We must shout the truth about AIDS from the housetops.

Protect Yourself and Your Loved Ones

What can you do to save your family and your country from this deadly epidemic? There's a lot you can do.

Avoid all contact with known homosexuals. If there is a known homosexual district in your area, do not go there. Avoid the "trendy," "fashionable" part of town, whenever possible. This is often where the highest percentage of homosexuals are to be found. Particularly avoid using public rest rooms or eating in restaurants in such areas.

If you live in a rural area or small town that has preserved traditional American values, stay there. If you live in an area where such values have disappeared, where "Gay Pride" parades have replaced Independence Day parades and where the Third World invasion is in full swing, carefully consider your options. Moving into a racially, culturally, and medically healthier area should be considered.

Carefully choose who you socially and professionally associate with. Even if you must sacrifice status or money to do it, it is wise to avoid repeated close contact with those in high-risk groups, including Blacks, Third World immigrants, homosexuals, and drug users. Do not allow your children to associate with individuals in these groups when it can be avoided. Plan your travels to skirt around areas where such groups form a high percentage of the population, even if it takes extra time and gasoline to do so. Remember, any body fluid can transmit the virus, and it is impossible to predict the occurrence of auto accidents, altercations, the need to use unsanitary toilet facilities, or emergencies in which you may be placed in a hospital environment in a highly infected zone, possibly right next to a terminal AIDS patient.

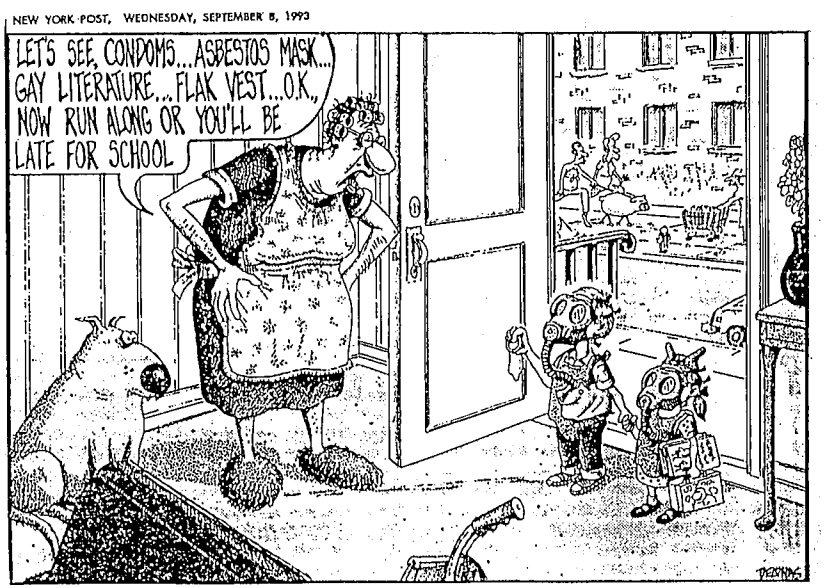
Be aware that certain metropolitan areas, especially San Francisco, Los Angeles, and New York, have populations which are particularly heavily infected.

What you must do, above all, to stop the spread of this disease among our people is to participate as fully as you can in the educational effort represented by this radio program.

Entire contents copyright ©1993 by National Vanguard Books,P.O. Box 330, Hillsboro WV 24946. Extra copies of this pamphlet are available at the rate of 20 copies for $3, 100 copies for $6, 500 copies for $20, all postpaid. Request catalog number 538 when you order. — Be sure to listen to our weekly patriotic radio program, American Dissident Voices, currently on the air every Saturday at 1:00 a.m. Central Time, 12:00 midnight Mountain Time (late Friday night) at 1090 on your AM dial (Midwest & Mountain States & Provinces); and at 9 p.m. Eastern Time worldwide on 7355 kHz shortwave; as well as on a growing network of local AM and FM stations. (Times subject to change). — For a complete radio schedule, as well as our catalog of eye-opening books, tapes, and videos, please send $1 to the address above.



A Noteworthy Corroboration

By
Dr. Charles E. Weber

The January, 1986 issue of the Liberty Bell contained a translation I did of an article from the July, 1985 issue of Unabhängige Nachrichten (Postfach 400 215, D-44736 Bochum, Germany). Part of a letter from a former German officer recounted his seeing a large transport train in Augsburg in January, 1945. He later "learned that in every Red Cross transport 1,500 Jewish people (women, children, men, old people) from the Bergen-Belsen camp.....were being exchanged in Konstanz-Kreuzlingen [in Switzerland] under International Red Cross auspices for 2,000 wounded German soldiers."

The former German officer's account is corroborated by the following statement published in the Autumn issue of Facts for Action (P.O. Box 385, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632) by a Dutch man who claimed that he had been compelled to work in a German war factory under very difficult conditions.

An Eyewitness Speaks Out

I was 17 years old when the German invasion of the Netherlands began. A battle that lasted all of five days, and which, when it was over, created an outpouring of young Dutchmen to the munitions and armament factories of the Third Reich. None of us went willingly, but the options were either go or...well, it wasn't an offer we could refuse. The manpower was needed to replace the millions of men Germany had sent to the campaigns in Russia, France, Greece and every other corner of the world torn apart by war.

I was disembarked in a town called "Friedrichshafen" on Bodensee, a body of water better known as "Lake Constance." Across the lake, about eight kilometers away lay the safe haven of Switzerland, a place that every conscripted labourer longed to see; that longed to find the freedom only a neutral country could offer. I did eventually get there but that took another eighteen months.

From the time I arrived at Friedrichshafen, I was put to work in a factory building Tiger tank engines. We worked 12 hours a day, seven days a week, receiving very meager rations and living in dormitory style accomodation within the town. In the few hours of free time, we Dutchmen had the relative freedom of the town. Walking anywhere as long as we carried our identification with us. I had made friends with a German war widow who had the good fortune to work at the railway station restaurant, and was able to supplement my rations with food from her establishment. It wasn't great fare, but it sure beat starving.

I believe that it was in the Spring or Autumn of 1944 that the event I have been asked to relate occurred. One evening, at about 7:30 p.m. I raced from the factory to the restaurant, to ensure I was able to have a meal and still return to the dormitory before curfew. After a filling meal I left the restaurant in pitch darkness. None of the street lights in the town were allowed to be lit at night in case Allied bombers flew over on their regular raids. Lights in the houses were allowed but only if thick drapes were pulled, shutting the streets off from all light, bar that provided by the moon and the stars. After waiting on the platform for a few minutes to accustomise my eyes to the darkness, I was about to return to the barracks when I heard a train move into the station. Not one of the normal war trains laden with goods, cars and materials for the factories, but a passenger train of about fifty luxurious, pullman type carriages, pulled by two large steam locomotives. All the windows were shrouded by thick roller curtains, shutting out the bright lights that burned within.

As the train came to a stop, I saw some curtains rise and the windows of the nearest carriage opened, allowing me to look within, unnoticed as I stood in the dark. I was flabbergasted at the sights before me. For two years or so I had worked in slavery, with never enough food, poor clothing and wooden-soled canvas shoes; and here I saw what I assumed to be hundreds of well-dressed, over-fed aristocrats, seeing the sights by train. Men and women filled the carriage I was staring at, all dressed to the nines with furs and jackets. Everywhere the smell of good cigars, good food; whilst I had to accept waste food and other cast-offs in the restaurant and feel myself lucky to get that. The sight of people drinking Schnaps and whiskey, and the bulging suitcases on the overhead racks had me believing some German aristocrats were simply touring the country in spite of the war. Imagine then, my surprise at hearing those within the carriage speaking in fluent Dutch! 1200 kilometers away from Holland in the middle of the worst war the world had ever seen.

I walked over to the nearest window and called to the woman occupant that had recently opened the window. "Excuse me," I said, "Are you Dutch?" Even though I'd heard them talking I couldn't believe that it was possible that my own country-men could be within the train. "Yes," she said, "We're all Dutch in this carriage." "And the rest?" I questioned, pointing to the other carriages stretched out before and behind us. "Germans and Belgians and more. I don't know where from," she replied. "Where are you going?" I continued, more and more confused. "To Switzerland." "Hey lady," I called, "help me to get on the train with you, please. I'd like to go to Switzerland as well. I've been working here for two odd years and want to get away as soon as I can." Her reply was simply, "No. You can't." I asked her why, and as the train began to move out of the station toward Constance and the border to Switzerland she replied, "Because you are not a Jew. Only Jews are on this train." The memory of this event has stayed with me for nearly 50 years now, always causing me to wonder at the reality.

A.P. vd. W.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Mr. Dietz,

Again quoting Oswald Spengler who had a high degree of accuracy in his predictions: "The twenty-first century will be the century of the Caesars; the coming of the Caesars means the collapse of money."

By "money", did Spengler means the money power, the currency itself or perhaps both?, he did not elaborate. The destruction of the dollar, now in procesas, is becoming obvious.

Will a seizure of power be effected by the Zionist money power whereby they will set up a totalitarian regime of the old Soviet type or will a strong man of the people arise, as in Germany in the 1930s, and set up a governmental structure without resorting to debt money?

Spengler said we are living in an age of world wars of annihilation that will last throught this century and probably most of the next. In the meantime we are wasting our military might by putting our soldiers under alien United Nations commanders to interfere in the squabbles of various third world nations. Our military/industrial complex (a term most offensive to pinkos) is being destroyed which will leave us defenceless.

Of equal concern is the undermining of the morale of our fighting forces.

1 —Troops are mixed indiscriminately, with Whites in some cases having to salute racial inferiors.

2 —Some large American coporations will continue profitable trading with the enemy during the war.

3 —Some American entertainers may be allowed to travel behind enemy lines giving aid and comfort to the enemy. (Jane Fonda)

4 —An American soldier who kills some of the enemy may be tried for murder before an international tribunal.

5 —If the American soldier is taken prisoner he might well be written off it attempts to rescue him will embarass any profitable deals involving multi-national corporations.

In short, what are the prospects for a young patriotic White American soldier who is dedicated to serving his country? It is unlikely that he will know why he is fighting or what he is fighting for.

Yours truly,
J.McC., Washington

⁂

Dear George,

It is becoming increasingly difficult for me to be tolerant of an American society that has sympathy only for misfits, only for drug addicts, only for people with AIDS, only for the maladjusted, only for queers, only for drunkards, and only for outright criminals in our land and in the world.

Some of these need help. Help them. But I think it is also time for all Americans to stand up and cheer for the people who accomplish things, the achievers, the ones who recognize a problem and do something about it, the man who works hard and has never been on welfare, the man who has his hands on the shovel and never out for a handout, the ones who lok for something extra to do for this country and the world.

And also honor the good women, the hard working mothers of our children and threat these women well. The family oriented women, of course.

In other words, I mean honor the winners, the leaders for a change.

H.W.P., Washington

⁂

Dear Sir,

Thank you for sending me the back issues of Liberty Bell free of charge! They were great!

I'm a widow who teaches homeschool, living on my husband's social security below the povertry line. Liberty Bell is most useful in our homeschool. I can't afford a subscription but could you donate a subscription to a widow's homeschool? I would also share it with other patriots. Any backissues you can send are greatly appreciated and distributed to others.

Thank you so much for your help , and God bless you.

Sincerely,
M.P., Utah

[Is there anyone among our readers who would care to sponsor a subscription for this lady?—Ed.]

⁂

Dear George — Grüß Gott!

Received the latest Liberty Bell for which I thank you (and the dear lady from Oregon). Enclosed is the renewal slip which came with it. As you know, I'm in no way able to afford a sub, though I often send you a few stamps, which often results in extra issues for which I thank you very much!

Please know that if I could afford to renew I would do so. I enjoy the Liberty Bell and appreciate your generosity immensely. Take care and keep up the good work.

David Tate W-155209
Rte 2, Box 2222, Mineral Point MO 63660

⁂

Dear George,

I hope things are going well on your end! I just received the November issue of Liberty Bell as well as a notice of the termination of my subscription with the upcoming December issue. I will sorely miss Dr. Oliver's witty essays as well as all the other valuable information available in the pages of your publication.

Even though I'm still confined in this penitentiary I'm doing everything I can to increase my knowledge and to improve my communication skills. I just completed a course in Economics and made a 3.00 in it. I'm presently taking an Accounting course, a Marketing course, Freshman English, and an Introductory Algebra course. Needless to say I'm extremely busy.

I had thought that I'd be released earlier this year. In fact, my parole had already been approved, but due to a racial riot that was started by these insolent niggers I lost all my "good-time." As a result I also got a year set-off (the administration thinks that we're White we have no right to defend ourselves and in fact we're punished for doing so!). Due to that I'll be residing in this nigger-infested rat hole for another year, or at least until 7/94. All I can do is use this time to my advantage, hence the college courses. I have enough sense to avoid any "Sociology or Psychology" courses. I'll stick primarily with the basics. I may try to teach myself another language, but that will have to be sometime in the future. First, I must get a thorough education in English.

As you can see, I've taught myself to type. This has really improved my communication skills. These days nearly everything is run through a keyboard, therefore this skill will be a real asset in the near future.

I've learned quite a bit since I last wrote. I'm ashamed of many of the things I've done in the past. At first it seemed easy to blame my mistakes on society, and thereby relieving myself ,of the guilt I felt as a result of my actions. I now realize that I am solely responsble for everything I've done. I willfully chose to use drugs, even though I didn't fully realize the consequences; I knew beforehand that the consequences wouldn't be beneficial. At the time I didn't really care. I lost faith in Christianity and reblled against all the values my family had taught me. Life seemed to be steeped in misery. I no longer had any goals, except to stay "high" and avoid the harsh reality of life. No matte rhow hard life seemed, for me to try to run from reality was blatant cowardice. In my ignorance I only saw two alternatives: to adapt to a society that, although I couldn't explain it, somehow seemed evil, or to rebel against that society. I rebelled, due partially to the subtle prompting of the rock-n-roll "music" that I subjected my brain to, and also because I felt I had no other alternatives.

Now, it's a different story. I've seen through the facade of this society and after much deliberation I discovered another alternative that I hadn't previously realized, i.e., to overcome the evils of society without reacting through rebellion that hurts no one but myself. I've learned something of honor and morals that are not based on Christianity (I've never been able to bring myself to believe in Christianity again, just like I can't bring myself to believe in Santa Claus again). I've read Nietzsche, Aristotle, Hitler, and I also got a lot of insight into my ancestors' traditions by reading several Icelandic Sagas. I now realize that the basis for the evolution of man is his ability to overcome the elements of his environment. The problems I have faced may have seemed to be unique, but actually the problems I faced weren't much different from the problems that have been faced by mankind since our beginning. The factor that separates me from the rest of mankind is my Aryan ancestry. The ability to overcome the elements of our environment is peculiar to Aryans. All other races are subject to their environment, and it has never entered their minds to attempt to overcome it. Some may think my theory is a gross exaggeration. I don't believe this is so. When we domesticated animals all other races were still classified as "food gatherers." Even centuries later! It wasn't until other races copied our tactics that they were able to domesticate animals. That is just one example! I could exemplify many other situations, but I don't have the time and it would be out of context for this letter.

My point is that, as an Aryan, it is my responsibility to overcome the elements of my environment. I can no longer blame society for my misgivings, no matter how engrossed that society is with Jewish influence. If nature has endowed us, as Aryans, with a superiority over all other creatures, as I personally believe, then we WILL overcome these Jews and suicidal "liberals" that seem to be oppressing our people. It won't be easy, but neither was domesticating animals or cultivating the earth.

At that I'll close this letter. When I finally get out and able to provide for myself I'll immediately renew this subscription. If ever your printing machine makes a mistake or you have any surplus magazines, remember that I'll always be an appreciative recipient and will be more than happy to cover the costs of postage and handling. I don't know who it was who financed my subscription for the last two years, but please send them my sincere appreciation! I really enjoyed reading the Liberty Bells and I was always looking forward to the next issue. Thanks again!

With Honor and Loyalty to the Cause, 88!

T.C.T., Texas

⊕ ⊕ ⊕

Dear Sir,

As you know, I have been a subscriber for only about a year. I have purchased a few books from you and have made a few small dollar contributions to help in the fight. I do the same thing in about the same amount for about ten different operations. This qualifies me to make the following remarks.

My east German counterpart made the statement to my face that Hitler did not lose the war. That the German scientists, technicians and businessmen lost the war.

Over the years I have seen people who claimed to be on our side pitch us about communism without ever mentioning FDR's gang. I've heard people bad-mouth the niggers and jews as if they were our problem. And of course we've all heard one activist complain bitterly about the doings of another activist. I am still in a state of shock because the rest of humanity, especially the IHR, has not seen fit to kiss the buttocks and kow tow to the most intelligent biped to ever walk the earth. Who? Why old FAEM that's who. And now we have Major Six Star General D.V. Clerkin going out of his way to prove beyond any shadow of a doubt that he either a traitor to the Aryan race or too stupid to do anything but clean latrines. His insulting of William Cooper, a real man who is fighting our enemy five nights a week in public before an audience of ten million is without a doubt one of the stupidest moves I have ever seen. And because this act was so serious and insane I recommend that you quietly decline to publish any more of either of these two men's material. They are not providing anything but fluff and entertainment to the readers of THE LKIBERTY BELL and their liability is not worth the exposure regardless.

Harry Dace, Texas

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear George,

I am enclosing copies of the letters having to do with the Cooper question. Any man who takes to the radio waves to condemn Adolf Hitler, National Socialism, who makes mixed race children, and who vows that we Aryans will never be permitted to govern oursleves apart from this dismal multi-cultural United States, is no one I have to coddle.

If I am a traitor to the Aryan race for criticizing William Cooper, or too stupid to clean latrines; if that is what I am, then all we have worked to achieve for Aryan independence and sovereignty is bull.

I support the concept of an independent Aryan Republic on the North American continent. William Cooper has said that he and his followers would never permit it.

Which one of us is the traitor to the Aryan cause?

Maj. D.V. Clerkin, Chairman
Euro-American Alliance

☆ ☆ ☆

William Cooper / CAJI
P.O. Box 1420
Show Low AZ 85902

Dear Mr. Cooper:

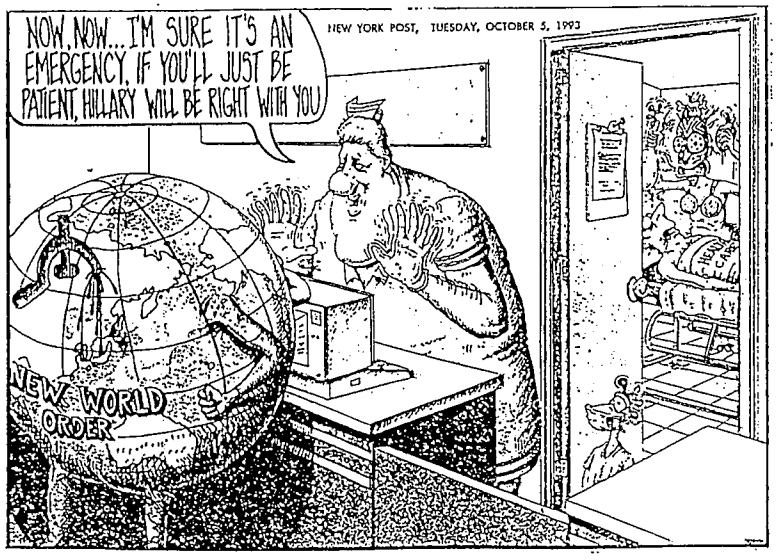
It does no good to tell lies about Adolf Hitler. He strongly opposed Freemasonry and closed the lodges in Germany. It was a clique of Freemasons, led by Col. Klaus von Stauffenberg, that attempted to kill him at the Wolfsschanze, July 20th, 1944.

The National Socialist Eagle emblem has but one head. Two-headed eagles are seen in the coat-of-arms of Habsburg Austria, the so-called Dual Monarchy.

The Aryan Movement is anti-Freemasonry. I have written of it many times in our publications. The frauds who parage around as white advocates and belong to the lodges or use lodge forms in their rituals, they usually are the sad-assed boobs who cheer on Washington as it goes on its killing sprees around the world. Remember that the Aryan Movement opposed the Gulf War. We knew that only Israel stood to gain from reducing Iraq to ashes. Thom Robb and his Knights of the Ku Klux Klan supported the war, as if any white man had one thing to gain from it.

As for you, UI have been told that you are married to a non-white woman, that your children are of mixed race. So you can babble on all you like about racism and fascism (they are spelled differently therefre pronounced differently). You can say that we won't have an Aryan Republic. After Washington bites the dust in the next century (some black brigadier will bring a heavy weapons battalion into D.C. and declare himself "de president." Then one of his corporals will blow his brains out and declare himself king of 'New Africa.') we will have our Aryan Republic spanning both the old U.S. and Canada. But neither you nor anything out of you will have anything to do with it. In short, it is not up to you.

Sincerely,
Maj. D.V. Clerkin, Chairman
Euro-American Alliance



☆ ☆ ☆

Major D.V. Clerkin
POB 201776
Milwaukee WI 53221

Dear Major Clerkin,

Most of the Caucasians married to other race people that I've had contact with all seemed to be slightly embarrassed by the fact. I always wonder if the marriage came about due to a sexual deficiency of sorts on the part of the white. Though it must be admitted that some of the other race people are intelligent with morals and are themselves looking for shelter from the storm. This is a good reason to keep them out of our territory because they are capable of intermarriage and the production of a mixed race.

Because I love my Aryan people I feel as if it is my supreme duty to defend them from the enemies I perceive. Consequently, from the different organizations that I support and or subscribe to such as Liberty Bell, WAR, National Alliance, Cause, Spotlight, and a few others, I have had occasion to come across your writings. It just isn't possible to agree with everything that gets published in these papers but as long as the cause of protecting the Aryans is advanced, who am I to complain?

Here recently, in the last year or so, we have made our most dramatic gains in the past 50 years with the introduction of the National Alliance shortwave broadcasts. As you must be aware, these radio signals are better and more powerful than atomic bombs. Many times I wonder why it has taken us so long to get to using this medium. And as you there are other peopl enow transmitting useful signals. Everything that they is not entirely correct from our perspective but so what? Have you watched the evening news recently?

I ask you: What was gained for our people when you insulted William Cooper? Please advise.

Harry Dace
Rt 3, Box 280, Alvin TX 77511

☆ ☆ ☆

Henry Dace
Rte 3, Box 280
Alvin, TX 775611

Dear Mr. Dace:

Thank you for your letter. You must have heard William Cooper say to a convention, of all things, of UFOers that we Aryans will never be permitted to have an Aryan Republic. He didn't mean that the ZOG system would stop us. He said that he and his followers would prevent the coming of the Aryan Republic. Now that is "Chutzpah," I can tell you. Cooper said that there would be incessant warfare on such a state's borders. So what!

Cooper is not only a race mixer himself, he preaches race mixing by inference in his "freedom for the world" nonsense. Have you ever heard Cooper come out against Third World immigration to North America? The reason that Williiam Cooper is so angry with me is that I have challenged his race mixing propaganda. I said in my letter that we would have an Aryan Republic, but he would have nothing whatsoever to d with it; neither he nor his mongrelized issue. The Aryan Movement is at war with race mongrelizers. You say that you support Aryan Movement, organizations—LIBERTY BELL, NAAWP, WAR, NATIONAL ALLIANCE, CAUSE, SPOTLIGHT (not an Aryan Movement publications, but useful)—then you must see that Cooper, with his Mr. Solomon, black wife and all, his rabbi friends, and his damnation of what he mispronounces as "Rayshism," is not one of us. He is on the short wave gabbing about Freemasonry, which is helpful. HITLER AND NATIONAL SOCIALISM WERE NOT FREEMASONIC. Neither were the Teutonic Knights. And there was a York, England long before there was a York Rite of Freemasonry, for God's sakes. William Cooper is either uneducated, or worse, a disinformation agent.

I believe I was rather charitable with him. Some years ago, a man named Robert "Duck" White (murdered in Belize in the late Eighties) told America that he was singlehandedly going to clean the pimps and whores out of Congress. So much for that. Cooper's gigantic ego verges on a Christ complex.

By the way, the phone calls came in here in response to Cooper's diatribe against me and Aryanism. One was from a member of the Aryan Nations, the other from a member of the National Alliance. Both were in support of what my letter had to say.

Sincerely,
Maj. Donald V. Clerkin

☆ ☆ ☆

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the rôles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 (which includes $2.50 for postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003).

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980—except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 (which includes $1.50 for postage and handling). Sample copy of our monthly magazine Liberty Bell and copy of our huge book list containing hundreds of "Eye-Openers," $5.00. Subscription for 12 hard-hitting, fact-packed issues $40.00 (U.S. only). Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Highlands man refuses to strike Nazi flag

By BART CALENDAR
PRESS STAFF WRITER

HIGHLANDS — Citing freedom of expression, a borough man has placed [illegible] and refused to remove — a Nazi battle flag in front of his house on Route 36 and Navesink Avenue.

Joseph G. Stano, a veteran of the Vietnam War, said he will not remove the flag under any circumstances, including police or community pressure.

Borough police said Stano turned down their request to remove the flag.

"The police asked me to remove the flag, and I told them I have a right to have it. No one is going to take away my constitutional rights," Stano said.

Stano said he put up the flag for three reasons:

- To protest anti-bias laws, which he considers censorship.
- To protest what he calls the "dual allegiance" American Jews hold for both Israel and the United States.
- In defense of Vietnam veterans, who "had to see North Vietnamese flags flown when they returned from fighting for their country."

"I took an oath to defend my country against Orwellian thought," Stano said. "This is in the name of self-expression, and on behalf of all Vietnam Veterans who were betrayed by their country."

Jeffery Maas, executive director of the New Jersey Anti-Defamation League, said Jewish groups have had run-ins with Stano in the past.

"He's (Stano) certainly announced his political views to the world," Maas said. "He's an anti-Semite. If it was any secret before, it isn't now."

Maas said he would call the Monmouth County prosecutor's office tomorrow to discuss whether any criminal charges could be filed against Stano.

Local veterans expressed angered at Stano's action.

James Dreher, Highlands, a member of the American Legion Middletown Post 338, said he thought it was "horrible."

"Did this guy forget World War II?" Dreher asked. "He's not the kind of Vietnam veteran I know."

Ed Martone, executive director of the New Jersey American Civil Liberties Union, said the police will probably not be able to force Stano to remove the flag.

"The statute in New Jersey says that the only speech that is not protected is that which is intended to instill fear," Martone said. "It may be offensive to you and me, but as long as it's his flag on his property, he has a right to do it."

NOAH K. MURRAY/Asbury Park Press

● Nazi flag waves over house on Route 36 in Highlands.

As of last night, borough police had not brought charges against Stano. They did say, however, that they are continuing to investigate to see whether any laws have been violated.

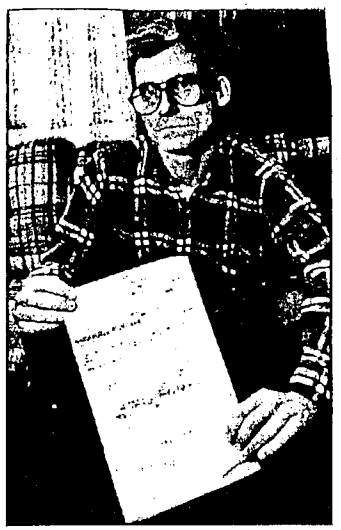
In 1989, Stano participated in a campaign to send cards commemorating Adolf Hitler's 100th birthday to various state Jewish groups.

Asbury Park Press Sunday, Nov. 14, 1993

Nazi flag yanked by angry veteran

By BART CALENDAR
PRESS STAFF WRITER

■ But the flag is put back up within hours, and a protest is planned today.



PETER ACKERMAN/Asbury Park Press

Silent no longer: John R. Fenton Jr. of Neptune shows his arrest papers after tearing out a flagpole in Highlands.

HIGHLANDS — A Nazi battle flag flying in front of a house on Route 36 — in part, its owner says, in defense of Vietnam veterans — rubbed at least one veteran the wrong way.

John R. Fenton Jr. of Neptune was charged yesterday with malicious property damage after tearing down the flag and flagpole, police said.

Fenton pulled up the to the house at Navesink Avenue (Route 36) and South Linden Avenue about noon, tied a rope to the pole and to the back of his van, and drove away, police said.

"I just could not let it stand. There have been too many conversations in my life where I have just shook my head in silence," Fenton, who served in the Navy from 1970 to 1971 but did not see combat in Vietnam, said.

Meanwhile, neighbors today plan a rally that they predict will draw hundreds of flag protestors.

The homeowner, Joseph G. Stano [Major, USAF-retired], erected another pole yesterday afternoon and continued flying the flag. He would not say whether the flag is authentic or how he acquired it.

"Nothing will keep me from displaying my flag," Stano said.

Stano ignored requests Saturday by police and Mayor Richard Schwartz to remove the flag.

"I offered him an alternative forum of a special council meeting with the press so he could make a statement, but he turned it down," Schwartz said.

Stano said he put up the flag Saturday:

—To protest anti-bias laws, which he considers censorship.

—To protest what he cals the "dual allegiance" American Jews hold for Israel and the United States.

—In defense of Vietnam veterans, who "had to see North Vietnamese flags flown when they returned from fighting for their country.

"I took issue with him speaking for Vietnam veterans and I object to glorify the killing of 6 million people," Fenton said. Area veterans groups also have expressed outrage about the flag.

Stano, an Air Force veteran who served in Vietnam, said he considers Fenton a "nut case."

"He's really dangerous. Someone could have gotten hurt when the pole hit the street, "Stano said.

After the pole fell, Fenton parked the van on the side of the street and waited for police to arrive, police said. He was released on his own recognizance soon after his arrest.

He said he was not worried about the legal consequences of his actions. "I just did what I had to do," Fenton Said.

Ed Martone, the executive director of the New Jersey Civil Liberties Union, said Stano probably cannot be charged with anything for flying the Nazi flag.

"The statute in New Jersey says that the only speech that is not protected is that which is intended to instill fear," Martone said.

"It may be offensive to you and me, but as long as it's his flag on his property, he has a right to do it," Martone said.

Roberta McEntee, Fifth Street, said she, her daughter, Keri, and other residents will stage a protest rally beginning about 9 a.m. today in front of Stano's house to express her "outrage" at the display of the Nazi flag.

"My husband was a merchant marine during World War II and he was torpedoed three times. I lost my cousin. I know there are Jewish families in the neighborhood. I find this completely offensive," she said.

"There are verbals attack, there are physical attacks and there are emotional attacks. This man is attacking our emotions," she said.

McEntee said she spotted the flag when she was driving by and stopped to talk to Stano.

"He said he was exercising his First Amendment rights and asked me whether I'd care if he flew a French flag or an Irish flag," she said. "I said no, because those flags don't represent the Holocaust.

McEntee said Jewish and veterans groups plan to join the neighbors' protest, and she predicted "several hundred people" might participate.

Schwartz last night said he advised neighbors planning to protest the flag that a permit was not necessary to gather as long as protesters are not in the street or on private property, Schwartz said.

"But I'll confer with the borough attorney in the morning about what is needed for a parade or demonstration," he said.

Police said they received several calls Saturday and yesterday from residents asking if they could file criminal charges against Stano. Jeffery Maas, executive director of the New Jersey Anti-Defamation League, has said he would ask the Monmouth County prosecutor's office today to see if bias charges can be filed against Stano.

Press Staff writer Roger Williams contributed to this story.

From Asbury Park Press [New Jersey]
Monday,Nov. 15, 1993

Legion Expels For 'Betrayal'

By Bart Calendar
PRESS STAFF WRITER

HIGHLANDS — After being expelled from the American Legion and denounced by borough oficials, a local man yesterday took down a Nazi battle flag he had been flying in front of his house on Route 36 since Saturday. Joseph G. Stano, the homeowner, said he had "made his point."

Before removing the Nazi flag, Stano put the Israeli national flag on his doorstep and wiped his feet on it. A sign above the Israeli flag invited others to wipe their feet. No one did.

George Andrews, commander of American Legion Post 143, Highlands, arrived at Stano's house while the Nazi flag was still flying and told him in a raised voice that he had been expelled from the post.

"You took an oath to defend our country. This weekend you betrayed that oath," Andrews, accompanied by past commander Harold Larkin, told Stano.

Stano told Andrews that "it goes against all reason" to expel him from the legion over the issue. He said he had been a member of the post for more than 10 years.

"I was just trying top prove that I could do it. People everywhere are trying to take away the right to freedom of expression," Stano said.

Stano said he wants it to be made clear that he does not hate Jews. However, he said he believes the Holocaust never happened and he "wishes Hitler had won the war."

"People support me. People are tired of hearing about the Holocaust and they are tired of minoirity groups taking away their God-given rights," Stano said.

A spokesman for the Holocaust Center at Brookdale Community College, Lincroft section of Middletown Township, said the center would not "dignify Stano's remarks with a comment."

During the weekend, Stano's neighbors had decorated the outside of their homes with American flags in response to his actions.

About 10 people gathered in front of Stano's house yesterday to protest the Nazi flag, before he replaced it with the U.S. flag a few minutes before noon.

The onlookers dispersed after Mayor Richard C. Schwartz called for a rally in Veterans Memorial Park, Bay Avenue. Schwartz said no date has been scheduled for the rally.

"We should not give Stano any more of a stage than he already has," Schwartz said. "Everyone should leave the highway, because it could become a dangerous situation. I'm offering Veterans Park to any group that wishes to protest his actions."

"He (Stano) is sick. This is the kind of guy who would rather curse the darkness than light a candle."

Jeffery Maas
NEW JERSEY ANTI-DEFAMATION LEAGUE

Stano said he would fly the Nazi battle flag again is such a rally occurs. He also said he plans to fly the Confederate flag on the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, Jan. 20.

Jeffery Maas, executive director of the New Jersey Anti-Defamation League, said he had "nothing but contempt for his actions."

"He's sick. This is the kind of guy who would rather curse the darkness than light a candle," Maas said.

Maas said Monmouth County Prosecutor John Kaye told him authorities could not charge him with bias crimes. Alton D. Kennedy, first assistant county prosecutor, yesterday said Stano has a right to free speech.

Michael C. Dorf, an assistant professor specializing in freedom of speech at Rutgers University Law School, Camden, cited a 1978 federal appeals court decision in saying that Stano has the legal right to fly the Nazi flag.

"The bottom line is you can make someone uncomfortable" by picketing outside their house, but "have no legal means to invoke a state power," he said.

That 1978 decision, which allowed Nazis to march in Skokie, Ill., ruled that a person has freedom of speech even when it aims political speech at unwilling listeners.

"It's a so-called captive audience," Dorf said. "But the court ruled that there need not be a captive audience."

Courts have confined decisions against an individual's speech rights "to narrow circumstances."

But Maas said the league is researching the possibility of charging Stano with harassment or attempting to incite a riot.

Stano said he received many threatening phone calls, including several specific death threats, during the weekend.

"I'm keeping a loaded shotgun ready and I'm willing to kill anyone who tries to come in my house if I have to," said Stano, who lives alone.

Councilman-elect Shawn Fitzgerald said he considered Stano a "lone nut" and hopes Highlands doesn't get a reputation as a racist community.

"This kind of stuff never happens in this town," he said. "I just wish the guy would put his creative energy into helping Highlands instead of this."

A Neptune man was arrested Sunday after using his van to tear down the flagpole that originally held the flag. The flag was rehung on another flagpole above Stano's doorstep.

Press Staff Writer Randy Brameier contributed to this story.
From Asbury Park Press
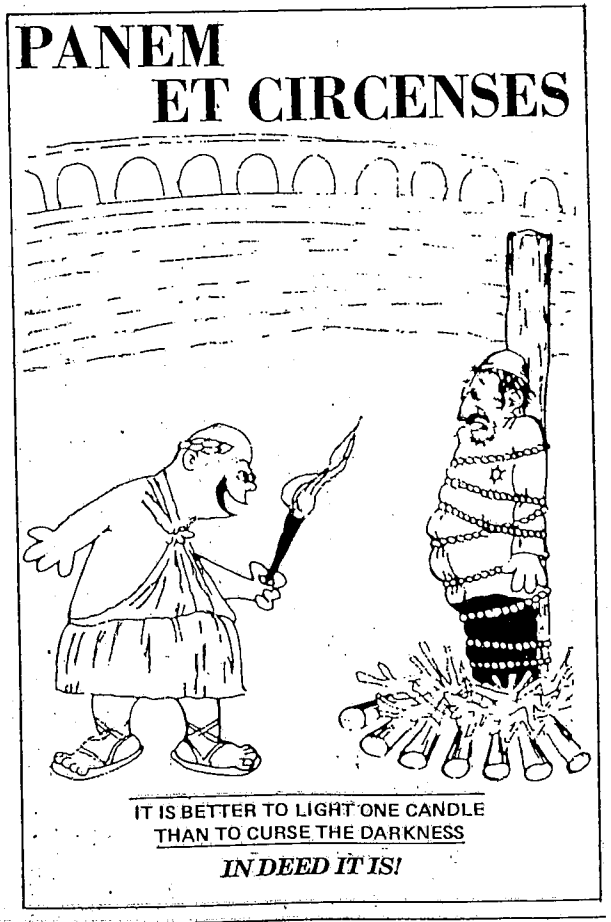
Tuesday, Nov. 16, 1993

"He (Stano) is sick. This is the kind of guy who would rather curse the darkness than light a candle."

Jeffery Maas
NEW JERSEY ANTI-DEFAMATION LEAGUE



Russian National Unity (R.N.U.) is the sole political organization in contemporary Russia which defends the true interests of the Russian people. The goal of R.N.U. is the reconstruction of Russia and revival of the Russian Nation. The awakening of the Russian Nation, its political actualization, must lead to the re-establishment of Russian dignity and self-assertion of the Russian Nation which must be the original, common will to its essence. To further this goal R.N.U. sees as its duty to struggle against democracy with a Zionist face, against Eltsin's anti-Russian dictatorship, acting in the interests of the international financial oligarchy. That is why R.N.U. participated in the popular uprising which took place in Moscow October 3 and 4 of 1993.

After the uprising, relentlessly drown in blood, R.N.U. members and their families were subjected to persecution, threats, arrests and moral and psychological terror. Many comrades lost their jobs, were deprived from means of existence. However the governmental persecution and repression are not able to demoralize them. To the contrary: grow the resolve and the confidence in the final victory over the criminal and anti-popular regime of Eltsin because, as the R.N.U. leader Alexander Barkashov points out in his appeal to the Russian people, "...the generation has been born and has grown strong which not only will liberate but also will glorify Russia!"

Today R.N.U. is in the forefront position against the New World Order and the Atlanticist expansionism. Therefore R.N.U. is struggling not only for a free Russia, but also for the whole White World-for all those who oppose the forces of evil, chaos, destruction and racial miscegenation- for all those who defend traditional, Christian values. R.N.U.'s cause is the cause of all those who believe in human dignity and recognize the rights of every nation to national authenticity, freedom and independence. Let the solidarity of nationalists of all countries with their comrades in Russia develop and grow stronger. Their struggle is our struggle!

All correspondence and contributions to:
Valentin Frumakov
F.D.R. Station
P.O.Box 7277
New York, N.Y. 10150-7277, U.S.A.
Tel: (212) 227-5993

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

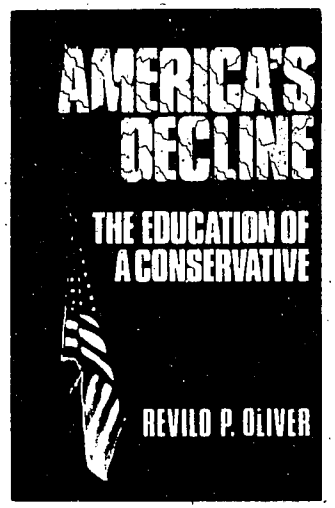
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congolds unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

Dr. Robert Faurisson
Comments on F.P. Berg's Article

Nazi Gas Chambers – The Answer to Dr. Faurisson's Challenge

page 44

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Professor R.P. Oliver:
POSTSCRIPTS
Corrigendum, page 1; Perhaps It's Good For You, page 1; THE CHRIST MYTH, page 7; Hellenism, page 10; Heroic Failure, page 17; The New Age, page 23; One Hypothesis, page 27; An Alternative, page 31; Appendix, page 35.

Dr. Robert Faurisson:
Jean-Claude Pressac's New Auschwitz Book, page 48

Friedrich Paul Berg:
Response with a Counter-Challenge, page 51

The National Alliance Radio Network, page 53

Samisdat "Voice of Freedom" Radio & Television, page 55

VOL. 21 - NO. 6 FEBRUARY 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Revilo P. Oliver

CORRIGENDUM

I apologize for my failure, when reading the page proofs of the December issue, to notice the typographical error on p. 9 that misspelled the name of Phillip Parotti, the author of The Greek Generals Talk. Such an oversight would not have occurred, were my wife still able to read proof for me.

I hear that Mr. Parotti is working on a counterpart to his first book, to be entitled The Trojan Generals Talk. This is a more difficult undertaking: so few of the vanquished survived the Fall of Tory. Æneas has told his story for all time in Vergil's sonorous and majestic hexameters, which Tennyson rightly described as "the statliest measure ever moulded by the lips of man." He mentions Helenus, who may now be imagined to relate the amazing vicissitudes of fortune by which he eventually became Andromache's third husband and King of the Greeks in Epirus. Many details may be taken from Dictys Cretensis, the forgery that may have been perpetrated as early as the time of Nero, but more probably was produced in the Second Century, by a forger who claims to have transcribed a Greek text that was written, it seems, in the Mycenaean alphabet now known as 'Linear B.' Some hints may be taken from the extant fragments of the Cyclic poets and the late work of Quintus Smyrnaeus, which is scarcely Homeric, but is unjustly contemned by those who have not read it. But I cannot imagine how Mr. Parotti can assemble Trojan survivors of rank comparable to his Greeks.

PERHAPS IT'S GOOD FOR YOU

A highly significant lawsuit in the British courts was concluded by a judicial decision on 8 October, but, so far as I know, was ignored by the jewspapers in the United States. It was reported by the New Scientist (London), 13 November 1993.

Two English women sued British Nuclear Fuels for compensation for the cancers from which they were suffering, claiming that their disease had been caused by their fathers' exposure to nuclear radiation while working in that agency's nuclear reprocessing plant at Sellafield. Note that what was at issue was not the deleterious and possibly lethal effects on an individual of exposure to a certain amount of nuclear radiation, the lower limit of that amount being now vigorously debated. The question was whether some radiation would damage the sperm of men and cause the children they subsequently engendered to be malformed or likely to suffer from cancer and other degenerative diseases.

The women's attorneys based their case largely on a "study" by a British Professor of Medical Statistics who claimed to have found an amazing and alarming incidence of leukhaemia and lymphoma in the children of men employed at Sellafield, although the fathers had not shown evidence of serious damage from the relatively small amount of radiation to which they had been exposed. This could have been bolstered by the well-known effect of exposure to X-rays, which was thoroughly established many years ago, when it became certain that most roentgenographers, despite the precautions they take, become sterile,[1] and the evidence for a comparable effect on persons exposed to any considerable amount of radiation from radium.

The defense relied on a real statistical study, one of which the cogency could not be plausibly challenged.

I have often commented in these pages on the worthlessness of the many "statistical studies" now used to frighten the boobs. Almost all of them are fatally flawed by a blockheaded refusal to recognize racial differences to please the "Liberal" dunces; some even ignore sex to conciliate the screeching harridans of the female revolt against nature. And the number of human beings observed in such factitious studies, often less than one hundred, is so small that when one considers the very large number of variables, the results become meaningless. This is true of studies that may be honest, unlike the fraud by which the Rockefeller Foundation's employees so successfully propagated homosexual perversion.[2]

1. Their sexual activity is not impaired, but their sperm is not capable of fertilizing ova.

The American commission, with a large staff of scientifically qualified experts, was sent to Japan to determine the effects of atomic radiation on the survivors of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, cities we had destroyed, killing over 200,000 Japanese. The commission made a study of the genetic effects on the survivors by examining a total of 75,000 children, all of the same race.[3] Now that is a study on a scale that commands respect and conviction, and one of which the conclusions could be questioned only by alleging fraud on an impossibly vast scale and for no comprehensible motive.[4]

2. See Liberty Bell, February 1992, pp. 14-21.

3. The Japanese are a hybrid race, primarily Mongoloid, but with Caucasian elements from at least two sources, one almost certainly Aryan, and probably with Mongol and Turanian contributions, but their isolation on their islands for more than a thousand years produced a relatively homogeneous racial amalgam, with only some persisting differentiation between the aristocracy and the commonalty. Cf. Liberty Bell, October 1986, pp. 16-17.

4. The research was lavishly financed by the American government, as was entirely justified, since our destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki had created an unique opportunity for a crucial scientific investigation. One cannot suppose, however, that the commission was under any pressure to minimize the effects of the bombings; on the contrary, the most terrifying findings would have been welcome in Washington, where the policy of the government in the years following 1945 was to equip the Soviet with atomic weapons as soon as possible and then scare the boobs by depicting and exaggerating the horrors of atomic warfare, thus making them willing to be taxed and swindled for a simulated opposition to Communism and a sham "Cold War."

The thorough examination of 75,000 Japanese children proved that the intense atomic radiation that some parents had survived had not affected their reproductive systems or made their children abnormal in any way.

The research did more than that. It proved that the children of survivors were healthier and physiologically superior to children of the same age born in Japan as a whole. Their mortality from all causes was 30% less than that of other Japanese of the same age. They were 20% less likely to die from cancer. In their children, infant mortality from all causes was 35% less. And the liability to stillbirths was 85% less. Those findings are enough to make "Liberal intellectuals" and other nitwits run berserk, but rational men must simply accept the fact that the exposure of Japanese men and women to intense atomic radiation, often just below the level at which it would have been lethal, had markedly beneficial effects on their offspring.

So far as I know, this extremely important evidence was for the first time made available to the general public in the British court.

The plaintiffs' attorneys were naturally dismayed by findings that so diametrically contradicted their claims, and devised many quibbles, e.g., perhaps the women who would have borne defective offspring took advantage of the general availability of abortion in Japan after the defeat and surrender. There was no indication, however, that abortion had been more common among the survivors than in the unexposed population.

The British court held that the evidence from Japan was incontrovertible.

So far as one can determine from the New Scientist, the plaintiffs' attorneys did not think of the two reasonable arguments they could have used to claim that the findings of the American commission in Japan were not applicable to England, viz.:

(1). The Japanese may have a racial immunity to some effects of atomic radiation. Although it is well known that some races have a resistance to, or tolerance of, certain diseases, such as syphilis and "AIDS,"[5] that are deadly to other races, it seems unlikely, a priori, that there could be a racial tolerance of the effects of intense radiation, but it is not impossible.

(2) At the limit at which radiation becomes lethal, one would expect weaker individuals to succumb while the more stalwart and physically sound survive. This, as everyone knows, is what happens in great epidemics, such as the great plague in Athens during the Peloponnesian War, the Bubonic Plague in Mediaeval Europe, the epidemics of Cholera in Nineteenth-Century Europe, and the Yellow Fever in New Orleans in the 1890s and 1905. A large part of the infected population, perhaps 85%, dies, but some individuals, better equipped by heredity to resist the infection, survive. Thus many of the children of the survivors at Hiroshima and Nagasaki probably were the offspring of a physiologically superior part of the Japanese population and could therefore be expected to be healthier than the average child of physically inferior persons, having inherited their parents' physiological excellence. This is, of course, the more likely explanation, since it is certain that practically all of the physical and intellectual capacities of individuals are fixed and determined by heredity, and no amount of squawking by the Jews' packs of "Liberal intellectuals" will alter that fact.

The question adjudicated in the British court may well become a subject of legal action in the United States.

5. Recent excavations of the oldest sites of occupation by the Maya, c. 1100 B.C., (at Cuello in Belize, formerly British Honduras) show that they were already suffering from the American Indians' gift to the civilized world, but, as is well known, the race had a partial immunity to the disease, which made its physiological effects on them comparable to a rather mild arthritis or a severe case of catarrh among Aryans. European (i.e., Aryan) perverts are less likely to contract the African Plague than members of other races; see Liberty Bell, April 1988, pp. 5-8.

It was recently disclosed by the General Accounting Office that in 1948 to 1952 the American Army released radiation bombs over Los Alamos, New Mexico, Dugway, Utah, and Oak Ridge, Tennessee. These were experiments to determine how far the 'fall out' from the bombs would normally travel. In one of the four experiments at Los Alamos, clouds of radioactive 'fall out' traveled seventy miles before being dissipated. And it was already known that in 1949 similar experiments spread such radiation for over two hundred miles in Oregon and Washington, sites naturally selected for the experiment since the population was predominantly Aryan, with only a very small admixture of the biological garbage dear to our domestic enemies and 'do-gooders.'

Thus far, there seems to be no valid information concerning the intensity of the radiation or the number of deaths or serious injuries caused to the luckless individuals in the path of the radioactive clouds, but when such information becomes available, some individuals will surely ask to be indemnified for what was inflicted on members of their families and there will probably be claims of genetic impairment, quite possibly valid.

Naïve Americans were shocked by such callous and cynical experimentation with the lives of Americans by an agency of what they still imagine to be their government. Mature and unprejudiced observers have long known that the alien government in Washington naturally has no compunction about killing White Americans in experiments[6] or even just for fun, as was recently shown at Waco, Texas. After all, our masters had almost a million American men and women killed or maimed to help the Jews in their war against our race and civilization. You cannot suppose they have since then acquired any greater compassion for their tax-paying animals.

6. E.g., the exposure of many soldiers to deadly poison gases, with threats of court martial and execution if they revealed the cause of the injuries they sustained; see Liberty Bell, March 1993, pp.17-20.

THE CHRIST MYTH

Christianity is a fusion of two myths.

The Jesus myth requires no explication. It is clear that the stories collected in the "New Testament" are versions of a folk-tale formed, like the legend of Robin Hood, by the accretion around a central figure of episodes in the careers of a number of minor figures. The Jesus of that legend was a composite formed from tales about Jesus ben Ananias,[1] Jesus ben Pandera,[2] the agitator, whose name may have been Jesus, who led a party of his followers into Jerusalem during the celebration of the Passover and was well received by the populace, but soon suppressed, and Judas the Gaulanite.[3] And it is possible, of course, that there was an otherwise forgotten Jesus who also tried to start a Jewish revolt against civilized rule and paid the penalty. The composite Jesus was, of course, a would-be christ and interested only in his own barbarous people. The stories in the "New Testament" have been embellished by Christians, and that is what is remarkable.

The Christ myth is puzzling, an historical problem that is still unsolved. Indeed, if considered a priori as an

1. The obvious source of at least the "prophecy" about the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem. We cannot be certain about the doctrine for which the Sanhedrin tried to persuade the Roman governor to consent to his crucifixion, but after the governor released him, he became a prophet of disaster until he was appropriately killed by a Roman missile during the siege of Jerusalem in 59-60.

2. The probable source of at least part of the story about a crucifixion and resurrection. The tradition about him, which was known to Celsus before the year 180, probably had an historical basis in the career of a Jewish goës who won, and then lost, the favor of Queen Alexandra Helene (Salome), the widow of Alexander Jannaeus, c. 70 B.C. See Liberty Bell, February 1986, pp. 27-34.

3. See Josephus, Antiquitates, XVII, 4; XX, 102.

historical phenomenon, it is astounding. The Jesus of the composite legend was a would-be christ, who anticipates the basic doctrine of the Talmud, that Jews are a unique form of life, vastly superior to all other peoples, who, at best, if totally submissive to God's People, may aspire to the status of dogs. He boasts that he brings not peace, but a sword, so he probably wanted to rouse the Jews scattered throughout the world as well as those in Palestine to start slaughtering the civilized peoples, as did his successors in the great Jewish Conspiracy of 117. Yet this implacable enemy of the Aryans was transformed by the Christ myth into a god that Aryans worshipped!

The Jews, naturally and, from their standpoint, reasonably, hate all Aryans, but they feel a specially intense hatred for Aryans who are so intelligent and manly that they resent being herded and fleeced by their Jewish shepherds and refuse to believe in the enormous racial superiority that entitles Jews to own the entire planet. When the Germans tried to have a country of their own, international Jewry sent against Germany their stupid British hounds and eventually their rabid American mastiffs, who obediently and foully murdered the German leaders to prove to the world that resistance to God's People is an unforgivable sin that is punished by torture and death. That we all know.

Now, if, in the coming century, say by the year 2100, the Jews begin to venerate Hermann Goering or Alfred Rosenberg or Julius Streicher as their divinely inspired Saviour and worship him as a Son of God and an incarnation of their Yahweh, that would be astounding, wouldn't it? Yes, but not more incredible than the transformation of a Jewish christ into a Saviour of Aryans and a god.

It is to solve this historical paradox that Nicholas Carter has written his new book, The Christ Myth (available from Liberty Bell Publications, $7.50 postpaid). Mr. Carter will be remembered by readers of Liberty Bell for a number of cogent articles[4] and his excellent book, The Late Great Book, the Bible (available from Liberty Bell Publications, $5.50 postpaid),[5] in which he reached and enforced the conclusion that "the establishment of Christianity in the West represents one of the greatest tragedies that has ever befallen the human race."

He persuasively finds the key to the paradoxical enigma in the effect of Greek civilization on the barbarous Jews. It will be necessary, therefore, to begin with the sixth century B.C.

As we all know, Cyrus the Great, the founder of the Persian Empire, showed great favor to the Jews, probably to recompense their work in subverting the Babylonian Empire and betraying the city of Babylon into his hands. The Jews so needed his protection that they flattered him by calling him their christ,[6] i.e., a being divinely sent and inspired by Yah to save his people. Soon after 538 B.C., Cyrus rewarded them (as the British were to do much later) by giving them permission to take over for themselves a part of Palestine.

Soon after they were established in Jerusalem, a contingent of wealthy Jews from Babylon undertook a drastic reformation of their tribal religion. They eliminated their goddess and three other gods, and recognized Yah (or Ya'u), a god they had taken over from the Canaanites, as the patron god of their race.[7]

4. Especially "A Rational Religion," March 1989; "Apocalypse Soon," December 1989; "Witch-Doctors for Christ," June 1991. Some other articles have been superseded by the present book.

5. Reviewed in Liberty Bell, April 1986, pp. 55-60.

6. A crucial text is quoted in Liberty Bell, September 1993, p. 6, n. 9.

7. Conclusive evidence about the earlier form of the Jews' religion is provided by documents from the Jewish colony at Elephantine, an island in the Nile below the First Cataract, now submerged by the Aswan Dam. The Jews of that colony believed themselves perfectly orthodox in worshiping their five gods, including Yah's consort, 'Anath. The documents were edited and translated by A.

HELLENISM

The special protection of the Jews by Cyrus was continued by his successors until the Persian Empire was conquered by Alexander the Great. That was a truly epochal event. The entire Near and Middle East was transformed. The vast and incontestable superiority of the world's first rational civilization, made evident to all by its invincible military power, was apparent to all the diverse populations of those lands. The Greeks built cities that were the focus of a truly great and rational culture. Everyone above the peasantry sedulously imitated Greek customs, including athletic contests and games. The conquered populations hastened to learn as much Greek as they could, and Aramaic, the Semitic language that had been the lingua franca of the Orient and used even by the Persians as the language of administration, became a vulgar and despised dialect, used only by the lowest and most ignorant classes.[8]

E. Cowley of Magdalen College (Oxford) in his fundamental book, Aramaic Papyri of the Fifth Century B.C. (Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1923). For a learned but frantic and at times ludicrous attempt to explain away the evidence, see Bezalel Porten, Archives from Elephantine (University of California Press, 1968).

8. The disastrous consequences of Alexander's victory soon became apparent. Alexander encouraged his men to marry women of the Persian aristocracy, who were Aryans and, so to speak, racial cousins of the Greeks, and who spoke a language (Old Persian, which must be distinguished from Avestan, the dialect of the Zoroastrian Scriptures) that was cognate with Greek and had basically the same syntax. But the Greeks who settled in the new Greek cities in Asia brought comparatively few women with them and married more or less indiscriminately wives who were often Semites or from some of the many racial conglomerates. The result was many children of Greek fathers who were only partly Greek and, in themselves and their increasingly hybrid descendents, reflected the contamination in their thinking. Intelligent White natives, furthermore, had their children well educated in Greek, producing generations of pseudo-Greeks. One result of this racial agglomeration was Stoicism, on which see the Appendix below.

Even the Jews, whose language was Aramaic (Hebrew was known only to the more learned members of the priesthood), were affected by their forced exposure to civilization. Jews who had any capacity for assimilating or simulating culture learned Greek, and usually changed their Canaanite names for distinctively Greek names by a kind of fixed conversion; e.g., a man named Jesus called himself Jason, by allusion to the famous Argonaut, and Matthew became Menelaus, in honor of the celebrated husband of Helen. The names of cities were likewise changed; e.g., Amorah became Ariopolis, and Akko became Ptolemaïs. Even in the Temple at Jerusalem the signs regulating admission to the sanctuary were written in Greek.

This process of real or simulated conversion to civilization was facilitated by the fact that the Jews continued to enjoy under Alexander and the Diadochi who succeeded him the privileges they had been given by the Persians. The Jewish Encyclopaedia (12 vols. quarto; New York, Funk & Wagnalls, 1901-1906) admits (s.v. 'Hellenism') that "Alexander ... and the first Ptolemies and Seleucids ... treated their Jewish subjects with much benevolence."[9]

What Christians call the "Old Testament" (including books and parts of books that are omitted in most Bibles), originally written in Hebrew and Aramaic,[10] had to be

9. The encyclopaedia naturally does not inquire how the Jews alienated such benevolent patrons, as they have alienated every civilized nation on which they fastened themselves.

10. As everyone knows, the Book of Daniel was written in Aramaic but only partly translated into Hebrew. It is likely that other texts, now in Hebrew, were first composed in the Aramaic with which the writer was much more familiar and then translated, much as you might write a letter or essay in English and then translate it into the Latin you learned in high school. The later books were written in sloppy Greek and, it seems, never translated into Hebrew to give them an air of sanctity.

translated into Greek for the benefit of Jews who could not read Aramaic, which had once been their native tongue.[11] The result was the Septuagint, which takes its name from a typical Jewish forgery, the letter concocted in the name of Aristeas (supposedly a Greek who could not write really correct Greek), which certifies that the Septuagint was directly inspired or rather dictated by Yah himself (his name may have been by that time Judaized by changing it to Yahweh).[12]

Educated Jews, wishing to make their tribe respectable in the eyes of civilized men, followed their racial proclivity and invented sons of Abraham who had been companions of Hercules, and descendants of Isaac who had sailed with the Argonauts. Later, growing bolder, they identified Moses with Musaeus, the mythical son of Orpheus (or of Linus, the mythical inventor of sustaltic music), who lived long before Homer, wrote didactic verse and hymns, and, being a divinely gifted seer, like Tiresias, left a collection of oracular utterances.

To a modern reader, this will seem to be mere trifling, but when Jews identified their Yahweh with Zeus, the consequences changed history. Somewhere along the line,

11. In Palestine the Jews first adopted Canaanite (commonly called Old Phoenician, a dialect of Western Semitic), which is what we call Hebrew, although the Jews never did (they called it correctly "the language of Canaan.") When Aramaic became the common language of the Near East, the Jews adopted it and Hebrew became a holy language known only to holy men.

12. According to the silly story, seventy-two learned rabbis were immured, each in a cabin of his own, so that they could independently translate the farrago of the "Old Testament." Yahweh saw to it that the seventy-two independent translations were identical, even to the smallest jot or tittle. Unfortunately, Yahweh must have studied Greek under a hopelessly incompetent teacher, for no one who has a real comprehension of the Greek language can read the Septuagint without a sensation of nausea.

Zeus was identified with the Zeus of Cleanthes' hymn, i.e., God in the Christian misuse of that word; he was the god of Stoic monotheism, also called Providence and the Mind of the Universe (animus mundi). That converted Yahweh from a tribal deity, who fought for his race and overcame the gods of other nations, into the unique and supreme god of the universe. That was an arrogant claim that altered Jewish consciousness, and was maintained even by the Jews who most resented civilization and returned to their primitive barbarism.

With even greater effrontery, educated Jews began to claim that one or another aspect of civilization was of Jewish origin. They had learned the method of allegorical interpretation from the Stoics,[13] and by outrageously twisting the texts of their sacred books (in Greek translation), they proved their point with the facility of a shyster lawyer.

This impudent hoaxing reached its fullest development with a Jewish "philosopher," Aristobulus,[14] who, c. 150

13. The Stoics derived it from the concept of ὑπόνοια (perhaps best translated as 'underlying meaning') with which we are familiar in the writings of Plato. It may be traced back to Pherecydes of Samos (c. 544 B.C.), who wrote in Greek but may not have been a Greek by race and could have been a Semite. He is sometimes credited with having introduced to the Greek world the Hindu notion of metempsychosis and thus of an immortal soul, but that idea is present in the Orphic religion, which is probably older and attains a beautifully poetic expression in the odes of Pindar. On Stoicism, see the Appendix at the end of this article.

14. Not to be confused with the Hasmonaean (Maccabaean) Aristobulus, eldest son of John Hyrcanus, who became King of the Jews (in 103 B.C.) by imprisoning and murdering his mother, or with the matricide's nephew, the second Aristobulus, who revolted against his mother, became King in 67 B.C., and tried to suppress his elder brother, who was high priest, thus starting the civil war that finally forced the Romans to intervene and restore order in Judaea. A number of other Jews also took the common Greek name.

B.C., brazenly claimed that the philosophy of Aristotle and, indeed, the whole of Greek culture was derived from the "Old Testament"! He naturally forged some Greek verse, purportedly from early Greek poets, to prove some of his points.

A far more moderate and intelligent practitioner of the allegorical method was Philo Judaeus (c. 20 B.C.-c. A.D. 50), on whom Mr. Carter concentrates his attention. Although his enemies may have exaggerated when they claimed that he did not know a word of Aramaic (to say nothing of Hebrew), it is true that all his knowledge of the Jews' holy books came from the Septuagint. He was a learned man, and, if I am not mistaken, acquired a command of Greek that no other Jewish author ever attained.[15]

We especially remember Philo for his candid admission that the tale in the "Old Testament" about an armed conquest of Palestine led by Jesus (alias Joshua) is preposterous, and that what must have happened is that the Canaanites, their minds muddled by old Yahweh, admitted the Jews to their country as eminently pious refugees and permitted the immigrants to organize their synagogues and flourish until they were ready to take over the country of their enemies—for the Jews considered the foolish Canaanites as their enemies and entered Canaan intending to kill or enslave their stupid hosts as soon as they had sufficiently penetrated the fools' country. American boobs will soon learn that the barbarians never change their tactics or their nature.

15. There is a good edition of the Greek texts by F. H. Colson and G. H. Whitaker, accompanied by a reliable translation (I have checked it in many places; the only error I noticed is a systematic one. One of the translators was a prominent clergyman, so wherever Philo wrote 'Jesus' (Ἰησοῦς), the name is dishonestly changed to 'Joshua,' to prevent Christian sheep from wondering about their "Old Testament.") Text and translation were published in ten volumes (1929-1962) with two supplemental volumes (1953) of writings for which Philo's text is lost, but which are preserved in an Armenian translation that was translated into English by Ralph Marcus. The fourteen volumes form part of the Loeb Classical Library, which is now distributed in this country by the Harvard University Press. I need scarcely add that Philo's various works are always cited by the first words of Latin translations of their titles.

We should also remember Philo for his formulation of the "One World" hokum that is now so widely used as sucker-bait for dim-witted Aryans. He affirmed that the Divine Plan (λόγος ὁ θεῖος) arranges the rise and fall of nations "to the end that the whole of our world should be as a single state, enjoying that best of constitutions, democracy."[16]

Philo was a well-educated and learned man, admirably well versed in Greek literature and philosophy, and Mr. Carter rightly takes him as a model of 'Hellenized' Jews, all of whom he lumps together as the Letzim. But we must remember that he remained a Jew. You cannot read very far in Philo's rather copious writings[17] without becoming aware of an alien mentality. He had, as I have said, a good command of the noble language, but when he writes ἀλήθεια, the corresponding adjective, ἀληθής,-ές , and their derivatives, he does not mean what the words mean in respectable Greek.

16. Quod Deus, 176: ἵνα ὡς μία πόλις ἡ οἰκουμένη πᾶσα τὴν ἀρίστην πολιτειῶν ἄγῃ δημοκρατίαν. I quote the translation in the edition cited above, but reject Colson's suggestion that Philo may have meant that democratic equality was attained by the successive rise and fall of nations by which each had its turn at hegemony. Philo is continually preoccupied with the future that God is preparing, and, as I suggested in a review published in 1949, the somewhat confused construction of the preceding phrases about the fall of nations probably shows Philo's sedulous avoidance of any possible offense to Roman sensibilities. (It would have scarcely been tactful to speak of a coming fall of the Roman Empire!) I am convinced, therefore, that he meant that the Divine Purpose was to be realized in some future Utopian era in which, after the fall of empires, all nations will dwell together in some kind of spontaneous concord under the supervision of old Yahweh, alias the animus mundi. I cannot take time to discuss the special meaning that Philo gives to δημοκρατία.

To the rational Greek (Aryan) mind, truth is something that can and must be objectively determined: it denotes veracity as opposed to lying, facts as opposed to fancies, reality as opposed to illusory appearances. Truth is factual and must be determined by observation and reason. For Philo, however, 'truth' is what he thinks Yahweh said in the Scriptures he wrote and what he therefore wants. 'Truth' for Philo is not what is, but what ought to be. It is the Jewish religion as he understands it, after revising it with his allegorical interpretations. It is Faith and therefore irrational. There can be no greater antithesis than between the Greeks' rational and objective truth and the "truth of unreason," as Bertrand Russell aptly termed faith in religions, fictions about supernatural beings that soothe and comfort weaklings who are afraid to contemplate the grim world of reality.[18]

Philo was really uninterested in truth as the Greeks and all rational men conceive it. Since Philo constantly tries to equate his religion to Stoicism,[19] you should particularly

17. If you are interested in his peculiar mentality, observe Philo at work on the opening chapters of Genesis in his De opificio mundi and Legum allegoriae.

18. An admirably clear and comprehensive analysis of Philo's misuse of the Greek words, by Dr. Thomas E. Knight, has just appeared in the American Journal of Philology, CXIV (1993), 581-609.

19. Philo even adapted to his religion the famous Stoic paradox that the vast majority of men are slaves, since they are enslaved by their desire for such trumpery things as pleasure, wealth, or glory, and that only a wise man (i.e., Stoic sage) is free, because, notice that no Stoic would ever have countenanced his faith in the "truth of unreason." See the Appendix on Stoicism below.

Philo and all of the Letzim we have mentioned thus far differ radically from other Letzim, whom we must now consider.

HEROIC FAILURE

It is the great virtue of Mr. Carter's book that he forces us to consider critically a Jewish and Christian generalization about the history of Judaea in the second century B.C. He makes us aware that it is highly probable that, besides the Letzim mentioned above, who tried to salvage Judaism by forgery, hoaxes, and sciolistic distortions of evidence, there were educated and enlightened Jews who faced the problem candidly and saw that the only solution was to abandon Jewish claims to immeasurable racial superiority, to jettison the barbaric cult, and to adopt civilization whole-heartedly.

The detailed history of this period is a Gordian knot, depending principally on Josephus (Antiquitates) and the second book of Maccabees (which is found in some Christian Bibles); both were bitter enemies of the Hellenizing faction, but contradict each other and are also at variance with the few indications to be derived from trustworthy historical sources.[20] What is clear, however, is that, as a result of even if he is in chains and being tortured, he retains command of his own mind and his moral integrity. Philo substitutes righteousness for Stoic wisdom; see his Quod omnis probus liber sit.

20. I limit myself here to the bare essentials, wasting no time on problematic details. If you have nothing to do for the next few years, I suggest that you collect all available information about the history of the Seleucid Empire in the second century B.C. and then sit down to winnow the stories in Josephus and Maccabees in hope of extracting a fairly plausible resolution of all the conflicts in untrustworthy narratives—if you think that worth having.

some one of the continual upheavals in Judaea, a Jew named Jesus, who had adopted a civilized name, Jason, became the high priest in Jerusalem, probably in 173 B.C. although possibly several years earlier. He represented Letzim who wanted to introduce Greek culture into Jerusalem, and he evidently cleared an area in the city and founded what seems to have been a kind of Greek-style gymnasium, serving both for athletics (which orthodox Jews abominated) and as a kind of open club in which educated men could meet for intelligent and often philosophical discussion (which the orthodox also abominated).

In 171 and for reasons which are not quite clear but may be related to family feuds, Jesus-Jason was succeeded by a man who may have been a relative and who changed his name to Menelaus.[21] He is the focus of Mr. Carter's cogent revision of the Jewish and Christian story which had never been effectually challenged.

According to that story, Menelaus was a Jew so wicked that he became the instrument of the awful pagan king, Antiochus IV Epiphanes, who wanted to persecute God's sweet little lambs and suppress worship of the One True God (beastly old Yahweh). That is patently absurd. Although it is true that the Seleucids, descendants of one of Alexander's generals, were not only cultivated men themselves, but doubtless perceived the value of a dominant civilization in promoting some sort of unity among their multi-racial subjects, Antiochus, as a prudent ruler, was primarily interested in finding a way to end the perpetual turmoil in Judaea, where normal communications along the major trade routes were often made almost impossible because the sweet little lambs were perpetually rioting and killing one another, using religious pretexts to justify a perpetual succession of petty but destructive civil wars. And the attribution of wicked "pagan" purposes to Antiochus becomes absurd when the enemies of Menelaus charge that he was so corrupt that he bought the support of Antiochus with an enormous bribe. That sufficiently shows who took the initiative and vindicates Menelaus's sincerity.

21. Josephus says that he was Onias, the brother of Onias. Such duplication of personal names within a family seems unlikely and suggests confusion in either Josephus's mind or the extant text. The man's Jewish name may have been Matthew.

Mr. Carter's work reminds us that we have no reason to doubt that Menelaus was a cultivated and highly intelligent Jew who saw that the only remedy for barbarism is civilization, and that the only way to civilize the Jews was to abolish their disgusting superstition. That attitude won him the sympathy of Antiochus and a measure of support that was soon greatly increased.

Antiochus was at war with Ptolemaic Egypt and invaded that country. In 168 a rumor reached Palestine that Antiochus had been defeated and killed. Menelaus was expelled by Jesus-Jason and his faction, who had been engaged in treasonable intrigues with the Egyptians, in preparation for an Egyptian occupation of Jerusalem. What had really happened, however, was that Antiochus had won what should have been a decisive victory, but had been prevented from following it up by the intervention of an envoy from the Roman Senate, Popillius Laenas, who, in effect, made Egypt a Roman protectorate.[22]

As soon as the truth was known, Jason fled and Menelaus was restored to his priestly dignity. We should note, however, that both Hellenizers had large popular followings.

22. It would be vain to speculate to what extent the Senate had been covertly influenced by the large colony of Jews who had planted themselves in Rome, many of whom had become very wealthy. When Cn. Cornelius Scipio Hispallus was the Praetor Peregrinus in 179, he tried to run all the offensive aliens out of town, but was, of course, powerless against Jews who had taken the precaution of buying themselves Roman citizenship by having a fellow Jew who was a slave dealer "sell" them to some venal and well-paid Roman, who then emancipated them, making them legally members of his own polluted family. The other Jews, we may be sure, crawled back into Rome as soon as Hispallus's term of office was ended.

The net effect of this was to make Antiochus, who had been humiliated by the Romans and prevented from ending the menace to his kingdom from Egypt, willing to use his army to support Menelaus, who, officially the high priest of the Jews, proceeded to abolish all the innumerable and vulgar regulations of "the Law," the superstition about the Sabbath, and, above all, the savage sexual mutilation by which the Jews differentiated themselves physically from civilized mankind. Menelaus was undoubtedly supported by a sizeable minority of educated Jews, many or most of whom engaged surgeons to uncircumcize them.

He is a man whom we should honor and whose failure we must regret.

It is hard to say in what proportion piety and political ambition dominated the wealthy Jewish clan who were descended from a man whose name, passing through Greek, was Hasmonaeus (Asamonaeus in some sources). A member of this clan murdered a priest who was about to perform a sacrifice in accordance with the new rule, and fled to the wilderness, where he organized gangs of bandits who flourished by raiding towns, slaying educated Jews, and grabbing their property. They won the support of the lower classes, already jealous of their betters, and, as you know, it is almost impossible to suppress such banditry without helicopters. Antiochus' governor, Lysias, underestimated the difficulty and made ineffectual attempts to suppress them, which the Jewish writers have naturally magnified into great victories for Yahweh's people. These Hasmonaeans, now more commonly known as Maccabees from the epithet given them, derived from an Aramaic word meaning 'hammer, mace,' were for a considerable time merely outlaws and pests.

There can be no doubt but that Antiochus was now prepared to give Menelaus full support, and there is no doubt but that no amount of barbarous fanaticism could have prevailed against an army that was still organized with Macedonian tactics and discipline. The Jewish problem would have been solved forever, if Antiochus had not been distracted by the need to protect his eastern borders against the Parthians, and not even then, if he had not died, evidently from poison or a contagious fever, at Gabae, in or near what is now Afghanistan.

Lysias, Antiochus's governor of Syria, was evidently a mediocre man. When he failed to suppress the bandits, he had the foolish idea that he could end his troubles by forcing on Menelaus a compromise. The bandits were given amnesty; the Hasmonaeans were admitted to the city; the traditional rites of Yahweh were largely restored with only an addition to content the Hellenizers; and, of course, the situation became more intolerable than ever, since the Hasmonaeans used their new position for aggression on the civilized minority everywhere.

When Lysias finally saw the consequences of his folly, he took the requisite action. He mobilized his army, occupied Jerusalem and other cities, and restored order.[23] He would probably have solved the Jewish problem permanently, if the barbarian rabble had not again been saved by a perverse fate. Antiochus's heir was a boy of ten,[24] who had been left in the care of Lysias, but

23. The Jews never miss an opportunity for Holohoaxing, so they produced lurid accounts of the thousands and thousands of Yahweh's darlings who were martyrs to the True Faith and slain by the awful "pagans." See especially the later part of Book IV of Maccabees. Book III, incidentally, is a gospel about a wicked Egyptian king who wanted to oppress God's Own and mobilized his army for that purpose, but Yahweh sent a couple of angels who made the war elephants trample the soldiers to death. The author of the gospel does not explain why Yahweh never despatches a bevy of angels to protect his darlings in historical situations. For True Believers, that is still a problem; see Dr. Charles E. Weber's review of Why Did The Heavens Not Darken? in Liberty Bell, March 1989, pp. 36-41.

24. The minority of Antiochus V also gave an opportunity to his uncle, Demetrius, to claim the throne with Roman support, thus initiating a series of civil wars that fatally weakened the Seleucid Empire and led to its downfall.

Antiochus, shortly before his death, discontented with Lysias's blundering, named one his friends, Philip, the regent for the boy and governor of Syria. The news of Philip's advent reached Lysias in Jerusalem and, in a panic, he negotiated another shameful compromise with the Hasmonaeans and their rabble, sacrificing even Menelaus to their hatred, and hastened home in a vain attempt to retain his governorship and take the regency for himself.

Thus ended one of the great tragedies of history with a catastrophe from which we still suffer today.[25]

We need not linger over the intricate history of what followed. The Hasmonaeans ruled Judaea, profited from the weakening of the Seleucid Empire to make their country independent, and occupied themselves with wars of aggression against their neighbors to increase the territory under their rule.[26] It is noteworthy that they soon assumed Greek names, from Hyrcanus and Aristobulus to the last of the line, Antiochus.[27]

The surviving Hellenizers either escaped from Judaea or became Sadducees, who observed the Jews' "Law," at least outwardly, but intelligently refused to believe in immortal spooks or the other superstitions dear to the Pharisees, who eventually attained complete dominion over the Jews.

We have now sketched, as summarily as I could, the antecedents requisite for an understanding of our problem.

25. The world had another chance during the short reign (138-129) of Antiochus VII (son of Demetrius), but the Jews' were saved, first, by the naïf young king's refusal to heed the advice of his wise councillors and his older wife (Cleopatra Thea, who, in her previous marriages, had acquired political experience), and then by a Parthian invasion of his diminished realm.

26. Cf. Christianity Today (reprinted from Liberty Bell, November 1987), pp. 3-7.

27. Incidentally, the author of Book II of Maccabees was another Jesus who had changed his name to Jason!

THE NEW AGE

We have also reached the beginning of the historical era established by a Scythian monk who had come to Rome, Dionysius Exiguus, c. A.D. 540. According to his calculations, the supposed birth of Jesus marked the beginning of the First Century[28] in the era now in common use.

Mr. Carter disposes of that century correctly: "There were no Christians, either Gentile or Jewish, living during the first century."[29]

28. I think it best to capitalize such terms when they refer specifically to the era fixed by Dionysius, especially when "A.D." (anno Domini or, if you prefer, [anno] apud [= secundum] Dionysium) is omitted.

29. There is no historically valid evidence for the existence of such beings during the First Century. The arsonists executed by Nero were, of course, Jewish Bolsheviks, followers of an agitator and, no doubt, would-be christ, who bore the extremely common name of Chrestus; they tried to burn Rome to validate one of the prophecies in the Pseudo-Sibylline Oracles, which had been forged to demoralize the hated goyim. As for the famous letter of the younger Pliny, if it is not a forgery or grossly interpolated by Christians, as some scholars believe, it refers to a sect in Bithynia, c. 112, who were suspected of being members of a criminal organization, but convinced Pliny they were innocent heliolaters. As such, they cannot have been Christians in the accepted sense of that word. As Mr. Carter remarks, there were many would-be christs. – The text of Pliny's letter depends on copies made from a manuscript of uncertain date, discovered by a Dominican holy man, Iucundus of Verona, at the very end of the Fifteenth Century; it disappeared in 1508, so we cannot examine it now. The cardinal evidence for the authenticity of the letter is a statement by Tertullian in 197 that Pliny had written such a letter, which was proof that the wicked Romans had persecuted Christian lambs for their piety. Tertullian also glibly refers to an imaginary document which he said was in the Imperial archives at Rome (where, he knew, no one who could obtain access to the archives would have the patience to look for it). Tertullian also hypocritical submission. The Jews, in their scattered colonies throughout the civilized world, needed to ensure themselves against resentment, and this need became urgent after the decisive failure to take over the world by force with the putative assistance of a Yahweh who always ran when there was danger.

In the simplest terms, making Judaism respectable in the eyes of their "pagan" neighbors was no longer a matter of inventing sons of Abraham who had been companions of Hercules or of forging letters from a Lacedaemonian king to prove that the Spartans were really a "lost tribe" of Jews. What could be more effective than a christ sent by Yahweh to save the souls of Gentiles?

And if the stupid goyim could be made to believe that a Jewish god was the animus mundi of the Stoic monotheism, and that he had sent his Jewish Son into the world to bring Salvation to the lesser breeds "outside the Law," this notion could be made the basis of a theology that would sap the virility and rationality of the more intelligent goyim and destroy their ability to detect and resent the depredations of their parasites and their own gradual descent into slavery. The new religion, which would, of course, have to be distinguished sharply from the racial exclusiveness and arrogance of the Judaism with which everyone was then familiar, could be made an hallucinatory drug, an enslaving opiate, that would eventually make its addicts helpless sheep, to be herded for the profit of their shepherds.

If the inventors of Christianity did not envisage this use of it with a foresight and cunning that may seem superhuman, they must have realized in subsequent centuries what a marvelous weapon they had inadvertently forged.

This is a drastic hypothesis and will seem novel and implausible to many, but it can be supported by one datum for which it would be hard to suggest another explanation. Once Christianity was launched, the Jews were evidently determined to retain control of it.

That is the most reasonable explanation of the eventual failure of the Marcionist Church, which was a form of Christianity far more plausible than the doctrine that finally triumphed.

Marcion was a wealthy shipowner at Sinope, now the Turkish town of Sinop on the south shore of the Black Sea, but then the largest port and commercial center east of Byzantium. Sinope was founded as a Greek colony and long remained a Greek city, but there had been a continuous influx of other peoples. We have no information about Marcion's ancestors.

When Christian propaganda reached him, he saw, as all reasonable men must, that the ferocious, vindictive, and cruel god of the "Old Testament" was utterly incompatible with the god of mercy and love preconized by Pauline Christianity, and he accordingly decided that Yahweh was only the Demiurge, creator of the material world, but inferior to the good and supreme god who sent his Son (an avatar of himself) to save mankind from the Demiurge.[34] Jesus made his appearance in the guise of a man of about thirty, but the ignorant apostles mistook him for a Jewish christ, and the Jews showed their irremediable perversity by crucifying a simulacrum of him (of course, a god could not be killed). He had, however, been recognized by Paul. Marcion had a version of the gospel attributed to "a man from Lucania" (Greek Λουκᾶς, Latin Lūcānus, commonly 'Luke' in English, as though it were a man's name), and a collection of letters attributed to Paul that justified Marcion's theology. He may have had other holy books, and he wrote a work, Antitheses, conclusively proving that Yahweh was the very antithesis of the Pauline god, and that the "Old Testament" was incompatible with Christianity.

34. One unfortunate consequence of this theory was a dichotomy between the body (material and therefore subject to the Demiurge) and a soul (purely spiritual and so in the domain of the Supreme God). That led to the asceticism and denial of nature that characterized most of the Christian sects and makes them so repulsive to healthy men.

He went to Rome, then the capital of the civilized world, but found Judaizing Christians already established there. He founded his own church (c. 150), which naturally appealed to persons susceptible to the new religion but not incapable of thought. His was a comparatively innocuous form of Christianity—one that the late Dr. Hamblin, an erudite and highly intelligent man, tried to revive in our time to provide for the populace a form of Christianity that was not culturally and racially poisonous.

Marcion's Church did attract a numerous following and it may have been, for a time, the largest Christian sect, with congregations throughout the Empire, but it was the target of the most bitter animosity of the well-financed gang known as Fathers of the Church, who were determined to keep the "Old Testament" as the basis of their cult. The Marcionist Churches declined in the Third and Fourth Centuries, perhaps because they were not sufficiently fanatical and skilled in intrigue, but they survived even after the Fathers of the Church were at last able to start persecuting with the police powers of the captive state at their disposal.[35]

Why the Fathers should have chosen to burden their cult with the onerous and malodorous bundle of fictions of the "Old Testament," which blatantly contradicted the very doctrine they were peddling, is almost inexplicable, except on the assumption that it was made profitable for them.

35. The Marcionists were gradually absorbed by the more drastic (and ascetic) church founded by "Manichaeus, the disciple of Jesus Christ," but Prudentius, a Christian versifier of some talent, writing at the opening of the Fifth Century, could lament in his Hamartigenia that the secular powers had not yet killed all the vile heretics who had been trapped by Marcion's evil insanity (attoniti phrenesis manifesta cerebri). Modern holy men like to pretend that Mani was not a "Christian," forgetting that he has as much right to the title as they have.

included many groups of Jews who were heretics according to the standards of the Pharisees, but whom the rabbinate dared not suppress.[39] And finally, archaeological excavations have shown that opulent synagogues in Asia outside Judaea took their orthodoxy lightly, ignoring even the famous injunction about not worshiping other deities in the presence of Yahweh. If Greek gods were not worshiped in those synagogues,—and there is at least one example of a prayer to Helios, composed in Greek but written in the Hebrew alphabet,—they were at least sufficiently venerated to be given iconic representation.

Everyone was astonished when the excavations at Dura-Europos reached the remains of a monumental Third-Century synagogue in which at least two Greek deities were portrayed on the walls. More recently and more astonishingly, a synagogue built, regardless of cost, in the Fourth Century at Tiberias, on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee and hence in Judaea itself, had a finely-wrought central mosaic, in which Helios is encircled by the zodiac, with its constellations represented by the customary figures.[40] Three of the four corners of the mosaic are preserved. In one corner is the head of a woman wearing a radiant crown (hence a goddess), holding a sickle; in the opposite corner a maiden with the white headdress of a virgin is pouring water from an ewer; in the third corner, a woman, perhaps garlanded, seems to be holding up a bowl of some fruit.[41]

39. For a very quick summary, adequate for our purposes here, see Michael E. Stone, "Judaism at the Time of Christ," Scientific American, CCXXVIII (1973) #1, pp. 80-87.

40. See the photograph in the Biblical Archaeology Review, July-August 1993, pp. 28-29.

41. Each figure is identified by a word in an alphabet that is evolving toward the Hebrew letters with which we are all familiar. The characters are too small and, in the photograph, not sufficiently distinct for my aged eyes to read them.

Finally, we may note that some scholars believe that "Hellenistic Jews" were the creators of Gnosticism as a Jewish heresy from which the Christian Gnosticism was derived.[42]

We have therefore no reason to doubt the possibility that a group of "New Letzim"—necessarily a tiny minority, as Mr. Carter points out—did exist and flourish with impunity in Graeco-Roman territory so long as they kept themselves out of the power of the Jewish priesthood.

I cannot here do justice to the argument that occupies a large part of this book, and I must limit myself to noticing his conclusion that "Beginning around eighteen hundred years ago, a cabal of power-hungry Gentile churchmen labored to bring forth upon the land of western Asia a mystical system destined to crucify the whole of the Western world for centuries to come."

This cabal saw an opportunity in the fact that "there was no place in the significant Gentile religions, or in Judaism, for the common people, or for the lowest of the low, the Am-ha-aretz, as the Judaeans characterized those who worked with their hands ... or for slaves ... or for the diseased, the crippled, the feeble and the old ... or for the blind and dumb." There was therefore a huge market for "a salvation religion that might appeal to the masses."

"The scheme they [the cabal] decided upon was both shrewd and unique. They would fuse Gentile and Jewish religious speculations by assimilating a Jewish messianic figure [Stephen] to the savior gods of Asia; they would validate his existence with 'prophecies' culled from the ancient and sacred writings of the Israelites; and they would promise to open the temples of holiness to everyone, including the unholy—thereby providing the masses with a broader-based creed than any existing in western Asia."

42. See R. E. Grant, Gnosticism and Early Christianity (Oxford University Press, 1959); R. M. Wilson, The Gnostic Problem (London, Mowbrey, 1958). Both authors sedulously avoid offending Christian theologians.

He discusses the way in which the conspirators selected from various mythologies the elements of the religion they were concocting, and the points on which they had to decide and about which they quarreled, thus precipitating the wild squabbles of the ninety Christian sects that were in existence in the Fourth Century. And he reviews summarily the Christians' unparalleled achievement as habitual Liars for the Lord and incorrigible forgers.[43]

Mr. Carter therefore vindicates the Jews from any imputation of guilt, and indicts the presumably non-Jewish Christians: "The Catholic Christians are guilty of committing the moral crime of appropriating the sacred writings of another people in order to validate the existence of their divine hero; they forged and otherwise fabricated the entire literature of their church in order to provide an historical foundation for their faith; and along with their fellow Christians (Protestants, Episcopalians, et al.) they have corrupted the minds of countless millions over the centuries."

You may not accept Mr. Carter's thesis, but you must accept his demonstration that the authors or redactors of the tales about Jesus in the "New Testament" had only a superficial knowledge of conditions in Judaea at the long past time at which the fictitious events were supposed to take place.

Appendix

The most important fact about Stoicism is that it was not a product of the Greek mind and was therefore an alien doctrine foisted onto the Aryan peoples of Antiquity.[1]

43. For a fuller conspectus of this flagitious record, see Joseph Wheless, Forgery in Christianity (New York, Knopf, 1930), now available in a spiral-bound reprint from Health Research, P.O. Box 70, Mokelumne Hill, California (95245); $25.00 + $2.50.

1. You will find a fairly complete account of the evolution of Stoic doctrine in any history of ancient philosophy, and it has been the Stoicism was founded in the last years of the fourth century B.C. by Zeno, a Semite ('Phoenician'), who was a native of Citium on the eastern shore of the island of Cyprus. He had a very swarthy complexion and an ungainly body, squat, disproportionately obese in places, and flabby. Since Jews often took cover as 'Phoenicians' or 'Syrians,' it is not impossible that he was a Jew.[2]

He was a merchant engaged in the export trade, and when he was more than thirty years of age, he brought a cargo of dye-stuffs to Greece, but was ruined when his ship was wrecked in or near the Piraeus, the harbor of Athens. He walked to the city, where he listened to the lectures of philosophers, doubtless trying to become fluent in Greek, a language which he seems to have spoken with a heavy accent and of which he evidently knew only enough for bargaining in commercial transactions.

Zeno soon decided to become a philosopher himself and impudently suggested that he was the new Plato by giving to his book (probably written with the help of someone at home in Greek) the title of Plato's most famous work, Πολιτεία (Latin, De republica, whence English 'The Republic,' meaning 'Concerning the constitution of an independent subject of innumerable books. The fullest account that I have read is by Max Pohlenz, Die Stoa (2 volumes, Göttingen, 1948). The modest little book by Professor Edwyn Bevan, Stoics and Sceptics (London, 1913), may always be read with pleasure as well as profit. The works of most of the early Stoics are lost; the extant scraps of their many writings were collected and edited by J. von Arnim, Stoicorm veterum fragmenta (Leipzig, 1903-1905). Biographical information about them depends almost entirely on the seventh book of Diogenes Laërtius, who cites his now lost authorities; where there are variant accounts, I choose what seems most reasonable. I here undertake the hazardous task of trying to summarize what seem to me to be the minimum essentials for an understanding of a philosophy that would have been a religion, had it built churches and staffed them with swarms of holy men.

2. Cf. Note 3 below.

state,' without implying any particular form of government). The later Stoics tried very hard to sweep this book under the rug and then nail the rug down, but a description of its contents has come down to us.

Zeno's book was pure Communism—not the practical Communism of Lenin and Stalin, but the Utopian communism that was so successfully used as sucker-bait in the later Nineteenth Century and was scarcely distinguished from anarchism before Marx's quarrel with Bakunin, which promised that after the Revolution the state would "wither away" and mankind would become one glorious mass of raceless proletarians. We do not know whether Zeno candidly faced the problem of how a nationless and raceless world was to be created and admitted that it would be necessary to slaughter the better part of every civilized society, but he taught that men would somehow become so reasonable that states, governments, courts, police, religion, money, private property, and marriage would be abolished, and the world would be filled with a mass of raceless proletarians, all cuddling one another, freely exchanging the products of their labor, and having all women in common.[3]

This absurd farrago apparently found some response in the demoralized society of Athens, racked by economic and political crises, familiar with all the vices of democracy, and accustomed to romantically unrealistic social theories.[4] But after Stoicism became respectable and accepted by the upper

3. It would be possible to argue persuasively that Zeno merely extended to the whole world the social organization that prevailed within the small, tightly organized, and exclusive groups of Essenes, with only a few needed modifications, e.g., he permitted sexual intercourse with females, as was obviously necessary if the planet was not to become uninhabited. The later Stoics claimed that Zeno's book was written before he had worked out his philosophy.

4. On communism and revolutionary socialism in the ancient world, see Robert von Pöhlmann, Geschichte der sozialen Frage und des Sozialismus in der antiken Welt (3d ed., 2 vols., Munich, Beck, 1925). This is a revised and greatly expanded edition of his classes, it was a perennial embarrassment to Stoics, who did not want to be reminded of their Semitic founder's folly.

The next Stoic of any importance was also a man of little culture. Cleanthes was a native of Assos, a town in the Troad, opposite the isle of Lesbos, now the Turkish town of Behra. The town was a Greek foundation, and it is likely that Cleanthes was at least partly a Greek. But his father must have been poor, for he became a professional boxer, until, evidently down on his luck, he came to Athens with the equivalent of four present day dollars in his pocket. He attached himself to Zeno and supported himself by serving as a porter during the day and watering the plants in gardens at night. He is remembered for his famous Hymn to Zeus, one of the noblest prayers ever addressed to a deity. Zeus is the Universal Mind, but yet a personal god, whom Cleanthes exhorts "Lead me on," promising to follow willingly whithersoever the god leads, but adding that if he were unwilling, it would make no difference, for he would be compelled to follow. Zeus thus becomes destiny, and the idea is restated in Seneca's oft-quoted line, Ducunt fata volentem, nolentem trahunt, with which, by the way, Spengler appropriately concluded his Untergang des Abendlandes.

Chrysippus was a native of Soli in Cilicia, a city of which the ruins were plundered to build the modern Turkish town of Mersin. Soli was a Greek foundation, but its inhabitants so deteriorated that their many errors in Greek gave us the word 'solecism.' He is said to have become a long-distance runner, evidently as a professional, which suggests that he, like Cleanthes, came from a low-class and impoverished family. Coming to Athens after some reverse of fortune, he took over the leadership of Stoicism, which had become a recognized philosophy, but he drastically revised it, discarding most of the teachings of Zeno and Cleanthes and elaborating in their stead an elaborate system of dialectics, which he expounded in a series of seventy-five books, all now lost. He was the real creator of subsequent Stoicism. He evidently prospered from the philosophy, for it is recorded as remarkable that he was content with one slave girl as a concubine.

Geschichte des antiken Kommunismus und Sozialismus (1901), and is the only thorough treatment of the subject known to me. I have not heard of an English translation.

I have thought it worthwhile to insist, as most writers on Stoicism do not, on the plebeian, lower-class, and mostly alien origins of the philosophy. As it attained some popularity, there were many Stoics, but almost all of them probably had little or no Greek blood, some coming from such remote places as Seleucia and Babylon. The philosophy was a product of Hellenistic Asia, and of the scores who attained some distinction as Stoic philosophers, we cannot find one whom we can recognize as probably of respectable Greek ancestry until we come to Panaetius of Rhodes. Unlike Epicureanism and the New Academy, which were philosophic products of the Greek mind and expounded by Greeks, Stoicism was an imported and essentially Asiatic doctrine, and, before Panaetius, appealed chiefly to non-Aryan aliens and hybrids.

Panaetius (c. 185-109 B.C.) made Stoicism respectable and partly naturalized it. The scion of a Greek family at Rhodes, at Athens he studied under the head of the Stoic school, a Semite (Jew?) known as Diogenes of Babylon, but he was strongly influenced by the more reasonable works of Aristotle. Going to Rome, he joined the circle of cultivated and young Romans around "the younger Scipio" (P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus, Africanus, Numantinus), whose intimate friend and guest he became, accompanying him on his travels. Panaetius had the good sense to neglect the formidable dialectics of the Stoic school, a chain of rigidly logical deductions from false premises, and to adapt Stoic ethics to the creed of the Roman aristocracy, with its insistence on duty and patriotism. He could thus show that the heroes of the early Roman republic, celebrated for their stoicism (in the modern sense of that word), had really been Stoics without classes, it was a perennial embarrassment to Stoics, who did not want to be reminded of their Semitic founder's folly.

The next Stoic of any importance was also a man of little culture. Cleanthes was a native of Assos, a town in the Troad, opposite the isle of Lesbos, now the Turkish town of Behra. The town was a Greek foundation, and it is likely that Cleanthes was at least partly a Greek, but his father must have been poor, for he became a professional boxer, until, evidently down on his luck, he came to Athens with the equivalent of four present-day dollars in his pocket. He attached himself to Zeno, and supported himself by serving as a porter during the day and watering the plants in gardens at night. He is remembered for his famous Hymn to Zeus, one of the noblest prayers ever addressed to a deity. Zeus is the Universal Mind, but yet a personal god, whom Cleanthes exhorts "Lead me on," promising to follow willingly whithersoever the god leads, but adding that if he were unwilling, it would make no difference, for he would be compelled to follow. Zeus thus becomes destiny, and the idea is restated in Seneca's oft-quoted line, Ducunt fata volentem, nolentem trahunt, with which, by the way, Spengler appropriately concluded his Untergang des Abendlandes.

Chrysippus was a native of Soli in Cilicia, a city of which the ruins were plundered to build the modern Turkish town of Mersin. Soli was a Greek foundation, but its inhabitants so deteriorated that their many errors in Greek gave us the word 'solecism.' He is said to have become a long-distance runner, evidently as a professional, which suggests that he, like Cleanthes, came from a low-class and impoverished family. Coming to Athens after some reverse of fortune, he took over the leadership of Stoicism, which had become a recognized philosophy, but he drastically revised it, discarding most of the teachings of Zeno and Cleanthes and elaborating in their stead an elaborate system of dialectics, which he expounded in a series of seventy-five books, all now lost. He was the real creator of subsequent Stoicism. He evidently prospered from the philosophy, for it is recorded as remarkable that he was content with one slave girl as concubine.

Geschichte des antiken Kommunismus und Sozialismus (1901), and is the only thorough treatment of the subject known to me. I have not heard of an English translation.

It is not worthwhile to insist, as most writers on Stoicism do not, on the plebeian, lower-class, and mostly alien origins of the philosophy. As it attained some popularity, there were many Stoics, but almost all of them probably had little or no Greek blood, some coming from such remote places as Seleucia and Babylon. The philosophy was a product of Hellenistic Asia, and of the scores who attained some distinction as Stoic philosophers, we cannot find one whom we can recognize as probably of respectable Greek ancestry until we come to Panaetius of Rhodes.

Unlike Epicureanism and the New Academy, which were philosophic products of the Greek mind and expounded by Greeks, Stoicism was an imported and essentially Asiatic doctrine, and, before Panaetius, appealed chiefly to non-Aryan aliens and hybrids.

Panaetius (c. 185-109 B.C.) made Stoicism respectable and partly naturalized it. The scion of a Greek family at Rhodes, at Athens he studied under the head of the Stoic school, a Semite (Jew?) known as Diogenes of Babylon, but he was strongly influenced by the more reasonable works of Aristotle. Going to Rome, he joined the circle of cultivated and young Romans around "the younger Scipio" (P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus Africanus Numantinus), whose intimate friend and guest he became, accompanying him on his travels. Panaetius had the good sense to neglect the formidable dialectics of the Stoic school, a chain of rigidly logical deductions from false premises, and to adapt Stoic ethics to the creed of the Roman aristocracy, with its insistence on duty and patriotism. He could thus show that the heroes of the early Roman republic, celebrated for their stoicism (in the modern sense of that word), had really been Stoics without knowing it. After Scipio was murdered in 129, Panaetius went to Athens and became head of the Stoic school. His treatise on duty (Περὶ τοῦ καθήκοντος) is paraphrased in the first two books of Cicero's De officiis, but his other works are lost, except for a few fragments. His revision of Stoicism was continued by his distinguished pupil, Posidonius.[5]

It is easy to see why Stoicism, which Panaetius had endowed with the great prestige of the Roman aristocracy, became established as a major philosophy. And it is easy to see what commended it to Romans and statesmen everywhere. I have often commented on the last paragraph of Cicero's De natura deorum, in which Cicero, the statesman, overrules Cicero, the philosopher, with a raison d'état. Of the three major philosophic systems, Stoicism was the only one that enjoined patriotism and political action on men who had responsible positions in society.

The Epicureans were interested only in the content and happiness of individuals, and they specifically counseled abstention from politics: their most famous maxim was λάθε

5. Posidonius (c. 135-50) was born in Syria, at Apamea, which had been founded as a Greek city by Seleucus Nicator and named in honor of his wife. It is unlikely, but not impossible, that Posidonius was of pure Greek ancestry; he seems to have come from a prosperous family, but how much Greek blood he had is anyone's guess. He studied under Panaetius and at Rome became the teacher and friend of Cicero. He continued Panaetius's Aristotelean interests and conducted research into such varied problems as the diameter of the earth, the distance and size of the sun, the effect of the moon on the tides of the Atlantic Ocean, ethnic and racial differences, and the cause of racial decline. He elaborated a theory that the Universal Mind had brought forth the Roman Empire, which was civilization. (This may have suggested to Christian propagandists the silly notion that Yahweh fostered the Roman Empire so that the Jesus-cult could become epidemic.) He wrote a long history (52 books) to continue the work of Polybius to his own time, the loss of which we must bitterly deplore.

βιώσας ('live obscurely,' or 'avoid attracting public attention,' or 'stay out of the limelight').[6]

The New Academy, founded by Carneades (214-128), who revised the radical scepticism of Arcesilaus, was philosophically the finest product of the Greek mind,[7] and was concerned with elaborating what is now known as the scientific method and establishing a valid epistemology. Its cold rationality and keen criticism thoroughly demolished the whole system of Stoicism, reducing it to the status of a religion. Like all true scholars and scientists, the members of the New Academy regarded politics, even political philosophy, as rather vulgar and tedious, an interest in merely contemporary and ephemeral matters that are trivial in comparison with the eternal truths of nature and human history.

The elements of Stoic doctrine which I think you should particularly notice are:

(1) The Stoics claimed to consider only the observed realities of the physical world and to reject all superstitions about the supernatural, but they began by assuming that the universe (which, remember, was for them the earth with its appurtenances, the sun, moon, and stars that circled about it), was single living organism of which the animus mundi was the brain. It followed, therefore, that we are all parts of that organism and so

6. Of course, not all Epicureans were wise enough to heed their founder's warning. C. Cassius Longinus, the famous tyrannicide, professed Epicurean principles, but was a brilliant military commander and tried to save the Roman Republic. He was also more perspicacious than Brutus, who was a Stoic, and whose scruples contributed to, and may have caused, the eventual defeat of the faction that tried to preserve the Republic.

7. We must, however, note that Carneades' most famous disciple, Clitomachus, was a Semite or possibly of mixed Punic and Berber ancestry. He was a Carthaginian and he was a namesake of Hasdrubal, the famous brother of Hannibal.

members of the same family and essentially equal, with an obligation to help one another, especially the unfortunate.[8] But the Stoics were saved from sentimental slobber about "the brotherhood of man" by the next proposition.

(2) Since all things happen "according to Nature" (which is controlled by the Universal Mind), there can be no evil or injustice in the world. Whatever seems unjust or wrong to us is only part of a whole which we do not see and conforms to a purpose we cannot comprehend. The lungs or liver, considered by themselves, are ugly, but they may form necessary parts of a beautiful woman or wise man.

(3) Good and evil, pain and pleasure, are therefore only in the mind, and what makes the difference is your attitude toward events: it would be wrong as well as futile to resist the Divine Plan, no matter what it ordains for you. The only important thing is to maintain your moral integrity, and so long as you do that, events have no power over you. Thus a wise man, conscious of his moral integrity, would be perfectly happy, even if he were being boiled in oil. (I am sure that many intelligent men must have thought of popping a declaiming Stoic into a pot to ascertain whether the boiling oil would alter his opinion, but the experiment seems never to have been performed.)

There is much truth in the observation made by Professor Gilbert Murray in his well-known Five Stages of Greek Religion (3d ed., Boston, Beacon Press, 1951; reprinted, New York, Doubleday, 1955). Reporting the anecdote that an impressionable Greek, who had attended lectures by the Aristotelians and then heard the Stoics, said that his experience was like turning from men to gods, Murray remarks: "It was really turning from Greeks to Semites, from philosophy to religion."

That criticism may make you uneasy. I understand. We all respect Stoicism because it was endowed with a glamorous prestige by the great men whose creed it was. We are Aryans, and by a racial imperative inherent in our blood, far stronger than ratiocination, we admire heroism and fortitude. Stoicism was in practice the creed of Cato of Utica and many another Roman aristocrat who lived bravely and died proudly, meeting his fate with unflinching resolution. We instinctively pay homage to such men, and we venerate even more women of exemplary courage, like Arria, the devoted wife of A. Caecina Paetus ("Paete, non dolet.") Panaetius did make of an originally Semitic doctrine a creed that includes much that was consonant with the spirit and mentality of our race.

But much as we admire great Romans, we must remember that, as Gilbert Murray remarked, Stoicism retained from its origins a latent fanaticism and religiosity, professing to offer a kind of Salvation to unhappy mankind. Despite its ostentatious appeal to reason, it was a kind of evangelism "whose professions dazzled the reason." And it was fundamentally irrational when, for example, it claimed to deduce from Nature an asceticism that was inhuman, limiting sexual intercourse to the begetting of offspring. And it could too readily be turned into poisonous slop about "One World" and "brotherhood." Although it was the creed of heroes, we cannot but feel that there was in it something sickly and deformed. It was, for our race, an intellectual disaster.

8. This was neatly stated by Seneca in his Epistulae morales, 95 (=XV,3), 52: "Omne hoc quod vides, quo divina atque humana conclusa sunt, unum est: membra sumus corporis magni; natura nos cognatos edidit. ... Haec nobis amorem indidit mutuum et sociabiles fecit." "Liberal intellectuals" are wont to sneer at Seneca, because he spoke of human equality while he was one of the wealthiest men in Rome and owned many slaves. One expects such "intellectuals" to be ignorant, but note that their cavillation is canceled by the proposition I list as (2).

Dr. Robert Faurisson

Comments on Mr. Berg's Article

In your October 1993 issue of Liberty Bell you published "Nazi Gas Chambers / The Answer to Dr. Faurisson's Challenge", by Friedrich Paul Berg. I wish to comment some points of this article.

Mr. Berg thinks there is «a great deal of nonsense» in my article of The Journal of Historical Review: "A red-letter day for revisionism, April 22, 1993 / The US Holocaust Memorial Museum: A challenge" (July-August 1993, pp. 14-17). His other words are: «mistaken», «pure fantasy», «Faurisson repeatedly overstated», «fails to understand», «ridiculous», «false argument», «false arguments».

I shall not comment those words. Let's go first to one clear fact and then to Mr. Berg's own arguments.

My challenge, as you know, was: «show me or draw me a Nazi gas chamber!» Well, the one clear fact is that the only way of giving an answer to my challenge would be to show me a Nazi gas chamber, i.e., the chemical slaughterhouse supposedly conceived by the Nazis and used to kill at once hundreds or thousands of Jews every day, systematically. Mr. Berg does not show me nor does he draw me that extraordinary weapon. Therefore he does not give an answer to my challenge.

I am not intersted in speculations about what the Nazis—according to someone or other—could have done in the matter of homicidal gas chambers. I could myself speculate and say that they could easily have suffocated Jews by only putting 2,000 of them, as we are told, in a «Leichenkeller» of 210 sq.m. (minus the space occupied by seven concrete pillars): lack of oxygen would have killed those people.

In fact, I only have to consider the specific crime that the Nazis—according to their accusers—are supposed to have actually committed in Auschwitz and in five or six other camps in very precise or rather precise locations.

Mr. Berg uses words like: «could have been easily adapted», «could not wreck», «would have been needed», «would not have required», »we can presume», «would have already been», «could be», «could have had», «could be», «could have». Only, I am not interested in a possible Nazi gas chamber possibly situated elsewhere than in the above mentioned locations, and I do not care very much for such gas chambers imagined by Mr. Berg, especially when I consider his argumentation.

Not only does he use his imagination but he appeals to our own imagination to figure out that possible weapon. We are left with words like «we can presume». Can we really presume? Where can we find technical drawings of the «F. Berg homicidal gas chamber»? What is an engineering argumentation without any engineering dossier?

For 14 years, Mr. Berg has been repeating to me what you can read in his paper (the story of Budapest, which I already knew at the time, having myself shown the transparency in my conferences). One day the idea came to me of asking him publicly if he had really studied the American execution gas chambers before criticizing their «stupid American technology» and if he had tried to distinguish, inside his complicated technology, what was due to indispensable reasons of security for the doctor, his assistants and the penitentiary crew and what was due to reasons of comfort or humanity. He confessed he had not.

As I can see today, he still has not done what he should have done first. Simply common sense and the study of American execution gas chamber show that, if «less than one gram» is needed to kill someone with HCN, nothing will happen if you put that tiny quantity in the gas chamber; this gas chamber must be filled with gas in order to execute one man; one or two pounds of cyanide are necessary; the entire room and the entire body of the prisoner will be impregnated with hydrocyanic acid making very difficult the entering of the place after the execution, and the handling of the dead body (among many other problems).

It is a mistake to proceed by analogy. From what one knows—or believes he knows—about disinfection of clothes with gas, one may not gather how to execute human beings with gas. Gassing of lifeless and inert stuff is one thing, and gassing liquid and greasy stuff is another thing. HCN adheres strongly to the first, but one can get rid of it rather easily, whereas HCN stays in liquid, in grease and in the human body and it is difficult to get rid of it.

Mr. Berg should read carefully the documents I published in the 70's: documents NI-9908 and especially NI-9912 about the German procedure for disinfection with Zyklon B («Vergasung» or «Begasung») and documents about the executions with cyanide in the Baltimore gas chamber (built in 1958, but not essentially different from the US gas chambers of the 30's). He should also read more carefully in my JHR footnote #3 beginning with: «A Zyklon B delousing gas chamber could not have been used as a homicidal gas chamber». Of course, I do not deny that any place or room could be used once as an execution gas chamber, with all the risks you may expect, but that place or that room would not be called a gas chamber (implying regular and constant use for years).

Mr. Berg says: «Another false argument Faurisson has repeatedly used is that cyanide gas is explosive and, therefore, could never have been used near crematory ovens». He then adds: «Fred Leuchter was apparently persuaded to fall in line and use the same argument». He says that «the worst that one can get [if the level of concentration is such and such] is a flame, but no explosion!» Now, for me, that flame already would be enough, but what would happen if, for some reason, the level of concentration was not the expected one? Who knows what such a level could be in any circumstance and in any place of a room? What I had first in mind was, of course, Krematorium #1 in Auschwitz, with ovens actually burning at a few meters from the so-called gas chamber totally lacking airtightness[1]. You simply do not use explosive gas where there could be «heat, sparks, open flame», or «pilot lights» (see Aero HCN discoids for use by pest control operators only[2], American Cyanamid Company, Agricultural division, Princeton, NJ 08540). Sometimes, as in Majdanek, the Germans used an oven to provide the required heat into the disinfection gas chamber but, precisely, before disseminating the Zyklon B pellets or discs, they would stop the oven, situated outside in its own room, and block up the pipe bringing the heat.

1. In Krema II and Krema III, quite near the alleged gas chamber (in fact, Leichenkeller 1) there was, in Leichenkeller 3, a room with a furnace for the melting of the gold (Goldarbeit).

2. The exact text is: «Eliminate all sources of ignition, including pilot lights and electrical sparks [...]. All fires and pilot lights should be extinguished before fumigation». See also: «If a mess hall is equipped with gas, blower-type heaters, these may be used for heating prior to fumigation, but they should be extinguished (including the pilot light) just before applying the fumigant. All pilot lights in boilers, ranges, etc. should be extinguished. Coal fires in cooking ranges should be banked so there will be no live flame during the fumigation» (American Cyanamid and Chemical Corporation, Military Fumigation Manual, 1, Zyklon Discoids [...], New York, 1943, p. 12) See the warning on the Zyklon B cans: «Vor Sonne und offener Flamme schützen» (Protect from sun and live flame).

Mr. Berg says: «While on the subject of corpse disposal, I will digress somewhat to suggest that cremation only makes sense if one intends to return a portion of the actual ashes of a corpse to the true family members; otherwise cremation makes no sense at all». I say that cremation makes sense everywhere you decide to save space or whenever, as was the case in Auschwitz, the ground is too marshy for burials or when there are epidemics, etc.

Mr. Berg was extremely disappointed when Fred Leuchter confirmed in 1988 my discovery in the 70's of the «physical and chemical impossibilities of the alleged Nazi gas chambers». His critics of my work are always also directed at F. Leuchter, who, himself, before my visit to him in Boston, believed in the Nazi gas chambers, had never pondered over their physical representation and never realized that, if you know what is an American excution gas chamber, you can easily understand that what we are told about the Nazi gas chambers is inconceivable. F. Leuchter realized that he had been wrong, he changed his mind, he visited the so-called Nazi chambers and wrote his famous report.

As for my challenge, I did my best to «keep it simple, stupid». I often noticed how paralyzing it was for our adversaries. We should constantly repeat in our articles, debates or discussions the «ultima verba» (the last and definitive words). We have waisted much time discussing about doors, tapes, showers, ventilation, peep-holes, etc., thus giving, by the way, apparently some substance to what our adversaries were saying. They have to show us or draw us the miraculous weapon. Period!

Anyway, so far this challenge has received no answer: neither from the Swedish media when I expressed it for the first time (March 17, 1992) nor from the US Holocaust Memorial Museum, which had the chutzpah (effrontery) of presenting as a Nazi homicidal gas chamber a room that even Pressac and the Klarsfeld had named a disinfection gas chamber (see my above mentioned article). Even Mr. Berg, who is more clever than those people, has not been able to answer that challenge.

One last word: Mr. Berg wrote that the Institute for Historical Review refused to publish his article unless it was watered down (Christian News, Nov. 15, p. 16). This is exact except that the IHR also told him that his article was not an answer to my challenge. Jack Wickoff (Remarks) refused for the same reasons.

☆ ☆ ☆

Jean-Claude Pressac's New Auschwitz Book

In 1989, French pharmacist Jean-Claude Pressac published in English a massive book deceptively entitled, Auschwitz: Technique and Operation of the Gas Chambers. In my review of this book (published in the spring and summer 1991 issues of the Journal of Historical Review), I noted that it contains hundreds of details about the camp itself, the crematoria buildings, the ovens, the typhus epidemics, the disinfestation gas chambers (with Zyklon B or by other means), and even many details about the private life of the author.

Nothing About Execution Gas Chambers

But as I pointed out, there was nothing in that 564-page book about the alleged execution gas chambers, except what Pressac himself called, instead of «proofs», only «beginnings of proofs» or «criminal traces». The mountain had given birth to a mouse and, as a matter of fact, the mouse was Revisionist, because many of Pressac's statement were revisionist.

My Unanswered Challenge

Since 1978, I have repeated a challenge:

Show me or draw me a Nazi gas chamber! Stop giving me words! Stop showing me a building, a door, a wall or, sometimes, only hair or shoes! I need a full picture of one of those fantastic chemical slaughterhouses. I need a physical representation of the extraordinary weapon of an unprecedented crime. If you dare to say that what tourists are shown in some camps, is, or was, such a gas chamber, come on and say it...

This challenge has never been answered. In Washington, the «Holocaust» memorial museum shows visitors the door of something that Pressac himself describes in his 1989 book (pp. 555-557) as non-homicidal disinfestation gas chamber in Majdanek! Pressac did not answer my challenge in 1989. Does he answer it in his new book, Le Crématoires d'Auschwitz. La Machinerie du meurtre de masse («The Crematoria of Auschwitz: The Machinery of Mass Killing»)? The answer is definitely: No.

One (Phony) Proof

Pressac's new book is, in essence, nothing but a summary of his 1989 English-language work. Among 60 documents there is none really pertaining to execution gas chambers, except for one that Pressac describes as a proof (not more than one) of the existence of one execution gas chamber in Auschwitz. In fact, it is a simple letter, a commercial letter, with no mention of secrecy, from the German firm of Topf & Sons to the Auschwitz construction office («Bauleitung»). It is about hydrocyanic acid (HCN) gas detectors in one of the crematoria. The engineer who signed the letter says that they have tried in vain to get from five different firms the ten required gas detectors and that, if they ever do, they will tell the construction office. Pressac contends that HCN gas detectors are of no use in a crematory except if, in this case, it was used as an execution gas chamber!

This is an admissible conclusion. Zyklon B (which is essentially HCN) is a commercial pest control agent that has been used since 1922 in countries around the world. In Auschwitz it was used extensively in the disinfestation of all infected premises, especially to combat typhus. In the mortuaries of the crematoria there were plenty of infected corpses. These places sometimes needed fumigation. In 1980, I published a German document (classified by Allied officials as Nuremberg document NI-9912) about the fumigation process with Zyklon B: The word for fumigation was «Vergasung» («gassing»), and the word for gas detector was «Gasrestnachweisgerät». This was quite common. In Auschwitz poison gas was used to kill lice, not people.

800,000 Dead?

In a famous 1955 film, «Night and Fog» («Nuit et Brouillard»), the figure of the dead in Auschwitz is said to have been nine million. The Nuremberg Tribunal established that it had been four million (Doc. USSR-008). On the Auschwitz-Birkenau monument it was also four million, but in 1990 they chiseled out this figure. In his 1989 English-language book, Pressac wrote that it was between one million and a million and a half (p. 553). Now, in 1993, in his new French-language book, he says 775,000 dead, rounded out to 800,000. (Among those, he maintains, 630,000 Jews were gassed.) The actual figure of Auschwitz deaths between 1939 and 1945 is probably closer to 150,000, mostly because of epidemics, starvation and overwork.

Lanzmann Incensed

Claude Lanzmann, maker of the Holocaust film «Shoah», is incensed at Pressac. He says that the entire contents of this new book are already «tremendously well known», except for the gas detector document that, he adds, will not convince the revisionists. He says that revisionism is a catastrophe, in both the common sense of the word as well as in the philosophical sense, that is, a change of era! He thinks that Pressac is in fact a revisionist who uses the material and physical arguments of a Faurisson (See Le Nouvel Observateur, Sept. 30).

An Expert Report

Pressac is in fact a con artist. This I showed in my 1991 review, and this I will show in a review that is to appear in a forthcoming issue of The Journal of Historical Review. But the value of Pressac's book is that the believers in the «Holocaust», at least in France, finally acknowledge that this «Holocaust» must now be treated as a scholarly or scientific matter. We only have to take them at their word, and to say:

> Okay! Let's begin at the beginning. We need an expert report about the weapon of the crime. If you think that Fred Leuchter is wrong in his forensic expert report—as well as Germar Rudolf, Walter Lüftl, and the Institute of Forensic Research in Krakow (What about your silence on this?)—there is an obvious solution: produce your own expert report, or commission an international committee to do so. In this way you will answer our challenge: you will show us or draw us a Nazi gas chamber.

☆ ☆ ☆

RESPONSE by ⇒ Friedrich Paul Berg with a COUNTER-CHALLENGE
to ⇓

2132 Linwood Avenue
Fort Lee, New Jersey
07024-5040 USA
January 17, 1994

Dr. Robert Faurisson
10, Rue de Normandie
F-03200 Vichy, France

Dear Dr. Faurisson,

I am sure that your nine-word challenge will appear far less "paralyzing" to your adversaries if you attach some kind of monetary reward. A judge and jury will then be able to help you decide whether your "ultima verba" has been answered or not.

From your "comments" (Christian News, Jan. 10, 1994, page 17) regarding my answer (Liberty Bell, October 1993, pages 29-34) to your challenge, it is now clear that you had been in close communication with Mark Weber, the current editor of The Journal of Historical Review, and with Jack Wickoff, the editor of Remarks, with the result that both editors suddenly began to practice the kind of censorship and suppression of debate which many people, especially among revisionists, find abhorrent and disgraceful.

I suggest that any further "comments" you have about me be based upon words that I have actually written and not upon your own faulty recollection of private discussions between the two of us. Perhaps I can be spared some of the dirty little anecdotes that you are now using to defend your own foolish position. I have never used the words "stupid American technology" to describe American execution chambers nor was I ever "disappointed when Fred Leuchter confirmed in 1988" your supposed "discovery in the 70's of the physical and chemical impossibilities of the alleged Nazi gas chambers." I was, however, disappointed by the errors in his arguments just as I am by your errors. Let me remind you that although I have some serious disagreements with you and Leuchter, I have also been among the staunchest supporters of both of you. Some years ago I actually spent several hours in jail and faced imprisonment for defending a fellow demonstrator from a Jewish mob during the demonstration I had helped organize on Leuchter's behalf. By the way, you might ask Leuchter whether he disagrees with my view that the railroad delousing tunnels in Budapest and elsewhere would have been ideal for mass murder without any alterations whatsoever.

No doubt, my discussion of German delousing chambers and railroad delousing tunnels without any drawings or photographs required far too much "imagination" for you to recognize those superbly designed and constructed facilities as any kind of answer to your nine-word challenge. It should, however, be much easier for almost any reasonable person to recognize the accompanying scale drawing of a Degesch delousing chamber for what it really is also:—a drawing of a Nazi gas chamber and one more answer to your challenge.

Although delousing chambers and tunnels certainly could have been used for mass-murder, they were, in fact, used only to keep people alive! As complicated or shocking as that idea may seem, it is, nonetheless, the truth! Little is gained in the long run by falsely arguing that mass murder with cyanide or the subsequent venting of corpses would have been technically impossible or that Nazi gas chambers never existed. Unfortunately, some subjects cannot be made that "simple." The fact that you are still in such a muddle over the meanings of certain key words actually illustrates how meanings and motives can become almost hopelessly misinterpreted and how difficult it can then be emotionally to return to reality. The best example of the same process is the Holocaust story itself. That great hoax is based on the twisting and turning of words about things which were essentially humane into the greatest possible evil. The return to reality will be far from easy.

In any event, let us not end the debate here. Although you refuse to recognize my previous answer as any kind of real answer to your nine-word challenge, perhaps we can try something really "simple." I offer to you and anyone else the following "simple" counter-challenge:

If it is at all possible, please return to me a copy of the accompanying drawing with only one sentence added with signature saying that this is "not" a "a drawing of a Nazi gas chamber."

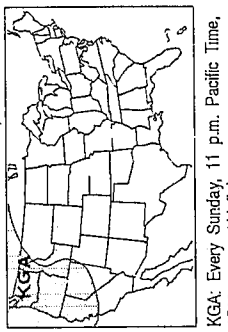
Sincerely yours,
signed: Friedrich P. Berg

enclosure: One scale drawing of a standard Degesch 10-cubic meter delousing chamber.

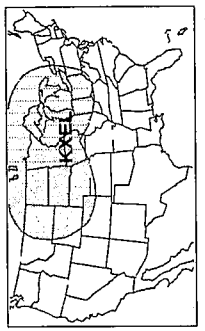
Editor's Note: calling from France on 31 January 1993, Prof. Faurisson advised us that he has already prepared a response to Mr. Berg's Response /Counterchallenge, which we should receive in the mail shortly. This item will be published in the March issue.

This is the pro-White radio network!

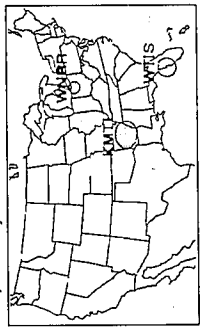
For decades White patriots have been without a voice on the airwaves of America. With the inauguration of the National Alliance's weekly radio program, American Dissident Voices, this is no longer the case. American Dissident Voices tackles the issues that so-called "conservative" talk shows are afraid—or forbidden—to discuss: non-White immigration and crime; Jewish control of America's mass media; the criminal and communist record of "Martin Luther" King; the hidden world government agenda behind so-called "free trade" and "gun control"; and more. The shaded areas in the maps below indicate the approximate coverage of each station in our network.



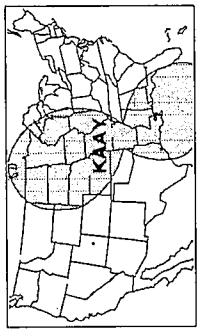
KGA: Every Sunday, 11 p.m. Pacific Time, 1510 on your AM dial.



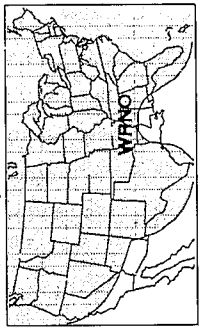
KXEL: Every Thursday, 9:30 p.m. Central Time, 1540 on your AM dial.



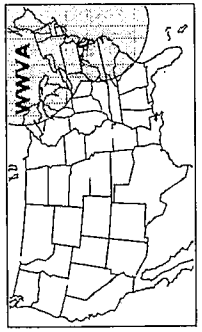
WNRR: Every Sunday 1 p.m., 92.1 FM.
KMTL: Every Saturday 10 a.m., 760 on your AM dial.
WTIS: Every Sat 11:30 a.m., 1110 AM dial.



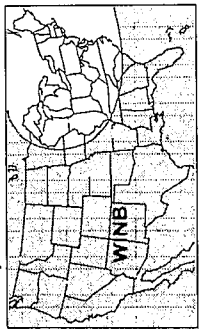
KAAY: Every Fri night/Sat morning, 1 a.m. Central Time, 1090 on your AM dial.



WRNO: This shortwave station serves North America and the world, every Saturday at 11:30 a.m. Central Time on 15420 kHz, and 8 p.m. Central Time on 7355 kHz.



WWVA: Every Sunday, 9 p.m. Eastern Time, 1170 on your AM dial.

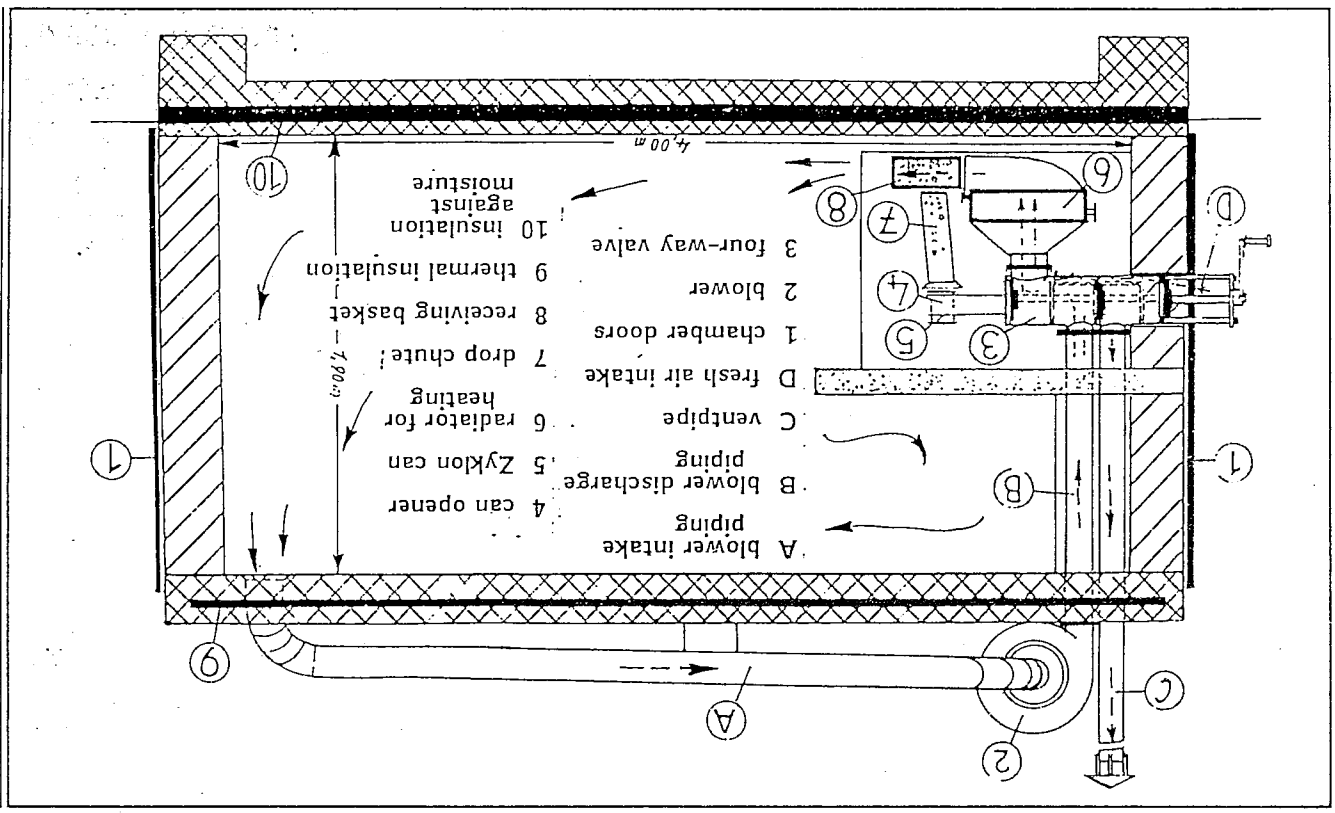


WINB: Serves North America and the world, every Saturday at 7 p.m., and 11 p.m., and every Sunday at 10:30 p.m. on 11950 kHz shortwave. Also 1 p.m. Sunday on 15715 kHz.

Time on these high-power stations is very expensive and we are currently running a heavy deficit to bring the truth to our people. Another super-power AM station, KWKH, which covers the South from Arizona to Florida, has offered to carry American Dissident Voices. We will have to turn them down unless we get additional pledges totalling $900 per month.

Can you help us in this great effort? Those who pledge $5 per month or more, and send us four month's gifts in advance, will receive cassettes of four of our best programs and other free gifts as our thanks.

National Alliance • Box 90 • Hillsboro • WV 24946 • 304-653-4600



Samisdat Publ. schedule for "Another Voice of Freedom" Revisionist Radio and Satellite Television Times and Stations with your host Ernst Zündel "Bringing Truth to the Airwaves"

Revisionist Radio Every Sunday at 6:15pm ET on WWVA 1170 AM from Wheeling, West Virginia U.S.A. & Canada HELP!	Revisionist Radio Every Sunday at 5:00pm ET on WRNO 15.420mghz, 19mb from Metaire, Lousiana Worldwide	Revisionist Radio Every Thursday at 10:00pm CT on KXEL 1540 AM from Waterloo, Iowa U.S.A. & Canada	Revisionist Radio Every Sunday at 6:30am MT on KPSA 1230 AM from Alamogordo, New Mexico U.S.A. & Mexico
Revisionist Satelllte T.V. every Sunday at 11:00pm ET on the MULTI CHANNEL NETWORK, Galaxy 7, Transponder 9 U.S.A. & Canada & Mexico	Revisionist T.V. every Sunday at 4:30pm CT on KJLF ch65 from El Paso, Texas U.S.A. & Mexico only! HELP!	Revisionist T.V. every Sunday at 5:30pm MT on KHFT ch29 from Hobbs, New Mexico U.S.A. only!	Revisionist T.V. every Sunday at 10:00 pm MT on KCDTV ch63 from Alamogordo, New Mexico U.S.A. only!

every Sunday at 11pm CT starting January 2, 1994.

FOR FURTHER INFO CONTACT:
ERNST ZÜNDEL 206 CARLTON ST.
TORONTO, ONTARIO, M5A2L1
TEL.(416) 922-9850

"Another Voice of Freedom" with your host Ernst Zündel on WSM 650AM Radio better known as the "Grand Ole Opry"

WHICH WAY, WESTERN MAN?
SURVIVAL MANUAL FOR THE WHITE RACE

William Gayley Simpson has spent a lifetime of keen observation, careful analysis, and deep reflection developing the principal thesis of his book: that the single, undying purpose of all human activity should be the ennobling of man. In support of this thesis he looks at the foundations of Western Society, at the structure of our government, at the effect of technology and industrialization on man, at the rôles of the sexes, at economics, and at race. The book goes to the roots of the problems facing the White Race today, and it shows the ways in which White society must be changed if the race is to survive. Which Way Western Man? is an encyclopedic work whose conclusions can be ignored by no one with a sense of responsibility to the future. For your copy of Which Way Western Man? send $17.50 (which includes $2.50 for postage and handling for the softback edition (Order No. 22003).

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980—except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 (which includes $1.50 for postage and handling). Sample copy of our monthly magazine Liberty Bell and copy of our huge book list containing hundreds of "Eye-Openers," $5.00. Subscription for 12 hard-hitting, fact-packed issues $45.00 (U.S. only). Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

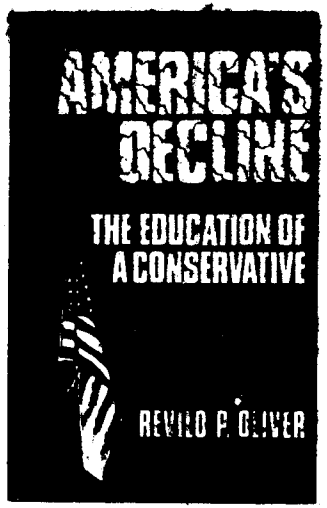
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious – whether by its technology or its fecundity – from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

AVIATION:

A Product of the White Man's Genius.
Col. Charles Lindbergh Considers its Benefits and Dangers
page 34

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Professor R.P. Oliver:
POSTSCRIPTS:
Erratum, page 1;
6,000,000; page 2;
The Kennedy Myth, page 16;
The Sane Madman; page 25;
Anniversary, page 30;

Dr. Charles E. Weber:
Film Review: "Schindler's List" page 45.

From Spearhead:
Facing the Sun
Spain's Much Overdue
Second Revolution is Getting Closer
page 50.

VOL. 21 - NO. 7 MARCH 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

POSTSCRIPTS

by Revilo P. Oliver

ERRATUM

Decades ago, when ordinary books and periodicals were printed from metal slugs cast by a Linotype machine, an author who had to make a correction on page-proofs always was uneasy until his work appeared in print. He knew that when a line had to be replaced to correct an error, some diabolic and cunningly satanic force would try to introduce a fresh error somewhere in the line. The demon was not defeated by modern electronic typesetting and still stalks authors and publishers. When the February issue of Liberty Bell was in the stage of page-proofs, a mechanical malfunction introduced an error into the fourth paragraph on page 31, and when that was mended, the demon squeezed one letter out of the word τέρατα, the post-classical, chiefly Hellenistic, plural of the neuter noun τέρας, which designates a thing that is praeternatural, unnatural, monstrous, miraculous, or portentous. (The last meaning includes unusual natural events, such as eclipses, meteorites, and some bolts of lightning, which were thought to be sent by a god as omens or warnings.) The late plural form is very common in the Septuagint, where it is used to translate four different Hebrew or Aramaic words, and hence is common in the "New Testament," especially in the combination that I quoted. Needless to say, the goëtae and other magicians and shamans used sleight of hand and various mechanical and chemical tricks to produce miracles and impress their credulous victims.

6,000,000

That is a magic number, charged with some inexplicable significance to the strange minds of our enemies.

As we all know, when God's Race began the world's greatest swindle, they claimed that the awful Germans had incinerated, gassed, or vaporized twenty-four (4 × 6) million sacred Sheenies, but fearing lest even the Aryan boobs might see how absurd was that figure, they first reduced it to twelve (2 × 6) million, and finally to just six million, a figure that many thoughtless people can believe.

The number, however, has some arcane significance for the vampires.

In October 1919 a Sheeny disguised under distinctively English and Welsh names, Martin H. Glynn, who had enjoyed a term as Governor of the State of New York, gave in Albany a spiel that was reported in the Albany Times-Union and reprinted in The American Hebrew, 31 October 1919, pp. 582, 601. I quote a few paragraphs of the diatribe, which was entitled "The Crucifixion of Jews Must Stop!"

> Six million men and women are dying from lack of the necessities of life; eight hundred thousand children cry for bread. And this fate is upon them through no fault of their own, through no transgression of the laws of God or man; but through the awful tyranny of war and a bigoted lust for Jewish blood.

The number 'six million' seems automatically to mean 'holocaust' to the Yids, but Glynn, despite his mention of blood, spoke only of a "threatened holocaust" of the starving six million and their crying babies that would occur somewhere in Europe if the Americans didn't respond to his bombastic rhetoric about their duty to "help the helpless" etc., etc. After a lot of talk about the Good Samaritan of Christian mythology, he went into the humanitarian routine appeal to sentimentality, assuring his audience that > Race is a matter of accident; creed, partly a matter of inheritance, partly a matter of environment, partly one's method of ratiocination, but our physical wants and corporeal needs are implanted in all of us by the hand of God, and the man or woman who can, and will not, hear the cry of the starving; who can, and will not, take head of the wail of the dying; who can, and will not, stretch forth a helping hand to those who sink beneath the waters of adversity is an assassin of nature's finest instincts, a traitor to the cause of the human family and an abjurer of the natural law written upon the tablets of the human heart by the finger of God himself....

>
> The people of this country are called upon to sanctify [sic] their money by giving $35,000,000 in the name of the humanity of Moses to six million famished men and women.

You must remember that $35,000,000 is a very large sum in real money; it was an amount of gold which, if it could be purchased today, would cost almost $900,000,000 in the phony currency of the Federal Reserve, even though the price of gold is now artificially depressed to distress South Africa. The $35,000,000 of real money had a purchasing power of at least a billion dollars today. The parasitic race never makes small demands.

Sheeny Glynn went on to expatiate about the wonderful contribution his race made to the "war to lay Autocracy in the dust." Auditors whose glands had not taken over their consciousness must have noticed that the political term was even theoretically applicable to only one participant in the war, Czarist Russia; must have reflected that the United States had been an ally of Russia and never at war with it; and must have remembered that the Sheenies, with the aid of their Bolshevik stooges, had captured Russia by a conspiratorial coup d'état in 1918. But Glynn, a typical member of his race, doubtless felt such contempt for goyim that he assumed that his impassioned rhetoric had completely paralysed any capacity for thought they might have.

Intelligent auditors, furthermore, must also have wondered where God's Darlings were starving. Certainly not in their Russian colony, where their race got its choice of all the food available. Certainly not in Germany, where indeed the great British and French humanitarians had mounted a blockade that would make many Germans die of starvation—but, of course, that didn't matter, because Germans do not belong to Yahweh's Holy Race. In Germany, the Sheenies were in control of the defeated and demoralized nation, were receiving regular remittances from their fellow tribesmen in the United States, and were preparing the great inflation of the currency, which soon reached the point at which a Kike with fifty American dollars from his congeners in the United States could buy an apartment building in Berlin. In addition, the Sheenies in Germany and their sponsoring tribesmen in Europe and the United States were counting on a Judaeo-Bolshevik take-over that would make Germany a Hell like Russia. So where, then, were the saintly barbarians starving?

Glynn's audience had to listen to much more rant, but they were never given the answer to that question. The orator went off on another tack, and yelled about another kind of 'holocaust,' not by starvation, but by violence. And that one happened in Ukrainia.

> Since the armistice has been signed thousands of Jews in Ukrainia have been offered up as living sacrifices to diabolical greed and fanatical passion—their throats cut, their bodies rended [sic] limb from limb by assassin bands and rabid soldiery. In the city of Proskunoff [1] one day a few weeks ago the dawn saw the door of every house wherein lived a Jew marked as a shambles for slaughter.[2] For four days, from sunrise to sunset, fanatics plied the dagger like demons from hell, stopping only to eat with hands adrip with the blood of Jewish victims. From a purpose to a fury, from a fury to a habit ran this killing of Jews, until within four days the streets of Proskunoff ran red with blood like gutters

1. He means Proskurov, a city in the Ukraine on the Bug river, southeast of Lemberg (later, L'vov, now Lwiw or L'viv) and northwest of Odessa. Jews formed more than half of the population and had a monopoly of the trade in wheat and other grain, sugar, and oil, for which the town was a shipping point. It is quite likely that in 1919, when Ukrainia was trying to resist the Bolshevik armies and restrain domestic treason, the usually stolid patience of the natives was exhausted and they did finally express forcefully their opinion of their parasites; if so, a real incident furnished the occasion for Glynn's harangue.

2. This seems an inversion of an episode recorded in the Christians' Jew-Book, Exodus, 12, 22-26. Yahweh's Yids smeared lambs' blood on the doorposts and lintels of their homes, so that when the Creator of Heaven and Earth was prowling through the dark streets of an Egyptian city at night and sniffing around the doors, he recognized the abodes of his darlings and went on his rounds, sneaking at midnight into the homes and barns of the Egyptians and strangling their children and young livestock. After that exploit, Yahweh made the adult Egyptians feebleminded, so that his Sheenies could swindle them of all their portable property that was valuable. That strangling of Egyptian offspring and, even more, the glorious swindle that followed it is still commemorated and celebrated annually by the descendants of the thieves and called the Passover.

of a slaughter house, until its homes became a morgue for thousands of slaughtered human beings whose gaping wounds cried out for vengeance and whose eyes turned to stone at the horrors they had seen.... As it has been at Proskunoff, so it has been in a hundred other places. The bloody tale hath repetition ad nauseam.

All very eloquent tear-jerking, n'est-ce pas? Thousands in a hundred places add up to several hundreds of thousands of God's First Born.[3] Sheeny Glynn must have repressed an impulse to tells us that the streets of Proskurov were so flooded with godly blood that it drowned out the motors of automobiles, and that the horrid total was another 'holocaust' of six million super-humans. But he did not indulge his lurid imagination that far, and after quoting Burns as quoted by "the Hon. Simon W. Rosendale" (who, at least, wasn't hiding his racial superiority under a spurious name), and quoting some foolish verses by Lord Byron, Glynn pressed on to his peroration:

> But Israel [4] is entitled to a place in the sun, and the Crucifixion of Jews must stop. ... For the peace of the world a League of Nations [5] let us have by all means, but for the Humanity of the World, to give Justice to the Jews and other oppressed peoples on earth, let us have a Truce of God.

3. That's what Yahweh says, Exodus, 4.22. Christians seem not to notice that this makes the Yids senior to their Jesus.

4. Glynn knew, of course, that his race had extorted the Balfour Declaration from the British as the price for supplying hordes of American cannon-fodder to defeat Germany, but he is here doubtless thinking of Israel, the international nation that infiltrates and eventually destroys all nations that can be profitably exploited.

5. A trap that the Americans evaded in 1919-21, but in 1945 the imbeciles fell into its replacement, the talk-show called the United Nations, of which the performances are a screen for the power that has ordained Perpetual War for Perpetual Peace.

What is interesting in Glynn's tirade is that although he does mention that the wicked Romanians and Poles also failed to love their parasites, he concentrates his hatred on the Ukrainians. To be sure, the White Russian armies in Ukrainia were resisting conquest by the Judaeo-Bolsheviks, for a time so effectively that they inspired hope in the captive Russians.[6] But it seems that the World-Destroyers have a specially venomous hatred of Ukrainians, for reasons that are not apparent.[7]

6. For reference to the diary of a Russian professor of French ancestry, who escaped the Jewish massacre of well-born and well-educated Russians and secretly hoped for a White victory, see Liberty Bell, February 1989, pp. 14-30.

7. I know of no historical reason for this special hatred. Modern Ukrainia includes much of the Khazar Kingdom, which flourished from the Third Century to its conquest by the Varangians in 965. (Cf. Liberty Bell, October 1993, pp. 11-19.) It also includes much of the territory of the Varangian Kingdom of Kiev that created Russia early in the Ninth Century and flourished until overwhelmed by the Mongols in 1237-40. Some Khazar and Scandinavian blood doubtless survives in the Ukrainians today, together with vestiges of the many hordes of Alans, Tatars, Bulgars, Slavs, Huns, and others who passed through the territory, but the Ukrainians of today are predominantly Aryan. (A video-tape, showing street scenes in all of the principal cities, entitled "Ukraine, the Land and Its People," is available from Golden Door-Femme Productions, P.O. Box 49345, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, V7X.1L4).

A memorable exhibition of special animosity against the Ukrainians occurred in 1932-1933, when Dzhugashvili, alias Stalin, (who may or may not have been partly Kike) and his coadjutor, Lazar Moiseevich Kaganovich, forced seven million Ukrainians to die of starvation by confiscating the crops they had raised; see the well-known books by Robert Conquest (The Harvest of Sorrow) and Miron Dolet (Execution by Hunger). This sadistic massacre, carried out with characteristic Jewish animus, delighted the Jews everywhere, including Franklin Roosevelt. If there were any sense of justice on a planet befouled by Jewry, the surviving Ukrainians could demand compensation from international Jewry and the Russians on a scale as great as the Sheenies' extortions from all nations so degenerate that they can be made to feel guilt for the fictitious Holohoax.

Glynn's fustian was not by any means the first appearance of the mystic six million and 'holocausts.' If I may trust my recollection after fifty years, I am sure that you will find the magic numerals in periodicals printed in 1908-1910, when our resident enemies were putting pressure on President Taft to denounce and revoke our very favorable commercial treaty with Russia.[8] Our country was deluged with propaganda and Yiddish wailing about the horrid pogroms in Russia, where occasionally the normally stolid Russian peasants, exasperated beyond endurance, tried to free themselves from their predators—often with some success before the Czarist government could intervene to protect the Sheenies—a concession that did not in the least diminish the Jews' hatred of civilized Russians. And I remember that the gullible Americans were told that the awful Russians—presumably including the Czar himself—had slain six million saintly Sheenies. After so many years, I cannot be certain that the word 'holocaust' appeared with the numeral, but it may have.

The 'six million' may have appeared earlier, for the Jews, trying to envenom relations between the United States and Czarist Russia, began to yammer and wail about 'pogroms' around 1870. It is true that there actually were some riots against the predatory race when Russian peasants and townsmen were exploited and swindled beyond endurance, but for the facts as distinct from Yiddish swill see Mme. Ragosin's Russian Jews and Gentiles (reprinted from The Century Magazine, April 1882, and available from Liberty Bell Publications, $1.50 + postage).

I do not know when the numeral 6,000,000 first acquired its mystic significance. God's Race has always been as deficient in arithmetic as in veracity. I remember, for example, having seen in some recent Yiddish yowl a statement that after the capture of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, Titus, as stated in the history by Josephus, had "hundreds of thousands" of God's Own slain in the arena at Caesarea. The Jew who concocted the slop doubtless assumed that the American boobs who read his article would not think of going to the text of Josephus and finding the passage in which he specifically says that the number of rebels that were disposed of in gladiatorial combats and similar exercises in the arena at Caesarea was something more than 2500.[9]

The number does not seem to have been popular in Antiquity.

The greatest of all Holohoaxes is described in the Talmud, which assures us that in A.D. 135 the remnants of the followers of the last christ of any importance took refuge in the small town of Bethar, where

For a recent example, note that when the vampires wanted to exercise the facilities given them by Ronnie Reagan to kidnap a goy and take him to Jerusalem to torture, they selected for their amusement an Ukrainian, Demjanjuk.

8. President Taft, who was an American from a distinguished family in Ohio, naturally told the Jews that it was his duty to further American interests and not to please others, but the Sheenies exerted such pressure on corrupt politicians in his Republican Party that he finally yielded, but without the slavish obeisance that the Master Race requires of goyim. They accordingly trained a shyster professor of "political science," Woodrow Wilson, for the job and installed him in the White House, in preparation for the First World War, by the simple technique of flattering Theodore Roosevelt, who suffered when he did not see his name in the newspapers, and inducing him to split the Republican Party in the election of 1912.

9. Josephus, Bell. Iud., VII, 37-38 There are no textual variants affecting the number. By any concept of international law, the insurrectionists merited death, but note that by permitting them to fight each other as gladiators, Titus gave half of them a chance to live, since the lives of victorious gladiators were always spared.

the vile Romans slew eight hundred million (800,000,000) sweet Sheenies, releasing a flood of sacred blood that rolled for forty miles to the Mediterranean and stained its waters red for miles from the shore.[10]

The Jews have always needed to be persecuted: their wails about persecution serve both to conceal the real extent of their power and to ensure the obedience of their own common people, who might otherwise relax their racial loyalty. The Jews were an international people, scattered in enclaves in the territories of other nations, at the date of our earliest secure historical evidence about them; in the sixth century B.C. the Jews were already what they were in the First Century, when Josephus boasted that "The Jewish race [is] densely interspersed among the native populations in every part of the world."[11]

Their depredations naturally aroused the resentment of the exploited natives, and although the Jews were always careful to cultivate the favor of the rulers and obtain special rights from them, the natives sometimes did give expression to their resentment. The earliest historical 'pogrom' that comes to my mind took place on the island of Elephantine in the Nile, just below the First Cataract of the Nile, in 411 B.C., when the Jewish

10. There is a variant reading, which gives the figures as 80,000,000 and the distance as four miles, but the larger figure is obviously the original and correct one, because Bethar is roughly forty miles from the Mediterranean.

11. Bell. Iud., VII, 43. I quote the translation by H. St. J. Thackery that accompanies his edition of the text in the Loeb Classical Library. My own translation would be substantially the same, but I would write "of the civilized world," since the Greek word excludes lands inhabited by savages and uncontrolled barbarians. The Greek of "densely interspersed" could also be rendered as "deeply implanted" or something like that, in keeping with the usage of Philo Judaeus, but the metaphor would convey the same essential meaning.

colony there so exasperated the Egyptian natives that they destroyed the Jews' pentagonal temple, but evidently did not kill any of the Sheenies. The indulgent Persians ordered the temple rebuilt at public expense. That occasioned further resentment by the natives, but the Jewish colony on Elephantine flourished for years thereafter.

The international race has always excited the resentment of their victims not only by economic depredations and an arrogant claim to special rights, but by sometimes failing to conceal their abiding and unappeasable hatred of civilized peoples, commonly manifested in their expectation of a christ with supernatural powers, who would lead them to a general slaughter of civilized mankind.

I have frequently mentioned the only reasonable explanation of the great fire that destroyed half of the city of Rome in A.D. 64: it was the work of the criminals who, when arrested, confessed to the crime, Jewish Bolsheviks, followers of a Jew named Chrestus, who may well have claimed to be a christ. This was a manifestation of the insane hatred that inspired a similar event a few years later and of which we may easily elicit the facts from the narrative by one of the race's most influential apologists, Josephus, who wrote not long after the event and tried to explain it away.[12]

When Seleucus Nicator founded the city of Antioch (Antiocheia, named in honor of his father) in 300 B.C., he brought in 5,300 Athenian and Macedonian colonists, many probably with wives and perhaps children, as citizens, while a large number of natives, largely Semitic, formed the rest of the new city's fairly large population. Its prosperity immediately attracted 12. Bell. Iud., VII, 43-62 and 100-111.

Jews, and Seleucus or his successor, with the impulsive generosity that is the curse of our race, gave the Jews special status and privileges, doubtless because they told him how they would otherwise be persecuted for their righteousness. They were given their own independent municipal organization, their own courts, and their own chief magistrate, who, as seems to have been usual, was both a ruler and a high priest. These special rights were recorded on tablets of bronze set up in the city's forum. Sheenies naturally flocked to the city, which by virtue of its geographical position and royal patronage, became a great city and also the largest Jewish city east of Alexandria. Of course, the Jews, as Josephus proudly tells us, became very rich and accumulated vast treasures and all the apparatus of luxury, but they seem to have exercised self-control and practised political dissimulation so cleverly that, while they were doubtless envied by the less wealthy and more honest people, they, so far as we know, excited no particular antagonism. That is what makes so significant what happened after the Jews throughout the world were excited in A.D. 66 by the insurrection in Judaea, which was finally suppressed when Jerusalem was stormed in 70 by the Roman army commanded by Titus, the son of Vespasian, who had become Emperor while the siege was in progress.

There was in Antioch a Hellenized Jew bearing the Greek name Antiochus who, although the son of the Jews' chief magistrate, obviously opted for civilization and, we may be sure, was in some respects comparable to the unfortunate Menelaus, who tried to civilize the Jews in Palestine in 171-163 B.C.[13]

13. See Liberty Bell, February 1994, pp. 17-22.

When the people of Antioch were assembled in the great amphitheatre for some civic or ceremonial occasion, the young Jew, Antiochus, disclosed to them that the chief magistrate (his father) and other leading Jews, incited by a passel of Jews recently come to Antioch (probably a delegation from one of the revolutionary factions in Jerusalem), were planning systematic arson to burn the entire city to the ground (as the followers of Chrestus had tried to do at Rome in 64 and as may well have been known in Antioch).[14] The terrified Antiochenes, we are told, had the newcomers, whom Antiochus had somehow been able to bring with him, immediately executed by burning at the stake in the amphitheatre. The Antiochenes—alas!—were so incensed by the prospect of being roasted in their beds on the appointed night that they became deficient in veneration for the righteous race and demanded that the resident Jews show an aptitude for civilized life by performing the usual (and usually perfunctory) sacrifices to the Greek and local gods; the Jews who refused to do so were massacred, according to Josephus, who goes on to say that Antiochus, with the support of the Roman troops that had doubtless come to restore order, compelled the Jews in Antioch to discontinue observance of their Sabbath.[15] Josephus admits, however, that this innovation was so popular that it was adopted in other cities.

14. Such outbreaks of racial hatred always seem almost incredible to us, because, of course the conflagration would consume all of the wealth of the conspirators that they had not previously exported to a place of safety, but compare the behavior of the wealthy Jews in Cyrene at the time of the great Jewish conspiracy of 116-117, when the enraged Jews made a smoking desert of what had been one of the most prosperous provinces of the Roman Empire, even destroying the specialized agriculture that was a source of the region's prosperity and uprooting the plants. I have often wondered whether the wealthiest Jews were really willing to sacrifice much or all of their property to blind hatred of goyim, or were compelled by the mass of enthusiastic Jews to assent to and participate in the devastation and massacres.

Well-trained Americans know that God's People can do no wrong, so they need not be told that Josephus assures us that the Jews in Antioch were as innocent as new-born babes, and that Antiochus was a wicked man.

The Antiochenes had not even scotched the snake. Despite disclosure of the plot, the arson took place and a large part of the center of the city was burned to the ground.[16]

Antiochus naturally accused the Jews of having partly carried out their plot. The people of Antioch were naturally indignant, but, as so often happens, the Jews were saved by the goyim they hate. Cn. Pompeius Collega,[17] who was the deputy of the absent

15. There is no suggestion that there was an interference with the barbarians' rite of sexually mutilating their male children or other disgusting practices, and I think it likely that Josephus would have told us, had there been. From his account, it would seem that Antiochus was made the Jews' chief magistrate, and that is quite possible. Josephus is our only source for these events, and I have tried to recover the facts from his narrative.

16. Josephus enumerates the principal buildings that were destroyed: the agora and market-place, the governmental buildings, the record-office and archives, and the several basilicae, which housed the law courts and principal financial agencies. He would have us believe that the arson was the work of some scoundrels who wanted to destroy the evidence of their debts in the record-office, and he even tells us that Collega so determined on investigation. That would mean that Collega was bribed, which is not impossible.

17. He was of praetorian rank at this time and a comparatively young man; he did not attain consular rank until 93. The legatus (governor) of Syria was necessarily a consular and normally had four legions at his disposal. The effective authority at this time was Titus, and it seems odd that Collega did not suggest submitting the matter to him, from whom a much prompter decision could have been expected. That would have involved a legal irregularity, but would not have made Titus's decision the less binding.

Roman governor of Syria, probably overawed the people with his troops before persuading them to submit their case to the Emperor in Rome.

When Titus, fresh from his victory at Jerusalem, was on his way to Antioch, the Antiochenes, almost en masse, went out to greet and honor him with acclamations—and to beseech him to expel the Sheenies from Antioch and free the city of its domestic enemies. Titus refused and did not stop in Antioch. When he returned later for a ceremony in the amphitheatre, the people, including the most prominent citizens, again earnestly presented their urgent petition, but he obdurately refused.[18] The Antiochenes then begged him at least to remove the bronze tablets that bestowed such great special rights and privileges on the Kikes, but Titus again refused and reaffirmed the extraordinary status that the Seleucids had bestowed on Jews.

Why did Titus reject the pleas of the Antiochenes? We may regard as virtually certain the answer to that question, and it is worth stating, although we cannot hope that some of our fellow racists will profit by the object lesson.

Titus had a quite shop-worn and almost middle-aged mistress, a Jewess who had some mysterious power to fascinate him. She was the famous Berenice, daughter of Herod Agrippa I, whom Claudius had made King of the Jews (under informal Roman supervision). She had been married, first, to a Jew who was

18. Josephus tells us that Titus justified his decision by saying, "Their own country to which, as Jews, they ought in that case to be banished, has been destroyed, and no other place would now receive them." Judaea had not been destroyed and was still full of Jews who were not known to have been implicated in the insurrection, and it is likely that many of the insurgents had escaped capture. Furthermore, it is probable that some cities in Asia Minor were inhabited by people as stupid as Americans.

the nephew of Philo Judaeus and the younger brother of the notorious Jew, Tib. Julius Alexander[19]; second, to her uncle, Herod, Prince of Chalcis; third, she became the mistress of her brother, Agrippa II, but could not legally marry him; fourth, she fascinated a goy, Polemon II, King of the little state of Olba, and induced the fool to become a convert to Judaism before she left him; fifth, she, so to speak, remarried Agrippa II; and sixth, she latched onto Titus, whom she so fascinated that she besotted him. Titus took her with him as his mistress when he returned to Rome, where she enjoyed the honors and influence normally reserved for wives, and even thought of marrying her, but his father, Vespasian, was not an idiot and finally succeeded in extricating Titus from Berenice's hypnotic or erotic spell. So there you have in real life a Jewess comparable to Hadassah, alias Esther, the heroine of the well-known fairy tale that was devised to teach Jewesses their racial duty.

Now you have seen how narrowly an awful 'pogrom' was averted at Antioch. I will not bore you with other examples. Space in Liberty Bell is limited.

When there are no 'pogroms,' as in Germany during the Second World War, the Jews have to resort to such impostures as their now celebrated Holohoax about the 'six million' who were exterminated by the Germans and then slithered into the United States to join their congeners in preying upon the befuddled Americans. But why 'six'? I leave that problem to you.

THE KENNEDY MYTH

I have occasionally cited in these pages a highly intelligent Jew, Eric Margolis, who is on the editorial staff of 19. Who, by the way, is credited with having precipitated a holocaust of 50,000 sweet Jews in Alexandria.

the Toronto Sun, to which he contributes a column that is always worth reading. A Jewish journalist is able to state boldly, when it pleases him, truths which would make an Aryan journalist unemployed overnight.

I shall here transcribe excerpts from the column published in 5 December 1993, content to see the truth told without apology:

> I don't want to let the latest eruption of Kennedy-mania pass without some comment on the massive campaign of historical disinformation about blessed 'St. Jack' being laid on us by Hollywood and the media. ...
>
> The real Jack Kennedy hardly resembled the gaudy, rouged, gilded icon we are shown today. Those, like me, who lived through the Kennedy years, recall a far different president.
>
> First, there was Kennedy the sleazy Boston ward politician. Kennedy only beat out [sic] Richard Nixon for the presidency through criminal fraud in two states. His ally in Chicago, Mayor Daley, performed the miracle of getting tens of thousands of dead Democrats to rise from the grave and vote for Kennedy. Lyndon Johnson's stuffing of ballot boxes gave Kennedy victory in Texas.[1] Mafia money and muscle also played an important role in making Kennedy president.
>
> Once in office, Kennedy took little interest in domestic affairs. He plunged into more glamorous foreign policy....
>
> Nikita Khrushchev met the young Kennedy at Vienna. He left convinced that the president was a shallow, inexperienced weakling, a mere "pretty boy" in the Russian's

1. And also made Lyndon Vice-President, ready to take over when Kennedy was expunged in Dallas. When he secured the nomination for the vice-presidency, Lyndon was told that if he and Kennedy were elected, he would have a very good chance of becoming president in two or three years. A recent issue of the medical journal MD contained an article on Kennedy's disease, on which I will report separately.

words. Khrushchev's opinion was reinforced by Kennedy's scandalous failure to react when the Berlin Wall was put up. During the Bay of Pigs fiasco, Kennedy and his alter ego, Robert MacNamara, father of the Edsel, made the fatal and shameful decision to deny invading Cuban exiles promised air cover and direct U.S. military support. Kennedy blamed this disaster on the CIA and purged its senior ranks of men who were professionals and patriots.[2] ...

The Cuban missile crisis was billed as a great victory for Kennedy. In reality, it was a victory for the Soviet Union. Kennedy secretly agreed to remove U.S. missiles from Turkey and Italy and undertook never to invade Cuba. Castro was thus saved and Cuba turned into a Soviet Gibraltar.

At home, Jack Kennedy rubbed shoulders with gangsters like Sam Giancana. He even had an affair with a girlfriend of Giancana's who was sent by the mob to compromise Kennedy. ... Other celebrities tainted by gangster associations, like [Kennedy's] brother-in-law Peter Lawford, Sammy Davis Jr. and Frank Sinatra, clustered around the Kennedys. Mobsters boasted they had Kennedy 'in their pockets.'

Kennedy's blunders continued. He began the calamitous policy of government deficit spending. And, worst of all, Kennedy and MacNarnara got the U.S. into the terrible, no-win war in Vietnam that cost 55,000 American lives.[3] ...

2. It is quite possible that the entire betrayal of the Cubans was engineered by Jackanapes, who then used it to eliminate from the C.I.A. the remaining professionals who favored the American people and had not sold out to the "One World" gang of our implacable enemies.

3. So much for the myth which disfigures the book, JFK, the CIA, Vietnam, and the Plot to Assassinate John F. Kennedy, by Colonel L. Fletcher Prouty, who exposed much of the plot, but, as I pointed out in Liberty Bell, March 1993, pp. 22-34, also perpetrated a monstrous cover-up, concealing the real powers behind the assassination and their purposes. He was guilty of such preposterous nonsense as a claim that "the Kennedys ... were going to prepare Americans for peace"!

The media loved the Kennedys and made them into a family of gods and demigods.

Even so, Kennedy's blunders were so egregious that if he had lived to run again in 1964, he would probably have lost to the capable but untelegenic [sic] Richard Nixon. Assassination saved Kennedy both from defeat and from the severe censure of history.

I can only thank Mr. Margolis for having used his privileged status to state publicly in a newspaper of large circulation what will be remembered as the facts by every man who was an adult in 1960 and observed events while he was not intoxicated by the malodorous swill continuously squirted in the faces of Americans by our enemies' poison-pen press and boob tubes.

But is it not significant that the facts needed to be stated? Men (and women) who were professionally involved or who were objective and critical observers cannot have forgotten the events of 1960-1964. (That will enable you to estimate the magnitude of the pressures or inducements that made Colonel Prouty abort his book by sanctifying the Kennedys and by using a "military-industrial establishment" to hide the dire force that decreed the decease of Jackanapes.) They, to be sure, are comparatively few. But what about the many thousands of persons who attended the Indignation Meetings and applauded enthusiastically? Were their memories washed out by the assassination and the theatrical spectacles that were staged afterward? Can they have forgotten? I wish I knew.

The majority of Americans, accustomed by Christianity to ignore reality, probably never noticed what was really happening to the country they had given away and were not willing to recover, or, if they did perchance notice some event that gave them pause, they quickly forgot. Years ago a professional liar named Drew Pearson, then at the height of his popularity, was said to have engaged experts in "public relations" to "study" his output of propaganda; they reported that within a space of thirteen weeks (magic number!) he could completely reverse his position on a given issue and his readers and auditors, except a minority so tiny as to be inconsiderable, would not perceive that he had done so, That, I fear, measures the mnemonic power of the average American.

That is why they do not perceive even the most manifest evidence of the great mundial conspiracy of which they are the destined victims. Their little minds, continually dimmed by Lethean oblivion, do not perceive even a current segment of that conspiracy.

Recently another major advance toward the final liquidation of the Aryan boobs was made by the act of treason called the North American Free Trade Agreement, which was rammed through the congress by open bribery at the expense of its victims. It probably had not been read by any of the assembled thieves who voted for it.[4]

4. When the drive to rush the iniquitous measure through the Congress began, a friend of mine, having seen only vague reports of its provisions in the press, resolved to find out what the text actually said. When he called the office of a Senator, he found that the great man's staff had only a hazy notion of what was in the bill, and did not know where a copy of it could be obtained. By persistent inquiry, my friend finally ascertained that a copy could be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, from whom he learned that the bill before the Congress consisted of four volumes, of which the last two were merely lists of the American, Canadian, and Mexican tariffs that would be abolished: the operative part of the bill was in the first two volumes, totaling about two thousand pages, of which he could buy a copy for $80.00. He found that if he made the purchase in the usual way, his copy of the two volumes would not arrive until after the date set for a vote on the bill, but, by use of persistence and a credit card, he finally succeeded in obtaining the two volumes by air express (at his cost, of course). Being one of the very few Americans willing to pay more than $90.00 to find out what was going to be done to our doomed nation, he read through the two thousand pages, discovering that anyone who read only the first hundred pages or so would not discover the really drastic subversion of the country for which provision was made a few hundred pages later. He is probably one of the very few persons, aside from the plotters who drafted the act of treason, who have read the North American Free Trade Agreement. It is highly unlikely that any of the Senators and Representatives who voted for the measure had read it. Why should they take the time to read the two volumes? It was just another piece of legislation to hasten the liquidation of the self-doomed American people; all that mattered to each legislator was how much he could get as a bribe from the Rodham-Clinton pair—a bribe which would, of course, be paid by the boobs who had voted for him because they had the silly notion that he would represent them.

Many Americans who sensed the menace to their and their children's future indulged in the futile gesture of writing to the senators and congressmen they had stupidly elected. Of the mail received by congressmen on this subject, fully 85% vigorously protested the proposed abolition of our frontiers. The letters were, of course, dumped into the waste baskets by the hirelings whose duty was to note the contents and perhaps, if their bosses thought it worth while, mail ambiguous form letters at public expense. Congressmen are not in the least influenced by the wishes of the boobs whom they are supposed to represent.

Members of the Congress must feel only contempt for the stupid animals that pay taxes and vote for them, but some probably pity the dumb brutes and may feel some reluctance further to afflict them. On the quality of the Congress I again quote Mr. Margolis, who, on 12 September 1993, reported a visit to the fetid swamp called Washington, D.C., where he saw "Senators and congressmen strutt[ing] about, surrounded by clouds of fawning lobbyists and simpering sycophants."

> Any legislator here worth his salt can smell money a mile away. A very senior senator whom I had never met in my life came up to me, shook my hand vigorously, squeezed my shoulder, and effused, "Great to see you again! Let's do lunch."
>
> A second senator waved to me, financial lust glinting his eyes. A shoal of congressmen gave me a quick once over, checking for power symbols like big gold Rolex watches or Gucci loafers.

(He goes on to record the embarrassment of the legislators caused by the conflict between two powerful Jewish groups, because they cannot foresee which faction of their masters will triumph and reward obedience and punish negligence.)

The minority of Americans who are aware that the ratified Free Trade Agreement will complete the destruction of the national economy and flood the country with hereditary enemies will blame the bribed Congress and Mrs. & Mr. Rodham-Clinton for the disaster. They will be mistaken. That unsavory pair, and the gang of aliens, traitors, and degenerates with which they naturally surrounded themselves, did no more than carry out a plan of which the public has had knowledge for thirty-two years.

This small part of the plot to obtain unconstested ownership of the planet, which has engrossed the efforts of the international vampires for twenty-two centuries, was inaugurated in 1962 by Colonel Prouty's hero, Jackanapes Kennedy.

On the fourth of July [!] 1962, Kennedy publicly stated that the concept of national independence was obsolete and that "we must move on ... to interdependence upon [sic] other nations." In a viable nation with an alert citizenry, that avowal would have been immediately followed by impeachment and removal from the office of the young punk was betraying it.

The significance of that slightly veiled statement and of the Trade Expansion Act that was almost simultaneously rammed through a venal Congress was not overlooked by competent observers. That dire menace was, for example, clearly expounded by Dan Smoot, the author of The Invisible Government, in his newsletter of 6 August 1962, and by quite a few other writers. It was known, of course, to the patriots who organized the famous Indignation Meetings, although their principal emphasis was on Kennedy's open collaboration with Communist nations in Europe and sabotage of our armed forces for their benefit.

The original plan outlined in the Trade Expansion Act—note that its title is typical of the sneaking calembours used to delude the public—called for its implementation by a gang of plotters, the Jews' stooges who were working for years to manufacture the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which they have just concluded and are about to impose on their American victims. It was decided, however, to sabotage the American economy by a separate promotion, the North American Free Trade Agreement, and to delay the culmination of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade until the boobs had been subjected to that preliminary act of Congressional treason.

The purpose of the economic sabotage has been openly proclaimed by the great Jewish satrap, Avraham ben Elazar, alias Dr. Henry Kissinger,[5] who publicly stated that the North American Free Trade Agreement "is not a conventional trade agreement but the architect of a new international system ... the most creative step toward a new world order taken by any group of countries since the [fake] end of the [fake] Cold War." Like Philo Judaeus twenty centuries ago,[6] he rejoices in anticipation of the now proximate time when nations will be abolished and the whole world will be subjected to "One World" under the supervision of old Yahweh, who is now often redefined in the well-known maxim, "God is the Jewish People."

5. His real name was disclosed by the Supreme Rabbinic Court of America in its decree of 20 June 1971.

Well, the dim-witted Americans, who have been joyfully reducing themselves to total slavery by easy stages since 1913, ignored the openly disclosed purposes of the Master Race and its lackeys in 1962 and for every one of thirty-two years thereafter, and it is now almost certainly too late for them to save themselves from the degradation and eventual graves that await them. But there is no indication that a majority of them even wish to save themselves and their children.

In the old days, when farmers were not too lazy to raise chickens, a housewife usually prepared for Sunday dinner by going into the chicken yard and grasping a hen by the neck, holding it thus as she carried it to the block on which she cut off its head. For some minutes, the helpless hen was afraid of what was going to happen to it. It differed in that respect from Americans. they are not afraid—or if, perchance, they have some twinges of vague apprehension, they quickly drug themselves into a mindless stupor by lapping up the ordure that pours constantly from the sewers of the Jews' television.

6. For the text and translation of one of the many passages that could be quoted from Philo's works, see Liberty Bell, February 1994, p. 15.

It seems apparent that the boobus Americanus is no longer a viable species of mammalian life. The real question is whether the cause was biological degeneration of its genetic plasma or infection by a mental virus that gradually eroded and finally destroyed its racial immune system.

THE SANE MADMAN

In January 1977 Professor Valery Nikolayevich Yemelyanov, noted for his expert knowledge of Semitic Languages, was arrested by the Soviet Secret Police. He had circulated to a small list of select Russians a confidential memorandum (probably reproduced by mimeograph) in which he discussed the plight of the Russian people under Jewish rule, but he had not escaped the surveillance of B'nai B'rith or whatever name is given in Russia to the Yiddish cowboys who patrol their herds of goyim. A copy of the confidential document had been stolen by the sneaking spies; it was sufficient to convict the unfortunate scholar of failing to venerate God's Master Race.

In the Jewish Chronicle (London), 25 July 1980, an eminent Sheeny, Dr. Howard Spier, crowed with obscene joy as he reported that the "paranoid" Professor Yemelyanov, who had wickedly denied the sanctity of God's Children, had been fired from his academic position and incarcerated in a "psychiatric hospital." If the psychiatrists did more than obey orders, they must have reasoned that only a madman would expose himself to the savage punishment that the Holy Race inflicts on dogs, Aryans, and other animals that disobey their masters.

That was the extent of my information when I referred to the brave but unfortunate scholar in The Enemy of Our Enemies.[1] He was not mentioned in Walter Laqueur's elaborate hatchet-job on patriotic Russians.[2]

I now learn that Yemelyanov survived in the insane asylum until Gorbachev began his revision of the Soviet Empire, when he was released. He had endured his long captivity and was still sane. He approached the leading Russian organization of nationalists, Pamyat, but refused to join it, since it calls for the restoration of the Russian Empire as it existed before it was destroyed by the Jews in 1917, and that includes restoration of the primacy of the Russian Orthodox Church and the epidemic Christianity that will always turn up evangelical holy men like the notorious Rasputin.

1. Published, together with Francis Parker Yockey's The Enemy of Europe, by Liberty Bell Publications, 1981 ($11.50, postpaid); see p. 106.

2. Cf. Liberty Bell, December 1993, pp. 16-17. Laqueur's book, evidently accurate in the factual details reported (and, for that matter, accurate as a depiction of the Yids' confidence in their immense superiority over their subject races) has a section (pp. 254-257) on Vladmir Volfovich Zhirinovsky, whose popularity with the Russian people was manifested when he received six million votes as an opponent of the Kikes' candidate, Yeltsin, for the Presidency, but was ignored by the jewspapers in the United States until his party was found to be the strongest single political party in the recent election of members of the Duma (Russian Parliament, now given the name it had before 1917). Laqueur, who says that Zhirinovsky's father was "apparently a Jew," is presumably the source of the now current reports that the phenomenally popular Russian is really a renegade Kike. In any case, since Zhirinovsky's mother was admittedly a White Russian, he cannot be a Jew by orthodox standards, but only a Mischling. One wonders whether Laqueur's "apparently a Jew" has any basis other than the father's name, Wolf; that, to be sure, is a name commonly assumed by Jews as a disguise, because it is (like Montague, etc.) a characteristic Aryan personal name (as in the many English names derived from it, Adolf, Botolph, Rudolph, Randolph, Ralph, Randal, Raoul, Rolf, Wolfgang, Wolfram, etc.), but it may well have been genuinely Aryan when borne by Zhirinovsky's father.

What is more interesting, photocopies of Yemelyanov's confidential document or of a book that he actually published before his arrest,[3] which has a title that may be rendered as 'Dezionization,' were smuggled out of Russia to some place in the Near East, and have now reached at least one Aryan who can appreciate its significance.

I am told that Yemelyanov begins with a statement that catastrophic breaks in Russian history occurred in 988 and 1917, when alien, anti-Aryan ideologies were imposed on the Russian people. Needless to say, 1917 saw the beginning of the Jewish take-over of the Russian Empire. Yemelyanov then says approximately this: "In 988 international Zion succeeded in destroying the principal and by that time the last remaining center of Aryan thought by changing it, through universalist Judaism, into the Eastern branch of Christianity. Thus the strongest remaining race of native Europeans was subjected to Judaeophile mass-conditioning and made to spit upon the whole of Aryan history, philosophy, and culture."

In 988,[4] the Varangian (Viking) monarch Vladimir I (c. 956-1015), visited Constantinople, the capital of the Byzantine Empire that called itself Roman, then ruled by Basil II (c. 958-1025).

Vladimir had inherited one of the Varangian (Viking) principalities in what is now Ukrainia and

3. I am not certain which. It is entirely possible that Yemelyanov had published a book, relying for protection on the official Soviet policy, which made hostility toward Jews a capital crime, but denounced Zionism as a Jewish heresy that was detrimental to the Soviet state because it promoted the emigration of Jews from Russia.

4. The date is not quite certain—it is also given as 987 and 989—but we need not quibble about such details.

had the good sense to go personally to his homeland, Scandinavia, to recruit warriors for his army. He thus became "Prince of All the Russias" and, from his capital at Kiev ruled a realm that extended from the Ukraine to the Baltic, included the site of modern St. Petersburg on the north and what had been the kingdom of the Khazars[5] on the southeast, while his fleets patrolled all the navigable rivers of what is now central Russia. Vladimir, his aristocracy of fellow Nordics, and his subjects, many of them Slavs, were healthy "pagans." He is said to have maintained a harem of eight hundred concubines, but the number was doubtless exaggerated by Christian scribblers who wanted to show how sinful he had been.[6]

Vladimir was impressed by the vast size and splendor of Constantinople and the magnificence of its great buildings,[7] by the ostentatious luxury, pomp and ceremony surrounding the Emperor "of the Romans" (to give him his official title), and even more, no doubt, by the overwhelming military power of an Empire that was close to his own realm, and perhaps also by its elaborate, refined, and highly literate culture, which at that time still preserved a major part of Greek

5. On the Khazars, cf. Liberty Bell, October 1993, pp. 11-19.

6. He did have a number of pagan wives, who were the mothers of sons who revolted against him in his last years, doubtless rejecting his new religion.

7. Like the Germanic invaders of the Roman Empire in the West, he probably confused architectural and engineering skill with the prevalent superstition. It is true that even a modern sceptic feels a moment of awe when he stands beneath the great dome of Hagia Sophia. Envoys whom Vladimir sent to reconnoitre are said to have been so impressed by the magnificence of the city that they reported they wondered whether they were in heaven or on earth. That story, however, comes to us, like most of our information about Vladimir, from a Christian source.

literature.[8] The advantages of an alliance with the Christian state that was then the major world power were obvious to him.

Basil II, in turn, saw the advantages of an alliance with the Kingdom of Kiev. The nucleus of his own army was formed by Varangian mercenaries, and both realms were menaced by the incursions of Turanian barbarians from central Asia, while Basil's conquest of Armenia was effected primarily to erect an impassable barrier against the rising power of the Arabs and their Moslem subjects in Persia, since Byzantine armies had temporarily contained Islamic expansion in southern Asia Minor. Basil accordingly offered his sister, Anna, to Vladimir as a wife who would consolidate the mutually advantageous alliance, on the sole condition that Vladimir become a Christian.

Vladimir, no doubt, was rationally exempt from fanaticism, but saw the utility of a religion that seemed to be a part of Byzantine power, and, unaware of its potentially poisonous nature, saw also the political utility of that religion in his own country, where he and a tiny minority of Scandinavians ruled a polyglot and polyphyletic population that included many Slavic tribes, Khazars, and other potentially dissident or mutinous elements. He accepted Princess Anna's hand in marriage and a brilliant alliance. He was duly baptized, and seems to have let his personal prestige disseminate the new religion throughout his realm,

8. We naturally wish that we knew more about Vladimir's reactions. His own subjects were so polyphyletic that he probably thought normal the population of Constantinople, a White but multi-racial conglomerate, such as can be ruled only by an absolute despotism, but did he notice that the city was lousy with Jews? Did he not perceive the warning that was implicit in the icons of Byzantine art, which depict saints and emperors as emaciated, sickly, and unkempt ascetics? Did he have no sense of the Christian denial of nature and all that makes life worth living?

although he also seems to have used coercion in his later years, perhaps influenced by the 'Caesaropapism' of the Byzantine Emperors, i.e., the assumption that the despot was, ex officio, the supreme head of the Church, so that dissent from his theological notions was a kind of treason.

The alliance, by the way, was a proof of Basil's statesmanship. Contingents of Varangian warriors sent by his brother-in-law helped him suppress a revolt in Asia Minor and later contributed to his conquest of Bulgaria (1000-1015), whence he derived the title Bulgaroctonus[9] in commemoration of the ruthless victory that extended his realm to the Adriatic.

To foster a religion that served to content his subjects and ensure their loyalty, Vladimir founded many churches and other Christian institutions, and was rewarded at his death by becoming Saint Vladimir.

Such were historical antecedents of the event in 988 that Yemelyanov regards as a catastrophe to our race.

His indictment of Christianity as a Jewish weapon comparable to Bolshevism is probably a cogent work, noteworthy because it is written from a standpoint outside the lands that were subdued and undermined by Western Christianity. I am glad that, according to my informant, a German translation of Yemelyanov's Russian text is now in preparation. I hope to see it published soon.

ANNIVERSARY

In November 1993 Candour[1] published a special issue to mark its fortieth anniversary—an issue that

9. "Slaughterer of Bulgarians."

1. Candour Publishing Co., Forest House, Liss Forest, Hampshire (GU33-7DD); $25.00 per annum by airmail to the United States.

was only slightly delayed by the two surgical operations undergone by its editor, the indomitable Rosine de Bounevialle, who has ably edited the monthly journal for twenty years since the death of its founder.

Candour was founded in October 1953 by A. K. Chesterton, who must not be confused with his cousin, G. K. Chesterton—a confusion that is made more likely by the occasional reprinting of articles by the latter in Candour, as in the December issue.

Gilbert Keith Chesterton, to give the full name that the author, in keeping with British usage, never put upon his published works, is now generally better known, especially for The Man Who was Thursday, which may be taken as either the vivid narrative of a bad dream that was realistically presentational or a rather awkward satire on British Counter-Intelligence and Scotland Yard, and for a series of detective stories in which his hero, a Roman Catholic priest named Father Brown, solves mysteries that are commonly rather strained tours de force,[2] while exhibiting an engaging humility and pointing a moral with no great subtlety. G. K. Chesterton was also a master of paradox, which he used adroitly in political articles written from a Roman Catholic standpoint.

Arthur Keith Chesterton, to give again a full name that did not appear in print, is likely to be remembered much longer than his cousin, if our civilization survives the present to have a renaissance in some now unpredictable future. He was an English gentleman who had the combination of sagacity and courage that makes

2. If you object to my evaluation of the stories, stand, for example, on the roof of a five-storey building and hurl a hammer with such accuracy that it splits the skull of man standing in the street below. If you succeed, you will have proved that "The Hammer of Thor" is not a flimsy tour de force, and we can go on to consider other tales.

men great. One of my most precious possessions it the letter of farewell that he wrote me when he knew that death was imminent. It was worthy of a Roman of the great age. He faced annihilation with the courage with which brave men accept the inevitable. His brilliantly perceptive books, The New Unhappy Lords [available from Liberty Bell Publications, $6.00 + $1.50 postage, Order #14007] and Facing the Abyss, are kept in print by Miss de Bounevialle's Candour Publishing Co.

He founded Candour in the hope of preserving the British Empire from dismemberment and dissolution by the traitors and aliens who had taken control of the British government. He founded the League of Empire Loyalists to rally the British at home and overseas to the defence of their already shaken and imperiled empire, hoping that the British dominions, Canada, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand, would have the wisdom to remain steadfastly loyal to their wide-spread nation and resist efforts to sunder them from the mother country,[3] and that the British in India and other colonies would understand the need to enforce loyalty to the crown. He deprecated the declarations of independence by South Africa and later by Rhodesia, wisely foreseeing that their best chance for survival depended on resisting the efforts of traitors to detach them from the Empire, in which they could, by remaining, fight for the survival of their race and civilization.

The fate of the League of Empire Loyalists is what we may regard as normal in all national, racial, and historical organizations that are flawed by "democratic" constitutions. While Mr. Chesterton was in South Africa, a squad of young men, eager to rise and shine at any cost to the cause to which they had professed loyalty, carried out a "palace revolution" and, no doubt unintentionally, became the League's undertakers.

3. On Winston Churchill's treasonable willingness to sacrifice the British in Australia to further his (and his masters') insane war against Germany, see Liberty Bell, December 1993, pp. 7-8.

The anniversary issue of Candour opens with an editorial by Rosine de Bounevialle, who had been a loyal Loyalist and preserved the magazine as a monument to its founder. She urges her readers to "stand to our arms," and encourages them with hopes that are partly based on Christian considerations.[4] An article by Derek Holland describes the influence of the periodical on him in his youth, recounts his observations when he called at Forest House, the devoted editor's home, and concludes with the promise that "from Sacrifice comes Victory." Four pages reproduce Phyllis Schlafly's summary of the anti-American animus of Ruth Ginsberg, whom Mrs. & Mr. Rodham-Clinton appointed to the Revolutionary Tribunal that is still called a Supreme Court. And among other articles, there is an excellent report on the tragedy of Rhodesia by a former officer in the Rhodesian Police, who witnessed the reversion to savagery. But most interesting are the pages of photographic reproductions from newspapers of the 1950s that described and illustrated with photographs the efforts of members of the League to arouse some perception of reality in the sluggish minds of the majority of Englishmen.

Candour is proof of what can be accomplished by one woman's courage and devotion. ❑

4. Miss de Bounevialle is a Roman Catholic, but her Candour Publishing Co. is the British distributor of the book by Mary Ball Martínez, The Undermining of the Catholic Church (Mexico City, Hilmac, 1991), who, as a foreign correspondent stationed at the Vatican, witnessed the capture of the Church by its present Masonic masters.

AVIATION:

A Product of the White Man's Genius
Col. Charles Lindbergh considers its benefits and dangers

Editorial introduction and Terminal Note by Professor R.P. Oliver

It is the habit of our domestic enemies to deny that they are engaged in a conspiracy against us, and to pretend that the consequences of their actions just happened somehow and could not have been foreseen. Unthinking Americans believe that, although our great War Criminal once indiscreetly boasted that nothing of political importance happens by chance, since every such event is carefully planned in advance.

The following article by the celebrated aviator, Charles A. Lindbergh, will suffice to prove that the consequences of the Jews' war against Germany were obvious before it began—so obvious that the calamities which now afflict us must have been planned and willed by the plotters who contrived the disaster that is called Second World War, and by all intelligent members of the race for which they acted.

When Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his partner, Dzhugashvili, alias Stalin, with the help of their stooge, Winston Churchill, finally got the war started on 3 September 1939, Charles A. Lindbergh understood at once the malign purpose of the war and foresaw its consequences. Eight days later, on 11 September, he wrote the following article, which he sent to the Reader's Digest a few days later. It was published in the November issue of that magazine, which was then the most widely circulated periodical in the United States. For a few details about the author, see the terminal note that follows the article.

Colonel Lindbergh's article was reprinted by John Tyndall in the February issue of his Spearhead,[1] but the Jewish dominion over Britain prevented him from emphasizing editorially the accuracy of the article and its implications.

AVIATION has struck a delicately balanced world, a world where stability was already giving way to the pressure of new dynamic forces, a world dominated by a mechanical, materialistic, Western European civilization. Aviation is a product of that civilization, borne on the crest of its conquest, developed by its spirit of adventure, typical of its science, its industry, its outlook. Typical also of its strength and its weakness, its vanity and its self-destruction—man flung upward in the face of God, another Icarus to dominate the sky, and, in turn, to be dominated by it; for eventually the laws of nature determine the success of human effort and measure the value of human inventions in that divinely complicated, mathematically unpredictable, development of life at which Science has shied the name of Evolution.

Aviation seems almost a gift from heaven to those Western nations who were already the leaders of their era, strengthening their leadership, their confidence, their dominance over other peoples. It is a tool specially shaped for Western hands, a scientific art which others only copy in a mediocre fashion, another barrier between the teeming millions of Asia and the Grecian inheritance of Europe—one of those priceless possessions which permit the White race to live at all in a pressing sea of Yellow, Black and Brown.

1. P.O. Box 117, Welling, Kent (DA16-3DW); £12.65 by surface mail; £15.70 by airmail.

DANGERS

But aviation, using it symbolically as well as in its own right, brings two great dangers, one peculiar to our modern civilization, the other older than history. Since aviation is dependent on the intricate organization of life and industry, it carries with it the environmental danger of a people too far separated from the soil and from the sea—the danger of the physical decline which so often goes with a high intellectual development, of that spiritual decline which seems invariably to accompany an industrial life, of that racial decline which follows physical and spiritual mediocrity.

A great industrial nation may conquer the world in a span of a single life, but its Achilles' heel is time. Its children, what of them? The second and third generations, of what numbers and stuff will they be? How long can men thrive between walls of brick, walking on asphalt pavements, breathing the fumes of coal and of oil, growing, working, dying with hardly a thought of wind, and sky, and fields of grain, seeing only machine-made beauty, the mineral-like quality of life? This is our modern danger—one of the waxen wings of flight. It may cause our civilization to fall unless we act quickly to counteract it, unless we realize that human character is more important than efficiency, that education consists of more than the mere accumulation of knowledge.

But the other great danger is more easily recognized, because it has occurred again and again through history. It is the ember of war, fanned by every new military weapon, flaming today as it has never flamed before. It is the old internal struggle among a dominant people for power—blind, insatiable, suicidal. Western nations are again at war, a war likely to be more prostrating than any in the past, a war in which the White Race is bound to lose and the others bound to gain, a war which may easily lead our civilization through more Dark Ages if it survives at all.

In this war, aviation is as important a factor as it has been a cause—a cause due to its effect on the balance of strength between nations, a factor because of the destruction and death it hurls on earth and sea.

Air power is new to all our countries. It brings advantages to some and weakness to others; it calls for readjustment everywhere. If only there were some way to measure the changing character of men, some yardstick to reapportion influence among the nations, some way to demonstrate in peace the strength of arms in war. But with all of its dimensions, its clocks, and weights, and figures, Science fails us when we ask a measure for the rights of men. They cannot be judged by numbers, by distance, weight, or time; or by counting heads without a thought of what may lie within. Those intangible qualities of character, such as courage, faith, and skill, evade all systems, slip through the bars of every cage. They can be recognized, but not measured. They lie more in a glance between two men than in any formula of mathematics. They form the unseen strength of an army, the genius of a people.

Likewise, in judging aviation, in its effect on modern nations, no satisfactory measurement of strength exists. It is bound to geography, environment, and racial character so closely that an attempt to judge by numbers would be like counting Greeks at Marathon. Some men and some nations have grown wings. What advantage will they gain? What new influence can they exert? To judge this one must look not only at their aviation but at them, at the geography of their country, at their problems of existence, at their habits of life, Mountains, coastlines, great distances, ground fortifications, all those safeguards of past generations, lose their old significance as man takes to his wings. The English Channel, the snow-capped Alps, the expanses of Russia, are now looked on from a different height. The forces of Hannibal, Drake and Napoleon moved at best with the horses' gallop or the speed of wind on sail. Now aviation brings a new concept of time and distance to the affairs of men. It demands adaptability to change, places a premium on quickness of thought and speed of action.

Military strength has become more dynamic and less tangible. A new alignment of power has taken place, and there is no adequate peacetime measure for its effect on the influence of nations. There seems no way to agree on the rights it brings to some and takes from others. The rights of men within a nation are readjusted in each generation by laws of inheritance—land changes hands as decades pass, fortunes are taxed from one generation to the next, ownership is no more permanent than life. But among nations themselves there is no similar provision to reward virility and penalize decay, no way to reapportion the world's wealth as tides of human character ebb and flow—except by the strength of armies, in the last analysis, military strength is measurable only by its own expenditure, by the prostration of one contender while the other can still stagger on the field—and all about the wolves of lesser stature abide their time to spring on both the warriors.

DISASTROUS WAR

We, the heirs of European culture, are on the verge of a disastrous war, a war within our own family of nations, which will reduce the strength and destroy the treasures of the White Race, a war which may even lead to the end of our civilization. While we stand poised for battle, Oriental guns are turning westward, Asia presses towards us on the Russian border, foreign races stir relentlessly. It is time to turn from our quarrels and build our white ramparts again. This alliance with foreign races means nothing but death to us. It is our turn to guard our heritage from Mongol, Persian and Moor, before we become engulfed in a limitless foreign sea. Our civilization depends on a united strength among ourselves; on a strength too great for foreign armies to challenge; on a Western Wall of race and arms which can hold back a Genghis Khan or the infiltration of inferior blood; on an English fleet, a German air force, a French army, an American nation, standing together as guardians of our common heritage, sharing strength, dividing influence.

Our civilization depends on peace among Western nations, and therefore on united strength, for Peace is a virgin who dare not show her face without strength, her father, for protection. We can have peace and security only so long as we band together to preserve that most priceless possession, our inheritance of European blood, only as long as we guard ourselves against attack by foreign armies and dilution by foreign races.

We need peace to let our best men live to work out those more subtle, but equally dangerous, problems brought by this new environment in which we dwell, to give us time to turn this materialistic trend, to stop prostrating ourselves before this modern idol of mechanical efficiency, to find means of combining freedom, spirit, and beauty with industrial life—a peace which will bring character, strength and security back to Western peoples.

With all the world around our borders, let us not commit racial suicide by internal conflict. We must learn from Athens and Sparta before all of Greece is lost.

Terminal Note

The author of the foregoing article was the son and namesake of Charles Augustus Lindbergh (1859-1924), a man of Swedish ancestry, who was elected Congressman from Minnesota in 1906 and constantly reëlected thereafter. He perceived the disastrous consequences of the Federal Reserve Act of 1912, by which the Americans began the gradual surrender of their country, and he inserted in the Congressional Record, where they may still be read, documents that proved that the "financial panics" in the early part of this century had been created by a conspiracy of bankers, doubtless for the purpose of inducing the boobs to alienate control of their own currency.

When the disastrous war in Europe "suddenly" began in September 1914, according to a schedule that was known to Winston Churchill two years earlier, Congressman Lindbergh strenuously opposed the efforts of the shyster in the White House to induce the Americans to commit the supreme folly of emulating the European insanity. And he had the signal courage to continue to proclaim the truth even after the boobs had been stampeded into an attack on Germany.

The Federal government accordingly began outrageously illegal efforts to prevent his reëlection, at first through their hirelings and stooges in Minnesota, but finally, after the publication of his able book, Why is Your Country at War?, by suppressing the book by flagrantly unconstitutional means and a terrorist raid on his home, conducted by agents of the "Justice" Department under the command of an ambitious and unscrupulous young man named John Edgar Hoover.[1]

The Congressman's son, Charles Augustus Lindbergh (1902-1974), was almost fifteen when the Federal goons raided his father's home, and one source says that it was J. Edgar Hoover in person who mauled the young boy.

Young Lindbergh probably owed to his father his clear understanding of our civilization and its dependence on the spiritual as well as physical peculiarities of our race—on racial instincts that are sapped in urban societies that lose revivifying contact with nature and the real world.

It is to the point, however, that he passed through the schools before the "educational" gangsters began their systematic sabotage of pupils' minds by injecting 'One-World' pus to induce infantile paralysis of the cerebrum.

1. An alert citizenry, worthy of freedom, would have risen in anger at the outrageous acts of its lawless government, but the Americans were then in a delirious fit of righteousness, such as often afflicts addicts of Christian fiction, and were glad to surrender their liberty in return for the pleasure of pleasing Jesus and their enemies by embarking on a bloody and insane "war to end wars" and to infect the whole world with the dire political disease from which they were then suffering and which they called "democracy."

He spent some time at the University of Wisconsin, which was then largely an American institution, but left, without taking a degree, to become an aviator. That was in the great age of aviation, when the individual pilot and his machine had to conform to and contend with nature, and could feel the joy of success in the way to which Lindbergh's friend, Antoine de Saint-Exupéry, whom he resembled in many ways, gave literary expression in his Night Flight and Wind, Sand, and Stars.

His skill and courage won for him universal celebrity in 1927, when he flew alone from the United States to Paris. He married Anne Spencer Morrow, the daughter of a wealthy banker, diplomat, and senator; she was his devoted wife until his death.[2]

In 1932, their infant son was kidnapped and immediately killed, accidentally or maliciously, by persons who were never identified, although a German carpenter, Bruno Hauptmann, who had been so stupid as to trust a Sheeny and had thus become marginally involved in an aftermath of the crime, was executed in 1936 to create the impression that the mystery had been solved.

The excruciating ordeal inflicted on them by the kidnapping and murder, exacerbated by the unscrupulous minions of the American press, together with justified fears for the safety of the son that Mrs. Lindbergh subsequently bore, forced them to live abroad, in England and on one of the Channel Islands, and they returned to the United States only after the Jews' War began in Europe.

2. She was herself an author of distinction and one of her books, The Wave of the Future (1940), was ably written to support her husband's efforts to keep the United States from participating in the Suicide of the West. One hopes that the liepapers are responsible for the scandalous statement attributed to her in her old age, that she condemned her dead husband for not sufficiently loving God's Chosen Predators.

Colonel Lindbergh had ample opportunities to observe the course of events in Europe, and although he did not suspect the identity and terrible power of the conspiracy that was then at work, he was, of course, aware that some forces were surreptitiously working to precipitate a catastrophe that would almost certainly be fatal to our race and civilization. In March 1938 he began to keep a diary or journal to record his observations. His summary of his first entries is a bitter and tragic record today: "Hope England and Germany can find some way to working together. If they could do so, there would be no major war in Europe for many years to come. If they fight again, it will be chaos."[3]

When his hope that the British would perceive that their future was bound up with that of their natural and necessary ally, Germany, proved illusory, Colonel Lindbergh stated clearly the situation in the article printed above and in many speeches to American audiences.

If we may venture an astronomical metaphor, he tried to prevent the United States from being sucked into the black hole of Jewish hatred that was consuming the nations of Europe. He became the unofficial leader of the America First movement, which he directed capably, but with the embarrassment of having to make a political compromise and accept the support of persons who were pacifists, not patriots, and whose vapid fantasies were potentially pernicious to a nation. He was a true Aryan and often wished, "If only the United States could be on the right side of an intelligent war! There are wars worth fighting."

3. This diary was finally published in 1970: The Wartime Journals of Charles A. Lindbergh (New York, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich), a volume of some 1058 pages plus numerous plates. Everyone who wishes to understand the world in which we are condemned to live should have a copy of this book. You must not suppose, however, that Colonel Lindbergh had access to secret information or was a man of praeternatural sagacity. He was, for example, taken in by the Jews' clever trick in November 1938, the so-called Kristallnacht, and when part of the American fleet was destroyed at Pearl Harbor, he did not guess that Roosevelt had planned and contrived the disaster, although he did perceive that the success of the attack proved that something was fatally wrong.

It was largely his influence that maintained some sanity in a large part of the American people, so that, as must be said to their honor, the loathsome creature in the White House had to contrive the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor before he could content his Yiddish congeners by driving his cattle into Europe to consummate the Suicide of the West.

Seeing in Colonel Lindbergh a principal obstacle to full gratification of their eternal hatred of Aryans, the Jews began a campaign of slander and vilification, using the prostitutes of press and covert agents to spread foul rumors,[4] and finally telling the diseased War Criminal in the White House to denounce the Colonel as a traitor! Colonel Lindbergh felt that the only honorable reply he could make to the monster's insult was to resign his commission in the Air Corps in April 1941.

At the end of that year, however, believing that Japan had voluntarily attacked the United States at Pearl Harbor and begun a war that was worth fighting, Colonel Lindbergh returned to the Air Corps and, in addition to serving as expert consultant, he was on active duty throughout the war and often under fire. The rest of his career need not concern us here, where our purpose has been only to supply information relative to the article published above. ⌟

4. One rather subtle device was to spread among officers of the regular ("old line") services, more or less inclined to jealousy of the Air Corps, canards about his arrogant violation of military protocol, which did deceive some who had never met the Colonel.

FILM REVIEW
Schindler's List

By
Dr. Charles E. Weber

At a time where there are rising doubts amongst Americans about the "Holocaust" tales we are now confronted with still another lavishly produced film that has as an obvious objective reviving belief in such tales. Steven Spielberg's film, Schindler's List, is the latest of the numerous films and plays about the real or putative sufferings of Jews during the Second World War, in contrast to the virtual absence of films portraying the immense sufferings of Aryans as a result of the war.

Briefly, Schindler's List portrays a German who opens a cookware factory in newly occupied Poland and engages Jews to work in his highly profitable factory. During the course of the war Schindler protects his workers from being deported to the alleged gas chambers of Auschwitz for his own good as well as theirs. Toward the end of the war Schindler becomes involved in the production of munitions for the German armed forces, which he hopes will prove defective. A final scene shows Jews in a Christian cemetery in Palestine placing small rocks on Schindler's grave to honor the man who befriended them. The film was made primarily in Poland. Production costs are reputed to be $23,000,000.

Heroic or otherwise, Schindler was not the only man who viewed the Jews of occupied Europe as a source of desperately needed labor in the German war economy. Heinrich Himmler, Reichsführer of the SS, issued an order on 28 December 1942 to reduce "at all cost" the number of deaths in the concentration camps under his command. The numerous arbitrary or even "recreational" shootings of Jews gruesomely portrayed in the film would thus have been severely punishable acts of insubordination.

The attempt is made by two means to convey the impression that this film is some sort of documentary film that protrays actual history. Exact dates are flashed on the screen at various points and (with the exception of some scenes at the end of the film supposed to represent the later veneration of Schindler's grave) it is produced with black and white film. Many viewers might be fooled by such means. Even President Clinton seems to have accepted the film as a portrayal of actual history, or at least pretends to have.

As is characteristic of films produced by Jews about their tribulations during the Second World War, Germans are generally portrayed in Schindler's List as corrupt, immoral, cruel and stupid, while Jews are portrayed as noble and heroically suffering. However, in this case the central, and indeed idealized, figure is a German.

Much in the film is obvious invention for dramatic effects, dramatic structure built around a nucleus of aspects of the life of Schindler, who did indeed live. Toward the end of the film, for example, Schindler is now producing artillery shells for the German armed forces in a factory in Bohemia. He confides to his workers that he would be happy if the ammunition were to turn out to be defective. Obviously, if this had been the case, Schindler would soon have been identified as a traitor and sentenced to death.

Not all Jews are happy about Spielberg's film. A prominent Jew, Rabbi Eli Hecht, past president of the Rabbinical Council of California, complained about the film in the Los Angeles Times. Rabbi Hecht fears that young Jewish Americans will be influenced by such films and by "Holocaust" museums to associate their Jewish identity with suffering and persecution. He further objects to making an heroic figure of Schindler, who made a fortune as a supplier of the German army while exploiting the labor of Jews.

In a long, laudatory publicity piece for the film in Newsweek of 20 December 1993 (cover portrait of Schindler, pages 112-118 and page 120) Spielberg's previous films are listed along with their huge gross incomes, which total over four billion dollars. The Newsweek article includes the old disproved claims of six-million Jewish deaths (also flashed on the screen toward the end of the film) and gas chambers disguised as shower rooms. Newsweek also delivers the usual nonsense about revisionist historians, whom it insults as "pseudo-scholars", and mentions Deborah Lipstadt's recent book, Denying the Holocaust, which we reviewed in Bulletin 67. The Newsweek article reproduces (pages 116-117) a scene from the film which shows a German officer aiming his pistol at a kneeling Jewish man and captions the picture in connection with genocide. Actually, in the film three officers click their pistols at the Jew with empty guns as an admonishment to the Jew for supposedly working to slowly in Schindler's factory.

Like other "Holocaust" films, Schindler's List hardley conveys the reality that whatever happened to Jews during the last years of the war took place during a threatened genocide of the German nation in a war made especially desperate and uncompromising by such threats. The thousands of ethnic Germans slaughtered by Poles on the Bromberg Bloody Sunday (September 1939) already created a desperate fear in Germans. In 1941 T. Kaufman's book, Germany Must Perish [available from Liberty Bell Publications, $4.50 + $1.50 postage], proposed a complete genocide of the German nation by sterilization. Further genocidal threats were the demand for unconditional surrender by Roosevelt and Churchiill at Casa Blanca in January 1943, the massive bombing of German civilians in poorly defended German cities near the end of the war (e.g., Dresden in February 1943), resulting in massive killings that would properly be designated as a holocaust in the literal, original sense of the word, and the behavior of Communist troops in such actions as the Nemmersdorf massacre (fall, 1944). Such genocidal threats intensified desperate German resistance which prolonged the destructive war. As a crowning threat of genocide came the Morgenthau Plan, which Roosevelt initialed in September 1944. Genocidal anthrax bombs that would have made much of Europe uninhabitable were prepared but never dropped.

Although the American government interned persons of Japanese descent swiftly, within a few weeks after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, the relatively forebearing German government waited some 2 1/2 years after the outbreak of the war to carry out a massive internment of Jews in spite of Jews' sabotage of the German defense effort in the form of partisan warfare against German troops in Russia and other Jewish actions.

In considering the internment of Jews, we must also bear in mind the Jewish rôle in bringing about the war in the first place, for example, by the formation of the "Focus" in 1936 for the purpose of influencing British politicians to declare war on Germany, which was then hardly any military threat to the heavily armed England. (See Bulletin 12.)

Of course, Jews suffered from internment, confiscation of their property, the hostility of the Baltic nations as a result of the Soviet occupation during 1940-1941 and other factors, but the total suffering of Jews during the war pales into not much more than a minor aspect in comparison to the total suffering of the Aryan nations, such as the deliberate mass starvation of Ukrainians during the early 1930s, the huge military and civilian losses, the postwar genocidal expulsions of Germans from eastern European areas, etc. When have such sufferings ever been portrayed in lavishly produced films?

A story by Joanne Jacobs published in the San Jose, California Mercury News and republished in the Tulsa World of 29 January 1994 tells of school children who were expelled from a theater in Oakland for laughing while viewing the shooting of Jews in Schindler's List. Apparently the film is already being used for the indoctrination of school children. Could these children have been expressing their doubts about the improbabilities of the film?

In films such as Schindler's List Germans are generally portrayed as evil, cruel and stupid. Hitler, in particular, has been portrayed as an infinitely evil man. However, two quite distinguished Scandinavians who could observe the war at close range, the novelist Knut Hamsun (1859-1952) and the famous explorer Sven Hedin (1965-1952) expressed lavish praise for Hitler at the very end of the war. (See Bulletin 47.) When will school children ever be informed of facts which conflict with the officially sanctioned versions of recent history? When will memorial museums ever be built and dedicated to the memory of Aryans who suffered at the hands of Communists? ❑

FACING THE SUN

Spain's Much Overdue Second Revolution is Getting Closer

by Douglas Harrison

EIGHTEEN YEARS have now passed by since General Franco died, and it seemed to be in a very different Spain to the one he left behind that those who cherish his memory gathered on the Plaza de Oriente in front of the Royal Palace in Madrid to commemorate the anniversary of the departure of this great warrior and leader. Conjointly, Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera was remembered on the same occasion as well.

It was a bright and sunny but cool morning on Sunday, the 21st November, as groups of Spaniards and a few foreigners began to assemble on the Plaza, most of them well wrapped up against the fresh winter air of high Madrid. Many were carrying their national flags, and anyone who had not brought one along could obtain one from the numerous stalls set up for for the purpose. The stalls, to be found along the pavements, were also selling souvenirs of the Civil War and the Franco era.

Military music began to resound across the park just as soon as the platform and loudspeakers had been erected. Towards noon, the numbers assembling had grown larger, and the ceremony began dead on 12:00. All the best places were quickly filled up; dozens of young people crowded around the fountain and equestrian statue of Carlos I. Densely packed around the raised platform for the speakers, a few lucky ones, including me, managed to clamber onto the stacks of spare street barriers to point cameras and recorders over the head of the throng. By now the flags of Spain were waving across the assembly, a forest of red and yellow. There were probably three thousand gathered there.

GOVERNMENT BAN

At one time, in the early 1980s, the numbers coming to the reunion reached levels not much different from the days when Franco was there to address the people. Apparently, this had so worried the Socialist Government that the ceremony was banned for a few years on the specious grounds that the crowds damaged the park, causing litter, putting up police costs, inviting violence from left-wing mobs and other lame excuses of the kind that are familiar to nationalists everywhere. When the ceremony was resumed—probably as a calculated sop to the old civil war veterans—the numbers were less than previously. The older ones had either died off or were too infirm to be able to get to the event; and the younger people had 'better' things to do than wave flags and sing hymns. Or so it was hoped. But to judge by the large numbers of young folks at the reunion this year the Government has badly miscalculated the mood of the Spanish people. As one young Falangist told me, the people are losing faith in their so-called 'democracy' while the young are sick to death of watching their country collapse in economic ruin, with 25 percent of the employable population idle; crime escalating; drug abuse rampant; taxes rising; people suffocated by debt; coloureds from Africa and South America pouring in in droves; assassinations and bombings unabated; the Gonzalez Government giving away the people's money like confetti to Cuba and Nicaragua and filling the begging bowl of any Third World country with its arm outstretched. Jews from Bosnia now get free new homes on the Costa del Sol while Spanish veterans beg on the streets.

Dark-skinned Moroccans are appearing everywhere—a Spanish bishop said it was wrong not to let them in because they too were human beings—and Madrid is becoming a multi-racial slum every bit as bad as London, with prostitutes and drug-pushers polluting the centre of the city. If the older ones despair that the easy days of Franquist paternalism are gone forever, the young, who hardly remember Franco, are definitely not appreciative of what came after him: the flaccid monarchy and bogus democracy that threw up the grinning impostor Filipe Gonzalez and his pink liberal opponent Jose Maria Aznar of the Popular Party—which curiously sports a seagull as its emblem (or is it a dead eagle?), similar to our own Liberal Democrats with whom it shares kindred ideas, including abortion on demand.

MONARCHY UNPOPULAR

Some of those assembled on the Plaza de Oriente grew impatient of the tiresome oratory as an old veteran recalled the great days of Franco's victory and called for prayers and blessings for the current King and Queen. He was quickly interrupted by hecklers as the young demanded: "Speak to the future; we know all about the past!" He bumbled on unconvincingly, mildly put out by the mood of the crowd. They were prepared to respect the memory of Franco and Primo de Rivera but it had been a bad blunder to mention the monarchy. Reinforcing this was an article critical of King Juan Carlos in the magazine Fuerza Nueva, the organ of Blas Pinar's Frente Nacional, which was on sale that day. The article was headed 'Shadow of the Guillotine', and readers were reminded that Juan Carlos had expressed approval of the French Revolution which had bloodily disposed of his Bourbon antecedents; yet was he not now risking his own head along with the rest of the royal family by approving the egalitarian drift to another revolution? And was it not another Philipe-Egalité who had voted for the King's execution and who himself met with the same fate just 200 years ago? The mood of the young people at this reunion confirmed the words of its author, Rafael Gambra. It was also curious and somewhat unfortunate that the King and Queen of Spain chose this week to visit Israel for the first time—which can only cancel out a few more points of their threadbare popularity. Another year of such murmurings could well lead to the November ceremony being banned again!

As the fanfare for the hymn of the Falange blared out, thousands of right arms went up in the Roman salute, and three thousand defiant voices sung the well-known words of Cara al Sol (Face the Sun)—Jose Antonio's composition, which became the nationalists' victory song of the Civil War and will always be associated with the Falange and the struggle of the people of Spain for justice under God in their fatherland. I predict that the ancient Roman salute will one day become a greeting for nationalists the world over as our ideology spreads to all nations in a truly international spirit of comradeship.

DIVISIONS

My photographer companion, perched, like me, precariously on the stack of metal barriers, began to explain to me about the divisions and rivalries within the infant or remnant nationalist movements, such as the Falange, CEDADE, the Frente Nacional and others, some of which have virtually collapsed through incompetence, corrupt officialdom or simply apathy—a familiar story the world over. But now there has been formed a new political party called Movimento Social Espanol (MSE), modeled on the highly successful Italian MSI. The inaugural meeting of this new party was to be held in a public cinema in Madrid on the 28th November last, the opening speaker being Ricardo S. Ynestrillas, a well-known political figure implicated four years ago in the execution of some Basque terrorists in Madrid, though later acquitted.

As the gathering broke up and we drifted into groups, I was pleasantly surprised to meet a party of young Portuguese nationalists who spoke excellent English. They straightaway began to speak of the BNP's victory in Millwall and insisted on shaking my hand one after the other as if I had been the successful candidate! That victory has clearly been a ray of light and hope all over the white world. Soon I was meeting more nationalists: Spanish, German and French, exchanging information, hopes and aspirations as well as names and addresses. They all had one thing in common regarding Britain: they looked to the BNP for inspiration and leadership for all the European nations who are struggling to free themselves from the all-engulfing decadence, falsehood and fraud that grips us. No nation is free of it. There was a time when we could say that there were exceptions in the form of Spain and South Africa, but not any more.

However, the young Spaniards are catching on very quickly to what is happening to the white peoples worldwide. Their constitution, granted in 1976 under the Crown, promised them greater political freedom after 36 years of their being over-protected in terms of the hard lessons taught to the rest of Europe by the Second World War and its aftermath. If Franco was hard on them by suppressing open political dialogue it was only because Spain's siege conditions allowed for no possible alternative to his dictatorship. The country was like a fortified hospital were an epidemic disease had been conquered but which was still surrounded by virulent species of bacteria, ready and eager to penetrate and infect the recovering patients. But if democracy opened up the field to alternative political views (at least in theory) it has proved to be a washout and a fraud which puts people in the same handcuffs. The emerging political parties—inevitably left-wing or liberal—are subject to the patronage of the international financial establishment for their existence, just as in every other so-called 'democratic' country.

WEAKNESSES OF THE FRANCO RÉGIME

None of this is to say that things in Spain were perfect under Franco. The country was boycotted by the international community and had an anachronistic economy based on the gold standard. Only the Catholic Church and the landed families grown rich on banking did really well from the nationalist victory.

Even after Franco, when there has supposedly been a democratic revolution, it is the same rich families and Middle Eastern investors who possess the liquid wealth of the country. The Church, though with much less authority than it ought to have on moral issues, has relinquished nothing of its invested wealth, especially land. Meanwhile, the people, who are ostensibly better off in material terms, have not been truly emancipated but have only been made debtors and mortgagees to the banks and the Government's burgeoning taxation system—something virtually unknown under Franco, who imposed no taxes on the incomes of the less well-off. Even tax on rents was not introduced by the Socialists until 1984.

Now every new-born baby inherits a state-enforceable burden of debt of around £6,000—thanks to the Socialist-controlled economy of a debt-procured national development programme. But of course the Socialists were not permitted any system other than the one operating throughout the finance-capitalist-controlled world.

Had Franco tried to implement fully the Falangist Party's ideas on money and real wealth creation, Spain would almost certainly have met with the same fate as Hitler's Germany and Mussolini's Italy. Franco knew this, and was shrewd enough to be content with what had been rescued from bolshevism by his nationalist rebellion, recognising that a full-blooded Falangist-type revolution was impossible of achievement under current circumstances. For this reason, he turned his back on Hitler having accepted a bribe of £4 million in gold from Britain in 1940 on condition that Spain remained neutral and did not collaborate with the Axis. Again, he had very little choice in the matter, having read the signs that Germany was unlikely to win the war.

Ironically, had the Republicans won the Civil War, Germany, Russia and a communist Spain might well have found themselves allies as a result of the Ribbentrop-Molotov Pact of August 1939. The alternative view, probably more realistic however, in that the unexpected Civil War which broke out in July 1936 introduced an unknown variable into the equation of European politics, which delayed the onset of the intended war against Germany; and that both Germany and Italy backed Franco of necessity to prevent the formation of a western pro-bolshevik bloc of Spain and France, uniting together to attack Germany from the west while Russia attacked from the east.

The Civil War and the new situation it created in Europe bought time for Germany, enabling her rearmament programme to progress, while it also served as a diversion and a theatre for weapons-testing until such time as the future protagonists were ready to ignite the fuse for the main conflict. It has always been highly significant that this was delayed until Franco's victory was assured, and then it was begun in earnest.

BOUGHT OFF

Franco was very neatly bought off by Britain in the manner of a compliant 'insider'. The Vatican too played a very important part in the planning regarding what was desired for Spain, both bolshevism and national socialism being equally detested by the priesthood, though in the Spanish context bolshevism was seen as the greater evil. This was because the Church was there in danger of losing its control altogether, to judge by the ferocity of the republicans' attacks on its bishops, priests and property.

The Falange, which would have provided the best government for Spain, was thoroughly emasculated by the murder of its leader Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera in Alicante Prison by communists in November 1936. Even today there are Spaniards who still suspect that Franco connived the Jose Antonio's elimination in order to assume the leadership of the Falange himself. Hedilla, the deputy leader of the Falange, was disgraced by Franco and banished to South America. The Vatican had frowned on the national socialist ideas of the Falange, and it would appear that the Church threw its total support behind Franco on condition that the party would be suppressed, as indeed it was because the ideals of Jose Antonio never came to fruition during Franco's rule and never will under his successors. By a strange coincidence, both Jose Antonio and Franco share the same date of death: the 20th November.

Those who have a world view of Spanish politics will always look back on the Franco era with gratitude and nostalgia, for the General was totally and absolutely true to Spain and her people, as possibly only an incorruptible soldier could have been. The compromises he made were necessitated by the realities of both the national and international positions in which he was placed in his times.

The cries in unison of Viva Espana! and Arriba Espana from the crowd assembled in front of the Royal Palace on this anniversary have echoed down the years since the Civil War began, and will forever be on the lips and in the hearts of Spain's young leaders of today, who are engaged on a new crusade of rescue that will carry their country from these corrupting and dangerous times into a new century.

From Spearhead No. 299, January 1994

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations.

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

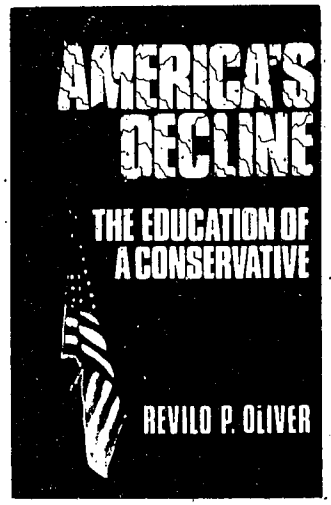
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congolds unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

Review and Commentary
by Raymond Goodwin:

COMMUNISM IN GERMANY
page 1

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Robert Frenz:
Faked Photos
page 7.

Manfred Roeder:
Teutonic Unity
page 14.

Letters to the Editor:
page 19.

Maj. D.V. Clerkin:
Tightening the Jewish Noose
page 30.

VOL. 21 - NO. 8 APRIL 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

REVIEW AND COMMENTARY

by Raymond Goodwin

Communism in Germany:

The Communist Conspiracy on the Eve of the 1933 National Revolution

Reviewing a book printed over sixty years ago may seem somewhat of an anomaly. I chose to do so for three reasons; first, it encompasses one of the most neglected and ignored aspects of a crucial era; secondly, because Americans have absolutely no concept of the Communist Party as being anything but just another political entity; and finally, because the book contributes much toward an understanding of the past. It is only through understanding the past that we may decipher the events of the present.

Terrorism, espionage, treason, and murder are associated by most Americans NOT with the Communist Party, but with the National Socialist. This is what we have been taught for decades. Having recently completed degree work as a history major, I can attest that of my numerous courses (including one titled "A History of Nazi Germany"), not one made even the slightest mention of the campaign of Red terror conducted in Germany subsequent to the Great War. Couple this fact with teaching that the Weimar Republic—the puppet "democracy" forced upon the Germans by the victors—was a legitimate, just, and effective popular government torn asunder by Adolf Hitler and those evil Nazis, and it is no wonder that so many people remain ignorant. This situation is aptly described by one who certainly would know—it was F.D.R. who said, "Things don't just happen; they're planned that way."

Communism in Germany, by Adolf Ehrt. pub. 1933, Berlin; pb., 179 pp. $6.50 + $1.50 postage available from Liberty Bell Publications.

Adolf Ehrt very effectively presents the history of the communist menace from its inception in Germany up to February of 1933. The book is replete with photographs, sketches, party dictates, and specific incidents of terrorism and murder perpetrated by communists and their often misled adherents. Having read this book immediately after perusing Robert Wilton's The Last Days of the Romanovs, I was impressed with the way Ehrt accurately emphasized the "Russian" influence and identical tactics used in both countries.

Though the author does not overly stress the predominant role played by Jews in this bloody attempt to bring about a Soviet Germany, he does identify them as such in most cases. The photographs speak for themselves as well.

If one is aware that the "Russian" Revolution of 1917 was Jewish, one will perceive that the attempted subjugation of the German people was perpetrated by this same clique of internationalists. Some of the goals of the Jewish dominated and controlled KPD (Communist Party of Germany) cited by Ehrt: to disintegrate the moral power of resistance of the nation through the media; to break up the social community and undermine the German character; to distribute propaganda in favor of "free love", moral decay, and moral perversity (p.25). And you thought all that originated in the America of the 1960's! Additionally, women were to be used in furthering Communist goals; and there was even an "action committee" set up "for the rescue of eight young negroes from the electric chair" (p.27). Does much of this seem very familiar to you? It should.

If Americans were allowed to learn such in their education, they would much more readily understand the "anti-Semitic" actions of both the National Socialist government and the German people as a whole. But then, of course, their impressions of the Jews as innocent victims persecuted and legislated against by a vile system would be tested; they would have to recognize those necessary implementations as REACTIONS rather than ACTIONS. And Americans are notoriously timid and reluctant when it comes to having to face TRUTH.

The section dealing with treason—termed by Ehrt "...an uninterrupted and organized betrayal of land and people" by "...this Jewish-Marxistic mortal enemy of the German nation",(p.59)—is also pertinent to today. Three Reds were caught betraying secret industrial processes and patents to the Soviets. In an intercepted letter, one of the culprits revealed their attitude by stating "We don't call it espionage, but economic assistance" (p.62). Many of the criminals were assisted in fleeing to Russia and were given sanctuary.

Anyone aware of the Jew Jonathan Pollard's treason against the United States recently will recognize the similarity of his case to the one above. Pollard excuses himself in much the same way. Ehrt points out the ineffectiveness of the corrupt Weimar regime in dealing with this criminality, stating that such conduct was both tolerated and furthered for 14 years. In another parallel to the present, the traitor Pollard enjoys the support and influence of many in government and the media. Many of his ilk are allowed to flee to Israel.

Statistics in the book (p.159) show that the Reds—under the direction of Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht (both Jews)—murdered 200 and caused the injury of more than 20,000 from 1923 onward. Many more met a like fate between 1918 and 1923. The frequency of deaths and injuries increased yearly, with nearly half of the above totals occurring in 1932. This reveals both the strength and determination of the terrorists, and belies the notion that Germany was stable and orderly under the Weimar politicos. Much of the terrorism was happening during and shortly after the accession of Adolf Hitler to the position of Chancellor in January of 1933.

The most dangerous opponent of communism in Germany was certainly not the state, with its Social-Democratic and Catholic Centre parties, but the National Socialist movement. The Communist Party actually felt itself to be an ally of the Weimar state in trying to destroy National Socialism. In many communities, under violent assault from Red revolutionaries and their Social-Democrat allies, communist takeover was averted only because the Stahlhelm, S.A., and S.S. men fought on the side of the police.

Evidence (in the form of captured plans, arms, and other relics) of crimes and of the planned armed uprising was exhibited in the First National Socialist Revolution Museum in Berlin. As the author explains (p.178), this museum was mute testimony to the fact that National Socialism, in its search for the real Germany, found a corrupt system (Weimar) about to be overrun by Bolshevism. Thanks to the incompetence of this so-called "democracy", the German people had become a prey to international exploiters.

The historical parallel to the above is illustrated by events in Russia. Vladimir Zhirinovsky, the nationalist with much popular support, has accused the internationalist representative (Yeltsin) of supporting the exploitation of Russia by trying to establish "democracy" there. Zhirinovsky is vilified by prostituted politicians worldwide and the Jewish controlled media labels him a "new Hitler." They claim he is determined to make Russia "an intolerant and imperialist authoritarian state." He is also (of course!) accused of being "anti-Semitic". Unfortunately, just as they fell for the lies in the 1930's, Americans are swallowing these fables once again. Before you know it, they'll be chomping at the bit to go fight this "maniac who wants to take Alaska back!"

In the final paragraph of his book, the author reminds his readers that "Germany has taken the lead in the fight against the universal enemy...May other nations and states have sufficient insight and good will to recognise this and follow the German example." How sad it is that those "other nations" were in the service of that universal enemy—whether designated capitalist or communist. The common people of those "other nations" were skillfully duped into going to war to SAVE that same universal enemy of which Ehrt warned. As a result, millions died to preserve their own status as wage slaves, eternal debtors, and for their transformation into a shapeless, unicolored mass of humanity.

In summation, this valuable book documents the thousands of acts of terrorism perpetrated by the communists between 1918 and 1933 in Germany. Though it gets a bit tedious in places, and no information is given about the author, this does not detract from its importance. This treatise contributes much toward an understanding of why the National Socialist revolution succeeded, and why it enjoyed such popular support. For any truth-seeker, knowing that the same proponents of Red revolution are STILL pulling the strings behind the scenes, confirms that he has been, and continues to be, LIED TO about the events of that era and of the present. As long as Western institutions remain under the control of these aliens and their servants, TRUTH will remain a scarce commodity, and ignorance and misunderstanding will prevail. Those who still perceive Adolf Hitler and National Socialism as the "ultimate evil", and believe in the phony and discredited "Holocaust", will continue to have their thinking done for them and to suffer the wages of ignorance.

Herein lies the value in reading and studying such works as this. Knowledge leads to understanding; understanding leads to recognition; and recognition, one would hope, leads to corrective action. Add this, and related books, to your library; know the truth, and be set free. ❑

THE BOOK THAT MADE THE JEWS SO MAD
THEY HAD TO INVENT
THE MOVIE HOLOCAUST!

AUSCHWITZ:

An Eye-Witness Report
by Thies Christophersen
Foreword by Manfred Roeder

Order No: 01017 single copy $3.00 + $1.50 for postage;
5 copies $12.50 + $1.50 for postage. Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

FAKED FOTOS

by

Robert Frenz

Several years ago, Ernst Zündel and I discussed computer technology and the production of photographic images which could not be detected as being altered thus opening up the field of Holocaust photographs which portrayed whatever was necessary to support some ridiculous claim. I intended to write a small article in this regard, but as with most things, I simply put it off. Now I see that Dr. Oliver brought the topic up again in the December 1993 issue of the unique Liberty Bell magazine. My U.S. Army M.O.S. was 152, which indicates a still photographer and I operated a successful photography business many decades ago. My introduction to the world of computers was in 1965. I therefore feel that I am slightly qualified to toss my two cents in the direction of this topic.

To label something as undetectable, without discussing the merits of those who are trying to do the detecting, is not a sensible approach. I have observed people who cannot tell a left-handed glove from a right-handed one. These are the people who would be unmoved by an explanation of enantiomorphic isomers and retain their belief that filet mignon is what is being served at Burger King. I have observed student pilots at Niagara International who have a hard time ascertaining whether the wings of the craft they are flying are parallel to the horizon. My current co-pilot, for example, has difficulty in judging where the wing tips are when I taxi into the parking area, thus causing him a certain degree of apprehension. Let's suppose that everyone is equal and in possession of a high degree of discernment when eye-balling computer images and photographs are concerned.

In the hard sciences, one of the measurements used for small objects is the MICRON which is symbolized by using the Greek letter for "m", mu. This is one-millionth of a meter. There are 1,000,000 microns in a meter, 10,000 in a centimeter and 25,400 of the little buggers in an inch. A hair is about 75 microns in diameter. The clear wrapper on your pack of Camel cigarettes is 25 microns thick. A wire in a paper-clip is 1000 microns in thickness. Good optical microscopes can "see" objects one-tenth of a micron in diameter. My Aunt Arminta could see fly-crap at 30 yards with her naked eye.

Computers uniformly use "digitized" information (consisting of imaginary 1's and 0's, a binary representation) whether text or graphics. Other than the computer memory limits, a "photo", or graphic, may be stored in as many bits of information as desired. All bits are either "on" or "off" which has the same meaning as true or false, black or white and symbolically, 1 or 0. There is no such animal as "gray". There is no computer bit which is one-half on and one-half off. Either a blob is black or it is white. One cannot "see" computer information since it is electrical or magnetic in nature. Stored computer information may be outputted to a printer which, in this case, could pass as a photo. Most popular LASER printers (electro-photography, actually electrography, as distinguished from photography) produce copy in 300 or 600 dots per inch. This is called the resolution. Newspaper half-tone pictures are about 72 dots per inch. Some people use printers capable of 1200 d.p.i. which, with the naked eye, cannot be distinguished from letter press printing.

I have recently read an article describing a 2400 d.p.i. printer. A 2400 d.p.i. print is made up of dots 10 microns across. The dots are all evenly spaced and of identical size resembling the delineations of a checkerboard when viewed from 100 yards. A computer-generated print can be easily spotted. One cannot tell, however, if any particular dot represents a real situation or one of fiction. The memory bits can be switched on or off, directly or by the use of some applications program. The computer wouldn't know Clark Gable from Mickey Mouse. One cannot tell if a computer-generated image has been altered or not. This is not the same as saying you cannot tell computer graphics from photographs.

Black and white photographic film contains silver bromide colloidal particles suspended in gelatin. This is called an emulsion. The silver bromide particles are about 2 to 3 microns in diameter which is equivalent to 6000 dots per inch. Exposure to light renders the silver in the bromides susceptible to reduction, that is, a willingness to accept electrons. After exposure to light, the silver bromide will produce black colloidal metallic silver when treated with an aqueous solution of some mild reducing agent such as hydroquinone or pyrogallic acid. This process is called "developing". After the image is developed, the remaining unaltered silver bromide is dissolved by sodium thiosulfate in a process called "fixing". The image has the blacks and whites reversed, hence it is called a "negative". A photograph is only a negative of a negative, which becomes a "positive". Not all of the colloidal particles of silver bromide are of the same size. Larger particles, after developing, may contain both silver bromide and silver particles. Sodium thiosulfate, during the process of fixing, may dissolve silver as well as the unexposed silver bromide. Some unexposed silver bromide may be "developed", that is, turned into silver without light energy. Other particles will show mixtures of everything resulting in tones midway between black and white, i.e., grays. The physical appearance of the image particles is called "grain".

Everything is a pottage of particles including pure water. Liquid water consists of hydroxide ions, water molecules and a various assortment of hydrated (water molecules electrostatically bonded to a proton) hydrogen ions. The most common variety is one water molecule per hydrogen ion (proton) which is given the name hydronium ion. Researchers have found as many as six water molecules bonded to a single proton. To make the whole mess messier, there are three known varieties of the hydrogen atom and five of the oxygen atom.

All printed computer graphics have evenly spaced dots of black and white only which are all of the same size. A photograph contains unevenly spaced dots of black, white and grays of all different sizes. To the discriminating, there is no way that a computer print can be passed off as a photographic reproduction. Computer art is digital (discontinuous). Photographic work is comparatively analog (continuous) in nature. A computer image is relatively 2-dimensional. A photograph is physically 3-dimensional although this is not noticed by the naked eye. If you are drunk, or a liberal, everything looks equal. Chemically, LASER reproductions are composed of iron particles (sometimes ferro-ferric oxide), black crap (usually selenium) and a thermosetting resin while a photograph contains none of these.

This glop is called a "toner" and compositions differ widely and change with developments.

One might argue that most photos today are in color, and computer printing is rapidly approaching the same end. However, the difference between a color photograph and a computer color print is even more noticeable. Steven the Spielberg does all sorts of computer-generated art and fake photography which fools no one except the perverts who Clinton appoints. Even the most sophisticated color photographs cannot capture the beauty of a sunset or of Arizona's Painted Desert to the extent that your God-given eye can. No machine will ever duplicate any function of the living.

If an image is captured magnetically by some digital process, then it is not a photograph and may be altered at a later date without anyone knowing the difference. However, it is incorrect to call this process photography. It is also incorrect to use the term "video camera" since a camera is a photographic device. It is a video recorder. All of the trash which appears on a TV screen usually has little to do with photography. TV and computer screens are not photographs and there is a vast physical difference between a movie shown at your local theater and the same movie presented on a cathode ray tube. To confuse the two will lead to silly notions. When a photographic negative is produced, you can see the reversed image. When a magnetic image is produced, all of the gawking in the world will not reveal an image on the tape or computer disk. It has to be interpreted by another device. A true camera duplicates, to an extent, the function of an eye. Magnetic recording has nothing to do with sight.

Dungheads always get intoxicated by "science". They can even be led to believe that a digital recording of electromagnetic crud from outer space somehow proves the existence of "black holes". If the legal system ever accepts magnetic images as true representations of fact, then we are in deep trouble. Even today, courts accept RADAR reports as fact even though police RADAR can be easily jammed by using a grid of nickel dipoles vibrating at an audio frequency (2000 Hz).

Computers have been balley-hooed as some sort of white-mans' miracle device. They are only dumb machines capable of moving information faster and more precisely than a good mind can. In the 1700's, it took a fellow named Shanks nearly 3 years to compute Pi (a transcendental number; the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter) to 707 places, a rather useless exercise which falls in the category of climbing mountains only to have to return to where you started. My out-dated slug-box Laser 128 computer calculated Pi to 5000 places in less than 24 hours. If I had one of the latest personal computers, the time would be drastically shorter. Does this mean that my computer was "smarter" than Shanks? No way, José.

When typewriters were first made available to the general public, it was claimed that since man was now liberated from the tedium of using manual script, literature would take a giant step forward. Such was not the case, for a typewriter in the hands of a cretin is still a typewriter in the hands of a cretin. There are no closet Shakespeares waiting to poke at keys instead of using a pen. A computer in the hands of an idiot is a computer which will produce nothing worthy to read. In fact, a computer in the hands of an idiot is a computer soon to need repair. A machine is no better than the person who operates it. As technological development increases and general human cranial development decreases, we have the ingredients for an exciting disaster. This will be the real Armageddon and nobody will be levitated to some gold-lined cloud, not even the hucksters who perpetrate a fraud which dwarfs the Holocaust and is centuries older.

I pay little heed to what appears in "prestigious" periodicals. The New England Journal of American Medicine contains masses of intellectual crap easily refuted by anyone who has good eyes and a working mind. In 1945, the authoritative Air Trails magazine (now defunct) predicted that automobiles of the 1960's would be powered by atomic energy. I told my science teacher that this was pure donkey chips written by jugheads who didn't know how to earn an honest living. During the late 1960's, Chrysler experimented with turbine engines for passenger cars. I wrote to them mentioning that I believed they were all smoking "pot". In response to another article, which I believe was printed in the Scientific American predicting the demise of the internal combustion piston engine, I wrote to the editor in 1952 and said the piston engine will be with us BEYOND 1980. I have never met an "educated" person who could use a urinal without getting his shoes wet. As Sorokin wrote: "The more economists try to improve an economy, the worse it gets." We need intelligence, not intellectuals. In my imagined society, there would be 2 years of compulsory military training and 5 years of compulsory manual labor before anyone would be considered for higher education.

Documents can be faked; records can be faked; photographs can be faked; history is mostly faked; literature is usually faked. So what's the big deal anyway? Much to do about nothing gossip. In fact, I know of a few fake fakes. ❑

Teutonic Unity

Deutsche Bürgerinitiative

Manfred Roeder - Haus Richberg - D-3579 Schwarzenborn
Tel. (0 56 86) 5 35 - Fax (0 56 86) 17 24

Dear Friends, January 1994

Zhirinovsky's election victory has turned the apple cart. The world is in turmoil. Halleluja! The best that could happen. The day after his stunning success the HESSISCHE ALLGEMEINE, largest daily of Hesse, called me and asked for my comments since I met the man personally. Although I know that this paper has the directive to report nothing about me but smear I told them how glad I was about his victory and that I, of course, congratulated him by fax and predicted that he will be Russia's next president.

The next day a big article carried the headline 'German rightwingers celebrate with Zhirinovsky'. Then they reported about my visit to the Party Congress in Moscow and how I was asked by Zhirinovsky to address 30 of his closest activists at a Sunday morning session in his office. "The two Führers dream of a new axis Berlin - Moscow and co-operation in East Prussia. The Russian leader has achieved what Roeder is still dreaming about: he won third place as presidential candidate and 25 percent in Russia's first free election. Roeder as 'Reichsverweser' and successor of admiral Dönitz is raising money and machinery to help resettle German farmers in East Prussia. And Zhirinovsky is supporting him. He also invited Manfred Roeder to his special birthday party in Moscow with handpicked guests."

A few days later the weekly FOCUS carried a picture of me and almost the same story of how the fascists of Russia and Germany are working together and one brown hand washes the other. Well, bad propaganda ist better than none at all, is an old truth in politics.

All German media and politicians condemned in unison this new 'Russian monster', this 'fascist', 'Russian Hitler', 'Ugly Russian', 'dictator', 'war monger' etc. He was called any name under the sun. At least at that point one could have known what was at stake: if the whole world is defaming one man in unison then he must be something special. And he certainly is. Of course he has said things to shock people but so far he has not harmed anybody. "If he's as serious as American Republican and Democratic candidates are about their promises, we have nothing to fear", says Samuel Francis of The Washington Times. "But in the New World Order ruled by Global Democracy", Francis continues, "you don't have to be an enemy to be an enemy. All you have to do is invoke 'nationalism' and talk about doing things a different way from the way the New World Order globo-crats want. Being unmanageable may be Mr. Zhirinovsky's real sin, and the Globo-Democrats sooner or later may make him - and us - pay heavily for committing it." This, I think, is the dimension in which you have to see the rise of this man. Don't be fooled by the world-wide outcry of disgust.

Zbigniew Brzezinski has bad forebodings about Zhirinovsky. Doesn't that give you a key to understand the situation? DER SPIEGEL, Germany's largest weekly, writes: "Europeans and Americans thought that they had their former opponent already tied with the chain of World Bank and Western loans and blindly supported Boris Yeltsin. But Russian reality is not democracy and economic growth, but rather mass unemployment, poverty, crime and personal and national humiliation by its loss of power and prestige. This mood of desperation is exploited by National-Socialist demagogue Zhirinovsky."

Ask yourself, what is wrong with a politician determined to fight unemployment, organized crime and the sellout of his country? The point is, whatever he says or does, the media will present him as the bad man. But what will they say about him in two years when he will sit in the Kremlin as the president of the largest state of the world?

Almost everything they report about Zhirinovsky is a lie. I know his secretary and interpreter and can get the true story about the man any time. The German TV for instance showed him watching a dog fight. The comment was: Zhirinovsky relishes in bloody dog fights. The truth is: the TV invited him to a dog fight to get his opinion on it. He was disgusted and said so. But his remarks were not broadcast, only the mendacious comment of the interviewer.

He is said to have threatened the Germans with a nuclear attack. The truth is: in every speech he underlines that the cornerstone of his foreign policy would be eternal friendship with Germany. The German and Russian nation shall never again fight against each other. But he warned the anti-German politicians in Bonn never to mix into Russian affairs or pressure him with Nato. He as a president would never hesitate to retaliate in due form. He knows the big difference between the German people and the stooges in Bonn.

Yes, Zhirinovsky is dangerous, dangerous to those who thought to have the whole world under control already, including Russia. He might be the last statesman not yet being manipulated by the existing world rulers. "The idea of internationalism", he says, "is stalking the earth for 150 years. As capital is getting stronger, international borders are getting weaker. Big business has united worldwide. The answer to that was the nightmare of Communism - workers of the world united. This international brotherhood - just like the brotherhood of the Rothchilds and Rockefellers - is alive and influential to this day." - He seems to know what he is talking about. "Under Gorbachev", he continues, "Internationalism for the first time got a crack. Now the world wants to get rid of it, no matter whether it be capitalistic or communistic. Why? - Internationalism is the idea of intermixing. Nationalism is the idea of quality, of ones own house instead of a public dormitory. And if we want our own national state and no Eurasianism nor Atlantism, then we must first of all fix our borders." Do you see why this man is so much hated?

Zhirinovsky continues: "Any form of private initiative is neccessary, but one should not leave the weak and the old to their own fate. This is where Socialism comes in. The combination of the principles of socialism and nationalism is National-Socialism, which has nothing to do with Hitlerism. National-Socialism is the idea of a normal citizen who wants to live in peace, to have a loving wife, healthy children and a safe job. He despises beggars and is annoyed with the super-rich. He wants to be sure that his daughter is not raped at night in the streets and his son is not beaten down with a bottle. He is no fanatic, but he wants to look up to his leaders knowing that they deserve their position." - Do you understand why the media have orders to abuse this man? Not because he is a maniac but because his ideas are sound and solid.

He propagates the most natural ideas of the world. This is what most Russians feel about him. "Some of his slogans sound national-socialistic", says Alexej, 30 year old mechanic, "but what is bad about them? I am fed up with being ashamed of my country." And a computer salesman (27): "The Liberal Democrats are the only ones to resist the pseudo democrats. Yeltsin has no feeling for the national problems of Russia." But great parts of the military and the police are behind Zhirinovsky, according to reliable sources more than 70 percent of the crack divisions.

Zhirinovsky endorses a free and independent Germany, her own national army and general staff. "I am in favour of withdrawing all our armed forces from the former GDR. But why should other foreign troops stay in Germany and why is the Bundeswehr under foreign command?"

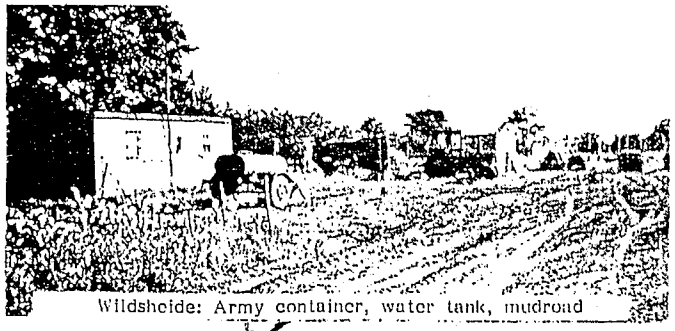
When I talked with him in Moscow he remarked: "As a Russian I have not undergone the brainwashing of re-education. And I don't get it that the German people half a century after World War II should be condemned to live under abnormal conditions and never be regarded as equal. To me the Oder-Neiße-border with Poland is not the last word in history, and it certainly is not God's judgement. I am rather astonished that the German government never even tried to talk about the territory West of the Oder, like Stettin and Swinemünde, which the Poles forcefully occupied in 1945 against the will of the Allies."

One reporter asked Zhirinovsky how he would raise the living standard of his people. He replied: "I would stop all foreign aid and then use the army to crush organized crime. That would give our economy a boost of at least 30 percent. And I would ask the Germans in our country to stay here. I would even invite hundreds of thousands of German farmers to come to Russia. Each one would get 75 acres. And they could work under good conditions for the benefit of Russia and Germany."

A few years ago nobody could have dreamed of things like that. This is giving a totally new dimension for our work in East Prussia where we are resettling Germans and Russians peacefully together. We are pioneers of a new European order. The whole of Eastern Europe needs to be reshaped. What about the Russians living in other countries of the former Soviet Union, like the Baltic states? What about the two million Germans living in these parts? And another two million under Polish rule? What about the Red Army and Navy in East Prussia? What about Nato or other organizations in the East? All these questions are bothering governments of many countries. Why should we not offer our suggestions and practical experiences?

Our farming project Wildsheide



Wildsheide: Army container, water tank, mudroad

Youth volunteers constructing a barn

In December I made my eighth travel to East Prussia. It was highly necessary for our friends there were very uneasy because some journalists from Germany had placed a dirty article about me in the Russian newspaper, trying to discredit our work and preventing us form going there. But the Russian administration was as kind as ever. And our construction project is making good progress. The first house in Wildsheide is taking shape. And soon we want to have the topping-out ceremony with lots of guests.

Last summer we got to know Lina Wild and her family camping in an old army container and a tent. They came from the Volga as the advance detachment of four families, two brothers and two sisters and their children. They are determined to start a new life here in East Prussia in an area where the war raged for three months and where one finds still lots of granades and mines in the soil. The village was five times lost and reconquered before the German army had to retreat.

Land was given to them by the Russian administration to build four farms, one for each family. But they had no proper plans, no construction firm and no money. We offered them help, giving them an interest-free loan. We also hired a constructor and created our own working crew. But there was no road to the construction site. Cars got stuck in the mud. There was no electricity and no water. It was like Wild West 150 years ago. What a challenge!

We mobilized young volunteers to spend their holidays constructing a huge wooden barn. They worked the whole of August from dawn to dusk. The settlers and specially the Russians could not believe it: young people working for twelve hours a day with no pay and no vodka. In the evening they were sitting around a fire singing. They even succeeded to get the saw mill in the nearby collective farm working which the Russians had not been able to do. Thus they could cut the timber they needed and provide for the collective farm as well.

Our construction-crew has finished the basement and groundfloor of the first farmhouse. But during the winter the Wild families still have to live in two rotten containers and a borrowed wooden hut. Water must be carried in a tank from the next village but usually gets frozen. The four families are not yet complete, some are still at the Volga and will come in spring with the rest of their equipment. Then we want to get the other houses done. Already now our work has set new standards and given hope to the whole area. We provide jobs. All the time people come and want to join our work-crew. A hopeless country is being reconstructed from the ground. And the Russian and German governments are carefully watching what we are doing. So are the Poles. We are demonstrating how these three nations could and should live together, peacefully and as equals. What a task!

MANFRED ROEDER

THE BOOK THAT MADE THE JEWS SO MAD THEY HAD TO INVENT THE MOVIE HOLOCAUST!

AUSCHWITZ:

An Eye-Witness Report

by Thies Christophersen

Foreword by Manfred Roeder

Order No: 01017-single copy $3.00 + $1.50 for postage, 5 copies $12.50 + $1.50 for postage. Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS

Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Corneliu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti-Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" — R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J. Appl. THE ANTI-HUMANS. Order #01013. Sale priced, single copy $2.00 + $1.50 postage, 10 for $15.00 + $5.00 postage.

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 — except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Over the years, while watching our Western Culture being destroyed by government edict and replaced by a violent, decadent alien sub-culture, I continually made excuses for the compliancy of the white majority and blamed racial and cultural aliens and the left-wing media for the destruction of our race, culture and country founded and built by our white ancestors.

Eventually I realized I had been wasting my time focusing on the effect instead of the cause. I no longer blame racial and cultural aliens and/or their propaganda machinery for our problems. Total destruction of the West is and always has been the ultimate goal of the left, and to destroy the West you must first destroy the people of the West, i.e., the white race.

Today, I lay the blame where it rightly belongs: on the shoulders of White American males who, with rare exception, abandoned their traditional cultural role as provider, protector and head of their family to serve as mercenaries, here and abroad, for anti-white, anti-west internationalists.

Two sadistic world wars against white Germany and decades of vicious anti-white, anti-west hate propaganda has reduced the majority of our race to non-whites packaged in white-skin.

In my opinion, to refer to "honky mercenaries", involved in acts of terrorism against the Weavers and the Branch Davidians and the white scum who set them up for the kill, as white men is an insult to every white man who has retained his manhood.

This letter, if printed, may be offensive to some, particularly among those who fought along side the red butchers to make the world safe for Communism, Zionism and the international bankers. To those and other white Americans, male or female, with a genuine concern for the mental and physical welfare of their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, face the truth, swallow your pride and stop serving the enemies of our race and culture. Forty-eight years of post-WW II history proves WW II was a sneak attack against the West and the West lost the war.

As pro-Communist, pro-Zionist Rosenvelt said, "Nothing happens that is not planned to happen."

My thanks to you and everyone involved in publishing Liberty Bell.

Sincerely,
Mrs. P.R., Washington

✠ ✠ ✠

The Faurisson / Berg Controversy

Robert Faurisson
10, rue de Normandie
F-03200 VICHY, France

7 February 1994

Dear Mr. Dietz,

I suppose I will soon receive the Liberty Bell issue of February with my "Comments on Mr. Berg's Article" along with my "Jean-Claude Pressac's New Auschwitz Book." Thank you for having published so carefully those two texts.

I do not know whether you eventually also published Mr. Berg's letter of January 17. Anyway, if you have already published it in the February issue or if you intend to publish it in the March issue, would you, please, publish my answer to that letter?

My answer is only one page long. You'll find it enclosed along with the 7-page answer that, in fact, I sent to Mr. Berg. This one page is, if you want, a summary, as you will see, of the 7 pages.

I am shocked by the way Mr. Berg treated me. He used words that I, for one, carefully avoided to use in my two answers.

But the most surprising in this whole affair is that Mr. Berg apparently tried his best not to understand the 9-word sentence of my challenge. I hope the story will stop with the publication of my one-page answer. Mr. Berg took the initiative of attacking me. I think it is fair the defendant has the last word.

Thank you and best wishes.
R. Faurisson

* * * * *

Following is Dr. Faurisson's answer:

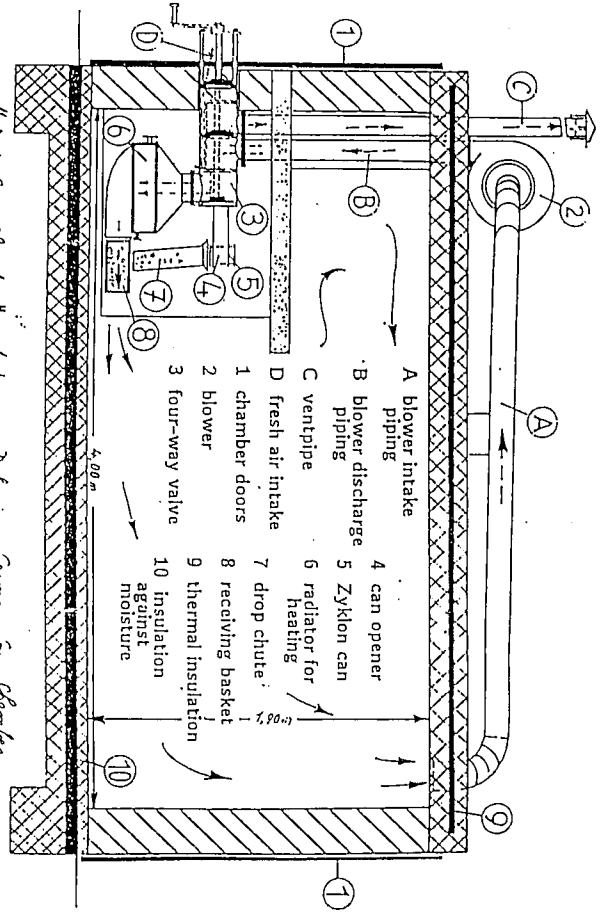
At the end of his January 17, 1994 letter to to me, Mr. Berg wrote:

> If it is at all possible, please return to me a copy of the accompanying drawing with only one sentence added with signature saying this is "not" a "drawing of a Nazi gas chamber."

I immediately sent him back the drawing with the sentence: This is not a Nazi gas chamber, but a delousing German gas chamber.

I also gave him the reference of this drawing and even was able to supply him with the proof that I personally had been the one who had discovered this drawing: that was in the Library of Congress, exactly on September 12, 1979. By chance, I had kept in my files the L.o.C. form bearing my name, my address in

Robert FAURISSON's answer to Friedrich BERG's letter of January 17, 1944.



This is NOT a "Nazi Gas Chamber", but a Delousing German Gas Chamber.
On September 12, 1979, I discovered this drawing as well as many other drawings or photos of the same kind (for instance the photo of a delousing tunnel in Budapest, Sovjuro 12, Rumania) in: Dr. Gerhard Peters, "Die hochwirksamen Gase und Dämpfe in der Schädlingsbekämpfung", Sammlung chemischer und chemisch-technischer Vorträge, Neue Folge, Heft 47a (1942), 113 S., S. 41. See my enclosed documents. (The English words and some arrows are from Mr. Friedrich Berg).

Arlington, the date and the call number of the review in which I had found that drawing. I also produced the proof that I had ordered, among 13 dias, a dia of that drawing (Entlausungskammer) and also a dia of a photograph showing a delousing tunnel in Budapest (Eisenbahn-Begasungskammer). The name of the review was: Sammlung chemischer und chemisch-technischer Vorträge, Neu Folge, Heft 47a (1942) published in Stuttgart by Ferdinand Enke. The drawing was on page 41 and the photograph of the tunnel on page 52. They belong to an article written by Gerhard Peters: "Die hochwirksamen Gase und Dämpfe in der Schädlingsbekämpfung." Many times since 1979 I mentioned this and other articles by Dr. Peters and I showed the dias in a 1982 video. See for instance: Robert Faurisson, "The Gas Chambers: Truth or Lie?"

The English words on the drawing and some of the arrows have been added by Mr. Berg.

I am still waiting for an answer to my challenge: "Show me or draw me a Nazi gas chamber!"

R. Faurisson

* * * * *

Following is Mr. Berg's reply:

Friedrich P. Berg
2132 Linwood Avenue
Fort Lee, New Jersey 07024-5040
February 15, 1994

Dear Editor,

The only person to claim that my drawing of a German delousing chamber is "not" a drawing of a Nazi gas chamber, is Robert Faurisson. In other words, except for Faurisson himself, no one has yet been willing to step forward to say I have "not" answered

Faurisson's nine-word challenge: "Show me or draw me a Nazi gas chamber."

The first sentence of Faurisson's answer to my counterchallenge reads: "This is NOT a 'Nazi Gas Chamber,' but a Delousing German Gas Chamber." At least we agree that the standard ten-cubic meter Degesch delousing chamber is a "gas chamber." However, Faurisson's reasoning for accepting the word "German" but not "Nazi" to describe this chamber is a mystery even though many such delousing chambers were owned and operated by the SS in concentration camps such as Dachau, Auschwitz and Maidanek. If they weren't Nazi gas chambers, then whose gas chambers were they?

Can a gas chamber be called a "Nazi gas chamber" Only if it was actually used for mass murder and not be a "Nazi gas chamber" if it was only used to exterminate lice? Apparently Faurisson thinks so. Is an automobile any less an automobile if it was never driven anywhere? I think not. Revisionists should not delude themselves into believing there is some kernel of profound wisdom in Faurisson's pseudo-technical arguments. There isn't any.

The "physical and chemical impossibilities of the alleged Nazi gas chambers" were all dealt with during the design and development of the Degesch delousing chambers and the railroad delousing tunnels. The standard Degesch chambers performed so well that they were normally operated without gas masks. This was in part because of the opening of Zyklon-B cans from within the chambers with the doors closed and because of the thorough venting with warmed, fresh air fumigation and before the doors were opened. The articles fumigated and vented were hardly "inert" or entirely "lifeless." They included fur and leather goods as well as shoes and undergarments which were often soiled and wet.

Faurisson's letter of January 20, 1994 makes it clear that he has had the answers, more than one, to his nine-word challenge all along. He has actually had photos and technical drawings and at least one engineering dossier since September 1973—but he has not had the good sense to recognize the obvious: Nazi gas chambers—ready for mass murder without any alterations! For the sake of the innocenti, I must add: "but never used to murder anyone—only to keep people alive!"

Sincerely yours,
Friedrich P. Berg

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George,

The media's incessant trumpeting for Democracy in Russia and its accolades for Boris Yeltsin leaves us less sophisticated louts somewhat confused in what appears to be a contradiction to the true nature of this marvelous institution, the backbone of every free society.

Firstly, Boris dismisses the Russian parliament on a whim, then, because the laggards were slow in vacating the premises, he burns them out and when it is all over one hundred lay dead. Our promoters of Democracy are unmoved by the slaughters.

Boris, being new at this democracy business, possibly took his clue from Ma Reno and her boys mowing down those peasants who wandered outside our overlords' official corral. That will teach the surly bastards to keep in line.

Now you can imagine her eyeball slowly swivel in its socket, away from the fire and brimstone of the Waco complex, until it espies John Demjanjuk another defenseless victim.

Russia has still to learn some of Democracy's basic tenets such as "The Vote Buying Principle" that was so skillfully demonstrated by President Clinton by stuffing NAFTA down our collective craws. Gunning down dissidents is normally only required as a last resort. Surely Yeltsin will get the hang of it.

The recent Russian elections furthers the confusion in that Yeltsin's enemies, the Social Democratic Party, won the election fair and square to the dismay of the Western Press. Apparently it is felt that Democracy is fine only if the folks vote in a prescribed way. Yeltsin is faced with the option of again dismissing Parliament and repeat the elections until they come out right and to the satisfaction of the Internationalists.

Yours truly,
R.T., California

✠ ✠ ✠

The Bloody October of Russia

On the 4th of October 1993 Russia's own tanks were firing point-blank at the great White House that was ablaze with fire under the Russian state flag. A wounded soldier, suffering from pain, whispered childishly, "I did not want to do it... We were given orders..." There were a lot of people around and for the overwhelming majority of them everything that was happening was just a kind of performance.

Hundreds of people died during the tragic Moscow events of October 3-4. Some sources state that there were thousands of victims. Who is responsible for their death? Who was the first who dared to open fire? Colonel S. Kostichev, a direct eye-witness to the drama, testifies in the patriotic newspaper Nashey Otechestvo (Our Fatherland / N10, St. Petersburg):

"Who started fire? I will tell you. Armored troop-carriers of the 1st Regiment of the Tamansky Division drove up to the White House. Some people say that the regimental commander is a Jew with a Ukrainian last name. They stopped, turned around and fired their large-calibre guns above the heads of the unarmed people who were standing on the barricades. The shells naturally struck the windows of the White House. People were killed inside. The besieged fired back. The process got underway."

Now a few words about the Ostankino—the building housing the TV centre. Someone spread the rumor that the Baltic sailors in St. Petersburg had captured the TV centre. Everyone started yelling: "To Ostankino! To Ostankino!" Makashov declared: "We shall go to Ostankino!" The bawling went on for half a day, but nobody left for Ostankino. By that time all the radio and TV stations had been shouting that "bandits are approaching Ostankino." Meanwhile, a crowd started moving. A detachment of armed beitarovtsev-zionists arrived there. And they had begun shooting at the defenseless crowd before the arrival of the Makashov men. The beitarovtsi (Beitar = Military Zionist organization) were the first to start firing out of the TV centre.

And when the people at the White House had enough of yelling and really departed for the TV centre with Makashov at their head the beitarovtsi started crushing and destroying everything in the TV centre so that the opposition could not broadcast after the seizure of the TV centre. And this is what actually happened. It is clear to any lieutenant that the capture of an enemy's objective should be performed SUDDENLY and not after six-hour's worth of publicity. And here we have the ex-commander of a military district who has been advertising his attack for half a day. As for me, I think that General Makashov is the principal instigator.

Colonel S. Kostichev further adds: "On the 4th of October tanks were firing at the White House. Everybody saw smoke coming out of the middle floors. Then six window openings—from the centre of the building up to the roof—got covered with soot and this black square remained till the 5th of October. Over this time one of the TV democrats cracked a joke: 'Black and White House.' This witticism found a favorable response. And when there was practically no one staying in the White House the whole floor caught fire and the entire building's front was blackened—as if to please the democrats. Let it be really a 'black and white' house if we have called it so. And the blame was laid on the 'mutineers.' How loathsome and mean."

Nowadays no honest and sensible person can speak of 'the successful progress of democratic reforms in Russia.' The feeble shoots of democracy have been completely trampled with the tanks that were firing at the building of the parliament. Those who are guilty of this crime and of the shooting-down of the peaceful demonstration near Ostankino shall never wash off the innocent blood that has been shed. Patriarch Alexei II ought to have kept his word and have pronounced an anathema against those who were the first to open fire.

All honest people of Russia, irrespective of their views and beliefs condemn the October crime of the Yeltsin regime. The organization committee, 'Defence of Democracy and Human Rights in Russia' / 'Levaya Gazeta' N16, states in their declaration: "...the authorities have provoked violence. Political analysis and thorough evaluation of these events is the task of the future, but it is already clear that they have paved the way for dictatorship. The shooting-down of the parliament with tanks was followed by arrests and beatings-up of citizens who mostly had not participated in the violence, by closing-down of the opposition's editions, by the actual introduction of political censorship. The witch hunt appeals, the policy of doing away with the Soviets of all levels and the Constitutional court—all this is incompatible with democracy...

"We reject 'democracy' that is based on repression. We reject bonapartism with democratic rhetoric instead of democracy."

The press obedient to the Yeltsin regime calls the parliament that has been overthrown with tanks 'red and brown,' 'the haven of the communist nomenclature,' etc. Practically the entire western mass media express agreement with the Yeltsinites. They disseminate obvious lies that are intended for those who do not know the real state of affairs. The entire patriotic opposition of extremely contrary opinions had gathered under the protection of the Russian White House around Alexander Rutskoi and Ruslan Khasbulatov: monarchists, socialists, Nazis and former democrats who had realized that the essence of today's regime is antinational.

It would be naive to suppose that the opposition had been done away with and that it had perished under the bullets. The opposition has gone into the depths of society where it is going to develop and consolidate. The key postulates of its world outlook are absolutely different from what the West believes. The opposition does not at all strive to restore the communist past, although its aims hold nothing new: a strong and mighty Russia, a wise and not subservient foreign policy, strengthening of the ruble. In a few words—their own view how to conduct the reforms which does not coincide with that of the government. Reforms in the name of Russia, and not Russia in the name of reforms.

The murderous October mist hanging over the country will disappear and the world will learn that the Russian opposition is alive and has not yet spoken its last word.

V. Prussakov
Box 7277, FDR Stn., N.Y., N.Y., 10150

P.S: The Moscow newspaper, Russky Poriadok (Russian Order), informs in its issue of 12 December 1993: "Two members of R.N.U. (National Unity) were ritually murdered after the October events in Moscow. Before death they were terribly tortured by their captors. Their noses were cut off, the eyes were taken out and the bodies were without a trace of blood... The names of the members of R.N.U. who were ritually murdered are: Dmitry Marchenko, 28 years old; Anatoly Sursky, 46 years old."

✠ ✠ ✠

Tightening the Jewish Noose

"Jews are flourishing everywhere in Russia while we are dying!" This from a Russian woman pensioner who has seen her standard of living collapse under Boris Yeltsin and his Jewish economics and political advisors. What me have just seen happen in Moscow—the destruction of the parliament— was a popular uprising against Jewish control of just about every facet of Russian life. The Jewish media in America tried to tell us that Yeltsin's opposition were simply hard-line Communists. The truth is that a majority of the opposition was anti-Jewish nationalists, who chanted "Beat Kikes, Save Russia!" throughout the streets and in the Moscow subway. A retired teacher said to a reporter, "Television is captured by the Jews. Radio Russia is only Jews. And they don't let us say a word."

I invite anyone who may disbelieve this to deny that in the United States Jews control the media. They don't let us say a word. When talk radio first came into vogue, there was quite a lot of free commentary permitted. The Jews saw the threat to their power challenged by this medium and quickly co-opted it. Now the only thing said about Jews is praise. Anything else is not permitted. The Russians are not lying or speaking to hear themselves. They have Jewish control up to their ears.

Take short wave radio for an example. You might think that here would be a real free speech medium. Guess again. After months of monitoring short wave radio—"Radio Free America," William Cooper's program, even Ernst Zündel's program—I have had to conclude that when the Jews are concerned all punches are pulled. There is only one program I was able to hear that gave the Jews critical attention, the "Kingdom Identity" broadcast from Harrison, Arkansas. A strangely familiar voice using the pseudonym "Yakub" gave the Jews both barrels on the subject of their claim to be the "Chosen People." I won't identify this familiar voice except to say that he is a very prominent Identity minister who has been out of circulation for awhile. It was good to hear him. As for Ernst Zündel, he is under strict Jewish scrutiny in Canada. Consequently, he cannot say all that he would like to say about them. But Tom Valentine cannot claim persecution by the laws. His "Radio Free America" is a constant repetition with the same tiresome quests week after week. He is one of the "We must take America back" crowd. William Cooper is a dismal race mongrelizer who absolves the Jews and blames the "Secret Mystery Religions" (i.e., the Freemasons) for everything that has gone wrong in America. He is right about the nature of the conspiracy, for we have indicted the Judaeo-Freemasonic cabal in the pages of this bulletin on many occasions. But to absolve the Jews of responsibility flies in the face of all the evidence accumulated in Europe and the United States for decades. When the average Russian cries out against Jewry after 74 years of Red Rule, during which anti-Semitism was officially banned, the only conclusion is that the Jews have their hands into the lifeblood of that nation. Short wave in America gives no hint that the Jews are behind the mess here.

The Jewish noose tightens everywhere. On college campuses it is called "political correctness." The women's movement attacks the white male. Television portrays the white race as mean and nasty, haughty and bigoted. Traditional Christianity is disdained by the media, Christmas belittled as little more than a purchasing festival. Listen carefully to all the Yiddish phrases you hear in the media very day. The states have "hate" laws, which are defined by the Jews as speech and actions that they find critical toward favored 'minorities.'

Russia has attempted to throw off the Jewish control. Boris Yeltsin used the army to put the popular Russian uprising down. It won't go away under Communism for 74 years. The Jews are still at the throat of the Russian. They are at our throats as well. That is how Jews live—at the throats of the Goyim. Philo-Semitism is the cause of the woes of the Aryan nations. The inability to see the nature of the Jewish parasite, that he cannot live independently of the Aryan peoples, is what makes him seem invincible. The Gypsy must be considered in the same light. Gypsies live by stealth and trickery. The Jew is a thief by connivery, by psychological manipulation. He can only be defeated by full disclosure of his modus operandi. Other than the Aryan Movement, who is doing that?

I would like not to have to write any of this sort of thing again. We Aryans have more important things to do than retell the story of Jewish animosity. The time is coming when those of us who want to survive as Aryans will have to break away from the crazed herd that is galloping toward the cliff. We have a new governance to erect on the ruins of what Boobus americanus has permitted the Jews to corrupt. And the truth is, Boobus the Blanko has allowed the Jews to run amok. Jews are not supermen. Far from it. They are a clever people who have learned over the millennia to capitalize on the weaknesses of those they prey on. Aryans have fallen down on their racial defense mechanism. That there is such a branch of our race that can be called Boobus the Blanko is proof that the responsibility for our collapse can be traced back to us.

The Russian people were like Boobus the Blanko in the period just before the Revolution. Their liberals admired the Jews because a few had distinguished themselves in music and the arts, medicine and learning. They failed to see that the revolutionary parties and cadre were Jewish to the core. [You should read Behind Communism, available from Liberty Bell Publications, $4.50 + $1.00 postage; Order No. 02001] By the time they noticed, Lenin and Bronstein and Apfelbaum were ensconced in the Kremlin, and the Cheka was taking away the Aryan intellectuals to the basement of the prison. Our "Soviet" period is about to begin in America. Knowing that Aryan awareness is on the rise, the Jewish cabal behind ZOG have to move ahead toward the Communist-style state procedures that effectively stifle dissent. We have here an ongoing policy of race bastardization. The Russians survived their "Soviet" period while remaining white. Seventy-four years of the Jewish "Soviet" in North America and there won't be a viable white race in the United States or Canada.

Let us remember that the Aryan standard is carried by the Aryan Movement. The rest of America may go crazy. We remain sane. Our resistance is the only one that counts. All the jabber about patriotism is meaningless. Save the best element of the Aryan race. That is the key. We can build a new governance. Without the racial nucleus all else is futility.

Maj. Donald V. Clerkin, Chairman
Euro-American Alliance,
Box 21776, Milwaukee, WI 53221

* * * * *

Editorial from the Euro-American Quarterly, Winter, 1994, published by the Euro-American Alliance:

The rise of Slavic nationalism and the appearance of Vladimir Zhirinosvky on the Russian stage have the New World Order globalists in a tizzy. And so they might. Boris Yeltsin is a boozy dictator who has the support of the Oberjuden who operate the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. Yeltsin is their puppet.

SERVING THE SAME MASTERS?
Clinton and Yeltsin in Moscow last month.

He will use the Russian people for his own purposes while attempting to suppress their natural ethnic urges. It behooves the Aryan Movement to support Russian nationalism, while at the same time cautioning against Russian imperialism. The old Russian hegemony in Eastern Europe is dead, or should be. A Pole or a Balt, a Czech, Slovak or Hungarian, has no reason to want the Russians breathing down on them. These peoples are our cousins, as are the Russians; we need them all in this struggle, a struggle against Jewish finance and cultural strangulation. So we are on Zhirinovsky's side. We hope he is truly different.

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Mr. Dietz,

After you published an ad of 'Russian National Unity' in Liberty Bell for January 1994 I got a few dozens of letters from your subscribers. Unfortunately, I have no possibility to answer everyone personally. I'd appreciate it very much if you'd give me a chance to answer all through your magazine,

1) R.N.U. has branches all over Russia, from Moscow to Sakhalin. All members of R.N.U. are about 20,000. Maybe it is the biggest N.S. organization in the world. At the present time we have three publications in the Russian language: Russky Poriadok (Russian Order), Nash March (Our March), and Narodny Strai (The Folk's System). Total circulation is more than 100,000 copies.

2) R.N.U. does not have any contacts with Mr. Zhirinovsky and his so-called 'Liberal-Democratic Party' of Russia. It seems too premature to judge about his real intentions.

3) R.N.U. considers its activities as part of the struggle of the entire White Race against the Judaeo-Masonic yoke. Therefore, we are for the solidarity of all European nationalists. We believe that all of us have common goals and a common enemy. From our point of view it was a terrible tragedy that Russians and Germans, twice in this century, fought against each other. Never again! Never again Aryans should fight each other.

For Victory,
Valentin Prussakov, Box 7277

FDR Stn., New York NY 10150-7277

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George:

I have just completed Dr. Oliver's outstanding treatise, Populism and Elitism, which had laid on my book shelf for several months unread. Too bad I Hadn't picked it up sooner and saved myself a lot of time searching blind alleys for information that had been "in situ" all along.

The old adage, "too soon old and too late smart", certainly applies to me. I sometimes wonder where I have been all of my life. Had I been more perceptive I would have known, or at least suspected, years ago that the Jews had managed to gain economic control of the world long before I was born. But as hopeless as the situation now appears, I am persuaded that it is about to be turned around. If I am right, then you can take considerable pride in the fact that you were among the early pioneers who helped make it happen.

It seems ironic that INFORMATION, the very thing that "God's Chosen" have sought to control throughout modern history, could become their undoing. Like everything else in this "Age of Communication", the spread of information, which translates into knowledge, is out of control. In addition to the old patriot standbys of journals, newsletters, the telephone and word of mouth, we now have, thanks to fiber optics and the computer chip, a whole array of electronic conveyances such as the word processor, short wave radio, facsimile and computer networks, interactive television and pirate radio stations available to us.

Through all of these mechanisms, the exchange of information critical to this transformation will soon be virtually limitless. On top of that, unrestricted worldwide travel and, shortly, no doubt, a computer aided universal language will be added to the mix. Also, because of the need to continue making consumer "toys" to keep the insane monetary system afloat, other communication devices, as yet unforeseen, will doubtless continue making their appearance.

Think about it. Those who assume that they are about to attain absolute control of the world will suddenly find themselves between a rock and a hard place. They dare not stop trying to keep their cattle fat, dumb and happy with an endless stream of games, trinkets and toys for fear that their economic system would collapse. Neither can they permit this to happen because it would disclose their modus operandi prematurely. Also, "dumb", which in the past had been the bane of their control, will soon cease to be. Whereas now the Goyim can be made to believe almost anything, later, armed with newfound knowledge, they will cease to accept alien control of their lives and come to view their erstwhile rulers with contempt. In the not too distant future, information, fact, scuttlebutt and rumor will circle the globe like water through a sieve. Only "state secrets" will be sacrosanct; everything else would be fair game.

The process is already under way. Once the level of information reaches a critical mass, it will be explosive. We may no longer need to concern ourselves about the future of our race. Superior intellect, inquisitiveness and our adventurous nature should keep us on the leading edge of this advancing technology. The other people of the world, those who have the ability to understand it, will also come to resent the evils of the debt money system, the disastrous effects of uncontrolled breeding, the lying about major historical events, etc. and assist our efforts by demanding an end to it.

Finally and perhaps most importantly, people for the first time ever will begin to recognize the unmitigated lies and unrepentant liars for what and who they are. People will know, and be able to recognize by name, those who have been responsible for the tragic events that have ruined so many lives.

The transition is not going to be without its pain and suffering. Those on the brink of succeeding to rule the world also have their toys and they know, perhaps better than anyone else, how to use them. And we may be assured that those so close to success will not relinquish their stranglehold voluntarily. It could become the classic David and Goliath struggle; the irresistible force meeting the immovable object. However it comes down, we are in for some very interesting times ahead!

Abraham Lincoln told us that "You can fool some of the people all of the time, all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." We are entering a period that if even "some of the people are fooled some of the time" they will have no one but themselves to blame. The information age is upon us and we had better start learning how to take advantage of it. If for some reason we don't, our future will be even more catastrophe than the past.

Sincerely yours,
J.W.M., West Virginia

P.S.: George I started this letter not with the intention of expounding on "the brave new world" but to place another book order. Enclosed, therefore, is a $25 check for the following...

As my understanding continues to grow, I come more and more to appreciate all of the work and sacrifice men like you have made on our behalf. I would have to guess the number of times you must have thought of giving up and going into permanent retirement. I hope you are now glad that you didn't. While what I have written above may seem far fetched at the moment, I feel certain that I am on to something. I just hope that others who have a greater understanding of the problem than I will pick up on the idea and run with it. We must find a way to laugh at those pious sons of bitches who have had it their way all of these years.

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Thank you for the September issue of the Liberty Bell which arrived here last week for the first time. Maybe the first shipment got lost somewhere in the middle of the Pacific.

Also, thanks for extending my subscription to September 1994.

To the informed Japanese intellectuals, today [8 December 1993] is the day of reflection—the reflection over Japan's stupidity of having been dragged into that war by THEM. Non-Aryans as we are, we certainly admire your meaningful endeavor.

With best wishes for the holiday season,

Mr. T.F., Japan.

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Landsmann:

As I expected, the Jews have removed Dinkins as mayor of NYC and replaced him with their other stooge, Guilliani. During the effort to install him, and Jewess Whitman in New Jersey, none of the usual Democratic vote fraud was allowed. This lead to great outrage among blacks when illegal aliens were not allowed to vote as usual! Some of the vote fraud was unbelievably clumsy, like the machines that arrived at polling places with thousands of votes for Dinkins already on them. Some were quite subtle, like putting polling places in churches. Black leaders know that orthodox Jews hate Christianity so much that they won't enter a church even for secular purposes lest they be defiled by "idol worship." A big outcry arose when Republicans reversed the usual corruption and paid off some black ministers not to deliver their black cattle to the polls to vote democratic. The election was along purely racial lines. I estimate 98% of blacks voted for Dinkins. What is amazing and tragic is that some 24% of whites apparently betrayed their race and voted for black racist Dinkins.

These elections are becoming more and more a meaningless farce. More and more they are decided by vote fraud or intelligence operations. In the 1992 presidential elections I have heard that there was to have been a coup October 30, 1992. Bush's plane was to have been shot down over St. Louis and the blame put on Naval Intelligence, the CIA's rival. The plot misfired when a planning error caused the fall guys, who were to be blamed for the assassination, to be arrested 18 hours before their alleged crime. I don't know if this is true or not, but there can be no doubt about the Kennedy assassination conspiracy. Whenever I meet a person who doubts Kennedy was killed by a conspiracy in the government, I ask him what happened to the car Kennedy was shot in. Usually, people imagine the car is preserved under glass somewhere. It is not. It was destroyed by President Johnson the day after the murder. This destruction of vital evidence alone is enough to establish Johnson's complicity in the assassination. To find out who had Kennedy killed it is only necessary to observe who benefited from his death and who is strongest in maintaining the "Lone Assassin" cover-up.

The big news of the moment [December 19] here is that a racist Negro shot some 20 odd people on the train. Since the white passengers on the train were unarmed, they were slaughtered like cattle by the mad black. This is a foretaste of what is to come when whites are totally disarmed by the Jew flunky government. Strict gun laws are already in existence in New York but they apply to blacks and white unequally. A black caught with an illegal gun faces, at most, probation or a little jail time, which is nothing to them. But a white faces loss of his job and a criminal record that will make it impossible to exist in a normal lifestyle. Hundreds of thousands of blacks here are habitual criminals and have no jobs to lose so they carry guns with impunity, knowing that mere possession means nothing in their case. Indeed, blacks here no longer carry ordinary pistols but mini-machine guns like the Uzi. In the last two months a gang of negroes with machine pistols have been carrying out dozens of robberies of supermarkets and other stores in broad daylight and have shot over a dozen people. The police and media suppressed the story until the total reached over 30 robberies so as "not to alarm people!" The murdering racist savage on the train actually did us whites a favor by bringing the racial warfare out into the open. About 3,000 whites are attacked by blacks every day, but this is usually concealed by calling it crime rather than racial war. The train massacre is unambiguous racial war. It remains to be seen if whites are capable of learning from the event and countering it before we go the way of Rhodesia and South Africa. — Enclosed a donation toward your work.

Sincerely,
S.R., New York State

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George,

I was watching "Eyes on the Prize" on our local public television station this morning, and I noticed how much opposition there was to court-ordered integration of schools back in the Fifties and early Sixties. Southern Whites were certainly un-Reconstructed in those days. In 1966, I was part of the Marquette Park (Chicago) response to the integrationist marches for 'open housing.' We really gave it to Morton Lucifer Koon and Jesse Jazbo Jackson, bouncing the Olds 98 they were sitting in by the bumpers until the cops beat us off with long batons. When Lincoln Rockwell came to speak in Marquette Park in August, 1966, just a year before he was murdered, I stood there listening to him and wondering where it could all end.

When the White people of the States gave up against Federal court-ordered integration of schools and neighborhoods it was all over for America. Reconstruction was complete, at least among the weak and irresolute Whites. Blacks gained no 'rights' by the integration of White institutions. They were the pawns of Washington and the Communists, whose mission it was to break down States' Rights and individual sovereignty. If anyone remembers those days, it will be clear who the Communists were, the cadre and leaders of the Red assault on White neighborhoods: THE JEWS! Behind every black 'block buster' was a Jew lawyer or march captain. I personally witnessed Martin Luther King marching arm-in-arm down Wabash Ave in Chicago with Gus Hall(berg), general secretary of the Communist Party USA, in 1967 during an anti-Vietnam War demonstration.

Still, we have boobs in this country who rave about the "progress" made since Brown v. Board of Education, Little Rock and Old Miss, where States' Rights and individual White sovereignty were destroyed by the camarilla in Washington. When I hear Lush Limpnutz (whose TV show now sports a gold-fringed Admiralty flag, the ensigne of the Uniform Commercial Code) rave on about how we are just one happy 'nation' here in the United States, and when I hear the boobish "dittoheads" call in from his amen-corner, I wonder where these older listeners were when the White race and the States of this Union were under attack.

From 1865 until the 1960s, the White race did not forget that the differences between the negro and the White man were so great, the cultures so divergent, that no attempt at integration would be tolerated. The 1960s, however, with that weird Presley and his black music for Whites routine, the Beatles and their air of rebellion, the Jewish anti-Vietnam War movement, and the convenient murders of the Kennedys and the Koon (not to forget Rockwell's murder, which threw the White resistance movement into chaos from which it has yet to emerge), seemed to change everything. By 1970, no White man would say openly to a media microphone or reporter that he was a segregationist. Most White men by that time had undergone Reconstruction.

There are only we "happy few" now. The Aryan Movement struggles along, trying to define itself to a White population of deadheads. Jerks get on the short wave radio today and bleat out their stupid patriotism for a country that has been taken away from them. We hear endless dissertations on "rights" under the Constitution, when in fact the Constitution is a dead-letter, replaced by the UN Charter and the Uniform Commercial Code. I am proud to be un-Reconstructed, but I have few illusions as to what it will mean. I passed through thirty years of the period in which most Whites lost their guts without a scratch on my determination to stay White, to think White, and defend Whiteness. But like all Aryan Movement men, I am a minority in a country that has lost its very soul. Can the soul of the White race in North America be redeemed? For most of the boobs it is a lost cause and a futile effort. Their descendants will be negritos and fritos, who worship the Jewish overlords and do penance for the Six Million.

Somewhere there must be a place for the Aryans, the un-Reconstructed White men and women. Will Europe welcome us, given that Europe itself will get free of the Jews and their Third World dross? Can we surmount all obstacles and create an Aryan Republic on North American soil? Or will the White trash join with ZOG to put us down before we have a chance to show them that life can once again be productive in that it is WHITE? I have no answer to these and other vital questions concerning our Aryan future. But I guarantee one thing: like that Roman soldier in Pompeii who died at his post under the eruption of Vesuvius because his command had forgotten to relieve him, I and others in this Aryan movement will be here to the end, bitter or not.

Major Donald V. Clerkin,
Chairman, Euro-American Alliance
Box 2-1776, Milwaukee WI 53221

✠ ✠ ✠

Has Communism Really Been a Failure?

For some time past it is being put out that Communism has been a failure, particularly an economic failure, especially in reference to what was the Communist Russian Empire. Superficially it would appear that way, certainly from the point of view of the peoples who have been impoverished by a Communist take-over of their countries. But has it been a failure from the point of view of those who were behind the scheme of imposing Communism upon the people of Russia and many other countries in the first place?

Let's take a look at the facts, the truth, of the history of Communism.

The scheme of Communism was conceived and initiated around 1810-1820 by the real powers who direct the conspiracy of international Jewry. The tactic was to deceive the people of the targeted countries to overthrow their legitimate native governments by promising them an economic utopia, "from each according to his ability, to each according to his need;" in other words, something for nothing for the lazy and irresponsible elements of the population. In countries where there were any number of Jews, the Jews operated the manipulations toward destruction of the peoples' governments quite openly, in such a country as China where there were few Jews, Communism was imposed from without.

Once Communism is established in a country, total terrorism is inflicted upon the people. The people are disarmed so that they are defenseless against the terror. The people are deliberately impoverished so that they have no means to take any action in their defense or interests. So, has the enslavement and impoverishment of the people been a failure? From the point of view of the conspiracy that conceived and directed it, it has not been a failure, but rather, in terms of their own objectives, a total success.

Disarmed, impoverished people are made prostrate and defenseless and hopeless. In this country today, the same conspiracy to disarm the people as fast as they, with their treasonous, bought political puppets, can put it over. They have been grinding the people down economically for years, with monstrous taxation, fantastic wasteful government spending, contrived phoney "cold wars," and destruction of American industry and resultant unemployment. All this has brought about a situation where, with families that are not unemployed both parents having to work, often with one or both having to work more than one job, just to keep going, and to support those who can't find work, or don't want to work. Then they have no time or energy left to do anything to cope with what is being done to them, or with those who are doing it to them.

Already the government in Washington has brought about the loss of over a million jobs in manufacturing and industry. This NAFTA scheme will drive all movable industry out of the U.S. and eliminate four to six million more jobs, deliberately reducing the working class to a subsistence level, disarmed, economically prostrate, and politically helpless and hopeless. Around the middle of 1993 the then president of Mexico, Salinas de Gotari, made a public speech in which he stated openly that the purpose of NAFTA is to reduce the standard of living of the people of the United States and Canada to that of the people of Mexico—and we know what that is. The final step will be to find some pretext to bring in the permanent foreign occupation troops of their United Nations—One World government, and the age old dream of international Jewry will be accomplished.

HAS COMMUNISM BEEN A FAILURE? NO INDEED! FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF THOSE WHO INSTIGATED AND IMPOSED IT, COMMUNISM WITH ITS PROGRAMMED IMPOVERISHMENT, HAS BEEN A TOTAL SUCCESS!

Sinking American, New York State

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Landsmann:

I much enjoyed the articles in the December 93 Liberty Bell . Like many of the authors I have also struggled with the insane pretense of negro racial equality which is held with religious fervor by Liberals. Iran's theocracy is nothing compared to the theocracy Americans are forced to live under. I have often wondered what the reasons are for these beliefs. After careful consideration, I have come to the following conclusion.

As Oswald Spengler pointed out, a nation is created by the nobles and priests who rule over the peasantry. After towns develop, the Bourgeoisie uses their money power to try and seize power from the established classes. Physically, their weapon is the mass of city dwellers. Intellectually, their weapons are twofold: first is the theory of Evolution. This undercuts both the divine right of kings and the priestly class by denying the operation of God in animal and human creation. Second is racial equality. By claiming all men are equal, the superior status of nobles and kings is undermined. These ideas go back before the French Revolution of 1789. They are maintained by the Jews (who are the essence of the money power) for political reasons. This is why these ideas will be sustained no matter how absurd they are or how often they are disproved.

Spengler also pointed out the next step in the process from historical experience. The money men, ruling through the city masses are then pushed aside by the mob. In order to control these, the military power is called in. This then overthrows the money power with the power of armed force. The military is feared by the money power as their mortal enemy. In Roman times the Roman military destroyed the Jewish power despite all their money, subversion and foreign allies. It was to prevent such a thing that the huge Federal Armies were immediately disbanded after the Civil War, WW I and II and allowed to be wasted in Korea and Vietnam. Despite the avoidance of WW III so far, the program of racial equality, now extended to absurdity with sexual and homosexual equality, plus the depredations of usury and Jew looting are rapidly undermining the civilization built by our ancestors. The Jews have power without responsibility and are looting our civilization. Inevitably their actions will cause a breakdown of civilization. Whether whites have the will and ability to restore it and overthrow their oppressors remains to be seen.

As for the crazy religion of Liberalism with its evolution and racial equality theology, this weird nonsense will be superseded and made obsolete as the military, and not the voting masses, becomes the center of power.

Sincerely, S.R., New York State

PS: The above actually happened in the aftermath of WW I and the shrieking hysteria of the Jews about it shows how much they fear it happening again. This, not conservative nostalgia, is the wave of the future.

I enclose $45 for a subscription for one of the deserving letter writers in your January issue. The economic depression is intensifying here.

Now that the dirty deals with Mexico and Vietnam have been signed, it is time for another "Jew Harvest" ("Wars are the Jews' Harvest") This will be the third try at a general oil war. #1 was the 1987 war with Iran, #2 was the 1991 Gulf War. Both of these misfired and did not produce the desired oil cutoff. Nothing will be allowed to stand in the way of #3 coming up now.

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George:

May I tell you a little story, a true story? Recently I came down with a very severe cold, against which the vitamin C did not defend me! So, there I was, in bed, at 2 AM... no sleep, only distress. Picked up Liberty Bell, and read every line of Revilo P. Oliver, Charles E. Weber and Allan Callahan. Elevating! By 6 AM, I was confidently at work again on my Structures in Knowledge, some 1200 pages of manuscript in the area of informal philosophy!!

Inspirational literature should not be discounted, by any rationale... Your diligent work is VITAL!

Subscription hereby renewed... Many thanks to our still thinking and bright Americans!!

R.S.H., Colorado

✠ ✠ ✠

Les trois trivial strewers des trivia
ABC's 'Petuh'; CBS's 'Don-Con'; NBC's 'Tomias'.

Cher Trives,

I wonder if anyone will ever write a truthful biography of the likes of you triv-ites. It would be interesting to learn just how and when you, as individuals, moved away from the paths of decency, honor, and courage to the vile broadway of greed, dishonesty, cowardice and thoughtless cruelty. Surely, you weren't born as you have become.

It is a shame that you mountebanks are now surrounded by sycophants who shield you from honest letters of criticism such as this one. I suppose my letter will be read by one of the barriers between you and the people you pretend to serve. Hopefully, the opener of this letter is a young woman; an Aryan who has not yet lost all pride in herself as an Aryan woman; who, despite the constant siren song of decadence that surrounds her at the TV studios, has managed to maintain some standards of decency. To that woman I say: "Hail!" I also say, "slip this letter to your head 'triv-ite'. It will do his ego good."

Triv-ites! I said you were also cruel. A new one for you, eh? But, true. All three of you showed no sympathy for the horribly abused people at Waco. The terrible agony and discomfort they were subjected to before finally being torched. I am hard-hearted when it comes to genuine sadists. I have no sympathy for the child-abuser. I have no sympathy for anyone who abuses the innocent of all ages. Yet, I have enormous feeling and empathy for those hatefully abused. I am a veteran of two wars (including that ghastly WW II when we wrongfully and without pity slaughtered our noble kinsmen and their women and children while under the spell of Jewish-led propagandists), but I can no longer watch war movies. I feel just as strongly for the honorable soldiers of the enemy as I do for our own. Sadists of any army I despise. I also despise cruel people like you triv-ites. Shallow men who cruelly cheered as our Air Force committed horrible atrocities against the helpless soldiers of Iraq during the Persian Gulf target shoot.

I was aghast that our airmen would carry out such attacks as they did night and day with no relief at any time for the ground forces of Saddam Hussein. Those Iraqi forces had no means of fighting back. That is tantamount to you guys jumping on a group of five-year olds. They should have refused such missions. Although Ramsey Clark is no hero of mine, he is right in calling that campaign one of war crimes. Where were you triv-ites? I'll tell you were you triv-ites were. You were shamefully kowtowing to your masters, the Jews. They, a people of unplumbed depths of cruelty (check out how they 'kosher' kill animals, for example), were overjoyed at the atrocities committed against the Iraqis.

Your penchant for cruelty is even more exemplified in the way you totally ignore the terrible, terrible suffering endured by the German people during the 'unnecessary WW II' and the years immediately afterward. Yet, all three of you have Teutonic blood. Three of my great-grandmothers were German. If I knew in 1943 what I know now, I would have refused to serve in the armed forces of the USA against our cousins, the Germans. If I had known in 1950 that elements of the 45th Inf Div had shot down teen-age German Guards (500 of them at one of the concentration camps) in cold blood after they had thrown down their arms and were standing there with their hands up, I would have refused to serve in that unit in the Korean War.

The Truth is: the German soldier and the German Army of WW II were a more gallant force than was ours, or the British. The Russians were generally a mass of illiterate sadists.

If you trois triv-ites had any inkling of the meaning of honor; the meaning of bravery; the meaning of justice; the meaning of remorse over a wrong done to another, then you would be doing special programs on the rich humanity of the German people rather than offering obsequious garbage about an ugly mausoleum in Washington dedicated to a Jewish myth: the Holocaust lie. A lie dreamed up for revenge and profit by elements of our employer tribe. Nobody hates like the Semite; nobody is so filled with greed as is he; no one is so unforgiving when his wealth is threatened. Hitler loosened the stranglehold the Jews held on the financial world of Germany. For this the Jews declared war on Germany in 1933. How desperately we need someone to free America of the stranglehold the Jews have on the financial markets here. They create money out of thin air and loan it to the government for interest—compound interest that we taxpayers have to pay.

And the other strangleholds? How numerous they are! The government; the media; the music recording studios (Cop Killers, anyone?); the movies; the teachers unions; the NAACP, and on and on.

Yet, you cruelties speak not against these ills. Your love for lucre has stilled all whispers from the consciences you once had. You are far from admirable: as far as the poles.

Ancient Soldat, Texas

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear George,

Sincere Aryan Greetings! I just received the January 1994 issue of Liberty Bell and a note that someone was kind enough to donate a subscription to me. I can't find the words to describe the gratitude I have for both you and the donor who is making this possible. As the donor is anonymous, please relate my sentiments to whomever it is. I am looking forward reading each and every one. Thanks again and keep the Liberty Bell ringing.

With honor and loyalty to the cause!

T.C.T., Texas

✠ ✠ ✠

Mr. Dietz:

With Bill Clinton's visit to Prague, a return visit from that he made while a student at Oxford (as a Rhodes Scholar), the article entitled "At the Jewish Cemetery In Prague" by Dr. Charles E. Weber assumes significance. On the occasion of his recent visit. Mr. Clinton revisited the famous cemetery as well as the historic bridge. Henry Ford, Sr., undoubtedly, is smiling down on us from Heaven!

Keep up the good work.

W. H., M.D., Maryland

✠ ✠ ✠

Hi, George,

In regards to the "Bob-it" case: How symbolic it was! How poetic! What justice for a white male that got what he deserved for marrying a mud!

Witness the mud's emasculation of the white male by actually doing the physical act! And witness now how that poor excuse for a white male just took it, and took it all in stride, even joking about it. The Jews have apparently done a thorough job on the white man.

Are there no fellow Vikings left to be found anywhere?

On January 7, 1994 I read a front page article in the paper titled "Leading U.S. Figure Skater clubbed by man after practice" which described an attack by an unknown assailant on Nancy Kerrigan with a metal bat.

When are the American people going to say "Enough is enough!" How many citizens have to be maimed or killed with metal bats before we do something about it?! We must demand metal bat control laws! Congress could pass a law mandating a five-day waiting period in the purchase of metal bats (we could call it the Kerrigan bill).

We have to get metal bats off the streets. It is too easy for criminals to buy metal bats, and we all must work toward the final goal of making it illegal for anyone to own a metal bat!

Your white racial comrade,
R.W., Idaho

✠ ✠ ✠

Dear Sirs,

...I greatly enjoy Dr. Oliver's articles. They are certainly not for the faint of heart but they are always intellectually stimulating. He is one of the most brilliant men in the patriotic movement and I wish he were 30 or 40 years younger.

For Life and Liberty
D.M., Ohio

THE LATE GREAT BOOK:
THE BIBLE
AN ACCOUNT OF CHRISTIAN AND BIBLICAL ORIGINS.

Nicholas Carter feels that it is time for us to sit down and do what many Christians rarely do: Study the Holy Bible. In doing so, we may discover whether or not the Bible is indeed "Holy" and the "Word of God." In strict biblical order, the author methodically, and scathingly, examines the various claims made in the "Holy Book" and shows how many of them bear no relationship to reality whatsoever. For your copy of The Late Great Book: The Bible (Order No. 12006) send $4.00 + $1.50 for postage to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

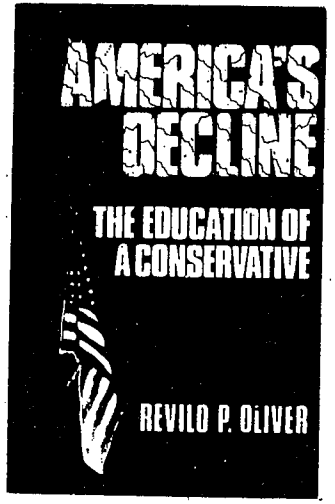
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr: George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

"America and the Holocaust Deceit and Indifference"

A Reply by

Dr. Charles E. Weber

page 1

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Allan Callahan:
Some Reasons for Optimism
page 6

Robert Frenz:
Go Six Yourself
page 11

J.B. Campbell:
Louis & Sheila
page 16.

Katrina Vanderpool:
Verbal Ammunition for White Nationalists
page 32

Letters to the Editor
page 43

Samuel Untermeyer's "Sacred War" Speech
page 50

VOL. 21 - NO. 9 MAY 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

"America and the Holocaust Deceit and Indifference"

A Reply
by
Dr. Charles E. Weber

On the evening of 6 April 1994 the taxpayers of Oklahoma paid in part for the broadcasting of a shrewd, well calculated distortion of history that had as its obvious objective the instilling of a feeling of guilt in Americans pertaining to the tribulations, real or otherwise, of the Jews in Europe during the Second World War. America and the Holocaust was part of a series, The American Experience, and was broadcast by the transmitters of the Oklahoma Educational Television Authority. The broadcasting of this well calculated distortion of history makes a mockery of the word "educational."

To someone who has watched for decades—in fact since my involvement in "Denazification" during 1945-1948—the development and exploitation of the "Holocaust" material for a number of Zionist objectives, this film (apparently produced during the past year) seems representative of a new emphasis in the "Holocaust" material, namely an attempt to insure the continuance of the huge contributions which American taxpayers are compelled by a corrupt congress to make to the ruthless Jewish state in Palestine at a time when thoughtful, well informed and moral people are horrified by the actions of the Jews against the Palestinians, whom they have expelled from their homeland and dispossessed, especially since the founding of the Jewish state in 1948, at which time President Truman gave immediate recognition to it.

America and the Holocaust, is apparently based for the most part on the book by David S. Wyman, The Abandonment of the Jews / America and the Holocaust 1941-1945 (New York: Pantheon, 1985, with an introduction by Elie Wiesel). Wyman, who is not Jewish, typifies the subservience to Zionist objectives so disgustingly common also in many members of Congress. Wyman was shown commenting several times during the film. Wyman insists on repeating the rather obvious lie that six million Jews died as a result of an extermination policy on the part of the German government during 1941 to 1945. America and the Holocaust lasted approximately 1 1/2 hours and was followed by an hour of publicity for the newly dedicated Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington, "For the Living."

The basic thesis of America and the Holocaust is that Americans were hostile to Jews ("anti-Semitic") during the 1930s or even during the war and that this hostility manifested itself in delaying actions of the State Department and Roosevelt himself while it was known that millions, eventually six million, Jews were being slaughtered in Europe. The thesis of the film is set fourth by detailed presentations of conditions present in the United States during the 1930s and even during the war. A poll taken in 1942 listed Jews in third place as a menace to the well-being of the United States and only after the Germans and the Japanese. The immigration law of 1924 restricted to a considerable extent the entry of Jews from eastern Europe and the provisions of this law were used as an excuse for restricting the number of Jews admitted to the United States. In 1939 a bill to make an exception to the law by admitting 20,000 Jewish children on a special basis died in Congress. One opponent of the bill argued that 20,000 charming children would grow into 20,000 ugly adults. The massive unemployment then extant in the United States was used as an argument against admitting Jews beyond the quota limits. Much is made of the voyage of the "St. Louis" from Hamburg carrying a load of Jewish would-be immigrants whose admittance to the United States was refused. The State Department is reproached with special vehemence for what is claimed to have been delaying tactics based on hostility toward Jews. In particular, Brechinridge Long, the Assistant Secretary of State, is sharply reproached for a secret memorandum which he sent to American consulates in 1940 that directed delaying tactics in issuing entry visas to Jews.

Even President Roosevelt is reproached for delaying tactics on the admission of Jewish refugees. Such a reproach seems strange indeed in view of the great power delegated to Jews by Roosevelt's appointments of Jews to powerful positions, such as Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury under Roosevelt. It was under Morgenthau's supervision, of course, that the genocidal plan for postwar Germany was established in 1944, a plan which no doubt intensified the German will to resist American forces invading Germany in 1944, thereby increasing the number of deaths of American soldiers. In the election of 1940 Roosevelt got 90% of the Jewish vote. On January 1944 Morgenthau met with Roosevelt and several days later Roosevelt reversed his position by setting up the War Refugee Board.

The American armed forces are also reproached for not having bombed the rail lines leading to Auschwitz, although it is claimed that this would have been militarily feasible since motor fuel production facilities in the Auschwitz region were in fact bombed.

The Polish government in exile tried to influence Roosevelt by claiming that a mass slaughter of Jews was going on in 1943, as reported to Roosevelt by the (non-Jewish) emisary, Jan Karski. Of course, the Poles were well aware how powerful Jews were in Roosevelt's government. Obviously, they had their own motivations for such claims, even though Poles are hardly noted for their love of Jews.

In view of all the delaying tactics on the part of the State Department and even Roosevelt himself, perhaps the best friend Jews ever had in the White House before Clinton, one must ask the important question as to whether or not military intelligence convinced Roosevelt and his administration that claims of ongoing extermination of Jews were false. After all, during the year 1944 many aerial photographs of the Auschwitz area were taken which must have disproved even then the claims of a massive genocidal action, just to mention one source of information on Auschwitz. We also seem to find a parallel in the attitudes of the Vatican, which also must have had extensive information on the situation through its priests in Germany, Poland and other lands.

The distorting and false nature of America and the Holocaust is manifested not only in what it presents but also in what it does not mention. There is no mention of the Evian Conference of 1938 and the hypocrisy which was demonstrated on the part of nations that were reproaching Germany for its policy of limiting the cultural and economic power of Jews. The Evian Conference was an almost total failure inasmuch as the representatives at the conference were those of the very nations which were quite hesitant to admit any significant numbers of Jewish refugees. On Saturday, 1 April 1933, the National Socialists imposed a one-day boycott of Jewish businesses in Germany. What America and the Holocaust does not mention is the fact that this was a very mild reaction to the protracted and harmful boycott of German goods imposed by Jewish organiations. In 1935 the German government finally got around to passing a law prohibiting the marriages of Germans to Jews. What is not mentioned is the fact that similar laws prohibiting marriages between persons of different races (Negroes and Caucasians) had long existed in many states of the United States, including Oklahoma. As in the case of a number of policies and objectives of National Socialist Germany, they were not out of line with regard to thinking of the times. In fact, some of them were developed under strong American influence, such as the four-volume series subsidized by Henry Ford during 1920-1922, The International Jew [The International Jew — The World's Foremost Problem, approx. 1,000 pages, pb., available from Liberty Bell Publications, $40.00 + $6.00 postage].

In spite of the cynical distortions and lies encountered in America and the Holocaust, there are some consolations in it. It is a further reminder of the immense political power of the Jews, even in Oklahoma, an area far removed from the great centers of Jewish population in New York and Los Angeles. Whatever suffering the Jews of Europe had to endure during the Second World War, that suffering was only a small fraction of the total suffering which other nations had to endure as a result of the war, a war for which Jews must bear a heavy part of the blame in view of their rôle in Communist governments in Russia and eastern Europe and in view of their corrupting influences on opportunistic politicians such as Churchill and Roosevelt. I witnessed much of this suffering in my younger years.

I would bet a nickel to a hole in a doughnut that the Okla-

By 1920, the Government of the Soviet Russia was made up as follows:

Council of Commissaries of the people	22 of which 17 were Jews
Commissariat of War	43 of which 33 were Jews
Foreign Affairs	16 of which 13 were Jews
Finance	30 of which 24 were Jews
Justice	21 of which 20 were Jews
Public Instruction	53 of which 42 were Jews
Social Assistance	6 of which 6 were Jews
Commissariat of Work	8 of which 7 were Jews
Commissaries of the Provinces	23 of which 21 were Jews
Journalists	41of which 41 were Jews.

From Bolshevism is Jewish, by A.S. Leese homa "Educational" Television Authority will never broadcast a lavish film on the unnecessary and genocidal bombing of cities like Dresden or that the series The American Experience will never include a lavish film on the genocidal starvation of Ukrainians in the 1930s. Is only Jewish suffering of importance to managers of the OETA?

Another partly redeeming feature of America and the Holocaust lies in the fact that it demonstrates, as I have long contended, that National Socqialism was not an isolated phenomenon whose features were all confined to Germany. A number of its features were part of world-wide thinking on various problems, including current thought in the United States at that time. ❑

SOME REASONS FOR OPTIMISM

by

Allan Callahan

There are more than a few reasons to be pessimistic about the chances for Aryan survival, but there are some reasons for optimism, too.

For starters, consider the notion that the equality myth is too ingrained in white consciousness, now, to ever be removed. But the belief that man was created, suddenly, about 6,000 years ago, was very prevalent in the West, too, in the year 1859, when Darwin's Origin of Species was published. Clergymen were against him almost to a man, and the general population was largely hostile, too. Darwin himself was a quiet, scholarly type, with no stomach for slugging it out with his howling detractors in public. Fortunately for himhim though, a few of his fellow scholars did have the stomach for a fight, and started strongly defending his new theory. The most vocal and effective among them was the noted Thomas Henry Huxley, who, in faorly short order, started turning things around. Without him, things would have been quite different, and there is no telling how long it would have taken for Darwin to be vindicated.

Huxley is a good example of what one able individual can do. Our side has no nationally known racial leader of his ability right now, but one may become known one of these days, sooner than expected, and become a household word.

The most dyed-in-the-wool thinking can sometimes be turned around 180 degrees in a surprisingly short time. Robespierre was at first, as a young lawyer, opposed to killing even a chicken. Later, he became the most bloodthirsty of all the leaders of the French Revolution. When the Ayatollah Khomeini was living as an exile in Paris, some of his close friends and supporters said he was against killing a fly. After returning to Iran and gaining power, though, he ordered or condoned executions right and left. And shortly after the fall of the U.S.S.R., we saw Reds in high places, who had formerly be some of Communism's biggest supporters, become its biggest detractors.

Various reasons have been given for the fall of the U.S.S.R., but the real reason may have been that it fell after the elite of Russia no longer believed in it.

How many of the American elite, the "movers and shakers" of this country, really believe in this race-mixing experiment going on here? I mean really believe in it? Sure, they still earnestly defend it, still put up a brave front, because this is what is expected of them, and they do not yet want to lose face by admitting that the expermiment is not panning out. But I suspect that many of them are simply "whistling past a graveyard." They would like to change things, but don't know how to go about it, or fear the reprecussions, or are too wimpy to take the needed actions.

In Oct. of '93, Charles Murray, a fellow of the American Enterprise Institute, wrote an article that suggested a rather startling way of dealing with the ever increasing illegitimate birthrate in the U.S. While first deploring the fact that the rate is very high among blacks, he says a big threat now is appearing in a rising white illegitimate birthrate also (although it is still far lower than the black rate).

And what is his proposal? It is "ending all government support for single mothers." How will the single mother then get by? The same way, he says, that she did in the old days: "with help from her family, boyfriend, neighbors, church or philanthropies—anywhere other than the government."

Did Murray barely escape being hanged? No. The intelligentsia is abuzz over his article, and he seems to have gotten surprising support, and made a lot of people think.

Then we have the bill that Senator Harry Reid (D-NV) introduced last August, which is the most far-reaching legislation on immigration reform that we have seen in more than 25 years. It is called the Immigration Stabilization Act of 1993, S. 1351, and it deals with all aspects of immigration, including our refugee and asylum policies.

The legislation would put a cap of 300,000 a year on all types of immigration (still way too high, but far better than the more than 900,000 level we have now), and would put an end to all extended family-chain migration. Requirements that those who sponsor new immigrants should also be financially responsible for them, if need be, will be strengthened. (This is on the books now, but has rarely been enforced).

Right now all any pregnant illegal alien has to do is step across the border to have her child and it automatically becomes a U.S. citizen. This appalling nonsense would be stopped. It would also make those who make fraudulent claims for political asylum think twice. If caught, they could be quickly deported. Today, there is an incentive to file a false claim.

Illegals would find it harder to get work and could collect nopublic benefits except emergency medical care.

Criminal aliens could no longer stay in the U.S. after being released from prison. "Coyotes" and others who smuggle in illegals for profit would be severely dealt with. The Border Patrol would be beefed up to 9,900 agents from the current level of around 4,000.

Many other aspects of immigration would also be addressed. When Senator Reid introduced his bill, he pointed out that the totals of both legal and illegal immigrants each year were equal to the population of his home state 'vithout any clear idea of what it is we hope to achieve."

More and more people are getting worried about the immigration mess. Even Ted Kennedy is said to be concerned!

The race-mixers who run the U.S. today throw a bunch of diverse people together and then seem astounded when they don't get along. Would you throw cats and dogs together and expect them to get along?

But equalitarians insist that we get along, and believe that, with enough propaganda thrown at us, they can accomplish their aims. They think that the "American dream" will help unite us. And what is the "American dream?" Weak "happiness ideals," along with the desire to "make money." Not much to build a cohesive nation on, but some put great stock in it.

We can wonder if the real significance of the Bosnian war, which began in 1992, is understood by our government leaders. Here were Yugoslavians, all people of the same race, who had lived together for hundreds of years, and yet they couldn't hold together as a nation. The "ethnic cleansing" which took place there may well be repeated here, one day, maybe along with the breakup of America. If the Feds can truly comprehend this, it must be very unsettling for them.

To sum up, anyone who thinks about the problem of Aryan survival, and reflects on nothing but the things that are working against it, may develop a defeatist attitude, despair, and give up. This is un-called for. All of our kindred need to look around and see what we have to be optimistic about, and get some balance into their thinking. The end is not yet; not by a long shot! Sometimes history springs some great surprises! And they say the night always looks blackest just before the dawn. ❑

THE LATE GREAT BOOK: THE BIBLE

AN ACCOUNT OF CHRISTIAN AND BIBLICAL ORIGINS.

Nicholas Carter feels that it is time for us to sit down and do what many Christians rarely do: Study the Holy Bible. In doing so, we may discover whether or not the Bible is indeed "Holy" and the "Word of God." In strict biblical order, the author methodically, and scathingly, examines the various claims made in the "Holy Book" and shows how many of them bear no relationship to reality whatsoever. For your copy of The Late Great Book: The Bible (Order No. 12006) send $4.00 + $1.50 for postage to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
P.O. BOX 21, REEDY WV 25270 USA

GO SIX YOURSELF

by Robert Frenz

I am no researcher when it comes to theories since I prefer my own to those of others. I rarely read fiction since I can dream up tales far more wild than those of space-warp Spielberg. Therefore, it is down conjecture lane I must meander when I pursue a thought planted by Dr. Revilo P. Oliver in a recent issue of Liberty Bell. Why six (million)? Dr. Oliver asks when he discusses the number of imaginary dead the jews moan about. Instauration, an arid vocabulary exercising periodical, often comments "there's that number again", referring to the cardinal number 6, or the mathematician's positive integer 6.

There is absolutely no doubt that bizarre brains have attached 6 to many religious beliefs or cooked up religious beliefs from the number 6. From the book of Genesis on, the Bible is loaded with 6's covering everything from days, years, the number of sons, the count of oxen, numbers of pots, years a field may be used, etc. The book of II Samuel 21:20 states "And there was yet a great battle in Gath, where was a man of great stature, that had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, ..." (Imagine that—no middle finger! He wouldn't have been able to give the Clinton salute.) The jews are purified in a six pot ritual; St. John 2:6. It goes on and on, from 6 being used in hundreds, thousands, tens of thousands to six hundred thousand in Exodus 12:37 and Numbers 1:27. Interesting enough, I could find no reference to six million. What a shame! For such a massive work, as the Bible is, there is no reason that 6 should pop up more frequently than any of the other 9 digits, and it doesn't. Any novel, technical manual or piece of historical writing will usually show a rather random distribution of the single-digit counting numbers if the numbers are representative of the real world. A 6 will randomly appear in 1 selection out of 10 (10%) when the set is limited to unique single digits. If the set contains the counting numbers 1 to 99, the probability of picking a number which has a 6 in it, rises to 19 percent; from 1 to 999, about 27 percent. There are 2,811,354 numbers less than 6,000,000 which contain at least one 6. It is curious that this number 2,811,354 has 6 prime factors (prime numbers which divide it), that is, 2, 3, 7, 13, 19 and 271. A prime number is a number which has no divisors (factors) except itself and 1. (2, 3, 5, 7, 11 and 13 are examples of prime numbers).

A quick glance at the Bible reveals that the 6 played a lesser role than several of the other numbers. While six appears 195 times, the three shows up 814 times, the four 542, the five 302, the seven 427, the eight 79, the nine 49 and ten 351 times. The significance of a 3 becomes apparent from triads such as "the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost" and "man, woman and child". Trichotomy is part of our reasoning system: greater than, less than and equal to; negative numbers, positive numbers and zero; three primary colors; 3 points determine a plane; red, green and amber (caution) lights; the minimum number of sides a polygon may have is 3; etc.

Triangles have fascinated men for centuries, particularly triangles containing a right angle (90 degrees). The most primitive of right triangles, with whole number sides, is 3, 4, 5. Now the square of 3 added to the square of 4 equals the square of 5. The square of five is the number of inches in the Egyptian's Sacred Cubit. Also, 3 + 4 + 5 = 12, the Zodiac number. From "eat, drink and be merry" to jokes with sets of three lines, there has always been an immense human involvement with the number 3. (Three strikes and you're out!) If a copy of an equiangular triangle is rotated 60 degrees and positioned on the original, we have the six-pointed star which obscenely decorates much of the world. God capitalized the 6 when he made man on the sixth day, Genesis 1:24-31. On the 5th day, all other life was created, including presumably, we goyim. It all started when God made the jew a 6 day wonder but why did God pick 6? If 6 is a magical number for God's Children then we should also remember that God created insects with 6 legs, a bee commune contains little 6-sided cells and there are 6 petals on the flower of a stinkweed.

Six is what the math buffs call a perfect number. When we add up its divisors (1, 2 and 3), the total is 6. This is also true of 28 (1, 2, 4, 7, 14) and 496 (1, 2, 4, 8, 16, 31, 62, 124, 248). There is an infinite count of perfect numbers, but this is only mathematical poo-plah. SIX is only a scribble and a noise which is passed between beings who have a need to count. We have to get this basic in order to avoid all of that magic number nonsense which paralyzes many brains. That ludicrous 6,000,000 gassing number has 7 digits (days in a week) where a 0 represents the number of days the gas was shut off. A 6 with six zeros. On the seventh day (digit 6) the gas was turned on. Chemical element number 6 is carbon, which results from burning something in an oven. One could romp with this all day but numbers are still scribbles and noises of which we attach some meaning, practical, magic or spook-like.

In the days before Joe Six-Pack (Wow! there's that number again!) could swill himself into oblivion, it was apparent to the counters that several critters had two legs, some four, others six and some with none and many with dozens. It was hard to make a case for any number when it came to leg counting. The number 5 appeared as a count of fingers and toes although some critters had one toe, others three and so forth. This also was not very inspiring but lead to the use of a ten-count system since this was as far as a normal person could go with his fingers. In this regard, most people haven't kept pace with the times. They still can't count beyond their fingers. Five occurs as an interesting number during later history. There are only 5 regular polyhedrons. A polyhedron is a 3-dimensional solid where all of its faces are regular, and congruent, polygons. A regular polygon has sides of equal measure with equal measure included angles. A square is a four-sided regular polygon. Six (wa-hoo!) squares will form the sides of a hexahedron (a cube). The other four regular polyhedrons are the tetrahe-dron (4 faces), the octahedron (8 faces), the dodecahedron (12 faces) and the icosahedron (20 faces). The entire set of regular polyhedrons can be counted on the five fingers of one hand! Aren't you thrilled? Not much meat here.

The introduction of certain "heavenly" numbers followed the observation of the heavens. As the sun buzzed through one year (yere, gear, jahr, Janus the god of the speeding sun), the counters agreed that the moon slithered from dark to full to dark again about 12 times during this period. (Or was it from full to dark to full?) Since fractions weren't born yet, 12 was close enough. That's the basis for the Zodiac where each month (moon-th) had its own name, sign, god or other whatnot. We have been stuck with this number ever since. The Babylonians had a number system based upon 5 times 12 or 60. The Egyptians copied much from the Babylonians and the Bible scribblers copied practically everyone and ended up with 12 disciples and attached a twelve to everything and anything including the number of Jacob's sons to bowls, tribes, fountains, bulls, pillars, reeds, oxen, platters, wives, brothers cakes, wells and so on and so forth. Twelve appears 286 times in the Bible. In fact, the entire Bible has a Babylonian favor in regard to the number 12 which is the number of legs six jews have, or three pigs. The solar year, when divided into twelve pieces, one for each month, and each piece divided into the approximate number of days in a month, yields the basis for 360 degrees in a circle and in some calendars, 360 days to a year. Our clock system has its roots there also with 60 minutes to an hour, a dozen hours in a day (and in a night), 60 seconds (minutes of the second order) in a minute and so on. (The metric worshippers have a hard time with this.)

It was, and still is, common to divide things up. A year is divided into 4 seasons, this is, half of a half. A month is divided into 4 weeks making a week equivalent to 7 days. The number 7, in this context, appears in everything that is known about the Babylonians and Egyptians. The book of Genesis is literally infected with the number 7 and the product of 6 and 7 (42) appears often throughout. When it comes to numbers, the Bible cannot claim any originality and the redundancy of combinations of 12 leads me again to wonder how much, if any, of it really represents other than fancy. We can all remember the puzzling ditty about the man who was met on the way to St. Ives. He had seven wives and so on to seven cats with seven kits. This sing-song use of numbers follows the patterns of the Bible and therefore, if the Bible contains any truth, we should realize that the numbers are only place fillers—figurative things. In this context, the 6,000,000 number is only numerical license to empress and express a point and has nothing to do with reality. This is why I will not waste my time arguing about such notions which vary from day to day and from brain to brain.

The Egyptians had a thing about dividing 12 by 7 (and also division by 3). They had no problem with half of six, thus reducing the problem to dividing 6 by 7. They expressed six-sevenths as 1/2 + 1/4 + 1/14 + 1/28. Note the presence of the divisors of 28, a perfect number. It is known that in order to divide by 3, only a knowledge of division by 2 is necessary.

While we are still sniffing about the Pyramids, it is worth mentioning that the Egyptians were decent in mathematics and used the (rational) number 256/81 as the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. Their method of notation didn't allow such a fraction to be written but their calculations had this result. Many bone-headed experts (Ph.D.'s) have babbled about how Pi (remember your geometry?) showed up in the measurements of things Egyptian, particularly the pyramids. The Egyptians whittled out a wheel of 1 cubit in diameter and used to roll it along the ground as a way of measuring lengths. Certainly Pi would show up in any measurement. It was built in! No super genius here. The people who peddle this malarkey always seem to be believed. Many cultures used 3 as an approximation for Pi. There's that 3 again!

There is little to be gained by exhausting the basis for the fascination with the numbers 6 and 7. In fact, a case may also be made for every number from 2 on up. The Bible makes many references to 11, 13, 17 and on but our query was directed towards the number 6. As the numbers were explored, I could find no logical basis for stating that any particular number has some sort of significance, much less some magical aura. This is as it should be, for numbers are only abstract products of the mind and have little to do with reality although they serve as a powerful mental tool for ordering and manipulating reality. From the 3 men on a match bit to the 9 lives of a cat; from the 6-pointed star to the unlucky 13, it is all superstition. Only God knows why Satanists howl over the number 5 and the jews love their 6's or why some people avoid black cats carrying a ladder with 13 steps.

When one rolls a pair of dice, a showing pair of 6's is called "box-cars". There are 6 million, 6-starred survivors of a 6-year war out there who can vividly remember riding in box-cars during their imaginary game of craps.

Now I am leaving from the same door from which I entered. I have discovered little in regard to that magic 6, so I am offering my own explanation. If one searches the infinite set of natural numbers (the counting numbers) and tries to discover a subset with the property that the sum of its elements is equal to their product, he will find that there are EXACTLY 3 numbers in the one and only subset. ONLY THREE NUMBERS where it doesn't make any difference if you add them or multiple them! They are: 1, 2, and 3 because 1 + 2 + 3 = 1 x 2 x 3 = 6. There you finally have it, folks. No matter how you slice it, SIX is GOD where addition is the same as multiplication! This extraordinary discovery must be worth at least 6,000,000 bagels, with cream cheese already. I'll bet the jews don't know this. Enjoy. Therefore, let me speculate that the large number of fumigated souls was arrived at by multiplication rather than by addition, since in the world of the 6, it makes little difference anyway.

I'll leave you with yet another piece of poo-plah. All prime numbers are either 1 less than, or 1 greater than, some multiple of 6, except for 2 and 3 of course. Be a researcher. Check it out. Be a revisionist. Demonstrate that it ain't so. ❑

LOUIS AND SHEILA

by J.B. Campbell

The greatest award the U.S. government can bestow on an American is not the Congressional Medal of Honor. The greatest honor an American can receive is to be charged with sedition by the United States government.

* * *

Louis fell in love with Sheila immediately. He'd been visiting her father, talking politics, and couldn't believe his friend could have such a beautiful, sweet and unaffected daughter as Sheila, who lived at home with her parents and brothers in Santa Fe, Texas. Sheila Toohey taught Sunday school. She'd had to wear a back brace from a recent car accident and was in constant pain, although she would never burden anyone by mentioning it. In the following weeks Sheila noticed that Louis was coming over for dinner quite frequently and that he was talking with her more than with her father. He actually likes me, she realized. Within a few months Louis asked Sheila to marry him. They were married in April, 1987.

Sheila knew from her father that Louis Beam was a well-known Texas patriot who'd fought Communists and other enemies since his return from Vietnam in 1968. Louis had volunteered for two tours in that slaughterhouse, serving as a door gunner on a Huey helicopter. A typical young American, he'd just thought it the right thing to do. Louis had earned the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal for Valor, awards which would be eclipsed by the honors he would receive twenty years later.

Shortly after their wedding Louis told Sheila that it might be best if they honeymooned in Mexico. In fact, he said, they should consider living there for a while.

"Why?" asked Sheila, who wondered if she could live so far away from her family.

"It's possible that I'll be indicted by the federal government." Sheila confesses now that she thought he meant he might be subpoenaed and that Louis just didn't want to help the federals in any case they had against somebody.

So they made their way south, staying with Louis' friends in a couple of different places. They had little money and it was difficult for Sheila to adjust to this uprooted, somewhat insecure new style of living in a foreign country. Louis had been married before and his pretty, seven-year-old daughter, Sarah, was with them. The three made their way to Guadalajara and found a pleasant apartment in the American colony of Chapala. They settled down to a fairly normal life.

On 21 April, seventeen days after their wedding, a federal warrant was issued for Louis which alleged that he had conspired with Pastors Bob Miles and Richard Butler and six members of The Order "to overthrow, put down and destroy by force the government of the United States and form a new Aryan nation." The Order men were already doing hard time for their activities which had culminated in the FBI's murder by arson of Robert Mathews on Whidbey Island, Washington. Oddly, six other names were thrown into the inedictment with regard to charges unrelated to sedition.

In July, Louis was placed on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list. Unbeknownst to him, the FBI was monitoring his friends' telephone calls and examining their mail. A number of Americans were supporting Louis through his friends, who would forward the money to him under his nom d'guerre.

On the fifth of November, Sheila looked out her kitchen window and saw a Mexican standing under a tree across the road, looking in her direction. Something about his appearance was purposeful and unsettling. She called Louis to come see but the Mexican disappeared before he could get a look. In the months of their stay at Chapala there had occurred a number of rapes and murders of the Americans. The typical MO was to clobber the husband and rape the wife. Everyone was a little jumpy.

The next day Louis, Sheila and Sarah attended a meeting of Chapala Americans where the crime situation was discussed. On the way home they went shopping for dinner. They returned after dark and Louis, as usual, went inside the apartment first to check it out. Then he came back to the car to help little Sarah out and grab the groceries while Sheila went inside and upstairs. She glanced out the kitchen window down at the car and was appalled to see Louis bent over the hood with a gun to his head. She immediately went to the dresser and got Louis' pistol...

As Louis had backed away from the car he'd been jumped by an FBI agent and three Mexican federales. "Move or say a word and I'll blow your f——— brains out!" said Steve Walker, the FBI agent, as he slammed Louis' face down on the car's hood. He could not see what happened next.

Sheila could only think that the men, who were dressed very casually, were the gangsters who'd been terrorizing the colony lately. She intended not to be raped or to let them hurt her husband and Sarah. As she got to the stairs and started down, another Mexican, Ignácio Licea, also dressed in plain clothes, was at the bottom, holding a shotgun. "Come down here!" Licea ordered. Sheila looked in his eyes and was more terrified than she'd ever been.

"Are you going to hurt my husband?"

"Come down here now!"

"I'm afraid!" she responded. With that the federale raised his riot gun to fire. Sheila brought the 9mm from behind her and fired three times. The first shot hit the Mexican in the shoulder and spun him around. Her next two shots got him in the kidney and liver. He fell and was caught by another FBI agent who shot at her from behind him. Licea was dragged outside. Sheila ran back into the upstairs bedroom. Louis' pistol had a big magazine and she ran from window to window, shooting at what she figured was a gang of criminals. Her leg was on fire where the FBI agent's shot had hit her.

The FBI had brought a little back-up with them. A company of soldados from the Mexican army had surrounded the building and now proceeded to fire hundreds of rounds into the apartment, which was fortunately made of good concrete. The volume of lead entering the rooms in addition to the brilliant light which flooded the scene began to persuade Sheila that something else was going on here.

"Tell her who you are!" shouted Louis over the roar of gunfire. "She thinks you're robbers!" The FBI agent pulled him down to the ground and jammed his pistol in Louis' ear.

"I told you to shut your mouth!" screamed Walker, "or I'd blow your f——— brains out!" Little Sarah was still in the front seat of the car, potentially in the line of fire. "Let me get my daughter to cover!" insisted Louis. Walker, shaking in fear, ignored him.

"I give up!" called Sheila, during a momentary lull in the firing. Gradually the shooting tapered off and when it finally stopped they rushed her. They poured up the stairs and captured her, cuffing her hands behind her back. Then the beating started. One of the federales hit her in the face, breaking the bones around her eyes. She was slammed around the room, into the walls, bent backwards over a highback chair until she thought her already damaged back would break. They hit her in the head, in the stomach and on her gunshot leg. The FBI agents watched them brutalize her.

She was taken downstairs but before she could step outside a Mexican slammed her face-first into a concrete pillar, breaking her nose. When she was finally brought outside, Louis was aghast at her appearance and beside himself with rage as he and Sarah were put in a car with Sheila and taken to jail.

* * *

In December, 1986 Pastor Richard G. Butler, head of the Aryan Nations in Idaho, circulated a Sedition Alert which advised patriots:

> ...Even as early as April of 1986, top leaders of the right wing in America have been sent alarming communiques from secret sources in top governmental positions outlining a concerted,orchestrated program of intentional criminal harassment of the White, racialist movements. This plot, sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League and carried out by their ZOG stooges in the U.S. State and Justice Departments... in what has come to be known as Operation Clean Sweep, is well under way..

The round-up of White patriots began six months later.

* * *

The reader may be as completely unaware as Sheila was of Louis' activist background. She didn't know, for example, that he'd been indicted six times but never convicted for such acts as fighting Communists in Texas in the late '60s and early '70s, blowing up Communist radio stations in the area, attempting to strangle the vice premier of Communist China, Deng T'sao-peng, during a state visit to Houston in 1979, machine gunning Communist Party headquarters in Houston, and various actions against our Jewish government.

In the aftermath of the Vietnam bug-out the government transported many thousands of Vietnamese peasants to this country to accelerate the destruction of our former way of life. Thousands of them were placed in California, Texas and other states and provided with brand new fishing boats. The peasants quickly began to exploit our dwindling shrimp population along the Gulf coast. They ignored limits and protected area laws. The Texas shrimpers, by early 1979, had had enough. They appealed to the State Parks & Wildlife agency, which ignored them. They appealed to the federal government, which naturally ignored them, since the yellow infestation was government policy. They appealed to the governor of Texas, who ignored them. Exasperated, the shrimpers turned to Louis Beam, leader of the Texas Ku Klux Klan. Louis moved swiftly and within days the Viet poachers were quaking in fear at the sight of shrimp boats loaded with grim-faced, armed Klansmen in fatigues, patrolling the bayous and waterways, checking the aliens for violations. Fishermen had been killed and boats burned but, until Louis laid the law down, the state and federal governments had deliberately let the crisis grow. The governor, afraid of armed conflict between Texans and Vietnamese, had no choice but to take action. He flew a representative down to Galveston to meet with the shrimpers. "You didn't have to call on the Klan!" he cried. "Beam will only cause trouble!" For the first time, however, the state agreed to enforce fishing laws and regulations the Vietnamese had been allowed to flaunt.

As a result of the national publicity over the Texas Gulf coast dispute, a number of films were produced which dealt with this matter. "Alamo Bay" was a feature film—a product of Jews who naturally feared the prospect of White men standing up for themselves. They vilified Louis. "Bad Moon Rising" was also a propaganda effort to make us hate White men. The film department at Rice University made contact with Louis and asked if they could follow him around for a year and document his activities. Louis agreed. The result, "Portrait of a Klansman," was quite unexpected. The filmmakers, who were not at all sympathetic with our struggle, felt constrained to place a statement at the opening which explained that after a year of observing Louis and his men, they were sympathetic with his cause! This documentary was shown a number of times on the Public Broadcasting System and won several awards. The chief filmmaker was hired by the BBC because of the film.

Therefore, as a leader of the White resistance who had mastered the media, who had beaten the Jews at their own game, Louis Beam had to be destroyed. The ADL/FBI hate Louis more for his marvelous gift for oratory than for his penchant for action. He is undoubtedly the most effective speaker for our struggle than any since the 1940s. This writer, for example, who is not considered a crybaby, along with everyone else in the audience, was left in tears by his speech on behalf of the patriots who are rotting in ZOG dungeons today. It became clear to me, then, why and just how badly the Jews want Louis discredited and destroyed. For example, when the body of Dr. Josef Mengele was found in Argentina and his fundraising spectre lost to the Jews, the next letter sent out to the suckers by the Simon Wiesenthal Center put Louis at the top of their list of bogeymen.

* * *

Sheila and Sarah were immediately separated from Louis in the Guadalajara jail. Louis was being hurriedly readied for extradition to Ft. Smith, Arkansas. The FBI agents were trying to get him out of Mexico before the federales got wise to their dirty trick: They'd staged an elaborate hoax on the Mexicans by claiming that Louis was a drug dealer. They'd even brought along two DEA agents on the arrest to make it realistic. The Mexicans believed the lie—why wouldn't they? They believed it so completely that they nearly killed Sheila because of it.

Sheila and little Sarah were held for hours without food or water. Sheila's hands were still cuffed behind her. Steve Walker of the FBI appeared in the office. He looked at her and spoke to a federale, rubbing his wrists. The Mexican nodded and went to Sheila and clamped the handcuffs down more tightly around her wrists. She gasped in pain. When she finally asked to go to the bathroom they were not removed and a Mexican stood and watched as little Sarah assisted her. The handcuffs would not be removed or loosened for another five days.

The U.S. consulate was told to come get Sarah and then Sheila's terror began. She was forced to swallow a dozen pills and later ordered to sign a confession, in Spanish, that Louis was a drug dealer. The federale chief, Luís Calderón, took personal charge of her torture. When she denied the drug charge he held a gun to her head and said he would kill her now if she didn't sign. She wouldn't do it. They beat her sadistically. They sent her to a cell, where, in isolation, she lost track of time. The Mexicans allowed her no sleep and for five days she was threatened and beaten and ordered to sign the confession. She always refused. Calderón told her, in English, "You have shot a federale. You will never get out of prison. If he survives he will come into your cell and mangle you. If you survive that I will sell you to people who want what is left of your White body—do you understand, gringa?" The beatings left her abdomen swollen and bleeding, so much so that another Mexican asked if she were pregnant? The chief told her, "If you desire a doctor for your injuries, I will call my doctor. You won't like what he will do to you." Sheila's wrists were so swollen that her hands were turning colors and without feeling. She sustained permanent nerve damage to them.

In her filthy cell she was hand-fed by a Mexican boy with his dirty fingers. A Mexican policeman who had begun to suspect the FBI of lying, warned her, "Please, señora, do not scream when they hurt you," he whispered. "No matter what they do, do not cry or scream... They derive pleasure from women screaming." She was chained to her bed with its filthy, infested mattress. When she tried to sleep they would kick the bed and jar her awake. Federales would leer at her and caress their weapons. She was refused water for extended periods and got no medication for her back or abdominal injuries and suffered from vaginal bleeding for several days, so vicious were their beatings.

During one of her interrogations it became apparent to Sheila that the questions she was being asked by Calderón were being passed to him by someone in the hallway out of his office. A paper would be handed to him. He would look at it and ask, "In addition to being a drug dealer your husband is a White supremacist. Who has been sending him money from the United States?" Two police thugs stood over her, waiting for the wrong answer. Sheila shook her head.

"My husband is not a drug dealer." Wham! The thugs beat her in the stomach and head. She recoiled from the hits and managed to see Steve Walker of the FBI peeking around the hall corner at her.

On the fourth day she was interviewed by an attorney for the government. Documents in Spanish were put in front of her. "If you agree to sign these papers your hands will be freed..." Sheila nodded feebly, desperately wanting the excruciating pain to stop. A pen was put in her swollen right hand, which was momentarily uncuffed from the other. She focused on the papers.

"But these are in Spanish!"

"Sign them!" ordered the attorney.

"What do they say?" asked Sheila. A federale grabbed her arm and pounded it against the table. Weak from pain, she started to sign. When she wasn't signing fast enough the cop beat her wrist against the table again and again. Her hands were immediately re-cuffed behind her, even more tightly.

* * *

Louis had been taken from the jail in leg irons and manacles to the Guadalajara airport. Luís Calderón, the police chief, accompanied him along with three others. They put a black bag over his head and tied it around his throat with a rope. He'd at first assumed they were taking him out to be shot but soon they arrived at the airport and he was taken aboard a small jet. As they flew, Louis sat with the black bag on, trying to persuade the Mexicans of his true status.

"Well, the gringos have fooled you again. They've taken advantage of your legal system and are abusing your trust in them..."

"Shut up, drug dealer!" growled a Mexican.

"See? That's what I mean. They come down here and pretend I'm a drug dealer—but I'm political. They want me for sedition. You know what 'sedition' means? It means that I hate the U.S. government! I hate the stinking FBI and they hate me. You get it?"

"Shut up, drug dealer!"

Louis kept it up until the plane landed at Nuevo Laredo. The Mexicans led him out and down the stairs to the ground. The black hood was pulled off and he was astonished to see some forty men, Mexican and American, gaping at him. Someone shouted, "Let's get pictures!" The U.S. and Mex feds jostled for position as group photos were snapped. Then the hood went back on and Louis was forced back on the plane. As he tried to get as comfortable as he could with his hands cuffed behind him (they had been on now without release for four days), an American voice said, "We'll take the hood off as soon as we cross the border, Louis..." Four minutes later the hood was removed. Across from him sat Norm Stevenson, the Little Rock FBI agent in charge of the manhunt. "There, how's that?" Louis looked at him and another agent, the head of fugitive warrants from Tampa. This one glared at him. He had reason to be angry: Louis had eluded the Fanatical Bunch of Idiots and had held up the Ft. Smith show trial for many months. They couldn't start without him. They should have, though, as it turned out.

"So, Louis," said Stevenson, "Things are pretty bad for you..." Louis looked out the window. "You can make it easier on yourself if you coöperate." They flew on across Texas. Stevenson waited a while and then said, "Your pretty little wife's in bad shape back there. Maybe there's a way we can make it easier on her..." Louis looked at him.

"I'm interested."

Stevenson produced two files and referred to them. "Tell us about Bob Miles and Richard Butler." Louis looked at the files and then at the FBI agent.

"You've got the wrong man. I won't betray my friends."

Stevenson called ahead and notified the press that they were bringing in one of the Ten Most Wanted to the Fort Smith airport. Upon landing a gaggle of newsmen and television reporters surrounded Louis fired questions as he was led in leg irons and cuffs to the waiting federal convoy. "Did you really conspire to overthrow the government of the United States?" Louis paused to look at the cameras and smiled. "What else is a country boy going to do on a Saturday night when the only drug store in town is closed?" The federals probably began to have a foreboding that this would not be the show trial they had planned.

* * *

Louis was held for trial at the county jail at Ft. Smith. He had not eaten since the arrest several days earlier. His fast continued through eleven days and he was taken before a federal magistrate who asked him if he intended to eat?

"I'll eat when I am recognized as a political prisoner."

The judge ordered him transferred to the notorious federal prison "hospital" at Springfield, Missouri. Four U.S. marshals drove him there. He was taken to an isolated room and immediately informed that there would be no more hunger strike. "You ain't gonna die on us, boy. You see this steel platform? We're gonna strap you face down on this platform and we're gonna run this hose up your nose and we're gonna feed you anything we damn please and you ain't gonna die on us."

His attorney, Kirk Lyons, who had never handled a criminal case before, appealed to Amnesty International for relief for Louis and Sheila. Louis, after all, was a political prisoner who was being held for racial and political reasons. (When AI finally responded they refused to intervene on the grounds that Louis' indictment alleged violence! Sheila's case was rejected because she had actually shot a policeman.)

* * *

On her fifth day in hell Sheila was transferred to a women's prison in Puerta Agrande. Here the FBI handcuffs were finally removed. As the circulation returned to her nerve-damaged hands the pain was unbearable. Her wristwatch band was embedded in her engorged flesh. She was held here for an additional five days. On each of the first three days she was again forced to swallow a handful of pills. A half hour later the police would question her about guns and drugs. Despite her drugged condition Sheila maintained Louis' and her innocence of these wicked charges.

Then the miracle happened. Officials suddenly appeared and informed Sheila that the charges of intentionally wounding a federal police officer and possession of a weapon of a calibre reserved for the army had been dropped. She would be deported!

What exactly had happened? No one, let alone an American, has ever shot a federale, and been set free. If any civilian shoots anyone down there he goes to hell for a long time. The FBI speculated that a large quantity of money accumulated by The Order made its way to the judge in her case. Louis, whom the FBI likes to call the only member of The Order who isn't in prison, scoffs at this. "Who has this money?" he asks. "All of the members of The Order are in prison! How would anyone get it to the judge? It was a miracle—nothing less."

What happened was that the Mexicans finally realized they'd been deceived by the FBI. They finally read about Louis' coming trial for sedition—not drugs. When they read this they demonstrated their contempt for the liars by turning Sheila loose. In fact, right after this, the FBI asked for the extradition of a Puerto Rican terrorist who had escaped from federal prison and fled to Mexico. Further to show their contempt for the gringo liars, they put him on a plane for Cuba.

There was a great deal of drama and suspense surrounding her release, since most of the Mexicans could not fathom how a gringa could be turned loose after trying to kill a cop, and, figuring the order to release her must be a giant foul-up, they stalled every step of the way. They also probably figured someone had been paid off and they wanted to get paid, too. Sheila's father and brother and Dave Hollaway, an associate of Kirk Lyons, had flown down to expedite the release. After some seventeen hours of red tape and delays, poor Sheila was finally put on a plane for Los Angeles. Then, despite her severe internal injuries and equally severe psychological damage, Sheila postponed her required emergency surgery and flew to Ft. Smith to reassure her husband.

There is an interview with Sheila videotaped during the sedition trial. This beautiful young woman's face was still unrecognizable two months after her release from Mexican torture. Her slender figure was obscenely swollen about her abdomen. She now had a pathological fear of men. She was frantic that Louis would learn what had happened to her while he was still in custody and that he would naturally react and quite likely be hurt or killed by the prison guards. She was terrified that the federales would kill her, as they promised when she was released. If she told anything about what they did to her, they threatened, a man would come to her home and kill her.

This, then, is the introduction to the Great Ft. Smith Sedition Trial of 1988.

* * *

The U.S. government's case against Louis and his sedition co-defendants hinged on the testimony and credibility of James Ellison, formerly a self-proclaimed enemy of the U.S. government. He also termed himself King of the Ozarks and had several wives. Ellison's claim was that, at a meeting in Hayden Lake, Idaho, he had passed a paper around a group of men for their signatures. Some unthinkingly had signed it. Louis had merely ignored the paper when it came his way. He was unimpressed with Ellison since watching his performance at the Aryan Nations podium earlier in the day during which he'd produced a .45 automatic and waved it around as he spoke. Who was this pretentious individual, he wondered? Once the paper made its way back to Ellison he said, "There.

You all have pledged to overthrow by force the U.S. government!" He folded the paper and put it in his pocket.

Louis didn't want a lawyer. He didn't need one except to guide him through the traps of procedure. When it came to the talking part and the asking of questions, well, he could handle that. Richard Butler, one of the kindest and getlest men I've ever met, had undergone open heart surgery, due to stress, shortly after his arrest. He hired Idaho attorney Everett Hofmeister. Bob Miles felt that since they were in a Jewish-ordered tribunal he needed a Jewish lawyer and he hired Detroit's Deday LaRene, who had defended various organized crime figures.

The judge was another matter. They say that every rule has its exception and, in our rotten federal court system, Morris Arnold was definitely that exception. He was totally opposed to the whole business of trying these men for sedition. He saw through the government's smelly ploy of placing convicted men on trial with Louis, Pastors Butler and Miles. He was doubtless aware that the government had lost the two previous sedition cases in 1798 and 1944 and that the former had destroyed the Federalist Party. He behaved very courteously toward the defendants at all times and this probably helped the jurors see them as normal human beings.

When the transcript of this trial is one day made public it will reveal it as one of the most bizarre in our history. One of the 14 defendants, Robert Neil Smalley, complained that he was completely ignorant of the matter at hand and that he was an employee of the CIA who had to be pulled out of Pakistan by that agency where he had been assisting the Afghan rebels! He was immediately released by Judge Arnold but stayed on as a spectator so as to see what it was all about.

Bill and Ivan Wade, father and son, complained that they couldn't be part of any White supremacy case since they were full-blooded Choctaw Indians. Judge Arnold kept them around as a formality since the senior Wade had owned the property on which Gordon Kahl was murdered and had led a campaign legally to punish those who had done the killing. This campaign was transformed by the government into a conspiracy to kill the killers.

Louis' opening remarks to the jury, it is generally agreed, laid away the government's case before it could get going. "You will be told," he said, "that I and Pastor Butler and Pastor Miles are enemies of this government. This is the truth. The federal government is my enemy and by the time this trial is over you will understand that the government is your enemy, too..."

"The government will produce witnesses who will say terrible and fantastic lies about me and the others. Watch these witnesses very closely. Watch their eyes and their body English as they lie. Watch them squirm and shift around and tap their feet..." Of course, when Ellison and the others took the stand the jurors couldn't but wait expectantly for the nervous gyrations to start. Ellison was called first and recounted the episode in which Louis had agreed to overthrow the government in the group which sat around Richard Butler's kitchen table. He told how Bob Miles had obtained a barrel of cyanide to the Aryan Nations which Louis and the rest would pour into the water supply of Washington, DC. With his itching and scratching and bouncing knee he didn't disappoint the jurors but they were absolutely delighted when Ellison's associate, Kerry Noble, took the stand and the subject of the cyanide barrel came up. "That? Aw, Ellison had me buy that some time ago..."

The other witnesses fared no better. Louis questioned them himself. At one point Judge Arnold admonished him, "You can't say it that way, Mr. Beam. If you want to say that sort of thing, say it this way..." Arnold's great-grandfather had been a Confederate officer. He would often take his lunch in the same cafeteria where the defendants' supporters ate and nod affably and say something friendly to them as he passed. He paused near their tables and spoke to someone in a loud enough voice to be overheard: "I hope we can get this garbage over with—I've got important cases to try!" The supporters couldn't believe their ears.

In the early stages of the trial the vindictive federal marshals saw to it that the defendants got only one meal a day. Louis became their spokesman in this matter, too. He told the chief marshal that they were getting one meal and it was inedible slop. "Well, that's what you get here," responded the marshal.

"We want regular food," insisted Louis. "If these boys don't get enough to eat I'm afraid they're going to get weak. We'll probably just fall down from hunger and you'll have to carry us in to the courtroom everyday. Judge Arnold probably wouldn't want to see something like that..."

The marshal hesitated. "What sort of food do you want? Hamburgers?"

"Hamburgers might do for some," said Louis, "but not for everybody. I think you ought to give us salad and hamburgers." They got their food.

They also got acquitted. The jury found all defendants not guilty of all charges. The marshals told Louis they were going to take him back to jail to be released from there. "Was I found not guilty or not? If I'm a free man then I am walking out of this courtroom!" Whereupon he walked out with Sheila on his arm. They walked across the street to the Confederate memorial and Louis gave a rousing victory speech against the federal government. Sheila fainted from the pain she was in and from the incredibleness of their stunning victory. There is a wonderful picture of Louis carrying an unconscious Sheila in his arms as he walks away from the Confederate memorial.

* * *

Norm Stevenson, the FBI special agent in charge of catching Louis, wanted to talk to him. He approached through a third party. For some demented reason he still thought he could get information out of Louis, whom he'd told during the trial, "My marriage broke up over this case."

"Well," said Louis, "I guess I did your wife a favor." His only message back to Stevenson was, "Anytime you want me to tell you how you blew this case, let me know."

David McGuire, one of the defendants, noticed during the trial that an attractive blonde juror was more than a little interested in him. They were married soon after the acquittal and are today living happily in Ft. Smith.

Richard Butler has a copy of the original indictment which each of the defendants signed, the way people sign a yearbook.

Judge Arnold signed it, too.

Today Luís Calderón, Sheila's chief federale torturer, is in a Mexican federal prison for drug trafficking. ❑

THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Cornelu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti-Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" —R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J. Appl. THE ANTI-HUMANS, Order #01013. Sale priced, single copy $2.00 + $1.50 postage. 10 for $15.00 + $5.00 postage.

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 ... except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS. For your copy (Order No. 03014) send $10.00 plus $1.50 for postage and handling) to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

VERBAL AMMUNITION FOR WHITE NATIONALISTS

aka

The Anti-Jew Spew Antidote to the Communist Planet of the Apes

by

Katrina Vanderpool

This paper is dedicated to the task of dismantling some of the most widely used Jewish establishment arguments against White racialists. The technique involved here is actually more important than the content of the arguments presented. Since the public possesses such a short attention span, we will jolt them with NS sound bites. Specific examples will be given to demonstrate this two-step verbal blitzkrieg.

It should be clearly evident to all White nationalists that there is a string of cliché labels used against us by the Jewish press and their collaborators. These word weapons have been far too effective in paralyzing racialists and frightening away our sympathizers. Our task is to very quickly neutralize these emotionally charged terms and have them boomerang back on the opposition. We must never allow ourselves to be left on the defensive.

The Jewish media has trained the sheep-like public to respond to words such as "racism" or "discrimination" in a predetermined way. This conditioned response was created in much the same way that Pavlov trained his dog. However, this conditioned response can be weakened or even broken by refusing to play by their rules.

Remember that the Jews expect everyone to play within their carefully controlled parameters such as the phony Democratic party vs. the GOP political spectrum. So the first task is to blow down their borders and gore their sacred cow immediately. Do this quickly and then move on to where you want to position yourself before you launch your offensive.

The second step is, take control of the argument and to aggressively attack their ideas. Quickly put them on the defensive. The key to success is for the nationalist to take the offensive against our enemies and to drive them off the field. Use facts, observable truths, and connect the dots for people so that they may see the Jewish pattern of control.

Submitted for your approval are most of the shop-worn labels that are used against us by the media. Brain-dead TV tabloid audiences are especially fond of regurgitating them. The most commonly used cliché terms are: racist, hate group, anti-Semitic, Fascist or Nazi, ignorance, equality of man, White supremacist, etc. I intend to show how to take these terms and ram them down the Jewish attack dog's throat.

1. Racism: How many times have you witnessed a thoughtful objective White person squirm uncomfortably when denounced as a "racist?" The accuser assumes this pious mantle of righteousness, while denouncing the evils of racism. Serious objective discussion is often terminated at this point. The accused White person will then unconvincingly spend most of his or her time trying to evade this onerous label, instead of delving into the serious issues at hand. The accuser will appear to stand triumphantly on the alleged high moral ground. This scenario is played out daily with always the same outcome. The reason being that the unsuspecting White did not contest the basic rules of morality imposed on him. The premise that racism is bad went unchallenged.

Now lets replay this scenario using our rules. The first thing to do is knock the opponent off their high moral pedestal. This will invariably disorient your foe. They are often left stammering and confused since you have deviated from their script. In other words, you have pulled the rug out from under them. The second step involves dragging your hapless foe through the mud.

Here is my response to being labeled a racist. Racism and xenophobia are nothing more than survival tools of a species. Every healthy species or subspecies must protect its gene pool at all cost. By preventing me and my race from expressing healthy racist tendencies is tantamount to advocating genocide against my people.

Notice that not only did I quickly demonstrate that racism is good, but that I have also soiled my accuser with the charge of genocide! This is the two-step Jew Spew Antidote Program in a nutshell. After this is delivered, you are free to pursue many of your own related NS arguments against race mixing (i.e., the L.A. nightmare or Brazil's out of control mulatto street population etc.).

2. Hate Group: Did you ever notice that all White nationalist groups are always labeled as "hate groups" by the media? Of course the Jewish created ANC [African National Congress] is never designated as a hate group. The ANC has viciously murdered more victims than all the White nationalist groups combined, we all know about this double standard.

This is probably one of the most subjective labels used by the Jews. The accuser obviously hates you but somehow thinks the label doesn't apply to himself. The bottom line is that there is no objective definition of what a hate group even is.

When accused of being in a "hate group" or of being a "hater," I would reply as follows. You are right, I am in a group that hates the moral hypocrisy that you subscribe to. We hate your system's crime, degeneracy, industrial and chemical pollution, and your usury banking system. What of it? Your group hates responsibility, expressions of love for the White race, beauty, intelligence, and of course Natural Law. The real question is, are you in a White racialist hate group or a Jew spew collaborator hate group?

This is a case of playing off the label and making sure that it sticks to the Jews as much as it does to us. The key is to not even attempt to deny it. Simply show that the label itself is beyond useless and completely absurd.

3. Anti-Semitism: Most nationalist and populist oriented people will own up to being anti-Zionist but not anti-Semitic. I propose yet another twist to this major fear inducing label.

Are you anti-Semitic? No, I have nothing against Arabs per se. However, I am anti-Jewish as are most Arabs. I simply recognize that Judaism is a destructive force used against all productive, healthy nations. By the way, Jews are obviously anti-Aryan yet they are never labeled as such.

This method shows that this label is imprecise and that other Semites feel as strongly as we do about the Jews. This also shows the notorious double standard which operates in favor of the Jews.

4. Fascist or Nazi: These terms are supposed to be used as pejoratives. However, I enthusiastically embrace both words when applied to myself. This is of course not what the opposition is expecting.

I am a Fascist, or more precisely, a National Socialist. National Socialists believe in loyalty based on the genetic bonds of race, not loyalty to the dollar that Jewish capitalism advocates. We recognize the fact that you can only have a better society by populating it with better people. This is in direct contrast to the lowest common denominator type people that democracy forever subsidizes.

This statement illustrates the pride and courage that we feel toward our cause. Never compromise our NS principles or try to hide them. Always force the opposition to confront reality. The above gambit can easily lead to a major airing of democracy's dirty laundry.

5. Ignorance: This is the label that is not used as frequently as it once was. However, it is occasionally brought up by moronic blacks, so let's deal with it.

The argument starts out by some claim that racism is caused by ignorance. My reply would be that ignorance is essentially caused by a lack of knowledge. Since I can easily cite both scientific facts and quote many authoritative sources, I would like you to do the same. For instance, what study have you seen that contradicts Dr. Vint's Black vs. White brain morphology study, or Dr. Shockley's findings on intelligence differences between Blacks and Whites? This will probably silence your foe immediately. However, if he is dull witted enough to continue, then unbridled sarcasm can be used to finish him off. For instance, persist in making him divulge his sources. Ask him what is his primary source of information, TV sitcoms or MTV videos?

The ignorance label can quickly be used to boomerang back on your foe as shown above. If your foe is ill informed he will be made to look stupid as well as ignorant. At any rate, it will be necessary to demonstrate that the ignorant label does not apply to you.

6. Equality: We hear that "we are all equal" ad nauseam, especially from brainwashed Whites. Jew spew religions of course really promulgate this idea. In fact, the doctrine of equality is a very powerful superstition in our society. However, I will simply use reality to evaporate this mirage.

The statement "We are all equal" means that each of us is completely interchangeable with one another. There would be no such thing as talent or differences in intelligence. This, of course, flies in the face of all observable fact. Since this position is untenable, they will then assert that "all races are equal." My reply is that we were all given dirt, rocks, and trees. Now what did each race do with its set of dirt, rocks, and trees? The Negroes never came up with a written language, the wheel, or anything resembling a true civilization. If natural resources are key factors in human development, then why isn't resource rich Angola giving foreign aid to resource poor Iceland?

otry and mine is this: I am open and honest about mine, while you are disingenuous and hypocritical about yours.

Once again I have demonstrated that these labels apply to everyone. They are purely diversionary. Remember that whatever benefits the White Race is good, while anything that hinders it is evil. We follow our ethical code not theirs.

9. White Superiority vs. The Human Race: Obviously some of these labels have overlapping meanings. These poorly defined terms often creep up in racial discussions. My recommendation is to destroy all credibility in the notion of the "nobility of the human race" before anything else.

In contrast to White supremacists, Human supremacists believe that all Homo Sapience are completely above the laws of nature that govern all other life on earth. White supremacists do not recognize the significance of the so-called "human race" which is nothing more than an arbitrary grouping of talking bipeds. We simply acknowledge that the majority of "humanity" could be easily classified as worthless, resource depleting food tubes.

This is a very harsh rebuke to anyone that believes that human life is somehow more precious than other species. The truth of the matter is that most of us prefer the company of dogs and cats to that of blacks and Jews. Do people actually enjoy the crush of humanity or do they try to avoid the crowds?

10. Open Mindedness vs. Closed Mindedness: As racialists, we are often chastised by race mixers to "open our minds." What they really mean is for us to turn off our minds so that they can brainwash and manipulate us.

I keep an open mind on an issue until I have enough information from all opposing viewpoints to make a decision pro or con. At that point the issue is closed unless further data presents itself. With regards to miscegenation, my mind is now closed because the preponderance of evidence is against it, while there is noth-

I am constantly amazed how this equality argument goes unchallenged. In many ways it is the easiest to debunk. It should not only be disproved by a cogent argument but should actually be heavily ridiculed. There are many pathways that can be pursued to attack the equality argument.

7. Discrimination: Remember when a well-bred person was said to have discriminating taste and that this was meant as a compliment? Now, of course, we are supposed to have the powers of observation and judgment of amoebas. After all, intelligent discernment of racial differences might hurt someone's feelings. Therefore the Jews and Judeo-Christians want us to abandon all reason and intelligence and embrace their idiotic belief in equality (see above).

Discrimination is applying one's acquired knowledge to everyday decision making. For instance, choosing gold over lead or celery instead of hemlock are important decisions that would be impossible without the power of discrimination. In much the same way, I prefer the company of intelligent, creative Whites to graffiti-scrawling criminal blacks. It's called reality, look into it.

The idea that discrimination is bad is another ludicrous notion that can bring grievous harm to anyone who practises non-discrimination. This is another very soft target so don't hesitate to sink it.

8. Prejudice or Bigotry: These terms get hurled at us by inferiors who want something for nothing. Giving them a chance means giving them unfair advantage over Whites (e.g., quotas). This is another big con to separate productive White people from their hard earned money.

Aren't you prejudiced against racists? Didn't you come here with a bigoted notion of what a "Nazi" is? Why is it considered bad to practice prejudice and bigotry in favor of the White Race, while your use of prejudice and bigotry in favor of dysgenic bottom feeders is considered good? This difference between your brand of prejudice and big-ing substantial to support it. Miscegenation practiced in both ancient Aryan India and the Spanish colony of Mexico destroyed their peoples' genetic ability to maintain or advance civilization. The White people in these lands degenerated into the mongrel over-breeding hordes of today. Are you open minded enough to consider these conclusions? If not, then show me a nation were race mixing actually improved its status.

This is a case where I lucidly explain why I do not reject the label. However, the establishment dupes once again find themselves hopelessly ensnared in a trap that was set for me. Within this argument, I also destroyed all credibility in miscegenation.

11. The Myths of America: Several pernicious myths are constantly promoted by the Establishment to keep patriots in line. Once again they are trying to ensure unquestioning loyalty to the flag, the Constitution, and democracy. Let's knock them down like a row of dominoes.

A. The Flag: Americans are supposed to get all misty over the hoisting of "Old Glory." However, the history of the flag during this century is nothing to marvel at.

To the charge of being anti-American or disloyal to the flag I must reply that my loyalty is unquestionably to my race. I can not pledge allegiance to a red, white, and blue rag that represents genocide of the White Race as it most certainly does now.

B. The Constitution: Gee, don't we just love those constitutional republicans whining about how unconstitutional our government is? One would think that this magical document is good under class.

Once again I must reaffirm my loyalty to my race and not to a piece of paper. Unscrupulous politicians that have sold out their race and nation are not going to have pains of conscience over violating any constitution. The revered system of checks and balances is nothing more than foxes guarding the hen house.

C. Democracy: We are constantly told that as imperfect as democracy is, that it is still the best system possible. Like Plato, who rated democracy as the second to the worst type of government, I find it hard to believe that wallowing in ever new lows of depravity is the best we can do. Democracy is a bloated sacred cow that needs to be put out to pasture permanently.

Democracy promotes ideas such as every human carcass has inalienable rights, that the Jews are above all criticism, and that the White Race must foot the bill for every miscreant on the planet. Democracy creates hopeless pyramid schemes to fund its social programs and is administered by corrupt, irresponsible bureaucracies. Democracy is nothing but a sham run by an internationalist slave master that is forcing all of us to work ourselves to death on its global plantation. Democracy proves the Orwellian slogan that "freedom is slavery."

D. Nation of Immigrants: This lame excuse is used to hold open the immigration floodgate to the Third World. Do we really need such "cultural contributions" as disease, poverty, and crime from these Third World rock kickers?

America was built by White immigrants in a span of about one hundred years. This is something that the New World aborigines failed to do in over ten thousand years of their occupation of this same land. Early White immigrants had to risk both life and limb in order to build this nation from scratch. In contrast to the hardships faced by the White immigrants, the non-White immigrants of today enjoy free education, free medical care, and of course welfare.

Note the stunning contrast drawn between yesterday's White immigrants and today's mud race freeloaders. Once again, I have allowed reality to overtake the myth.

E. The Melting Pot & Multiculturalism: These ideas are fine when they are applied to various White ethnic groups, but it is a disaster when other races are introduced. The following allegory demonstrates the folly of race mixing that these notions promote.

Imagine if a chef made a stew by randomly tossing in such incongruous ingredients as strawberries, cottage cheese, lemons, bagels, chocolate, and liver. The result would be a pail full of slop fit only to be eaten by pigs. The government uses this same haphazard approach in its current integration policies. The notion of the melting pot and multiculturalism will inevitably degenerate Americans into an unsavory race of nondescript mongrel.

Obviously, I am engaging in a scorched earth policy with regards to the American myths. White European blood is the factor most responsible for the past success and prosperity of America. As Western (White) Civilization is rapidly being mongrelized and looted by the Judeo-Christian axis, we must fight to keep our blood pure and our vision clear.

12. Christianity: The Jews adopted a ruthless racist religion for themselves, while palming off a sickly, defeatist, sucker religion on all of us Gentiles.

Christianity is an imbecilic fraud at best and a Jewish weapon of White genocide at worst. In the past, Christianity rotted-out and destroyed the great Roman Empire. Presently, it is casting White Civilization down into a new dark age. Most of us think that only immature children believe in Santa Claus who rewards good girls and boys; yet straight-faced adults claim that they will be similarly rewarded by another unsubstantiated super-being in the "afterlife." Christianity is just more Jew spew that dupes its believers into betraying their own race and destroying their own civilization for the sake of gaining a personal cushy spot in "Heaven." What kind of god is going to reward such a despicable lot of traitors with eternal life?

Even when racialists try to make over the Bible into their own image, they are still left with suicidal doctrines such as "love your enemies" (Jews), "the last shall be first"

(morons and degenerates), blessed are the poor in spirit; blessed are the meek" (praising vile criminals and cowards), and "think not of tomorrow for tomorrow will take care of itself" (instructing us to never plan ahead or set goals). Christianity is mental AIDS which becomes more virulent with each passing year. Christianity is the bastion of race treason and race mixing. Racialists can no longer afford to be charitable toward it.

Some of you readers might be surprised to know that such a fanatical article was written by a woman. However, feminists will be disappointed to hear that I submitted this paper strictly for the cause of White Revolution, not for gender equality. I si'mply synthesized many of the ideas that I have gleaned from my own National Alliance comrades, as well as from such luminaries as Adolf Hitler, Leon Degrelle, Revilo Oliver, George Lincoln Rockwell, and many others. It is my fervent hope that this article will further aid our great cause. ❑

THE BOOK THAT MADE THE JEWS SO MAD THEY HAD TO INVENT THE MOVIE HOLOCAUST!

AUSCHWITZ:

An Eye-Witness Report
by Thies Christophersen
Foreword by Manfred Roeder

Order No: 01017–single copy $3.00 + $1.50 for postage, 5 copies $12.50 + $1.50 for postage. Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

PLEASE REMEMBER:

Your subscription to Liberty Bell, your book orders, and your regular financial contributions are our lifeblood. Please help us keep Liberty Bell ringing and proclaiming the truth. Your continued support is needed and will be greatly appreciated!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

You Germans are just not with it when it comes to writing German names in English. You miss some of the nuances of the English language.

For example, in times past, when writing about the psychologist, Dr. Freud, most have used the German spelling which is F-R-E-U-D. Now the correct English spelling is F-R-A-U-D, and that gives the reader a much more accurate idea about the man and his work. So in your future writings it should be Dr. Fraud.

Now comes the movie which in correct German is "Schindler's List." However, in English it is spelled "Swindler's List." This English word gives a much more accurate understanding on what the movie is about. So, when you write about the movie in the future, you should use the English spelling, which is S-w-i-n-d-l-e-r's List.

Yours truly,
H.N.S., Chicago

⌘ ⌘ ⌘

Dear George:

Naturally I was amused by page 50 of your April issue!

Isn't there anything we intelligent Americans can do, in order to repay the wonderful Germans for what they ARE? I myself am sick and tired of listening to idiots and fools, criticizing The Good Germans... Painful enough to hear these idiots ridiculing The French ('those froggies'); disgusting to hear them ridiculing The English ('those snobs') — but when they criticize the Germans... I must walk out of the room before I loose my temper entirely!!!

The greatest leading nation of Europe, insulted over and again by garbage can mentality... How much longer must absurdity be endured?

I think our Waldo Emerson had it right when this poet-philosopher said: "Unless to Intellect is added Will—Apollo is an embecile!" Sure, pure reason is supreme, but without Hard Hands to defend it, what next?

Sincerely yours

R.S.H., Colorado

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

Disquieting is the argument between Professor Robert Faurisson and Friedrich P. Berg over the question of gas chambers. Professor Faurisson seems to be saying that there were no homicidal gas chambers in the camps. Fred Leuchter's Report seems to substantiate that. When the professor says, "Show me or draw me a gas chamber," he means a homicidal gas chamber of the type alleged to have been used in Auschwitz.

Certainly Professor Faurisson believes that the Germans could have built such a gas chamber to kill people, but he argues that the only type they actually built was a gas chamber, or delousing chamber if you will, to fumigate the clothing and bedding of camp inmates. Mr. Berg counters by charging that the Germans built huge railroad tunnels for the purpose of delousing entire trains, which indicated that they had the technology to build homicidal gas chambers. Few can take issue with that.

The question remains: Did the German National Socialist State design a program of genocide of Jews and others using lethal cyanide? The answer is: Without a written order to this effect—and David Irving has searched in vain for such an order—there can be no question that such a plan was neither formulated nor carried out. So the argument between these two gentlemen seems to be one of semantics. Professor Faurisson wants someone to show him a picture, or draw him a picture, of an actual, working homicidal gas chamber in one of the camps. Now there must be a "survivor" somewhere about who will come forward with a contrivance he will swear was the one that gassed him twelve times. That, however, won't fool anyone—except maybe Steve Spielbum, who has Amon Goeth shooting people in Schwindler's List from a house down a hill and a balcony that faced away from the camp exercise yard!

Sincerely, Maj. Donald V. Clerkin

* * * * *

Border Watch /AICF

Box 525
Montery, Virginia 24465

31 March 1994

Dear Border Watch /AICF:

America is dead.

Nothing can reverse the Third Worldization of North America short of a complete takeover by Aryan forces loyal to the Western culture and the white race. That is unlikely due to the fact that the white masses seem lobotomized as to the fate that awaits them upon becoming a minority. Long before that, the Washington camarilla will collapse of its own profligacy. Then at least the best of the whites will have an opportunity to establish a new Republic—for whites only—and only those whites who have demonstrated their willingness to preserve their race and culture, the founding stone of every nation.

So let Lush Limpnutz smoke his Cuban stogies and wave his gold-fringed flag of financial empire, the Admiralty banner of the Uniform Commercial Code that has replaced the Constitution and the Bill of Rights in the courts. It is all coming to an end, but Limpnutz won't be a part of the new beginning.

Sincerely, Maj. Donald V. Clerkin

* * * * *

Public Forum
Enterprise Newspapers
1112 South 60th Street
West Allis, Wisconsin 53214

Dear Editor:

As I left my Greendale polling place today, I noticed a gold-fringed American flag standing by the door. In the lot outside was a car with a miniature gold-fringed flag on the antenna. In my studies of the law, I came across a 1938 case, Erie Railroad v. Tompkins [304 U.S. 64, 114 A.L.R. 14387], which overturned Swift v. Tompkins, an 1840 case [16 Pet. 1], on the grounds that the Swift case had wrongly implied a common law jurisdiction for the Federal courts. After Erie Railroad v. Tompkins the Federal Courts were required to glean law from the Negotiable Instruments Acts, there being no further access to the common law in the states for the Federal benches. So the Congress created something called the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.) for the Federal Courts.

Federal Courts sit in the states. Those state citizens and corporations that bring suits in the Federal courts now bring them under the U.C.C., and since the early 1960s the states have been replacing the common law with state statutes based on the U.C.C. Wisconsin, like all other states, is now a "code pleading state." The common law pleadings have been put aside.

What has this to do with gold-fringed flags? The gold-fringed flag is the insigne of Admiralty Jurisdiction, of the international nature of the U.C.C. The common law flag of the United States and the Republic for which it stands, is without a gold fringe. Any place that displays a gold-fringed flag is showing its fealty to the international concept, denying the sovereignty of the United States, denying the American Republic and the separate nature of the states of the Union.

Sincerely,
Maj. Donald V. Clerkin, B.S., LL. B.
Euro-American Alliance, Box 2-1776 I
Milwaukee WI 53221

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Editor:

Thank you for printing my last response to Prof. Robert Faurisson in spite of his request to have the last word.

Thank you also for reproducing the actual page showing Faurisson's answer beneath my drawing of a real Nazi gas chamber. Your readers can see for themselves that Faurisson has twice underlined the pronoun "I." That underlining is, I believe, more revealing than all of his other statements in defense of his badly formulated nine-word challenge: "Show me or draw me a Nazi gas chamber."

Although Faurisson deserves great respect for much of his work and especially for his personal sacrifices, he does great harm nonetheless with his ceaseless repetition of pseudo-technical arguments which have no scientific basis whatsoever. Some of Robert Frenz's criticisms are actually valid. Tragically, some compelling arguments against the Holocaust story are actually suppressed within some revisionist publications because the editors, as at the IHR, are unwilling to risk hurting Faurisson's feelings. Just as the Holocaust story has become a new religion, Holocaust revisionism may become a new religion also with high priests and blindly devoted true-believers.

I offer a second counterchallenge to Robert Faurisson and anyone else:— Return to me a picture of the railroad delousing tunnel in Budapest with one sentence added saying that this was not a Nazi Gas chamber or that it could not have been used for mass murder. (Anyone needing those issues of the Journal of Historical Review or of Liberty Bell in which such pictures appeared should write these publications for some photocopies.)

Nazi gas chambers that were actually used for fumigating entire railroad trains would have also been ideal for mass murder— but they never have even been implicated by the exterminationists. They are indirect but strong evidence of just how crazy the holocaust story really is. How pitiful that Faurisson, and his followers, cannot recognize the obvious.

Sincerely yours, Friedrich Paul Berg

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

George-

Thanks for the speedy delivery of my recent book order. I especially enjoyed Gruesome Harvest (available from LBP, $5.00 + $1.50 for postage). I wish this book could be read by every German-American worthy of the name.

Regarding the letter from Valentin Prussakov in the April L.B., I am one of those who responded to his R.N.U. ad in the January issue. I even sent him a few bucks. He claims he is not able to respond to a "few dozen" L.B. readers who wrote to him. If Mr. Prussakov is trying to cultivate support in this country for his R.N.U., it would behoove him to make an effort to respond to those correspondents, even it is only with a 1-page form letter. I know I won't send any more contributions. It is a shame, because the White Nationalist Movement in America is pathetic, and I would just as soon support a promising movement in Russia.

Sincerely, F.K., Colorado

George:

Sorry for the delay. Please renew my sub. Keep up the good work. I am pleased to read of the "race" convention scheduled for next month in the south.

I still maintain that the problem with Europeans and transplanted Europeans is "Christianity."

Best regards, H.A.T., California

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Figures Don't Lie — Do They?

Editor:

Holocaust? No emotional diatribes—just explain where the "Holocaust" six million came from. World Almanac and Book of Facts 1934 and 1945 show that between 1931 and 1945 world Jewry averaged 15,500,000 based on American Jewish Committee and Religious population figures. European Jewry under Hitler's control approximated 5,815,842—below the six million claim. Subtracting Jews who emigrated from Europe leaves 2,115,842 Jews in Europe during W.W. II. Why were Jews so hated by Germans? In March of 1933 the World Jewish Congress called on Jews to boycott German goods. In August of the same year Samuel Untermeyer of the World Jewish Economic Federation, over the Columbia Broadcasting Station in New York City, said the Jews of the world had declared war on Germany and would starve them (the Germans) to death. That "declaration of war" came six years before Germany initiated military action in 1939.

The World Centre of Contemporary Jewish documentation in Paris shows 1,485,292 Jews died from all causes in concentration camps. The Red Cross says 300,000 concentration camp deaths—not all Jews. Of course, many died, and, yes, "stacked like cordwood" for Allied bombers near war's end destroyed food and medical supply lines. Jews AND Germans alike died; cremation and mass burial was necessary to prevent a Holocaust of plague, but through all this world-wide Jewry figures remained constant from 1931 through 1945. So where did the Six Million Figure come from?

Mrs. A.S., Maine

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

SAMUEL UNTERMEYER'S "SACRED WAR" SPEECH OF AUGUST 7, 1993

Upon his return from the world-wide
International Jewish Boycott Conference at Amsterdam, Holland.
(From New York Times, August 7, 1933)

My Friends:

What a joy and relief and sense of security to be once more on American soil! The nightmare of horrors through which I have passed in those two weeks in Europe, listening to the heartbreaking tales of refugee victims, beggar description.

I deeply appreciate your enthusiastic greeting on my arrival today, which I quite understand is addressed not to me personally but to the holy war in the cause of humanity in which we are embarked, Jews and non-Jews alike, for we are equally concerned that the work of centuries shall not be undone, and that civilization shall not be allowed to die.

It is a war that must be waged unremittingly until the black clouds of bigotry, race hatred and fanaticism that have descended upon what was once Germany, but is now medieval Hitlerland, have been dispersed. If we will but enlist to a man and persist in our purpose the bright sun of civilization will again shine upon Germany, and the world will be a safer place in which to dwell.

As our ship sailed up the bay today past our proud Statue of Liberty, I breathed a prayer of gratitude and thanksgiving that this fair land of freedom has escaped the curse that has descended upon benighted Germany, which has thereby been converted from a nation of culture into a veritable hell of cruel and savage beasts.

THE WORLD'S CONCERN

We owe it not only to our persecuted brethren but to the entire world to now strike in self-defense a blow that will free humanity from a repetition of this incredible outrage.

This time the Jews are the victims, next time it may be the Catholics or the Protestants. If we once admit, as is brazenly insisted by the German Government, that such fiendish persecution of the people of one race or creed is an internal, domestic affair and not a world concern, how are we to know whose turn will be next?

Now or never must all the nations of the earth make common cause against the monstrous claim that the slaughter, starvation and annihilation, by a country that has reverted to barbarism, of its own innocent and defenseless citizens without rhyme, reason or excuse is an internal affair against which the rest of the world must stand idly by and not lift a hand in defense.

I have seen and talked with many of these terror-stricken refugees who have had the good fortune to escape over the border, though forced to leave their property behind them, and I want to say to you that nothing has seeped through to you over the rigid censorship and lying propaganda that are at work to conceal and misrepresent the situation of the Jews in Germany begins to tell a fraction of the frightful story of fiendish torture, cruelty and persecution that are being inflicted day by day upon these men, women and children, or the terrors of worse than death in which they are living.

When the tale is told, as it will be some day if the impotent League of Nations ever sufficiently awakens from its Rip Van Winkle slumbers to the realization of its power and duty to prosecute an investigation into the facts, the world will confront a picture so fearful in its barbarous cruelty that the hell of war and the alleged Belgian atrocities will pale into insignificance as compared to this devilishly, deliberately, cold-bloodedly planned and already partially executed campaign for the extermination of a proud, gentle [sic], loyal [sic], law-abiding [sic] people—a people who love and have shed their blood for their Fatherland [sic], and to whom Germany owes in large part its prosperity and its great scientists, educators, lawyers, physicians, poets, musicians, diplomats and philosophers, who are the backbone of its past cultural life [that's the best one I have heard in a long time!!!— Ed. LB] .

BACK TO THE DARK AGES

But why dwell longer upon this revolting picture of the ravages wrought by these ingrates and beasts of prey, animated by the loathsome motives of race hatred, bigotry and envy. For the Jews are the aristocrats of the world. From time immemorial they have been persecuted and have seen their persecutors come and go. They alone have survived. And so will history repeat itself, but that furnishes no reason why we should permit this reversion of a once great nation to the Dark Ages or fail to rescue these 600,000 human souls from the tortures of hell, as we can with the aid of our Christian friends, if we have the will to act.

Protests and pleas from all corners of the earth, from the leaders of all creeds, having proven as vain and unavailing, as was the idealistic dream of our martyred President of making the world safe for democracy and of protecting minorities, what then are to be the lines of our defensive campaign against these atrocities, on which we are already actively embarked? Are we right in our plan? If so, what steps shall now be prosecuted to attain success?

Our campaign is two-fold—defensive and constructive. On the defensive side will be economic boycott against all German goods, shipping and services. On the constructive side will be an appeal to the League of Nations to construe and enforce the labor union provisions of the Versailles Treaty and the written promises made by Germany, while the treaty was under negotiations, to protect its minorities, which have been flagrantly violated by its disfranchisement and persecution of the German Jews.

WHAT BOYCOTT MEANS

As to the boycott, strange to say a mere handful in number, but powerful in influence, of our thoughtless but doubtless well-intentioned Jews seem to be obsessed and frightened at the bare mention of the word boycott. It signifies and conjures up to them images of force and illegality, such as have on occasions in the past characterized struggles between labor unions and their employers. As these timid souls are capitalists and employers, the word and all that it implies are hateful to their ears.

In point of fact, it signifies nothing of the kind. These gentlemen do not know what they are talking or thinking about. Instead of surrendering to their vague fears and half-baked ideas, our first duty is to educate them as to what is meant by a purely defensive economic boycott, and what we are doing and proposing. Admittedly, the boycott is our only really effective weapon. These gentlemen who are taking counsel of their groundless fears to the exclusion of their reason have done nothing and have no program except to attempt to arouse world opinion, which is and has been from the outset on our side, as it was bound to be because of this brutal, senseless, unprovoked assault upon civilization.

It is not necessary to belittle or underrate that accomplishment, if their aimless, fruitless endeavors in that direction may be so dignified in recognition of their good intentions, the barren of results as they have been. It is sufficient that their efforts have proven unavailing and that the campaign of Schreckligheit not only goes on unabated in the face of unanimous world opinion but that it is not increasing in intensity and that the masses of the German people, misled by government propaganda and suppression of free speech and of the press, are either voluntarily, or through fear of punishment at the hands of their despotic rulers, supporting their government in this hellish campaign. What then have these amiable gentlemen accomplished and what do they hope or expect to accomplish in the way of stemming this conflagration of civilization by their "feather-duster" methods? You cannot put out a fire, and especially that kind of a fire by just looking on until the mad flames, fanned by the wind of hate, have destroyed everything. What we are proposing and have already gone far toward doing, is to prosecute a purely defensive economic boycott that will undermine the Hitler regime and bring the German people to their senses by destroying their export trade on which their very existence depends.

'FORCE THEM TO LEARN'

They have flaunted and persisted in flaunting and defying world opinion. We propose to and are organizing world opinion to express itself in the only way Germany can be made to understand. Hitler and his mob will not permit their people to know how they are regarded by the outside world. We shall force them to learn in the only way open to us.

Revolting as it is, it would be an interesting study in psychology to analyze the motives, other than fear and cowardice, that have prompted Jewish Bankers to lend money to Germany as they are now doing. It is in part their money that is being used by the Hitler regime in its reckless, wicked campaign of propaganda to make the world anti-Semitic; with that money they have invaded Great Britain, the United States and other countries where they have established newspapers, subsidized agents and otherwise are spending untold millions in spreading their infamous creed.

The suggestion that they use that money toward paying the honest debts they have repudiated is answered only by contemptuous sneers and silence. Meantime the infamous campaign goes on unabated with ever increasing intensity to the everlasting disgrace of the Jewish bankers who are helping to finance it and of the weaklings who are doing nothing effective to check it.

The Hitler regime originated and are fiendishly prosecuting their boycott to exterminate the Jews by placarding Jewish shops, warning Germans against dealing with them, by imprisoning Jewish shopkeepers and parading them through the streets by the hundreds under guard of Nazi troops for the sole crime of being Jews, by ejecting them from the learned professions in which many of the had attained eminence, by excluding their children from the schools, their men from the labor unions, closing against them every avenue of livelihood, locking them in vile concentration camps, starving and torturing them, murdering and beating them without cause and resorting to every other conceivable form of torture, inhuman beyond conception, until suicide has become their only means of escape, and all solely because they are or their remote ancestors were Jews, and all with the avowed object of exterminating them.

APPEAL TO MANKIND

As against this, the foulest boycott in the annals of time, we are appealing to all mankind to enforce a counter-boycott, That appeal is meeting with the conviction that idealism and justice are still alive.

There is nothing new in the use of economic boycott as an instrument of justice. The covenant of the League of Nations expressly provides in these identical words for its use to bring recalcitrant nations to terms. President Roosevelt, whose wise statesmanship and vision are the wonder of the civilized world, is invoking it in furtherance of his noble conception for the readjustment of the relations between capital and labor under the terms of the sweeping Industrial Recovery Act, to the end that labor shall receive a more just share of the wealth it creates. He is about to enlist the consumers of the country in a national campaign in which they pledge themselves to boycott all manufacturers, jobbers and retailers who fail to subscribe to the codes and to buy only from those who have assented and who are thereby privileged to fly the blue eagle of NRA. What more exalted precedent to our timid friends want?

With this explanation of our aims, I appeal to the America Jewish Committee, whose public spirit and good intentions I do not for a moment question, but the wisdom of whose judgment I challenge, no longer to hold aloof but to rid themselves of their timid and ill-considered prejudices and join in actively pressing this boycott as our only weapon except the appeal to the League, which I shall discuss at a later time.

I purposely refrain from including the American Jewish Congress in this appeal because I am satisfied that 95 per cent of their members, are already with us and that they are being misrepresented by two or three men now abroad. Of them I ask that, prior to the meeting to be held this month in Prague by their executive committee, they instruct these false leaders in no uncertain terms as to the stand they must take on this all-important subject and demand that they shall either openly represent their views or resign their officers. One of them, generally recognized as the king-pin of mischief makers, is junketing around the Continent engaged in his favorite pastime of spreading discord, asserting at one time and place that he favors and supports the boycott and at another that he is opposed or indifferent to it, all dependent on the audience he is addressing; but always directly or indirectly delivering a stab in the dark.

PROGRESS SO FAR MADE

There is not time now, but I hope and expect in the near future to be able to report to you the steps that have been taken and that are already under way, and the surprising and gratifying progress already made in many countries toward the success of the economic boycott in which we are engaged. Although considerable progress in that direction has already been made in Great Britain and in the United States, you will be surprised to learn that they are the least advanced and as yet the most inadequately organized of all the countries that were represented at the Amsterdam World Economic Conference, where the boycott was unanimously and enthusiastically approved by formal resolution by a rising vote.

With us in America the delay has been due in part to lack of funds and the vast territory to be covered, but it is hoped and expected that this condition will soon be corrected. The object-lesson we are determined to teach is so priceless to all humanity that we dare not fail.

Each of you, Jew and Gentile alike, who has not already enlisted in this sacred war should do so now and here. It is not sufficient that you buy no goods made in Germany. You must refuse to deal with any merchant or shopkeeper who sells any German-made goods or who patronizes German ships or shipping. To our shame be it said that there are a few Jews among us, but fortunately only a few, so wanting in dignity and self-respect that they are willing to travel on German ship where they are despised and meet with the just contempt of the servants who wait upon them and of their fellow passengers. Their names should be heralded far and wide. They are traitors to their race.

In conclusion, permit me again to thank you for this heartening reception and to assure you that, with your support and that of our millions on non-Jewish friends, we will drive the last nail in the coffin of bigotry and fanaticism that has dared to raise its ugly head to slander, belie and disgrace twentieth century civilization. ❑

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

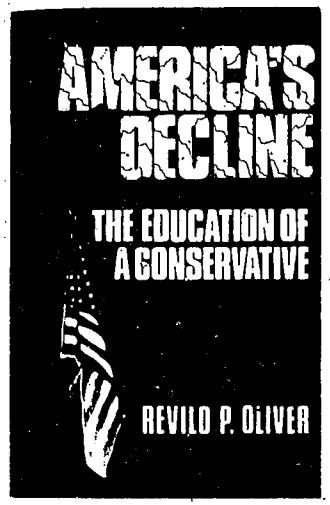
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

D-DAY — JUNE 1994

Reflections by One American Veteran of the Second World War

by

Charles E. Weber, Ph.D.

page 1

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Hans Schmidt:
"Sch(w)indler's List", page 8.
Dr. Charles E. Weber:
Book Review:
"Denying the Holocaust...", page 19.
N.B. Forrest:
Good-bye to the White Tip, page 28.
Tyler C. Turner:
This is Your Brain on Television, page 32.
Colin Jordan:
National Socialism:
A Philophical Appraisal, page 37.
N.S.W.P.P.:
What is National Socialism, page 44.
Letters to the Editor, page 46.

VOL. 21 - NO. 10 JUNE 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts can not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1991
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$40.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$50.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$60.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$70.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$75.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION:

10 copies	$ 22.00
50 copies	$ 90.00
100 copies	$150.00
500 copies	$600.00
1000 copies	$900.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

D-DAY — 6 JUNE 1944

Reflections by One American Veteran of the Second World War

by

Charles E. Weber, Ph.D.

Television stations throughout the United States are now showing many views of the events of a bloody, painful day that took place a half century ago, gruesome scenes that included great physical and mental pain for the participants, scenes that were recorded in thousands of feet of motion picture film. What did this pain and these sacrifices on the beaches of Normandy really bring about for Americans?

I am an American veteran of the Second World War, born in 1922 just several days before Mussolini's "march on Rome." I was sworn into the Army of the United States on 13 January 1943 and discharged from military service on a pleasant spring day in Heidelberg, 13 April 1946. During the three and a quarter years I went to places to which I was ordered and did what I was ordered to do. Since my overseas service was in Europe, my reflections on 6 June 1944 are mostly concerned with the American military rôle in Europe. When I view the film showing American military actions on 6 June 1944 I realize how fortunate I was not to have been in a location such as the "Omaha" sector that day.

After the end of military actions in 1945 I was involved in a process usually summarized by the word "Denazification," which afforded me the unusual opportunity of listening to views on both sides of the war. My training had been in military intelligence and my Military Occupational Specialty Number was 631, that of an intelligence non-commissioned officer.

Opposing American military forces invading Europe in June 1944 were men of my race, in fact exclusively of my race, from various parts of Europe, a Europe which had been exhausted by nearly five years of war. At the time the United States was closely allied with the most destructive tyranny which had ever existed in the history of mankind. Men from many lands were opposing the advance of Communism into western Europe: Finns, Germans, Hungarians, Italians, Romanians, Slovaks and Croatians as well as nearly a million volunteers from the Netherlands, Belgium, France, Denmark, Norway, etc. These volunteers included some of the finest and most courageous men of all the combatants, not only in terms of their military feats, but also because their governments, some of which had fled into exile, disowned them and later tried many of them as traitors for idealistically defending Europe against the armed forces of Communism.

During the past few decades a number of courageous historians have been reëvaluating the history of the Second World War and in particular the American rôle in it. A notable, early example is the book by the American intelligence officer, Col. John Beaty, The Iron Curtain Over America (1951) [available from LBP, $8.50 & $1.50 postage]. A recent and quite disturbing book by the Canadian journalist James Bacque, Other Losses (1989), deals with the ruthless American treatment of Germans who had laid down their arms in 1945. Such historians have had the courage and intellectual integrity to delve objectively into the realities of American participation in the war in spite of a flood of continuing propaganda by the American mass media that present the history of the war as an American involvement in a "good war." In addition to the two titles mentioned above there are scores of other important books in this category.

On 1 September 1939 National Socialist Germany, wisely or not, attempted to gain back by force of arms parts of which had been taken from Germany by Poland by force of arms during 1919-1920. Three days later the war between Germany and an overconfident Poland was expanded into a world war by declarations of war against Germany by a heavily armed and overconfident England and a somewhat hesitant France which considered itself well protected behind an impressive line of modern fortifications. The motives for these declarations were complex, but fear of German competition for export markets was unquestionably a prominent factor at a time of lingering massive unemployment in England. On 3 December 1939 another event took place about which nearly all Americans are unaware. It is known to historians as the Bromberg Bloody Sunday, a mass murder of civilian ethnic Germans by Poles. This event, which was soon documented by a large illustrated official publication of the German government, brought about a grim and desperate atmosphere from the very start of the war.

We know from documents of the Polish Foreign Office captured in Warsaw in 1939 by invading German forces that the diseased, ruthless occupant of the American White House, who was still preoccupied with massive unemployment after seven years in office, was ordering his diplomats in Europe to help set the scene for a war which was indeed destined to solve his problems with regard to massive unemployment. The shrewdly duplicitous, mendacious Roosevelt assured the American people that he had no intention of sending their sons to fight on foreign battlefields, for he was well aware that the vast majority of Americans wanted no involvement in the European war that was raging at the time, especially after the outbreak of hostilities between Germany and the U.S.S.R. Even such prominent Americans as Charles Lindbergh and Walt Disney helped to lead the struggle against the threat of involvement in the war.

On the basis of published histories of Soviet military units we know today that a Communist invasion of western Europe was being planned, an earlier attempt at which was frustrated during 1919-1920. (See Bulletins 4 and 40, page 4.) In 1941 Soviet forces were being ordered into offensive positions with their powerful, modern tanks in number far greater than those at the disposal of the German commands. When German political and military leaders became convinced that time and further delay were putting Germany at a military disadvantage that would become ever more difficult to overcome, after arrogant demands by Soviet diplomats in the autumn of 1940 and after a brutal Soviet occupation of the Baltic republics in 1940 (a preview of what defeat by the U.S.S.R. would mean to Germany and indeed to the rest of Europe), German leaders ordered an offensive action against the U.S.S.R. on 22 June under the code name Operation Barbarossa, which met with astonishing successes against the Soviet armed forces that had been preoccupied with future offensive actions without making sufficient defensive preparations, thus another instance of overconfidence. The initial German military successes took place in spite of inadequate preparations for a sustained offensive, even including a shortage of uniforms suitable for winter warfare.

Roosevelt had an intense personal hatred of Hitler, who had, in some important ways, been far more successful in solving economic problems of their respective lands. Roosevelt had come from a very wealthy family, in contrast to Hitler, who came from modest circumstances and who had served his nation in its armed forces as a close witness to the horrors of war. During 1940-1941 under Roosevelt's leadership American armed forces and materials of war were being committed increasingly to military actions against Germany in spite of the overwhelming sentiments of the American people against military involvement in another European war. In a long speech on 11 December 1941 Hitler finally expressed his recognition that Roosevelt's diabolical efforts had won out against the will of the American people and that a state of war with the United States existed. (See Bulletins 29 and 36.) However, without such a formal declaration, the full forces of American military and industrial potential might have been delayed for months or even years. Hitler had underestimated the will of the American people to stay out of the European war. When one reads Hitler's speech of 11 December 1941 it becomes apparent that Hitler had become deeply involved emotionally by American actions against German naval forces in the Atlantic. The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor several days earlier had made Roosevelt's desire for full American involvement an easily attained reality and his political position virtually unassailable.

The beaches of Normandy, soaked with the blood of American young men on June 6, 1944, are a symbol of American sacrifices in a war which produced results that later caused many thoughtful Americans to ask themselves what the bitter sacrifices had really brought about. For over four decades eastern and much of central Europe were tortured by a brutal, exploitive Soviet occupation. During 1945-1946 expulsions of ethnic Germans from areas that had been parts of Germany for centuries resulted in the deaths of millions [Suggested reading: Gruesome Harvest: The Costly Attempt to Exterminate the German People, by Ralph Keeling, available from LBP, $5.00 + $1.50 postage]. By the start of the Soviet blockade of Berlin in June 1948 all Americans except the most simple-minded admirers of Roosevelt had to ask themselves what we had done as a nation. I was still in Europe during the summer of 1948, having taken a position with the Department of War after my discharge from the army. The summer of 1948 was one of great tension and fear that a war would break out again, this time in a military vacuum that would have permitted a rather sudden defeat of whatever western military forces were still left in Europe and a subsequent Soviet occupation of most or all of Europe that had not already been occupied by Soviet forces.

We Americans can be proud that our Constitution forbids "ex post facto" laws in keeping with thousands of years of European legal traditions expressed, for example, in the ancient Latin legal dictum, "nulla poena sine lege." One day in the summer of 1946 I attended the protracted show trials in Nuremberg of German leaders who had been obeying the laws of their country and defending it against ruthless foes who had made genocidal threats against the German nation in the form of the Morgenthau Plan and other means. The Nuremberg trials were a cynical repudiation of American legal principles, against which some courageous American voices were raised at the time, including some members of the United States Senate. Both Senator Robert Taft and Senator Joseph McCarthy died prematurely.

The Nuremberg trials, with their cynical disregard of American and European legal principles (similar to present efforts to suppress investigations of various historical questions in Canada and Europe), can be seen as a sort of psychological necessity for most Americans who had come to realize what their country had done in Europe and that a military vacuum had been created in Europe with little more than American atomic bombs as a deterrent to further Soviet military advances. The trials helped to rationalize the moral aspects of our conduct of the war, including the merciless and largely unnecessary bombing of German and other civilian populations, as in the case of Dresden in February 1945. The disgraceful American postwar treatment of German prisoners of war and Operation Keelhaul were not well known at the time to most Americans. Such actions were not worthy of a nation that claimed the influence of Christian moral principles.

The American "victory" of 1945 and the subsequent Nuremberg trials have poisoned and debilitated the psyche and even the will to survive of the Aryan component of the American population. They have acted like a boomerang that returns to strike the thrower. In one law after the other, in one judicial decree after the other and in one foreign policy after the other the poison and debilitation have manifested themselves. During the past few decades the fortunes of the Aryan components of the American population have been declining year in and year out. The "Holocaust" material and other myths and quasi myths generated with well calculated objectives during and after the Second World War have so thoroughly poisoned and debilitated the American Aryan will to survive that this component of the population of the United States is being overwhelmed demographically and economically, seemingly almost without its awareness, let alone a will to resist, on the part of the victims. The defense of the Aryan nations has become unfashionable, an action out of season, even immoral.

The flood of illegal immigrants into the United States from unsuccessful lands, "affirmative action" (a cynical euphemism for putting Aryan men at a disadvantage in employment), the frequency of abortions which have caused an absolute and even greater relative decline of the Aryan population of the United States, the increasing incidence of miscegenation, our lack of a will to punish sufficiently crimes against Aryans by members of hostile races, the hostility to what remains of Caucasian populations in Africa on the part of "our" State Department, the giving away of our canal at Panama by an obviously corrupted Congress against the overwhelming sentiments of the American people and welfare policies which have caused such a dysgenic development of the population of the United States that it can no longer compete successfully on world markets are just some of the tragic manifestations of the poisoning and debilitation of the American Aryan mind, which seem to me to be the insidious, seldom recognized result of American involvement in the Second World War. Wars seem to have the ability to "hallow any cause," to use Nietzsche's phrase. Whatever Hitler's faults or mistakes might have been, his basic aim was the welfare of Aryans. Through the constant denigration of Hitler and his National Socialism in the popular media, this aim is being constantly denigrated, in turn.

The economically debilitating "Cold War" and the costly wars in Korea and Vietnam must also be regarded as at least indirect results of what I am inclined to call "The War to Make the World Safe for Communism" and the tragic mistakes which the United States made during and after that war, notably its naive or even treasonous support of the evil Soviet empire. The Second World War offered a perfect pretext for the growth of Big Government and the introduction of payroll deductions. They are amongst the most damaging, still-extant legacies of the war as far as the Caucasian taxpayer is concerned.

The members of the airforces of England, Germany and the United States were physically and mentally outstanding specimens of Aryan man. Their genes were the supreme result of hundreds of thousands of years of evolution of mankind. They died by the scores of thousands while fighting each other in the flames, explosions and impacts of falling aircraft. In most cases their genes were lost forever. That loss was a striking example of the dysgenic effects of modern warfare. Far more insidious and perhaps far more important were the poisoning and debilitation of the psyche of Aryan man as a result of the war.

It seems especially ironic that a president who slyly and selfishly evaded military service during the war in Vietnam and whose past personal behavior is a source of shame to our country is now representing the United States in commemorations of the sacrifices made by American soldiers on the beaches of Normandy and central Italy. Clinton has the duplicitous manner which is all too reminiscent of Roosevelt's manner.

It is proper that we honor the well-intended sacrifices of American soldiers who were killed and wounded during the Second World War but we must also keep the result of these sacrifices in their proper perspective, especially with regard to the long-range results of the war. ❑

"SCH(W)INDLER'S LIST"

A German View of this Zionist Propaganda Movie

by Hans Schmidt

As I am writing these lines, the anti-German propaganda movie "Schindler's List" has been in the theaters for 16 weeks. It is shown in 1,382 locations across the country, and has so far grossed $74.7 million. Needless to say, the Jewish overlords are making every effort to promote this hate film, and everywhere brainwashed teachers are taking their pupils to see it.

Have no fear though: I stick by my prior statement that almost everything the Oberjuden are doing now, including this stupid film and the numerous "Holocaust" museums and memorials, will backfire. (Just notice what is currently happening to the unrepairable relations between Blacks and Jews.)

Below you will find an important Zeitdokument (document pertaining to our era). As you can see, it is from the 31 October 1919 issue of an American Jewish magazine (The American Hebrew) and must therefore be true. Please notice that Gov. Gwynn spoke already then of "6 million" and a "holocaust." This information was discovered by the Polish Historical Society, 91 Strawberry Hill Ave., Stamford CT 06902.

I hope you realize that I had to see "Schindler's List." Without viewing it, I would be unable to give my personal assessment of this piece of Lügenpropaganda. But don't worry, I didn't pay the full price of admission. However, before I tell you of my impressions, please read the two newspaper items below. The (German-American!) man from Pennsylvania assumes that the film provides "documentary evidence" of the "Holocaust," and the seemingly also German-American woman from upstate New York came away feeling that she now owes the Jewish race [sic] a debt that can never be repaid. Precisely what the Jewish activists had intended when they embarked on producing "Schindler's List." Am I concerned because this movie had such an impact on people like that? Not in the least. It isn't the Buehlers and the Herrs of this world that will play important

The Crucifixion of Jews Must Stop!

By MARTIN H. GLYNN

(Former Governor of the State of N. Y.)

From across the sea six million men and women call to us for help, and eight hundred thousand little children cry for bread.

These children, these men and women are our fellow-members of the human family, with the same claim on life as we, the same susceptibility to the winter's cold, the same propensity to death before the fangs of hunger. Within them reside the illimitable possibilities for the advancement of the human race as naturally would reside in six million human beings. We may not be their keepers but we ought to be their helpers.

In the face of death, in the throes of starvation there is no place for mental distinctions of creed, no place for physical differentiations of race. In this catastrophe, when six million human beings are being whirled toward the grave by a cruel and relentless fate, only the most idealistic promptings of human nature should sway the heart and move the hand.

Six million men and women are dying from lack of the necessaries of life; eight hundred thousand children cry for bread. And this fate is upon them through no fault of their own, through no transgression of the laws of God or man; but through the awful tyranny of war and a bigoted lust for Jewish blood.

In this threatened holocaust of human life, forgotten are the niceties of philosophical distinction, forgotten are the differences of historical interpretation; and the determination to help the helpless, to shelter the homeless, to clothe the naked and to [illegible]tion

WHITTIER †

In all of us by the hand of God, and the man or woman who can, and will not, hear the cry of the starving; who can, and will not, take heed of the wail of the dying; who can, and will not, [illegible] helping hand to tho[illegible] the 77th Division alone there were 14,000 of them, and in Argonne Forest this division captured 54 German guns. This [illegible] Jewish boys roles in the tough times to come. Particularly people like that will suffer horribly because of their obvious stupidity and gullibility. They, like the Jews, will do everything wrong from this time forward.

The underlying lie and misconception about "Schindler's List" is the generally broadcast assumption that the "Schindler Jews" would all have been murdered had Oskar Schindler not "rescued" them. Naturally, that is total nonsense. I say it again: If Hitler had really intended to have all the Jews within the German WWII realm killed, there would not have been "millions" (according to the New York Times of April 1993) of survivors. Even in the movie there are hints of the infighting for needed workers among Third Reich authorities that had taken place especially in the latter stages of the war, when all kinds of laborers, including the Jewish ones, were in desperate shortage. That was probably the sole reason why the train with the "Schindler women" had been diverted to Auschwitz (a huge industrial complex), if this part of the story is true.

In the meantime (as a direct result of the publicity, and because Jews have an innate need to "shine"), there must be 6,000 (rather than the 1,000 plus) former Schindler Juden living in the U.S. alone. Those that I saw on TV looked quite and healthy and wealthy, no doubt due to the involuntary largess of the Germans. We can safely assume that most of them would have survived the war even without Oskar Schindler. those that wouldn't have made it would probably have been victims of the emergency wintertime transport from Auschwitz (and other concentration camps) to locations in the West: of Allied air raids, and of epidemics such as occurred at Bergen-Belsen, that were the direct result of the chaotic conditions at war's end.

Since I come from an area in Germany where there is a concentration of heavy industry, I well remember the multitudes of foreigners working in the coal mines, the steel mills and the other plants during that time. On weekends, the inner city of Saarbrücken was crammed full of (especially) French and Polish POWs, Ukrainian and Russian Ostarbeiterinnen (female laborers from the East), Spanish and French volunteer workers, and forced (in today's nomenclature "slave-") laborers from Holland and Denmark, none of whom were with armed German guards. Several times I also took notice of Jews with the Star of David sown on their clothes riding in the street car (the last time I saw this was when I was in furlough shortly after the destruction of Saarbrücken in an air raid on 5 October 1944). Nobody bothered them or anyone else. There were not even altercations between the various groups of foreigners, as is occurring in "free" Germany today. That in 1943 and 1944 I wasn't surprised or shocked by Jews having a symbol of their origin attached to their clothing can be easily explained: at that time nearly everybody wore some kind of uniform or special designation "marker." The Ostarbeiterinnen, for instance, had a tag with the word OST (East) on their coats or dresses, and I was proud of the insignia on my uniform.

Another lie concerning Steven Spielberg's film is the fact that he projected the Jews as totally innocent bystanders who Never a 'Christian' nation

Editor, New Era:

Yesterday I heard a friend say the word "crèche," and it startled me because of its similarity to the pronunciation of the word "Koresh." As a Lancaster County citizen, I had to think of further similarities. Both words have something to do with religion and government. Both words stir up deep-seated emotions and unswerving opinions.

There is a notion in many people's thinking that the root cause of America's problems is that we are no longer a Christian government. The solution is to return to the days of 1776 when a Christian government was founded.

This is wrong. In the last 1,960 years, the world has seen many Christian people and Christian churches and Christian organizations; but it has yet to see a Christian government!

The very phrase is an oxymoron. Oh, there have been a few trios at forming a "Christian government." Every one has led to atrocity. The most recent one, Nazi Germany, was set up to purify the Christian Aryan race by killing all Jews. This is well documented now by the movie "Schindler's List."

On a more personal note, 450 years ago my Mennonite forefathers were tortured and killed for their religious beliefs. This was done by a "Christian government," where church and state were one. These horrors are recorded in a thick book enti-

Glad she overcame fear and saw 'Schindler's List'

When "Schindler's List" began to be shown in our local movie theaters, I felt duty-bound to see it.

However, my good intention weakened in the face of the horror and violence I anticipated would run before my eyes.

Still, as time went on, I felt this day, and I took the very small amount of courage I have and went to see the movie.

How foolish I had been!

I saw before me the most worthwhile film I have ever viewed. It is the greatest of teaching tools.

I came away feeling that I owe the Jewish race a debt that can never be repaid.

This is a debt of such gigantic proportion that it does go on for generations, for infinity.

I do not feel this way because I am of German descent. I feel this way because I am a member of a race which classifies itself as human, yet did inhuman acts.

Great good could be done if a similar movie were made about the African slave trade.

BEA BUEHLER
Syracuse

There is a good chance that "Bea Buehler", the German American, does not exist. Such letters are a typical Jewish trick. I have been getting them more often than you would believe.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. ABOUT 4/1/94

Jan 19 94

John Bucher Herr
Lancaster

had to obey any or all German orders, "or else." We know that Germany had a right to regard and treat all Jews anywhere in the world as enemy aliens ever since 23 March 1933, when the leadership of World Jewry had declared war on Deutschland because Hitler was on the way to curtail the (then existing) inordinate Jewish power in and over the Reich.

(The argument that World Jewry was in no position to declare war on Germany, since at that time there was no standing Jewish army, doesn't hold water: then as now, the top Jewish leadership was able to mobilize and utilize the armed might of the entire non-Jewish nations for their own nefarious purposes. Compare how the armed forces of the United States and the industrial and economic potential of this country have been used in the furtherance of Israeli and Zionist aims. Remember the Gulf War.)

Whoever saw Spielberg's film must have noticed the total absence of weapons in the hands of the Jews of Cracow. This is contrary to the facts. On a wall of the Washington Holocaust Museum I discovered a sign with the statement that in more than a hundred ghettoes underground organizations of the Zionists and young Jewish Communists had been in existence. What do you think these people did, only deal in black market activities? I have in my possession a great number of books written by Jews about the "heroic deeds" of the Jewish partisan fighters. There is no doubt that they did great damage to the German war effort, the main purpose of which it was to keep (Jewish-) Bolshevism out of Europe. The activities of these partisans had to be countered with all the force the Germans could muster. Finally, since the benign ghetto concept didn't work, the Reich Government had no choice but to quarantine many Jews in the now notorious concentration camps.

The overblown scenes of the brutal cleansing of the Cracow ghetto by German forces must be compared to current attempts by the American government to fight against the proliferation of drugs in (black) American ghettoes. We all know how determined SWAT and DEA forces break into house where drugs are suspected, and how rough the people inside (including children) are being treated. Yet, this involves only drugs. Imagine how these same American police forces would have acted had some of the inhabitants of these drug houses been suspected of blowing up a hospital filled with wounded officers, as happened near Cracow. (There, Jewish partisans blew up a German hospital train.) I guess, "Waco" tells us that in such a case there wouldn't be anybody left to be put in a concentration camp. Therefore, any American abhorrence of what happened or might have happened in wartime Poland is totally misplaced.

The "Schindler's List"-assumption that Jews in "Nazi" Germany were totally without rights and representation is also false. Up until the clearance of the ghettoes toward the end of the war (Warsaw 1943), Cracow 1944, Lodz 1943 or 1944, etc.) each ghetto had a Judenrat (Jewish Council) where the day-to-day operations of the ghetto, and the relations with the German authorities, were handled. The Jews could and did complain, and were listened to, as can be read in ghetto diaries. At any rate, the Jews in the ghettoes had more rights under German suzerainty than had the German population under American occupation between 1945 and 1947 (an American "law" of 1945 proscribed the death sentence for anyone caught with a kitchen knife more than 9 inches long. Once in the concentration camps, Jews were not without recourse against mistreatment and brutalities, as is proven by trial records of camp guards that can still be seen in various archives. That a "commandant" like Amon Göth would use people for target shooting, as is shown in Spielberg's propaganda movie, was simply impossible.

Only recently I came into possession of evidence that at least up until 1943 (until after the German defeat at Stalingrad) the European Jews still had their own newspapers, and that at least until 1938—five years into the Third Reich—there were as many as 65 Jewish publications in Germany, many of which were openly anti-"Nazi". Compare this to the almost total destruction of the German language press in the United States in the First World War (meaning, of course, that Americans have absolutely no right to criticize the Germans for similar actions against their minorities 20 years later). Or, can anyone tell me how many publications in the Japanese language were still being printed in America in 1944? Knowing this system here (and its actions and reactions), I'd bet not one.

Incidentally, the propaganda being spread that "the Nazis" treated all Jews alike, namely bad, is also untrue. In this regard I would only like to mention that as late as January 1945 privileged Jews were transported in first-class train accommodations from the Bergen-Belsen transit camp (where only a few months later thousands, among them Anne Frank, were to die of hunger typhus) to Switzerland; that up until the spring or summer of 1944 the bulk of Hungarian Jews lived far better and more free than the population of Germany, and that a Jewish hospital (only for Jewish patients) existed in Berlin right to the end of the war when the Russians took it over for their own wounded.

Those of you who have seen "Schindler's List" may remember that the road leading to the Plaszow camp had been plastered with gravestones from Jewish cemeteries (with the Hebrew inscriptions conveniently facing up). Spielberg obviously wanted to create the impression that the "bad Nazis" had destroyed all Jewish cemeteries, and used the gravestones for road building. In forty-five years in the U.S., I have never read an article stating the fact that during the entire Third Reich the only damage to Jewish cemeteries in Deutschland was caused by Allied bombs. There was not even the ubiquitous vandalism so endemic in "democracies". (A few years ago there were reports of one Hamburg Jewish cemetery having been turned into a parking lot but the reason for this was simply because the leaders of that particular Jewish community had sold the property (illegally, to boot) once most of the congregation had left Germany).

I have stated before that the entire "Schindler's List" Rummel (hullabaloo) was caused by the consternation of the top Jewish leadership over the fact that the disbelief in the "Holocaust" fairy tales was taking hold of the psyche of majority Americans. Proof for this assumption could be found on 7 April 1994, the (now official) "Holocaust Remembrance Day", when the Jewish propaganda chiefs went crazy. There were memorial services in the most incongruous places, among them the United States Naval Academy, were Spielberg received an award, (and, I assume, at West Point and Colorado Springs), at the U.S. Capitol, and in many state legislatures. Watching TV on that day I counted no less than 3 mentionings of the "6 million Jews killed by the Nazis" in a five minute broadcast. In my imagination I could see millions of Americans yawn when they heard this.

Watching recent Jewish antics regarding the "Holocaust" and "Schindler's List" (and also their shock over the fact that most majority Americans gleefully expect that the (part-Jewish) American boy accused of "vandalism" in Singapore will be caned), I came to the following conclusion:

The Jews know all the weaknesses of the Aryans but they do not know our strengths...and therein lies their misfortune.

When the newsmedia broke the story about the caning of Michael Fay, I did not have the slightest doubt that most Americans (including the Blacks) agreed with the stance of the Government of Singapore that six lashes were appropriate. I also "knew" that deep down most white Americans wished that such a punishment could be meted out here. Nevertheless, the (almost 100%) liberal editors of this nation's newspapers were genuinely shocked to discover that Americans were so "bloodthirsty", a term one publication used, and wanted to see "this poor boy, who only caused material damage" to suffer. For me this is proof how far removed the liberal mediacrats are from the people's real thinking. It is interesting to note that a concerted campaign in behalf of the miscreant was admitted in one of the papers I am reading regularly. Obviously, this would not have happened had Fay not been (part-?)Jewish. They even managed to utilize the services of Bill Clinton.

* * * * *

The bolshevisation of the United States is now taking place at a rapid pace. If you were sitting where I am, and you would see all the information regarding this fact accumulating at my desk, you would turn gray in a week. "They" never stop... The United States (as we know it) is doomed. As predicted in our March GANPAC BRIEF, the Oberjuden are using so-called laws and many regulations to hog-tie the population of this country. Roberta Achtenberg, the lesbian Jewess now in high position at HUD, works 25 hours a day to forcefully integrate America's housing now that it is obvious that 30 years of pro-race mixing propaganda has failed. Senator Howard Metzenbaum, another Jew, is not satisfied with the Brady Law, and wants to impose even more stringent gun controls. The new law he is proposing would require the purchase of a federal license for an "arsenal" by any citizen having more than 1,000 rounds of ammo at home. Obviously this is an attempt to make criminals out of all those Americans who strongly believe in the Second Amendment, and are sufficiently armed to fight a tyrannical government, should this become necessary. By the way, that is one thing that gets me about the gun control advocates: their dishonesty regarding the need for (many) weapons. They always say, "one doesn't need this or that weapon for sporting purposes" while defenders of the Second Amendment know and claim that this is not the major purpose of (much of) gun ownership. These same "liberal" liars are those who claim that revisionists say that there had been no German concentration camps during World War II, something I've never heard or read from anyone on our side.

* * * * *

The following is very important.

GANPAC has changed its (real) title and purpose from a "political action committee" to a "political affairs committee." The acronym GANPAC remains the same. Note the new impressum:

GANPAC is the only organization politically defending and representing the interests of the 60 million Americans who have declared themselves "German-Americans," this nation's largest ethnic group. It is GANPAC's aim to fight the constant defamation of all things German by the American newsmedia, to inform the American public of the great contributions by the German-Americans and Germans to the growth and well-being of this nation, and to help build a better society for all.

The GANPAC BRIEF appears monthly. Subscription/donation rates are $50 per annum ($25 for students and Social Security recipients—U.S. addresses only.) Back issues are available. Write for list.

©German-American National Political Affairs Committee, P.O. Box 11124, Pensacola FL 32524-1124.

What led to this change? You may remember that PACs are under the supervision of the FEC, the Federal Election Commission, and that all PAC's have to mail frequent (at least twice a year but more often in election years) financial reports to that office. In these reports we have to list all those contributors and additional information on them who give more than $200 a year. Suddenly, these requirements were strengthened, and I have a hunch that the real aim of these new regulations is to (eventually, soon) encompass all contributors, no matter how small their checks. The Jewish overlords never miss a beat when broadening their influence, and widening their (ADL-like) "supervision." They'd love to get the names, addresses, employers, etc., of all American and German patriots into their supercomputers.

At any rate, when a PAC receives more than $200 a year from someone, "best efforts" have now to be made to get certain information from these individuals, and the following has to be stated in a letter to them: "Federal law requires political committees to report the name, mailing address, occupation and name of employer for each individual whose contributions aggregate in excess of $200 in a calender year." Reading this, and knowing how the U.S. government sometimes passes retroactive laws, we at GANPAC realized that we had to take some measures to safeguard our contributors (almost all of whom contribute less than the amount in question per annum). And, really, the only way to do this was to alter the constitution of our organization so that it does not fall under FEC jurisdiction. Is there a drawback in all of this? Nothing of importance. We must realize that, due to various factors (some mentioned in last month's BRIEF), GANPAC was never able to reach the bulk of German-Americans, and this obviously curtailed our fundraising activities, as well as our intention to support candidates worthy of our sympathies. Due to this fact our greatest success stories lie in another field; a field wherein we intend to remain for many years to come, namely, "to set the record straight." Your comment is invited.

* * * * *

Clinton: Currently I am of the opinion that Bill and Hillary will not finish their second year in office. "They" (whoever that is) will not let up on the Whitewater affair. Instead, ever new revelations will be broadcast that will shake this Presidency. Clinton's assertion that "the American people" wanted him in office, is obvious nonsense. 23% of the eligible voters (many of them illiterates) do not constitute the people. If Clinton gets pushed out of office, we must regard him as a victim of the infighting amongst our international enemies.

May I suggest that you just write GANPAC or "German-American" on the checks with your subscriptions and/or contributions. I really appreciate all your support. Remember, we (GANPAC) did contribute much to blow the lid off the Holocaust myth. YOU helped us fight for the truth. Thank you.

Sincerely, Hans Schmidt

From GANPAC BRIEF No. 139/May 1994
Box 11124, Pensacola FL 32524-1124

THE LATE GREAT BOOK:
THE BIBLE
AN ACCOUNT OF CHRISTIAN AND BIBLICAL ORIGINS.

Nicholas Carter feels that it is time for us to sit down and do what many Christians rarely do: Study the Holy Bible. In doing so, we may discover whether or not the Bible is indeed "Holy" and the "Word of God." In strict biblical order, the author methodically, and scathingly, examines the various claims made in the "Holy Book" and shows how many of them bear no relationship to reality whatsoever. For your copy of The Late Great Book: The Bible (Order No. 12006) send $4.00 + $1.50 for postage to:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

BOOK REVIEW

by

Charles E. Weber, Ph.D.

Deborah Lipstadt
Denying the Holocaust / The Growing Assault on Truth and Memory
New York: The Free Press, 1993. ix + 278 pages.

During the past few years a number of facts have come to light which have served to clarify the question of the "Holocaust" claims that have played an important rôle in shaping American foreign policy, especially in the Middle East and perhaps to a lesser extent with regard to the lands which tried at great sacrifice and with heroism to block the Communist tide into Western Europe during 1941 to 1945. The death records of Auschwitz have been released, detailed analyses have been published of the American aërial photographs made of Auschwitz during 1944, a forensic analysis of the surface stonework of walls of alleged lethal gas chambers has been undertaken by a courageous American expert on penal execution procedures and the supreme court of Israel has discredited the testimony of a considerable Number of witnesses who claimed that the American citizen John Demjanjuk was a certain concentration camp guard. American citizens are being taxed to pay for the United States Holocaust Memorial museum recently opened in Washington. Advertisements in important university campus newspapers (e.g., of Cornell, Duke, University of Georgia, University of Illinois, Louisiana State University, University of Michigan, Ohio State University, Rutgers and Vanderbilt) have brought up the need for public, open debate on the "Holocaust" question. These and other developments have caused a reëvaluation of the "Holocaust" claims in broad sections of the American public and even in academic circles. (A large number of revisionists of the "Holocaust" material have advanced degrees in such diverse subjects as history and chemistry.)

It is consequently not astonishing that those who have supported the Extermination Thesis over the years have become embarrassed or even panic-stricken. Professor Lipstadt, who occupies the Dorot Chair in Modern Jewish and Holocaust Studies at Emory University, expresses her panic in the opening paragraphs of her preface: "When I first began studying Holocaust denial, people would stare at me strangely. ..... That situation has changed dramatically. Regrettably, I no longer have to convince others of the relevance of this work." She is especially disturbed (page 208) by the advertisements that have appeared in campus newspapers that appeal for open debate on the "Holocaust" material. In some senses, her panic is justified. Such well-known historians as David Irving have even begun to question the wisdom of England's ever having declared war on Germany (page 8) and have attacked the character and motivations of Winston Churchill. (See New York Times Book Review, 29 August 1993, page 3.)

As a result of pressure from well-funded and politically powerful Jewish organizations a number of governments, even including those in Bonn and Vienna, which purport to represent the German people, have taken strong measures to prevent any discussion in public which questions the validity of the "Holocaust" claims. In 1985 and 1988 Canada conducted trials on a preposterous legal basis against a German citizen residing in Canada just for having published a small book that raised questions about the "Holocaust" material. Fortunately, reason finally prevailed and the defendant, Ernst Zündel, was exonerated by the Canadian supreme court. By the way, such desperate measures by those who have a vested interest in upholding the Extermination Thesis serve to publicize the tremendous political power and financial resources of Jewish organizations. They also call attention to the importance attached to the Extermination Thesis by Jews and their lackeys in the press and the electronic media.

Lipstadt repeatedly asserts that those who contest ("deny") the "Holocaust" material do so because they have some sort of plan to revive National Socialism or Fascism. Perhaps that is true in the case of a few individuals, but in the case of most revisionists I have known—and I have known many of them—the motivations for contesting the "Holocaust" material are far simpler. People of German descent are angered by the "Holocaust" material because it puts them at social and even economic disadvantages. Lipstadt also equates casting doubts on the "Holocaust" material with anti-Semitism. Actually, revisionists have a wide range of attitudes toward Jews. Most of them, however, are probably uneasy about the huge sums paid to the Jewish state in Palestine which American and German taxpayers are forced to pay and most of them no doubt resent the anti-Aryan rôle of the Jews in the media, especially in television. Does that constitute an irrational, unreasonable hostility toward Jews ("anti-Semitism"? At various places in the book Lipstadt expresses concern about the putative successes of those who cast doubts about the "Holocaust" material. As an author who has written a good many pages on the Extermination Thesis (even including a review that appeared in the very first issue of the Journal of Historical Review, Spring 1980) I can assure Prof. Lipstadt that the advocates of the Extermination Thesis have some overwhelming advantages, such as the rôle of the media, especially the television networks largely controlled by Jews in the United States, as has been well documented. I recall that no less than $140,000,000 was expended in the production of the lavish television series, War and Remembrance. The financial resources of those who contest the Extermination Thesis are very small compared to the almost unlimited resources of its advocates, even including the resources of the federal government, which has given heavy financial aid to the advocates of the Extermination Thesis, including the lavish expenditures for the Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington. There are a number of reasons why many Americans do not want to hear doubts about the Extermination Thesis. We fought a long, cruel and expensive war against National Socialist Germany, a war which many Americans would like to remember as a "good war" in spite of its disastrous results, the enslavement of half of Europe by the Communist tyranny and the expenses of the "Cold War," including our painful experiences in Korea and Vietnam. Many Americans have a psychological compulsion to believe that National Socialist Germany was even more evil than the Soviet Union with which we allied ourselves. (Lipstadt, to her credit, acknowledges that Stalin killed more people than the Nazis, page 213.)

The first and longest chapter in the book ("Canaries in the Mine," pages 1-29) surveys diverse manifestations of "Holocaust denial" in various parts of the world, even including Japan and Brazil. Chapters Two (pages 31-47), Three (pages 49-64) Four (pages 65-83) and Five (pages 85-102) are devoted to the early history of revision of the "Holocaust" material. Pages 85-102 are devoted to the pioneer in the field, the late Prof. Austin J. App. Later chapters focus on Richard Harwood (Richard Verall), Arthur Butz, Willis Carto, Ernst Zündel, Fred Leuchter and Bradley Smith. Even President Reagan is reproached for one of the most decent things he did while in office (page 210). David Irving is characterized (page 181) as "one of the most dangerous spokespersons for Holocaust denial."

In no less than three places (pages 44, 86 and 97) Lipstadt claims that the genocidal Morgenthau Plan was never put into effect. This is not exactly true or true only to a limited extent, as anyone knows who lived in Germany during 1945-1948, as I did when I was involved in "Denazification" and translating historical materials. Without an industry to produce exportable goods Germany would starve. As a matter of fact, Germany underwent a considerable deprivation of its industry after the war in various ways. Not only were German factories dismantled and sent to the U.S.S.R., but German patents were confiscated and the German economy was largely paralyzed by a lack of a currency reform and prices and wages controlled at such levels that there was little incentive for production which conformed to the law. After all, one of the chief incentives that England had for declaring war on Germany on 3 September 1939 was to keep German goods out of world export trade at a time when unemployment was a desperate problem. The Morgenthau Plan was genocidal in nature because Germany had long been dependent on imports of grain and other foodstuffs to make up for the limits of its agricultural capacity in relation to its population, which had grown rapidly in the nineteenth century. Even the Germany of 1937 had an area only roughly comparable to that of the state of Texas. An important aspect of the Morgenthau Plan lies in the fact that it became known to the German government after it was initialed by Roosevelt in September 1944. It, along with the demand for unconditional surrender, stiffened German resistance. Also known to the German government was the proposal by T. Kaufman that all Germans in their reproductive years be sterilized, a proposal put forth as early as 1941 in the little book, Germany Must Perish [available from LBP, $4.50 + $1.50 postage], another genocidal threat against Germany, not mentioned by Lipstadt, of course.

A whole chapter is devoted to the Institute of Historical Review (pages 137-156) without a mention of the very destructive arson attack against the Institute in 1984. Nor can mention be found of the attack against Prof. Faurisson which nearly cost him his life. Lipstadt has good reason for not mentioning these violent crimes because the y vividly demonstrate the bankruptcy of the "Holocaust" material, most of whose advocates refuse to debate the Extermination Thesis in public, including Lipstadt.

On page 164 Lipstadt makes an enigmatic observation about the Protocols of the Elders of Zion: "In fact, when it was originally published in France in the mid-nineteenth century, Jews did not appear in the book at all." Actually it seems probable that the Protocols [available from LBP, $4.00 / $9.00 + $1.50 postage] were inspired by Hermann Goedsche's "Auf dem Judenfriedhof in Prag" (1868), a translation of which appeared in the July 1993 issue of the Liberty Bell, a periodical which has contained many articles on the "Holocaust" question. It is not mentioned by Lipstadt.

Especially damaging to Lipstadt's credibility is her mention (page 167) of a report supposedly filed in June 1943 which claimed that five crematories in Auschwitz would have a 24-hour capacity of 4,756 bodies. Since there are 1440 minutes in a day, five units would be operating a total of 7,200, even if in constant use. Less than two minutes would thus be allowed for each body. Since a crematory unit requires about two hours to reduce a body to ashes, Leuchter's estimate (mentioned by Lipstadt) of 156 bodies per diem seems quite reasonable. Such nonsense in the "Holocaust" literature has caused widespread doubts about its validity in the case of people capable of independent thought.

Chapter 10 (pages 183-208), "The Battle for the Campus," is devoted to the efforts of Bradley Smith and the Committee for Open Debate on the Holocaust (C.O.D.O.H.). This committee has attempted to place large advertisements in various campus newspapers with a considerable measure of success. A partial list of universities whose newspapers have accepted or rejected such advertisements is given in an important footnote on page 184. Lipstadt goes into great details of the reactions to such advertisements and the circumstances of their acceptance or rejection as the case might be. In spite of all the 26 pages devoted to such details, the reader is left puzzling as to just what the advertisement contained, a matter which could have been easily clarified by reproducing the text of the advertisement, a secret which Lipstadt apparently wants to keep from her readers for some reason or another. The dust-cover of the book does give the modest and restrained headline of one of the versions of the advertisement: "THE HOLOCAUST STORY: How much is false? The Case for Open Debate." At the conclusion of the long chapter Lipstadt admits that she is pessimistic about the effects of the advertisement and the effects of C.O.D.O.H.

Some years ago I had my own astonishing and depressing experiences with the kind of Zionist influence that has more recently succeeded in suppressing the advertisements which Bradley Smith and his C.O.D.O.H. attempted to place in some campus newspapers. The Winter 1984 issue of the German Quarterly, published by the American Association of Teachers of German, of all organizations, contained an advertisement for my propaedeutic book, The 'Holocaust': 120 Questions and Answers. This advertisement caused a tremendous flapping of wings and cackling within the Association. The Spring 1984 issue of the German Quarterly contained letters (pages 361-362) of regret about the "advertisement for anti-Semitic literature" which got past the Business Manager of the German Quarterly. The two letters were from Ruth K. Angress, former editor of the German Quarterly and from Robert A. Grovier, its Business Manager. The Winter 1985 issue contained (page 91) an AATG Executive Council resolution about the "inadvertently accepted" advertisement and stated: "The AATG Executive Council categorically repudiates and condemns the dissemination of material that is anti-Semitic or that can be construed as an apology for Nazism." Of course, no proof was offered that my book expressed hostility toward Jews ("anti-Semitism"). Thus, further advertisements for my book were prohibited in a journal published by an association of academic people who have a particular interest in a factual, balanced treatment of the "Holocaust" question.

On page 204 Lipstadt mentions "a book charging Gen. Dwight Eisenhower with consciously causing the death of a million German POWs at the end of the war." Strangely, Lipstadt does not mention the author and title of the book, James Banquets Other Losses (1988) [available from LBP at half price, $12.50 + $2.00 for postage]. Is this just one more secret which Lipstadt wants to keep from her readers? Is there anything improper about comparing known Allied war crimes with putative German war crimes?

We note another strange omission in Chapter Ten ("Watching on the Rhine," pages 209-222). This chapter is devoted to the inhibited, pale revisionism of German historians, such as that of Hellmut Diwald, whose Geschichte der Deutschen I reviewed in the very first issue of the Journal of Historical Review (Spring 1980). By the way, Lipstadt does not even mention the German title of this important book (page 210), so we must doubt that she ever read it or that she even knows enough German to have read it. (She misspells a number of German words.) Not a single mention is made of Wilhelm Stäglich's Der Auschwitz Mythos [available from LBP, German lang. edition, pb. $13.00 + $1.95 post., The Auschwitz Myth, Engl. Edition, hb.(limited stock), $19.50 + $3.00 post.] copies of which were confiscated by the Bonn government, which also deprived Stäglich of his doctoral degree on the basis of a law signed by none other than Adolf Hitler and never repealed by the Bonn government. (Stäglich was a judge and his book presents important analyses of the evidence pertaining to the "Holocaust" question.) Lipstadt also makes no mention of another important refutation of the "Holocaust" material by a German author, Die Auschwitz Lüge [available from LBP, German lang. edition, $7.50 + $1.50 post., Engl. edition, Auschwitz: An Eyewitness Report, $3.00 + $1.50 post.] by Thies Christophersen, who had to flee to Denmark to escape the harsh measures of the Bonn government, which has a great and not entirely unjustified fear of a boycott of its vitally important export trade. Both of these men were on military duty in Auschwitz, the latter as an agronomist engaged in an attempt to find a plant substitute for rubber production, one of the economic projects in which internees at Auschwitz were involved. Has Lipstadt ever heard of these books? They would certainly seem like grist for her mill. On page 11 Lipstadt described the Austrian magazine Sieg as a "newspaper." One must ask what sort of knowledge, if any, Lipstadt has of German publications on a first-hand basis.

Lipstadt claims that implementation of the Final Solution was worked out at the famous Wannsee Conference in January 1942 (page 214). One must ask if she ever read the putative (known only in one copy) minutes of the conference, which does not mention plans for the extermination of the Jews, and indeed mentions their eventual release ("by Freilassung"). What, then, was the "Final Solution" to which Lipstadt alludes?

One must also ask if Lipstadt ever examined the German wording of Himmler's Posen speech of 4 October 1943, parts of which do not make sense in the circumstances under which the speech was given. She quotes part of the speech on page 128. (See Stäglich, Auschwitz Mythos, pages 91 ff.)

On pages 228-229 Lipstadt discusses gastight doors of gas chambers. One Jewish source has provided us (perhaps unwittingly) with a picture of such a door. It is clearly inscribed with a warning about the danger from gas. Obviously, lice cannot read but human beings can, and such an inscription would not have been on the door if the chamber were to have been used to kill people. Some of the best evidence against the "Holocaust" claims is from Jewish sources!

As an historian who has written many pages that express my doubts about the "Holocaust" claims, I welcome Prof. Lipstadt's book. Although she very stubbornly adheres to the usual version of the Extermination Thesis in the face of mounting evidence against them, she does mention revisionists' arguments against the Extermination Thesis in a number of places in attempts to refute or deride them, such as the discussion of the effects of residues of Zyklon-B on pages 224-225. Many a reader of pages 229 ff. would have remained unaware that doubts have been cast on the authenticity of Anne Frank's diary if he had not read these pages.

Let us hope that Prof. Lipstadt's book will lead many a reader to investigate the writings of those who have contested the "Holocaust" claims. Many a reader of the book will have been previously unaware that there is another side of the "Holocaust" controversy, a side which is never heard on television networks in the United States. The book is also an encouraging record—albeit a partial one—of the accomplishments of a small, meagerly financed, idealistic group of revisionist historians who have worked against overwhelming odds. ❑

Good-bye to the White Tip

by

N.B. Forrest

The news from South Africa is grim. It is now obvious that the turn to so-called "Majority" rule will end in either a bloodbath (white blood, that is) or civil war, to be followed by the departure of the whites or the establishment of a white rump state. The idea of a "multiracial, multicultural" South Africa was always twaddle, but now we are beginning to see that ideas do indeed have consequences. The insane idea that a modern industrial state with a large white population could be peacefully delivered into the hands of Bantu savages will now be shown to be, beyond a shadow of a doubt, one of the sickest ideas to come out of our very sick century.

It is sobering to think that a partitioned mini-state is the best the whites of South Africa can hope for. Ten years ago white South Africa stood free and independent, powerful enough to bid defiance to the Soviet Empire and send its Cuban lackeys running with their tails between their legs. The so-called black "frontline states" huffed and puffed about fighting a war to the finish with the "racist South Africans," but it was all bluster.

A combination of pressure from abroad and weakness from within has destroyed that South Africa. As ashamed as I am of our own country's complicity in the war against the continent's White Tip, the real enemy, as is always the case, came from within. A seedy collection of Jews, white liberals and Afrikaner turncoats drove the dagger into the heart of South Africa.

My thoughts and prayers will be with the conservative Afrikaners as they struggle to save what they can from the wreckage. As a student of the Boer War and the Afrikaners' long racial war with the Bantu, I am confident that the Afrikaner nation will not pass from the scene. In all the world there is not a worthier branch of our race. Only time will tell what form it will take, but some part of South Africa will remain firmly in the hands of the men and women who created that unique country.

That said, we must also recognize the inevitable. White rule in South Africa as it has existed for centuries will end before this year is out. What possible benefit can flow from this? Where could a silver lining lie? As painful as it is to list them, a number of positive elements can be counted on to result from the coming disaster in South Africa:

For the first time a modern Western industrial nation will face total extinction. The gruesome process will be broadcast into every livingroom in the world. Even Joe Sixpack and the effete, degenerate plutocrats who rule us will be forced to look up from their soup bowls. The images that have become familiar to us from Liberia (Jeeps festooned with body parts parading around the capital) and Somalia (the mutilation of dead soldiers) will be branded into the mind of every Westerner who still has a mind.

Within one year, two at the most, planeloads of bedraggled survivors will begin arriving in London, Paris, Amsterdam and New York, carrying with them hair-raising stories of murder, rape and pillage. First-person accounts of a descent into the heart of darkness. Many of these people will have an "ex" in front of their names. Ex-Finance Minister, ex-Foreign Minister, ex-Rector of this or that university, ex-editor of this or that liberal newspaper. They will all have tousled hair, sunken eyes, haggard jowls and the general appearance of persons who have been sitting on a toilet reading the evening news when, inexplicably, they have been sucked down into the water closet, dragged by an irresistible force through the sewer pipes and left exhausted and despairing on the banks of some horrid cloaca. They will search for sympathy among their fellow "sheeple" in Western universities, think tanks and newsrooms, explaining that, although they were the ones who brought about "majority rule," by some strange twist of fate and due to the bad faith of "right-wingers," their beautiful vision of South Africa had collapsed into a nightmare. Smugly sure of their reception, they will be pained and alarmed to see that their weakness and betrayal of their own people in favor of dark-skinned barbarians have earned them no points with the powers-that-be in the West. Shunned and cast out into outer darkness, the dolts will never understand why. The why is simple. The swine in the West who leaned on these fools to sell out their country knew damn well what the end result would be. Having done their dirty work, the swine will not want these living witnesses to the catastrophe to hang around. Don't be a stranger, de Klerk. Drop by sometime for a drink.

The dark and threatening differences between modern Western man and black African proto-humanoids will become startlingly clear to even the most lobotomized couch potatoes. When the new "leaders" of South Africa drop the mask, and their cannibal souls (such as they are) crawl to the surface, we will all have the pleasing experience of seeing "heroes" transformed into creatures out of The Night of the Living Dead. Saint Nelson Mandela will appear in a different light when he is up on a platform in front of a shrieking mob, munching on a freshly excised piece of human liver, borrowed from the supine corpse of some unfortunate "political rival."

Since South Africa was the economic engine that kept a large part of Black Africa in business, a rapid slide into economic depression is likely. The resulting chaos may be hard to detect, since Black Africa has been tumbling into the pit since the colonial masters left. It will show up, however, in a fairly quick breakdown in whatever public health services still manage to function in that part of the world.

Millions of whites will soon either be dead or out of South Africa. For the most part these will be intelligent, educated people who have seen their country crumble before their eyes. They should be welcomed with open arms.

The looming disaster in South Africa will thoroughly discredit the multicultural drivel being spooned down our throats. Even the dumb oxen among our leaders will be able to see that "multiculturalism" is a recipe for human train wrecks of monstrous proportions.

The fall of South Africa is a terrible event for Western man. For the first time since the collapse of the Roman Empire, our people will be permanently expelled from land that had been wrested from primitive natives and formed into a white homeland. The white man has lost much ground since the end of WWII, most of it in areas where we did not belong and should never have been.

South Africa is different. It was "Western," the cradle of a small, but noble and tough white nation.

South Africa. There is something tragically prophetic about the TV and photographic coverage of those three South African white separatists who went to Bophuthatswana to help it remain a black homeland against the wishes of the ANC and de Klerk. Shot by local police, the driver of their Mercedes died. The two passengers, both wounded, painfully crept out of the car onto the ground. Turning the red sand redder as they bled, they asked to be taken to a hospital. As the videotapes whirled and cameras clicked, a black policeman calmly went over and executed the two whites with three shots each to their heads. The white reporters and photographers who were recording this event did nothing to stop the murder of their racial kin. Is this same scenario, expanded a million times, going to be the fate of all South African whites? In another 50 or 100 years will it be the fate of all American whites? As subscriber Zip 913 wrote, "Those photos radicalized me more than reading a hundred issues of Instauration. There is no quarter in a race war. Our enemies—Jews, blacks and white renegades—want us all dead. If someone calls me a racist, my reply is: TOTALLY.

One second before the black racist executed the last of the three whites.

The Jewishness of Vladimir Zhirinovsky has been pretty well confirmed by the discovery of his birth certificate. It shows that his original name, until he changed it at age 18, was Eidelshtein. His mother was married twice. First to a Russian, Andrea Zhirinovsky; second to a Jew, Volf Isakovich Eidelshtein. Zhirinovsky was born on April 25, 1946, 18 months after the death of his mother's first husband and five months after she married her second husband, presumably Zhirinovsky's father. There could have been another man between times when Mrs. Zhirinovsky was a widow, but no one has come up with his name.

HBO and Pepsi have sent posters to 20,000 predominantly black schools that contain the following doggerel: "We [Negroes] are the builders of the Pyramids, look what you hid. . . .So much to tell the world the truth no longer hid."

The Myers Park Presbyterian Church in Charlotte (NC) invited members of its congregation to participate in a Seder Meal on March 29. "Come celebrate the Passover feast and learn about our deep Christian roots in the Jewish tradition. This feast celebrates the liberation of our Hebrew ancestors from slavery in Egypt." (The italics are the editor's.)

Janet Reno, whose mother is an honorary princess of the Miccosukee Indians, recently attended a Jewish art exhibit in Florida where she was kidded that the Miccosukees may have been one of the lost tribes. Reno wasn't kidding back when she went out of her way to praise Jews for building "Miami Beach out of nothing." Some non-Jews after a visit to Miami Beach might say Jews made worse than nothing out of nothing.

The real name of Phranc, the self-designated all-American Jewish lesbian folk singer, is Susan Gottlieb. One of her "hit" songs is Take Off Your Swastika.

From Instauration, May 1994, published by Howard Allen Enterprises, Box 76 Cape Canaveral FL 32920.

THIS IS YOUR BRAIN ON TELEVISION

by

Tyler C. Turner

Today, individuals spend an average of at least eight hours a week watching television. But, before televison was invented, books were the best form of entertainment available. Now that watching television has displaced reading, we must observe the dire effects of this action. The era when books and stories were the primary form of entertainment had many advantages that the era of television either lacks or indirectly destroys. Reading not only provided the people in past ages with entertainment, but it also stimulated their imagination, appealed to their intellect, and instilled moral values. Television, on the other hand, stagnates imagination, appeals to base emotions, and undermines our society's moral fiber.

One of the advantages reading has over television is that it stimulates your imagination. For example, whenever you read a book, you must use your imagination to envision what is taking place or being presented. Even when reading about science or mathematics, you must employ you imagination in order to comprehend the abstract ideas presented. Similarly, in reading stories you must use your imagination to follow the character through his various adventures. This, in turn, will improve your ability to think and reason. When thinking and/or reasoning, a well-developed imagination enables you to visualize all the factors in the deliberations and the solutions or deductions derived thereby. Therefore, you can readily see the importance of a well-developed imagination. Reading stimulates the use of your imagination, and as a result, it gives your imagination the opportunity to develop.

Watching television, on the other hand, hinders this development. Moreover, television stagnates your imagination. Everything you see on television is spoon-fed to you. When watching a movie, for instance, you view the character and his surroundings on a screen. You follow all his adventures on the screen rather than in your mind. In fact, you don't use your imagination at all. Even when you're watching the news, the information presented bypasses your imagination.* Thus, while television is manipulating your thoughts and emotions, your imagination stagnates. The old saying, "if you don't use it, you lose it!" applies here as it does anywhere. You can draw your own conclusions from the facts presented, but when your imagination deteriorates, or doesn't have the opportunity to properly develop, your ability to think and reason will also deteriorate.

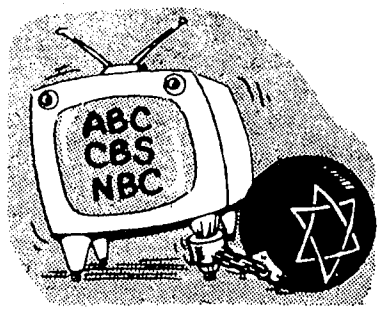
In the era when reading was the prevalent means of entertainment, the people then had a well-developed imagination. In addition, the books and stories produced appealed to the peoples' intellect. The writers utilized witty aphorisms, and alluded to earlier works that had the effect of forcing serious thought out of the reader. Hence, only the most learned and intelligent people could really appreciate their value. Furthermore, the books and stories these writers created became a cultural expression, and the intelligentsia of a society are the epitome of that society's culture. Nearly all the books and stories composed back then appealed to the intellect, and, therefore, were directed towards the intelligentsia.

In contrast, television is aimed at the masses. And, as a result, it appeals to peoples' emotions rather than their intellect. When you watch television, you aren't forced to think. The colors, actions, and words are designed to provoke common emotions. Television programs may entice a variety of sensual feelings, but they will seldom ever compel thought. The masses in general have a very low intellect. Therefore, since television is aimed at the masses, it can only appeal to base emotions, rather than intellect.

But in the era of their prevalence, books and stories not only appealed to peoples' intellect, they also instilled the reader with

*At this point, I'd like to bring to your attention a valuable facility of imagination. As you are reading, your mind forms an image of what is being presented. Therefore, if your imagination perceives something illogical or absurd in that image, it will automatically dismiss it as such. But when you bypass your imagination, something that would normally seem illogical or absurd enters into your mind as being somehow relevant. And as a result, your reasoning will become utterly confused; you will never perceive a cogent image of what entered your brain with so many absurd notions floating around in your mind.



TV JEWISH CLAP TRAP

morals and values. For instance, I'll never forget what Hector did in The Illiad when he was faced with going back into battle or staying at home with his wife and son. He exemplified a man with the courage to fulfill his true duty. He knew that he would probably die in battle against Achilles, but he had the courage to turn from the entreaties of his wife, and face the enemy of his country. Just this one story instilled me with a sense of loyalty, courage, and duty.

Television, however, rather than instilling morals and values, strives to undermine them. The reason for this is beyond the scope of this article, but the fact that television undermines our traditional morals and values is undeniable. For example, just watch one program on any night of the week, and you will see most of our traditional morals undermined and ridiculed. It may not be manifest, but even in subtle instances you will see honest people portrayed as stupid or gullible. In another program, you may find homosexuals characterized as normal people with just a "different sexual orientation" rather than the sick, degenerate creatures they really are. Change the channel, and you will find another program that portrays miscegenation as something that a healthy society should condone rather than deplore. Television is undermining all our traditional morals and values, and what is worse, it has a tendency to applaud overt immorality.

The books and stories of old provided us with many advantages besides entertainment. Thus, while we were reading about the war between the Trojans and the Greeks, or Njal's house being burned to the ground, we were also developing our imagination, and thereby improving our ability to think and reason. Moreover, we were being instilled with a sense of honesty, courage, loyalty, and many other invaluable virtues. But television, on the other hand, is incessantly destroying our imagination and undermining our morals. Take note, however, that I'm not suggesting we should regress back in time (even if this were possible) when there wasn't any television. Television is here, and here to stay. But even so, television doesn't have to be such a bad thing. On the contrary, it could be adopted to rekindle the fire of our traditional morals and appeal to our intellect. If television were directed towards the intelligentsia, and viewed only in moderation, it could become a real asset to our society. But, because of the programs currently presented and the amount of time most people spend watching it, television will eventually transform our society into a colony of demoralized, degenerate, and mindless drones. ❑ by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Cornelia Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti- Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" — R.S.H. "A searing expose of Red bestiality" — Dr. A.J. Appl. THE ANTI-HUMANS. Order #01013. Sale priced, single copy $2.00 + $1.50 postage, 10 for $15.00 + $5.00 postage.

THE ANTI-HUMANS

* * *

THE BOOK THAT MADE THE JEWS SO MAD THEY HAD TO INVENT THE MOVIE

AUSCHWITZ:

An Eye-Witness Report
by Thies Christophersen
Foreword by Manfred Roeder
Order No: 01017–single copy $3.00 + $1.50 for postage. 5 copies $12.50 + $1.50 for postage. Order from:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS
Postoffice Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

IN THE BEGINNING OF A CHANGE, THE PATRIOT IS A SCARCE MAN AND BRAVE, HATED, AND SCORNED. WHEN HIS CAUSE SUCCEEDS HOWEVER, THE TIMID JOIN HIM, FOR THEN IT COSTS NOTHING TO BE A PATRIOT.

Mark Twain

NATIONAL SOCIALISM:
A Philosophical Appraisal

by

Colin Jordan, England

Twenty-one years after the physical defeat of National Socialist Germany in the outcome of her heroic struggle against the overwhelming array of men and materials marshaled against her by the Bolshevist-democratic alliance, the appearance of this journal in 1966 reflects that revival of National Socialism which is a feature of the day.

That the creed should live on and manifest itself as it does now, after being subjected to two decades of the greatest campaign of defamation which the world has ever known, is a proof of its continuing validity and appeal and its worthiness for the future. It has survived the flames of war and the tempest of vilification because, when war has done its worst and vilification has run its entire gamut, National Socialism remains, in the final analysis, synonymous with higher man's will to survive, his instinct for health and strength, and his desire for beauty in life; and, as long as that will, that instinct, and that desire remain on this earth, the creed of National Socialism will remain, indestructible.

Beyond and behind all the minutæ of political implementation and the particularities of time and place, National Socialism, properly understood, is nothing less than an orientation of the mind, the dominant impulse of which is to live to the full, through the development of one's potentialities and the satisfaction of one's needs, under conditions of natural competition and selection, reconciled to cooperation, within the organized community of the folk.

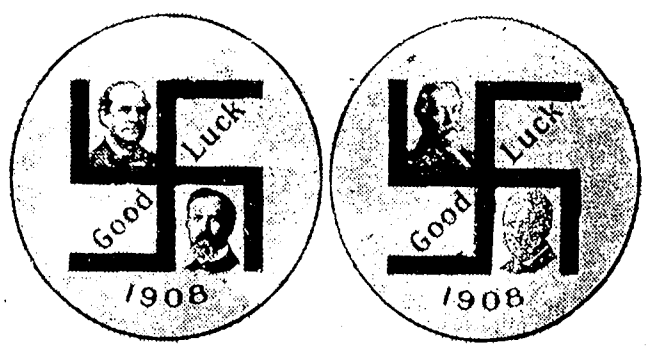
In this its roots go back to Plato's Greece and his conception of a natural life, consisting in the full realization of man's true nature through the power of government within his native community.

It echoes the Roman notion of dutiful citizenship: the notion that the good and noble life consists in Stoic service to the state.

It revives the blood feelings and sense of community of the Nordic tribes of early Europe: the feeling that man is essentially a member of the folk, and that all members of the folk are bound together closely with reciprocal duties and obligations.

National Socialism, in this way, reaches back to the old, healthy, organic values of life in revolt against the whole structure of thought of liberalism and democracy, with its cash nexus; its excessive individualism; its view of man as a folkless, interchangeable unit of world population; its spiritual justification in a debased Christianity embracing a sickly "humanitarianism," which will always tolerate a greater harm for the sake of avoiding a lesser one; and its fraudulent contention that the artificially induced and numerically determined wishes of the mass are the all-important criteria.

AMERICANA



Swastikas symbolized good luck in 1908 presidential election between William Howard Taft and William Jennings Bryan.

History is a saga of social decay and renewal. National Socialism is the twentieth century's remedy of renewal for the great degeneration of modern times under the disintegrating, debasing, and emasculating thought and practice which emerged with the disruption of the old medieval order of stability by the developing forces of capitalism and the industrial revolution; flourished under the laissez-faire liberalism of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries; came to a climax under the democracy of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries; and will result in the world triumph of communism by the end of this twentieth century unless National Socialism comes to power in time, over a sufficient area of the globe.

National Socialism, therefore, is immensely more than a transitory political scheme. It is a historic tendency of rebirth: our age's movement of renaissance, a movement revolutionary in scope and spirit, seeking no compromise with the present order, its pernicious practices, and its false values, but their complete replacement.

As such it is worldwide, and it is life-wide. It is worldwide in that, in its essentials, it is valid and vital universally, qualified only by the fact that it is Aryan in emanation and tradition, and upholds and depends on qualities to be found par excellence in the Aryan people.

It is life-wide in that it is not an aspect of life, but the whole of life seen from one aspect. It is an attitude of mind expressible in respect of virtually anything and everything. National Socialism stands relentlessly opposed to every manifestation of ill health, ugliness, and degeneracy in the cultural and spiritual, no less than in the political and economic spheres. In fact, it constitutes a way of life. A man does not call himself a National Socialist as a mere label of intellectual endorsement. He is born with a propensity to National Socialism, his mind æsthetically craving the discernment and fulfillment of a healthy pattern of life, and he not only thinks and feels, but acts as a National Socialist, if he is really and entirely one.

Total in its scope of thought, National Socialism amounts to a philosophy and a faith. It evaluates good and bad, right and wrong, as that which benefits or harms the folk, and man viewed as a member of the folk; and, in place of the sentimental debility of the democratic mind, accepts that the end justifies the means, providing the means do not contradict the end. It sets a meaning and purpose of cosmic dimension to life as a personal fulfillment, within the continuity and development of the folk, between germination in the womb out of the bloodline of the folk, and the metamorphosis of the grave, with its physical redistribution to the universe.

The basic criterion and primary value of National Socialism, from which all else springs, is, as Adolf Hitler makes clear in Mein Kampf, its concept of the folk, seen as man's essential environment and, indeed, his extension of personality.

The significance of the folk is, primarily, that of a racial community. It is the ethnical enlargement of the family. Man is not a self-contained unit and an end in himself, as the sages of liberalism and democracy assert. He belongs to his folk. His life, as a part, is interwoven with the life of the whole, not only present, but past and future, for while men come and go the folk lives on, continuous, eternal, providing its members perform their duty to it. Thus, in identifying himself with his folk, man prolongs himself through the multiplicity of his ancestors and his descendants, and thereby attains immortality.

The folk exists in smaller and larger forms, ranging from the family, to the clan, to the tribe or regional community, thence to the nation, and beyond to the race. In modern times, the conception of the folk has become too largely identified with the nations of the contemporary states. The feeling of kinship and community, which rightly expanded from the tribe and petty kingdom to the modern nation-state, has, however, become far too concentrated as this level. The lower and smaller, but equally important, communities within the nation-state have been disrupted and deprived of vitality, while the expansion of folk consciousness from the level of the nation-state to that of the entire race has been checked. Yet folk feeling, to be wholesomely potent, must flow from its roots through the local and provincial communities to the limits of the race, because the full security and prosperity of the parts can only be found in that of the whole.

Today and in the future, National Socialism must embody this essential extension of the feeling of kinship and community beyond the bounds of the contemporary nation-state and conventional nationalism, so that the nation-state becomes an intermediate unit in the structure of the folk, and its nationalism and racialism become integrally subordinate to a nationalism of the whole race.

At the same time, the local communities require to be revived, the provincial sub-nations recognized and respected, and peoples subject to an undesired, alien rule given their ethnic freedom by separation.

National Socialism's belief in the folk as the basic value, and its totality of outlook, result, figuratively speaking, in thinking with the blood on all questions.

This immediately and inevitably gives rise to the definition of citizenship as a matter of race: only those who are members of the folk are members of the nation, and only those who are members of the nation can be citizens of the state—to paraphrase the fourth of the Twenty-five Points of Adolf Hitler's NSDAP.

It also generates the belief that it is necessary not merely to preserve the racial character of the folk, but also, by eugenic measures, to improve the quality of the folk. It is National Socialism's revolutionary contention that the way of real progress lies in breeding better human beings.

Since all citizens are of the same race, they have a transcendent bond of kinship uniting them as blood brothers above all sectional and class differences and personal distinctions. National unity, i.e., cohesion and corporate life in place of the class warfare of Left and Right, is one of the great secondary principles of National Socialism. All occupations and pursuits, all manner of persons and all fields of activity, must be integrated into the corporate life of the community.

The social feeling of oneness must find practical expression in, and in turn be stimulated by, a sincere and profound concern for social and economic justice. Consciousness of kinship and care for the collective good of the folk demand that every citizen must have an equal opportunity to develop and exercise his talents and rise according to his merits; and that every citizen must receive a fair return for his services to the community, and even the simplest worker an assurance of the necessities of life.

Thus we arrive at the socialist element in National Socialism. This is not the Marxist socialism of state ownership of the means of production and distribution, which is the economic

Suggested Literature:

Mein Kampf, pb., $15.00 + $2.25; hb., $20.00 + $3.00; Germ. lang. edition, hb., $40.00 + $6.00. – The Testament of Adolf Hitler, $5.00 + $1.50. – Adolf Hitler: A Short Sketch of His Life, pb., $5.00 + $1.50. – The Programme of the NSDAP, $5.00 + $1.50. – A Straight Look at the Third Reich, by the late Prof. Austin J. App, $4.50 + $1.50. – Hitler Speaks to America, $3.00 + $1.50. – The Hitler We Loved and Why, $8.00 + $1.50.– Hitler, the Workless and the Needy, $3.00 + $1.50. – Lincoln Rockwell Nails the Jews, $2.00 + $1.50. – A Revolution in Thought, Dr. Otto Dietrich, $3.00 + $1.50. – Germany Declares for Peace, $3.50 + $1.50. – What the Socialism [as in National Socialism] Really Means, $.300 + $1.50. – Exchange of Communications Between the President of the United States and the Chancellor of the German Reich, April 1939, $3.50 + $1.50. – Bolshevism in Theory and Practice, Dr. Jos. Goebbels, $3.00 + $1.50. – Communism With the Mask Off, Dr. Jos. Goebbels, $3.50 + $1.50. – They Call it Democracy: We Call It a Racket, John Tyndall, $3.50 + $1.50. – The March Up Country, H.A. Covington, $8.00 + $1.50. For our latest Book / Price List, please send $1.00 to:

Liberty Bell Publications, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270.U.S.A.

Organizations / Publications:

National Alliance, P.O. Box 330, Rte 39, Hillsboro WV 24946. – N.S.W.P.P., c/o Dixie Press, Box 608, Raleigh NC 27602-0608. – N.S.D.A.P.-A.O., Box 6414, Lincoln NE 68506. – NS Vanguard, Box 328, The Dalles OR 97058. – Aryan Nations, Box 363, Hayden Lake ID 83825. – Euro-American Alliance, Box 2-1776, Milwaukee WI 53221. – NS Publications, Box 27486, Milwaukee WI 53227. When writing to these organizations, include $2.00 for an introductory packet.

over-government of the ant heap, and as objectionable as the predatory individualism of the capitalist system, which is the economic under-government, or anarchy, of the jungle. Instead, it is Folk Socialism, or the regulation of private enterprise for the equitable division of its fruits, under equitable conditions. The economic injustices and social evils of capitalism have fostered Marxism, with its pernicious form of public control of the economy, and the alternative to both lies in National Socialism.

The folk ideal, which entails the defense of the race, the unity of the nation, and the welfare of the people, engenders National Socialism's principle of leadership and an elite in the service of those objectives. Its conception of a natural order is one which not only ordains that men are born into the folk for a life within the folk, but also that they possess hereditary differences of capacity to serve the community.

Accordingly, for the maximum good of all, the superior must lead the inferior. The natural leaders must be selected, established as a hierarchic elite under a supreme leader, and empowered to fulfill their functions.

Unlike liberalism, National Socialism does not regard the directive power of the state as something essentially repressive, but instead as a great, beneficial power of guidance and arbitration, encouragement and protection. It upholds the dictum: "All for the folk and the folk for all." It sanctions whatever means are necessary, in whatever fields, to ensure that everyone and everything in the community is in harmony with this.

It sees the duty of National Socialist government as the representation of the will of the folk, conceived not as the transitory whim of some democratic mob, but as the higher interest of the community, viewed in historical perspective as a continuity of purpose, embracing not only the general good of the present, but the heritage of the past and the needs of the future as well.

Reprinted from National Socialist World No. 1, originally published in 1966 by The National Alliance, Dr. William Pierce, Editor.

WHAT IS NATIONAL SOCIALISM?

National Socialism is a world view for White people, based on the ideas and concepts of the German racial nationalist philosopher and statesman Adolf Hitler (1889-145). National Socialism was adapted to the political and racial conditions of the United States by the late U.S. Navy Commander George Lincoln Rockwell (1918-1967).

Owing to the tragic and unnecessary suffering which took place during the Second World War, and because certain powerful elements in our society to this day maintain an interest in obscuring and concealing the truth, half a century after the war's end massive misconceptions still exist in America today about what National Socialism was and is. The National Socialist body of belief is founded on three basic principles:

1. NATURAL ORDER — We believe that the universe is governed by natural laws. In order for Man to be happy and successful, he must first learn what these laws are and then follow them. We believe that Man is part of the natural world and that he is in no way separate or distinct from it. Because of this, we believe that society should be structured in accordance with the laws of Nature, and not in opposition to them as is the case today.

2. RACIAL IDEALISM — Racial idealism is based on the love of one's own people. It means placing the interests and welfare of the racial community to which you belong ahead of your own personal interests and desires. As racial idealists we have no wish to harm, exploit, or persecute other racial groups, despite a persistent media campaign of abuse and deliberate falsification to the contrary. We are only interested in protecting our own people against extinction, a fate all too likely if nothing is done about present conditions in America.

We believe that all men are not created equal. Just as every individual has his own strengths and weaknesses, so each race has certain qualities which make it different from other races. We believe that the White (or Aryan) race has the right to maintain its own biological, cultural and political independence and integrity, and that we have the right to control our own destiny. We also believe that the White race has the right to defend itself against all physical, economic, and spiritual attacks, no matter where they come from.

3. THE UPWARD DEVELOPMENT OF THE WHITE RACE — We want to do more than just defend our race; we want to see it improve. This can be done by encouraging a high birth rate among those sections of the White population which are the healthiest, strongest, and most intelligent. At the same time, our science should work to eliminate hereditary weaknesses and defects among our people. Our goal is that each new generation of White children will be better than the one before it.

In the United States and Canada, National Socialism is represented by the NATIONAL SOCIALIST WHITE PEOPLE'S PARTY, which was originally founded by George Lincoln Rockwell in 1967 and reconstituted in 1994. The N.S.W.P.P. fights for the survival of the White race and for true racial justice through the establishment of a sovereign Aryan Republic on North American soil. For more information on our organization and its beliefs, contact us: N.S.W.P.P. Central Support Unit, c/o Dixie Press, P.O. Box 608, Raleigh, NC 27602-0608, USA. All inquiries will be treated in the strictest confidence. ❑

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear George:

I am enclosing $80, for renewal of my subscription...

I have been watching this bad business between the Institute for Historical Review and the Spotlight. The IHR was doing a good job in blowing up the "Holohoax" for a while, but it had a wide range of members, and I think it lacked unity in other fields, such as race, and quite a few more.

I have seen the case put from each side, and I believe I need more evidence before I make much judgement. However, I did read what Marcellus had to say in regards to the works of Leon Degrelle, and I am certainly not inclined to agree with him. Members of my family fought the Germans in both world wars. My father was in France on the Somme, and saw quite a lot of very hard fighting. My father never had a hateful word for the German people, or for his "enemy," the frontline soldier. I can see now how much of the trouble was caused by the conniving race, and believe it a tragedy that so many of the best examples of our race killed each other so unnecessarily. The world would be a far different place if we had been able to unite, as we have sometimes done in the past, but this time against the real and common foe. The immense tragedy of wasted effort is awesome to contemplate. We need the story of this century to be also told from the German side. Degrelle, I believe, did a good job with his Hitler Born at Versailles; I was looking forward to the rest. The murders done at Nuremberg are nothing for Americans or British to be proud of. So many who could have written a history died. The British did it once before after Waterloo with the execution of Ney, "The bravest of the brave." I would like to find out what people were really responsible for THAT decision.

I am still trying to work out what is going on with the IHR business...

Yours sincerely
D.B., Australia

⌘ ⌘ ⌘

Dear Mr. Dietz:

I have not taken the time to express my appreciation for the work you have done and are doing in producing the Liberty Bell. Thank you and those who write for the Liberty Bell, especially Revilo P. Oliver, for a year of history, social commentary and wit...

Best wishes,

R.P., Oregon

⌘ ⌘ ⌘

Dear Mr. Dietz,

Please renew my subscription...

Professor Oliver's prolific accounts of history are always worth reading and together with the writings of N. Carter and Dr. Bentinck your journal has become quite formidable. Philosophically however, greater depth in perception and purpose—without coming full circle back to metaphysics—would be desirable. The old Hellenes had worked out a concept of what they call areté, sometimes incorrectly interpreted as simply virtue. In reality it meant much more, a kind of all encompassing wholesomeness and ethical standard for mind and soul, intellect and psyche.

Perhaps someday Dr. Oliver could examine that previous subject, that cohesive ingredient of human endeavor, which transcends mere polemics.

Keep up the good fight!

Sincerely,
W.A., New York State

⌘ ⌘ ⌘

Greetings!

I hope all is well with you. Enclosed is a little contribution...

Again I want to emphasize to you that what makes LB great is that it tends toward atheism, or at least anti-Christianty. I threw up reading Bertram Russell when I was about 13 years old and since then haven't had the burden of religious fallacy to overcome. Some publications which correctly perceive severe problems with America (and the world), look utterly foolish when they begin to talk about the Lord Jesus Christ, etc.

Well, take care! Your pal,

T.T., New Jersey

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz;

Please find enclosed my renewal plus a modest contribution.

I especially like your current issue, and the articles by Campbell and Vanderpool. I hope to see more material along these lines, and like the "She Cannot..." that I sent you last fall. Let IHR make an industry out of ping-ponging the gas chamber story and give us more of other things.

Thanks very much,

Dr.K.N., Utah

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Editor:

It took about 500 years for the "Master's Little Darlings" to corrupt and destroy the Roman Empire. They have done it to us in a little over 200 years. Of course, the Romans didn't have zionized movies, television, a phoney banking system, high-tech pornography, the Melting Pot, or an overdose of Judeo-Christian preachers to contend with.

Up until a few weeks ago, when the prospect of caning an American boy in Singapore came to light, it was hard to come up with something that could bring Millions of our Do-Gooders, whimps, criminals, and most of the 750,000 lawyers and politicians back to reality. For years now, the American people, in business for themselves, find that it gets harder and harder to follow the rules in trying to make an honest living, without one of the arms of BIG GOVERNMENT forcing them into some criminal activity in order to save his family and business, especially if he is successful.

This kind of thinking had a lot to do in starting the Civil War. The Fat Cats in the Ivory Towers in London and New York couldn't stand to see the Southern Farmer making a good living on cotton. Not all of the Carpetbaggers left the South after the war. They made Federal District Judges out of'em, and we have had our noses dragged through the do-do ever since. Today, our farmers are making a little money on onions and tobacco, and they are under attack by the Feds. If they can't own it or control it, they destroy it.

Just watching the caning process in action on every courthouse lawn in the country, 24 hours a days (3 shifts) could help to save our country. It's never too late, until we give up our right to bear arms.

G.T., Georgia

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

An Appeal For Help

Many of you who receive this will know who I am. Many of you have met me at some place or another during the past 12 years. The enclosed letter from my son, Yorie [see note below], is a plea for help that has been needed but unfulfilled for far too long.

I appreciate the assistance many of you have given over the years. Unfortunately—and I sorrow to say this—it has never been enough. I don't know what will be enough.

If you have even a little faith, it is said that it can move mountains. The corresponding reality, as I think we all know, is that "faith without works is dead.ö Gordon was a man who always applied his work with his faith. He put his life on the line for what he believed. He spent virtually every cent he ever had beyond the necessities required by his family, attempting to help his fellow Americans, and often the family did without for the greater cause.

My son languishes in prison but is guilty of no crime. He has lost his father, alongside whom he loyally stood for the cause in which they both believed.

I have concluded that this nation has lost its manhood. Harry we have witnessed in the murders of Vicki and Sammy Weaver and the people at Waco is not only tragic, it is inexcusable. I understand the suffering of Randy Weaver. Most of you cannot. That so much injustice and tyranny goes unchallenged is proof that few real men still live in America.

In the last several decades America has turned into a wasteland. Its women are not safe from rape anywhere. Homosexuality and even bestiality are presented as normal behavior to our children in grade schools.

I am getting old. My grandchildren have no present let alone a future. My son is still suffering in prison. Although he still tries to pursue justice against many impediments deliberately created by the Federal Bureau of Prisons to hinder his legal work—he is alone. He suffers alone, and even if he has to pursue everything alone, I know he will continue with determination that comes from a knowledge that he is innocent of the charges placed against him.

We need help. Not words. No war was ever fought with words alone, nor will one ever be. I believe Yorie's convictions can be reversed.

Three high-powered lawyers who have reviewed some of the issues believe it almost certainly can be done. But—yes, but—the price is high. Overturning Yorie's convictions won't be easy, but what we've endured thus far has not been easy either.

I am doing all I can. I'm not young anymore and this is taking its toll on me. I hope I live long enough to see justice done in this case. It would be a start towards eliminating the terrible injustice that has grown so great in this nation.

Please help us. It's against my nature to beg, but I will if it would make the difference. Our sincere thanks to those who have helped and to those who will.

Joan Kahl Britton
3564 Windrift Way #251
Oceanside CA 92056

[For space reasons we cannot reprint the 6-page letter from Yorie von Kahl (No. 04565-059 (A-3), Box 1000, Leavenworth KS 66048) to his mother, dated May 5, 1994. If you wish to receive photocopies, Please send $1.00 for postage and copying charges to LBP, or send donation to Mrs. von Kahl at above address.]

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

Most knowledgeable people assumed rightly so that all the controversy surrounding the Michael Fay caning in Singapore, was due because of Mr. Fay's part Jewish ancestry.

I really don't think most white people knew that the kidnap victim Polly Klass's mother was a Kikess. Because Polly's paternal grandparents lived in Monterey, a town nearby, our local paper in an interview brought it out. Since the kid could have been Anne Frank's twin sister, I was not surprised. It also, of course, explained the intense media interest and outcry of all the politicians. This fact, as far as I know, never received major media attention. In fact, several Bay Area papers printed several articles speculating why the people were so aroused by her case.

In the last 20 years a number of frightful missing children, nearly all white, have made headlines of very short duration, then down the memory hole. So friends, you no longer have to ask, "why Polly Klaas?"

For Our Race
C.E.R., California

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear Mr. Dietz:

The postoffice has just come out with a stamp honoring the Buffalo Soldiers. The Buffalo Soldiers were negroes who served in the U.S. Army around the turn of the century. The stamp features a heroic figure of a mounted negro firing his rifle in a very manly fashion. This at a time when our government is doing everything it can to disarm Whites.

Reportedly, negroes were used in the government's slaughter of Whites in the Branch Davidian massacre in Waco.

Can you imagine the postoffice coming out with a stamp honoring the Texas Rangers?!!

Yours truly,
J.McC., Washington

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

Dear George:

Sorry for the delay in getting my subscription renewal in. I had about decided to let my sub to Liberty Bell lapse since I am getting married in a few months and I've been a bit concerned about how my bride-to-be would take to Revilo P. Oliver (for example). In other words, she is not a female Lincoln Rockwell (though she can tolerate my pagan religious opinions). However, she is chomping at the bit to have kids, which is definitely the important thing [you aren't kidding! — Congratulate your bride-to-be, C.N., on her attitude re kids!—G.D.] Hope everything is going well with you and yours.

Sincerely, C.N., North Carolina

⊞⊞⊞

Our tainted Leaders have just recently installed another Communist government; this time in South Africa. If you remember, they invited Mandela of the A.N.C. to speak before Congress a year or so ago, and with standing ovations. Today these leaders are doing back-flips and hand stands, celebrating their latest communist victory.

Just before Christmas, in 1913, Congress gave away its Constitutional right to regulate our money system. Four years later, in 1917, we helped to finance the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia, where our friends, the Romanov family, were murdered and the Russian people enslaved. This was the birth of Communism, and we fought two world wars to keep it alive. We disarmed a Christian ally in China, Chiang Kai Shek, allowing Mao-Tse-tung to communize the Chinese mainland, replaced Batista of Cuba with Fidel Castro, and the list goes on.

We fought two no-win wars in Korea and Vietnam. We were not allowed to win because they were Communists, so thousands of our boys were killed and wounded for nothing.

Lies and cover-ups became a way of life with our leaders, and finally when the word Communism began to have a bad smell, they changed the name to Democracy. The trouble with that is, Democracy and Communism is sort of like Republican and Democrat; there's not a dime's worth of difference in the two. We were founded as a Constitutional Republic. The World War I soldiers' handbook [see "Official Definition of Democracy" reprinted below; also read, They Call it 'Democracy:' We Call it a Racket, available from LBP, $3.50 + $1.50 postage] warned the people about the dangers of a Democracy; FDR gave us one anyway.

Now, as soon as we give up our rights to bear arms, our local police will most likely be replaced with foreign troops under the control of the United Nations. It appears we have taken to heart the advice given us by our Judeo-Christian preachers, "...turn the other cheek and love thine enemies." Love is for our family, friends and neighbors, not your enemies.

G.T., Georgia

Official Definition of DEMOCRACY

Here are four (4) fac simile section reproductions taken from a 156 page book officially compiled and issued by the U. S. War Department, November 30, 1928, setting forth exact and truthful definitions of a Democracy and of a Republic, explaining the difference between both. These definitions were published by the authority of the United States Government and must be accepted as authentic in any court of proper jurisdiction.

These precise and scholarly definitions of a Democracy and a Republic were carefully considered as a proper guide for U. S. soldiers and U. S. citizens by the Chief of Staff of the United States Army. Such definitions take precedence over any "definition" that may be found in the present commercial dictionaries which have suffered periodical "modification" to please "the powers in office."

Shortly after the "bank holiday" in the thirties, hush-hush orders from the White House suddenly demanded that all copies of this book be withdrawn from the Government Printing Office and the Army posts, to be suppressed and destroyed without explanation.

This was the beginning of the complete red control of the Government from within, not from without.

(No. 1 fac simile)

TM 2000–25
1

TRAINING MANUAL
No. 2000–25

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, November 30, 1928.

CITIZENSHIP

Prepared under direction of the Chief of Staff

This manual supersedes Manual of Citizenship Training

The use of the publication "The Constitution of the United States," by Harry Atwood, is by permission and courtesy of the author.
The source of other references is shown in the bibliography.

(No. 2 fac simile)

TM 2000–25
118–120

Democracy:

A government of the masses.

Authority derived through mass meeting or any other form of "direct" expression.

Results in mobocracy.

Attitude toward property is communistic—negating property rights.

Attitude toward law is that the will of the majority shall regulate, whether it be based upon deliberation or governed by passion, prejudice, and impulse, without restraint or regard to consequences.

Results in demagogism, license, agitation, discontent, anarchy.

(No. 3 fac simile)

TM 2000–25
120–121

Republic:

Authority is derived through the election by the people of public officials best fitted to represent them.

Attitude toward property is respect for laws and individual rights, and a sensible economic procedure.

Attitude toward law is the administration of justice in accord with fixed principles and established evidence, with a strict regard to consequences.

A greater number of citizens and extent of territory may be brought within its compass.

Avoids the dangerous extreme of either tyranny or mobocracy.

Results in statesmanship, liberty, reason, justice, contentment, and progress.

Is the "standard form" of government throughout the world.

A republic is a form of government under a constitution which provides for the election of (1) an executive and (2) a legislative body, who working together in a representative capacity, have all the power of appointment, all power of legislation, all power to raise revenue and appropriate expenditures, and are required to create (3) a judiciary to pass upon the justice and legality of their governmental acts and to recognize (4) certain inherent individual rights.

Take away any one or more of those four elements and you are drifting into autocracy. Add one or more to those four elements and you are drifting into democracy.—Atwood.

121. Superior to all others.—Autocracy declares the divine right of kings; its authority can not be questioned; its powers are arbitrarily or unjustly administered.

Democracy is the "direct" rule of the people and has been repeatedly tried without success.

Our Constitutional fathers, familiar with the strength and weakness of both autocracy and democracy, with fixed principles definitely in mind, defined a representative republican form of government. They "made a very marked distinction between a republic and a democracy * * * and said repeatedly and emphatically that they had founded a republic."

(No. 4 fac simile)

[A. G. 014.33 (4-28-28).]

BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR:

C. P. SUMMERALL,
Major General,
Chief of Staff.

OFFICIAL:
LUTZ WAHL,
Major General,
The Adjutant General.

ADDITIONAL COPIES OF THIS PUBLICATION MAY BE PROCURED FROM THE SUPERINTENDENT OF DOCUMENTS
U.S.GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE
WASHINGTON, D. C.
AT 10 CENTS PER COPY

Why Democracies Fail

A Democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of Government. It can only exist until the voters discover they can vote themselves largess out of the public treasury. From that moment on the majority always votes for the candidate promising the most benefits from the public treasury with the result that Democracy always collapses over a loose fiscal policy, always to be followed by a Dictatorship.

(Written by Professor Alexander Fraser Tytler, nearly two centuries ago while our thirteen original states were still colonies of Great Britain. At the time he was writing of the decline and fall of the Athenian Republic over two thousand years before.)

—Reprinted from the Freeman Magazine

Did I say "republic?" By God, yes, I said "republic!" Long live the glorious republic of the United States of America. Damn democracy.

It is a fraudulent term used, often by ignorant persons but no less often by intellectual fakers, to describe an infamous mixture of socialism, miscegenation, graft, confiscation of property and denial of personal rights to individuals whose virtuous principles make them offensive.

by Westbrook Pegler in the New York Journal American of January 25th and 26th, 1951, under the titles "Upholds Republic of U. S. Against Phony Democracy" and "Democracy in the U. S. Branded Meaningless."

KEEP THE LIBERTY BELL RINGING!

Please remember: Our Fight is Your fight! Donate whatever you can spare on a regular—monthly or quarterly—basis. Whether it is $2., $5., $20., or $100. or more, rest assured it is needed here and will be used in our common struggle. If you are a businessman, postage stamps in any denomination are a legitimate business expense—and we need and use many of these here every month—and will be gratefully accepted as donations .

Your donations will help us spread the Message of Liberty and White Survival throughout the land, by making available additional copies of our printed material to fellow Whites who do not yet know what is in store for them.

Order our pamphlets, booklets, and, most importantly, our reprints of revealing articles which are ideally suited for mass distribution at reasonable cost. Order extra copies of Liberty Bell for distribution to your circle of friends, neighbors, and relatives, urging them to subscribe to our unique publication. Our bulk prices are shown on the inside front cover of every issue of Liberty Bell.

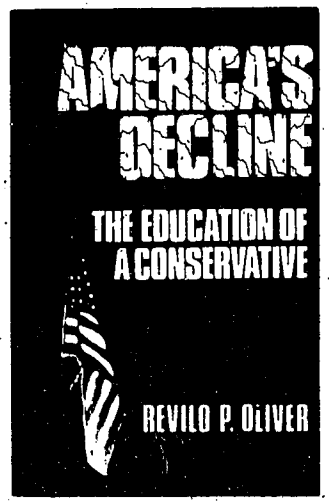
Pass along your copy of Liberty Bell, and copies of reprints you obtained from us, to friends and acquaintances who may be on our "wave length," and urge them to contact us for more of the same.

Carry on the fight to free our White people from the shackles of alien domination, even if you can only join our ranks in spirit. You can provide for this by bequest. The following are suggested forms of bequests which you may include in your Last Will and Testament:

1. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the sum of $ . . . . . for general purposes.

2. I bequeath to Mr. George P. Dietz, as Trustee for Liberty Bell Publications, P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA, the following described property . . . . . for general purposes.

DO YOUR PART TODAY—HELP FREE OUR WHITE RACE FROM ALIEN DOMINATION!



ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigous academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to Ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious—whether by its technology or its fecundity—from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

AMERICA'S DECLINE

Order No. 01007 – $10.00 376 pp., pb.
plus $1.50 for postage & handling ORDER FROM:

LIBERTY BELL PUBLICATIONS, Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA

Liberty Bell

ISSN: 0145 - 7667 SINGLE COPY $5.00

REVILO P. OLIVER, RIP

By
Maj. Donald V. Clerkin
page 21

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE:

Joseph D. Pryce: BAGATELLES: The Fear that Gnaws at the Heart of America, page 1; Prophets Without Grace, page 2; The Hidden Emperor, page 5; Roosevelt the First, page 6; I Sent My Newsletter Through the Invisible, page 8; Our Romper Room Rulers, page 9; Doctor Moreau's New World Order, page 13; The Darker Side of Coon, page 14; Burgess Remembers, page 16. — Charles E. Weber, Ph.D.: Book Review: The Fall of the Ivory Tower / Government Funding, Corruption, and the Bankrupting of American Higher Education, page 18. — Maj. D.V. Clerkin: White Isn't Enough, page 22. — Stephen Contrado: Bulloch's Dexterity, page 25. — Robert Frens: Revisionism is Jewish, page 27. — From Instauration: Revilo Oliver Is No Longer With Us., page 28.

Letters to the Editor, page 36.

VOL. 22 — NO. 4 DECEMBER 1994

Voice Of Thinking Americans

LIBERTY BELL

The magazine for Thinking Americans, has been published monthly since September 1973 by Liberty Bell Publications. Editorial office: P.O. Box 21, Reedy WV 25270 USA. Phone: 304-927-4486.

Manuscripts conforming to our editorial policy are always welcome and may be submitted on IBM-, Apple //e-, or Apple/Macintosh-compatible diskette, or in double-spaced, neatly typed format. Manuscripts will not be returned unless accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope. Manuscripts accepted for publication become the property of Liberty Bell Publications.

© Copyright 1993/1994
by Liberty Bell Publications.

Permission granted to quote in whole or part any article except those subject to author's copyright. Proper source, address and subscription information must be given.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION RATES
effective 1 January 1994

SAMPLE COPY	$ 5.00
THIRD CLASS-BULK RATE-USA only	$45.00
FIRST CLASS-USA	$55.00
FIRST CLASS-all other countries	$65.00
AIR MAIL-Europe, South America	$75.00
Middle East, Far East, South Africa	$80.00
Sample Copy	$ 6.50

BULK COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION

10 copies	$ 25.00
50 copies	$ 100.00
100 copies	$ 175.00
500 copies	$ 700.00
1000 copies	$1000.00

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT
FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

George P. Dietz, Editor & Publisher

BAGATELLES

by

Joseph D. Pryce

THE FEAR THAT GNAWS AT THE HEART OF AMERICA.

America is driven by a great fear. It whispers menacingly in dusky corners and threatens our slumbers in the night of storms. It is a fear which enables America's sheepish inhabitants to applaud our lords and masters as they rain down incendiary explosives on the heads and homes of helpless civilians overseas—without the slightest compunction. It is that great, that overmastering fear which prompts America's involvement in the blockade-racket, the sanctions-racket, and the human-rights-racket. It is that undying panic fear in the heart of boobus americanus which motivates the hordes to sally forth on those endless crusades which have disgorged thousands of our young men on foreign soil, where the beast whom we dread flourishes amidst the shifting miasma of his poisonous lair. Whether those same young men return to their native shores in slate-gray body-bags; or in a drug-induced stupor from which they may never emerge; or tainted with bizarre microbial infestations, does not matter. For these young men have faced, and battled bravely against, that terrible dragon whom we fear with all of our being, and duty demands their sacrifice. The supine reaction of America's citizens to the nakedly terroristic attack on the innocents who lived on David Koresh's grounds in Waco, Texas, resulted from that same unyielding fear, a fear which has been instilled in Americans with the very birth of consciousness. That fear renders ordinary Americans unwilling to identify those individuals who have taken part in Z.O.G.'s great conspiracy, an enterprise which has resulted in nothing less than the world in which we now live. The prison bars clank down around us, and dull in the dark are our fear-smitten eyes....

What is it that we fear? Well, what was wrong with Kaiser Wilhelm II? What was wrong with Adolf Hitler? What was wrong with Saddam Hussein? What is still wrong with Colonel Khaddafy? What is wrong with anyone who hints at the conspiratorial nature of the scheme which has laid our Aryan people low? What strange entity could cause an adult American to attempt to explain to his fellow prisoners the real nature of Judaism, that nation-wrecker par excellence?

You may have guessed the name of the beast by now. One more hint: what other country in history has ever employed its military units as if they were squads of roving psychoanalysts, itching to hunt down the spectre of psychopathology wherever it rears its ugly and despised head?

We Americans fear madness. That's all there is to it. And this fear of madness has induced in our people that which they most fear—MADNESS.

⊞ ⊞ ⊞

PROPHETS WITHOUT GRACE.

Education can't give it to you. Native intelligence won't assure its appearance.

The gift won't drop down from the vasty deeps simply because you've decided to summon it. It is a rare thing, indeed, and is granted only to the rare. I'm speaking, of course, of the benison of prophecy, that mysterious gift whose revelations have astounded sages and confounded the powerful.....

Those individuals who man the establishment's podiums and who make tidy livings acting as mouthpieces for the Weltgeist often fall spectacularly on the ice, legs and arms atremble in the icy air when they avail themeselves of the opportunity to make predictions, and one would be churlish indeed not to make merry at the spectacle. My favorite boneheaded 'expert' is one Richard J. Evans, a professor of history at Birchbeck (birch beer?) College of the University of London, who, in 1989, published a monograph, entitled In Hitler's Shadow—West German Historians and the Attempt to Escape From the Nazi Past (Pantheon Books, New York), on the Historikerstreit which was then raging in German intellectual circles. It seems that some German historians had become so temerarious as to consider the possibility that German 'war-crimes' should be considered in perspective, and that, perhaps, the Germans weren't the only parties involved in the Second World War to emerge from the struggle with blood-caked forearms. It was truly comical to observe our professor castigating the 'revisionists' as cranks and, it was hinted, as neo-Nazis, without his even mentioning any writer more radical than the shape-shifting Ernst Nolte. It was as if the author were railing in apocalyptic and stentorian tones against the Matterhorn while pointing at a mouse.

But the truly mirth-making moment of prophecy came when our author—remember that this was published in 1989—confidently asserts that "The Bismarckian version of German unification thus lasted all of sixty-seven years. More and more, it appears not as the culmination of German history but as a mere episode in it. Nineteen eighty-eight marked the fiftieth anniversary of its demise." [!!]

